Agricultural Agent Elected

B. O. Hagerman Is Elected To Fill Vacancy.

By the action of the County Farm Bureau Executive Board at Boyne City March 16th, Charlevoix County will have an Agricultural Agent on the job, by the first week in April.

Much time and conscientious effort has been expended, by members of the board, to procure the right man to fill this responsible position.

The Extension department has of course done their best to locate a man whom they felt would suit the needs of this county. Keeping in mind the showing this county has already made in the growing of certified seed potatoes, which may, in a few years with the able assistance of an Agricultural Agent, result in the leading crop in the county.

Due to the diversified farming conditions in the county, there is a broad field of requirements to which a successful Agent must necessarily qualify.

In making the selection, B. O. Hagerman was chosen by the board as the man they felt would be successful in this county. However, in making this choice they did not believe that they had found a man who was going to please everyone, that could scarcely be hoped for. But in view of the fact that Mr. Hagerman has experienced success in dealing with the farmers' problems, under conditions similar to those in this county, with the recommendations of the Extension department, coupled with the prevailing opinion that we are in need of a man that can serve as a leader as well as a hired man and with the farmers support there is no doubt but what Mr. Hagerman will prove a good man for this county.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKET BALL TEAM GOES TO TOURNAMENT

Perhaps, no better game of basketball has ever been played on the local floor than the one between Harbor Springs and the local high school team last Friday evening. In fact the boys displayed a brand of basketball that would look mighty good at the Petoskey tournament. So although we have very slender funds we are going to try to send the team to Petoskey if for no other reason than that it is good advertising for East Jordan. Perhaps many have not given thought to the financial end of the high school athletic association so that it might be a surprise to you to know that this has been one of the hardest years in the history of athletics to keep expenses paid up.

Last week the game cost us $61.00. The proceeds at the gate were $23.10. The debate and game of basketball with Grayling cost $110.00; proceeds $70.00. So that a very little stretch of the imagination would be needed to see how the association stands. So will you be patient with us as business men if we call on you for a little help. If a couple of the men come to see you at least refuse them politely. We feel that East Jordan should be kept in the running, for every little town in the north country is going to be at the Petoskey tournament. Therefore, we must send our team.

HAZEL RUTH WHITE PASSES AWAY

Hazel Ruth White, eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William White, passed away at the home of her parents on North Main-st., Monday, March 20th, from obstruction of the bowels.

Deceased was born March 29th, 1904, at Alden, Antrim county. She came to East Jordan with her parents some 12 years ago from Frankfort. She was a member of the Church of God, and was a student in the ninth grade of our public schools. Besides her parents, she leaves to mourn her untimely death one sister, Mrs. Grace Sill of Gains, Mich.; seven brothers, Jake, Glenn, Sherman, Cecil, Edwin, Walter, and Maxwell, all of East Jordan. Also her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Winters of Charlevoix.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the Church of God Chapel conducted by Leon Brown. Interment at Sunset Hill.

The average man can't understand why it is that the "efficiency experts" haven't cornered all the visible supply of money.

The Independents Are Champs

E. J. Indoor Baseball League Closes Exciting Contests.

The East Jordan Indoor Baseball League ended its season last week in a blaze of glory. The Independents winning the pennant through the most consistent all around work. They not only played well but they played clean and each man of this team is to be complimented on his gentlemanly conduct both on and off the floor. They did not have it easy by any means for they were crowded the limit by the Holy Name and Presbyterian teams who followed closely on their heels.

The work of the Independents battery has been both consistent and strong. Jack McKinnon's pitching, perhaps, has been the best in the league and he was ably assisted by Earl Richards. In the field the Independents displayed exceptional stars in the fielding end of the game in the Bolser brothers, on short and in the field, Bernard Bowen; Sturgil at second base, Whiteford on short. Of course, Bennett played a consistent game at first base; also Hector McKinnon displayed a brand of pitching that was most deceptive. Without a doubt, the Independents were altogether the best fielding team in the league, along with consistent hitting stamps them as the best team in the league.

There should be some kind of banner presented to this team as a slight reward of merit.

Among the other teams of the league the Holy Name played a hard, consistent game. They are excellent fielders and have a fine battery in Nachazel and LaLonde. There are a number of other strong players on the team, whom everybody recognizes by their work from week to week. It is impossible to mention all the men individually but let it be said that the Holy Name team played a fine, consistent sportmanlike brand of game.

The Presbyterian team considered by many one of the strongest teams in the league lost their last chance to get into the running in a ten inning hair-raising game to the Independents last week. This team is noted especially for its strong hitting. Without a doubt it is the hardest hitting team in the league. Largely on that account it deserves to rank near the top of the list. Some of the men who displayed all around ability both in the field and at bat are Al Frieberg, Watson, Gibbs, Donald Porter, and in the field it would be only fair to mention the work of Johnson and Snellenberger.

The next team whom we cant help but mention for their frequent display of strength is the Masonic aggregation. They seem to be considered the dark horse of the league. They displayed some very good baseball at times and at others some poor baseball. However the work of Bechtold, Gidley Danto, Parks and Shay, as well as some very strong pitching on the part of Sedgman is deserving of mention.

Time and space do not allow us to go over the entire list of players who took part in the league series, so but a few can be noted here. Vogel, Gunderson, and Shier of the K. P. team did unusual work. Ben Reid, Louis Ellis, Enoch Giles of the Firemen team as well as a number of others on this team deserve special mention. On the I. O. O. F., Len Swafford, Conrad and Pumphrey did excellent work. In the Methodist team, Bogart, Shepard, Hoover and the late Glen Smith surely deserve honorable mention for their fine playing and clean sportsmanship. All in all from the observers standpoint it seems to me that nearly every man in all of these teams has displayed a type of sportsmanship and good spirit of which East Jordan should be proud. It isn't so important after all who won the pennant as it is that we had a good time. On all sides you will hear that it has been a fine sort of entertainment throughout the winter for large crowds of people; good fellowship has been displayed consistently among the men and it has given the tired business man a chance to recreate, and we hope the league will be a factor in our social life another year.

Men are greater spendthrifts than women but they don't tell where they spend their money while women are always anxious to display what they buy.

Who remembers when the "heavy" business man of the village wore a black frock suit the year round?

No flirt like an old flirt.

STORY OF THE PLAY

The shadow of a great grief has darkened the life of Martin Wynn, and caused him to cling very closely to his only child, Ruth, whom he and his maiden sister, Melissa, have reared with tenderness and devotion. They have sent Ruth away to school, and she has met and loved a gay city man, who innocently enough, is related to the tragedy of Martin's life. She, in this new experience, has turned away from honest Len Everett, who has loved her ever since their childhood.

Ruth returns from school, is visited by her new friends, and things begin to work out.

SUMMER SCHOOL WORK ANNOUNCED AT M. A. C.

Special work for teachers of agriculture, and instructors in rural and consolidated schools features the announcement of the summer session at the Michigan Agricultural College, to run from June 26 to Aug. 4 this year.

In addition to regular undergraduate courses in all divisions of the state college, adapted material in agriculture, home economics, applied science and engineering is being planned for the special courses. Increasing demand from teachers of the state for work designed to meet their needs for advanced training along special lines has led to a considerable broadening of the curriculum for the summer term.

Vocational education for home economics teachers who need further work to qualify under the Smith-Hughes legislation is included in the courses listed for the first time this year.

A model one-room school, with real pupils in attendance will be maintained during the summer for demonstration work with the class of rural teachers, according to Prof. E. H. Ryder, director of the M. A. C. Summer School.

POST SEASON INDOOR BASEBALL GAMES TO HELP ATHLETIC FUND

Although the league season has ended, a series of games between the Independents, Holy Name, Masons and Presbyterians teams has been arranged in order to help the high school people pay their athletic debt. This should be a series worth watching for the teams are evenly balanced, and will put up a real article of baseball. The first games were played Tuesday and the game between the Holy Name and the Presbyterian teams was surely worth more than the price of admission. In the other game the Masons got off on the wrong foot and played away under form whereas the Independents perhaps showed the best baseball of the year.

However, depend on it that the Masons will be back in their old-time stride next Tuesday evening when they will play their old rivals, the Presbyterians. It is unnecessary for me to mention here about the 6-5 game that the Holy Name boys won from the Independents some time ago. The Independents are out for revenge. By the way, this same Holy Name team has displayed the best brand of baseball in the league the last three times out, so if you cannot get 15c worth of entertainment next Tuesday evening, you never will. Also there has been a very strong team organized among the Methodists. This team has been strengthened by members who played on other teams, such as Reid and Ellis of the Firemen and a number of others. This team is going to play a few exhibition games with the teams mentioned above. Watch for later announcements.

The schedule for the post season series arranged by the league committee is as follows:

March 21
Holy vs Presbyterians.
Independents vs Masons.

March 29

Holy Name vs Independents.

April 5

THE FAIR'S THE THING

Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye! young and old!

East Jordan is invited to adjourn business for the afternoon and evening of March 31st, and be boys and girls again at the annual School Fair.

And say! it is rumored that never such a fair was ever yet seen as this that is to be. So, do not miss it. Variety and pep are its two middle names.

All faculty chairmanship, and all student committee workers in charge of preparations.

Be on hand with your pockets well supplied with dimes, and watch the Fair management relieve you of them; and smile.

Everybody says he doesn't care what anybody says about him but everybody lies.

No boy is natively bad, we have been assured, but it can't be denied that some of them have a positive genius for acquiring badness.

Fall Campaign Is Under Way

Congressional Battle Expected To Prove Interesting.

The "fence menders" are getting busy. So, also, are their enemies, the "fence busters," according to advices from Washington.

Which is just another way of saying that the congressional campaign of 1922 is on. To the ordinary American whose interest in elections is usually confined to voting, it seems a long time until November, 1922. To a large number of Americans who consider themselves just a bit better than ordinary, next November seems to be just around the corner, and they are getting ready to turn the corner.

The reason is that before you can get yourself elected to the $7,500 salary that attaches to a congressman or senator, you have to get your party in congressional district or state, to put its O. K. on you. This is done at party convention, or, as in most states now, at a primary election. Which is why those who aspire to hold on to the $7,500 annually they are now drawing and those who aspire to get on that payroll as new hands, are now engaged in the gentle pastimes of fence busting and fence mending.

You always bust the other fellow's fences and always mend your own. To do a really effective job either way, you have to start while this winter's frost is on the coalpile, though you won't get final results until next fall's frost on the pumpkin. The way to do is to start in about the time the women begin trotting out their spring hats, and either by busting somebody else's fence or mending your own, make it certain that you will get the party nomination fenced in, corralled, and tied to a stake in your own back yard.

They start holding primaries in March and from then on until late in September the nominating goes on. This is one of the most trying and most "practical" periods in the political year. If you are in congress, somebody in your own party is almost sure to want to get you out, and the entire personnel of the opposing party is determined to eject. If you are out of congress wanting in, the fellow who has the particular $7,500 you covet is going to do his best to keep you from collecting. With this explanation, anybody ought to understand the importance of the primary.

The first primary this year will be March 28, in South Dakota. Three candidates for the house will be nominated. The next is April 11, in Illinois, for nomination of house members. On May 2, comes the first senatorial primary, in Indiana, where Senator Harry New and Albert J. Beveridge will see whose fence is better. Oregon will select candidates on May 19. On the 16th of that month Pennsylvania, besides nominating a house delegation, will select candidates on both tickets to succeed the late Boies Penrose, and Senator William E. Crow. Crow was appointed to fill the vacancy Senator Knox's death caused, and his health may not permit him to run again. The Penrose place will be sought by George Wharton Pepper, now filling the seat by appointment.

The primary in Michigan will be held this year on Tuesday, Sept. 12th; the date being changed from August at the last session of the State Legislature.

OBJECTS TO BEING OVERSEER IN JORDAN

March 20, 1922

MR. LISK—

Will you please correct this mistake that was published in last week's Herald.

"If the ladies that put my name in the paper last week for Overseer of Highway would attend to their own business they would have enough to do. I did not want my name for a man's job in any office."

Seeing With the Hands.

The inherent sense most people have of "feeling" someone in their presence in a carefully darkened room is to be nursed carefully and developed. "A totally blind man in a pitch-dark room was told to hold his hands palm upwards. Then a powerful infra-red light was turned on them. The blind man saw the light with his fingers."

Surely Would.

PETOSKEY MAYOR SCORES LOCAL LAW VIOLATORS

[From Petoskey News]

Addressing the city council, chief of police, other city department heads, and visitors present Monday night, Mayor John L. A. Galster said that he was ashamed of certain conditions said to exist in Petoskey. He called the attention of those present to the alleged open defiance of certain combination pool rooms, eating houses and soft drink parlors, and other places where the liquor law and other statutes were reported as disregarded. The chief executive of the city said that many complaints had been made to him of late regarding these conditions. He expressed his belief that gambling places, booze joints and other institutions of dis-repute were being maintained in defiance of the law and the city police.

Chief of Police Wolff reported that he had visited several of the places mentioned, warned them against allowing Indian girls and women to be brought in the buildings, against allowing of school boys to use the pool and billiard rooms, and against the selling of booze, but that the proprietors appeared to take little or no heed of the warnings.

Mr. Wolff said that a change in ownership and management of one of the places mentioned was about to take place and that he was hopeful of better conditions under the new owner.

Some members of the city council, in the discussion which followed, mentioned having received complaints against several places named, and complaints from citizens of conditions as they were said to exist.

Mayor Galster said that he believed the police department had the necessary power and authority to cope with the situation, but that if it could not handle it, he believed the department should be given necessary assistance to inaugurate a cleanup campaign.

At least one councilman recommended a city license of all such places, which could be revoked, and any place closed up when it was not operated according to regulations.

INTEREST IN PUREBRED SIRES DOUBLED DURING PAST YEAR

Judging from records of the United States Department of Agriculture, which conducts the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, interest in purebred sires is more than double that of a year ago. During January and February the Bureau of Animal Industry issued 512 emblems of recognition to persons who signed declarations stating that they would use purebred sires exclusively in all classes of live stock kept. The number of persons granted emblems during the same time last year was 239.

Continuation of interest is shown by the unusually large number of enrollments early in March, more than 150 having occurred the first week. Henceforth all these owners will breed their cows, mares, sows, ewes and hens to purebred sires only and will use breeding methods leading to further livestock improvement.

"There is increasing evidence," declares Dr. J. R. Mohler, Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, "that raising scrub live stock is an unnecessary waste of time and feed. Any livestock owner can improve the quality of his herds and flocks by the better-sires route. Purebred sires permit the raising of grades, crossbreds, or purebreds—whichever is preferred—depending on the kind of females used."

According to reports from more than 500 live-stock owners who have used purebred sires for years, the greater returns derived greatly exceed the initial outlay and the benefits accumulate with each generation of animals raised.

Mrs. K. D. Drake, Childs, Md., writes "After an attack of the flu that left me with a severe cough nothing seemed to relieve me till I tried Foley's Honey and Tar, which I can highly recommend." A. C. BELDING, Comm'r of Schools
Charlevoix County.

George Washington's Diary.

A year after his marriage Washington began a formal diary, which he continued until June 10, 1775, the time of his appointment to command the army of the Revolution. He called it his "Diary," and later "Where, and how my time is spent." In it he entered the happenings of the day, his agricultural and other experiments, a record of his guests, and also a detailed account of the weather. Weather seemed to be a hobby with him, and his attention to it in his diary was most particular.

Effect of Color.

If a color is to be introduced into a room by means of colored shades or lamps, the color scheme of the room must be considered. Lighting effects should not be in pure colors. Tints of rose or buff add something pleasing to the complexion while red, orange or bright yellow do away with the fresh tints of the face.

Variety in the Diet.

Today dieticians tell us that variety is as important in our diet as is food quality, and, fortunately, this can easily be supplied in spite of the higher food prices today. Variety in food is not a luxury, as it once was, thanks to our national food purveyors. Think of the great opportunities that scientific canning offers to the home manager—of the ready-to-serve meat products, of sea foods distributed to every part of the country, and tropical fruits and vegetables brought to us when the snow flies.

Scriptural Comfort.

A dear old lady recently declared that if it wasn't for a certain passage of Scripture she'd never have been able to endure her trials and tribulations. She didn't quite know where in the Bible the passage was located, but what it said was, "Gird and bear it."—Boston Transcript.

Clean Leather Bags.

Brown leather bags may be cleaned by rubbing on a thick lather of pure white soap. Apply it with a sponge, rub hard, let it remain on a few minutes, then wipe dry with flannel cloth and polish with vaseline; rub this in with bare hand; rub hard; don't use too much and wipe off well.

Enthusiasm's Great Value.

Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm.—It is the real allegory of the tale of Orpheus; it moves stones, and charms brutes.—It is the genius of sincerity, and truth accomplishes no victories without it.—Bulwer.

NON-HEADACHE DUMORITE NON-FREEZING

3 more $ = $ 25 10

AT OUR STORE Your dynamite - is now worth $ 1.35

WE will sell you 135 to 140 sticks of Dumorite for the same money you now pay for 100 sticks of 40% dynamite.

Dumorite has the strength of 40% dynamite and the slow, heaving action of "20%," which makes it a better farm explosive, stick for stick, than either of these dynamites. And you can buy 135 to 140 1 1/4 x 8 in. sticks of Dumorite at the price of 100 1 1/4 x 8 in. sticks of "40%." In addition, Dumorite is absolutely non-freezing and positively will not cause headache.

Think—this year, with Dumorite, you can clear nearly 1/3 more acres of stump land at the same cost you paid last year for dynamite, or you can clear the same amount as in 1921, at a saving of approximately one-fourth.

Let Dumorite help you make 1922 the biggest land clearing year of all—and let us help you figure the cost of your season's blasting work. We know that we can save you about one-fourth—maybe more.

Pontiac—Farm bureau financial prospects for the coming year are auspicious, according to Mrs. George T. Hendrie, in charge of a committee drafting the program for the year. She reports there is every prospect that receipts will be $15,000, of which $2,500 is federal aid. The bureau began work two years ago with indebtedness of $7,000, of which $4,000 remains. This will be wiped out during 1922, Mrs. Hendrie maintains.

SAYS HE'LL WARN BANKS TO REFUSE BONUS LOANS

COMPTROLLER H. R. CRISSINGER

Washington—Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger in an interview has pointed out that adjusted service certificates such as now being considered by congress, would not be eligible for rediscount by federal reserve banks.

Mr. Crissinger said that he would advise all national banks to refuse to accept the certificates as collateral as they would constitute the worst kind of frozen credits. House leaders who are sponsors for the plan dispute the treasury official's contention and in the meantime are going forward with the measure.

SAYS SALOME WAS ACROBAT

Idea of Naughty Dancer All False, Historian Declares.

London—Salome was an acrobatic tumbler—not a dancer of the modern ballet type, according to evidence laid before the royal archaeological institute by George C. Bruce, of Oxford.

If his evidence is corroborated, theologians, historians and others have long labored under a misapprehension as to Salome's first claim to fame. All the old illuminated parchments and carvings show her posing as an acrobat and not as a dancer, Mr. Bruce declares.

DENBY OPPOSES GOMPERS' PLAN

NAVY HEAD SEES NO PRACTICAL WAY OF TURNING YARDS INTO INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

PRIVATE CONCERNS MAY LEASE

A. F. L. Head Submitted Program Containing 15 Proposals for Relief of Unemployed.

Washington—Conversion of navy yards into industrial plants for the purpose of obtaining contracts from other government departments could be accomplished only at the expense of privately owned factories, and, therefore, would not be of value to the unemployed, Secretary Denby declared Sunday night in a letter, answering suggestions laid before him recently by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, as head of a delegation representing "furloughed" navy-yard naval employees.

Several thousands of the employees were given leave without pay as consequence of the naval agreements reached at the Washington arms conference.

"It is difficult to see," Secretary Denby said, "how the national unemployment situation will be in any way alleviated, even if it is found feasible to compete in the open market with industrial plants on the outside. As to this I have very serious doubt, for I know of no industrial plant in private life where such liberality is shown employees, thereby increasing the overhead, as in the navy yards of the United States.

Moreover, the secretary continued, he doubted very much the wisdom of artificially keeping up "navy yards," thereby perhaps causing the destruction of the latter." When the navy yards are not required to maintain the fleet, he said, they should be abandoned, or leased to private concerns, who may find employment for them.

The delegation, headed by Mr. Gompers, submitted a program comprising 15 proposals, designed to relieve the situation of the men thrown out of work. Secretary Denby took up the suggestions in order, explaining that the department did not have the appropriations necessary to undertake them, or lacked authority.

Some people don't open the door when opportunity knocks because they think it is just another collector.

Totemism.

Totemism was, and still is, a system of tribal divisions among many primitive races of men, its origin dating back to the people of pre-historic times. Natural objects, usually an animal, bird, fish, or reptile, were taken as a totem, both for clans and individuals. The representation of individual totems in many regions of the earth was often painted upon the body, or painted or otherwise worked upon such possessions as blankets, skins of animals, utensils, and shields.

MORE MILLIONS FOR WESTERN MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

Michigan may look forward to the biggest resort and tourist business this coming summer that the state has ever known. This is the confident prediction of Secretary-Manager, Hugh J. Gray, of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, who is keeping a close eye upon the situation.

"There are various reasons to expect strong prosperity in the tourist industry—the third biggest industry in Michigan," declares Mr. Gray. "First is the steady growth in favor of Michigan as the favorite playground of the South and the Middle West—a growth fostered by our nearness to this vast territory and to the fact that we are now within an easy auto run of Chicago, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Kentucky, and even states farther away.

Second, we are now beginning to realize more and more the cumulative effects of our past advertising campaigns, which will be carried forward by our publicity plans for 1922.

Third, our main highways from the South, West, and East into the Western Michigan territory have now reached such a stage of development that they are very alluring to the auto tourist, instead of inspiring him with terror, as they did only three or four years ago. Our new paved trunk lines are going to stimulate traffic in a wonderful way unless all signs fail. Travelers will be able to travel this summer all the way from the Indiana and Ohio lines to the Straits of Mackinaw over roads that will carry them along as fast as they want to go within the limits of the law. There will be a few detours due to improvement work, but these detours will be in good shape according to the promises of road commissioners.

"But if Michigan wants the added millions that will come from increased tourist and resort business, it must go after the tourists in a way that will make sure of their coming here instead of being tempted to other resort sections. We must keep on advertising, we must keep up our efforts to make our resort regions more attractive. Ways and means of doing this will be discussed at the More-Millions-for-Western-Michigan conference to be held in Grand Rapids on Wednesday, March 29. That is why we are so anxious to get a large and representative assemblage of public spirited men from all parts of this territory."

The More-Millions-for-Western-Michigan conference will be held in Press Hall, Grand Rapids, following the annual meetings of the directors of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association and the Western Michigan Development Bureau. It is scheduled for 3 o'clock on the afternoon of March 29. In the evening will be held a large get-together session at the Hotel Paultine, to be presided over by Former Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Edwin F. Sweet and to have as its principal speaker, Secretary Harry Burhans of the Denver Tourist Bureau.

PENINSULAR

(Edited by Mrs. E. Hayden)

Dorothy Jarman came home Friday March 17th from the Reycraft hospital in Petoskey, where she underwent a slight operation on Friday March 10th, just one week. She had to be taken on a bed, but she was able to walk to the depot from the hospital, and walked from the depot in Boyne City to the lannery because the streets were to bare for sleighs and the country roads had too much snow for wheels. She had been confined to her bed for a month or more and is now able to be up all the time and never felt better.

The Eveline Township board met at the office of the township clerk, J. W. Flanders, N. W. of Ironton, Tuesday March 21st to settle up the book. The members of the board from the Peninsula who went were Frank H. Wangeman, Supervisor; Mrs. Lena O'Brien, Dep. Township Treasurer; and John P. Seiler, Justice of the Peace.

The Three Bells school is closed for a two weeks vacation. Miss Dorothy McDonald, the teacher was taken with a nervous break down Feb'y 21 and is still unable to resume the work. Lyle Wangeman substituted for her three weeks.

A. G. Reich, who let one of his horses to J. H. Parker in Boyne City for the winter, got a call Friday to come and get it as the winter was past, but Tuesday morning bright and early he got a call to bring it back for the relay of winter.

The Star School was closed Tuesday because the roads were so full of snow the teacher could not get there, a distance of 3/4 mile, but the scholars did not get the word until the most of them got nearly to school and had to wade back home in the storm.

The worst storm yet commenced Saturday evening as rain and continued to rain all day Sunday, freezing making everything a glare of ice until late in the afternoon when the temperature rose and snow fell, which continued to fall until Tuesday morning when the sun came out. The roads are not very much dried and the new snow filled up the holes and covered the bare spots, making the best sleighing of the winter.

Because the mail train was late, there was no mail to bring out Tuesday, so "Pat" didn't come.

Wells Wildy of Boyne City spent several days on his farm lately.

Mrs. Sherman Wildy is visiting in Boyne City.
Mrs. Mercy Woerfl went to Petoskey Friday morning on the early train and accompanied Miss Dorothy Jarman home. While waiting for the train in Petoskey she called on her step-grandmother, Mrs. Elton Jarman.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira McKee received word some time last week that their son-in-law, Ezra Dean was ill with sleeping sickness in Colorado and not expected to live two hours, but later got a wire he was still alive. Because of not being able to get central, I am unable to get more particulars.

True Detective Stories
MASTER CRIMINAL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.
SHORTLY after Allan Pinkerton founded the detective agency which was destined to be feared by so many criminals, a number of banks and financial institutions throughout the country were made the victims of a particularly clever gang of crooks headed by Walter Eastman Sheridan, the man whom Pinkerton in his memoirs declares was the cleverest criminal he ever tracked.

The operations of the Sheridan organization were marked by a simplicity which was almost startling. Their favorite trick was to plant one of their members in a line leading to the window of the receiving teller of a prominent bank shortly before the closing hour. The man so planted would take up a position behind someone who held in his hands a large roll of bills, and would wait until the depositor had almost reached the window. Then he would tap him on the shoulder, call his attention to a bill which "he had dropped on the floor," and the man would naturally stoop to pick it up, in nine cases out of ten placing his money on the teller's shelf as he bent over. The criminal would then snatch the money and make off.

While the hauls secured in this manner were, of course, of varying sizes, Sheridan and his men picked up $75,000 as the result of less than five minutes' work at a Baltimore bank. After several other coups of a similar nature, Sheridan tried the same game at the First National bank of Springfield, Ill., but was arrested. He promptly skipped his bail, however, and the next that Pinkerton heard of him was when he assisted at the robbery of a Cleveland bank which netted the gang some $40,000. This was followed by a raid upon the Mechanics' bank of Scranton, Pa., where Sheridan and one of his men got away with $30,000 worth of negotiable bonds. His next exploit—one which took more than four months of careful planning—was the looting of the Falls City Tobacco bank in Louisville, Ky., when upwards of $300,000 was secured.

As a result of these operations, together with the shrewd manner in which he had invested his money, Sheridan was worth fully $250,000.

Feeling certain that his past exploits had left no clue to his connection with the robberies, and having obtained his acquittal of the only charge on which he had been arrested, Sheridan joined in a series of the most gigantic frauds ever known in America—the issuance of bonds purporting to be worth more than $5,000,000. These forgeries were so cleverly executed as to deceive even the officers of the companies involved, and the discovery of the swindle ruined scores of Wall street brokers and private investors.

On the eve of the day on which the bubble burst, Sheridan quietly cashed all his assets, closed his office at No. 60 Broadway, and sailed for Belgium, which at that time provided a safe refuge from extradition. Had he remained there, he would have died a free man. But he could not resist the lure of gambling with the law, and he slipped back into America under the name of William A. Stewart, establishing himself in business in Denver, and finally opening a bank of his own in Rosta, Colo.

Even up to this time Pinkerton had no idea that the master criminal had returned to the states. Pinkerton, however, managed to have business which carried him into the mining districts of Colorado, and it was on the streets of Denver that he came face to face with the man whom he was certain was Sheridan.

Investigation developed the fact that "Stewart" had been leading an apparently upright and honest life, and beyond his arrival in Denver shortly after Sheridan had left Brussels, there was nothing to connect him with the bank robber and bond forger.

Realizing that identification under the circumstances would be extremely difficult, Pinkerton determined to resort to a ruse which would serve a double purpose—that of proving whether Stewart and Sheridan were one and the same man, and at the same time implicating him, if guilty, in the planning of a new crime. Accordingly, Pinkerton sent two of his best men to Colorado with instructions to make the acquaintance of the bank president at Rosta, and finally to lay before him the details of a huge swindle which they were supposed to be planning.

"If Stewart is really honest," argued the detective, "he will not listen to such a proposal. But if he is the man I think he is, he will be able to resist the bait, and will come to New York to participate in the fraud." The plan worked out precisely as Pinkerton had figured. "Stewart" not only agreed to handle some of the more difficult details of the proposed bond forgery, but suggested improvements identical with those which had previously proved successful. He balked on coming east, but his "associates" finally persuaded him to do so, with the result that he was arrested the moment he stepped off the ferry at New York.

In spite of the fact that the grand jury returned no less than $2 indictments against him, Sheridan escaped with a five-year sentence in Sing Sing, but he died before the expiration of his term.

COST OF PAVING COMPILED ON TYPES OF MATERIAL

Average cost per square yard of various types of paving for country roads have been compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture. The figures cover 68,000,000 square yards of paving constructed with Federal aid in all parts of the United States during the period 1916-1921. The costs per square yard are as follows: Sand-clay, 18 cents; gravel, 46 cents; plain and surface-treated macadam, 95 cents; bituminous macadam, $2.10; bituminous concrete, $2.50; plain cement concrete, $2.57; reinforced-cement concrete, $2.74; and brick, $4.10.

These figures cover only the cost of the paving; they do not include the cost of grading, and officials point out that it must not be assumed that roads of the several types can be constructed in any locality at these figures. For example, the cost of bituminous concrete varied from $1.70 in the New England States to $3.13 in the group of States including Kentucky, Tennessee

Mississippi, and Alabama. In one group of States the cost of brick dropped to $2.40. Costs of constructing these types in the various groups of States have been compiled and can be obtained from the bureau.

Darning Loom.

Darning is made into a pleasant occupation. It is claimed, when done with a device recently introduced in England. The little darning machine consists of a flat stretcher which is placed behind the heel in the stocking, and over which is slipped a saddle that holds the stocking in place. The thread is wound back and forth over the hole on hooks on this saddle. A third piece, hinged on the saddle, hooks under every other thread and raises or depresses them alternately while a threaded needle is passed back and forth between them, as in weaving.

Mountain Out of Molehill.

"To make a mountain out of a molehill," meaning to exaggerate, to magnify a danger or a situation unduly, has become a common phrase. But it is not taken from an old proverb or other popular sayings. The first to use it was the American writer, Henry Ellis (1777-1830). In his "Original Letters," the author is not very well known; his principal contribution to literature is almost forgotten.

Cracks in the Wall.

To remedy unsightly cracks in a wall place in a saucepan one pound of flour and rub in a little cold water until free from lumps. Add three quarts of boiling water, place on the stove, bring to a boil and stir in a tablespoonful of alum. Cut a quantity of newspaper into fine bits and stir it into this paste until it is about as thick as putty. Boil and stir until smooth. Fill the cracks with this with help of a putty knife or a broken pointed case knife. Crowd it into the crack as far as possible, and finish it off level and smooth.

Sherrill opened the long envelope, from which several thin, folded papers fell. He picked up the largest of these, which consisted of several sheets fastened together with a clip, and handed it to Alan without comment. Alan, as he looked at it and turned the pages, saw that it contained two columns of typewriting carried from page to page after the manner of an account.

The column to the left was an inventory of property and profits and income by months and years, and the one to the right was a list of losses and expenditures. Beginning at an indefinite day or month in the year 1895, there was set down in a lump sum what was indicated as the total of Benjamin Corvet's holdings at that time. To this, in sometimes undated items, the increase had been added. In the opposite column, beginning apparently from the same date in 1895, were the missing man's expenditures.

Alan having ascertained that the papers contained only this account, looked up questioning to Sherrill; but Sherrill, without speaking, merely handed him the second of the papers. Alan unfolded it and saw that it was a letter written in the same hand which had written the summons he had received in Blue Rapids and had made the entries in the little memorandum book of the remittances that had been sent to John Welton.

It began simply:

"Lawrence—
"This will come to you in the event that I am not able to carry out the plan upon which I am now, at last, determined. You will find with this a list of my possessions. Deeds for all real estate executed and complete except for recording of the transfer at the county office; bonds, certificates, and other documents representing my ownership of properties, together with signed forms for their legal transfer to you, are in this box. These properties, in their entirety, I give to you in trust to hold for the young man now known as Alan Conrad of Blue Rapids, Kan., to deliver any part or all over to him or to continue to hold it all in trust for him as you shall consider to be to his greatest advantage.

"This for the reasons which I shall have told to you or him—I cannot know which one of you now, nor do I know how I shall tell it. But when you learn, Lawrence, think as well of me as you can and help him to be charitable to me.

"With the greatest affection,
"BENJAMIN CORVET."

Alan, as he finished reading, looked up to Sherrill, bewildered and dazed.

"What does it mean, Mr. Sherrill? Does it mean that he has gone away and left everything he had—everything to me?"

"If Mr. Corvet does not return, and I do not receive any other instructions, I shall take over his estate, as he has instructed, for your advantage."

"And, Mr. Sherrill, he didn't tell you why? This is all you know?"

"Yes; you have everything now. All we can do, Alan, is to search for him in every way we can. There will be others searching for him too now; for information of his disappearance has got out. There have been reporters at the office this morning making inquiries, and his disappearance will be in the afternoon papers."

Sherrill put the papers back in their envelope, and the envelope back into the drawer, which he relocked.

"I went over all this with Mr. Spearman this morning," he said. "He is as much at a loss to explain it as I am."

He was silent for a few moments.

"The transfer of Mr. Corvet's properties to me for you," he said suddenly, "includes, as you have seen, Corvet's interest in the firm of Corvet, Sherrill & Spearman. I went very carefully through the deeds and transfers in the deposit box, and it was plain that, while he had taken great care with the forms of transfer for all the properties, he had taken particular pains with whatever related to his holdings in this company and to his shipping interests. If I make over the properties to you, Alan, I shall begin with those; for it seems to me that your father was particularly anxious that you should take a personal as well as a financial place among the men who control the traffic of the lakes. I have told Spearman that this is my intention. He has not been able to see it any way as yet; but he may change his views, I think, after meeting you."

Sherrill got up. Alan arose a little unsteadily. The list of properties he had read and the letter and Sherrill's statement portended so much that its meaning could not all come to him at once. He followed Sherrill through a short private corridor, flanked with blue lettered "Corvet, Sherrill, and Spearman," into the large room he had seen when he came in with Constance. They crossed this, and Sherrill, without knocking, opened the door of the office marked, "Mr. Spearman." Alan, looking on just Sherrill as the door opened, saw that there were some half dozen men in the room, smoking and talking. His gaze went swiftly on past these men to the one who, half seated on the top of the flat desk, had been talking to them; and his pulse closed upon his heart with a shock; he started, choked with astonishment, then swiftly forced himself under control. For this was the man whom he had met and whom he had fought in Benjamin Corvet's house the night before—the big man surprised in his blasphemy of Corvet and of souls "in him"—who, at sight of an apparition with a bullet hole above its eye, had cried out in his fright, "You got Ben! But you won't get me—d—n you! D—n you!"

Alan's shoulders drew up slightly, and the muscles of his hands tightened, as Sherrill led him to this man. Sherrill put his hand on the man's shoulder; his other hand was still on Alan's arm.

"Henry," he said to the man, "this is Alan Conrad. Alan, I want you to know my partner, Mr. Spearman."

Spearman nodded an acknowledgment, but did not put out his hand; his eyes—steady, bold, watchful eyes—seemed measuring Alan attentively; and in return Alan, with his gaze, was measuring him.

CHAPTER VII.

Mr. Corvet's Partner.

The instant of meeting, when Alan recognized in Sherrill's partner, the man with whom he had fought in Corvet's house, was one of swift readjustment of all his thoughts—adjustment to a situation of which he could not even have dreamed, and which left him breathless. But for Spearman, obviously, it was not that. Following his noncommittal nod of acknowledgment of Sherrill's introduction and his first steady scrutiny of Alan, the big, handsome man spying himself off from the desk on which he sat and leaned against it, facing them more directly.

"Oh, yes—Conrad," he said. His tone was hearty; "in it Alan could recognize only so much of reserve as might be expected from Sherrill's partner who had taken an attitude of opposition. The shipmasters, looking on, could see, no doubt, not even that; except for the excitement which Alan himself could not conceal, it must appear to them only an ordinary introduction.

Alan fought sharply down the swift rush of his blood and the tightening of his muscles.

"I can say truly that I'm glad to meet you, Mr. Spearman," he managed.

There was no recognition of anything beyond the mere surface meaning of the words in Spearman's slow smile of acknowledgment, as he turned from Alan to Sherrill.

"I'm afraid you've taken rather a bad time, Lawrence. Can't we get together later—this afternoon? You'll be about here this afternoon?"

"I think I can be here this afternoon," Alan said.

"Let's say two-thirty, then," Spearman turned and noted the hour almost solicitously among the scrawled appointments on his desk pad; straightening, after this act of dismissal, he walked with them to the door, his hand on Sherrill's shoulder.

"Circumstances have put us—Mr. Sherrill and myself—in a very difficult position, Conrad," he remarked. "We want much to be fair to all concerned—"

He did not finish the sentence, but halted at the door. Sherrill went out, and Alan followed him; exasperation—half outrage yet half admiration—at Spearman's bearing, held Alan speechless. If every movement of Spearman's great, handsome body had not recalled to him their struggle of the night before—if, as Spearman's hand rested cordially on Sherrill's shoulder, Alan had not seemed to feel again that big hand at his throat—he would almost have been ready to believe that this was not the man whom he had fought. But he could not doubt that; he had recognized Spearman beyond question. And Spearman had recognized him—he was sure of that; he could not for an instant doubt it; Spearman had known it was Alan whom he had fought in Corvet's house even before Sherrill had brought them together. Was there not further proof of that in Spearman's subsequent manner toward him? For what was all this cordiality except defiance?

Power and possession—both far exceeding Alan's most extravagant dreams—were promised him by those papers which Sherrill had shown him. When he had read down the list of those properties, he had had no more feeling that such things could be his than he had had at first that Corvet's house could be his—until he had heard the intruder moving in that house. And now it was the sense that another was going to make him fight for those properties that was bringing to him the realization of his new power. He "had" something on that man—on Spearman. He did not know what that thing was; no stretch of his thought, nothing that he knew about himself or others, could tell him; but, at sight of him, in the dark of Corvet's house, Spearman had cried out in horror, he had screamed at him the name of a sunken ship, and in terror had hurled his electric torch. It was true, Spearman's terror had not been at Alan Conrad; it had been because Spearman had mistaken him for some one else—for a ghost. But, after learning that Alan was not a ghost, Spearman's attitude had not very greatly changed; he had fought, he had been willing to kill rather than to be caught there.

Alan thought an instant; he would make sure he still "had" that something on Spearman and would learn how far it went. He took up the receiver and asked for Spearman.

A voice answered—"Yes."
Alan said, evenly: "I think you and I had better have a talk before we meet with Mr. Sherrill this afternoon. I am here in Mr. Corvet's office now and will be here for half an hour, then I'm going out."

Spearman made no reply, but hung up the receiver. Alan sat waiting, his watch upon the desk before him—tense, expectant, with flushes of hot and cold passing over him. Ten minutes passed; then twenty. The telephone under Corvet's desk buzzed.

"Mr. Spearman says he will give you five minutes now," the switchboard girl said.

Alan breathed deep with relief; Spearman had wanted to refuse to see him—but he had not refused; he had sent for him within the time Alan had appointed and after waiting until just before it expired.

Alan put his watch back into his pocket and, crossing to the other office, found Spearman alone. There was no pretense of courtesy now in Spearman's manner; he sat motionless at his desk, his bold eyes fixed on Alan intently. Alan closed the door behind him and advanced toward the desk.

"I thought we'd better have, some explanation," he said, "about our meeting last night."

"Our meeting?" Spearman repeated; his eyes had narrowed watchfully.

"You told Mr. Sherrill that you were in Duluth and that you arrived home in Chicago only this morning. Of course you don't mean to stick to that story with me?"

"What are you talking about?" Spearman demanded.

"Of course, I know exactly where you were a part of last evening; and you know that I know. I only want to know what explanation you have to offer."

Spearman leaned forward. "Talk sense and talk it quick; if you have anything to say to me!"

"I haven't," told Mr. Sherrill that I found you at Corvet's house last night; but I don't want you to doubt for a minute that I know you—and about your cry about saving the Mivaka!"

A flash of blue came to Spearman's face; Alan, in his excitement, was sure of it; but there was just that flash, no more. He turned, while Spearman sat chewing his cigar and staring at him, and went out and partly closed the door. Then, suddenly, he reopened it, looked in, reclosed it sharply, and went on his way, shaking a little. For, as he looked back this second time at the dominant, determined, able man seated at his desk, what he had seen in Spearman's face was fear; fear of himself, of Alan Conrad of Blue Rapids—yet it was not fear of that sort which weakens or disarms; it was of that sort which, merely warning of danger close at hand, determines one to use every means within his power to save himself.

Alan, still trembling excitedly, crossed to Corvet's office to await Sherrill. It was not, he felt sure now, Alan Conrad that Spearman was opposing; it was not even the apparent successor to the controlling stock of Corvet, Sherrill and Spearman. That Alan resented some one—some one whose ghost had seemed to come to Spearman and might, perhaps, have come to Corvet—was only incidental to what was going on now; for in Alan's presence Spearman found a threat—an active, present threat against himself. Alan could not imagine what the nature of that threat could be. Was it because there was something still concealed in Corvet's house which Spearman feared Alan would find? Or was it connected only with that some one whom Alan resembled?

Constance Sherrill's most active thought that day was about Henry Spearman, for she had a luncheon engagement with him at one o'clock.

The tea room of a department store offers to young people opportunities for dining together without furnishing reason for even innocently connecting their names too intimately, if a girl is not seen there with the same man too often. There is something essentially casual and unpremeditated about it—as though the man and the girl, both shopping and both hungry, had just happened to meet and go to lunch together. As Constance recently had drawn closer to Henry Spearman in her thought, and particularly since she had been seriously considering marrying him, she had clung deliberately to this unplanned appearance about their meetings.

She glanced across at him, when she had settled herself, and the first little trivialities of their being together were over.

"I took a visitor down to your office this morning," she said.

"Yes," he answered.

Constance was aware that it was only formally that she had taken Alan Conrad down to confer with her father; since Henry was there, she knew her father would not act without his agreement, and that whatever disposition had been made regarding Alan had been made by him.

"Did you like him, Henry? I hoped you would."

He did not answer at once. The waitress brought their order, and he served her; then, as the waitress moved away, he looked across at Constance with a long scrutiny.

"You've seen a good deal of him, yesterday and today, your father tells me," he observed.

"Yes."
"It's plain enough you like him," he remarked.

She reflected seriously. "Yes, I do; though I hadn't thought of it just that way, because I was thinking more about the position he was in and about—Mr. Corvet. But I do like him."

"So do I," Spearman said with a seeming heartiness that pleased her. "At least I should like him, Constance, if I had the sort of privilege you have to think whether I liked or disliked him. I've had to consider him from another point of view—whether I could trust him or must distrust him."

"Distrust?" Constance bent toward him impulsively in her surprise. "Distrust him? In relation to what? Why?"

"In relation to Corvet, Sherrill and Spearman, Constance—the company that involves your interests and your father's and mine and the interests of many other people—small stockholders who have no influence in its management, and whose interests I have to look after for them."

"I don't understand, Henry."

"I've had to think of Conrad this morning in the same way as I've had to think of Ben Corvet of recent years—as a threat against the interests of those people."

Her color rose, and her pulse quickened. Henry never had talked to her, except in the merest commonplace, about his relations with Uncle Benny; it was a matter in which, she had recognized, they had been opposed; and since the quarrels between the old friend whom she had loved from childhood and he, who wished to become now more than a mere friend to her, had grown more violent, she had purposely avoided mentioning Uncle Benny to Henry, and he, quite as consciously, had avoided mentioning Mr. Corvet to her.

Robert Grant, East Jordan, says: "Kidney trouble had me in a mighty poor shape some ten years ago. At times my back played out while at work. I couldn't lie still in bed as my back hurt so. After a hard day's work I couldn't get any rest. I would go from one side of the bed to the other all night long. Night after night I had to get up and sit in a chair. My hands and feet often swelled and suffered with rheumatic pains. My kidneys were in such an unhealthy condition that I had to get up many times during the night. The secretions were badly colored and filled with sediment. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and I bought a few boxes at the Hite Drug Co., and they cured me in great shape."

XXVII. THIS WAS YOUR MONEY

Consider for a moment, if you will, some further figures. This is your money I am talking about.

For every fiscal year from 1866 to 1893, inclusive, there was a surplus of receipts over expenditures. During this period of 28 years the surplus of receipts over expenditures totaled $1,920,205,013.41.

For the fiscal years 1894 to 1899, inclusive, the expenditures exceeded the receipts in the aggregate of $238,022,091.14. For the fiscal years 1900 to 1904, inclusive, the surplus of receipts over expenditures aggregated $310,319,165.04. For 1905 the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $78,776,622.80.

For the years 1910 to 1914, inclusive, the receipts exceeded the expenditures by $430,024,404.27. For 1915 the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $33,488,931.53. For 1916 the receipts exceeded the expenditures by $55,171,553.59, and for 1917 there was a deficit of $29,724,864.73.

From 1866 to 1917, inclusive, the receipts exceeded the expenditures for each year with the exception of 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1905, 1906, 1909, 1915 and 1917. The total amount by which the expenditures exceeded the receipts for these 11 years just named, is $448,766,744.70. For the 52 fiscal years, 1866 to 1917, inclusive, the receipts exceeded the expenditures in 41 years, the total of such excess for that period being $2,591,453,184.16.

For the fiscal years 1866 to 1910, the revenues were raised through an indirect system of taxation. Beginning with the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, the receipts from direct methods of taxation have usually grown each fiscal year, as will be seen by the following table:

1910—Corporation tax	20,861,780.97
1911—Corporation tax	23,516,976.59
1912—Corporation tax	28,583,202.73
1913—Corporation tax	35,006,250.84
1914—Corporation tax	40,671,077.22
1914—Corporation income tax	22,456,822.67
1914—Individual income tax	28,523,534.55
1915—Emergency revenue	52,009,126.29
1915—Corporation income tax	39,155,536.77
1915—Individual income tax	41,046,122.09
1915—Emergency revenue	84,278,232.13
1916—Corporation income tax	65,993,557.68
1916—Individual income tax	67,943,594.83
1917—Emergency revenue	56,297,533.85
1917—Corporation income tax	179,572,837.98
1917—Individual income tax	190,166,349.10
1918—Income and excess profits tax	2,838,869,834.28
1918—Income and excess profits tax	2,696,008,702.70

The number of corporations making income tax returns showing taxable income, aggregated 32,408 in the calendar year 1903, and that number increased to 232,079 for the calendar year 1917. The number of individuals making personal income tax returns aggregated 357,598 for the calendar year 1913, and that number increased to 3,472,830 for the calendar year 1917.

For the fiscal year 1900 the total ordinary receipts aggregated $609,569,459.84, of which $300,711,933.95 came from customs duties, $246,212,043.50 came from internal revenue, and the balance was received from the sale of public lands and other miscellaneous items; whereas, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, the total receipts from customs amounted to $184,457,807.39, while the internal revenue, including income taxes and corporation and excess profits taxes, amounted to $3,839,950,612.05.

So you will see that until 1910 the money you paid toward the support of the government was shipped away from you so easily that you hardly knew anything about it. You did not know that you were paying taxes to the national government.

Indirect taxation is the most seclusive form of raising public revenue. You never came in contact with the federal government except when you bought a postage stamp. But now you know it every time you buy a drink at a soda fountain, or a bottle of medicine, or send a telegram, or make a long-distance telephone call, or perform any one of a score of other normal activities of daily life. Something must be put in the kitty for the government. Its annual takeoff runs into the billions. You pay it and the government spends it.

But all that part of the party is about over now. The oysters have been eaten and put in the bill. They must be paid for. It is perfectly clear that in the future by the greater part of the revenue required for conducting the public business must come from direct taxes. It is also clear that the ordinary expenses for running the government will in future probably exceed four billion dollars a year. That is a lot of money to take out of your pockets, and mine. Hadn't we better see what is done with it, and whether we can save any of it? Congress, which is very far-sighted, and able, when its own skin is concerned, to distinguish a hawk from a hand saw at a very great distance, is beginning to take notice.

REMEDY IN YOUR HANDS

I have been a tax man, and particularly since this series began: "What is the remedy for the condition and situation of government business that you have described? What can we, the average man or woman without influence, and with no knowledge of politics, what can we do about it?"

Well, the answer is that you can do everything about it. The remedy lies wholly within your own hands, as I have tried to point out in each one of the articles that have preceded this one. It is a remedy easy to prescribe but, I confess, difficult to put into effect.

Difficult, I mean, in the sense that you will have to give up time from your own engrossing private affairs to pay some attention to what you probably think of as public affairs and, as such, not concerning you. The whole point I have to make is that public affairs are your affairs.

I do not suggest that you go into politics. I do not suggest that you attend political meetings. I do suggest that you take an interest, a direct personal interest, in the business of government as distinguished from the politics of government.

A part of the remedy you ask for the conduct of the business of government has been applied when the facts and the conditions are spread broadcast and made known to every taxpayer. Bad conditions are in a way to be remedied when they become known.

But some hundreds of you have written me and asked: "How can we help? What can we do?" Let's take a concrete case.

Congress has committed itself to the policy of building twenty first-class battleships in the next few years. Armed and equipped, those battleships will cost in the neighborhood of $45,000,000 each. That will make a total cost of $900,000,000; that is, just short of a billion dollars.

Do you approve that expenditure? Do you think it wise and necessary? Do you think we ought to spend our money that way? Do you think we ought to spend 80 or 90 per cent of our total national income for wars, past, present and prospective? That is what we are doing. If you approve of it you have only to sit still and say nothing. If you disapprove of it, let your congressman know.

You live in a congressional district and every two years you send a man here to Washington to attend to your public business. Do you know him? Do you know what he is doing here? Your state has two senators, who also represent you here. If they do not represent you fairly, you can keep them at home. Whatever a majority of you want you can have.

To this moment a majority have approved, at least by silence, the great military expenditures that have been made from the money you have paid in taxes. If now you have come to the conclusion that it is too much, you have only to say so.

Do you realize that this conference on the limitation of armament which President Harding called arose fundamentally out of the circumstance that all of the so-called big nations are paying more than they can afford to pay by way of preparation for war? The endeavor to find a formula to limit armaments is another way of saying that the nations are trying to find a way to save money. Since the war the great powers are all living beyond their means. All of them are in debt. All of them, except ourselves, owe more than they can pay. In all of them, including the United States, government expenses are running beyond government income. A nation can no more stand that sort of thing than a private person or a private business.

If you will devote a half hour or an hour every evening to thinking about and talking about public business you will be amazed at the prompt response you will get. If there is any question you want to ask, write to your congressman or to either one of your senators. That will cost you two cents for a postage stamp, and it won't cost him anything to reply, for his letters go through the mails free. That is one way of helping to remedy the present condition.

One night while he was asleep, the captain is reported to have said, the cargo, wrapped in burlap, was placed on board. The captain thought it consisted of cocanuts.

It is said that the Carthaginians were the first people to use a system of road paving, but the Romans were the most famous road-makers. The name of John Macadam will always be associated with the roads because he invented a form of road now known as "tar-macadam." Wood-paving was first used in Russia and introduced to Britain in 1836.

PRESIDENT ASKS FOR SUGGESTIONS

HEARS CRITICS OF U. S. VETS' HOSPITALS ON RETURN FROM FLORIDA.

WANTS TO HELP WAR'S AFFLICTED

Shows Personal Interest in Welfare of Wounded; Vets Seek $16,500,000 for Hospitals.

Washington.—Problems connected with the care of the disabled soldiers was the first matter considered by President Harding Sunday on his return from a vacation in Florida. The president called Director Forbes of the Veterans' bureau; Director Dawes, of the Budget bureau, and Brigadier General Sawyer to meet Illinois officials of the American Legion in conference to discuss the whole plan of government hospitalization and vocational training of former service men.

The Illinois officials were asked to state the criticisms which they were said to have made against the present plan and to suggest any improvement or amendment they had in mind. The president made known his deep personal interest in the subject and the desire of himself and other government officials to do everything possible for the welfare of the men whose disabilities have resulted from their serving the United States.

The special train conveying Mr. and Mrs. Harding and their party reached Washington shortly after noon, the run having been made on schedule time and without incident. The executive and Mrs. Harding went at once to the White House.

Mr. Harding said he felt greatly benefitted as a result of the rest and the numerous games of golf which marked his vacation stay, and declared he had a "bully" time.

Mrs. Harding and the other members of the party voiced similar sentiment.

Cincinnati, O.—Urgent necessity of caring for thousands of mental, nervous and physically handicapped ex-service men will be stressed to congressmen and senators this week when members of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in all parts of the country, will demand passage of the Langley bill, appropriating $16,500,000 for increased hospital facilities.

This action comes in the wake of a survey, made in all parts of the country by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, the organization composed exclusively of men wounded and disabled in the service.

OBENCHAIN JURY IS DISCHARGED

Hopelessly Deadlocked at 9 to 3 for Woman's Conviction.

Los Angeles.—The jury that tried Mrs. Madelynn Connor Obenchain for the murder of her sweetheart, J. Belton Kennedy, was discharged Sunday night after it had announced itself hopelessly deadlocked.

But five ballots were taken in 55 hours and 48 minutes that elapsed between the time the jury retired until the moment it announced itself unable to agree upon a verdict.

And from first to last the nine men and three women stood nine to three for conviction—for hanging.

The three who hung out for acquittal were the foreman, Frank Crockett, a retired lawyer; Mrs. Grace E. Ward and Mrs. George R. Murdock.

BOARD TO SIFT CONTRACT PLAN

EMPLOYEES OF ERIE RAILROAD CLAIM COMPANY EVADES WAGE RULING.

NOW PAYING LESS THAN SCALE

Former Officials of Railroad Alleged to Control Firm Working on "Contract System."

Chicago.—Federal investigation of the Erie railroad's action in leasing its shops and contracting shop work to the Meadville Machinery company, of Meadville, Pa., has been ordered by the United States railroad labor board. The board authorized a member of its personnel to invoke, "on the aid and counsel" of the Department of Justice and to go over the property of the road in obtaining evidence first hand.

The Erie contract system came to the board's notice several months ago when shop employees brought action against the road in an endeavor to have the practice of subletting shop work declared illegal.

They declared that the work was contracted to outside firms as a subterfuge to place the shop men without the jurisdiction of the labor board. The contracting firms, it is alleged, paid lower wages than the scale fixed by the board.

The officers of the Meadville company are said in the board's announcement to be recent officers of the Erie railroad.

The former case will be reopened here and additional testimony will be taken. Ben W. Hooper, vice-chairman, is mentioned as the probable investigating member to go over the road. The investigator will be authorized to institute such legal proceedings as necessary to complete his inquiries, the board's order directing him to ask the aid of the Department of Justice in completing the investigation.

MAKE PLEA FOR WAR PRISONERS

House Committee Unsympathetic, Won't Take Action.

Washington.—In the face of apparent and outspoken opposition, lawyers and representatives of various liberal organizations have pleaded with the house judiciary committee to report a resolution asking the president to give "careful consideration" to the propriety of granting immediate amnesty to 113 political prisoners, serving long terms for violation of the espionage act.

Committeemen indicated that the resolution never would pass, insisting that congress had no right to direct the president in such matters, especially because of the lack of opportunity to review the cases.

AFRICAN MINERS END STRIKE

British Forces Restore Order After Two-Months' Warfare.

Johannesburg, Union of South Africa.—The strike of miners which has held South Africa in its grip for more than two months has been called off. The decision was taken by the old South African Industrial federation, is distinct from the federation's augmented executive. It announced, first, that the general strike was null and void; second, that the augmented executive would call off the mine strike, and, third, that complicity in the revolution against the government was repudiated by the federation.

GERMANY SELLING U. S. COTTON

Cargo Returned Here Worth More in U. S. After Paying Freight.

Boston.—The British steamer Mackinaw, from Hamburg and Bremen, brought back from Germany 5,000 bales of American cotton shipped there several months ago. The cotton was returned because market conditions in Germany at present were such that the cotton could be sold more profitably in this country, notwithstanding the freight charges involved.

DEMANDS WARRANTS IN DEALS

Officials and Members of Cotton Exchange to be Arrested.

New York.—Chief City Magistrate McAdoo, who conducted a "John Doe" investigation of the American cotton exchange, has requested the district attorney either to draft warrants for the arrest of certain officials and members of the exchange, or immediately to lay before a grand jury evidence of bucketshopping.

Gold Certificates Again Issued.

Washington.—Issuance of gold certificates, without demand, discontinued in 1917, was resumed by the treasury. Gold certificates have always been available upon demand, but during the war, silver certificates were issued on ordinary checks. Resumption of the ordinary use of gold certificates was said by treasury officials to remove the last artificial currency situation growing out of the war. The treasury now holds approximately $3,000,000,000 in gold.

Son Born to Film Actress.

New York.—Birth of a son to Alice Brady, actress, daughter of William A. Brady, became known with the filing of a certificate in the bureau of vital statistics at Mount Vernon. Miss Brady was divorced from James Lyons Crane, actor, last January. They were married two years ago. The baby, named in the certificate as Donald Crane, was born in Mount Vernon hospital, where Miss Brady had registered as Mrs. John Edwards, of Scranton, Pa.

DODGE GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Detroit Judge Makes No Exception in Millionaire's Case.

Detroit.—John Duval Dodge, millionaire, 24 years old, son of the late automobile manufacturer, was given five days in the house of correction, and fined $100 by Judge Charles L. Bartlett for speeding on Jefferson avenue. Judge Bartlett also revoked his driver's license for one year.

Young Dodge was put through the prescribed physical examination, outfitted in regulation prison uniform of striped shirt, overalls and prison shoes and assigned to a bunk.

He is under bond to answer two charges of violation of the state liquor law in Kalamazoo county courts. These charges grow out of an alleged wild ride in the celery city several days ago in which Miss Emilene Kwackernack, a student of the Western Normal college, is said to have jumped from Dodge's car, sustaining a fractured skull.

CAR LIQUOR THIEVES CAUGHT

Gang Charged With Looting N. Y. C. of $2,000,000 of Goods.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Thefts of merchandise from New York Central railroad cars on an enormous scale, resulted in the indictment by a federal grand jury of railroad detectives, saloonkeepers, merchants, chauffeurs and farmers, who are alleged to have made up a ring of thieves and "fences" that handled goods worth $2,000,000 a year for the last three years.

Whisky and alcohol comprised the chief loot of the ring during the year, it was said by Peter J. Bentley, of New York, special attorney for the New York Central. Since January, 1921, 23 robberies of cars containing liquor have been reported and the claims on these total $750,000.

SEND NOTES IN RHINE CLAIMS

Government Takes Firm Stand on $241,000,000 Army Expense.

Washington.—The Washington government is preparing to take a firm stand before the Allied governments with respect to the $241,000,000 war claims for reimbursement of the expense of the American army of occupation in Germany.

The views of the government, made necessary by the failure of the reparations commission to allot any of the German reparations fund to the United States, will be set forth in notes to the Allied governments. The notes are in course of preparation at the state department. They will go forward in the near future.

Announcement has been made that the institution would be known as the Children's Hospital of Michigan.

Mayor Couzens has been selected as president of the board of the new institution, with John W. Staley and Mrs. Henry Ledyard as vice-presidents.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.
