Charlevoix Co. Fair
East Jordan, Michigan

Sept. 12th to 16th.

Day and Night!

FAIR FACTS

The Thirty-Seventh Annual Charlevoix County Fair will be held September 12th to 16th inclusive, at East Jordan. The price of admission is as follows: Day Fair, adults fifty cents, children twenty-five cents, automobiles fifty cents. Night Fair, adults twenty-five cents, children fifteen cents. Anyone desiring to stay on the grounds at the close of the Day Fair may do so without paying extra admission. A charge is made for cars entering the grounds in the daytime for the reason that it has been found necessary to look after the parking of the cars. All receipts from this source will be kept in a separate fund and will be used for improvements on the grounds. Other articles in this paper will tell you some of the things which you will see and hear in return for your money.

This Fair is one of the largest County Fairs in the State. It is replete with educational and amusement features. It is the only Fair in Northern Michigan which has held an annual Fair for as long a time as thirty-seven years without missing a year. It has one of the best equipped county fair plants in the State.

The exhibition in the educational building is the best school exhibit to be found at any County Fair.

It has a large barn full of registered cattle in exhibit. The Loeb Farms has a building of its own in which it exhibits the very best of registered cattle and horses (last year the Loeb Farms exhibited a national champion). The exhibit of fruit, vegetables, grain and fancy work is unusually large and of excellent quality. The poultry exhibit is getting better each year.

There will be many eating stands on the grounds and the dining hall will be run by the Wilson Grange, which will serve each day and evening a good substantial, country meal. Everything for the comfort and entertainment of its patrons is provided by the Fair Association.

Residents of Emmet, Grand Traverse Antrim and Otsego counties are especially invited to attend this Fair and exhibit with the residents of Charlevoix County. If you people think you have the best Fair in the State, come to the Charlevoix County Fair and see one which is at least equally as good. If after seeing this Fair, you feel that your Fair is better, see the Secretary of the Charlevoix County Fair and tell him in what parts your Fair is better. He would like to know so that he can make the Charlevoix County Fair better than it is now.

BAND AND ORCHESTRA MUSIC EVERY AFTER-NOON AND EVENING

Each afternoon and evening of the Fair, the Boyne City Marine Band of Boyne City, Michigan, the New Metropole Orchestra of East Jordan and Fischer's Orchestra of Kalamazoo will furnish the music.

The Band will be stationed in the band stand and one of the orchestras in the grand stand and the other orchestra, when it is not playing for dancing, will be located on the midway on a specially constructed platform.

These with the real music made by the Merry-go-round will keep the crowds lively and in a happy mood.

Each evening commencing at seven o'clock the two orchestras and the band will render concert music. Anyone who enjoys good music and lots of it should be sure and come to the Charlevoix County Fair this year.

Good Exhibits Are Assured

Indications Are For Full Showings in All Divisions.

Charlevoix County this year has been very fortunate in that it has a good fruit crop and that its farm crops generally are very good. Indications are that the grain, vegetable and fruit departments will be full of exhibits of unusual merit. Practically all registered cattle in the county have been tested for tuberculosis and are admissible to exhibit at the County Fair. Many owners of registered herds have indicated their intention to exhibit their animals this year and indications point strongly to the best cattle exhibit ever seen at a county fair. This means a good deal, as last year we had so many that there was an overflow and had to be taken care of in one of the other barns.

The Loeb Farm building will be filled again this year. Last year they exhibited an animal which later took first prize at the National Dairy Show in Chicago. Their exhibits this year will be of equal merit. The poultry show promises to be unusually large, the entire building has been given over to this department and it will be filled with many excellent birds. The poultry department at M. A. C. is sending the Judge for this department and he will give lectures at the building.

The three city schools of Charlevoix County have agreed to furnish an exhibit equal to the one of last year and the winners of the various contests of the rural schools are planning their exhibits in competition for the county championship. The educational exhibit is one of which the county is justly proud. You can see nothing like it at other county fairs.

The sheep, swine and horse departments have numerous entries and undoubtedly will have very good exhibits. Judges in all departments are experienced men who reside without the county. These men have all had special training along the lines which they judge and their comments and suggestions are of great value to all farmers.

At noon on Thursday and Friday there will be a stock parade on the race track. This is above all an agricultural Fair with the amusement features as side lines. If you are a farmer or interested in farming you will get many valuable suggestions at the Charlevoix County Fair.

MIDWAY WILL BE FILLED.

A great many reservations for space on the midway at the County Fair have already been made, these including Merry-go-Round, one large tent show and several small ones, Blanket Wheels Candy Wheels, Kewpie Doll Rack, a number of novelty concessions, hot dog and soft drink stands. These reservations have been accompanied with a deposit so that the Secretary is in a position to assure the patrons of the Fair that all space on the midway will be filled and that they may be certain of a good, lively midway.

Dance at the Fair or Down Town

Don't forget that you can dance your heads off Fair week at East Jordan, either in the Armory down town or in the educational building at the Fair grounds to the finest music in the world and on the best dance floors made.

You Will Enjoy a Visit To The Charlevoix Co. Fair.

DEAR READER:—

This paper is sent you so that you may be fully aware of the excellent County Fair which is being held at East Jordan, Sept. 12th to 16th. If you live in Traverse City could you think of a better way to spend the day and evening than by getting a party of your friends together, taking the delightful drive from Traverse City to East Jordan and enjoying with the people of Charlevoix County in celebrating the close of a successful harvest season.

If you happen to be a Petoskey reader why not jump in your car and drive to East Jordan over your good Emmet County roads and the almost equally good Charlevoix roads? You are indeed fortunate in being able to drive over the wonderfully good roads through an unexcelled farming country and with beautiful lake views each mile of the way. You have a great many friends in Charlevoix County who would be very pleased to renew acquaintances with you again.

Gaylord people always come to the Charlevoix County Fair. It only takes them two hours to drive across. They like to dance, are fond of good baseball games and horse racing and like to have a good time generally and they know that they always have it at East Jordan.

Our Antrim County friends live right next door to us and many of them look upon our Fair as being partly theirs. They are welcome to exhibit and we know they have the goods to carry away many of the premiums. We will be very glad to see your smiling faces with us this year.

All roads lead to East Jordan the week of September 12th. If you don't get here you will indeed miss the time of your lives. If you are from Missouri come and be shown!

DANCING AT FAIR GROUNDS AND IN ARMORY DOWN TOWN

The Charlevoix Agricultural Society announces that it will give a dancing party at the Armory in East Jordan each evening of Fair week commencing Monday, September 12th. Tickets for the evening dance will be $1.50 and Fisher's Orchestra will furnish the music each evening. Dancing commences at 8:30 and will continue until twelve o'clock. The Armory at East Jordan has without doubt the best dance floor in Northern Michigan. It will accommodate a large number of people.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening and each afternoon of the Fair the New Metropole Orchestra of East Jordan will play for dancing in the Educational Building at the Fair grounds. This Orchestra is the best orchestra in this part of the country and will be a full six piece orchestra. It plays all the latest dance hits. It is a real pleasure to dance to its music. This is a real opportunity for anyone who enjoys dancing to first class music on a good floor. Come and have a good time.

If you would admit frankly that you don't understand the situation and then ask questions until you did, instead of trying to give the impression that you are quick-witted when you are not, you wouldn't make many mistakes.

Even though two can live as cheaply as one they don't.

Marriage is always a serious affair and a good many moderns are making it a series affair.

You have found by this time that easy money isn't easy to get.

About everybody thinks he would be a great business man if he only had the chance, but if he were a great business man he would get the chance.

Women pose for the benefit of other women and for men, but men generally pose to give themselves confidence when they know they haven't much to back it up.

Enemies are valuable at times but friends are valuable all the time.

RACE HORSES GALORE

Over Twenty Horses Already Entered for Races.

This year's horse racing at the Charlevoix County Fair will undoubtedly be the very best races ever held on the Fair grounds. The Association has joined the American Trotting Association and is now subject to its rules and regulations. This permits many horses to enter which heretofore have been barred by the rules of the Trotting Association.

The owners of twenty horses have already signified their intention of racing at the East Jordan Fair. There will be ten horses from Traverse City, five from Petoskey and five from scattering points. The Association expects at least ten more horses as it has letters of inquiry from other owners, who have not as yet written for reservations. This will insure five horses for each race and will mean that every horse in the race will have to work its hardest if it expects to place in the money.

If you enjoy good horse racing that is on the square be sure and attend the Charlevoix County Fair.

Free Movies A Feature

A part of each night's entertainment at the Charlevoix County Fair will consist of out-door movies. A moving picture man has been secured who has a first class moving picture outfit, to put on moving pictures out doors at the Fair grounds each evening of the Fair. This man has good western pictures and comedies. He will exhibit his pictures in front of the grand stand so that all desiring a seat will have the opportunity of obtaining one. Moving pictures, an orchestra and band concert, the Steiner Trio, Martin and Genett, together with the Merry-go-round, blanket wheels, kewpie doll and candy wheels, novelty concessions, tent shows, all exhibition buildings open and dancing will furnish rare entertainment for each evening of the Fair.

The admission is twenty-five cents and no admission is charged for autos at the Night Fair.

STEINER TRIO A GOOD ACROBATIC ACT

One of the attractions which will help to make the Charlevoix County Fair the best ever held in its history will be the Steiner Trio. This act was purchased from the B. Ward Beam Co. of Celina, Ohio. This is the same Company which furnished the Six Morales which made such a hit at the 1920 fair, and the Manager of the Company has written the Secretary of the Fair that the Steiner Trio are equally as good in their act as the Six Morales were in theirs. You will miss an acrobatic act of rare ability if you fail to see this one.

Don't homely women ever have grievances against men? Then why is it that only the beautiful ones do the killing?

It is hard to say which is responsible for more automobile accidents—back-seat drivers or one-arm drivers.

The kisses women give each other are not the kind the moving picture censor cuts out.

Baseball A Big Feature

$500.00 Purse. Two Games per Day Scheduled.

This summer has been a genuine revival of baseball interest in Northern Michigan. The Northern Michigan Amateur League has produced some mighty fine baseball teams and in addition to these are several first class independent teams.

The Charlevoix County Fair Association is making an effort to get the best of the League teams and the best independent teams to play a series of games at the Fair for the Championship of Northern Michigan, incidentally for a purse of $500. The teams which have been invited to play are Traverse City, Loeb Farms, and Gaylord of the Independent Teams and Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Mancelona and Pellston League Teams. Most of these teams have accepted the invitation and if any drop out it is planned to replace them with other good teams. There will be two games of baseball each day of the Fair, commencing Tuesday, September 13th. One game will be played at 10:30 in the morning and one game at 2:00 in the afternoon.

On Thursday the teams winning the first day will play each other. On Friday the winning teams of Thursday will play for the championship and the two teams ranking next will play for third and fourth money. This will give a series of ball games worth going miles to see and will undoubtedly be the most important series played in Northern Michigan this year. The Charlevoix County Fair Association has just completed bleachers at the ball diamond capable of seating close to a thousand people. An admission of twenty-five cents will be charged to these bleachers. It has also completed a first class diamond on the Fair grounds. The caliber of the teams to play, together with the good grounds to play on insure two good, fast games of ball each day of the Fair.

You will miss something good if you don't see these games.

MARTIN AND GENNETT ARE SCREAMS AS FUN MAKERS.

Martin and Gennett with their foolish Ford will be one of the many attractions at the Charlevoix County Fair this coming week. Both Martin and Gennett are whirlwind acrobats and are screams as fun makers. They present an acrobatic tumbling act, working out the story of the troubles of a chauffeur and his passengers in a Ford car in a garage. This act will perform twice daily, putting on a performance in front of the grand stand each afternoon and evening. They are among the best in their profession, having played the state fairs and larger county fairs in the past few years. Don't fail to see them.

HAVE A RIDE IN THE AEROPLANE

The Michigan Aero Service Corporation will have a passenger carrying aeroplane at the Charlevoix County Fair. People who have taken flights over East Jordan say that there is a most wonderful view from an aeroplane, that the Jordan River Valley is one of the most beautiful sights imaginable. This plane will be at your service all day long if you desire to make a flight.

The issues which carried were: $1,650,000 for a municipal power and electric light plant; $100,000 for water works extension; $200,000 for sewerage systems, and $400,000 for paving. The vote was light.

ERA OF WORLD PEACE FAR OFF

President Harding Outlines Policy of U. S. At Conference.

Washington. — President Harding has defined the policy which will guide the administration and its representatives on the disarmament question at the coming conference of the world powers.

With clarifying emphasis he dispelled Utopian illusions that the United States would enter the conference prepared to scrap its weapons and render itself defenseless.

Summed up the American attitude as stated by the president is this: The day of permanent world peace is far off. The end of armed conflict may never come. Civilized government may never be able to scrap their navies and disband their armies. Nevertheless it may be possible to diminish the burdens of armament.

TO CONNECT TWO PENINSULAS

Doelle Tells Road Meeting Span Across Straits Planned.

Flint.—Plans are under way for the construction of a bridge to connect the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan, according to John A. Doelle, of Marquette, recently elected a member of the state board of agriculture, who spoke before the thirteenth annual convention of the Michigan Good Roads association, in session here.

Grand Rapids was chosen as the 1922 meeting place by the delegates in the closing session.

Mr. Doelle stated that the bridge would be constructed across the Straits of Mackinaw and that something definite would probably be done within a year, if financial condition warrant. He did not reveal who was behind the project.

Cold Bitter Winter in Sight!

New York.—Women will wear sleeves on their lingerie and even night gowns are going to be longer and have sleeves in them according to a large manufacturer of women's apparel. It was said the style might be in anticipation of a cold winter.

Auto Accidents Cost $4,500,000.

New York.—An estimate that $4,500,000 was paid by life insurance companies in death claims from automobile fatalities during 1920 is published by the Insurance Press. Life insurance distributions for the year by companies operating in the United States and Canada aggregated $1,092,066,434, including death claims of all sorts.

Pulling out of a hole shows courage and determination, but not getting into it shows judgment and discretion. A preacher, who is paid for it, does not preach all the time, but some women, who are not paid for it, do. If you "step on the gas" somebody is likely to step on your carcass.

What every man knows is that men critics of women's clothes are lying. Hardly anybody deserves much prosperity. It hurts them much more than poverty. Did you ever know a young husband to brag about how intellectual his wife was? Neither did we.

D. U. R. DIVIDEND IS REFUSED

Company's Statement Inconsistent, Declares Commission's Report.

Lansing.—Permission to issue 2 1/2 per cent stock dividend has been denied the Detroit United railway by the Michigan state public utilities commission.

In the report on the application, written by William W. Potter, of the commission, it was declared that the application which was supported by the statement that the company was financially able to pay the dividend was inconsistent with their showing a short time ago when representatives of the company came before the commission asking to be allowed to issue bonds in the sum of $5,000,000.

MAY NEED MORE BONUS FUNDS

Fuller Thinks $30,000,000 May Be $6,000,000 Under Sum Needed.

Lansing.—A third special session of the Legislature and a special state election may be necessary before bonus payments to former service men and women can be completed.

At a meeting of the Administrative Board, O. B. Fuller, auditor general, declared that the $30,000,000 authorized by constitutional amendment will be insufficient to pay all of the Michigan veterans. More than $8,000,000 has already been expended, he said, and only about 40,000 of the estimated 175,000 veterans have been paid. He estimated that a total of probably $38,000,000 will be required.

BOARD CLEARS PRISON WARDEN

Catlin Victim of "Spite Work" Governor Declares.

Lansing.—Warden Catlin of Marquette prison, indicted in connection with the recent investigation of the institution, was exonerated by the state administrative board last week.

The board went on record as believing that the acts charged against Catlin were "acts of charity" rather than infractions of law. Among other counts he was said to have purchased goods at a store conducted by prison inmates.

Considerable "spite work" entered into the affair, Governor Groesbeck declared.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

AT THE TEMPLE THEATRE NEXT WEEK

Starting Sunday, Wanda Hawley in "A Kid in Time." This is one of those good comedy stories that has made this star a favorite. She is in a class by herself and her pictures are all of the high class and clean entertainment. The Snub Pollard comedy that goes with this show makes it an evening of good clean entertainment. The same program will be shown on Monday which is the first day of the Fair.

Tuesday, Harold Lloyd in "High and Dizzy" will be the feature. It is a long time since the Temple has had a Harold Lloyd picture. The reports on this picture say it is the best comedy he ever made. This will make a double feature program for Tuesday.

MIDSUMMER JAMS AND JELLIES.

SOME of these fruits will be out of season but with canned juices one may make delicious jellies:

Apple and Raspberry Jelly.
Cut up apples after washing them and removing the blossom end. Do not pare or core. Just cover with water and bring to a boil, cook until the apples are very tender and can be mashed easily. Drain through a jelly bag. To the apple juice add any amount of raspberry juice as a flavor. Measure the juice and boil hard for twenty minutes, skimming often. Allow three-fourths of the measure of sugar to the juice. Heat the sugar and add to the boiled juice cook five minutes or until it jells from the spoon. A shaving of orange peel may be added if desired.

Mint Jelly.
Prepare apples as above and let drip over night. Measure the juice and add a bunch of mint or a rose geranium leaf, boil hard, skimming frequently, for twenty minutes; add the sugar, using three-fourths measure of sugar and boil five minutes. Pour into glasses and seal with paraffin when cold.

Blackberry Jam.
Put one quart of blackberries in a pan with one-fourth of a cupful of water, boil until the berries are soft then add sugar to taste, a grating of orange peel or a bit of stick cinnamon. Cook until well broken, thicken with a tablespoonful of cornstarch mixed with cold water, cook until smooth. This jam will keep but is nice for immediate use. Serve with breakfast cereal and cream.

Rhubarb Conserve.
Combine three cupfuls of chopped rhubarb with one large pineapple chopped, the juice and rind of one lemon and one orange and five cupfuls of sugar. Simmer gently for nearly an hour, then add one pound of blanched and shredded almonds and finish cooking the hour. Place in glasses and seal with paraffin when cold.

Grape Nuggets.
Take wild grapes green and crisp; halve and seed them. Add three-fourths the weight of sugar and boil thirty-five minutes. The product will jellify but the halves of the grapes will be apparent. Seal with paraffin.

Foreign Talk.
"The hardest working foreigner I ever saw drove past here yesterday in his new car with some visitors."
"Hardest working—how?"
"He was trying to talk to his friends and still keep his hands on the wheel long enough to steer the car."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—With his two daughters, Alix and Cherry, the latter just eighteen years old, and his niece, Anne, Doctor Strickland, retired, is living at Mill Valley, a short distance from San Francisco. His closest friend is Peter Joyce, something of a recluse, sitting in the vicinity, Martin Lloyd, mining engineer, falls in love with and secretly becomes engaged to Cherry.

CHAPTER II.—While the family is speculating as to Lloyd's intentions, Cherry brings him to supper, practically announcing her engagement to him.

CHAPTER III.—Doctor Strickland feels Cherry is too young to marry and urges her to wait at least a year, but she coaxes him into agreeing to an immediate wedding and the ceremony takes place, the couple leaving at once for El Nido, where Martin is employed.

CHAPTER IV.—The honeymoon days over, Cherry begins to feel a vague dissatisfaction with Martin and the monotony of her daily life.

CHAPTER V.—At Mill Valley, Justin Little, lawyer, becomes engaged to Anne, the wedding being set for September, some months distant. Alix visits Cherry at El Nido and the two girls coax Martin into allowing Cherry to go home, for Anne's wedding.

CHAPTER VI.—In her father's house Cherry contrasts the peaceful, happy life there with her rather sordid existence at El Nido and realizes that her marriage has been something of a failure. Doctor Strickland, feeling that Cherry is not being fair to Martin, in that she is unduly prolonging her visit after Anne's wedding, urges her to return to her husband. She makes preparations for her departure.

"If I know anything about Martin," Alix said, "no position is ever going to be the right one for him. I mean," she added as her father gave her an alarmed look, "I simply mean that he is that sort of a man. And it seems to me—odd the way he and Cherry take their marriage! She doesn't seem like other married women. And the thing is, will she ever want to go back, if she isn't—rather coerced? Martin is odd, you know; he has a kind of stolid, stupid pride. He wrote her weeks ago and asked her to come, and she wrote back that if he would find her a cottage, she would; she couldn't go to his boarding house, she hated boarding! Martin answered that he would, some day, and she said to me, 'Oh, now he's cross!' Now, mind you," Alix broke off vehemently, "I'd change the entire institution of marriage, if it was me! I'd end all this—"

"Well, we won't go into that!" her father interrupted her, hastily, for Alix had aired these views before and he was not in sympathy with them. "And I guess you're right; the child is a woman now, with a woman's responsibilities," he added. "And her place is with her husband. They'll have to solve life together, to learn together. I'll speak to Cherry!"

Alix, watching him walk away, thought that she had never seen Dad look old before. She saw the shadow on his kind face all the rest of that day.

It was only the next morning when he opened the question with Cherry. It was a brilliant morning, with spring already in the air. Cherry, on the porch steps, was reading a letter from Martin. Her father sat down beside her. She had on one of her old gowns and, bathed in soft sunlight, looked eighteen again. The air was sweet and pungent and damp and fresh, the sky high and blue, and across the granite face of Tamalpais a last scarf of mist was floating.

"Well, what has Martin to say?" asked the doctor.

"Oh, he doesn't like it much!" Cherry said, making a little face. "He describes the village as perfectly hopeless. He's moved into the little house in E street, and gotten two stoves up."

"And when does he want his girl?" her father pursued.

"He doesn't say," Cherry answered, innocently. "I think he is really happier to have me here, where he knows I am well off!" she said. "I know I am," she ended after a moment's thought.

Her father was conscious of a pang; he had not even formed the thought in his own mind that Cherry was unhappy. The child, he told himself, had a good husband, a home and health, and undeveloped resources within herself. It was puzzling and painful to him to realize that there was needed something more—and that that something was lacking. He felt a sudden anger at Martin; why wasn't Martin managing this affair?

"Mart doesn't mention any time!" he mused.

"Thanks to you!" Cherry said, dimpling mischievously. "He wrote quite firmly, just before Christmas," she added, "but I told him that Dad had been such an angel and liked so much to have me here—!" And Cherry's smile was full of childish triumph.

"My dear," her father said, spurred to sudden courage by a realization that the matter might easily become serious, "you mustn't abuse his generosity. Suppose you write that you'll join him—this is March—suppose you say the first of April?"

Cherry flushed and looked down. Her lips trembled. There was a moment of unhappy silence. "Very well, Dad," she said in a low voice. A second later she had jumped to her feet and vanished in the house. Her father roamed the woods in wretched misgivings, coming in at lunch time to find her in her place, smiling, but traces of tears about her lovely eyes.

Nothing more was said for a day or two, and then Cherry read aloud to the family an affectionate letter in which Martin said that everything would be ready for her whenever she came now.

CHAPTER VII.

The last day of March and of Cherry's visit broke clear and blue, and with it spring seemed to have come on a rush of perfume and green beauty. Days had been soft and warm before; this day was hot, and flushed with color and splendor.

Alix and Cherry washed each other's hair in the old fashion, and came trudging down with towels and combs to the garden. The doctor joined them in the midst of their tossing and spreading, and sat smoking peacefully on the porch steps.

"Oh, heavens, how I love this sort of weather!" Alix exclaimed, flinging her brown mane backward, her tall figure slender in a faded kimono. "Dad and Peter," she went on, suddenly sitting erect, "will get all this nice clean hair full of cigar smoke tonight, so what's the use, anyway?"

"Tonight's the night we go to Peter's!" Cherry stated rather than asked. "Do you remember," she glanced at her father, who was reading his paper, "do you remember when Dad always used to scold us for being rude to Peter?"

"Well, I'd rather go to Peter's for dinner than anywhere else I ever go!" Alix remarked, dreamily. "Seriously, I mean it!" she repeated as Cherry looked at her in amused surprise. "In the first place, I love his bungalow—tiny as it is, it has the whole of a little canyon to itself, and the prettiest view in the valley, I think. And then I love the messy sitting room, with all the books and music, and I love the way Peter entertains. I wish," she added, simply, "that I liked Peter half as well as I do his house!"

"Peter's a dear!" Cherry contended. "Oh, I know he is!" Alix said, quickly. "Peter's always been a dear, of course. But I mean in a special sense—" finished Alix with an entirely unembarrassed grin.

Cherry, through a glittering cloud of hair, looked at her steadily. "Suddenly she gave an odd laugh.

"Do you know I never thought of Peter like that?" she said.

Alix nodded with a cautious look at her father, who was out of hearing. "No, nor I! We've always taken him rather for granted," she admitted. "Only I've been rather wishing, lately, that Peter wasn't such an unflattering, big-brotherish, every-day-neighbor sort of person."

Cherry regarded her steadily, with an awakening look in her eyes.

"Why lately?" she asked.

"Because," said Alix, briskly and unromantically, "I think Peter would like me to—well, to stop taking him for granted! I imagine he's awfully lonely. And then I imagine it would please Dad—"

"Dad has always been ridiculously fond of him," Cherry said, thoughtfully. Peter—possibly in love with Alix! She had never even suspected it. Well, there was something rather pleasant in the thought, after all, if Alix didn't mind his ugliness and thinness. Cherry thought about it all day. She had no thought of money a year or two ago; but she was more experienced now. And Peter was rich.

Ordinarily she would have said that she was not going to change for Peter's dinner; but this afternoon, without mentioning the fact, she quietly got into one of her prettiest dresses; a dress that had been made in the long-ago excitement of troussseau days. Peter as a rather autocratic and critical neighbor was one thing; as a possible brother-in-law he was another.

She came downstairs to find her father waiting, and they walked away through the woods together. Alix had already gone up to Peter's house to play tennis. They walked slowly through the lovely aisles of the trees, crossing a road or two, climbing steadily upward under great redwoods. Cherry's skirt brushed the gold dust from masses and masses of buttercups. The tennis was over, but just over; Peter and Alix were sitting, still panting, on the rail of the wide, open porch, and shouted as the others came up.

"You missed doubles!" called Alix. "The grandest we ever did! Doubles with the Thompsons and three sets straight to us—six-two, six-two, and six-two again! They've gone. Oh, heavens, I never had such tennis. Oh, Peter, when you stood there at the net and just curved your hand like a cup!"

Alix gave an enthusiastic imitation—"and over she went, and game and set!"

Cherry, sinking white and frilly into a chair, smiled indulgently. The walk had given her a wild-rose color, and even Alix was struck with her extraordinary beauty. Alix had wheeled about on the rail to face the porch, and Peter had gotten to his feet and was hospitably pushing basket chairs about. Now he gave Alix a critical look.

"You're disgracefully dirty!" he said, fraternally.

"I know it," she answered, calmly. "Have I time to tub?"

"All the time in the world!" he answered.

Alix departed.

"It's very pleasant to me to have Alix so much at home here," Cherry said, when Alix was gone, and the doctor wandering happily about the garden. "I don't know what we'd do if any one ever usurped our places here!"

She had said it deliberately; the fascination of her recent discovery was too strong to resist. The man flushed suddenly. For a full minute he did not speak, and Cherry was surprised to find herself a little thrilled and even frightened by his silence.

"What put that into your head?" he asked, presently, smoking with his eyes fixed upon the valley far below.

"Perhaps it's because there are so many changes, Peter; my marriage, Anne's—everything different! It just came to me that it is nice to have this always the same."

"Perhaps Alix will come up here and help keep it so some day," the man said, deliberately. Cherry's look of elaborate surprise and pleasure died before his serious glance. She was silent for a moment.

"Why don't you ask her?" she said in a low, thoughtful tone, trembling, eager to preserve his mood without a false note.

"I have," he answered simply. Cherry's heart jumped with a sudden unexpected emotion. What was it? Not pleasure, not all surprise—surely there could be no jealousy mixed with her feeling for Peter's plans? But she was dazed with the rush of feeling; hurt in some fashion she could not stop to dissect now.

"And she said no?" she stammered in confusion.

"She said no. Or, at least, I intimated that I was a lonely old affectionate man with this and that to offer, and she intimated that that wasn't enough. I ought to have said—I ought to explain—that I had told her, only a few days previously, that I had always loved somebody else!"

"Oh-h-h!" Cherry was enlightened. She visualized an affair in the last years of the old century for Peter.

"Oh, and—she didn't love you?" Cherry asked.

"The lady? She was unfortunately married before I had a chance to ask her," said Peter.

"Oh-h-h!" Cherry said again, impressed, "and you'll never get over it?" she asked, timidly. "Peter, I never knew that!" she added as he was silent. "Does—does Dad know?"

"Nobody knows but Alix, and she only knows the bare facts," he assured her.

"Oh!" Cherry could think of nothing to add to the sympathetic little monosyllable.

"Finished with the shower!" shrieked Alix from the warm darkness inside the doorway. "Hurry up, Peter, something smells utterly grand!"

"That's the chicken thing!" Peter shouted back, springing up to disappear in the direction of the bathroom. Cherry sat on, silent, wrapped still in the new spell of the pleasant voice, the strangely appealing and yet masterful personality.

The dinner struggled as all Peter's dinners did; Alix mixed a salad dressing; Peter himself flashed in and out of the tiny, hot kitchen a hundred times. Now, in immaculate linen, came back and forth in leisurely table-setting. Suddenly everything was ready; the crisp, smoking-hot French loaf, the big, brown jar of bubbling and odorous chicken, the lettuce curled in its bowl, the long-necked bottles in their straw cases, and cheeses and crackers and olives and figs and tiny fish in oil and marmos in fluted paper that were a part of all Peter's dinners.

After dinner they watched the moon rise, until Alix drifted in to the piano and Peter followed her, and the others came in, too, to sit beside the fire. As usual it was midnight before any one thought of ending one of Peter's evenings.

And all through the pleasant, quiet hours, and when he bundled them up in his own big loose coats to drive them home, Cherry was thinking of him in this new light; Peter loving a woman, and denied. The knowledge seemed to fling a strange glamor about him; she saw new charm in him, or perhaps, as she told herself, she saw for the first time how charming he really was. His speech seemed actually the pleasanter for the stammer at which they had all laughed years ago; the slight limp lent its own touch of individuality, and the man's blunt criticisms of books and music, politics and people, were softened by his humor, his genuine humility, and his eager hospitality.

Next day she took occasion to mention Peter and his affairs to Alix. Alix turned fiery red, but laughed hardily.

"If he considers that an offer, he can consider it a refusal, I guess," she said, boyishly embarrassed. "I like him—I'm crazy about him. But I don't want any party lin'glets and crinolines to come floating from the dead past over my child's innocent cradle—"

"Alix, you're awful!" Cherry laughed. "You couldn't talk that way if you loved him!"

Alix laughed. "I suppose I ought to be a mass of blushes. The truth is, I like kids, and I don't like husbands—"

"You don't know anything about husbands!" Cherry laughed.

"I know lots of men I'd like to go off with for a few months," Alix pursued. "But then I'd like to come home again! I don't see why that isn't perfectly reasonable—"

"Well, it's not!" Cherry declared almost crossly. "That isn't marriage. You belong where your husband is, and you—you are always glad to be with him—"

"But suppose you get tired of him, like a job of boarding-house, or any of your other friends?" Alix persisted idly.

"Well, you aren't supposed to!" Cherry said, feebly. Alix let her have the last word; it was only due to her superior experience, she thought crossly. But half an hour later, lying wakeful, and "hinking" that she would miss dear old Cherry tomorrow, she fancied she heard something like a sob from Cherry's bed, and her whole heart softened with sympathy for her sister.

They came downstairs together the next day in midafternoon, both hatted and wrapped for the trip, for Peter was to take Cherry as far as Sausalito in the car, and Martin by a fortunate chance was to meet them there at the ferryboat for San Francisco. Mill Valley was not more than an hour's ride from the ferry. Alix was to drive down and return with Peter. Cherry said good-by to her father on the porch; she seemed more of a puzzled child than ever.

"I've had a wonderful visit, Dad—" she began bravely. Suddenly the tears came. She buried her face against her father's shabby old office coat and his arms went about her. Alix laughed awkwardly, and Peter shut his teeth. Anne, who had very properly come over to say good-by to her cousin, got in the back seat of the car and Alix took the seat beside her.

Cherry saw in Peter's expression something that she did not forget for many, many months—never quite forgot. His eyes were fixed upon her with something so yearning, so loving, so troubled in their gaze that a thrill went through Cherry from head to foot. He instantly averted his look, turned to the car, fumbled with the gears; they were off.

Cherry, Tied Trimly into a Hat That Was All Big Daisies, Was Silent for a While.

Cherry, tied trimly into a hat that was all big daisies, was silent for a while. But when Alix and Anne commenced an interested conversation in the back seat, she suddenly said regrettably:

"Oh, I hate to go away this time! I mind it more even than the first time!"

Peter, edging smoothly about a wide blue puddle, nodded sympathetically, but did not answer.

"I envy Alix—" Cherry said in idle mischief. She knew that the subject was not a safe one, but was irresistibly impelled to pursue it.

"Alix?" said Peter, after a silence long enough to make her feel ashamed of herself.

"Yes. Her young man lives in Mill Valley, right near home!" elucidated Cherry.

"Am I Alix's young man?" he asked, amused.

"Well, aren't you?"

"I don't know. I've never been any one's young man," said Peter.

"Whoever the woman who treated you meanly is—I hate her!" Cherry began again. "Unless," she added, "unless she was very young, and you never told her!"

He did not answer, and they spun along in utter silence. But when they were nearing Sausalito, Cherry said almost timidly:

"I think perhaps it would make her happy—and proud, to know that you admired her, Peter. I don't know who she is, of course, but almost any woman would feel that. I shall often think of that talk we had a week ago, and—think of you, too. N-n-next time you fall in love I hope you will be luckier!"

Silence. But he gave her his quick, friendly smile. Cherry dared not speak again.

"Last stop—all out!" Alix exclaimed. "You get tickets, Peter. Hurry, there's Martin!"

Unexpectedly Martin's big figure came toward them from the ferry gate. Some ore from the mine had to be assayed in San Francisco, and he had volunteered to make the trip so that he might meet his wife and bring her back with him to Red Creek. Time hanging on his hands in the city, he had crossed the bay for the pleasure of the return trip with Cherry. He met them beamingly. There was a little confusion of greeting and good-bys. Alix and Peter watched the others at the railing until the ferryboat turned. Martin smiled over Anne's head; Cherry, both little white-gloved hands on the rail, blue eyes and a glint of bright hair showing under the daisies on her hat, her small figure enveloped in a big loose coat, looked as if she would like to cry again.

CHAPTER VIII.

Martin's work was in the Contra Costa valley, and he and Cherry had a small house in Red Creek, the only town of any size near the mine. Red Creek was in a fruit-farming and dairy region and looked its prettiest on the spring evening when Cherry saw it first.

Her little house was a cottage with a porch running across the front, where windows looked out from the sitting room and the front bedroom. Back of these rooms were a dark little bathroom that connected the front bedroom with another smaller bedroom, a little dining room and a kitchen. Martin, man-fashion, had merely camped in kitchen and bedroom while awaiting his wife; but Cherry buttoned on her crisp little apron on the first morning after her arrival, and attacked the accumulated dishes—in the sink and the scattered shirts and collars bravely.

For a few weeks the novelty lasted and Cherry was enthusiastic about everything. She looked out across her dishpan at green fields and the beginning of the farms; she saw the lilacs burst into fragrant plumes on the bare branches of her dooryard tree; spring flushed the whole world with loveliness, and she was young, and healthy, and too busy to be homesick.

The days went on and on, each bringing its round of dishes, beds, sweeping, marketing, folding and unfolding tablecloths, going back and forth between kitchen and dining room. Martin's breakfast was either promptly served and well cooked, in which case Martin was silently satisfied, or it was late and a failure, when he was very articulately disgusted; in either case Cherry was left to clear and wash and plan for another meal in four hours more. She soaked fruit, beat up cake, chopped boxes into kindlings, heated a kettle of water and another kettle of water, dragged sheets from the bed only to replace them, filled dishes with food only to find them empty and ready to wash again.

"I get sick of it!" she told Martin. "Well, Lord!" he exclaimed. "Don't you think everybody does? Don't I get sick of my work? You ought to have the responsibility of it all for a while!"

His tone was humorously reproving rather than unkind. But such a speech would fill Cherry's eyes with tears and cause her to go about the house all morning with a heavy heart.

She would find herself looking thoughtfully at Martin in these days, studying him as if he were an utter stranger. It bewildered her to feel that he actually was no more than that, after two years of marriage. She not only did not know him, but she had a baffled sense that the very nearness of their union prevented her from seeing him fairly. She knew that she did him injustice in her thoughts.

It must be injustice, decided Cherry. For Martin seemed to her less clever, less just, less intelligent, and less generous than the average man of her acquaintance. And yet he did not seem to impress other people in the way he impressed her.

He was extraordinarily healthy, and had small sympathy for illness, weakness, for the unfortunate, and the complaining. He whistled over his dressing, read the paper at breakfast, and was gone. At noon he rushed in, always late, devoured his lunch appreciatively, and was gone again. At night he was usually tired, inclined to quarrel about small matters, inclined to disapprove of the new positions of the bedroom furniture, or the way Cherry's hair was dressed.

He loved to play poker and was hospitable to a certain extent. He would whistle and joke over the preparations for a rarebit after a game, and would willingly walk five blocks for beer if Cherry had forgotten to get it. On Sunday he liked to see her prettily gowned; now and then they motored with his friends from the mine; more often walked, ate a hearty chicken dinner, and went to a cold supper in the neighborhood, with "Five Hundred" to follow. At ten their hostess would flutter into her kitchen; there would be lemonade and beer and rich layer cake. Then the men would begin to match poker hands, and the women to discuss babies in low tones.

Cherry never saw her husband animated or so interested as when he had known before chanced to drift into town, mining men from Nevada or from El Nido, or men he had known in college. They would discuss personalities, would shout over recollected good times, would slap each other on the back and laugh tirelessly.

DON'T RISK NEGLECT

Don't neglect a constant backache, sharp, darting pains or urinary disorders. The danger of dropsy or Bright's disease is too serious to ignore. Use Doan's Kidney Pills as your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor! An East Jordan case.

Albert Turk says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results. Mornings my back felt lame and at times I found it hard to get up. Those jerky pains pulled me back more than once. I was hauling lumber at that time and my back got so weak and sore that I couldn't stoop over. It seemed as though I couldn't get rested and always felt tired and worn out. When dizzy spells came over me I couldn't see anything. My kidneys were often weak and irregular and I had to get up during the night. The secretions were often badly colored and painful in passage. Through a friend's advice I got a few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me in great shape."

DAVY CROCKETT, THE HERO OF THE ALAMO

"Be sure you're right, then go ahead," was Davy Crockett's motto. He fought for the right, then went ahead to a glorious death in the Alamo. Crockett was born in Tennessee in 1780. He came of fighting stock for his father, a tavern keeper, had been a soldier in the Revolution. Young Crockett's early years were spent in roaming the Tennessee woods, hunting. He became a renowned bear hunter, a fame which he shared with his favorite rifle, "Old Betsy."

When the Creek Indians went on the war path in 1813 Crockett tossed "Old Betsy" on his shoulder and marched away to fight the Indians. He served as a scout under Gen. Andrew Jackson and was in the great Battle of Tohopeka when "Old Hickory" defeated Weatherford's warriors.

After the Creek war was over Davy returned to Tennessee and entered politics. From magistrate he rose to state legislator and next the renowned bear hunter and scout was sent to congress where he served two terms. In February, 1836, Davy with 12 of his Tennessee friends arrived at the Mission del Alamo where Col. William Travis with a little army of less than 200 men was defying the Mexican dictator, Santa Anna.

Santa Anna had a force of 5,000 men, and although the Texans had a chance to escape before this overwhelming army cut off their retreat, they refused to do so. The Mexican general surrounded the rude little adobe fort. His demand for its surrender was met with scorn. Then he raised the red flag which meant, "No quarter," and attacked.

The long rifles of the Texans mowed down the Mexican soldiers driven to the attack. On March 6 Santa Anna prepared for a grand assault. Twenty-five hundred picked men were detailed to be hurled against the fort. The first assault was beaten back with heavy loss. A second failed, but in the third desperate attempt the Mexicans broke into the fort.

After that the fighting was hand to hand. Travis went down and Crockett took command. Outnumbered a hundred to one, Crockett with a few comrades stood with their backs to the wall of the church. One by one his men went down. At last only Davy was left. "Old Betsy" fired her last shot. Then Crockett seized her by the barrel and swung her about his head. There was a short struggle. "Old Betsy" was knocked from his hand. Bayonet thrust and sword cut were rained upon him. A mass of Mexicans struck him. He went down fighting to the last. The Alamo was history.

LEWIS WETZEL, "DEATH WIND OF THE DELAWARES"

Many of the great scouts did not become Indian fighters until they were men, but Lewis Wetzel started early. He killed his first Indian when he was only thirteen years old. Wetzel was born in Virginia in 1752. His father moved to the present site of Wheeling, W. Va., and was killed there by the Indians before the eyes of his sons. Lewis swore eternal enmity against all Redskins.

One day while he and his brother were roaming in the woods they were attacked by Indians. Lewis killed one of the savages and the next instant was hit by a bullet which carried away a piece of his breast bone. Both boys were taken captive. That night while the Indians slept, Wetzel worked loose the thongs which bound him and then unfasted his brother.

After the boys had fled for about a mile they discovered that their moccasins were torn to shreds. Leaving his brother in hiding, Lewis returned to the Indian camp and, undetected by the sleeping savages, robbed them of two pairs of moccasins as well as a gun and some powder and lead.

The next morning the Indians were hot on their trail and soon were close upon them. As the Indians approached, the boys stepped out of the trail into a clump of bushes, allowing their pursuers to speed past, and then they followed. Soon they heard the Indians coming back and again they stepped into the bushes and hid. The Wetzel boys played this dangerous game of hide-and-seek several times before they finally eluded the savages and returned in safety to their home.

When Lewis Wetzel grew older he crossed over into Ohio and soon became one of the best-known scouts in the country. Wetzel was called "The Death Wind" by the Delawarees whom he hated particularly. More than once a Delaware warrior trembled with fear as he heard a shrill, moaning cry echoing through the forest, for it usually was followed soon afterward by a shot from the scout's deadly weapon which ended the Redskin's life.

In his later years Wetzel lost the respect of many people because he began killing all Indians he met, whether hostile or friendly, and several times he was imprisoned for shooting members of peaceable tribes. In his last days he became a lonely, bitter old man until death came to him in 1808.

SACAGAWEA, "THE BIRD WOMAN" SCOUT

In the Portland (Ore.) city park stands the statue of an Indian woman. A little baby is strapped on her back and her hand is outstretched to the west, toward the Pacific ocean. The statue is that of Sacagawea, "The Bird Woman," the sixteen-year-old girl scout and guide who led Lewis and Clark over the "Shining Mountains" to the "Everywhere-Salt-Water" toward which her hand points.

When Lewis and Clark visited the Hidatsa Indians in North Dakota on their great exploring trip west, they found a Shoshone girl living with that tribe. At the age of five she had been captured from her people by a Hidatsa war party. When she was fourteen years old, Toussaint Charbonneau, a French-Canadian trapper, won her from her captor in a game of "hide-the-bone" and married her the next year.

The Bird Woman wished to return to her people and Lewis and Clark engaged Charbonneau and his wife as interpreters to the Indians they would meet. During the winter of 1805 Sacagawea gave birth to a son, whom she called Baptiste, and this tiny papoose went with his dauntless mother through all the hardships which the explorers afterward endured. He was strapped on Sacagawea's back one day when the clumsy Charbonneau upset one of the boats containing the precious instruments and records of the party. The Bird Woman at once sprang overboard into the muddy stream and rescued them.

More than once Sacagawea proved her value to the explorers. Far up the river when the forest and snow baffled her companions and they were lost, the honing instinct of the Indian girl led her on and she guided them safely to her people. The chief who welcomed them proved to be Sacagawea's brother, who was overjoyed to see his lost sister again. He sold the white men much-needed horses—and would have stolen them back, had not the Bird Woman betrayed the plot to Captain Lewis.

Sacagawea remained with Lewis and Clark until they reached the Pacific. On their return journey she stopped with her people, the Shoshones, and there she spent the remainder of her days. She died on the Wind River reservation in Wyoming April 9, 1884, almost a hundred years of age.

GRIEF IS CAUSE OF GIRL'S SUICIDE

UNABLE TO WED COUSIN, AND MOURNING LOSS OF MOTHER, FATAL SHOT FIRED.

HAPPINESS IS ENDED FOR HER

"There Was Nothing More for Which I Might Live," She Tells Sister After Shot.

Detroit.—Separated by fate from two whom she "loved more than anyone else in the world"—her mother and her sweetheart—Miss Burr Roberts, 18 years old, of River Rouge, committed suicide by shooting herself above the heart.

Only a few hours before she had pressed the barrel of her brother-in-law's army revolver to her breast, she and Roy Fortner, her sweetheart, had agreed they must not love. They were first cousins.

Through the night Miss Roberts studied over this decision, and at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, as she sat in her nightclothing on her bed, she shot herself.

"There was nothing more for which I might live," she told her sister, Mrs. Jesse Baker, when the latter hurried to the room. Mrs. Baker had been in the basement of their home when she heard the shot. She believed she said, that intruders had fired.

The girl was conscious when they found her. Stretched across her bed, she begged to be allowed to die. "With mother and Roy taken from me, I cannot bear to live," she is quoted as saying.

She died in Delray Industrial hospital two hours later. Before her death she gave a statement to Walter Hancock, of the River Rouge police department.

She told how she had come here two years ago, from North Carolina, she and her mother, and of the happiness they had known in their little home in River Rouge. She sobbed heart-brokenly when she told of her mother's death.

Then she told of the romance shattered by the kinship of her sweetheart. For two years, she said, she had loved Roy Fortner, and he had loved her.

Then came a day when Fortner believed he must look facts squarely in the face. He told her they must not be sweethearts longer; that they could not marry, because of their relationship.

Fortner was grief-stricken when he learned of the act of Burr. He told police he had done only what he thought was right, that he had tried to explain to her, to tell her of the bright future ahead of her.

Miss Roberts made her home, after the death of her mother, with her sister, Mrs. Jesse Baker, of 135 South Dearborn street, River Rouge.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Drink lots of water.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will set fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithine, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.
