EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1921.

No. 49

R. O. Bisbee To Jackson

Becomes Cashier of National Union Bank in January.

R. O. Bisbee will extend his banking lines the first of the year by becoming cashier of the National Union Bank of Jackson, Michigan. He will retain the Vice-Presidency of the People's State Bank, as well as all his other banking interests in Charlevoix, Emmet and Mackinac counties, making occasional trips to inspect the different banks.

This change will establish a city connection which will prove an immense advantage to the banks controlled by himself and associates.

Jackson is ideally located from a banking standpoint, as it is on the main line of the Michigan Central railroad, a few hours by rail from either New York or Chicago, the two leading financial centers of America.

All the necessary changes in organization to make this move feasible have been worked out for some time. With this in mind, a year ago, Mr. Bisbee turned over the duties of cashier of the People's State Savings Bank of East Jordan to John J. Mikula, at that time assistant cashier. Since that time Mr. Mikula has assumed entire responsibility for the management of the bank and will continue to act in that position permanently.

Roscoe Mackey, who has been a director of the bank for the past two years, will now become actively identified with the organization and will act as field man for the different banks. Mr. Mackey's business ability is well known and his judgment and experience will make him a valuable addition to the system.

Mr. Bisbee will keep his home here which will be occupied by the family during the summer months.

TO LEGION MEMBERS

There will be another important meeting of the American Legion at the basement of the Library building next Monday, Dec. 12th. Nomination of officers and location of Post room for ensuing year.

Those who attended the last meeting Nov. 28-report a good time and promise to come again.

Some of the boys who went over to interview the "Clean-up Squad" will be called up on the carpet. Come on out fellows and hear what they have to say, and give your ideas on the coming year. Don't stay away and then tell us what we should have done.

Dues for ensuing year are now due and can be paid at the next meeting. You don't want to miss one copy of the Legion weekly.

NEAR EAST CAMPAIGN NOW UNDER WAY

We hope the people of East Jordan and vicinity do not take the campaign for Near East Relief too lightly, for up to this time, it does not appear we are making sacrifices that would warrant getting our quota. Never has a cause been more worthy of our sympathy and help. 209,000 children, principally orphans, and women are in dire need of the necessities of life, food, clothing and shelter. At this time in history our regard for the Russian soldier is not high, yet the soldiers of the Russian army stationed in Armenia are going without one meal a day to feed the hungry. The situation indeed be serious. If the type of men mentioned above do without a meal a day, what should be expected of an intelligent, well-fed and clothed American? It is America's boast that a call for help has always been answered. Let's all have a part, no matter how small, in helping to maintain such a record. Those who are giving are the real benefactors; this is an opportunity and privilege at this Christmas season.

I hope people in general do not confuse the Jewish relief with the Near East Relief for they are two distinct campaigns.

So let us go into our pockets, the real way to give and contribute as liberally as we can. If every one would give the little, we would go over the top.

A. J. Duncanson,
Chairman Near East Relief.

MAN, NOT BARN, IS CLEAN MILK FACTOR

"Pay the farmer for his milk on the basis of freedom from bacteria," is the solution offered by Dr. C. E. North, director of the North Public Health bureau of New York, for providing a community with pure milk and lessening the amount of sickness. The suggestion was made during a lecture on "Milk inspection" at the state conference of health officers and nurses in Lansing.

"I do not know of any one thing that will do more for the health of the public, especially the infants and children, than enforcement of milk regulations," says Dr. North. "No one has a monopoly on cleanliness. It isn't the barn which produces clean milk, but the man who cares for the cattle. The biggest secret of clean milk is plentiful supplies of hot and cold water. It is bad sanitary practice to bed milk cows too generously with dry straw. The dust laden the air and infects the milk.

"The farmer's wife deals with the deadliest weapon in the milk business, the strainer cloth. If ordinary precautions of cleanliness are taken, a strainer is unnecessary. Even if a strainer is used, it is worthless except in excluding the visible pieces of filth. Regiments of 160,000 bacteria can march with extended ranks through the finest mesh of a strainer. Only dirty farmers have to have strainers."

To produce acceptably clean milk, that is, milk with less than 50,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter of milk, according to Dr. North it is necessary: To curdy and brush the cows; to wipe the udder with a clean, damp cloth and to dry it with another; to wash and dry the hands before milking; to use a straight-fronted milk pail with not more than a five-inch opening; to bring the pail close to the udder. (calves get certified milk because air never reaches it); to cool the milk immediately without straining; and to sterilize and dry thoroughly all milk utensils.

Fourteen Million Jewish Relief

Aid Must Be Given Or Thousands Perish.

"The people of America do not know that they are living in heaven." Such are the remarks of Abraham Shehan, just returned from two year's service in Central and Eastern Europe.

"My work was with the Jewish refugees who are pouring out of the starvation districts of Russia," he said. "None of these border countries want them, and they are kept on the move. There are 35,000 refugees in Poland now, homeless, wretched, unwelcome foreigners."

The American Jewish Relief Committee is making a national appeal for 14 millions of dollars for relief of Jewish sufferers from the war. The appeal is non-sectarian. The greatest effort has been put forth to reach this goal and beyond. In Michigan the appeal ends December 10th.

It has only been within the year that relief could be made in Russia, and when such relief was started, the scenes witnessed were almost beyond comprehension. Thousands of people aimlessly wandering about, seeking food of any sort. Children were perishing by the hundreds. It was a most terrible state of affairs. A great deal has already been done, but a great deal more will have to be done. Food must be given them, shelter and clothing must be furnished. Medical aid is an absolute necessity. The saving of these people for humanity's sake is not only a responsibility for one group of people, but for all.

M. A. Levinson has been appointed chairman of Charlevoix county for this appeal. A. Danto of East Jordan is local chairman. Any donations which anyone might wish to give for this worthy cause will be gratefully appreciated.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE AND AMERICAN CONSTITUTION IN CONGRESS LIBRARY

The originals of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States have been transferred from the State department at Washington to the Library of Congress upon order of President Harding. This order was issued upon the recommendation of Secretary of State Hughes, because the State department building is subject to fire risk and, moreover, it has no exhibition room in which to place such documents for the benefit of the visiting public. Thousands of Americans are annually expressing a desire to see these two most valuable documents connected with the history of the American government.

Both the documents were deposited with the state department September 15, 1789, and they have been officially in the custody of the Secretary of State ever since. It appears from Secretary of State Hughes' letter to the President recommending that they be transferred to the care of the Congressional Library that these documents have experienced a rather precarious existence at times. On August 20, 1814, just before the capture of Washington by the British these documents, together with other very valuable records, were spirited away from Washington and hidden in an unoccupied grist mill on the Virginia side of the Potomac River about 2 miles above what is now Georgetown. A few days later all of these papers were moved to Leesburg, Virginia, 25 miles further up the river, and placed in an empty house, where they remained hidden until the British had left Washington and the British fleet had left the Chesapeake Bay. For awhile they were deposited in the Patent Office, in a building which was supposed to be fire-proof but which was destroyed by fire, although the documents themselves were not.

Now that they are in the custody of the Library of Congress, suitable protection will be given them and they will be so placed as to enable their free inspection by all patriotic Americans who wish to see "the original fundamental documents upon which rest their independence and their government."

The actors whose dialogue mostly concerns the wonders of Broadway and the chorus girls whose songs contain the same sentiment, usually have to get away from Broadway to make a living.

School For U. S. Veterans

Vocational Training School Opens At Chillicothe, Dec. 2.

With an initial enrollment of 500 students, the first big Government vocational training center to be established by the U. S. Veterans' Bureau was opened December 2, at Chillicothe, Ohio. Col. Charles R. Forbes, Director of the Bureau, and sponsor of the government training centers left Washington Nov. 30 to personally direct the opening of the school, which is known as the U. S. Veterans' Bureau Vocational School.

Students attending the school have been selected from the Eastern and Central states, and it is planned to have an ultimate enrollment of 5000 at the school. Every modern appliance has been installed to properly care for the vocationally disabled veteran. A large hospital, complete in every respect, high class community houses, which were used during the war as Hostess' Houses, a large laundry, completely equipped and running, and many other features inaugurated by Col. Forbes.

"Men in this school will be taught the various trades under competent instructors amid ideal surroundings. The dormitories have been repaired, the best of equipment procured for the convenience of the men, and everything possible done to give the men the real college spirit," said Col. Forbes today.

"It is not the intention of the Veterans' Bureau to interfere in any way with men pursuing professional studies at any of the Universities or accredited institutions," continued Col. Forbes, "nor is it the plan to eliminate proper placement training. Men will continue in placement training with all institutions or organizations that are found suitable, and which are really helping the man, and not exploiting him."

"The first U. S. Veterans' Bureau Vocational School will open a new era for the disabled man, I am confident. With competent instructors, proper housing facilities and modern equipment, the school at Chillicothe will provide the opportunity for veterans who are vocationally handicapped to become rehabilitated in every sense of the word—mentally, physically and financially."

150 FAMILIES TO ADOPT WARDS

State to Complete Records After Lapse of 17 Years.

Lansing—Slipshod methods of placing wards from the state public school has put about 150 former inmates in the position of neither ward, orphan nor adopted child, Earl T. Murray, head of the state welfare department, says. Some children who were placed in homes 17 years ago, are still on the rolls of the school as wards, Mr. Murray declared, who has asked the administrative board for permission to complete the adoptions in a number of cases.

STATE INCOME TAX APPROVED

Assessing Officers Indorse Plan to Submit Amendment.

Lansing—The income tax amendment to be voted upon next November was indorsed by assessing officers representing more than half the counties of the state, after a short debate during the conference called by the special legislative tax investigation committee.

Cardinal Gibbons' Successor Installed. Baltimore, Md.—Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, former bishop of St. Augustine, Fla., was installed archbishop of Baltimore at the cathedral, succeeding the late James Cardinal Gibbons in that capacity. The conferring of the pallium, the crowning act in the elevation of a bishop in the arch-episcopacy, will take place in January next. The ceremonies were comparatively simple, in no way approaching the pomp and splendor accompanying the bestowal of the pallium.

A lot men go strutting around the earth as if they owned it who are really so insignificant they've never been solicited to sign a patent medicine testimonial.

PROVISIONS IN DETAIL OF MUCH DISCUSSED "ANTI-BEER" STATUTE

The following are the provisions of the so-called "anti-beer" law, so vigorously fought by the Democrats. It was enacted to strengthen the enforcement of the prohibition amendment. The President has signed the act and it is now a law in full force and effect:

"1. The bill prohibits the prescription of beer or malt liquors for medicinal purposes.

"2. Not more than one-fourth gallon of vinous liquor, or vinous or spirituous liquor separately or in the aggregate containing more than one-half pint of alcohol, may be prescribed in ten days.

"3. Physicians are limited to 100 prescriptions for liquor in ninety days unless extraordinary reason is presented.

"4. The commissioner may cancel or require change of permits to manufacture patent medicines and preparations used as a beverage even if they are unfit for beverage use, or require the formula for making extracts to be changed, or may cancel the permit, if it appears to the commissioner that the sale or use of such articles is substantially increased by reason of their use for beverage purposes.

"5. Importation of spirituous or vinous liquor is prohibited until the amount on hand shall not be sufficient to supply the current need for non-beverage uses.

"6. Spirituous liquors exported in the original packages may be reimported in such packages for deposit in the distillery warehouse from which originally removed.

"7. The courts of Hawaii and the Virgin Islands are given jurisdiction to enforce the national prohibition act.

"8. Regulations to carry the provisions of this act into effect are authorized.

"9. Revenue laws relating to the manufacture, taxation of and traffic in liquor shall remain in effect when not in conflict with the national prohibition act; and prohibitive taxes and penalties provided in the national prohibition act shall be collected in the same manner as other taxes on liquor.

"10. Taxes on liquor stolen or destroyed shall not be collected from the owner if the loss or theft did not occur as a result of negligence, connivance, collusion or fraud on the part of the owner or person legally accountable for the same.

"Private residences may not be searched without a search warrant. Officers who without probable cause and maliciously search any house without a search warrant are penalized. Persons who impersonate officers enforcing the prohibition act are heavily penalized."

POTATO GROWERS TO HOLD WINTER SHOW

A competitive show, with entries from potato growers all over the state, has been set as a feature of the annual meeting of the Michigan Producers Association, to be held at the Michigan Agricultural College during Farmers Week, Jan. 30—Feb. 3. Prizes and special awards will be offered by the Association, the Michigan Potato Growers Exchange and various manufacturing concerns.

A special educational exhibit, showing spraying and seed selection practices, the results of certified seed potato work, etc., will be prepared by the college and the Producers Association cooperating. Boys and Girls Clubs of the state will also have exhibits of their own.

"We will have the largest potato show ever held during Farmers Week" says H. C. Moore, secretary of the Producers Association and extension specialist at the college. "The Association meeting will also be a record breaker, with prominent out-of-the-state speakers and important educational work."

"Any farmer in the state is eligible to enter exhibits in the competitive show. Exhibits will be of a peck each, all classes being open. The varieties eligible for entry are: Late Petoskey, White Rural, Green Mountain and Irish Cobbler."

Information on the show or the Association meeting may be had by writing to H. C. Moore, M. A. C. East Lansing.

EAST JORDAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Elders 31 Yearlings 5

The first Boy's Basket Ball game of the season took place at the high school auditorium in the form of an interclass game, the seniors challenging the force of the Juniors, Sophomores and Freshman to a brisk practice. The game was a brilliant and well earned victory for the Senior team the score being 31 to 5 in their favor.

Much enthusiasm is shown by the youngsters at this game and the School looks forward with pride at the startling games awaiting them. Raymond Hockstead and Roland Bowen of the Senior team played as forwards and Emil Hegerberg as center. Earl Sumner and Hugh Dicken playing guards during first part of the game.

Of the Yearlings team Theodore Malpass, Russel Johnson, Ed Streeter and Raymond Swafford played leading roles.

Junior Party

The Juniors of the East Jordan High School gave a party the night before Thanksgiving which started at 7:30 and continued until 10:30 standard time. Each member of the class enjoyed the privilege of inviting one person from another grade in high school. The evening was spent in dancing. The music was furnished by the High School Orchestra. Light refreshments were served and everyone had a fine time.

Freshman Party

The first Freshman party was held last Friday night in the High School Auditorium in the presence of about fifty students including friends from all classes as it was an invited party. At five-thirty the students sat down to a very elaborate dinner served by the "Freshies" and after the dinner the crowd gathered in the auditorium where many took part in the dancing. The orchestra was the Harmonic Six. The party was very well planned and was a success and it seems that the Freshies are in Society.

Seventh Grade Program

In the program given by the seventh grade in the high school auditorium Thursday recitations were given by the following: Isateri Litner, Margaret Sherman, Joe Ekstrom, Richard Collins, James Colden, Lyle Sumner, Chester Amberg, Edwin White.

Following this was a one act play, "Value of English" in which was Edward Carr, the Employer. Following this was a two act play named, "Columbus at Spanish court and his return from America." After this was a surprise, a song by the grade.

All Stars Defeat East Jordan High School Girls

The Girls Basket Ball team played their first game Tuesday November 29 at the high school gymnasium and were defeated 26 to 9. Their opponents were the All Stars composed of old graduates and teachers. The All Stars outplayed the Girls both in team work and ability to shoot baskets. The game started with the following lineup:

HIPPLE CONCERT CO.
NEXT NUMBER OF
LYCEUM COURSE

The Hipple Concert Company, headed by Earl Hipple, "Wizard of the Xylophone," who will be heard here on the Lyceum course Friday evening, Dec. 10th, were one of the big features on one of the leading Redpath Chautauqua circuits last summer, and everywhere they were enthusiastically acclaimed as artists and entertainers par excellence.

Following are typical press comments indicating the splendid reception always accorded this premier company: "The Redpath Chautauqua Five Day program opened here Monday afternoon with the Hipple Concert Company on the stage. Hardly has a program ever been rendered here by any attraction that has given so nearly universal satisfaction. Every number on the program was high class and splendidly rendered. The variety of the program caught the attention of all and was pleasing in every respect."—News-Topic, Lenoir, N. C.

"In Earl Hipple, the xylophone artist the musical organization has one of the most talented musicians that has ever appeared before the public in this city. Mr. Hipple's rendition of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody Number Two was nothing short of wonderful. He is a musician of exceptional ability and a master of the xylophone. He received much applause and responded to two entores."—Herald, Greencastle, Ind.

HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE
MONDAY DEC. 12TH.

Do not forget the Debate at the High School Auditorium with Alba High School, Monday evening.

The question has been stated two or three times already. The principle of the closed shop is an interesting one that alone should be incentive enough for our attendance. However, it will be interesting from another standpoint as well, for Alba is coming, determined to win. She has left no stone unturned in the matter of suggesting the best of judges, or leaving any part of her debate squad home. They have changed their basketball schedule so everybody would be behind their team.

One debate counts as much as another, and we want this one. Let us be generous to our opponents, using them absolutely fair even to a good yell or two in their favor. At the same time, we want all that old-time East Jordan pep and enthusiasm. Of course, just winning is not all, but we would like very much to win. The time is 7:30 p. m. The place, High School Auditorium. The usual admission is charged, 15c for high school students; 25c for others. There will be special music.

PENINSULAR

(Edited by Mrs. E. Hayden)

Geo. Jarman went to Charlevoix Monday where he is serving as jurymen from Eveline township.

Arthur Hewitt is using Charles Healy's team to draw stove wood from E. Loomis place to Boyne City for his own use.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sweet who visited the former's sister, Mrs. Ray Loomis, last week went to Boyne City Friday where they will visit another sister, Mrs. Gene Inman.

Charles Healey is still confined to the house with neuralgia which attacked him about a month ago.

Martin Staley and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Staley and two daughters of Charlevoix visited the Joel Bennett family Sunday.

Arthur Gaunt is having very good success peddling fresh beef and honey of his own raising.

Sam A. Hayden is confined to the house by a badly sprained ankle which he received when he helped to saw a small tree down close to the ground on the side of a very steep bank. The ground was very slippery and he was sitting on the ground. The tree fell away from him and striking on the large branches toppled side wise and slid against his leg twisting his foot. He rode one of the horses to the house and has not left his cot since. The injury the painful is not serious.

The surveyors did not commence to survey the county road as was reported last week but County H'y Comm'r Frank House looked over the work that had been done.

Nimrods are having good luck hunting. It is reported one hunter got 12 skunks out of one hole. Herman Martin got 5 coon in one nest a short time ago.

Reading and Thinking.
Those who have read of everything are thought to understand everything, too; but it is not always so. Reading furnishes the mind only with materials of knowledge; it is thinking that makes what is read ours. We are of the ruminating kind, and it is not enough to cram ourselves with a great load of collections; unless we chew them over again they will not give us strength and nourishment.—John Locke.

MRS. BARBARA RUFF PASSES AWAY AT HOME OF DAUGHTER

Mrs. Barbara Ruff passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Shedina, Wednesday, Dec. 7th, following a brief illness from erysipelas.

Deceased was born at Whittenburg, Germany, July 24th, 1832, being 89 years of age at the time of her death. Her maiden name was Knoff.

She came to the United-States with her parents when about eight years going to Cook county, Illinois. About 63 years ago she was united in marriage to Henry Ruff in Illinois, who passed away in 1875. She came to East Jordan some 27 years ago.

Deceased is survived by two daughters—Mrs. Charles Shedina of this city, and Mrs. Henry Korhase of Wilson. Also two sisters residing in Chicago.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon from the Lutheran church in the German Settlement in Wilson township, conducted by Rev. B. J. Succup of Potoskey.

MRS. SARAH LALONDE
PASSES AWAY
FOLLOWING OPERATION.

Mrs. Joseph M. LaLonde passed away at a Potoskey hospital Friday, Dec. 2nd from peritonitis following an operation.

Sarah Stevenson was born at Asheville, North Carolina July 31st, 1869. She was married to James Stevenson and moved to Clarksville, Arkansas, where her husband passed away. In April, 1911, she was united in marriage to Joseph M. LaLonde at Clarksville, Ark. They moved to East Jordan some two years ago. She is survived by her husband of this city, and three sisters and one brother at Asheville, N. C.

The remains were brought to her late home here Friday night. Funeral services were held from the home Sunday afternoon conducted by Rev. Marshall. Interment at Sunset Hill.

SON OF REV. MARSHALL
DIED, THURSDAY.

Harold Frederick, four-year old son of Rev. and Mrs. Thos. Marshall, passed away at the home of his parents in this city Thursday noon. The lad was taken ill with tonsillitis a fortnight ago, and later on rheumatism developed.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall have the heartfelt sympathy of our entire community in their sad bereavement.

The remains will be taken to Vassar, Mich., Saturday morning on the M. C. R. R. train. Funeral services and interment will be held in that city.

Obituary—Mrs. Cyrus Long

Millie Ann Stivers was born July 4, 1844 at Lexington, Kentucky, and passed away at East Jordan, Mich., Nov. 23rd, 1921.

Her early life was during the slavery days in Kentucky, going to Indiana while still in her teens. From there she moved to Montcalm county, Michigan, homesteading and living there until 18 years ago when she moved to Norwood, Charlevoix county. Two years ago she came to East Jordan.

Her first marriage was to William O'Morrow, the son of this marriage, Payton O'Morrow, now residing at Walker, Minn. In 1865 she was married to Cyrus Long. One daughter, Mrs. Lillian Widderburn, of East Jordan, survives, and at whose home she passed away.

A grandfather of Mrs. Long was in the Revolutionary war, her father and two brothers in the Civil war, and a grandson—Joseph H. Wedderburn—lost his life at the beginning of the World war.

She is survived by the son and daughter mentioned above. Deceased was a member of the old school Dunkard church.

Funeral services were held from the home Saturday forenoon, Nov. 26, conducted by Rev. Marshall. The remains were taken to Norwood for interment.

CHESTONIA

(Edited by Mrs. J. H. Kocher)

C. P. Tobey is suffering from the Grippe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashby called on Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Kocher Friday afternoon.

Dr. Goldren was called to Chestonia Tuesday to see a lame horse belonging to A. E. Snyder.

Sunday visitors at Mrs. Kochers were Elmer Jones, Ivan Tobey, Mr. and Mrs. Shepard and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Myers and Ed Vogel.

Nutrition in Fruits.
Fruits are chiefly valuable for their sugar, acids and salts. Bananas, dates, figs, prunes and grapes, owing to their large amount of sugar, are the most nutritive. Apples, lemons and oranges are valuable for their potash salts, and oranges and lemons, especially, are valuable for their citric acid. Some fruits contain two or more acids, such as strawberries, raspberries, gooseberries and cherries. These fruits contain both citric and malic acids.

Must Live and Learn.
Young people never will be circum-spect. Human affairs must always be arranged in consideration of this fact.

A STRANGE STAR

Birth of New Life Which was to Shine Over the Earth.

Conference of the Beasts of the Nativity as Portrayed by imaginative Writer.

"CAREFUL, Brother, thy horns! Keep thy head straight. Remember, tonight we share but the one stall between us. The man and his mate, there, have thine." The little tawny-hided ox of Palestine on the farther side leaned hard against the stable wall.

"'Tis a strange star that shines tonight," his yoke-fellow answered, sighing restlessly as he turned back his gaze from the open door. Even with care their horns clicked in the narrow space. "If men must take my bed, why did they not turn us out into the free air?" The grass would have dew on it tonight—and I could watch the star."

"Ho!" snorted the little gray ass which had carried hither the woman who lay stretched on the straw between them. "What grass wouldst thou pluck from the cobblestones of the city?"

"Aye," loved the first ox. "There is hay here; eat and be still. The star is no concern of thine."

"The star shineth on the whole broad earth, Brother. He hath the peaked hills to wander in, and the dark valleys, the fields and the towans alike. I wish I were free like the star."

"Then, like him, thou wouldst come slipping in at our stable door again. Hey, come off, thy knees! We must sleep standing," his mate grunted warningly.

"Hush, Brother. There is something wondrous in my old stall! Something very small and white! It gleameth as with hoarfrost in the star's light. It hath the smell of lilies. It moveth. The star can stroke it with its long, pale tongues." He leaned longingly against the barrier which shut him away, until it creaked.

The little ass slipped his soft ears between his ox's bars and sniffed inquiringly. "Why, 'tis a child!" he whined with delight. "Children are lovely things. His small fingers will play with my mane and he will sing little songs to me as I bear him along. Look up, little Master. We will see great days together."

"There, that serveth thee right!" reproved the far ox as the woman made a quick motion toward the lusty little ass. "Thy black muzzle belongeth in thine own manger, Brother Ass."

"She did but brush it aside," the little gray beast breathed contentedly. "She is pleased that we know her son. No fear, Brother Ox. Her husband will not take his staff to us. She is gentle, this woman of mine. Her child, too, will love us."

But the ox had not drawn back. He knelt there, his broad forehead pressed against the bars, his wondering eyes fixed on the new life which was to shine over the whole broad earth with a brighter glory than that wondering star's.—John Breck, in the Detroit News.

GROWTH OF CHRISTMAS TREE

Abandoned Farms in Foothills of Green Mountains in Vermont Provide the Yuletide Sprouts.

SINCE five million Christmas trees are annually shipped out of Vermont, it is only natural to wonder where they all come from. They must come from farms—not farms operated to produce the Christmas tree crop, but abandoned farms, where the trees have planted and reared themselves.

These abandoned farms lie in high valleys in the foothills of the Green mountains. One may see sections covered by thirty-odd farms, once thriving settlements, but now all but two or three may be unoccupied. Such land, once under the plow is gradually coming back to forest. Along the fern-choked, faintly-traced furrows, young spruces come up and in the open sunshine take on a vivid green. And more than that—the symmetrical branches are a lively green clear to the ground.

Christmas trees cannot be cut in areas of spruce forest, because when they grow in dense clusters the under branches die for want of light, and hence the trees have no value as decorative Christmas trees.

Few, indeed, see the harvest. One or two lonely partridge hunters, perhaps, will see it, as it lies covered with the first early snow squalls in the mountains. But back in October, when the days have not lost all of the mellowness of autumn, a gang of twenty choppers will have been busily at work cutting the scattering young spruces and tying them with twine.

The cutting and handling is the easiest part of the harvest, for the trees must be hauled for miles to the railroad, and at this time of year the mountain roads are nothing more than frozen ruts and waterholes. Despite this fact, however, heavy two-horse wagons and even motor trucks, bristling with great criblike bodies, struggle slowly out, loaded high with the trees. Two horses are able to draw out at a load about seventy trees of average size.

At the chosen town on the railroad every disused spot is hired and a mountain of trees begins to grow, till eight thousand of them may be packed in a solid mass.—St. Nicholas.

Dante's Beautiful Imagery.

Dante believed that when Lucifer was cast out from heaven he made a deep pit as he fell in one side of the Earth (the pit of Hell, or the inferno), and on the other side a corresponding projection, the Hill of Purgatory. The poet's description of his arrival at the foot of this hill, after his long sojourn in the dark regions of Hell, is one of the most beautiful things in literature.

Love is the smallest thing in the world—if it's love of yourself.

Perhaps no normal boy up to the age of twelve ever attended school without a mental reservation in favor of remaining at home.

So live that when the collector comes around you can say, "Tell me how much it is and I'll give you a check."

If public speakers always had to prove everything they say, they'd be as eloquent as oysters.

Your bad traits came from your ancestors but your good ones are all due to yourself.

Nobody gets so indignant as a crook who happens to be accused of something he hasn't done.

Not Likely.

Urah had come to inform me, writes a Labrador Mission worker in Le Petit Nord, that he could not "cleave the splits," for his "stomach had capsize." I felt it incumbent on me to administer castor oil, thinking that that might be sufficient punishment for what I had reason to believe was only a ruse to escape work. It was hard for me to give the oil, but harder still to have the boy look up afterwards with a cherubic smile and ask if it were the same oil that Elisha gave the widow woman!—Youth's Companion.

Sad Mistake.

The family was away from town. Their house was in charge of a young maid. Occasionally an old woman came in to help with the cleaning. One day the maid opened the front door and was greeted by the angry woman. "I've been ringing and ringing and ringing," said the latter. "Why didn't you come?" "You kept 'n so reglar," said the maid. "I thought it was only the telephone."

Opening Game This Evening

In-Door Baseball Season Opens This Friday Night.

The East Jordan Indoor Baseball League has been organized, and will play the opening games of the schedule, Friday night, December 9, the first game beginning at 7:00.

The enthusiasm has grown as the idea advanced until eight teams have joined the League, viz.—The Firemen, Masons, Knights of Pythias, All Stars, Methodist Fellowship Club, Holy Name Society, Oddfellows and Presbyterian Fellowship Club.

The real purpose of the organization is to promote healthful exercise and good fellowship among the men of the city.

An entrance fee of $5.00 is required to enter the League. The schedule will consist of fifty-six games, or each team will every other team in the League two games. If this schedule is followed, the teams will end their season March 15. A small fee is to be charged at the door, more to prevent hangers-on and others simply coming to the building for curiosity. The fee is 15c; small enough so that none at all interested need be left out. Anyone attending these games will more than get their money's worth.

Friday evening the following teams take the floor, challenging the others to do their best: Methodist Fellowship Club will play the Presbyterian Fellowship Club the opening game. The Firemen then will cross bats with East Jordan's famous All Stars. The umpire of the evening will be one of East Jordan's former stars, Henry Bennett.

If you do not think it worth while seeing one of these games, let us mention a few of the stars of former days who will display their speed and ability on the diamond. Such stars as Joe Ekstrom, Ed Bogart, Roy Webster and Richard McDonald of the Methodist Fellowship Club; Presbyterian Fellowship Club announces such world renowned players as Andrew J. Sufferin, Howard Porter, Al Freiberg, Vernon Gibbs, A. F. Nesman and Robert Watson. Among the Firemen you find men who played the game 35 years ago. Ren. Bingham, Reid Brothers, Louis Ellis and Ed Lalonde. Among the All Stars we have Hector McKinnon and his brothers, Bill Kogomo and Richards of umpire fame.

Such a display of talent should invite the interest and investment of at least 15c on Friday evening. You will miss it if you miss it. Watch the umpire, batters, and all the others. Come to the High School Auditorium, Friday evening.

Schedule of Tuesday, December 13. Oddfellows against Masons. Methodist Fellowship against Holy Name Society. Schedule of Wednesday, Dec. 14. Firemen against All Stars. Knights of Pythias against Presbyterian Fellowship Club.

The Wide Spaces. The air was very clear and crystalline. The lighthouses on the ends of the twin piers, though some miles distant, seemed close at hand. White herring gulls, cruising against the blue, flashed white as the sails of a distant ship. A fresh breeze darkened the blue velvet surface of the water, tumbled the white foam hissing up the beach, blew forward over the dunes a fine hurrying mist of sand, and bore to Orde at last the refreshment of the wide spaces.—Stewart Edward White.

Optimism That Counts. The optimism that counts most is the optimism of strong hearts, willing hands and cool heads, rather than that of the noisy boys who shout "Amen" and "Hallelujah" and do no work.

Should Not Walk Too Soon.

A flat foot—that is, a foot almost without any instep—is not only a deformity, but it engenders an awkward walk. Sometimes, also, the foot leans more to the outer side or more to the inner side. Both these defects are generally caused by trying to make children walk too soon. Children should not be encouraged to walk until the bones of their little feet are strong enough to support the weight of their body.

The Girl a Horse and a Dog

By FRANCIS LYNDE

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Under his grandfather's will, Stanford Broughton, society idler, finds his share of the estate, valued at something like $40,000, lies in a "safe repository," latitude and longitude described, and that is all. It may be identified by the presence nearby of a brown-haired, blue-eyed girl, a piebald horse, and a dog with a split face, half black and half white. Stanford at first regards the bequest as a joke, but after consideration sets out to find his legacy.

CHAPTER II.—On his way to Denver, the city nearest the meridian described in his grandfather's will, Stanford hears from a fellow traveler a story having to do with a flooded mine.

CHAPTER III.—Thinking things over, he begins to imagine there may be something in his grandfather's will. Impressed by his idea, finally centering on the possibility of a mine, as a "safe repository." Recalling the narrative on the train, he ascertains that his fellow traveler was a mining engineer, Charles Bullerton. Bullerton refuses him information, but from other sources Broughton learns enough to make him proceed to Placerville, in the Red desert.

CHAPTER IV.—On the station platform at Atropia, just as the train pulls out, Stanford sees what appear to be the identical horse and dog described in his grandfather's will. Impressed, he blacks the train at the next stop, Angels. There he finds that Atropia was originally Placerville, the destination. Unable to secure a conveyance at once to take him to Placerville, Broughton secures a conveyance car and secures, having the impression on the town marshal, Beasley, that he is slightly demoted.

CHAPTER V.—Pursued, he abandons the car, which is wrecked, and escapes on foot. In the darkness, he is overtaken by a girl on horseback, and THE DOG. After he explains his presence, she invites him to her home, at the Old Cinnabar mine, to meet her father.

I couldn't be certain, but I thought she took a little firmer hold upon her bridle rein.

"Did you—did you come from Angels?" she asked in a sort of awed little voice.

"How did you guess it? I was, indeed—for a very short space of time this very day—a member of the Angels' band. And if you should ask me, I might say that I feel as though I had walked most of the way here from Angels. I—my car broke down, you know."

"Yes," she said. "I know—just as if she did. Then: 'I can at least tell you where you are. This is the southern slope of Cinnabar mountain. This road leads on down to Atropia, about three miles below.'"

"—Es; Atropia was the place I was trying to come at."

She stopped and appeared to be thinking about something. Then she said: "Really, I think you would better not go to Atropia. It's—well, it's quite a long walk."

"The walk doesn't specially appal me. I've done so much walking this afternoon that a few hundred miles, more or less, in addition wouldn't be worth mentioning. But for some other reasons—"

"Yes; for some other reasons," she said, repeating it right after me. Then: "—we—Daddy and I, might give you some supper and put you up for the night, if—if you wouldn't mind sleeping in the—in the loft."

My Lord! I hadn't so much as seen her face clearly yet, but I could have worshipped her! She had just come from Atropia, and she knew! Of course, she knew. That little dry-as-dust hamlet must have been sizzling for hours with the wire news of the escaped lunatic who had aligned with a stolen inspection car. And in the face of all that she was willing to take a chance on me! If she had only known that I would cheerfully risk sleeping in the cellar—to say nothing of a loft—rather than lose sight of her. . . . but she was going on a bit breathlessly: "And if only a short mile to our car in—and if you are very tired, I might let you ride Winkie."

"I shut my most delighted—to walk," I hastened to say.

"Straight on up the road, then," she directed.

We had traversed possibly half of the promised mile in plodding silence when we came to a place where the grade was so steep that it cut what was left of my sea-level wind to the small end of nothing.

"Stop a minute and get your breath," said the pony's rider; and when I had halted: "You are not used to these high altitudes, are you?"

"N-not so that any one would remark it," I gasped. "How high up are we?"

"About five thousand feet. The mine is exactly five thousand three hundred, I believe."

There it was, you see: THE MINE! "Pardon me," I blurted out; "but would you mind telling me if your eyes are blue?"

Her laugh was like a drink of cool spring water in the middle of a hot summer day; refreshing, you know, like that.

"I sup-pup-pose my eyes are blue; people tell me they are."

"Thank you," I returned. "There is only one other little matter and that can very well wait until we are—er—a bit better acquainted, you know. Shall we go on, now?"

She spoke to her pony and we went on. Ahead of us and diagonally up a steep slope I could see the dim shapes of a number of buildings, all dark. Then we came to a great dump, looking as if the mountain had at one time opened to pour out a cataract of broken stone.

Beyond the dump there was another building with a light in it; and as the dog ran ahead of us, barking, the figure of a man, silhouetted itself in the open doorway.

"Here we are and you are welcome to the Old Cinnabar," said my companion to me. Then she "hoo-hoo-ed" cheerily to the man in the doorway and slipped out of her saddle, letting her pony stand while she led me across to the lighted, log-bullt cabin.

CHAPTER VI.

The Old Cinnabar.

"Daddy, here is a man I found down at the head of Antelope gulch; he had lost his way, so I brought him home with me," was the simple manner in which she launched me; and I found myself shaking hands with an elderly man who looked as if he might be a farmer, or a miner, or something of that nature—you will know what I mean—flannel shirt, trousers tucked into boots, iron-gray whiskers all over his face, an eye as mild as a colt's dog's.

"You done plum' right, Jennie," he remarked; and then to me: "Come right on in, stranger, and be at home. If you don't see what you want, ask for it." After which he went to take care of the piebald pony.

The log cabin proved to be primitive only on the outside. The interior was a dream of cozy homeliness. A hanging lamp lighted it, and in its mild glow I had my first real look at the girl.

She wasn't beautiful in any show-girl meaning of the word; she was something far better—piquant, charming. A round little face, wind-tanned to a tint as delicious as the blush in the heart of an apple-blossom, a jolly bit of a nose, tip-tilted enough to bespeak a healthy sense of humor, a mouth neither too large nor too small upheld by a firm, round chin, and the chin upheld by an extra firm little jaw. As she had admitted, her eyes were blue—the blue that shades into violet—and they were well-set; wide apart and perfectly fearless; the kind of eyes fit to match the straight-lined brows that usually go with them.

I sat before the cheerful blaze, chuckling quietly to myself over the mad adventures of the day and their highly romantic, not to say miraculous, outcome. Beyond all manner of doubt I had stumbled upon the three tall-mans of Cousin Percy's cryptic letter. By the most marvelous of accidents I had discovered the girl, the horse and the dog; and, if the remainder of Percy's letter were to be taken at its face value, I should now be in touch with my legacy.

As to the character of that legacy, there could be no further question. Grandfather Jasper had left me a mine; and I was fully prepared to find it. What I might be able to make of it was a matter which could well be postponed to another day. Just as I reached this postponing conclusion, the girl's father came in, drew up a chair on the opposite side of the hearth, and began to make me welcome in a mild-mannered way, saying that they didn't have much company, and were always "master" glad to see a new face. He did not ask me any troublesome questions; and beyond telling me his name, which was Hiram Twombly, did not volunteer any information about himself or his daughter, nor did he explain how they came to be living in so much comparative comfort in such an out-of-the-way place.

A little later the girl returned to set the table, and presently we had supper. It was an amazingly good meal; crisp bacon, fried potatoes, hot biscuits and honey, and coffee—that was most delicious in spite of the condensed milk which was made to serve as cream.

After we left the table the blue-eyed maiden got housewifely busy, and the old man and I sat before the fire and smoked. I don't remember just how it was that we finally drifted around to automobiles and motor boats and such things, but we did, and may-be I may have bragged a bit about having driven and tinkered pretty nearly all the breeds of go-cart on land and water—as I really had.

"Know about machinery, do you?" said my hearth-mate; and then, with a humorous glint in his mild eyes: "Shouldn't wonder if you could be sort of a Godsend to me, if you wanted to. To-morrow, if you ain't in too big a hurry to be leavin' us, I'll get you to show me a few things that I don't know, 'long them lines, maybe."

Of course, I acquiesced, cheerfully. By and by the girl came in and sat down to knit, just as her grandmother might have done, and at that her father got up, and, lighting a lantern, went out. I was fairly perishing by this time to know a vast number of things, but hardly knew how to begin asking about them. So, as the old man clapped on his hat and left the cabin, I blew out the first foolish remark that came uppermost.

"All dressed up, and nowhere to go; isn't that about the way of it for you two up on this mountain?"

"Meaning Daddy, and now, particularly?" she said, smiling across at me. "He has gone to make his regular round of the mine buildings and cabins. Not that there is the slightest use of it; only he likes to feel that he is at least pretending to earn his pay."

"The mine?" I queried.

"Yes; this is the old Cinnabar, you know; and Daddy is the—well, I suppose you might call us the caretakers, though there isn't much to take care of. The mine has been shut down for a year and more."

"Is it a gold mine?"

"It was."

"Why the past tense?"

"Water," she said, briefly. "It's a drowned mine. That is why it was shut down."

Of course, this was exactly what I was expecting to hear, and yet this plain unvarnished confirmation of things gave me a damp and soggy feeling of despondency. Percy had wired, you remember, that his letter was no joke; but it seemed that it really was one, and that the joke—which was a mighty grim one—was on me.

"Can't the water be pumped out?" I asked.

"It seems not. I understand the company spent thousands of dollars trying to pump it out. It's—its rather pitiful."

"You mean the company's loss?"

"No; the company didn't lose anything. It was just one old man."

Now we were coming to the real meat of the thing and I looked my hand of cards over carefully to the end that I should not overplay it.

I've met him only once. He is a mining engineer and his name is Bullerton—Charles Bullerton."

"If I had reached up and got her pistol out of its holster over the mantel to bang it off into the fireplace she could hardly have been more startled."

"Ch-Charles Bullerton?" she stammered. "Is Mr. Bullerton here?"

"Not here, exactly, but he was in Atropia two days ago. Did you, by any chance, happen to know him?"

"Oh, yes; quite well."

"Then, naturally, you know best whether or not he is in my class—the crazy class, I mean."

Once more she let the blue eyes drop to her knitting, and if I wasn't mistaken the pretty lips were twisting themselves in a sort of wry smile.

"The last time I saw him he told me he was crazy," she admitted.

"Isn't this delightful!" I murmured.

"Bullerton is crazy and I'm crazy; perhaps we are all a bit crazy. Do you know, Miss Jennie, that I have come thousands of miles to find you?"

"To find me?"—the blue eyes were as round as the full moon.

"Even so; you, your horse and your dog. Would you—er—would you permit an exceedingly personal question? Remembering always that it is put by a man who has lost his wits? Have you a small brown mole on your left shoulder?"

She blushed very prettily; even the handsome mountain wind that wasn't brown enough to hide it.

"I think you are crazy—completely crazy."

"Certainly I am; there hasn't been the slightest doubt of it since—well, since about two weeks ago, when I started to hunt for you and a piebald dog and piebald horse."

There was silence before the fire for a long minute and I began to be afraid Daddy Hiram would come back before anything else happened. Then she said, with more curiosity than resentment, I thought:

"How did you know about the mole?"

"Then there is one?" I questioned eagerly.

"Y-yes."

"Glory be!" I chanted. "You don't know what a load you have lifted from whatever poor fragment of a mind I have left!"

Again she said: "I don't know what you mean."

"Just you wait," I begged. "I have lucid intervals at times; all crazy folks do, you know. When my next one comes along I'll explain as much as I can—which isn't nearly as much as you might think, at that."

It was just at this moment that her father returned, so she went on with her sock-knitting while we two men talked a bit and had a bed-time smoke. Pretty soon I began to get sleepy—a natural consequence of the strenuous day—and at the third yawn, which I was trying vainly to hide, Daddy Twombly lighted a candle and offered to show me my bunk.

This proved to be in the cabin loft, and the blue-eyed maiden had threatened, and the stair was just a common ladder. Father Hiram left me the candle, and I had blown the light out and rolled myself in the blankets before I realized that the loft must be directly over the room with the fireplace in it.

I was so workmanly tired that I fell asleep almost at once, and why I should have awakened before morning I don't know. But I did awaken, and though I don't know what time it was, it seemed as if I hadn't been asleep more than a few minutes. There were voices in the room beneath; Twombly and his daughter had not yet gone to bed, so it must have been reasonably early. I had no manner of right to listen in, but short of stuffing cotton in my ears there didn't seem to be any easy way of staying out—and I didn't have any cotton.

"I heard something today—something that you won't like to hear."

"But the heirs?" I suggested.

"We don't even know who they are. When Mr. Dudley went away he left a sealed envelope with Daddy. He said he might come back again, some time, but if he didn't, or couldn't, Daddy was to keep the envelope and give it to his—Mr. Dudley's—representative, whoever that might be."

Talk about plots thickening! This one was already as thick as molasses in the dead of winter!

"How were you to know this representative if one should come?" I edged in cautiously.

"I don't know," she replied simply. "I should suppose he would be able to identify himself in some way, though; shouldn't you? That is, if he ever comes."

"Sure; nothing easier, of course," I agreed; and then, since we seemed to have scraped the bottom of the Cinnabar ditch clean I switched off to something else.

"When we were coming up the road a while back, Miss Jennie, you gathered the impression that I was a crazy man, didn't you?"

"Didn't you try to give me that impression?" she countered.

"I fancy I didn't have to try very hard—inasmuch as you had been spending the afternoon in Atropia."

"She forced a queer little laugh and bent lower over her knitting."

"When you were in Atropia, did you see or hear anything of the other crazy man?"

"Is there another one?" she asked, a bit breathlessly.

"I was told so in Angels this afternoon."

"Is this other man a friend of yours?" she wanted to know.

"You could scarcely call him that;

I stuck my head out of the blankets and listened greedily.

Charles Bullerton is somewhere in this neighborhood. He was in Angels yesterday or the day before."

"Huh!" grunted Twombly; "I wonder what sort of a crooked deal he's tryin' to pull off now? Did he stay in Angels?"

"N-no. What I heard was that he had left there to go to Atropia."

"I don't want to see him come foolin' round you any more, whatsoever, Jennie girl. I keep still the other time, but that was afore I'd found out how everlastin' crooked he is."

Mr. Merchant You Need the Newspaper

The newspaper of today is the most powerful medium of advertising on earth. In the old days the merchant may have thought he was a benefactor and that he was contributing his bit "as a public-spirited citizen" when he carried a two-inch space in the village paper every day in the year and generally without change of copy. Possibly he was.

But that is changed now. A new order has arrived. People read advertisements. Many find their greatest interest in looking over the advertising pages to get news that will save them money and, take it from John D. Rockefeller, the way to save your dollars is first to save your pennies.

Advertisements today are right up to the minute. They are as fresh as the news of the world or the latest football score. Live merchants cater to live people and they know they must not alone be up to the minute, but they must be some distance ahead. They must anticipate the wants of their customers.

And they do. Turn to the advertisements in this paper, RIGHT NOW. Just read what the merchants are offering. Notice the invitations for you to do business with them. Notice how attractively the advertisements are set up and how inviting they are.

Do you know that some firms think so much of a style of type that they buy series of it just for their advertisement? You can never mistake B. Altman's advertisement. As soon as you see the open type you know it is Altman's advertisement without looking for the name. This is true with many firms.

Business men—that is the successful ones—know advertising pays big in returns. Unsuccessful men don't advertise because they are unsuccessful. That's the answer. Look over your town right now and pick out the big firms. They're the advertisers. Advertising is the tonic that puts dividends in the banks.

Everybody reads advertisements today. Mr. Merchant, is your advertisement in this newspaper?

"You needn't be afraid of me, Daddy," said the girl, and I could hear her low laugh. "You know you've always said I'd have to marry you, and Charles Bullerton hasn't enough to tempt even me."

I heard something that sounded like a deep-throated "Gosh!"—listen at that, will ye?" then: "If Charles Bullerton's been in 'Tropia he'll be bustin' in here, next, tryin' to get his claws into this Cinnabar carcass. And me, I hain't got no boss to stand behind me. That'll be a nice kettle o' fish!"

I stuck my head out of the blankets and listened greedily. It seemed to be very highly necessary that I should be made acquainted with the precise ingredients of that kettle of fish. But my luck had exhausted itself. In a few minutes there was a stir in the living-room below, and I heard Daddy Twombly shoveling up ashes to cover the fire. That meant goodnight; and though I continued to listen, there were no more sounds, and I was finally obliged to go to sleep, leaving the fish-kettle still unanalyzed.

MICH. GRAINS CLEAN UP AT INTERNATIONAL

Cleaning up practically all awards in the rye classes at the recent International Hay and Grain Show, held in connection with the Livestock Show, at Chicago, Michigan farmers repeated their successes of last year and brought added fame to crops of the State. Many high awards in wheat and other crops fell to Michigan exhibitors also, but the chief honors came in rye, with the famous Rosen responsible for every Wolverine prize.

Competing against all the United States and Canada, Michigan growers took 25 out of thirty awards in rye, including the first 8 places. Irving Beck of South Manitou Island won first with his entry of "South Manitou" Rosen. Ten out of 25 prizes in Soft-Red Winter Wheat also came back to Michigan. These places included 1, 2, 3, 5, and 6, with Arthur Jewett, of Mason, Ingham county, first.

Winning three first places in different events at the show, Mr. Jewett accomplished a feat which is considered unique by veteran exhibitors at the International. The fact that hundreds of samples from all parts of the United States and Canada were entered makes the achievement of the Michigan man quite remarkable. Jewett is a graduate of the Michigan Agricultural College in the class of 1919.

An educational exhibit shown at the Show by the crops department at M. A. C. was one of the features. The entries which won prizes in the competitive classes were gathered by the Michigan Crops Improvement Association. A. L. Bibbins, secretary of the Association and Extension specialist at the College, handled the preparation and exhibiting of the entries.

Who remembers when it was commonly rumored that the village flirt powdered her face, but since she was only a flirt and nothing worse the women did not go so far as to accuse her of using paint?

Back Hurt?

When the kidneys do not properly do their work or purify the blood stream, waste products and poisonous acids remain in the system and cause backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, sore muscles, swollen joints, stiffness, lame back and similar symptoms.

Foley Kidney Pills

regulate and restore the healthy, normal action of kidneys and bladder, bringing clean blood and better health, with freedom from aches and pains.

J. George Hudgin, Birmingham, Va., writes: "Last fall I was attacked with lumbago and suffered untold agony. I had a severe pain across my back and at times could not dress or undress myself. I was advised to take Foley Kidney Pills for my trouble. After taking them for a few days the pain in my back left me and I have not had any lumbago since that time, although that was months ago. I recommend Foley Kidney Pills to all who have lumbago."

Hite's Drug Store

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB BACKACHE AND LUMBAGO RIGHT OUT

Rub Pain and Stiffness away with a small bottle of old honest St. Jacobs Oil

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 35 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" in any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil seeps to the base of the spine, relieves the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD. Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up. Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly. It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

HOW "LIVER-EATIN'" JOHNSON GOT HIS NAME

Among the scouts who were with Gen. Nelson A. Miles, when that officer inflicted his crushing defeat upon the Sioux chief, Crazy Horse, at the battle of Wolf Mountain, Mont., in 1877 was one bearing the strange name of "Liver-Eatin'" Johnson. Johnson was a powerful Norwegian, weighing more than 300 pounds and standing six feet, three inches in his moccasins-clad feet.

Johnson had won his name in a gruesome war. Two stories about this are told, differing slightly in detail, but agreeing in the main facts. One tells how a party of Indians had raided a trading post on the Musselshell River, but were driven off with heavy loss. It is said that Johnson, in a spirit of devilish bravado, cut out the livers of several of the dead warriors and actually ate them.

The other story seeks to justify Johnson's act. A Cheyenne chief had raided and burned Johnson's camp while he was away on a trapping expedition. When he returned and saw the ruins, he swore that he would kill the Cheyenne and eat his liver. Later he made good his threat. Either account may be correct, so far as details are concerned. At any rate, he was ever afterward known as "Liver Eatin'" Johnson.

Stories of Great Scouts. By Elmo Scott Watson.

CUSTER'S CROW SCOUTS

There were six of them, these warriors of the Crow or Absaroke nation, who rode with Custer on his last march down the Little Big Horn river in Montana that day in June, 1876. When the leader of the Seventh cavalry asked General Terry for his best Crow scouts in the camp on the Little Rosebud creek, Terry told him he could have Curley, "White Man Runs Him," Hairy Moccasin, "Goes Ahead," Yellow Face and White Swan. The Crows were glad to serve with the famous Indian fighter and they guided him until they located the hostile camp on the Little Big Horn.

When Custer divided his command to attack the village, Yellow Face and White Swan were sent with Major Reno and Custer kept "White Man Runs Him," Curly, "Goes Ahead" and Hairy Moccasin with him. Yellow Face was killed while fighting with Reno, and White Swan was badly wounded, but finally recovered and lived until 1905.

Today Curley is the only survivor of the Custer Crow scouts and, according to his story, he is the last man who saw his commander alive. After crossing the ridge, Custer turned to "White Man Runs Him," Hairy Moccasin and "Goes Ahead," and said to them: "You have done your duty. You have led me to the enemy. My soldiers will do the fighting. You are to go now and save your lives."

The next morning the Crow scout appeared in General Terry's camp. He could not speak English and there was no interpreter. Curley took blades of grass, piled them all in a heap, and then, exclaiming "Pouf! Pouf!" in imitation of the sound of a gun, scattered them wide apart. By means of this he made the officer understand that Custer and all of his men had been killed.

Curley was a powerful Norwegian, weighing more than 300 pounds and standing six feet, three inches in his moccasins-clad feet. He had a great shock of golden hair of which he was very proud—so much so, that he refused to wear a hat, and when he went into battle with this golden mane in the wind, he looked like an ancient Norse viking.

Paul A. Martin, state commander of the American Legion, states that his organization plans for itself the "greatest program ever undertaken by any soldier organization" to see that every ex-soldier in Michigan who has a valid claim against the federal government, shall receive his due within a year.

DECLARES FRANCE FIGHTS FOR WORLD

BIAND SAYS PEACE OF ALL NATIONS THREATENED IF ARMY IS REDUCED.

FORMER GERMANY LIES IN WAIT

Old Monarchists Still Plotting for Revenge And Would Overthrow Democratic Government.

New York.—Disarmament of France would end world peace and would be a temptation for imperialistic Germany to come back into power, Premier Aristide Briand declared in a farewell message to the American people, delivered before the Lotus club of this city.

"France, he said, wanted peace and wanted to live on amicable terms with a democratic Germany. "But the former Germany has not disappeared," he asserted. "She is still lying in wait, still plotting, still trying to revive hopes of revenge. She is still keeping an army in certain form. How could you expect France to disarm in such a situation? If France was unable to defend herself, democratic Germany would be overthrown and the old imperialistic Germany would come back into power. If she weakened herself, it would end the peace of the world—France has not the right to desert the cause of democracy and peace."

Hopes for Better Germany.

"France has been fighting not for her security alone," he added, "but she has been fighting in the service of the whole civilized world. France has no right to desert its own cause or the cause of peace. What she wishes to see is a Germany with which she can maintain noble relations. She is only too anxious to have her voice heard on the other side of the frontier."

"France is a nation that loves peace and hates war," he continued, "and if there is one nation that wishes to have war erased forever from the face of the world. I have a right to say that that is my country. I have told you, gentlemen, and I have told it at Washington, and am glad to repeat it here, that you will never see France provoke another war. France has an army—if she has an army it is because she is obliged to have one to defend her life, her independence, her liberty and her dignity. France has an army which is ready to serve the cause of the world by protecting it against disorder and anarchy in whatever form they may present themselves."

Can You Solve This Puzzle?

Here is a puzzle that everybody should try. The other night at the "Movies" the operator wanted to try a new "stunt," so he rearranged the names of some of the famous actors and actresses and threw them on the screen like you see in the picture. Everybody had "loads" of fun figuring out the correct names. See if you can do it yourself. No. 1 is Dorothy Dalton. If you can solve them all you can win $1,000 or a Hupmobile.

110 Points Will Win First Prize. For each name you can arrange correctly you will receive five points of fifty points if you solve them all. You can earn 55 more points by qualifying your answer. That is, by proving that you have shown a copy of The St. Paul Daily News to five people. The final 25 points will be awarded by the judges, who will be three well-known St. Paul business men.

IT COSTS YOU NOTHING TO TRY. You do not have to subscribe to The St. Paul Daily News nor spend a cent of your own money to win a prize. We have given away a great many wonderful things and you can be the next winner if you send in your solution to this puzzle at once. Be sure your own name and address is on your solution to a puzzle and don't forget—YOU CAN WIN. Get the family together, solve the puzzle and mail your answer NOW.

Nitrates From Explosives.

A plant has been established near Turin, Italy, for the transformation of explosives into nitrates for agricultural uses. These explosives are to be gathered from the battlefields to the value of 1,000,000 lire, and their products combined with other materials for the production of fertilizers. The factory now employs 250 men and is expected to produce 80,000 quintals of fertilizers, containing 15 per cent azote, within a short time, according to a report of Consul Dana C. Sycks.

Blushes Worth Money.

Are you one of those unfortunate people who get very red on occasion—particularly when it makes it all the more embarrassing? But in the case of women, at least, there is an alleviating circumstance. In some countries a blush is worth good money. In the Circassian slave market a young woman who has the gift of blushing fetches a much higher price than the others. So there is one part of the world at least where this is an asset and not a liability.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Get less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the more you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive, makes a delightful after-dinner drink, water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications. A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

JAPAN TALKS OF TRIPLE ALLIANCE

DELEGATE FAVORS ANGLO-JAPANESE-U. S. UNDERSTANDING ON PROBLEMS IN EAST.

WOULD EFFACE PRESENT PACT

But Continue Four Existing Agreements, Recognizing Japan's Interests in China.

Washington—Interest was caused in Japanese circles in connection with Japan's reported desire to see come into existence a triple understanding between Japan, the United States and Great Britain, if the Anglo-Japanese alliance is to be discontinued, by the issuance of a statement by Representative Kotaro Mochizuki, leader of the Japanese opposition, declaring that in view of the probable success of the Washington conference, there was no need of renewing the Alliance.

The statement said, in part: "Let the alliance be effaced and let us set up in its place an understanding between Great Britain, the United States and Japan on Far Eastern and Pacific problems."

"An understanding—in no matter what form expressed—reaffirming and continuing in effect the provisions of four agreements already existing, namely, the gentleman's agreement of 1908 concerning China, the Japanese-American arbitration treaty of 1908 referring controversies to The Hague tribunal, provided they have not been bearing on vital interests and the independence, or prestige, of the two powers, and the Ishihara-Lansing agreement of 1917, in which the interests of Japan in China were recognized, could very well take the place of the outworn Anglo-Japanese alliance."

Representative Mochizuki declared the chief object of the Anglo-Japanese alliance was to prevent Russian aggrandizement towards India, China, Korea and the Pacific. Now that Russia was no longer a cause of anxiety and the Washington conference was about to settle the question of naval burdens and questions pertaining to the Far East, there seemed to him no longer need of the alliance.

Viscount Kato, president of the Kenseikai, or Opposition party, of which Mr. Mochizuki is a leader, was the Japanese ambassador at London when the British alliance was last renewed.

Aid Outlawing of Submarine.

Washington—With the naval ratio situation at a temporary stalemate, an intimation comes from the highest British quarter that Great Britain will ask the arms conference to outlaw the submarine.

Four Killed When Planes Collide.

Lawton, Okla.—Four Army airmen were burned to death when two airplanes collided and crashed to the ground near here. The dead are: Capt. Loomis, Lieut. J. T. Lanfall, Pvt. Hubbard and Pvt. B. A. Smith, all of Pot Field. The gasoline tanks exploded as the planes crashed and fell enveloped in flames. Hundreds of persons from Fort Sill nearby stood looking helplessly on while the four unfortunate occupants of the two machines were burned to death.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

ALONG THE SHORE.

THE word "impossible" has no place in the brave man's vocabulary. This statement applies with equal force and certainty to brave women; to brave boys and girls who, in their faith and persistency adhere firmly to right purposes and keep ever pressing forward, refusing always to admit defeat.

If it were not for these courageous people, the world would soon drift into a state of deplorable ignorance, helplessness and poverty.

How strong and capable is the adroitly sailed ship on the sea of life, with her white canvas bulging as she booms on to the distant haven where hordes of expectant humans await her arrival!

If in adverse winds and pounding storms the navigator should throw up his hands and cry "impossible," the ship and her precious cargo would be lost.

There is entrusted to you by the Creator full command of the wonderful ship that carries your soul, which at the end of life's voyage you are expected to bring safely into the harbor.

You must not shrink this great responsibility. You must not cry "impossible," lose heart or enthusiasm.

You must perform your whole duty with unflinching precision, whether sailing under clear skies or beneath domes blurred with leaden clouds driven by howling gales.

The storms are meant to test your skill and patience; to bring out your fine qualities; to enable you to say with the strong and the true that nothing is "impossible" for him or her who holds fast to faith.

In a world where most of us sail in circles, unmindful of our duties, we need every day to be reminded of what lies beyond—the treacherous rocks that we must shun; the tempests of our own making that must be avoided and the whirlpools of the evil one.

Many souls have gone down on the jagged reefs of bad habits; many others have been ruthlessly swept overboard by sudden whirlwinds of temper or lashed to pieces by storming tongues.

All along the shore of adventure from adolescence to old age, the lone beaches are strewn with wrecks of humans who never learned to sail the Soul's Ship, who never sought the peaceful harbor because they stubbornly refused to recognize "the possibility of writing on the eternal skies the record of a heroic life."

Some perfect day I shall not need To bend my brow for baffling tasks; Some perfect day my soul shall read The meaning hid 'neath clouding masks; Some perfect day I shall attain The dim ideal my spirit asks.

WHAT TO EAT.

THE following are some of the many good old-fashioned dishes that most of us enjoy:

Oyster Stew.
Put a pint of oysters in a cotander and pour over them cold water to rise, then pick out the oysters with the fingers to see that there are no bits of shell. Heat three cupfuls of milk over hot water; strain into it the oyster liquor and add three tablespoonfuls of butter. Cook the oysters until they are plump and the edges curl; add the hot milk, boil up and serve at once.

English Pastry.
Cut into small pieces a pound of round steak; cut in slices a pint of potatoes; slice three onions. Make a rich biscuit dough; roll out and line a deep pie plate; put in a layer of the diced uncooked meat, a sprinkling of salt and pepper, a layer of potatoes and onions. Cover with a crust as for pie, leaving a small opening for the steam to escape. Bake slowly until the crust is well done. Wrap in a cloth and steam for ten minutes before serving. This meat pie is good hot or cold.

Meat Balls
Season two cupfuls of chopped meat with salt, pepper, a pinch of clove and a little minced onion, a cupful of oatmeal or other cooked cereal; add one egg and shape into cakes. Brown in butter or lard and butter mixed. Serve garnished with sprigs of parsley.

Custard Pie.
Prepare a rich crust and line a deep pie plate. For the filling take one quart cupful of sugar, two eggs well beaten, a pint of milk and nutmeg to season. Just before going into the oven sprinkle with a half-cupful or more of chopped black walnut-meats. Bake as usual. The nuts will form a nice brown crust on top of the pie.

Indian as Tobaccoist Sign.

The selection of the Indian as a sign by tobaccoists in the early years following the introduction of the "weed" into Europe, was undoubtedly due to the fact that it was generally known that tobacco had first been found in use among the Indian tribes of the new world. Its use was first reported to Christopher Columbus in November, 1492, by a party sent out by him to explore the island of Cuba. The plant itself, however, was not brought to Europe until 1568, when Francisco Fernandez, a physician sent by Philip II, of Spain, to investigate the products of Mexico, brought it with him on his return home.

Valuable Author of Famous Hymn.

The hymn, "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" was written by one of the most interesting and eccentric figures of early Methodism, Robert Robinson, a London hair-dresser's apprentice, early fell under the influence of the mighty Whitefield; became converted at twenty, and is credited with being the author of "Come, Thou Fount," at twenty-two.

Immense Power of Lightning.

Near New York city a huge oak on a hillside was torn into splinters by a bolt of lightning and some electrical engineering experts have been studying the size of the tree, the resistance it gave and the volume of electrical force to be required for its destruction. They agree there was not less than 160,000-horse power in the bolt that hit it.

Insects Cause Small Loss.

It is said insects cause a loss of $1,500,000,000 annually in the United States, but that's a mere bagatelle compared with the loss caused by human stupidity and indolence.—Hanson Post.

SULPHUR SOOTHES UGLY, ITCHING

The First Application Makes It Cool and Comfortable

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.
This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, never fails to quickly subdue itching, even of very eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.

A confirmed bachelor thinks married life is a hurried life.

A bright man before marriage generally has a domestic finish afterward. There are few better comedians than a little man who has just been equipped with an oversize job.

It used to be fishermen who were the champion liars, but now it's the men who tell how many miles they get out of a gallon of gasoline.
