Partnership Is Dissolved

R. G. Watson Succeeds Bamber & Watson, Furniture Dealers.

The partnership existing between Vern Bamber and R. G. Watson, under the firm name of Bamber & Watson, was dissolved by mutual consent the first part of this month Mr. Bamber retiring in favor of R. G. Watson, who will continue East Jordan's Furniture Store and Undertaking parlors under his own name.

Messrs. Bamber & Watson succeeded C. H. Whittington in the store here about two years ago and have continued to make the establishment the success that it was. They have made many friends in both the business and social field of our community.

Several farewell parties were tendered Mr. and Mrs. Bamber, and they left Saturday for Elmira for a brief visit with friends. From there they will probably go to St. Louis, Mich. At present Mr. Bamber is undecided as to what line of business he will take up.

MOONSHINE AT BOYNE FALLS

Last Wednesday there was a strike at Cobb & Mitchell's Camp No. 47, and a number of the men went to Boyne Falls. Amongst the men were Adolph Martinkus, Benny Yerks and Peter Rings.

Officers at the Falls concluded the three men mentioned had consumed too much moonshine and started to make an arrest but the suspected men were to fleet of foot for the officers, with the exception of Adolph, who was captured and locked up in the village jail.

Thursday, Adolph was before Justice Stacks and pleaded guilty to being drunk. He told where he got his booze and gave all the particulars. At the conclusion of his testimony he was asked if he had any friends present, it was then that Benny spoke up declaring himself a friend of the prisoner. He was called to the stand and, not having heard Adolph's testimony, emphatically denied that his friend was drunk or that he had anything to do with it. Then, Peter, the avowed friend of the two was brought forward and searched and a perfectly lovely bottle of moonshine was discovered, after which Justice Stacks imposed sentences as follows—Adolph ten dollars and costs and thirty days in the county jail; Benny and Peter, each five dollars and costs and ten days in the county jail. Sheriff Weaver took his prisoners home with him.—Boyne Citizen.

ROAD BUILDING GROWN TO BIG NATIONAL INDUSTRY

Road building is one of the Nation's largest industries, according to statistics compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, and surpasses such great industries as the manufacture of steel and iron as well as the production, sale, and repair of automobiles. In December, 1920, less than 600,000 men were employed in the steel and iron industry. It is estimated that last year something like 750,000 men were engaged in making, selling, and repairing automobiles. As compared with this an army of approximately 1,000,000 men labored last year throughout the road-construction season in building and repairing the country's highways.

Fifty million tons of stone and gravel will be required by the 28,000 miles of Federal-aid roads either completed or under construction in the United States at the end of the present fiscal year, according to the estimates of the Bureau of Public Roads. Some idea of the quantity is given by the fact that it is equal to a million carloads. If the material were piled in one place in the form of a cube it would be approximately 1,000 feet in each direction, or nearly twice as high as the Washington Monument.

LITTLE DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR FARMER PASSES AWAY.

Roberta Louise, nine-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Farmer, passed away at the home of her parents, Saturday afternoon, Feb'y 11th, following a very brief illness from meningitis. The little one suffered a bad cold about a month previous, but had recovered and seemed to be in good health. The afternoon of the 10th she became ill and a physician summoned. She passed away within 24 hours of the dread disease. The little one leaves her parents, one brother, Robert, and one sister, Irene, to mourn her loss.

OBITUARY—GLEN SMITH

Glen Marshall Smith, whose sudden death in a railroad accident was reported in these columns last week, was born at Ellsworth, Antrim county, July 29th, 1897, his parents being Charles and Nancy Smith. On Oct. 26th, 1917, he was united in marriage to Miss Lela Lohr at Charlevoix. They made their home in East Jordan after the wedding and one child was born to them, Norma, aged three years.

Mr. Smith passed away Feb'y 6th, from effects of an accident while brakeman on the E. J. & S. R. R.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, Feb'y 9th, from the Methodist church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Marshall. Interment at Sunset Hill.

SOUTH WANTS DUTIES DOUBLED

From the South comes an insistent demand for a doubling of the import duties on vegetable oils, particularly cotton seed oil, coconut oil, soy bean oil, and peanut oil. The Southerners contend that vegetable oils can be produced so cheaply in certain Pacific Islands and in China that it is impossible for the American producer to continue successful competition. This is quite likely true. What the Southerner is asking for is not a "tariff for revenue only" but a tariff for protective purposes.

The Democratic platform of 1920 declared adherence to the "traditional policy" of the Democratic party, which policy declares that Congress has no constitutional right to impose an import duty for protection purposes. The Republican platform declared for a return to the Republican protection policy. The Republicans won at the polls, but without the help of a single Southern state. The South looks to the Republicans to enact a protective tariff law, from which it gets its share of benefits, but it never helps put the Republican party in power.

THE INDIAN DRUM
by William MacHarg and Edwin Balmer
Illustrations by Irwin Myers

NEAR the northern end of Lake Michigan, where ore-carriers and wheat-laden steel freighters from Lake Superior push out from the Straits of Mackinac and dispute the island divided channel with white and gold, electric lighted, wireless equipped passenger steamers bound for Detroit and other cities, there is a cove of pine and hemlock back from the shingly beach. From this cove—dark, blue, primeval, silent at most times as when the Great Manitou ruled his inland waters—there comes during storms a sound like the booming of an Indian drum. This drum beats, so tradition has long maintained, whenever the lake takes a life.

Men say they have heard and counted the beatings to the exact number of crew and passengers lost in various sinkings of ships. Once only, it is said, has the drum counted wrong.

This belief in the drum and a case in which the beatings failed to tally with the records of men, forms the basis for an absolutely fascinating story of mystery, to be printed as a serial in these columns.

BEAR CREEK MAY PAY COURT COSTS

An echo of the seven-year-old Bear Creek township-Bay View road controversy reverberated through the peaceful hills of Bear Creek township this week, when Sheriff Purple sent out notices to nineteen residents of that subdivision of the county that they were held responsible for the costs of the case, which was won by the Bay View board.

In 1914, when the difference arose, a petition headed by John Felly and signed by others, was circulated, which bound the signers to pay the costs, in case their contentions were not upheld. The case went to the Supreme Court and was decided in favor of the Bay View Board some time ago.

Recently Sheriff Purple received a double execution from the Supreme court and the circuit court directing him forthwith to collect the amount of the costs, and a meeting of the signers of the guarantee will be held Saturday, Feb. 18, at the court house at 2 p. m., which will be attended by the township board.

At that time action will be taken which will determine whether the amount will be paid by the individuals or by the township as a unit.—Petoskey News.

STATE FARMERS FORM SOILS ASSOCIATION

An Association of Michigan Farmers interested in soil study and improvement work was launched during the recent Farmers Week at the Michigan Agricultural College. The organization will be conducted along the same general lines as other cooperative farmers' associations in the state, the aim being to bring about better methods of handling Michigan farm soils.

Hon. Jason Woodman, member of the State Board of Agriculture, has been elected president of the newly organized group and will preside over its activities during the coming year.

"There are to be no dues for membership in the soils association," says Dr. M. M. McCool, professor of soils at M. A. C., who is one of the backers of the new organization. "Every farmer in the state who is interested in soils matters is eligible for membership. The object of the association will be to stimulate greater interest in permanent, profitable systems of soil management among Michigan farmers. Material bearing on results of cooperative test projects, recent developments in soils methods, etc., will be sent out to the membership."

Veterans Paid 27 Million

135,000 Michigan World War Soldiers Get Bonuses.

Michigan has now paid in bonuses to its ex-service men more than $27,000,000 of the $30,000,000 authorized in bonded indebtedness for that purpose by constitutional amendment.

The money paid to date has been received by 135,000 men. The balance of the bonus fund as shown by the auditor general's books this week, and which is available to continue bonus payments, was $2,680,000.

Just as rapidly as applications are approved by the bonus division of the adjutant general's department they are now being paid by the auditor general. About 3000 bonus claims are paid each week.

The work of disposing of the 155,000 bonus applications has been under the direction of Captain Russell S. Deau.

Delays in payment of a large number of officers' claims and others which were filed late have been due to the fact that the federal government was unable to provide the war department's service records on them, as it did on the enlisted men. In all such cases transcripts of the applications had to be sent to Washington and there checked with the war records by clerks provided by the state.

RURAL MAIL PATRONS CAN FACILITATE DELIVERY OF MAIL

By direction of the Post Office Department, postmasters throughout the country have recently made an inspection of the rural routes from their offices. The purpose was that they might ascertain by personal observation and make report whether the roads used were in good condition for travel, the routes well arranged, boxes properly erected, so as to be easily reached by the carriers without obstructing travel, the carriers serving their routes as officially prescribed, the schedule observed, and whether the families served were satisfied with the service rendered, or there were improvements which could be suggested in the interest of the patrons or the Department.

It became necessary, in connection with the inspections, to request many patrons to take action to the end that their boxes might conform to the regulations as to kind, condition, location, or height, and in having the name of the owner plainly printed on them. Also, to bring to the attention of the road overseers or other responsible persons the need for improvement in roads or repair or construction of culverts or bridges.

It is the desire of the Department, and its purpose, to provide adequate and convenient service, so far as may be possible, to all persons residing in rural communities, but this end can not be attained without the full cooperation of the patrons in the efforts of postmasters and carriers to serve them promptly, regularly and satisfactorily.

Whatever facilitates the work of the carrier is of direct benefit to the patrons, for the greater the ease and speed with which a carrier may cover his route, the earlier and better the service afforded.

So, patrons of rural delivery can greatly help themselves by helping their carrier, seeing to it that roads are kept in good condition and promptly opened after storms, by keeping the approaches to their boxes clear, and by promptly and willingly correcting any irregularities affecting their boxes when asked to do so.

Another great assistance that patrons can render carriers is by keeping themselves supplied with and using stamps instead of placing unstamped mail, with money for the purchase of the required postage, in the boxes. This delays the carrier and sometimes imposes a great hardship on him, especially in cold or stormy weather. If preferred, stamped envelopes, either printed or plain may be obtained from the carrier, are of good quality, and cost but little more than the value of the stamps upon them, and are redeemable at the value of the stamps if damaged, but returned in a practically whole condition. If necessary to place money in a box, it should be put in a coin-holding receptacle or be properly wrapped so as to be easily picked up by the carrier.

Money for the purchase of money orders should not be left in the boxes, but should be handed to the carrier and a receipt obtained.

EAST JORDAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

We wish to correct the mistake which occurred in the "Paper" last week. It was announced that Mrs. Walters gave the pictures for the seventh grade Geography class instead of Mrs. Waterman.

The Seventh grade had a fine banquet and party Thursday evening. Miss Messelink made the cocoa for 80 people and Messrs. Snellenberger and Nesman supervised the basket ball games. An enjoyable evening was spent by all.

February the 14th the Junior High room had a Valentine party the last thirty minutes of school. They had a Valentine box and each received several Valentines, making it a very enjoyable party.

All aboard for the annual School Fair. It will be held on Saturday, March 11, afternoon and evening. It will be in charge of the Athletic Association and the Junior Class, and a good time is assured for all. See later announcements.

The 9th grade Literary Live-Wire Club have decided to have their Club meetings only twice a month, on the second and last Fridays of the school month. At that time there will be 3 book reviews given. For the club work for Feb. 24th those who will give book reviews are: Anita Kile, Vivian Kaiser and Kenneth Love.

For classic work the 9th grade are reading Ivanhoe. They are also spending some time having spelling lessons.

A woman doesn't "make a fool of a man" unless he already has made one of himself.

For some reason, neither a woman nor a child can tell a lie more convincingly than they can tell the truth.

The Surprised Mr. C!
How Mrs. C. pleased his appetite and her purse

MRS. C.—a clever young housekeeper of Flint, Michigan, related the following amusing incident:

Mr. C. rather boasted of his epicurean tastes. Extravagant by nature, he had the notion that a fine food was necessarily an expensive food. Now Mr. C.'s spendthrift appetite continually exhausted Mrs. C.'s slender purse.

But he admits it now—the laugh is on him.

Mrs. C. discovered this new bread spread sold at about half the cost of the one she was accustomed to using. Inevitably, it was introduced to Mr. C. He remarked—"Well this certainly has a fine fresh flavor. Where did you get it?"

Yes, Brednut will please the most exacting husband. And as for children—just watch, yours go for it.

It's made from pasteurized milk and rich tropical nuts

Thank generous Nature for Brednut. In far off tropical islands she grows a rich nut—with a white meat. These we bring to America. We secure pasteurized milk from healthy cows. Blended together in spotless surroundings under careful supervision these ingredients make Brednut—the new fresh flavored spread for bread.

You'll find Brednut is a real treat. Try it today. When your grocer delivers your first pound, notice how white Brednut is—so white you can actually see its purity.

You can quickly color Brednut to a rich golden yellow with the wholesome vegetable material which your grocer will give you.

SAYS TERRORISM RULES ARMY

Major Risks Court Martial by Urging Change in System.

Washington—Risking court martial for insubordination, a junior officer of the regular army has gone over the heads of superiors to address a communication to President Harding, alleging "that Prussianism," favoritism and inefficiency rules in the army and that a powerful clique of senior officers spread terror among junior officers of the service.

The letter is signed by Major Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, cavalry, U. S. A., and was received at the White House Saturday night. In it, Major Wheeler-Nicholson asks the president to investigate the situation among the officer personnel of the regular army and institute reforms that will have the support of former officers of the regular army as well as of the reserve corps and National Guard.

THE REDBIRD'S COLOR

ONCE upon a time, the redbird, or Summer Tanager, was not red all over, as he is now, but, like his little wife, the upper parts of his little body were yellowish-olive green and the underneath parts of the orange-yellow shade.

One day while he was singing in an orange grove and thinking of beautiful things, which, of course, made his song very sweet, he wondered if he had a red coat if the picture would not be more beautiful.

So away he went to the dell where the fairies reveled at night, and when the Queen drove over the mossy carpet he flew to her pearl carriage and alighted on the back of it.

He almost tipped it over, for he forgot he was much heavier than the Queen and her little carriage together, but, of course, the Queen forgave him because he felt so badly about it.

Then he told the Queen about his plan and that he wished to have a red coat of feathers, because they would look so beautiful in the orange grove with the golden fruit and green leaves and the blossoms.

"But how about your little mate?"

asked the Queen. "It will not be safe for her to wear a red dress when she has the nest and the babies to care for. She should not be too easily seen by those who are not kind of birds."

Mr. Redbird had not thought about that, so off he flew to ask his wife what it was best to do.

The next night he returned to the dell with his little mate, who told the Queen she would continue to wear her modest dress and care for the nest and her babies.

So the Queen called for the tinting fairy and let Mr. Redbird select the color he wished to have for his coat, and while the fairies danced around him and his little wife, the Queen changed his feathers to red, wings and tail and body.

"Oh, isn't he beautiful!" said his little wife. "I am proud of you, my dear; I shall never tire of looking at you."

They then thanked the Queen and flew away, and while Mr. Redbird did not often visit his mate while she was on the nest because of his red coat, he did not forget how unselfish she was and did not make a fuss because she could not have her dress changed to the color of his coat.

So while she cared for the eggs, he carried to her sometimes a choice worm, or blossom or berry, and always, where she could hear him, he sang to her his very sweetest song.

And that is how the Redbird got his red coat, and just as he did long ago, all the Redbirds today sing to their mates and carry choice morsels to them because the dear little mother bird of 25,000 ago was willing to wear her mate's dress, so she could take care of the nest and the birdlings while her mate wears the red coat that every one admires.

NO REWARD FOR LOYALTY

What can a man hope for who enters the government service as a career? Let us look at some actual cases. Here is the story of one as told by E. J. Ayers, chief clerk, Department of the Interior. He cites it as a case similar to that of many others in his department, and says there are many others who are in worse circumstances:

"The records of our department show that he entered the service as a laborer at $660 a year, after a service of three and a half years in the United States navy as a first-class fireman, with an honorable discharge. He has been with us for more than thirty-three years, and is sixty-six years old, and has given more than half his life to the service of the government.

"He owns a little property three miles beyond the Chesapeake Junction, and he gets up early in the morning, before daylight, and comes in to work and goes out after dark at night. Today he is getting $840 a year. He has raised a family of nine children—three of whom are now dead—eight boys and one daughter. His elder sons are married and have established homes of their own. Two of his sons were in the military service in France, and his daughter, twelve years old, lives with her grandmother, where he is supporting, educating and clothing her.

"He is a white man, a very intelligent man, eminently qualified for this particular line of work. His wife is dead. He is his own housekeeper and he does the cooking and the washing and the ironing.

"His home was established in its present location because it was not thought practicable to raise a family in the district, and he bought a piece of property in Prince George's county three miles beyond the railroad terminal, which distance, as I said, he walks twice a day, leaving in the morning most of the year before daylight, and returning home by dark. This small place consists of a shack and a few acres of land on which he has a mortgage of $1,000, and you can judge that he enjoys no conveniences other than the small house, which protects him from the elements.

"The house is divided into four rooms, the partitions being of paper tacked to the framework, there being no laths or plaster.

"The small stove standing in the center of the room he has used for more than twenty years, and the pot on the stove contains his Sunday dinner, which he has prepared for himself, consisting of white navy beans and fatback. These beans are now costing him twenty-five to thirty cents a quart, and the fatback costs him forty cents a pound. It could have been purchased a few years ago for seventeen cents a pound, and the beans for ten cents. He does not get any fresh meat because he cannot afford to buy it.

"To my mind it seems a pity that the United States government should employ men of that type, or any other type for that matter, and not give them enough to live on decently. It is particularly a pity in this case because he is somewhat superior to many of the employees. He has stayed with us as a matter of faithfulness to the government, and has stayed with us when he could make more in one week outside of the government than we pay him for one month.

"Others have left us, but instances of that kind have been very few. At one time I had in our auditorium our employees and I made an appeal to them to stand by us during the war period, and there were more than 300 of them present, and they all of one accord assured us that they would stand by us and would give us the benefit of their labor in our department during the war period, notwithstanding the fact that the price for labor outside was a great deal more."

"This curious pride in their work and loyalty to the government and the government service was a thing that cropped up in the most unexpected places.

"As one employee put it: 'I think you will find that every service seems to be quite proud of its work. I know you will find it in our service as far as compensation and such as that are concerned. The pay in this office is small, but that element, that feeling in a man's mind that he is really helping to accomplish good work and helping this government to function well, is really part of it. I find in all my talks with employees that they really feel proud of their work, and that pride is really what gets things done. I think that is true everywhere in the whole service, and particularly throughout the executive departments.'

"That is curiously true, and it is one of the reasons, possibly the chief reason, why men stay on in the department year after year at a low rate of pay and not much possibility of promotion.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name, its history, meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

BELINDA.

THE quaint and charming name of Belinda is derived from the Italian. Though most frequently applied in modern fiction to the sweetest of the sex, and pretty coquettes, Belinda means "a serpent." So beware, young men, of the baby doll who answers to the cunning, old-fashioned name!

How Belinda came to be evolved is not clear to etymologists. She simply appeared in Italy and is believed to have had her origin in the fashionable craze for names ending in "a" which swept Europe in Queen Anne's Augustan age. The first Belinda recorded in history was the wife of Orlando, a debut sufficiently prominent to spread the name far and wide. But greater vogue was to be hers, and when Pope chose Belinda for his heroine of "The Rape of the Lock" her permanence was assured.

In those days it needed only a famous author to immortalize a feminine name by putting her in a book and all the fashionable maids of the country adopted her for their own, just as today a screen favorite's culture, and costumes are copied by adoring flappers.

Belinda flourished in England and Italy, but her popularity was negligible in France, and Germany refused her completely. Spain took her from Italy, but, despite the vogue ending, she was a bit too harsh for Spanish ears. America welcomed her wholeheartedly, and she flourishes here today, both actually and in fiction.

Belinda's gem is the cat's-eye. It is a talisman against evil and disease and has a mysterious magnetic power which renders its wearer irresistible to those whom she wishes to attract. Friday is her lucky day and 7 her lucky number.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. LURIE

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"AUDIENCE" AND "SPECTATORS."

THESE two words are often used incorrectly or interchangeably, even by some writers and speakers who are careful otherwise in the use of words. Perhaps the confusion is due to the fact that an elementary knowledge of Latin is needed for the making of the distinction between the two words. "Audience" means an assemblage of persons gathered to hear something, since the word is derived from the Latin verb "audire" which means to hear. "Spectators" are those who have come together to see something; the word comes from the Latin "spectare," which means to see, to observe.

It is correct, therefore, to speak of the audience at a concert, and of the spectators at a horse race. An incorrect use of the word "audience" is found in the following sentence: "The audience held its breath while the aviator spun round in the air."

FOR THE DANCE ESCORT

If it is not seemly, do it not!—Marcus Aurelius.

JUST because a young woman has accepted your company as escort to a dance is no reason to believe that she wishes to give you any more dances than she does to any of the other young men whom she knows who are present. But it is the escort's duty to see that the young woman has a reasonable number of dances taken, and this result he achieves, even when she is not one of the most popular of the young women present, by introducing her to other young men.

Usually the escort requests the young woman he escorts for her supper dance—if there be one—at the beginning of the evening; but he has no ground for taking offense if she gives this to some one else. However, he is not privileged to take his supper dance with another young woman unless he sees that the young woman he has escorted has a partner for that dance.

It is customary for the escort, after taking off his own hat and coat, to await his companion in the hall or corridor before going into the ball room or reception room. It would be most inconsiderate of him to start filling out his own dance card before she had arrived.

Before beginning the evening's dancing, the escort should inquire of his companion how long she wishes to remain. If she expresses her wish to leave after the first half of the dances are over—or anywhere else on the program—he should make a mark through the section in the dance order to engage any dances after that time. If she signifies her desire to leave before the time she suggested it is clearly the duty of the escort to leave with her even though in doing so he has to cancel dances promised to other young women with whom he has engaged these dances who, if they are familiar with society usage, will take no offense.

Unless a young man is engaged to a young woman or is her brother and hence regards himself as her guardian, he has no right to dictate to her regarding the young men with whom she should dance. At a small private dance, the fact that the young man has been invited by his hostess should be guarantee enough as to their good manners. To suggest to his companion that she should not dance with them would be a discourtesy to the hostess. At a public dance he should introduce her only to young men he can vouch for, but even if his own worst enemy were present he would have no right to expect her to decline to dance with him.

READ LANE'S DIAGNOSIS

In his final report to the President, upon completing his work as secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane sketched with a sure hand out of the abundance of his experience the present Washington condition:

"The call is for thinking, planning, engineering, statesmanship. For we are quickly passing out of the rough-and-ready period of our national life, in which we have dealt wholesale with men and things, into a period of more intensive development, in which we must seek to find the special qualities of the individual unit, whether that unit be an acre of desert, a barrel of oil, a mountain canyon, the flow of a river or the capacity of the humblest of men.

"To conquer and to master—the same old task is ours; but not in the same old way. We have discovered this land and made it ours, but this is not the end of our journey, for now we are to give the deepest thought to the ways in which it may be made to yield most abundantly in the things which a complex society with a most imperious curiosity demands.

"Washington is a combination of political caucus, drawing-room and civil service bureau. It contains statesmen who are politicians and politicians who are not statesmen. It is rich in brains and in character. It is honest beyond any commercial standard. It wishes to do everything that will promote the public good. But it is poorly organized for the task that belongs to it. Fewer men of larger capacity would do the task better.

"Ability is not lacking, but it is pressed to the point of paralysis because of an intricate of details and an unwillingness on the part of the great body of public servants to take responsibility. Every one seems to be afraid of everyone. The self-protective sense is developed abnormally, the creative sense atrophies. Trust, confidence, enthusiasm—these simple virtues of all great business are the ones most lacking in government organization.

"We have so many checks and brakes upon our work that our progress does not keep pace with the nation's requirements. We could save money for the government if we had more discretion as to how we should use that given us.

"For the body of the civil servants there should be quicker promotion or discharge and a sure insurance when disability comes. For the higher administrative officers there should be salaries twice as high as those now given, and they should be made to feel that they are the ones responsible for the work of the department, the head being merely an adviser and a constructor of policies.

"As matters are now devised there are too few in the government whose business it is to plan. Every man is held to detail, to the narrower view, which comes too often to be the department view or some sort of parochial view. We need for the day that is here and upon us men who have little to do but study the problems of the time and test their capacity at meeting them. In a word, we need more opportunity for planning, engineering, statesmanship above, and more fixed authority and responsibility below.

"The employment methods of the government could be improved. Under the civil-service law of 1883 a good system of competitive examinations and appointments on merit has been built up for the classes of positions covered by the law. But beyond certification by the civil service commission for appointment of those applicants who are proved by examination to be eligible, the merit system is not really operative even in connection with the positions to which it applies. Hazardous practices in assignments of work and in promotions, over which no central authority has jurisdiction, have brought about inequalities which are discouraging to the workers. This condition and the relatively low salaries paid by the government cause a "turnover" in government forces that could not long be withstood by a private business.

The readjustment of government salaries in the District of Columbia has recently received the attention of the joint commission on reclassification of salaries, which was authorized by a provision in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation act approved March 1, 1919. The report of this commission is now in the hands of congress and its fate remains to be seen. The report represents many months of work and an effort to present data which will enable congress to understand conditions as they exist.

The present civil service law was enacted to correct the evils of the "spoils system" which had become intolerable. That the plan provided by the law, that of appointments through competitive examinations for certain positions, has been a vast improvement over the old patronage method is generally conceded; but the law failed to be a completely effective instrument by not providing for the application of the merit system to the more responsible and, therefore, the more remunerative positions.

The administrative offices, aside from the cabinet, which do not come within the scope of the civil service law, are postmasters at offices of the first, second and third classes, collectors of internal revenue, collectors of customs; registers, receivers, and surveyors general of the land office; assistant treasurers, surveyors, special examiners, appraisers and naval officers in the customs service; superintendents of mints, assayers in mints, supervising inspectors in the steamboat inspection service, commissioners of immigration and naturalization, assistant secretaries and heads of bureaus of the departments at Washington, etc.—about 15,000 positions in all.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Brest Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB BACKACHE AND LUMBAGO RIGHT OUT

Rub Pain and Stiffness away with a small bottle of old honest St. Jacobs Oil

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 35 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have bladder trouble—Take glass of Salt.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salt from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salt is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Who remembers when a child of 3 or 4 who couldn't "speak a piece" before company was considered "dumb"?

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How to Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, sniffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist; you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly. It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY SKIN

Irritation and Breaking Out Often Healed Over Night, Says Skin Specialist

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ-destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It never fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.

J. W. Hayden of Orchard Hill reports the first lambs of 1922. Two pairs of twins, three of them doing fine.

The weather man over slept. He sent us our Jan. thaw in Feb. but soon discovered he was late and sent enough cold to make up for the warm spell.

Word came by telephone Sunday that Geo. Simmerman had passed away at his home about 8 o'clock Sunday.

In the passing of Mr. Simmerman the Peninsula loses one of its oldest and most respected citizens. He came to the Peninsula from Canada with the famous "Dick Lake Crew" eating their New Year's dinner in Grand Rapids in 1880. Dick Lake was the first man to cut and ship saw wood from Peninsula.

He got out elm for the Cheboygan Hoop Co. He brought teams and men Geo Simmerman being one of the teamsters. He purchased 40 A and made a farm out of the wilderness.

On Thanksgiving day '84 he was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Gaunt. To the union 12 children were born, 10 sons and 2 daughters. Mrs. Simmerman and 4 sons and 2 daughters survive. Mr. Simmerman and his family resided on his farm continuously until the spring of '21 when not being able to work the farm alone and none of the boys wishing to remain on the farm, he rented it out and purchased a home in East Jordan but was always homesick for the farm and calculated to come back in the spring. He was a very enthusiastic fisherman and spent most of the winters in his fish shanty. He was taken ill in his fish shanty Monday with rheumatism of the heart and went home and to bed never to get up again.

HOW TO "FEED COLDS"

The changeable weather of February and March presents to the home-keeper the ever-current problem of colds, for, as a rule the treatment of such minor, but none the less serious ailments, falls usually within her province.

The old adage "Feed a cold and starve a fever" has been changed to "Feed a cold and you may have to starve a fever." By no means should one starve a cold,—the body needs fuel if it is to function properly—but no food must be eaten which is not easy to assimilate.

As far as possible abstain from meat, rich dressings, hot bread, gravy—any rich foods at all. To eat less than the usual amount and stop while you are still hungry will insure the system against overloading. Then, in order to guarantee the prompt assimilation of the food which you have eaten, drink large quantities of water—eight to ten glasses a day will not be too many; or if desired, an equal amount of hot lemonade.

From the following foods a few should be selected, the variety and amount depending upon the activity of the individual:

For breakfast—Any citrus or acid fruit; any form of cereal; toast without butter; boiled eggs; milk or cocoa.

For luncheon—Any of the foods suggested for breakfast, and in addition: thin soups or broths; fruit or vegetable salad without rich dressing; green vegetables,—potatoes sparingly or not at all.

For dinner—In addition to any of the foods listed above serve a small portion of rare beef, and any light dessert such as acid fruit gelatin.

In short, reduce the total amount of food, use an extra amount of those foods which help regulate the body processes, and don't forget the WATER.

POPE PIUS XI RECEIVED TRIPLE CROWN ON SUNDAY

POPE PIUS XI.

Rome—Impressive ceremonies marked the receiving of the triple crown by Pope Pius XI, new pontiff of the Roman Catholic church, at the Vatican, Sunday, Feb. 12.

The new pope, Cardinal Achille Ratti, archbishop of Milan, was elected Feb. 6. He had been a cardinal for less than a year, the red hat having been conferred on him by Pope Benedict on June 16, 1921. He rendered important ecclesiastical functions in Poland which earned for him the gratitude of Vatican authorities.

Cardinal Ratti was born in Desio, Italy, Oct. 12, 1857. For many years he was librarian of the Ambrosian library and archives at Milan. Later he became librarian of the Vatican.

PASTOR AND PRODUCER DEBATE

William A. Brady Defends Theater, Both Movie and Legitimate.

New York—Amidst uproar that displaced the usual Sunday calm of Calvary Baptist church Sunday morning, William A. Brady, a producer of the speaking stage and president of the National Association of Motion Picture Industries, literally leaped into the pulpit of the church and vehemently defended the modern theater, both "legitimate and film productions and players in them."

Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the church, aroused Brady when he made a determined attack upon the stage and screen and referred to recent scandals in both sections of "the world of make believe." The two debaters carried on for more than an hour a vehement argument which stirred the ordinarily peaceful congregation to the pitch of an old-time mixed political meeting. It alternately hissed and applauded, even cheered once or twice. Questions and answers were hurled between pulpit and audience.

SIX ARRESTED IN OPIUM RAID

Detroit Officials Take $10,000 Worth of Dope From "Chinatown."

Detroit—In a raid on two rooms in the Chinese Merchants' Association headquarters at 1347 Porter street, detectives from the Trumbull avenue station seized opium and other drugs said to be worth more than $10,000 and arrested six men on charges of violating the Federal drug laws.

Acting on information said to have been furnished through a woman, Detectives Ryan, O'Brien, Kaufman, Wilson, Harrison and Lockhart surrounded the place and entering quietly, forced a door to one room on the second floor where Gan Sing, 40 years old, and Lee Kee, 30, were arrested.

On the third floor they arrested Ham Sing, 30; Oh Bing, 35; Chin Yin, 31, and Wang Yick, 39.

Boyne City has the distinction of being the only city in the state without a basketball team—Whyfore? East Jordan invaded Bellaire last Friday, one hundred and twenty-eight strong, the occasion being our return basketball games with the two teams of that town. A special train was chartered for the evening. Our visitors came intending to win both games but were disappointed in that respect. The East Jordan girls were defeated by a score of 35 to 9 in what proved to be our easiest game of the season. Incidentally, this was our girls' eighth straight win. The boys' game was a "hair-raiser" from start to finish. The score was tied six times during the 40 minutes of play. With the ball in our possession near the basket the final whistle blew with East Jordan leading by one point, 20 to 19. The immense crowd present at the games made it possible for us to pay the $44.25 expenses for the evening and have a little less than two dollars left. H. A. Craig of Charlevoix refereed both games in a very satisfactory manner. Athletic relations between East Jordan and Bellaire have been pleasant indeed. We enjoyed the trip to East Jordan and also enjoyed having them here with us. Bellaire Independent

After the meeting all adjourned to McKinnons Cafe, where supper was given by Dr. Dicken in honor of the Legionists. Rev. Fr. Drinan addressed the boys. His address was pleasing. Some of the boys gave an account of their experiences over seas.

A feature of the wreck of fast freight No. 53 on the Pennsylvania lines at Stanwood Saturday night was the flight of one of the freight cars. This car left the track with eleven others and landed in a field nearby, having cleared the right-of-way fence without touching it. The wreck delayed traffic several hours, making the morning passenger train about six hours late into Petoskey. Stanwood is the first station south of Big Rapids.

The department of commerce, through the bureau of census, announced that 52,617 blind persons were enumerated in the census of 1920. In 1910 the number was 57,472. Although this decrease of 4,655, it is said, may be in some degree the result of a change in the method of reporting the blind, it probably indicates at least in part an actual decrease in the amount of preventable blindness, consequent upon the improvement in medical knowledge and the education of the public regarding the possibility and duty of preventing blindness. Michigan has 1,579.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Heady and three children who reside about four miles northwest of Springvale, narrowly escaped with their lives from a fire which destroyed their home and contents early Friday morning. The fire, which is of unknown origin, gained such headway before the family awakened that it was necessary to escape through a second story window. The children were thrown into a snowbank and the parents were forced to jump. Scantly attired the five made their way in the chilly morning to the nearest farm home, a half mile away. Mr. and Mrs. Heady and the oldest child suffered frozen feet while the two youngest, who were carried by their father, suffered no ill effects.—Boyne Citizen.

I Was Looking at Jeanie When I Replied.

Taking its various steps in their order, the first move in the game was to sell the mine to Grandfather Jasper while it was still a going proposition; and this was done. But one of the conditions of the sale (Beasley told us this) was that the selling corporation should continue to operate the mine, not as a lessee, but under a contract by which the operating company should receive a certain percentage of the output; an arrangement which gave the holdup artists ample opportunity to prepare for the coup de main.

How these preparations were made, and the secret of them kept from leaking out, still remained one of the unsolved mysteries, though Beasley suggested that probably imported workmen were employed, and that the work had been done under jealous supervision with all the successful precautions taken against publicity. The tight wooden box—which would figure as a part of the shaft lining—had been built, and into the box the creek had been diverted by means of the small dam and the underground conduit. With the water admitted, to rise in the box to the level of its intake in the creek reservoir, the trap was set and was ready to be sprung.

Beyond this point there was a gap we were obliged to bridge by conjecture, but the inferences were all plausible enough. Doubtless the plotters had notified my grandfather that his mine was flooded and was no longer workable. Doubtless, again, he had authorized them to buy the needed pumping machinery and to install it—which they did.

In this barefaced imposture the plotters had conceivably builded something upon Grandfather Jasper's advanced age as an insurance against any too-searching investigation; but beyond this they had carefully disarmed any suspicion that he might otherwise have harbored by encouraging him—in the actual purchase of the property—to take expert advice, and by craftily priming him, by understatement of the facts, to trust them.

Only rumors of what had occurred at this visit reached Angels; but Beasley could testify that my grandfather had come and returned alone, and that after the pumping demonstration had been made he had seemed disposed to pocket his huge loss and to call it a bad day's work.

The later developments were not hard to figure out. Beasley was able to tell us that the proposed railroad branch to run to the new copper properties in Little Cinnabar gulch was now a certainty for the very near future. Hence the time was fully ripe for the recovery of the Cinnabar by the plotters. No doubt they had confidently assumed that a repurchase of the property—not directly by themselves, of course, but by an agent who would figure as a disinterested third party—would be easy. Beasley said that there had been some talk of an underground drainage tunnel, such as Daddy and I had figured upon—this at the time of the springing of the flood trap—and that the cost had been estimated at half a million. Unquestionably the robbers had assumed that an old man who had already charged his venture up to profit and loss would sell for a song rather than to venture, again; and in this they were probably well within the truth.

But at the moment when they were ready to complete the circle of imposture, death—the death of Grandfather Jasper—had stepped in to complicate matters. Somebody—possibly Cousin Percy—had corresponded with whoever was representing the robber syndicate, and by this means the plotters had learned that they would now have to reckon with an heir. How Bullerton came to be employed by them almost at the instant of his return from South America we did not know; but we could easily understand that with the new complication which had risen by reason of Grandfather Jasper's death, it was highly necessary for some emissary of the syndicate to get on the ground quickly, prepared to forestall by purchase, guile, or, in the last resort by force, any attempt of the Dudley heirs to pry into things they were not to be permitted to know.

The pushing of the fight for possession, to the firm and property-destroying extremity was another matter that Beasley was able to explain.

"Ye see, it was a case of fish 'r cut-bait, and do it quick," the marshal explained. "If he could run you folks out, pronto, and get possession afore anybody came along to ask a lot of platted questions, he stood about one chance in a dozen to lie out of it some way. If you-all got killed in the scrimmage, he'd scatter his men in the woods and try to make me believe that you'd got done up trying to run him off."

"Would you have believed him?" I asked, grinning across the table at Beasley.

"It'd a-been a question of veracity as the court says; with maybe you and Hi Twombly too dead to testify."

At this Daddy, who had been eating like a man half-starved, put in his word.

"I reckon you can't get at them ghouls higher up, Stannie, but if you don't shove Charlie Bullerton just about as far as the law 'll allow, I'm going to call ye a quitter."

At that moment Jeanie had just brought in another heaping plate of the luscious corn cakes, and I was looking at her when I replied.

"Well, see about the showing a bit later, Daddy. The first thing to do is to put the old Cinnabar in shape to sell us out some money. I'm broke, you know."

When I made this admission, Beasley, the last man in the world from whom help could come, I should have said, looked me squarely in the eyes.

"Stannie Broughton—if that's your name, you ain't so dad-blamed crazy as you look and act," he remarked. "Money's what talks. Are you afloat?"

"Money's what talks. Are you afloat?" he repeated. "Money's what talks. Are you afloat?"

"Money's what talks. Are you afloat?" he repeated. "Money's what talks. Are you afloat?"

see what he'd say. "You can't very well close a business deal with your prisoner, can you?"

"Kill two 'r three birds with the one rock," he mumbled, cramming the siruped half of his breakfast-finisher corn cake into his capacious mouth. "I'll chase you down to Angels and turn you over to the majesty of the law—the same bein' by name old Squire Dubbin. Then I'll jump my job 'o' sortin' out the bad angels from amongst the good angels and go out and rustle your ball. Time old Bill Dubbin's chewin' over the law in such cases mude and pervided—like he's bound to do—I'll scrape up a bunch of men and start 'em up hereabouts to begin on the repairs. How does all that strike you?"

If my laugh was a bit grim there was a warrant for it.

"It strikes me fair in the empty pocket, my good friend," I told him. "Just at this present moment I couldn't finance one solitary, lonesome carpenter—to say nothing of a gang of them, with half a dozen steam-fitters and boiler-makers thrown in."

"Huh! workin' capital, you mean? That's about the easiest thing this side o' Hades—with a mine like the old Cinnabar—with no more water in it than what can be pumped out—to back you. I reckon your title to the property's all right, ain't it?"

"It is; I have a deed from my grandfather." So much I said, but I didn't go on to explain how the quick wit of a girl who now hated me had saved that deed from being a mere scrap of waste paper. Not that I knew how she had done it—but the tangible fact was safely in my pocket.

Fifteen minutes after this breakfast table talk I was bidding a temporary good-by to the wreck on the Cinnabar ledge, and was about to take the road to Atropa with Beasley; both of us intent upon catching a way-freight to Angels. Daddy had lent me the plectid pony for the ride to the railroad station—this either with or without Jeanie's consent; I didn't know and forbore to ask—and the harlequin-faced dog was ready to trot at the pony's heels. But the blue-eyed madden had shut herself up in her room, and I thought she wasn't going to come out and see me off.

At the final moment, however, after Beasley had already steered his nag across the dump head, and I was about to climb into my saddle, she came to the cabin door, and was both curiously embarrassed and a bit breathless.

"Please!—one minute!" she begged; and as I took my foot out of the stirrup: "Do you know what they have done with—"

"With Bullerton?" I helped out.

"No, I don't know; but I suppose they've taken him on to the county seat at Coph with the others."

"Then—then—please let him go! If you refuse to prosecute—"

"Make yourself entirely easy," I broke in, a bit sourly, maybe. "I'll argue not to play the part of the dog in the manger."

"Thank you—so much!" she murmured; and then she backed away quickly and went in and on through to the kitchen, leaving me to follow Beasley, which I did, with the sour humor telling me that of all the puzzling, unaccountable things in a world of enigmas, a woman's vagaries were the least understandable. For, after all was said and done, and after all that had happened and been made to happen, it seemed to be palpably apparent that Jeanie Twombly was still in love with the jeet.

CHAPTER XIX.

Angels, Desert and Urban.

Our stop-over in Angels, Friend Beasley's and mine, was of the shortest. Our business with Father William Dubbin was the merest travesty upon a trial at law, and was speedily concluded.

Since there would be no passenger train until afternoon, Beasley and I resumed our places in the freight-car caboose, and in due time were set down in Brewster, the breezy little metropolis of Timanyoni Park.

Here my captor—and friend—appeared to be very much at home. He took me to the best hotel, where he was greeted—with affectionate camaraderie by a clerk who wore a diamond big enough to serve for a locomotive headlight, shook hands with, and introduced me to, a number of gentlemen in the lobby, and presently gave me orders to go up to our rooms and "take a wash," preparatory to meeting a certain friend of his at luncheon; the meeting contingent upon his being able to "round up" the friend in time for the feast.

It still wanted a half-hour of the appointed luncheon time when I descended to the lobby. A little before one o'clock Beasley came in with a middle-aged man who looked as if he might have been the retired manager of a Wild West show; not long-haired, or anything like that, but with the cool eye and bronzed, weather-beaten face of one who lived under house roofs only when circumstances forced him to. A moment later I was shaking hands with Mr. William Starbuck, mine owner, ranchman, a director in the Brewster National bank, president of the Brewster Commercial club and the prime mover in a lot of other civic activities too numerous to mention.

I may pass lightly over the events of the three days following; days in which Mr. William Starbuck, who seemed to be known to all the old-timers in Brewster as "Billy," and to the younger generation as "Uncle Billy," labored untriflingly in my behalf; procured me the necessary working credit at the Brewster National, helped me in the telegraphic ordering of new machinery, helped Beasley to rustle up a small army of mechanics to go ahead of us to the Cinnabar, and last, but not least, made my peace with the railroad company in the matter of the stolen and smashed inspection car; this being a thing which he was easily able to do because he was the brother-in-law, once removed, of the railroad company's vice president and general manager.

On our last day in Brewster, and as a parting favor, I asked Starbuck how I should proceed in regard to quashing the indictment against Bullerton, and when I did so, he gave me a shrewd look out of the cool gray eyes, with a gentle uplifting of the shaggy brows. "If you are determined to let Bullerton go, all you have to do is to do nothing. If you don't appear in, Coph to prosecute him and his would-be mine jumpers, the case against them will be dismissed, as a matter of course. But really, you know, you ought to make an example of them."

"In the circumstances, I can't," I returned, so we let it go at that; and an hour later Beasley and I were on our way back to Atropa and Cinnabar mountain.

THE RIGHT THING AT THE RIGHT TIME

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

WHEN YOU EAT FRUIT.

Remember this—that there is a proper dignity and proposition to be observed in the performance of every act of life.—Marcus Aurelius.

IN THE formal, many-course dinner a fruit course usually follows the sweets and cheese, directly preceding the coffee. In many families fresh fruit is always served at dinner following the dessert. The decorative value of fresh fruit served in this way has, no doubt, had something to do with the establishment of this course in the dinner menu. But there are not a few good folk who always decline the course because they really don't know just how to eat it. Oh, to be sure they can eat oranges and apples and bananas and grapes, but they are not at all sure whether they eat them in the right way. For eating fresh fruit at a picnic or as a between-meal is one thing, and eating it at a dinner is another. The idea is, however, always to serve it in its natural form. To serve the oranges all peeled and sliced would indeed be a mistake on the part of the one who planned the dinner. To serve the bananas sliced would be just as grave an error.

But really it is no very difficult task to eat whole fruit as it should be eaten at dinner. This becomes comparatively easy at tables where the English custom of serving a fruit knife and fork is followed. The banana should first be peeled. Morsels should then be cut by means of the knife and eaten with the fork. Do not cut it all at once.

The best way to eat an apple at the dinner table is to cut it in quarters with the knife, handling it as little as possible, and then to pare the skin from each quarter and to core it as required. There is quite a knack in doing this without taking the apple up into the hands any more than necessary.

Pears are eaten in much the same manner and so are peaches and plums, but the considerate hostess does not serve these fruits when they are so juicy and over-ripe as to be difficult to manage.

Many persons would not serve oranges at all for dinner, but instead tangerines that can be managed more gracefully. Tangerines may be peeled and then broken into sections, the seeds being removed by means of the knife before taking them in the fingers to eat. Orange skins should be removed by holding the orange firmly on the plate with the fork and then cutting off the skin by means of the knife. After this morsels of the orange may be cut from the core by means of the knife and fork and the pieces conveyed to the mouth by the fork. Needless to say, this is more easily accomplished when the oranges are firm and not extremely juicy. So the wise hostess selects California oranges for dinner, though she may prefer those delicious Florida oranges when they are to be eaten with a spoon for breakfast.

You may have your own pet way of eating grapes, but there is only one right way—that is, according to the accepted usage. They should be eaten by means of the fingers of the right hand, the stones should then be dropped into the left hand inconspicuously and thence conveyed to the fruit plate. Cherries should be managed in the same way.

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

CO-OPERATIVE CLASSES

AN INTERESTING plan has been worked out by a certain high school in its commercial department. This is a co-operative method by which the girl students get actual practical work together with the class work.

For instance, in the salesmanship course the girls work one week in school and one week in some large department store alternately. The stores are making their inducements to young women who wish to become saleswomen more attractive, and they are seeking a high class of employees. And it is the girls who have taken a course of training with the view of becoming expert in the profession who are sought for. They begin at the bottom, while they are still working in the school, and by the time they have been graduated they are ready for a good position with every prospect of steady advancement.

The complete course includes designing, color matching, house furnishing, etc. A girl will specialize later in certain types of the work, but she is given a grounding in all. If she has a good foundation she is going to know what to sell her customers. She is unlikely to make bad sales, and so suffer returns.

With such school work and such training as are offered by the type of high schools quoted, a fine class of women is going to be attracted to the work in increasing numbers. The stores realize the value of the expert. It is a thing that will pay looking into by the ambitious business girl.

HEART WEATHER.

SKIES are not always amethyst, And stars are lost in midnight mist. The sun is curtained by the rain, Day has its darkness, night its pain; And yet the hill the sun has kissed I know shall feel his kiss again.

We do not ask perfection of The earth below, the skies above; They have their moments that are drear, And winter comes to every year— We ask it but of those we love, Perfection only of the dear.

Hearts have their weather, every heart— We do not live with perfect-art. Hearts have their time the thunders roll, Their little tempests of the soul. But soon the tempest shall depart And leave affection's aureole.

You who are patient with the skies When suns go down and storms arise, Be patient in the time of stress, The tempest meet with tenderness. Love must be patient, must be wise— The sun obscured shines none the less.

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"LOVELY."

"DID you enjoy the play?" "Yes, I had a lovely time." The person who used the word "lovely" in this sense did not know, or forgot, that "lovely" should be used only to describe something which is adapted to or worthy of being loved—that is, of inspiring the highest esteem of which the human being is capable. The word "lovely" means, according to the Standard dictionary, "possessing mental or physical qualities that inspire admiration or love; winsome, charming, lovable, as a lovely face."

The word "lovely" has, therefore, a distinct and valuable place in English diction, and should not be debased by use in connection with common or ordinary matters, or trifles. Instead of "lovely," in most cases some such words as attractive, agreeable, pleasant, enjoyable should be employed. Here is correct use of "lovely": "she's adorned amply that in her husband's eye she looks lovely."

Facts About Income Tax

As Furnished By the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

(Article No. 3)
The new requirement of the income tax law that returns shall be made of gross income of $5,000 or more regardless of the amount of net income upon which the tax is assessed, necessitates careful computation on the part of the taxpayer. "Gross income" includes practically every dollar received by the taxpayer during the year 1921 in salaries, wages, commissions, rents, royalties, interest on bank deposits, cash dividends on stock, "or income from any source whatsoever." "Net income" is gross income less certain deductions provided for by the act, including all business expenses incurred in the conduct of a business, trade, profession, or vocation.

Certain expenditures, however, are not deductible as a business expense when made for the purchase of articles more or less permanent in character, or for permanent improvement of property. For example, a merchant would not be allowed to deduct the amount expended in the erection of a new store, or a farmer the cost of a new tractor or threshing machine, since such investments are held to be capital investments. The law expressly prohibits the deduction of family or living expenses, such as rent for a dwelling, repairs to a dwelling, cost of food and clothing for the family, education of children, servant's wages, and similar items. Amounts spent during the year 1921 for any of these items are not deductible.

AN AMAZING POSITION

To the great majority of people—the plain people—the position taken on the anti-lynching bill by the Democratic members of the lower house of congress must have been amazing.

The bill is the first serious effort to curb an evil which has been growing steadily for a generation and which has become a deep stigma upon the country. One would have supposed that a party which two or three years ago professed such beautiful moral and humanitarian sentiments in advocating the league of nations would not permit any organization to surpass it in condemnation of "lynch law," but as a matter of fact the Democrats in congress have not been as excited since the civil war as they have been over the proposition that lynch law should be repealed.

So bitter has been the Democratic opposition that the bill may be regarded virtually as a party measure. Indeed, it actually is a party measure in the sense that 221 of the 230 votes by which it was passed came from Republicans, while the Democrats contributed 102 of the 119 votes in opposition.

The bill takes the enforcement of the constitutional guarantee of jury and the punishment of lynchers out of the hands of the state by providing that lynchers shall suffer life imprisonment and that the same penalty shall be imposed on state, county and municipal officials, who, by negligence, fail to prevent lynchings. The measure also stipulates that counties in which life is taken by mobs shall forfeit $10,000 to family of each and every victim. And the yell of rage—accompanied by the old cry of state's rights—with which the southern representatives and their Democratic brothers in northern states have fought it from the moment of its introduction is first-class evidence that it is expected to be effective.

LINCOLN PATENTS INVOLVED IN SUIT

DELAWARE INTERESTS CLAIM FORD DID NOT BUY ALL ASSETS OF COMPANY.

LAWYER NAMED TO INVESTIGATE

Henry M. Leland Says Purchase Price of $8,000,000 Included All Company's Assets.

Detroit—A clash of jurisdiction between Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle of Detroit and the federal district judge of Wilmington, Del., impends, it became known Sunday, with the contention of attorneys for the Delaware receiver of the Lincoln Motor company that the recent sale of the plant to Henry Ford did not include the purchase of patents, copyrights and other intangible property.

Ralph Stone, president of the Detroit Trust company, Michigan receiver of the Lincoln company, and his attorney, Harold H. Emmons, under whose name the plant has resumed operations, are in Wilmington this week in conference with attorneys for the Delaware receiver.

It is understood that with the confirmation of federal judges of Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania, in which states the company owned tangible property, of the sale of the plant by Judge Tuttle, and the subsequent vacating of his order of sale by the Delaware judge, Judge Tuttle went ahead with the sale without recognizing the intangible property.

Attorney William G. Bryant, law partner of Mr. Emmons, said Sunday that the issue amounts to a "question of the bar." He was of the opinion that the issue was raised because the legal profession of Delaware is not in favor of the receiver's sale being conducted outside the state in which the company was organized.

Mr. Bryant said he believes a decision on the Delaware contention lies solely with Judge Tuttle, and that attorneys for the Wilmington receiver, unless the issue is closed in the present conference, will have to bring their case to the Detroit court.

Henry M. Leland, president of the Lincoln Motor company, declared Sunday night that he did not believe Henry Ford will have any trouble in obtaining all assets of the company, which he purchased for $8,000,000, both actual and intangible.

"The bill of sale of the Lincoln company to Mr. Ford included all assets and property, of every name and nature," Mr. Leland said.

Mr. Leland said that the company has no assets, real or invisible, in Delaware, although it was chartered in that state.

This Town Needs a Hupmobile Dealer

This is a "Hupmobile town," and it needs, and will soon have, a Hupmobile dealer.

It is the kind of community that most appreciates this fine car.

The Hupmobile, while ranking with cars that cost much more, sells at the remarkably low price of $1,250 f. o. b. factory.

This brings it within the reach of persons of ordinary means, and makes it a wonderful proposition for the dealer.

The man we are looking for to represent the Hupmobile here, is a hustler and a good business man.

To such a man, we can practically assure many prospects, sales and exceptional profits.

This is the first year we have been able to supply the great potential demand for Hupmobiles outside of the metropolitan centers.

Now the Hupmobile factory has greatly increased its production to supply this demand.

This creates a money-making opportunity. You may be the man we want.

Remember that we have no back-breaking requirements—nothing but what will enhance your bank standing. And our discount rate is much more liberal than is ordinarily offered.

It is unmistakably to your advantage to talk this over, absolutely without obligation. Let us hear from you. Write at once to—

No mother is prouder of her first-born than a man is proud of himself who for the first time sees his picture in a newspaper.

Probably nobody ever bought an automobile who in the first three months afterward did not wish he had bought some other kind.

"Safety all the time" would be a better slogan than "Safety first."

MACARONI

Commenting on the "macaroni and other alimentary pastes" industry, the U. S. Tariff Commission, in its 6th Annual report, says that formerly a large part of our supply of "alimentary pastes" came from Italy, although the United States produces a surplus of durum wheat (the kind used in the industry), especially prized for such pastes. During the war the domestic industry rapidly expanded and replaced the Italian product which war conditions had eliminated from American markets. Italian macaroni, however, commands a price premium and has a well-established demand, particularly among the foreign residents of the United States, who are the largest consumers. Domestic producers fear that when normal conditions are restored the Italian-pastes will regain their former market. "Imports during the past two years have been relatively small."

The Democratic tariff law made a 33 per cent reduction in the duty on these goods, or from 1 1/2 to 1c a pound. Today owing to the disparity in exchange, this duty is but little removed from free trade. The pending tariff bill carries the old rate. Probably the small importations of macaroni recorded since the war is due to the miserable industrial plight of Italy. But since the United States produces the right sort of wheat for the manufacture of these "alimentary paste" products, there seems to be no good reason why that wheat should be sent abroad to be made into pastes and then shipped back here in competition with the American products. The growers of the wheat can do much better by disposing of it to American manufacturers of these pastes, who will employ American operatives to fabricate them, and whose wages will be expended in part in the purchase of foodstuffs, etc. produced by the American farmer.

TRIPLE SUBSCRIPTION

The most recent issue of Treasury notes was oversubscribed three times. The call was for $400,000,000, but subscriptions aggregated over $1,200,000,000. It is announced, however, that an additional $200,000,000 may be allotted to those who offer to pay for them in Victory Notes. The issue is part of Secretary Mellon's plan for gradually refunding the big Victory Note issue that falls due May 20, 1923, and spreading the maturities over a longer period of time. The confidence manifested by bankers in the present administration of the Treasury Department assures the success of the plan, unless Congress creates new emergencies that will have to be met.

IT WENT TO THE SPOT

Henry E. Campbell, R. F. D. No. 3, Adrian, Mich., writes: "I had a bad cough for three years. Tried several cough remedies. Got little relief. I tried Foley's Honey and Tar. It went to the spot. There is no better remedy on the market." Good for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Children like it.—Hite's Drug Store.
