Broke Parole From Ionia

Elver Sweet Goes Back to Finish Term.

Elver Sweet was arrested last Friday by Dep'y Sheriff Cook, charged with passing forged checks, taken to the Charlevoix jail and returned to Ionia prison to complete a five-year term for robbery.

The young man is about 21 years of age and resided near the old Myers camps in Antrim county. Some time ago he was convicted in Circuit Court of robbery and sentenced by Judge Mayo to serve an indeterminate sentence of from six months to five years. Last summer he was released on parole after serving seven months of the sentence.

During Fair Week in East Jordan he forged and passed several checks—the checks being made on the Exchange Bank of Central Lake, payable to "F. A. Parker" and the name of Charles Box forged by some. Several East Jordan merchants, knowing Mr. Box, readily cashed the checks—later to find they were worthless. The matter was laid before Dep'y Sheriff Cook who suspected Sweet as he talked with the description given. During the meantime Sweet had cleaned up and cleared out. On a recent trip up through the woods, Dep'y Sheriff Cook spotted his man and returned him to Charlevoix.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of East Jordan held at the council rooms, Monday evening, November 7, 1921.

Meeting was called to order by Mayor Wilson. Present: Mayor Wilson, and Aldermen Aldrich, Porter Stone and Kowalske. Absent—Whittington. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

On motion by Alderman Porter, the County of Charlevoix was granted permission to build a cement block building on Lots 7 and 8, Block 1, same to conform to the requirements of the fire ordinance.

The following resolution was offered by Alderman Porter, who moved its adoption, seconded by Alderman Stone.

Whereas, the cement sidewalk along the east side of South 1/2 of Lot 3, Block D, former Village of South Arm, now a part of the City of East Jordan, is in a bad and unsafe condition, therefore,

Resolved, that the City Clerk be and hereby is directed to serve the proper notice upon the owner or occupant of said property to construct a new cement walk along the said east side thereof within 15 days, in accordance with the provisions of Ordinance No. 28.

PICRIC ACID CLEARS 30,000 MICH. ACRES

Thirty thousand acres of cleared land will be added to Michigan's total as a result of land clearing operations being carried on this fall with Picric Acid, according to estimates of land clearing specialists at the Michigan Agricultural College. In addition, it is said that farmers of the state have saved $65,000, in the purchase of the war salvaged explosive, which has been distributed at about eleven cents a pound lower than the cost of dynamite ordinarily used in land clearing work.

"We received orders for nearly a million pounds of Picric Acid," says A. J. McAdams, assistant land clearing specialist at M. A. C., "although the Michigan allotment was only 624,000 pounds. Different state allotments were based on their acreage of cut-over land, and the Michigan total proved insufficient to meet the demand."

"Picric Acid is not ordinarily a competitor of dynamite for land clearing purposes, as it actually costs more to manufacture than dynamite. This allotment was turned over by the government at merely the cost of carting, freight, and distribution, which made the price unusually low. It was intended originally for military purposes."

Michigan's allotment of the explosive has been distributed by the extension division of the Michigan Agricultural College, through L. F. Livingston its land clearing specialist. Twenty-seven car loads were placed in the state, thirteen in the Upper Peninsula, and fourteen in the northern counties of the lower peninsula.

COUNTY AGENT HAS WON PERMANENT PLACE IN RURAL DEVELOPMENT

After ten years of experimentation and development under the direction of the Department of Agriculture, county agent work has proved itself an indispensable factor in agricultural communities in the Northern and Western states. It has awakened the farmers' economic instincts and is helping him to stand on an equality with other business interests. It has brought about a reorganization of social conditions in rural districts which makes country living more satisfactory and has brought to the country boy and girl a new respect for the farm and a new and better vision of country life.

The specific activities of county agents in Northern and Western states with respect to soil fertility, crops, seed improvement, pest and insect control, fruit, livestock, farm management, boys and girls clubs, farm home problems, etc., are fully and interestingly described in Department Circular 179, which may be had on application to the department of agriculture.

HISTORY OF COUNTY AGENT

The circular also gives brief history of the county agent work from its inception in 1911, in Broome county, New York. By the end of June, 1913, about one hundred of the agents were at work in 19 states. The passage of the Agricultural Extension act in May, 1914, and later the food production emergency of the World war, led to the rapid expansion of the county agent force, which now numbers 1,166 agents in the 1,600 agricultural counties of 33 Northern and Western states. Iowa and Minnesota are the only states which have a complete quota of agents.

It is interesting to note that the early efforts of county agents were poorly received by county communities and in very many cases were openly resented by farmers. The changed attitude of agricultural communities in regard to the county agent is one of the most notable triumphs of the work and is the best possible proof of its value and necessity.

County agents' attitude toward such economic problems as cooperative purchasing of farm supplies and marketing of farm products has resulted in the formulation of a national policy. The county agent today helps determine what crops should be grown, he advises how to grow them efficiently and how to market them profitably. The same is true in connection with his work in the live stock industry.

Helps the Farmer Help Himself
The county agent's first duty is to help the farmer help himself. One of the outstanding developments in connection with the county agent work has been the increased emphasis placed on the appointment of community project leaders and through them the development of programs of extension

A Newspaper's TWO Sources of Revenue

Subscriptions and advertising are the only sources of revenue a newspaper has, and often the subscriptions do not pay for the cost of white paper.

Advertising today, especially in newspapers, is the greatest business getter there is. This is acknowledged by men who know. People read advertisements in newspapers. They have been educated to do so. Every merchant in our town ought to advertise. You remember the story about John Wanamaker. The first day he was in business his receipts were $24.64. He kept 64 cents and spent the $24 next day in advertising. We all can't duplicate this feat, but according to the best statistics available THREE PER CENT OF THE GROSS SALES—SHOULD BE PUT ASIDE FOR ADVERTISING.

Possibly you will say, "I don't need to advertise. I've been in this town thirty years and everybody knows me."

Probably they do, but did you ever stop to think of the sales you lose because your fellow competitor advertises? He may advertise the same goods you have in your stock, but the people don't know you have them. The other fellow gets the sale because he advertises. And then how much more business would you do if you did advertise?

We know of one merchant who advertised a lot of goods at 19 cents a yard. They cost him 27 cents. He took a clean loss, but while the sale was going on he could buy new goods at 12 cents. He put them in with the other goods and the result was that he cleaned his shelves of the old goods and he broke even on the deal. Advertising and good buying liquidated his stock without a loss.

We can't all be John Wanamakers, but we all can advertise in proportion to our business. Results will be sure if you advertise honestly and give service. A newspaper can bring people to your store, but it can't make people buy your goods. Your clerks must do that and it depends on the service you give as to how successful your business will be.

What is done in the big cities can be done right here in this town if you will show the pep, give the service and advertise. Make business good. You can do it through this newspaper.

work in agriculture and home economics. Whether the need of a particular community be drainage of wet lands stump blasting, corn, wheat or other crop work, improvement of seed potatoes, eradication of prairie dogs or grasshoppers, pruning and spraying of fruit trees, a "better sires" or tuberculin test campaign, farm accounts, boys and girls clubs, or other problems the method of approaching the work is about the same.

The aid of extension experts from state colleges of agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture is frequently sought, since farmers are insisting on a high standard of qualifications in those from whom they expect to learn newer and better methods of farming.

The circular gives many tables and figures in connection with its story of the county agent work in the Northern and Western states.

AFTER LONGFELLOW

A Long Way After Longfellow, but Still Full of Pep.

Tell me not in mournful numbers advertising is a dream, for the business man who slumbers has no chance to skim the cream. Life is real! Life is earnest! Competition's something fierce. If for dividends thou yearnest learn the parry thrust and pierce. In the business field of battle, molly-coddies have no place; be not like dumb driven cattle, be live ones in the race. Lives of great men all remind us we must bring the bacon home, and departing leave behind us footprints on another's dome. Let us then be up and doing, otherwise we may be done; still achieving, still pursuing, advertise and get the Mon.—(W.)

A Spendthrift Debtor.

The French army budget for next year calls for 40,000 airplanes. They would be organized into 286 regiments, each regiment having 12 squadrons. The cost of the equipment and personnel is not disclosed, but it is safe to say it would make something of an impression on the $3-billion debt owed by France to this country if it were used for that purpose.

Artists and saints—used to be poverty stricken, but artists nowadays have limousines and any first class professional saint is able to employ a publicity agency.

AT TEMPLE THEATRE FIRST THREE NIGHTS OF NEXT WEEK

The management of the Temple Theatre has brought to East Jordan one of the mystery men of the entertainment stage, and from expressions heard from all who have seen and heard this Mystery Man, it is evident that his claims are genuine. Khaym is the son of an American Diplomat and was born in Bombay, India, 38 years ago, receiving his early education there and not coming to the United States until he was 14 years of age. He was thoroughly saturated with his philosophy of the Yogis and is the only white man who has been admitted to many of their secrets. Khaym states that his father was formerly Secretary of the American Consulate in Bombay, India, and that it was in that city that he was born. For twelve years he resided among the Hindus with his parents and then his father was transferred to Rio De Janeiro, Brazil. The son, however, stayed in India with the family of an English officer until he was 14 years of age and then came to this country. He stated that he was also a student at Oxford, England, and that during 1915 and 1916 he occupied the chair of psychology in Harvard University. His present tour he states is being made under the auspices of the Harvard Society of Physic Research and all money aside from actual expenses is turned over to that organization. His tour brings him in touch with problems in psychology and occult matters, which are valuable to himself and to the society which he represents. Khaym scouts the theory of spiritualism in so far as it pertains to communication with the spirits that have gone to the great beyond. He illustrates his theory with the example that in his mind it is not necessary for a person to go to some supernatural personage to communicate with one's mother, who might have gone beyond. The third person knows nothing of the family affairs and it is reflected upon the divine right of God to think that a person on earth has the power of communication.

At Temple Theatre next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

You just remember that the only man who ever died from over-work is already dead.

Then there is the man who is a member of so many organizations that the only thing he is sure of is a big funeral.

EAST JORDAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

New Seats in Sophomore Room

Some new seats have just been put in the Sophomore room which has been badly in need of some ever since school started this year. Many of the pupils have been sitting two-in-a-seat and it is a great relief to have a seat for each one. There are sixteen of the new seats and desks which leaves one or two for emergencies. The seats are adjustable which is a good thing as the students who will use them are of all sizes.

Maps for English 10

Both divisions in English 10 are having maps put on the board. Benjamin Bustard is putting a map on for section 1 and Ruth Johnson is putting one on for section 2. We have them to help us in the study of English.

Seventh Grade

For their study of English the 7th grade spent Monday in telling many humorous Halloween stories. The rest of the week was spent in studying letters of application. The English class is under the supervision of Mrs. Anna Sebring.

The history class, which is under the instruction of Mrs. Hattie Wyatt, has been studying the "Settlement of Virginia" and during their spare time Mrs. Wyatt has been reading the story of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come."

In geography they have been busily engaged in the study of the New England states.

7th and 8th Grades

Last week Emelene Ance was promoted from the 7th to the 8th grade, having shown by her scholarship that she could do the work.

Friday, Nov. 4th, the mothers of the pupils of the 7th and 8th grades met in the Junior High School room and formed a Parent Teachers' Association. They elected Mrs. James Gidley, president; Mrs. Roy Webster, vice president and Mrs. M. C. Blount, secretary. The next meeting is to be held Nov. 14th—in the Junior High room at 7 o'clock. There will be an interesting program. The pupils of the 8th grade have drawn maps of the region of Grand Pre and pictures of the house of Bellefontaine.

The English class of the 8th grade are studying descriptions and soon they are to write letters to some other 8th grade.

Boy and Girl Scout Party

In the evening of Oct. 28 the boy and girl Scouts of East Jordan had their first party. The boys had been hunting the day before and supper was served at six o'clock. After supper they all assembled in the auditorium where Mr. Miles gave a talk and Ingram Little sang. The boys, under the instruction of Mr. Miles, demonstrated drilling and the party broke up about ten thirty.

Ben Hur at the Schoolhouse

Mr. J. C. Little now has in his possession the slides of Ben Hur. They will be shown at the school house, Thursday, Nov. 10th, for the benefit of the boys and girls scouts. No one is allowed but scouts.

Halloween Party

The high school students gave a Halloween Party at the high school on October 31. The faculty and students could dress up funny, but it was not to be a masquerade. There were witches, ghosts, Jack-o-Lanterns and everything to make one think of Halloween. They also had different rooms for ducking apples, peanut races, initiation and fortune telling. Stunts were given by each class and greatly enjoyed. The party ended by serving cider and doughnuts.

The Field Crops Class

The class in Field Crops is getting along well. So far they have studied corn, wheat and potatoes. Reports have been made by several members of the class on the plant and insect diseases affecting these three crops. Experiments have been made concerning the per cent of shelled corn on an ear, judging corn according to type, scoring corn by use of score card, and comparison of kernels of corn. Graphs were made on which the prices of important crops on the Chicago market are plotted from time to time. The object of this is to see at the end of the year whether prices have advanced or fallen and at what times these rises and drops in the market occurred.

First Number of Lecture Course Here Nov. 2.

There was a large attendance at the first lecture course of the season, which was the Oceanic Ladies' Quintet. The music was very good and there was considerable applause. The entire program lasted about one and one-half hours. There are three more musical numbers and one lecture. The high school expects to have a larger attendance at all of these.

East Jordan 6; Onaway 6

The high schools of East Jordan and Onaway played a tie game of football Saturday Nov. 5 at the East Jordan Fair Grounds. The local squad looked as good as the best team in the state in their new uniforms. Six new head gears arrived just in time for the game. The game started with Onaway receiving. Walker, the big tackle for the local team, went thru the line breaking up the first formation of the opponents. Onaway soon found that it was impossible to go thru center for when Jones did not down them. Hagerberg was there like a stone wall. In a few minutes by hard smashing of the backfield Johnson was in position to kick a place kick and he put the ball between the posts giving East Jordan a score of three. During the second quarter Streeter and Malpass our two ends did some good tackling. In the middle of the third quarter the Onaway captain put the ball over for a touchdown but failed to kick goal. Coykendall was called out in the 4th quarter and his place was filled by Summers. On the kick-off after the touchdown, Dicken the local captain returned the ball about half the length of the field. During this quarter Hammond and White, our two guards, opened holes that anybody could go through. Again Johnson's trusty toe kicked another place kick tying the score. The main feature of the game was the 75 yard run made by Phillips on a fake pass. He put the ball over the line but the referee said he went outside about one yard from the goal. Again the ball went over the line but the referee penalized East Jordan for allowing so the touchdown did not count. The lineup for Saturday's game was as follows:

East Jordan	Onaway
Malpass	L. E. Leeson
Coykendall	L. T. Zeller
Hammond	L. G. Traflet
Jones	C. Hall
White	R. G. Osmann
Walker	R. T. Mitchell
Streeter	R. E. Webster (Capt)
Johnson	L. H. Rosh
Dicken (Capt)	R. H. Stone
Hegerberg	F. B. Hunt
Phillips	Q. B. Merrit

Substitution for East Jordan: Bartholomew for White, White for Bartholomew, Summers for Coykendall. Substitution for Onaway: Ervingham for Osmann. Referee—Alberts of Petoskey. Head Linesman—Gibbs of East Jordan. Time of Periods—fifteen minutes.

Kindergarten Halloween Party

The kindergarten of the East Jordan central school had a party last Tuesday. Miss Hughes was obliged to give two parties—to both the forenoon and afternoon divisions.

The pupils took a vote on what they should have to eat about a week before hand and it was decided they should have candy. So they appointed five members of the class to buy the candy. These stars bought a delicious variety of several kinds which they all enjoyed.

Miss Hughes was instructing her class in the art of basket making so each one made a basket to put the candy in. If the basket was not satisfactory the child kept on trying until his basket was exactly as he wanted it.

One Tuesday they put down the blinds thus making it dark in the room and they lighted 24 jack o lanterns, which they had brought during the week, giving a very artistic appearance. They gave a short program, which they had learned at home and which was a surprise to the teacher. Some sang songs, others gave recitations. The first grade was invited in for the program and they all enjoyed immensely.

The city boy never feels that he is making his mark in the world when he is digging the garden.

You may be righteous, but dont take your own word for it.

Michigan News Tersely Told

Traverse City—Mrs. Henry Warren, 65, died of injuries received when struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. J. T. Milliken.

Crystal Falls—Operations at the Tobin mine, which has been closed since spring, have been resumed. It is said 126 men will be employed.

Flint—Esther Smith, 6 years old, is dead of burns suffered when the candle of a Jack 'o Lantern, with which she was playing, set fire to her dress.

Lansing—To protect school children at dangerous crossings, the city council has named seven citizen police who are to watch traffic at these points when children are going to and from school.

Detroit—Professor A. S. Whitney, dean of the school of education, University of Michigan, was unanimously chosen president of the Michigan State Teachers' association in its sixty-eighth convention here.

Grand Rapids—With the announcement that he is going out after the "big fellows," Fred K. Cronenwett, group chief of the Federal prohibition forces in Western Michigan, has established headquarters here.

Pontiac—William G. Simpson, a candidate for president two years ago and an active figure in Fernalde village politics, was exonerated of alleged slanders in a civil action brought by Dr. Elbert Chase, of Fernalde, by a jury in Circuit Court here.

Muskegon—Officials of the Muskegon Traction & Lighting Co. have indicated that they will submit a proposition for the city to purchase the local lines at about $760,000. The city has been endeavoring for several months to collect $40,000 in taxes from the company.

Kalamazoo—The Rev. J. C. Cook reported to the police that his home was robbed of $200 in cash while he was away conducting church services the night before. Mr. Cook was preaching a sermon on law enforcement while the robbers removed a back window and entered his house.

Grand Rapids—The federal government has ordered all the surplus sodium nitrate, which was stored in the plectric acid plant here, sold for commercial purposes. It is said there are several thousand pounds on hand here. The nitrate was purchased by the government for war purposes. Farmers use it as a fertilizer.

White Cloud—Gov. Groesbeck will hear personally the charges against George W. Shepherd, Newaygo County clerk, who is alleged to have misappropriated part of the county funds. Shepherd's attorneys asked the Governor for a change of venue and the Governor then ordered the hearing to be held before him in Lansing. The date has not been set.

Ann Arbor—Fellowships totaling almost $20,000, awarded to the University of Michigan museum of zoology by the will of the late Genevieve Hinesdale of Detroit, will be used for continuing the department's work, especially during the coming summer. The fellowships are known as the Edwin C. Hinesdale fellowships. One has been won by Charles Creaser, a graduate.

Port Huron—Mayor John V. French was re-nominated and re-elected at the primary election, having led his two opponents by such a big majority that under the provisions of the city charter he will not have to run again at the November election. The charter provides that when one candidate receives a majority of all votes cast he is elected.

Grand Rapids—James P. Murphy, Spring Lake hotel keeper, who pleaded guilty to impersonating a Federal officer, has been sentenced by Judge Sessions in United States District Court here to three years and six months in the Federal prison at Leavenworth. Murphy admitted that he posed as an officer to get liquor free from a bootlegger.

Iron Mountain—The bones of a young man identified by clothing as Charles Chiesa, who disappeared from Loretto, October 14, 1920, were found in the woods near that village by Gommil Martin and Henry Nordell. A shotgun was found beside him, both barrels of which were discharged. It is believed he fell from a nearby stump and accidentally discharged the gun.

Grand Rapids—Viola Krohpa of Traverse City, who advertised herself as a "comely widow of 46, with an ear for music, and possessing $7,000," will spend four months in the Detroit house of correction. She was sent there by District Judge Sessions because she successfully "toyed" with men seeking a life companion. The woman's advertisements were answered by men in many states, who asked for railroad fare to go to them. After receiving the money she said illness in the family prevented her leaving home.

Dowagiac—The charred body of William Cook, 45, Marcellus driver of a Standard Oil wagon, was found by Lloyd Brown, a farmer at the foot of a hill. Cook in some way spilled gasoline upon himself while pouring some from his supply tank into the tank of his car and it became ignited. His clothing adams, he ran for help and had gone 15 rods when he fell. His body was burned beyond recognition. Cook, according to Coroner Joel Nash, of Marcellus, did not smoke. Nash said he was unable to explain how the gasoline ignited.

Ann Arbor—Sheridan's "School for Scandal" will be presented by the "Players' Club" of the University of Michigan here Nov. 28 and 29.

Pontiac—Steps have been taken here for bringing about widening of Woodward avenue between Pontiac and Detroit. An effort will be made to have the thoroughfare a two-way traffic artery.

Saginaw—Over 500 people voted in the city transportation plan and the score was 19 to 1 for the return of street car service and 52 to 1 against the proposal of the Wolverine Transit company of Detroit.

Lansing—Schuyler L. Marshall, of Mason, has been appointed to the board of trustees of the state sanitarium at Kewell, and Dr. E. B. Hinesdale, of Howell, reappointed to the board by Governor Groesbeck.

Kalamazoo—The Bryant Paper Co., one of the largest manufacturers of book paper in the middle west, has resumed operation on capacity scale. Around 1,200 men and women will be employed—24 hours a day.

Charlevoix—James Earl was sentenced by Circuit Judge F. W. Mayne to serve six months to one year in Ionia reformatory. Earl was convicted in May of selling "moonshine" and hard cider in his restaurant here.

Ionia—It is estimated that inmates of the Ionia reformatory did damage to the amount $50 Halloween night when they broke window panes in the carpenter shop and smashed furniture. State police stopped the riot.

Cavendish—Robbers broke into the Cavendish hardware store at Harris and took away the safe, a Victrola, tires, auto supplies and robes valued at $330 to $500. No clue has been found. Entrance was made through a front window.

Lansing—The state's new $3,000,000 office building, which is nearing completion and is already partly occupied, has been criticized as a poorly planned structure by Governor Alex J. Groesbeck and some members of the administrative board.

Ludington—One hundred thousand bushels of apples have been shipped from Freese, Mason County, this fall by one concern. One farmer received $4,300 for his crop. Monroe Williams, of Eden Township, reports 1,500 bushels of potatoes from seven acres.

Northville—The village council has called a special election for November 21, on bonding the town for $110,000 to put in a complete sanitary sewer system and sewage treatment plant. The addition to the industries of the Ford engine valve factory, has increased the need.

Lansing—Michigan state institutions have been ordered by the administrative board to use flour made from Michigan wheat, which is said to make better flour than that which comes from Kansas and Iowa Spring wheat. The Michigan brand is said to produce 4 per cent more flour and better bread.

Saginaw—Marooned in a houseboat, adrift in the Saginaw river after the police had cut the ropes, Mrs. Reno Defor, one other woman and two men were arrested and police assert they found moonshine on the boat. Several previous attempts to raid the boat had failed because the occupants rowed away, police say.

Iron Mountain—The body of Joseph Vericillo, who lost his life with his father in a cavern in Briar Hill mine several days ago, was recovered by searchers in the eleventh level. The search for the two was perilous due to several cave-ins that endangered the lives of those who aided in the search. The father's body was recovered Nov. 1.

Paw Paw—Three men and a woman in an automobile held up Mrs. Ray McGowan, 26 years old, wife of a bank teller, as she was walking on a detour road into town. They pressed a handkerchief containing ether to her nose then bound her and left her at the roadside. A passing automobile picked her up half an hour later. Mrs. McGowan said $2 in her pocketbook was all that was taken.

Ann Arbor—War has been declared by President M. L. Burton and the deans of the University of Michigan on profiteers. Charges that an elaborate system of profiteering has made Ann Arbor a "high cost" city and placed a "Chinese wall" about the university which only the sons and daughters of the wealthy can hurdle, were voiced at a conference of the president and deans. An immediate investigation was ordered with a view to remedial measures.

Muskegon—A sweeping investigation into the attempted suicide of Russell Palmer, 26, of Buffalo, an inmate of the county jail who took poison, after having been taken to the city police station and put through the "third degree" by local and state police officers, has been ordered by Circuit Judge John Vanderwerp. County officials were called to the judge's chambers where orders were given to Prosecuting Attorney Harry W. Jackson to obtain affidavits from every officer who had anything to do with the removal of Palmer.

Grand Rapids—Heriot A. Kristoferson, restaurant keeper at Newcastle, New South Wales, after traveling 4,000 miles that he might be at the bedside of his mother, was temporarily delayed today because of a confusion in addresses. Responding to a cablegram from his brother, Alfred Kristoferson, of the life saving station at Grand Marais, but which through error, was made to read Grand Rapids, the Australian came here. Newspapers assisted him in learning of an acquaintance who knew of their whereabouts.

MARKET REPORT

FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

(For the week ending November 3, 1921)

May Kansas City reports hay trade extremely weak due to large accumulations on track. Receipts small in Philadelphia and Chicago, but generally in excess of requirements in other markets. Demand inactive. Prairie hay and straw in active demand in Chicago. Eastern and southern markets quiet. Stocks and movement good.

November 2, No. 1 Timothy: Philadelphia $23, Pittsburgh $21, Cincinnati $18.50, Chicago $22, Minneapolis $18, Atlanta $27. No. 1 Alfalfa: Kansas City $15, Memphis $27.50, No. 1 Prairie Kansas City $12, Minneapolis $16, Chicago $13.

Feed Markets somewhat easier. Offerings of wheat feeds fairly heavy from northwest. Lined and cottonseed meal and cake lower on reduced export demand. Corn feeds in good supply demand fair prices unchanged. Fines in demand on bran in southwest because of reduced production but outside shipping demand quiet. Shorts weak on smaller feeding inquiry due to weakness in hogs. Beet pulp prices reduced. $2. Alfalfa meal, dull.

Prices of most classes and grades of live stock at Chicago declined during the week. Hogs ranged from 15@50c lower per 100 lbs. Beef steers, feeder steers and butcher cows and heifers generally 25c lower. Both fat and feeding lambs, ranged from steady to 15c higher. Yearlings unchanged. Fat swine down 25c per 100 lbs.

November 3 Chicago prices: Hogs top $17.00; medium and good butchers $16.00; feeder steers $15.00; butchers cows and heifers $14.00; fat hogs $14.00; fat lambs $13.00; feeding lambs $8.75@9.00; yearlings $5.50@7.75; fat calves $10.00.

Wholesale fresh meat prices at eastern markets tended downward. Net eastern prices: Pork loins $26.00; veal $22.00; beef lamb and mutton $12.00 per 100 lbs. November 3 prices good grade meats: Beef $11.00@11.50; light pork loins $13.00; heavy loins $13.00.

Prices firm first half of the week, but there were drastic declines during the latter half of week and all grains except May corn which was low level at close with Chicago and Winnipeg December wheat under $1. Immense stocks of Canadian wheat in western states demand with several Minneapolis mills shut down, and lack of foreign demand.

Closing prices in Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat $1.12; No. 2 hard winter wheat $1.10; No. 2 white oats $0.90; No. 2 yellow corn 45c; No. 3 white oats 30c. For the week Chicago December wheat closed at $1.10; Chicago November wheat closed at $1.05; Minneapolis December wheat closed at $1.10; Minneapolis November wheat closed at $1.05; Winnipeg December wheat closed at $1.05; Winnipeg November wheat closed at $1.00.

Very heavy supplies of potatoes caused most markets to assume a slightly weaker tone during the week. Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh markets strengthened toward the close. Sacked round whites held steady in New York at $2.25 per 100 pounds. Maine Green Mountains down 20c at $2.15. Northern round whites firm in New York at $2.25. Potatoes closed with a net loss of 10c at $1.50@1.70.

Apple markets generally slow and dull under liberal supplies.

Scotts "Dry" Conference. Paris—The disarmament conference to be officially dry? Then, La Liberté remarks sadly, it may be that the peace of the future will be lost for the want of alcohol. "What a vexing mistake!" the paper exclaims. "To think that the world's peace future might depend on a little more Pomard or Chateau La Rose in an English stomach or the light perfume of a sip of cognac on the palate of a Japanese delegate. The devil take this league against alcohol!"

U. S. TO DEMAND SMALLER NAVIES

POLICIES OUTLINED, PROPOSALS LASHED IN SHAPE FOR BIG WORLD PROBLEM.

FAR EAST QUESTION IMPORTANT

Settlement of China's Plight Must Precede Satisfactory Adjustment of Other Matters.

Washington—The policies and program of the American delegation to the armament conference which opens this week, have assumed something like definite outline, and if the expectations of official Washington are realized, the opening day of the conference will see a sequence of developments something like this: Presentation, at the outset, of a concrete American plan for far-reaching reduction of naval armament.

Consideration, along with this plan, of such troublesome problems of the far east as may naturally project themselves in the picture. Meantime, an effort by the United States, to keep the negotiations in the open so that public opinion may exert its pressure toward practical accomplishment.

U. S. "Means Business." Salient features of the American naval armament proposal already have been established and although details remain to be fixed, there is reason to believe the reductions suggested will be sweeping enough to convince the whole world that the United States "means business" when it called the powers into conference.

It would cause no surprise if the leading naval powers found it necessary to submit the plan of this government to long and careful study before they determine on their course of action. Should the reductions proposed prove unacceptable, it is believed likely the American delegates, having once taken the initiative, would invite the other powers to present in their turn some concrete counter-proposal.

Cards to Go On Table. All the evidences surrounding the conferences of the American Big Four with their naval advisers have pointed to inclusion of a set of maximum reduction figures in the plan to be laid on the table by this government. No official has been willing to reveal any details of these figures, but there has been apparent a desire to lay bare at the very outset of the negotiations the full extent to which the United States would be willing to go in scaling down the world's naval armament. The impression that such a method may not lead to an immediate agreement has been given color by the apparent intention of some of the other powers to pursue a directly opposite course and enter the conference setting a high figure as the measure of the naval armament they consider requisite to their national safety.

Japan already has indicated that she would suggest the necessity of maintaining a navy equal to any which might enter her sphere in the far east, a proportion which naval experts say is well in excess of her present power.

TRAIN WRECKER IS GIVEN LIFE

Judge Williams Puts Crime on Par With Murder.

Lapeer, Mich.—Henry W. Gates was sentenced to life imprisonment at the Michigan State Prison in Jackson in less than 20 minutes after he was arraigned Nov. 3 on a charge of wrecking a Grand Trunk train between here and Elba early on the morning of Oct. 29. Gates pleaded guilty.

Train wrecking is covered in a special act of the Legislature. Judge Williams told Gates that he considered his crime equal to murder. Gates also admitted that he wrecked a Michigan Central train near Dearborn last July when the engineer was killed, and attempted to wreck a train near Brent Creek a few weeks ago.

HOUSE OF DAVID UNDER FIRE

Couple, Quoted from Cuit, Bring Suit to Recover Property.

Grand Rapids—John W. Hansel and his wife, Mary, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., who were expelled from the House of David at Benton Harbor, last December, have brought suit in district court to recover property they say they signed over to the cult when they entered it in 1906.

The Hansels, who have six children, two girls and four boys, are also suing to collect compensation for their services during the period in which they were members of the colony.

A World in Need. A little boy was beating a rug in a back yard with all his might. After each stroke he gazed up into the sky. "What on earth are you doing?" asked his mother. "Sending some dust up to God," was the reply, "so's He can make some new people."

The twisted low branches of oak trees threw shadows on the grave when they finally reached it, and sheep were cropping the watered grass of the graveyard. The soft autumn sky, the drift of snowy clouds across the blue, the clear shadows on brown grass under the oaks, all these were familiar. But Peter still looked dazedly at his black cuff and at the turned earth next to the doctor's headstone, telling himself again that this was for Alix. How often he had seen her sitting there, with her bright face sobered and sweet, as she talked lovingly, eagerly of her father! They had often come here, Peter the more willingly because she was so sensible and happy about it; she would park lunch, button herself into one of the crisp blue gingham, chatter on the road in her usual fashion. And if, for a few moments, the train of memory fired by the sight of the old doctor's grave became too poignant and tears came, she always scolded herself with that mixture of childish and maternal impatience that was so characteristic of her, and that Peter had seen her use to this very father years ago!

He remembered her, a tall, awkward girl, with a volume of Dickens slipping from her lap as she sat on a hayrack by the fire, teasing her father, scolding and reproaching him. Blazing red on her high cheekbones, untidy black hair, quick tongue and ready laugh; that was the Alix of the old days, when he had criticized and patronized her, and told her that she should be more like Anne and little Cherry!

He remembered being delegated, one day, to take her into town to the dentist, and that upon discovering that the dentist was not in his office, he had taken her to the circus instead. She had been about thirteen, and had eaten too many peanuts, he thought, and had lost a petticoat in full sight of the grandstand. But how grateful and happy she had been!

"Dear little old blue petticoat!" he said. "Dear little old madcap Alix!" There was silence, the silence of inattention, about him. He came to himself with a start. He was up on the hills, in the cemetery—this was Alix's grave, newly covered with wilting masses of flowers, and he was keeping everybody waiting. He murmured an apology; the waiting men were all kindness and sympathy.

He got back into the motor car; the man who drove them quickly toward the valley talked easily and steadily to Peter, attempting to interest him in the affairs of some water company in San Francisco. When they got to the valley a city train was arriving, and Peter saw people looking at him furtively and sorrowfully. He remembered the many, many times Alix had waited for him at the trains; he glanced toward the big madrone under which she always parked her car. She was usually deep in a book as he crossed from the train, but she would fling it into the back seat and make room for him beside her. The dog would bound into the tonneau, Alix would hand her husband his mail, the car would start with a great plunge toward the mountain—toward the cool garden high up on the ridge—

Cherry looked small and pathetic in her fresh black, and her face was marked by secret incessant weeping. But the nurses and doctors could not say enough for her self-control; she was always composed, always quietly helpful and calm when they saw her, and she was always busy. From early morning, when she slipped into the sick-room, to stand looking at the unconscious Martin with a troubled, intent expression that the nurses came to know well, until night, she moved untrudgingly about the quiet, shadowed house. She supervised the Chinese boy, saw that the nurses had their hours for rest and exercise, telephoned, dusted and arranged the rooms, saw callers sweetly and patiently, filled vases with flowers.

Every day she had several vigils in the sick-room, and every day at least one long talk with the doctors. Every afternoon and evening had its callers; she and Peter were rarely alone. Martin was utterly unconscious of the life that flowed on about him; sometimes he seemed to recognize Cherry, and would stare with painful intensity into her face, but after a few seconds his gaze would wander to the strange nurses, and the room that he had never known, and with a puzzled sigh he would close his eyes again, and drift back into his own strange world of pain, fever and unconsciousness.

Almost every day there was the sudden summons and panic in the old house, Peter going toward the sick-room with a thick beating at his heart, Cherry entering, white-faced and with terrified eyes, doctors and nurses gathering noiselessly near for the last scene in the drama of Martin's suffering. But the release did not come.

There would be murmuring among the doctors and nurses; the pulse was gaining, not losing; the apparently fatal, final symptoms were proving neither fatal nor final. The tension would relax; a doctor would go, a nurse slip from the room; Cherry, looking anxiously from one face to another, would breathe more easily. It was inevitable, she knew that now—but it was not to be this minute; it was not to be this hour!

"My dear—my dear!" Peter said to her one day, when spent and shaken she came stumbling from Martin's bedside and stood dazedly looking from the window into the soaking October forest, like a person stunned from a blow. "My poor little Cherry! If I could spare you this!"

"Nobody can spare me now!" she whispered. And very simply and quietly she added: "If I have been a fool—if I have been a selfish, wicked girl all my life, I am punished!"

"Cherry!" he protested, heartsick to see her so. "Was it wrong for us to love each other, Peter?" she asked in a low tone. "I suppose it was! I suppose it was! But it never seemed as if—" she shut her eyes and shivered—"as if this—would come of it!" she whispered.

"This!" he echoed aghast. "Oh, I think this is punishment," Cherry continued, in the same lifeless, weary tone.

There was a silence. The rain dripped and dripped from the red-woods, the room in which they stood was in twilight, even at noon. Peter could think of nothing to say.

About two weeks after the accident there was a change in the tone of the physicians who had been giving almost all their time to Martin's case. There was no visible change in Martin, but that fact in itself was so surprising that it was construed into a definite hope that he would live.

Not as he had lived, they warned his wife. It would be but a restricted life; tied to his couch, or permitted, at best, to move about within a small boundary on crutches.

"Martin!" his wife exclaimed piteously, when this was first discussed. "He has always been so strong—so independent! He would rather—he would infinitely rather be dead!" But her mind was busy grasping the possibilities, too. "He won't suffer too much?" she asked fearfully.

They hastened to assure her that the chance of his even partial recovery was still slight, but that in case of his convalescence Martin need not necessarily suffer.

Another day or two went by in the silent, rain-wrapped house under the trees; days of quiet footsteps and whispering, and the hisping of wood fires. Then Martin suddenly was conscious, knew his life, languidly smiled at her, thanked the doctors for occasional ease from pain.

"Peter—I'm sorry. It's terrible for you—terrible!" he said in his new, hoarse, gentle voice, when he first saw Peter. They marveled among themselves that he knew that Alix was gone. But to Cherry, in one of the long hours that she spent sitting beside him and holding his big, weak, strangely white hand, he explained one day. "I knew she was killed," he said, out of a silence. "I thought we both were!"

"How did she ever happen to do it?" Cherry said. "She was always so sure of herself—even when she drove fast!" "I don't know," he answered. "It was all like a flash, of course! I never watched her drive—I had such confidence in her!"

His interest dropped; she saw that the tide of pain was slowly rising again, and glanced at the clock. It was two; he might not have relief until four. In his own eyes she saw reflected the apprehension of her own.

"You might ask Peter to play some of that—that rambly stuff he was playing yesterday," he suggested. Cherry, only too happy to have him want anything, to have him help by anything, flew to find Peter. Busy with one of the trays that were really beginning to interest and please the invalid now, she told herself that the house was a different place, now that one nurse was gone, the doctors coming only for brief calls, and the dear, familiar sound of the old piano echoing through the rooms.

Martin came from the fiery furnace changed in soul and body. It was a thin, gentle, strangely patient man who was propped in bed for his Thanksgiving dinner, and whose pain-worn face turned with an appreciative smile to the decorations and the gifts that made his room cheerful.

The heavy cloud lightened slowly but steadily; Martin had a long talk, dreaded by Cherry from the first hours of the accident, with his physicians. He bore the ultimatum with unexpected fortitude.

"Let me get this straight," he said slowly. "The arm is O. K. and the leg, but the back—"

Cherry, kneeling beside him, her hands on his, drew a wincing breath. Martin reassured her with an indulgent nod. "I've known it right along," he told her. He looked at the doctors. "It's no go?"

"I don't see why I should deceive you, my dear boy," said the younger doctor, who had grown very fond of him. "You can still beat me at bridge, you know, you can read and write, and come to the table, after awhile; you have your devoted wife to keep finding new things for you to do! Next summer now—a chair out in the garden—"

Cherry was fearfully watching her husband's face.

"We'll all do what we can to make it easy, Mart!" she whispered, in tears.

He looked at her with a whimsical smile. "Mind very much taking care of a helpless man all your life?" he asked, with a hint of his old confident manner.

"Oh, Mart, I mind only for you!" she said. Peter, standing behind the doctors, slipped from the room unnoticed. Late that evening, when Martin was asleep, Cherry came noiselessly from the sick-room, to find Peter alone in the dimly lighted sitting room. He glanced at her, feeling rather than hearing her presence, and called her.

"O, Mart! I Mind Only for You!" She Said.

"Come over here, will you, Cherry? I want to speak to you."

She came, with an inquiring and yet not wholly unconscious look, to the bedside, and he stood up to greet her. "Tired?" he asked, in an unnatural voice.

"I was just going to bed," she answered, hesitatingly. But she sat down, nevertheless, sank comfortably into the chair opposite his own, and stretched her little feet, crossed at the ankle, before her, as if she were indeed tired.

He knelt down beside her chair, and gathered her cold hands into one of his own. "What are you and I going to do?" he asked.

She looked at him in terror. "But all that is changed!" she said, quickly, fearfully.

"Why is it changed?" he countered. "I love you—I have always loved you, since the days long ago, in this very house! I can't stop it now. And you love me, Cherry!"

"Yes, I shall always love you," she answered, agitatedly, after a pause in which she looked at him with troubled eyes. "But—but—you must see that we cannot—cannot think of all that now," she added with difficulty. "I couldn't fall Martin now, when he needs me so!"

"He needs you now," Peter conceded, "and I don't ask you to do anything that must distress him now. But in a few months, when his mother comes down for a visit you must tell them honestly that you care for me," he said.

Cherry was trembling violently. "But how could I?" she protested. "Tell him that I am going away, deserting him when he most needs me?" Peter had grown very pale.

Then suddenly tears came, and she wrenched her hands free from his, and laid her arms about his neck. Her wet cheek was pressed to his own, and he put his arms tightly about the little shaken figure.

"Peter!" she whispered, desolately. And after a time, when the violence of her sobs was lessened, and she was breathing more quietly, she said again: "Peter! We can never dream that dream again."

"We shall dream it again," he corrected her.

Cherry did not answer for a long while. Then she gently disengaged herself from his arms, and sat erect. Her tears were ended, now, and her voice firmer and surer.

"No, never again!" she told him. "I've been thinking about it, all these days, and I've come to see what is right, as I never did before. Alix never knew about us, Peter—and that's been the one thing for which I could be thankful in all this time! But Alix had only one hope for me, and that was that somehow Martin and I would come to be well, to be nearer to each other, and that somehow he and I would make a success of our marriage, would spare—well, let's say the family name, from all the disgrace and publicity of a divorce—"

"But, Cherry, my child—" Peter expostulated. "You cannot sacrifice all your life to the fancy that no one else can take your place with him—"

"That," she said, steadily, "is just what I must do!"

Peter looked at her for a few seconds without speaking. "You don't love him," he said.

"No," she admitted, gravely. "I don't love him—not in the way you mean."

"He is nothing to you," Peter argued. "As a matter of fact, it never was what a marriage should be. It was always—a mistake."

"Yes," she conceded, sadly, "it was always a mistake!"

"Then there is nothing to bind you to him!" Peter added.

"No—and there isn't Alix to distress now!" she agreed, thoughtfully. "And yet," she went on, suddenly, "I do this more for Alix than for any one!"

Peter looked at her in silence, looked back at the last flicker of the fire.

"You will change your mind after awhile!" he said.

Cherry rose from the chair, and stood with dropped head and troubled eyes, looking down at the flame.

"No, I shall never change my mind!" she said, in a low tone that was still strangely firm and final for her. "For five or ten or twenty or thirty years I shall always be where Martin is, caring for him, amusing him, making a life for him."

Cherry raised her glorious blue eyes in which there was a pure and an uplifted look that Peter had never seen there before. "It is what Dad and Alix would have wished," she finished, solemnly, "and I do it for them!"

Peter did not answer; and after a moment she went quietly and quickly from the room, with the new air of quiet responsibility that she had worn ever since the accident.

CHAPTER XX.

Peter saw, with a sort of stupefaction, that life was satisfying her now as life had never satisfied restless, exacting little Cherry before.

She spent much of her free time by her husband's side, amusing him as skillfully as a mother. He was getting so popular that she had to be ready for callers every day. Would he like her to keep George Sewall for dinner, when they could play dominoes again? Would he like the table with the picture puzzle? He would like just to talk! Very well; they would talk.

Martin's day was so filled and divided with small pleasures that it was apt to amaze him by passing too quickly. He had special breakfasts, he had his paper, his hair was brushed and his bed remade a dozen times a day. Cherry shared her mail, which was always heavy now, with him; she fitted into the sick-room every few minutes with small messages or gifts.

With her bare, bright head, her busy white hands, her voice all motherly amusement and sympathy and sweetness, she had never seemed so much a wife. She had the pleasantest laugh in the world, and she often laughed. The sick-room was kept with exquisite simplicity, with such freshness, bareness, and order as made it a place of delight. One day Cherry brought home a great Viking bowl of silvery glass, and a dozen drifting goldfish, and Martin never tired of watching them idly while he listened to her reading.

"Cherry," Peter said, on a wet January day, when he came upon her in the dining room, contentedly arranging a fragrant mass of wet violets. "I think Martin's out of the woods now. I believe I'll be moving along!"

"Oh, but we want you always, Peter!" she said, innocently regretful. The ghost of a pained smile flitted across his face.

"Thank you," he said, gently. "But I think I will go," he added, mildly. She made no further protest.

"But where?" she asked, sympathetically.

"I don't know. I shall take Buck—start off toward the big mountains. I'll write you now and then, of course! I'm going home, first!"

"Just now," Cherry mused, sadly, "perhaps it is best for you—to get away! Now that Martin is so much better, I do feel so sorry for you, Peter! I know how you feel. I shall miss her always, of course," said Cherry, "but I have him."

"I try not to think of her," Peter said, flinging up his head.

Power Tests Character.
Nothing discloses real character like the use of power. It is easy for the weak to be gentle. Most people can bear adversity. But if you wish to know what a man really is, give him power. This is the supreme test. It is the glory of Lincoln that, having almost absolute power, he never abused it, except on the side of mercy. He spoke not to inflame, he was to uplift, but to convince. He was the embodiment of the self-denial, the courage, the hope, the nobility of the nation.—Robert Green Ingersoll.

Mae McAvary in "A Private Scandal". The story of a girl who considered another woman's happiness before her own.

10c and 20c
Mrs. G. W. Echeold
MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY
"KHAYM" the peer of all mental masters in his famed Telepathic Seance ASK HIM HE KNOWS. Not a moving picture.

THURSDAY
Elsie Ferguson in "Witness for the Defense." Tense with mystery! Crammed with thrills.

10c and 20c
Mina Pierson
FRIDAY
Madge Kennedy in "The Girl With A Jazz Heart." A picture that gallops along at breakneck speed.

10c and 20c
Mrs. Clarence Healey
SATURDAY
THE ORIGINAL FAMILY NIGHT
Wm. S. Hart in "The Primal Law." A picture and story for the whole family. Also Snub Pollard comedy.

10c and 20c
Mrs. Claude Woods
Robin Hood's Proper Name.
The proper name of Robin Hood was Robert Fitzooth. The first he euphonized into Robin, and the second into Hood, omitting the Fitz, which is Norman for son (modern French being "fil"), since having been declared an outlaw, he was not unwilling to renounce his claims to Norman descent. That he was really the earl of Huntingdon, as some historians assert, cannot be proved.

Birds Like Old Homes.
Birds have in common with man the "homing instinct," although of course in man the instinct is not so highly developed. Just how Mr. and Mrs. Bird on their return to the north from their winter in the south find their old nests each spring is not known. Their ability to locate the "old home" is simply a part of their homing instinct. Without charts or compasses to point the way the birds fly unerringly to their old haunts each spring.

HUSBAND AND WIFE WRITE
Mr. and Mrs. James Carson, Columbus, N. M., sign a letter saying, "We shall never be without Foley Cathartic Tablets for we believe them to be essential to good health." They keep the stomach sweet, liver active and bowels regular. Banish constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache. Hite Drug Store.

Dwight H. Fitch Passes Away

Was Well Known Former Charlevoix County Resident.

Dwight H. Fitch, former resident of East Jordan and Charlevoix, living at the time of his death at Muskegon Heights, died suddenly Friday, Nov. 4, from internal hemorrhages.

Deceased was born in Livingston county in 1867, and was 54 years of age after finishing his studies in the local schools, he entered the University of Michigan, taking up the study of law, graduating in 1892. He first located in Howell, Mich., going to Charlevoix in 1900. After seven years in Charlevoix he moved to East Jordan where he continued his law practice until about two years ago, when he located in Muskegon Heights. During the years 1910 to 1914 he faithfully performed the duties as prosecuting attorney of this county making an exceptional record.

He is survived by his wife, one son, Lewis, age 16, two brothers, A. L. Fitch of Charlevoix and Homer Fitch of Grayling and a sister, Mrs. C. H. Tooley of Boyne City. The remains were brought from his Muskegon home to the residence of his brother, A. L. Fitch of Charlevoix, on the afternoon train Saturday. Funeral services were held from the home Sunday at 2:30 p. m., in charge of the Masonic Lodge of East Jordan, of which he was a member, Rev. James Smith, assisting. Interment in the Fitch family lot at Brookside Cemetery.

CHESTONIA

(Edited by Mrs. J. H. Kocher)

Mrs. David Vanderventer and three children of Williamsburg visit-d her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Mayhew, over the week end.

The husking bee at Mrs. Kocher's Friday night was well attended in spite of storm and all seemed to enjoy themselves.

Mrs. Kocher left Monday afternoon for Petoskey, Pellston and St. Ignace where she will visit for a few weeks. Mrs. A. E. Snyder will stay with Mrs. Clara Snyder while Mrs. K. is away.

Frank Justice is slowly getting better again being able to be taken from the hospital to the Inn at East Jordan where he is being cared for.

PATIENCE A VIRTUE

One hundred dollars placed in a savings bank draws in a year's time, say, $4.

A bill of goods bought today is money tied up for them three months to a year from today.

In many lines of business profits—that is profits that can be spent, or invested in other things—cannot be declared but once a year.

But when the average man buys advertising of any sort he expects to get his profits the next day or next week, and if he doesn't, says advertising is no good for his business.

The money spent for advertising creates profit quicker than the same amount of money spent in any other staple goods, and the goodwill obtained is worth more than its cost even if not a cent's worth of goods are sold.

Be patient, Rome was not built in a day, advertising is not a "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford" scheme. It is more like the building of a house—first the foundation is laid by a complete plan of campaign; next the superstructure is raised by the right kind of literature; then the frame is boarded in with clear concise explanation; it is floored by convincing argument and roofed by the proof of that argument.

Can a complete house be built in a night? Neither can a business, so don't expect advertising to do the impossible.—Print Talks.

Mother of Ballooning.

A washerwoman was the mother of ballooning and it all started in France about 1780. The washerwoman wished to dry a skirt more rapidly than could be accomplished by air and sunshine, so she rigged it up over the fireplace. The hot air soon dried the cloth and the woman was astonished to see it round out into a ball and float up to the ceiling. A neighbor named Montgolfier saw the strange occurrence and it gave him the idea from which he made the first balloon.

A GREAT EDUCATIONAL SHOW

The International Livestock Exposition is the stockman's school. In an educational sense it is without a rival, supplementing and crowing the efforts of the Agricultural Colleges Experiment Stations and State Fairs. In this arena are assembled, for instructive competitive purposes, once each year the stellar efforts of all the principal Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations during the previous twelve-month period, a competition that brings to the surface, as is possible nowhere else, the work of the best scientists of the country, where it is made available to students, editors and laymen.

The carlot display of fat cattle, hogs, and sheep is the feeders' forum, where economic developments in meat production are placarded on the wall so conspicuously and intelligibly that he who runs may read.

The educational value is demonstrated by the fact that the beginners in the competition of one season become experts and prize-takers the next. But in a wider sphere, the Exposition is teaching the young idea how to progress.

Without the International Live Stock Exposition, (held this year in Chicago from November 26th to December 3rd) the live stock industry would have been at a standstill, or approximately in that position for ten years past; as it is, phenomenal strides have been made along the highway of progress.

You've noticed that a woman who is interested in a lot of "forward movements" never is backward in talking of them.

It is hard to pound sense into an easy mark.

Brant, Mrs. John Williams, Walter, Elva and Hazel Williams, Mr. and Mrs. F. Fitzgerald, John Trombley, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brandt.

The regular social and business meeting of the League of the Silver Cross was held last Monday night after school. About twelve members were present. A potluck supper and a good time were enjoyed by all. The business discussion was a lively one and good judgment prevailed. It was decided to pay off all debts before any large social affairs should be undertaken. The only definite action taken by the class was arrangements for a contest with The Followers of Jesus. The contest will open next Sunday continuing five weeks. Ten points will be allowed for each new member, five points for each member present, and five points to the class having the largest collection. The losing class must furnish a banquet for the winners. The League of the Silver Cross is an organized class of high school girls in the M. E. Sunday school. The present enrollment is twenty-two members but it is hoped that the membership will be increased by a contest. The leaders are Miss Bertha Clark, acting as leader and teacher, and Marie Tindale acting as president. The aim of this organization is to promote the social, mental, religious and physical life of the young people of the Sunday school.

Frank Kiser has rented the Stone building opposite the Hose House on Main-st., and will conduct a rooming house and serve meals.

Klon Smith and Oscar Light returned home Wednesday from their season's sailing on the Str. Bunson. The boat laid up at Conneaut, Ohio.

A hunting party consisting of J. H. Graff, Al Rogers, Sam Rogers, Lawrence Monroe, James M. Howard, and Ed. Nachazel left Monday for Matchwood.

Mrs. Thomas Passenger entertained about twenty-five friends Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry St. John, who were recently united in marriage at Cleveland. A social evening was spent following with a dainty lunch. Mr. and Mrs. St. John were presented with fine tea and coffee pots.

How Man Was Made.
How the Earthmaker, making man from bits of clay, first did not bake him long enough and he came out white, and secondly baked him too long and he came out black, and thirdly baked him just right and he came out red, is the Cree Indians' explanation of the creation of the races of man. This and twenty-four other Indian myths are contained in a collection of Indian lore recently compiled by Charles E. Brown, curator of the Wisconsin State Historical museum at Madison.

Oysters Greatest Enemy.
The starfish clings with its five fleshy fingers to the shells of oysters while its five centrally situated sharp teeth eat a hole through which it can suck the living flesh. It has an insatiable appetite.

Something to Think About
By F. A. WALKER

EDISON QUESTIONS

THOMAS A. EDISON, who has a very low opinion of the intellectuality of the average college student, has come out with a new set of questions, historical, political, geographical and scientific.

The Wizard is much too honest a man for anybody to suggest that he deliberately got up these posers for the purpose of humiliating his fellow citizens.

So it may be admitted that the wide ground covered by the queries represents his own interest in all sorts of subjects having to do with human activities.

But it is doubtful whether or not ability to answer correctly all or most of these questions could be any test of the intelligence of anybody, in college or out of it. For intelligence and knowledge are very different things.

It was once said of a distinguished man that he had a larger store of useless knowledge than anybody of his time. Mr. Edison would not admit that any knowledge could be useless.

In fact he seems to take the attitude of the late Lord Macaulay who was in the habit of qualifying a statement as to something that nobody knew anything about but himself, by saying "as every schoolboy knows." As a result "Macaulay's Schoolboy" became the proper definition of an infant prodigy.

Lord Kelvin was one of the most distinguished men of science of his time. Addressing his students at Glasgow University on one occasion he said that the great thing about the higher mathematics was that it could be of no possible use to anybody.

Yet the fact that Kelvin and a couple of his friends, one in America and another in Europe, used to amuse themselves with these useless investigations, is, in a way, an argument in favor of Mr. Edison. It goes to show that certain things are worth while even if no direct advantage is to be derived from them.

Old-fashioned schoolmasters were great believers in the importance of facts, and a great part of their time was passed in getting them into the minds of the young.

But the modern schoolmaster goes about his business in a different way. He does not try to teach facts. He does try to teach general principles.

It is like the difference between the old geography and the new.

The old dealt with the names of places, rivers, mountains and so on. The new deals with the effect of the physical shape of the earth's surface on the races scattered over it.

A well-trained lawyer is not one who carries all the cases around with him in his head. But he does know how to put his hand on anything he wants.

In the same way it is more important to be able to get at your facts than to know them.

KIPLING.

EVERYDAY SALADS.

A MOST acceptable salad may be made of a few leftovers if the combination is good. Many a good bit of food is thrown away for lack of knowing how to use it wisely.

Potato and Corn Salad.

Take a pint or less of cold boiled potatoes cut in half-inch cubes, add one cupful of green corn cooked on the cob, a bit of chopped green pepper if at hand, a little scraped onion to give it zest and enough well seasoned dressing to moisten, adding salt and pepper to season.

Hot Corn and Pepper Salad.

Take a pint of sweet corn (fresh) and just cut from the cob. Shred or mince one green pepper and cook in a little butter until well softened, add the green corn and more butter, stirring and mixing well over the fire. Season with salt, pepper and cayenne and serve piping hot. It is wise to double this recipe if the family is at all fond of corn for there is never a kernel left.

Crisp Lettuce With Peanuts.

Wash a bunch or two of tender head lettuce, drain and dry thoroughly, arrange on individual plates and sprinkle with fresh crisp peanuts that have been crushed by rolling with the rolling pin until like coarse crumbs. Serve with a French dressing passed at the table or with a good boiled dressing. Adding the dressing to the lettuce, if it stands any length of time, wilts it and destroys its attractiveness.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

EUNICE

EUNICE, like Evangeline, is one of the "glad" names in the lexicon of feminine cognomens. Like Evangeline also, it comes from the Greek word meaning well, or happy. Eunice is translated to mean "happy victory."

Because of its significance, the Greek word from which Eunice was derived, was taken over in early times by the Christians, who adored names of happy augury. The names coming from this favorite word are almost beyond enumeration, but curiously, only a few of them have survived to modern times.

Eunice is one of these latter. It made its appearance as Eunike one of the fifty Nereids. Her name, straightway became popular among Greek women, but it remained for Eunice, the Jewish mother of Timothy to give it vogue in the days of early Christianity. English lovers of Bible names have favored it for centuries, and it is still popular in all the countries of Europe, though particularly adapted to English and American usage.

The topaz is the talismanic gem assigned to Eunice. "The chrysolite of sunrise," Shelly calls it. It is said to preserve its wearer from all dangers and to warn of approaching evil by paling in color, but it will be rendered impotent unless it is set in gold. To dream of its signification that no harm shall befall. Tuesday is Eunice's lucky day, and 5 her lucky number. The chrysanthemum, signifying cheerfulness, is her flower.

Beyond Compass of One Mind.

Prof. J. J. Sylvester, the English mathematician, who died in 1897, is said to have been the last man who ever thoroughly familiarized himself with all branches of mathematics as known in his day. The subject is now so vast that no human mind could possibly master the whole of it.

Gowns for Both Sexes.

In the Fourteenth century men as well as women wore gowns, and until the end of the Seventeenth century it was not uncommon for men in certain callings to wear long robes, just as monks do to this day.

Wellington's Census Return.

Although old census papers are supposed to be destroyed after the necessary data have been obtained and the reports finished, a fortunate English collector still possesses a paper filled out by the duke of Wellington for the census of 1851. To the question, Any deaf or dumb in household? he replied, I am deaf, and to the question, Where born? he replied, Born in Ireland—believe in Arly. The Iron Duke was wrong as to his birthplace, however, for records show that he was actually born in Upper Merion street, Dublin.—The Living Age.

Decision.

However many paths are offered, we can take but one. But when we decide upon a course it is folly to allow the mind to wander continually along the others, speculating concerning their possible advantages, and wondering whether, after all, some other way might not have been better. The real road grows more difficult by permitting fancy to paint the others as smoother.—Exchange.

Diligence Quantly Advised.

Break Chest Colds With Red Peppers

Rub It on Congested, Aching Chest—Loosens Up that Tight Feeling at Once—Surely Brings Quickest Relief.

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings the quickest relief. It can't hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

When heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints, relief comes at once.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub for colds, lumbago, sore muscles, stiff neck, lumbago, or the pains of rheumatism or neuritis, you feel the tingling heat.

In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering so you can hardly get about, just get a jar of Rowley's Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have bladder trouble—Take glass of Salts.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidneys, they become over-worked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Foods Affect Mental Senses. It is not generally known that food, whether vegetable or flesh, has an effect on us. Turnips, for example, depress. Peas exhilarate. Mutton allays irritation of temper. COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, faded and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in a time when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with "Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

EDGAR S. PAXSON, THE SCOUT WHO WAS A PAINTER

Col. Edgar S. Paxson was a scout who became a painter. He worked for 20 years on one painting before it was completed, and when the old scout's masterpiece was done, it was declared to be the most accurate picture of Custer's last battle ever painted. It made Paxson famous.

Paxson was a New Yorker who went to Montana in the early seventies. He became a cowpuncher, a hunter and trapper. When Chief Joseph led his Nez Perce warriors on their 1,000-mile dash for freedom in 1877, Paxson enlisted as a scout with the United States troops and served with them until Chief Joseph was cornered in the Bear Paw mountains and surrendered to General Miles.

After the Nez Perce war was over Paxson returned to Deer Lodge, Mont., and opened a studio. He had always wanted to paint pictures and he took for his subjects the things he knew best—cowboys, Indians, hunters and trappers. Then he conceived the idea of a painting of the greatest Indian battle in American history—Custer's last fight with the Sioux and Cheyennes on the Little Big Horn.

For years Paxson gathered information about the battle. He went over the battlefield again and again until he was familiar with every foot of it. He talked with Indians who had fought against Custer, and he sought officers and men who had served with him and been to get their stories of the fight. He learned everything he could of the position of every man in the Seventh Cavalry on that fateful day in June 1876.

Paxson was engaged seven years in the actual painting of the picture. His work was interrupted during this time by his service in Cuba during the Spanish-American war and in the Philippines. After the war was over he returned to his work and the picture was completed.

In this painting Paxson showed the figures of more than 200 soldiers, Indians and scouts. It contained the portraits of 36 members of Custer's command painted from photographs. Every detail of the battle was shown historically accurate, so far as it is possible to know how Custer and his men perished. The painting has been on exhibition in the largest cities of the United States and it now hangs in the library of the Montana State university at Missoula. It is valued at $25,000.

In 1878 Paxson laid down the scout's rifle to take up the painter's brush. Forty-one years later he laid down the brush. Colonel Paxson died in Missoula, November 9, 1919.

HOW WALAPAI CLARK ENDED "THE APACHE TERROR"

Although the worst Indian war in Arizona ended in 1886, when Chief Geronimo surrendered to General Miles, ten years later a lone Apache warrior was still carrying terror to the hearts of the settlers in that state. The Apache Kid was his name. He had once been a scout for our troops; then his "heart went bad"; he deserted his command and joined the hostiles. When Geronimo surrendered, the Apache Kid "stayed out" and took the lone war trail.

Late in the '80's a prospector named Jack Clark located a claim near Condon in the Santa Catalina mountains north of Tucson. Clark had been a scout for the government in the Apache campaigns. He had lived among the Wapapai Indians for many years and bore the nickname of "Walapai" Clark. One night an old pack mare of Clark's was stolen and the trail showed that it was the work of a lone Indian. Clark felt sure it was the Apache Kid.

"Walapai" knew that unless the Indian kept the mare securely tied she would escape and come back. A week later she returned. Believing that the thief would not give up such a valuable animal so easily, Clark prepared for his return. That night he staked the mare out in a little park and concealed himself in the tall grass nearby. After hours of waiting, the scout saw an Indian's head appear above the grass at the edge of the clearing. A second later another appeared and both Indians crept toward the horse.

There was a full moon and Clark could not miss. He fired and the first Indian dropped. Like a flash the other sped for the woods. "Walapai" fired again. The Indian stumbled, almost fell and then disappeared. When Clark reached the dead Indian, he found she was a squaw. The cowardly Kid had made her go ahead so that she would receive the deadly bullet if they were entering an ambush.

Clark knew better than to hunt for the wounded Indian that night. The next morning he led a large party on the trail. Here and there they found spots of blood and further on a bloody headband. But they never found the Apache Kid. His fate is unknown, but it is believed that he crawled away into one of the many caves in the Santa Catalinas to die. At any rate, his raids ceased. "Walapai" Clark had ended "The Apache Terror."

It is of the West, matchless in its expression of the out-of-doors, with charming human types and an absorbing and fascinating wealth of incident. The search for a lost mine is interwoven with a most delightful love story. Watch for it as a serial in this publication. If not a subscriber, become one now.

You Must Not Miss It!

GREEDY TIM.

GREEDY TIM was a little squirrel and one day he overheard his mother saying she was going to give a big dinner soon and must begin to get the cakes and pies and things ready at once.

The finest thing that Mrs. Squirrel was to give her guests was a huge nut pie—a pie so big that it would take two of the family to place it on the table.

Greedy Tim dearly loved nut pie, and he watched his mother make it, with great longing for a piece, but his mother told him it was for the party and that she would bake him a little pie all for himself. This Greedy Tim did not want at all; he wanted a big piece of the company pie.

The night of the party Tim went to bed early, as all little squirrels should do, but he did not go to sleep. Instead he stole down the back stairs and into the pantry and jumped up on the shelf where the big pie stood.

He did not cut the pie; he nibbled at the undercrust until he had a hole made big enough for him to get inside and then he began to eat. He had not eaten very much, though, before he heard a sound—some one was coming—and Tim kept very still inside the pie.

The next thing he knew the pie was being carried by his mother and father to the dining room and he heard all the guests exclaim: "Oh, what a beautiful pie!"

But the next thing he heard made him tremble so he was sure the pie must be shaking, for his father began to sharpen the knife with which he was to cut the wonderful pie.

"You must make it very sharp," he heard his mother say, "because the crust must be cut right through and not broken."

Tim began to tremble more, and then his father put the knife on the top crust and poor Tim could stand no more.

Up he jumped, right through the top crust, and frightened the guests almost out of their senses; but he did not frighten his mother, for no sooner had Tim showed his head than Mrs. Squirrel grabbed him and out into the kitchen she marched poor Tim, trembling more than he had inside the pie.

"So you thought you would eat up my nice nut pie, did you? you greedy boy," she said, as she tinged Tim's legs with a switch.

Tim was not only punished with the switch, but he did not get any of the left-over goodies from the party the next day, as his brothers did, who stayed in bed and slept, as good squirrels should, when the grownups were having a party.

Cape Colony—Hong Kong. Cape Colony, now forming the province of the Cape of Good Hope in the South African union, was occupied by the Dutch as early as 1652, but was captured by the British in 1795, and ruled by them until 1803, when it was restored to Holland. Great Britain again took Cape Colony in 1806, and it was formally surrendered to her by treaty in 1814, remaining under British rule ever since. Hong Kong was occupied by the British in 1840, and ceded to Great Britain by the treaty of Nanking in 1842.

China Cement. Take dissolved gum arabic and stir in enough plaster of paris to make a soft paste. This is almost colorless and acts excellently as cement for china. For very delicate china or porcelain have the pieces tied carefully together with tape. It is then ready to put into a saucepan of milk and the milk very gradually brought to the boiling point; remove the saucepan from fire and let china stay in it about six minutes; lift out carefully and set to dry.

Down With the Aristocracy! The mosquito is an aristocrat—some of the best blood in the country runs in its veins.—Boston Transcript.

BUT IT CAN'T!

The editor of a national magazine said not long ago that if the big city newspaper could get as close to its readers as those of the country, it could have a three million circulation. "But," the editor added significantly, "it can't." That is why the country newspaper, which has had its doom sealed again and again, continues to go on—because of its intimate, personal appeal to its readers. Abe Martin says that except for a temporary chairman, there is nothing under the sun so hard to stop as a country weekly, and he is right. The country and small town see the value and need of their own little newspaper and so they will not see it die. "Subscribe for your home town paper week" has been set for November 7-12 to remind as forcibly as possible the folks of the home town—and the home town folks who are many miles away—of the big service which the home town paper renders.

"PROTECT MOTHERS" IS OFFICIAL'S PLEA

Nearly half a thousand homes in the state were disrupted by deaths of the mothers during the first nine months of 1921, statistical studies made by the Michigan department of health disclose.

Maternity resulted fatally in 490 instances, 148 of the deaths occurring in Detroit, and 342 in the rest of the state. This gives a maternal death rate, for causes arising from childbirth, of 17.1 per 100,000 population—or nearly equal to the state's diphtheria death rate, and more than twice as high as the typhoid death rate. Since only women are affected, however, and only women in the age group from 15 to 45, the seriousness of the cause is increased proportionally, authorities point out.

With 72,742 births reported in the state from Jan. 1 to Oct. 1, one out of every 150 births terminated fatally for the mother.

"Prenatal instruction, a physician's advice, and clean and scientific care will eliminate the chief dangers of maternity," declares Dr. R. M. Olin, commissioner of health, "for most of these deaths are preventable. To assist in protecting motherhood, the department of health will send practical suggestions upon prenatal and infant care, to supplement the family doctor's advice, to every woman requesting information.

"These 490 mothers who died undoubtedly represented the most precious lives in their community. Their loss means motherless children and broken homes. We are supposed to honor mothers above all other persons. Surely the time has come when we should do every possible thing for their welfare 365 days of the year instead of merely consecrating a single sabbath annually to their memory and praise by wearing a white or red carnation."

TRACTOR OPERATORS TO STUDY AT M. A. C.

Truck and tractor operators on Michigan farms will study correct methods of handling their machines at a special short course which opens at the Michigan Agricultural College on November 28. The school, which is to run for one month, will be the first of four similar ones to be held at M. A. C. during the winter.

"The farm operator of trucks and tractors must be thoroughly trained if he would handle his machines economically and efficiently," says H. H. Musselman, Professor of Farm Mechanics at the college. "It is just as important for him to give his gas power thorough attention as it is for him to take care of his horses."

Ability to make adjustments and all ordinary repairs will be one of the results of the work of the school. All practical phases of operation will be studied, farm conditions and experience governing the outlining of the course. Stationary engines, ignition systems, and shop work will be included in the schedule, in addition to trucks and tractors proper.

Numerous other special farm courses are included in the Winter Short Course program at M. A. C. A two weeks Cow Testing and Dairy Barn Management course opens December 5, while courses in general agriculture, horticulture, poultry, farm business, and dairy production and manufactures start early in January. One four weeks Poultry Husbandry Course opens Nov. 28.

The Best Christmas Gift.

Can you remember that Christmas when you first received The Youth's Companion among your Christmas presents? You can perhaps recall the titles of some of the serial stories in those early numbers, and you can well remember how everyone in the family wanted to read your paper.

To-day The Companion makes the ideal Christmas present. No family, especially one with growing boys and girls, should be without the tried and true Youth's Companion—the friend and entertainer of hosts of people, old and young.

The Companion is true to the best American ideals of life, giving every week a generous supply of the best stories, current events, comments on the world's doings, with special pages for Boys, for Girls and for the Family. The 52 issues of 1922 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive:

Strictly speaking, the chances are that you cannot afford to own many of the things you do own.
Most of the opposition to short skirts comes from women who wouldn't dare to wear 'em.

Money always talks, but when it is in the hands of the new rich it screams.

A mother with her first baby does not have much in the way of ignorance on the man with his first automobile.

Nothing makes a tired business man so tired as to have somebody insist on his buying something he doesn't need.

A hard-headed man scarcely ever is soft hearted.

It's a mystery to everybody except the banker how some men get the money they spend, but he knows they don't have it.

Nobody wants to rent a vacant mind.

SHE KNOWS AFTER 20 YEARS
Mrs. Milton Waite, Box 32, Azalia, Mich., writes: "I have used Foley's Honey and Tar for the past 20 years and find there is no other cough or croup remedy like it." It gets right at the seat of the trouble and covers infected surfaces with a coating that eases and heals. Children like it. Hite Drug Store.
