State-St. Has Bad Fire

Carr and Tousch Stores Completely Destroyed.

Fire of an unknown origin completely destroyed the George Carr grocery and Albert Tousch shoe shop on State street at an early hour Wednesday morning.

The fire when first discovered had gained considerable headway and seemed centered between the two buildings. A high wind was blowing and before the fire department could arrive the buildings were a mass of flames. By good work the firemen were able to hold the fire to the two buildings, saving those across the street and directly in the path of the flames and flying cinders.

The building occupied by Carr's Grocery and Meat Market was owned by Walter French, and although some insurance was carried on the building and contents, both gentlemen are heavy losers. Mr. Carr has been located in this building for the past sixteen years.

Mr. Tousch owned the building which he occupied. He estimates his loss at about $3500 on building and contents, with an insurance of $2500.

The corner building was a well-known landmark, having been erected some forty years ago. We understand it was first used as a furniture store.

Owing to the intense heat, about 100 feet of telephone cable was melted, throwing about fifty lines out of commission, among them being a number of farm lines. A cable crew are at work putting in a new cable and will have it again in order in a few days.

HOUSE NEARLY MOBS BLANTON

Texas Member's "Petty Graft" Charges Bring Stormy Session.

Washington—Representative Blanton, Texas Democrat, was denounced as a "liar" and narrowly escaped being mobbed by his angry colleagues in one of the most turbulent sessions in the history of the house.

Blanton brought the storm down upon himself by delivering a speech accusing house members of "measly graft" through the store room. Representative Garner, Texas, Democrat, took the lead in resenting the charges and Blanton soon found himself in for an even worse exorcism than when the house publicly censured him recently for publishing obscene matter in the Congressional Record.

ASSAILS INCREASE IN JUDGES

Senator Overman Characterizes Bill for 19 More as "Pork."

Washington—The cry of "pork barrel" was raised in the senate by Senator Overman, Democrat, North Carolina, against the bill to authorize 19 more federal judges. "Nineteen judges," he said, "nineteen pieces of pie. It's a pork barrel—two votes for every judge, making 38 votes to start with, and 16 amendments, each providing another judge, pending."

Montana Snow Slide Kills One.

Butte, Mont.—Snow slides in Montana resulted in one death and delay to railroad traffic. The death occurred near St. Regis, where a slide was reported to have covered the Northern Pacific railroad tracks to a depth of 18 feet at one place. Slides extending several miles stopped main line operations of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and made impossible operations over the spur of the Northern Pacific between Salt Lake and St. Regis, Mont.

Vice-President Coolidge paid Michigan a brief visit last week and met a warm reception. SLAYING PROBE CAUSES STIR

Startling Disclosures Expected as Aftermath of Beck's Shooting.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Disclosures, nationwide in scope, threaten to link the name of dashing army officers with socially prominent women, many of them married, and cause a series of scandals expected to startle the country as an aftermath of the tangled web of conflicting stories shadowing the slaying of Lieut. Col. Paul W. Beck, of Post aviation field, Fort Sill. Beck is said to have been shot by Jean P. Day, former supreme court judge, who has told the police he returned home early in the morning and found the army officer forcing his attentions on Mrs. Day.

Indications are that the war department may order a far-reaching probe of alleged booze parties which rumor has linked with army posts throughout the United States and in the more isolated national domains. This is expected to be independent of any local or state action.

THREE HELD ON FRAUD CHARGES

Fraudulent Use of Mails Disclosed in Oil Investment Deal.

Boston—An alleged oil fraud said to involve the loss of $1,000,000 to investors here and possibly millions in other parts of the country was disclosed by Federal attorneys when they made public the names of 18 oil financiers in New York, Boston and Holyoke who have been indicted secretly by the Federal Grand Jury for fraudulent use of the mails.

Charles M. Ludden, an attorney, and John E. Gilreath, an official of the Exchange Trust Co., both of this city, and Frederick E. Hersey, president of the Moor Specialty Co., of Walkham, were arrested on the charges, which concern the activities of the Petroleum Corporation of America. They pleaded not guilty and were held in $2,500 bail.

U. S. Gov't Insurance

Many Ex-Service Men Not Informed of Their Rights.

District No. 8 of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau announces that a campaign will be instituted during the month of April for the purpose of reinstating and converting U. S. Government Insurance policies of ex-service men and women.

There is apparently a general impression among ex-service men and women who have allowed their insurance to lapse, that they are no longer entitled to the privilege of carrying a policy with the government. Such, however, is not the case; insurance can be reinstated at any time up to March 3, 1926, no matter when the lapsation occurred. The only ex-service men who cannot reinstate their insurance are those who are permanently or totally disabled or are suffering from a disability which is not due to their military service.

Although it is not necessary to reinstate this insurance until March, 1926 there are many advantages for doing so at this time and it is because of these that the government is now staging this campaign in the states of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

A man who converts or reinstates his policy during this drive will pay a smaller premium than if he waits for several years. He will at the same time be building up a cash and loan value; and if he has a limited payment policy it will mature earlier. Then, too, many men who are in good health at the present time may not be able to reinstate a few years from now due to some disability which they might contract in the meantime. No, man, especially one who has dependents, should be without insurance, and for ex-service men the government offers the best, and cheapest and safest policy.

In addition to a Yearly Renewable Term Insurance, the government issues six different plans of permanent forms of insurance: Ordinary Life, Twenty and Thirty payment Life, Twenty year and Thirty year Endowment and Endowment at the age of 62. These policies not only have the disability feature incidental to the Yearly Renewable Term Insurance, but in addition have cash and loan values; and extended and paid up insurance at the end of the first year is without restrictions as to travel or occupation, and is also free from taxation and is protected from claims of creditors.

Any communications relative to government insurance will receive immediate attention if addressed to the Insurance Section, U. S. Veterans' Bureau, District No. 8, 8th Floor, Leiter Building, Chicago, Ill. These matters may also be taken up through any of the 15 Sub-District Offices of the Bureau throughout the states of Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Persian Ambassador Reaches Post.

Washington—A record length of time for a diplomat to reach his post has been established by Rabbi Joseph S. Kornfeld, of Columbus, Ohio, new American minister to Persia, according to officials of the state department. He sailed from New York January 3, and was just three months on route, of which time 75 days were spent in traveling.

MAN AND WOMAN EXCHANGE SHOTS

CHILDREN OF BOTH SEE TRAGEDY

Failure to Keep Dog Tied Up Causes Fight That Will Be Remembered in New Haven.

New Haven, Mich.—As the result of a quarrel over a dog, a man, 45 years old, with a wife and six children, and a widow of 50 with four children are believed to be dying from wounds received in a shot-gun and rifle duel between the two at the doorstep of the woman's home April 8.

The victims, Martin Baade and Mrs. Emma Haas, are neighbors. Baade's hunting dog, the pet of his children, had been annoying Mrs. Haas by scampering over her carefully kept lawn and disturbing her afternoon naps with his barking. She warned Baade that the next time she would lock him up. Baade cautioned his children not to let the dog out of their own yard.

That morning the dog escaped from the Baade children and ran over on the Haas lawn. True to her threat, Mrs. Haas ran out and seized the dog and, despite the entreaties of the Baade children, locked him in a shed. From their own yard the young Baades could hear the pitiful whinnings of their pet, crying for freedom.

When Baade came home, the children met him with their story. Madly, he took a shotgun from the wall and strode over to the Haas home. The widow met him at the door, with a rifle in her hands. There were words, hot angry words, which frightened the onlooking children of both; then an exchange of shots and both fell to the floor of the porch.

Baade told the authorities that Mrs. Haas fired first. When she raised the rifle, he turned quickly, he said, and the shot struck him in the back, piercing the kidneys. As he fell he pulled the trigger of his shotgun, the charge striking the widow full in the face.

Baade is a laborer. His six children range from two years up to 15. Mrs. Haas' youngest child is 15.

SIDNEY LANDON.

By reviewing the greatest literary men of a century Sidney Landon has contributed new dignity to the art of impersonation. With wigs, grease paints and a precisely vivid imagination, he gives faithful reproductions of Mark Twain, Josh Billings, Victor Hugo, Bill Nye, Longfellow, Thackeray, Tennyson, Kipling, Holmes and numerous others. He completely loses his own identity, assumes a new role and quotes from the works of the genius impersonated.

SIDNEY LANDON.

Many of the later-day writers Mr. Landon knew personally. Others in both England and America he learned to know through visits to their former homes and libraries, and through interviews with relatives and close friends.

Uses for Turpentine.
Turpentine has many uses which the housekeeper will appreciate. A little of it in the suds on wash day lightens the laundry labor, and a teaspoonful to a quart of water, if applied to plants once a week, will make the leaves greener and cause the blossoms to become brighter. It is a sure preventive against moths by just dropping a trifle in the bottom of chests, drawers and cupboards.

The Hyacinth.
The hyacinth is like a balustrade placed upside down. A bed of hyacinths resembles a mass of balusters. Thus that great invention of the Renaissance, the balustrade, allows us to gain through it a glimpse of nature. This ray of art, the flower, this delicate inspiration, unknowingly requires the intelligence of men to develop its possibilities.—Auguste Rodin.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then set fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

The elephant is a good traveler. On level ground a fast horse can outrun him, but on rough ground he would leave the horse behind. His foot is encased in a bag-like skin, with a heavy padded bottom.

Had to Be Wise.
"Solomon," says Uncle Eben, "was a wise man. He had to be in order to have so many domestic complications an' keep out'n de divorce court."

GREAT FOR "FLU" AND GRIP COUGHS
"I had an awful cold that left me with a dreadful cough," says Mrs. M. E. Smith, Benton, La. "Bought Foley's Honey and Tar of our druggist and it cured me completely." This grand remedy should be in every household at this time, when influenza, grip, coughs and colds are so prevalent.—Hite's Drug Store.

Wolverine News Brevities

Pontiac—Pontiac Boy Scouts have launched a campaign to raise $15,000 in public subscriptions.

Monroe—Anna Kirchgessner, 55, unmarried, was found dead seated in a chair in her home here. She was the proprietor of two stores.

Albion—Mrs. V. H. Wells and Mrs. M. H. Smith of Homer have purchased the Calhoun house hostelry in Homer village, and will operate it themselves.

Pontiac—A. G. Nicholle, assistant cashier of the Pontiac Commercial Savings bank, was elected cashier, at a meeting of directors, to succeed F. A. Van Wagoner, who resigned. L. M. Baker, note clerk, was made assistant cashier.

Flint—Michael Johnson, who warmed himself recently by burning 56 volumes of choice literature in the stove at the Crocker school, was sentenced to two to 15 years in the Ionia reformatory, for breaking and entering, by Judge E. D. Black.

Monroe—George Uptegraff, 33 years old, unmarried, Toledo, was arrested by Chief Deputy Sheriff John Knuth, at Lakeside road, charged with embezzling $485 from the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks' lodge, of Toledo. He was taken to Toledo.

Muskegon—Because Charles Boyner had been attending a series of lectures on first aid, he was able to save the life of John E. Pascoe, a neighbor, who tried, police say, to take his life by closing the doors of his home where he lived alone and turning on the gas.

Pontiac—Hearings were begun before Judge Gillespie, in circuit court, on condemnation of property for the proposed widening of Woodward avenue in Ferndale village. The action is brought by the village, but is being protested by many citizens on the ground that it is unnecessary to proceed now.

Flint—Business in Flint divorce courts is on the wane, according to figures sent to Lansing, by County Clerk Jessie Gode. During 1920, there were 898 bills filed for divorce, while in 1921 the number decreased to 548. In 1921 there were 869 divorces granted, while in 1920 there were 550 divorces granted.

Port Huron—Confirmation of a report that the Grand Trunk Railroad company would close its shops at Eldon, Ill., at the end of April was retracted in Port Huron. Howard G. Kelly, president of the railway, said the Port Huron shops had ample accommodations at present for the company's car repair business.

Allegan—The dying wish of Mayor Frank Fairchild was granted when the voters of Allegan elected his lifelong friend and political associate, Fred McComber, as mayor. McComber ran on the Democratic ticket, defeating Burrill Tripp, a veteran Republican politician and a former mayor and state senator. Allegan defeated daylight saving by about four to one.

Dowagiac—Battling for two hours in a swamp, a posse of 100 farmers and officials from surrounding communities, captured four men, identified as the robbers who held up the Eau Claire bank, earlier in the day. Fully 100 shots were exchanged in the desperate fight of the thugs to escape, and it was only after one of them was wounded that the attacking party was able to close in on the fugitives.

Lansing—Jay R. McColl, Detroit, has been appointed by Gov. Grosbeck to the State Board of Agriculture, succeeding John A. Doelle, of Marquette, who resigned to accept appointment as commissioner of the State Department of Agriculture. Mr. McColl is an engineer graduate of the M. A. C. and was recently inducted by the Detroit alumni. He is the first engineer member to be appointed to the board.

Detroit—Charles Street, former record clerk of the Detroit house of correction, convicted of embezzlement, was sentenced to from three to ten years in Marquette prison by Judge William M. Heston in recorder's court. Street asked that he be sent to any prison but the house of correction. He had been found guilty by a jury on the charge of embezzling $5,131 in fines paid at the house of correction.

Lansing—Weather forecasts are now being broadcasted through the state by radio telephone on a wave length of 485 meters. They are being sent out by the East Lansing station of the U. S. Weather Bureau daily at 10:30 a. m. Dewey A. Seeley, official forecaster, phones out the predictions over the apparatus of his son, Stuart W. Seeley. Duplicate messages are being sent out also at 11:30 a. m. Later market reports will be given farmers throughout the state by the same system.

Mt. Clemens—Ellis Goldberg, stock salesman, after spending a month in the Macomb county jail, was released on bonds of $15,000 signed by Register of Deeds Chester Chubb and George Ashcraft, real estate operator. Goldberg is alleged to have sold $50,000 in worthless film stock to Macomb county residents without securing a permit from the Michigan Securities commission. Several weeks ago he is said to have let it be known that he would pay a bonus of $1,500 to anyone signing his bonds for release. He will be required to remain in the city until his trial, May 1.

Port Huron—Plans for the erection of a $120,000 grain elevator at Point Edward, on the Canadian side, near Sarnia, opposite Port Huron have been announced by the Grand Trunk railroad.

Grand Rapids—Grand Rapids ministers, in conference, unanimously declared for hearty co-operation in the 100 per cent American attitude regarding the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Lansing—Under a schedule filed with the utilities commission by the Michigan State Telephone Co., an increased revenue of $708,060 for exchanges in the state, outside of Detroit, is asked.

Port Huron—Anthony Scully, who is charged with killing his father, Cornelius Scully, and badly injuring his sister, while in an insane frenzy, will be committed to the state hospital for the insane at Ionia.

Battle Creek—The Nichols & Shepard company, manufacturers of threshing machines and engines, and one of the city's largest concerns closed April 1, indefinitely. Only the repair department will operate.

Muskegon—The Rev. John Broek, 80 years old, who retired as pastor of the Third Reformed Church a few weeks ago after closing 50 years' service, died March 31 from injuries received the night before when he fell downstairs.

Calumet—The Calumet & Hecla Mining Co. and two subsidiaries, the Ahmeek and Iles Royale mines, resumed copper production. The output, it is estimated, will range from 30 to 40 per cent of normal, increasing as the demand grows.

Ann Arbor—President Dwight E. Waldo, of the Western Normal college, was granted a year's leave of absence by the state board of education. Professor W. S. McCracken, of the same institution, has been appointed acting president.

Pontiac—Because the F. W. Clawson Land Co., of Royal Oak, objects to its assessment for part of the Red Run drain, it will cost approximately $2,000 for a review by a board which has been demanded by Firman W. Clawson, president of the company.

Lansing—The growth in the use of wireless telephone in Michigan is indicated by the large number of new companies incorporating for radio purposes. Hardly a week passes but one or more file incorporation papers here, and most of these are located in Detroit.

Lansing—Hemorrhagic smallpox claimed eight deaths in Michigan and 23 cases had been reported up to April 1, the State Department of Health reported. The outbreak centers in Muskegon, but smallpox has been reported from half the counties in the state.

Saginaw—Walter H. Webber, owner of the National company, formerly the brewery of that name, and his brewmaster, Henry Joseph, have been bound over to the May term of the federal court at Bay City, charged with making beer of more than the legal alcoholic contents.

Muskegon—The parents of Tony Cihos, 17 years old, an alleged member of the bandit gang that robbed 24 Muskegon places, have informed the police they believe their son has taken his own life. Cihos disappeared the night the other four members of the gang were arrested.

East Lansing—Michigan Agricultural college faculty and East Lansing business men dined here in honor of the assumption of official duties April 1 by President David Friday. Nearly 500 men gathered for the affair, planned as an official expression of welcome by the community to the new president.

Lansing—An order removing Sheriff Ray J. Baker, of Lapeer county, from office was signed by Governor Grosbeck. Baker's removal from office was the result of charges made against him by Representative Charles W. Smith and several hundred residents of the county, who signed petitions asking his removal.

Lansing—The conviction of John Harrigan, son of a wealthy Grosse Pointe family, found guilty in Detroit municipal court of manslaughter in connection with the death of Kosta Kiroff, killed when he was struck by an automobile driven by Harrigan, was set aside by the state supreme court and a new trial ordered.

Flint—There is an abundance of work in Germany, according to Albert Koebke, local meat dealer, who has returned from a three months' European trip. People are working overtime, and have adopted a policy of retrenchment with characteristic vigor. The wage of the average workman in Germany does not exceed $2 a week in American currency, he declares.

Lansing—Grant M. Hudson, former member of the state legislature, active in the enactment of important railroad legislation and general primary laws, during the special session of 1918, and later state superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, 1919 to 1921, announced his candidacy for Congress in the Sixth Michigan District, as successor to Representative Patrick H. Kelley.

Allegan—Adam Rasmus, Dorr township farmer, is facing deportation, the result of an affray with John Polasky, a neighbor, in which Rasmus is said to have threatened Polasky's life. Officers summoned to the Rasmus home say they found the house in a state of siege, with Mrs. Rasmus carrying a heavy club, the children's hands filled with rocks, and the husband flourishing a revolver. Sheriff Leo Hare and Deputy William Oliver were unable to subdue Rasmus, they said, until after they struck him over the head with the butt end of a pistol, rendering him unconscious.

Constance Sherrill had come in a few moments before from an afternoon reception; the servants told her at once that something was happening at Mr. Corvet's. They had heard shouts and had seen a man pounding upon the door there, but they had not taken it upon themselves to go over there. She had told the chauffeur to wait with the motor and had run at once to the telephone and called Alan; his attempt to put her off made her certain that what had happened was not finished but was still going on. Her anxiety and the sense of their responsibility for Alan overrode at once all other thought. She told the servants to call her father at the office and tell him something was wrong at Mr. Corvet's; then she called her maid and hurried out to the motor.

"To Mr. Corvet's—quickly!" she directed. Looking through the front doors of her car as it turned into Astor street, she saw a young man, carrying a doctor's case, run up the steps of Corvet's house. Constance recognized him as a young doctor who was starting in practice in the neighborhood. He was just being admitted as she and her maid reached the steps. Alan stood holding the door open and yet blocking entrance when she came up.

"You must not come in!" he deputed her; but she followed the doctor so that Alan could not close the door upon her. He yielded then, and she and her maid went on into the hall.

She started as she saw the figure upon the couch in the library, and as the sound of its heavy breathing reached her; and the wild fancy which had come to her when the servants had told her of what was going on—a fancy that Uncle Benny had come back—was banished instantly.

Alan led her into the room across from the library.

"You shouldn't have come in," he said. "I shouldn't have let you in; but—you saw him."

"Yes."

"Do you know him?"

"Know him?" She shook her head.

"I mean, you've never seen him before?"

"No."

"His name is Luke—he speaks of himself by that name. Did you ever hear my father mention a man named Luke?"

"No; never."

"Where's Ben Corvet?" Luke demanded, arrogantly of the doctor.

"You go get Ben Corvet! Tell Ben Corvet I want drink right away. Tell Ben Corvet I want my thousand dollar."

Constance turned swiftly to her maid. "Go out to the car and wait for me," she commanded.

Luke's muffled, heavy voice went on; moments while he fought for breath interrupted it.

"You hear me, you d—n Injin! . . . You go tell Ben Corvet I want my thousand dollars, or I make it two next time! You hear me; you go tell Ben Corvet. . . . You let me go, you d—n Injin! . . ."

Through the doorway to the library they could see the doctor force Luke back upon the couch; Luke fought him furiously; then, suddenly as he had stirred to strength and fury, Luke collapsed again. His voice went on a moment more, and rapidly growing weaker:

"You tell Ben Corvet—I want my money, or I'll tell. He knows what I'll tell. . . . You don't know, you Injin devil. . . . Ben Corvet knows, and I know. . . . Tell him I'll tell. . . . I'll tell. . . . I'll tell!"

The threatening voice stopped suddenly.

Constance, very pale, again faced Alan. "Of course, I understand," she said. "Uncle Benny has been paying blackmail to this man. For years, perhaps. . . ." She repeated the word after an instant in a frightened voice, "Blackmail!"

"Won't you please go, Miss Sherrill?" Alan urged her. "It was good of you to come; but you mustn't stay now. He's—he's dying, of course."

She seated herself upon a chair. "I'm going to stay with you," she said simply. "It was not, she knew, to share the waiting for the man in the next room to die; in that, of itself, there could be nothing for him to feel. It was to be with him while realization which had come to her was settling upon him, too—realization of what this meant to him. He was realizing that, she thought; he had realized it made him, at moments, forgetful while, listening for sounds from the other room, he paced back and forth beside the table or stood staring away, clinging to the portieres. He left her presently, and went across the hall to the doctor.

"Is he dead?" Constance heard him ask.

"Not yet," the doctor answered; "but it won't be long, now."

"There's nothing you can do to make him talk—bring him to himself long enough so that he will tell what he keeps threatening to tell!"

The doctor shrugged. "How many times, do you suppose, he's been drunk and still not told? Concealment is his established habit now. It's an inhibition; even in wandering, he stops short of actually telling anything."

Alan came back to Constance. Outside, the gray of dusk was spreading, and within the house it had grown dark. It was very quiet in the library; she could not even hear Luke's breathing now. Then the doctor came out to them.

"It's over," he said to Alan. "There's a law covering these cases; you may not be familiar with it. I'll make out the death certificate—pneumonia and a weak heart with alcoholism. But the police have to be notified at once; you have no choice as to that. I'll look after those things for you, if you want."

"Thank you; if you will." Alan went with the doctor to the door and saw him drive away. Returning, he drew the library portieres; then, coming back to Constance, he picked up her muff and collar from the chair where she had thrown them, and held them out to her.

"You'll go now, Miss Sherrill," he said. "Indeed, you mustn't stay here—your car's still waiting, and—you mustn't stay here. . . . In this house!"

"Won't you come over home with me," she said, "and wait for father there till we can think this thing out together?"

Her sweetness almost broke him down. "This. . . . together! Think this out! Oh, it's plain enough, isn't it? For years—for as long as Wassaquam has been here, my father has been seeing that man and paying blackmail to him twice a year, at least! He lived in that man's power. He kept money in the house for him always! It wasn't anything imaginary that hung over my father—or anything created in his own mind. It was something real—real; it was disgrace—disgrace and worse—something he deserved; and that he fought with blackmail money, like a coward! Dishonor—cowardice—blackmail!"

She drew a little nearer to him.

"You didn't want me to know," she said. "You tried to put me off when I called you on the telephone; and—when I came here, you wanted me to go away before I heard. Why didn't you want me to know? If he was your father, wasn't he our—friend? Mine and my father's? You must let us help you."

As she approached, he had drawn back from her. "No; this is mine!" he denied her. "Not yours or your father's. You have nothing to do with this. Didn't he try in little cowardly ways to keep you out of it? But he couldn't do that; your friendship meant too much to him; he couldn't keep away from you. But I can—I can do that! You must go out of this house; you must never come in here again!"

Her eyes filled, as she watched him; never had she liked him so much as now.

"I thought," he said almost wistfully, "it seemed to me that, whatever he had done, it must have been mostly against me. His leaving everything to me seemed to mean that I was the one that he had wronged, and that he was trying to make it up to me. But it isn't that; it can't be that! It is something much worse than that! . . . Oh, I'm glad I haven't used much of his money! Hardly any—not more than I can give back! It wasn't the money and the house he left me that mattered; what he really left me was just this. . . . dishonor, shame. . . ."

The doorbell rang, and Alan turned to the door and threw it open. In the dusk the figure of the man outside was not at all recognizable; but as he entered with heavy and deliberate steps, passing Alan without greeting and going straight to Constance, Alan saw by the light in the hall that it was Spearman.

"What's up?" Spearman asked. "They tried to get your father at the office and then me, but neither of us was there. They got me afterward, at the club. They said you'd come over here; but that must have been more than two hours ago."

His gaze went on past her to the drawn hangings of the room to the right; and he seemed to appreciate their significance; for his face whitened under its tan, and an odd hush came suddenly upon him.

"Is it Ben, Connie?" he whispered.

"Ben. . . . come back?"

He drew the curtains partly open. The light in the library had been extinguished, and the light that came from the hall swayed about the room with the movement of the curtains and gave a momentary semblance of life to the face of the man upon the couch. Spearman drew the curtains quickly together again, still holding to them and seeming for an instant to cling to them; then he shook himself together, threw the curtains wide apart, and strode into the room. He switched on the light and went directly to the couch; Alan followed him.

"He's—dead?"

"Who is he?" Alan demanded.

Spearman seemed to satisfy himself first as to the answer to his question. "How should I know who he is?" he asked. "There used to be a wheelman in the Martha Corvet years ago who looked like him; or looked like what his fellow may have looked like once. I can't be sure."

He turned to Constance. "You're going home, Connie? I'll see you over there. I'll come back about this afterward, Conrad."

Alan followed them to the door and

"How Should I Know Who He Is?" He Asked.

closed it, after them. He spread the blankets over Luke. Luke's coats, which Alan had removed, lay upon a chair, and he looked them over for marks of identification. A side pocket produced an old briar; there was nothing else. Then Alan walked restlessly about, awaiting Spearman. Spearman, he believed, knew this man; Spearman had not even ventured upon modified denial until he was certain that the man was dead; and then he had answered so as not to commit himself, pending learning from Constance what Luke had told.

But Luke had said nothing about Spearman. It had been Corvet, and Corvet alone, of whom Luke had spoken; it was Corvet whom he had accused; it was Corvet who had given him money. Was it conceivable, then, that there had been two such events in Corvet's life? That one of these events concerned the Milwaukee and Spearman and some one—some one with a bullet hole above the eye—who had "got" Corvet; and that the other event had concerned Luke and something else? It was not conceivable, Alan was sure; it was all one thing. If Corvet had to do with the Milwaukee, then Luke had had to do with it too. And Spearman? But if Spearman had been involved in that guilty thing, had not Luke known it? Then why had not Luke mentioned Spearman? Or had Spearman not been really involved? Had it been, perhaps, only evidence of knowledge of what Corvet had done that Spearman had tried to discover and destroy?

Alan went to the door and opened it, as he heard Spearman upon the steps again. Spearman waited only until the door had been reclosed behind him.

"Well, Conrad, what was the idea of bringing Miss Sherrill into this?"

"I didn't bring her in; I tried the best I could to keep her out."

"Out of what—exactly?"

"You know better than I do. You know exactly what it is. You know that man, Spearman; you know what he came here for. I don't mean money; I mean you know why he came here for money, and why he got it. I tried, as well as I could, to make him tell me; but he wouldn't do it. There's disgrace of some sort here, of course—disgrace that involves my father and, I think, you too. If you're not guilty with my father, you'll help me now; if you are guilty, then, at least, your refusal to help will let me know that."

"I don't know what you're talking about. I told you this man may have been a wheelman on the Corvet; I don't know more about him than that; I don't even know that certainly. Of course, I knew Ben Corvet was paying blackmail; I've known for years that he was giving up money to some one. I don't know who he paid it to; or for what."

"The strain of the last few hours was telling upon Alan; his skin flushed hot and cold by turns. He paced up and down while he controlled himself.

"That's not enough, Spearman," he said finally. "I—I've felt you, somehow, underneath all these things. The first time I saw you, you were in this house doing something you ought not to have been doing; you fought me then; you would have killed me rather than not get away. Two weeks ago, some one attacked me on the street—for robbery, they said; but I know it wasn't robbery."

"You're not so crazy as to be trying to involve me in that—"

There came a sound to them from the hall, a sound unmistakably denoting some presence. Spearman jerked suddenly up; Alan, going to the door and looking into the hall, saw Wassaquam. The Indian evidently had returned to the house some time before; he had been bringing to Alan now the accounts which he had settled. He seemed to have been standing in the hall for some time, listening; but he came in now, looking inquiringly from one to the other of them.

"Not friends?" he inquired. "You and Henry?"

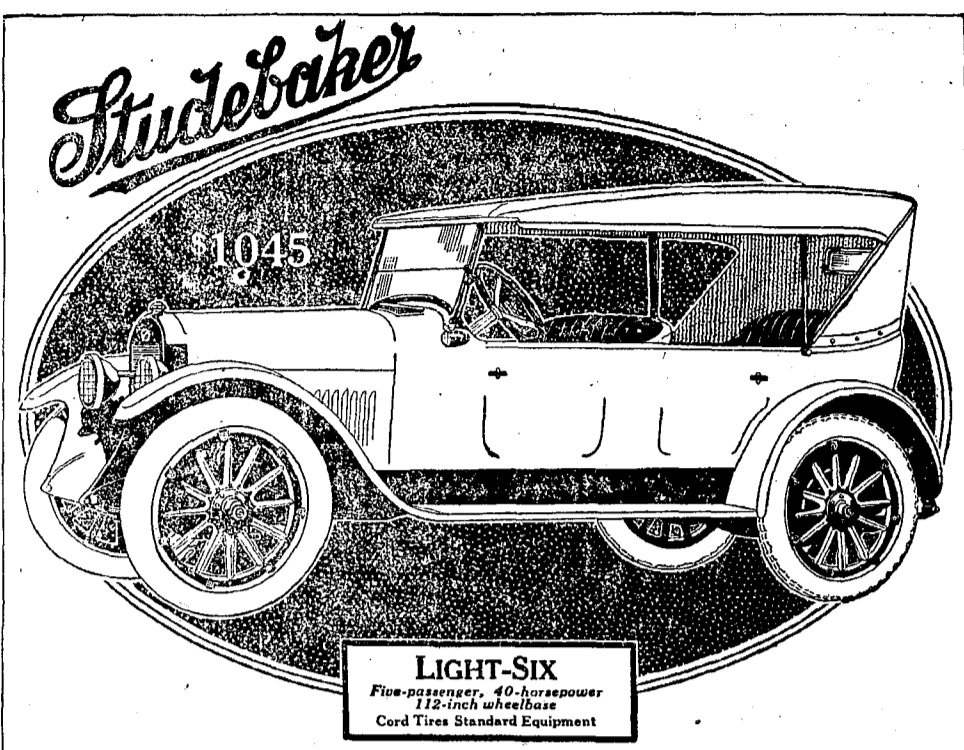

Alan's passion broke out suddenly. "We're anything but that, Judah. I found him, the first night I got here and while you were away, going through my father's things. I fought with him, and he ran away. He was the one that broke into my father's desks; maybe you'll believe that, even if no one else will."

Task Worthy of Artist. I was thinking, as I took a parcel of laundry up to the Chlmanan on McFee street just now, it would be interesting to write a book dealing solely, candidly, exactly, and fully with the events, emotions, and thoughts of just one day in a man's life. If one could do that, in a way to carry conviction, assent, and reality, to convey to the reader's senses a recognition of genuine actual human being, one might claim to be a true artist.—Christopher Morley.

Your Goldfish. Do not clean the goldfish globe often more than once a week. Better take out a dipper of water and add a dipper of fresh water one week and clean the globe the next week. When changing the water have the fresh water as near the same temperature as that in the globe as possible. Give to each fish a piece of food one-quarter inch square daily. Always keep water plant and pebbles in globe. Do not put globe where sun will strike it and do not keep in too warm a place.

Sixteenth Century Statues. Excavations carried on in the old cemetery of Courbeboeufs (Sarthe) have led to the discovery of two statues of the Sixteenth century. One represents a seigneur armed cap-a-pie. It is executed in stone and has suffered some mutilation. The other statue is in terra cotta and life-size. It represents a woman kneeling at prayer, her hands joined, evidently a castellan's lady. The head is missing. In the Sixteenth century the castellanry of Courbeboeufs belonged to Diane de Meridor, countess of Montsoreau.

Original Oklahoma "Boomer." David L. Payne, original Oklahoma "boomer," started the first colony of white men in Oklahoma in 1880, before the territory had been officially opened for settlement. He was arrested and expelled from the territory, and several other attempts at settlement were prevented by government troops. Wichita was the starting point of these expeditions. He died at Wellington, Kan., in 1884.

When the Heart Stops. By injecting one cubic centimetre of a one-in-one-thousand solution of either adrenalin or pituitrin into the heart when it has stopped beating, many persons who seemed to be dead have been brought back to life. The injection must be made quickly into the left intercostal space one or two finger-breadths to the left of the sternal border, according to the Medical Record.

Bird Weather Prophets. Birds, some at least, are good weather prophets. The green woodpecker is known in some parts of this country as the "rain bird" because you hear his laughing cry so often before a downpour. The mistlethrush, again, has gained the name of "storm cock," because he sings before wind and rain.

Maidenly Caution. "Oh, yes, we are engaged to be married; but I fear she has not that utter confidence in me that comes with perfect love." "Why so?" "Well, when a fellow looks back and sees her testing the diamond in her engagement ring on the window pane, don't you think he has good cause to feel a bit dubious?"

You may flatter a man by telling him he is intelligent and a woman by praising her beauty, but you must tell a boy you believe he can lick any boy on his street.

She Was. A little light flattery, no mean article in these days, had been bestowed upon Mrs. Smith on account of her ability to use either hand indifferently in the execution of her duties, which were charing. "Lor' bless you, ma'am," said the gentel soul, not without condensation, "I've always been like that. I'm aspidistras."—London Tit-Bits.

Origin of Moon-Eyed.

The expression "moon-eyed" as popularly used to describe an advanced stage of intoxication, had its origin in India, where a certain variety of drink taken in excess renders its victims blind from sunset to sunrise, or during the period that the moon is shining. The condition in extreme cases lasts as long as 18 or 19 days.

Lincoln Ancestor Owned Slaves. An account for 1785 shows that Mordecai Lincoln paid for slaves for his "negro man." FAKE EMPLOYING PLAN REVEALED

MANY CHICAGO ITALIANS PAY $10 FOR FORGED ORDERS FOR FORD JOBS.

BLACKHAND GANG IS BLAMED

Amazing Plot Brought to Light When Go-Between is Arrested and Brought to Detroit.

Detroit—A swindle in which the method employed was the sale to residents of the Italian quarter of forged orders for employment at the Ford River Rouge plant, was revealed last week with the return from Chicago of David Washington, a Negro prisoner, for whom warrants were issued over a month ago. More than 100 men of Italian descent were duped into purchasing the orders, each of which netted the swindlers $10. Washington, when arrested, told Chicago police of an amazing plot by Italian blackhanders in Detroit, asserting he was merely an agent and go-between for an organized ring. The prisoner was returned from Chicago by Detective O'Rourke. He is being held on the two charges for further investigation.

The modus operandi was for Washington to approach his victims with application blanks for employment at the River Rouge plant. The blanks were identical with those used in the plant, and were signed with the name of the chief of the River Rouge Ford employment agency. The signatures, according to police, were cleverly forged.

The victims, who invariably were of Italian descent, were told that one of the forms would obtain employment for them at River Rouge. One hundred and eight men purchased the forms, paying $10, so far as is known to police. It is believed there were many others.

On February 13 the men who had purchased the "orders" appeared at the gates of the River Rouge plant. Several of them were admitted, as the orders appeared genuine. The gates at the plant began to suspect something, however, and refused to admit all of the applicants. A near riot followed. The men holding orders heatedly declared they had paid $10 to get the jobs, and that they meant to have them. An effort was made to force the gates in a massed attack. The River Rouge fire department was called, and finally dispersed the mob by running through the ranks with motor trucks.

ARREST COSSACK CHIEF IN N. Y.

New York—Arrested here upon his arrival from Washington involving the theft in Trans-Balkalia in 1919 of goods valued at $475,000, General Gregorie Semenov, Cossack anti-bolshevik military leader in Siberia, was released on $25,000 bail.

General Semenov was charged with the theft of woolen stuffs and furs valued at about $475,000, property of the now bankrupt firm, Yourevata Home & Foreign Trade Co., Inc. The theft was alleged to have been made in or near Chita, Trans-Balkalia, in 1919.

Madame Semenov earlier in the evening had taken a jeweled necklace valued at $50,000 from her neck and offered it as bail. She was told, however, that it was not acceptable.

Crowd Greets Verdict in Favor of Olivia Stone.

New York—Miss Olivia M. P. Stone, who shot and killed Ellis B. Kinkaid, former corporation counsel of Cincinnati, August 5, 1921, was acquitted of murder by a jury in the Brooklyn Supreme court.

Hundreds of men and women who had gathered outside the courtroom cheered repeatedly when the verdict was announced, while those in the crowded courtroom also applauded.

Lloyd George Prevents Strike.

London—Prime Minister Lloyd George's intervention in the engineering crisis has been successful and employers have agreed to suspend lockout orders against 800,000 workers. It was officially announced. The British premier followed his triumph in the House of Commons by bringing workers and operators together and preventing complete breakdown in the engineering trades. Negotiations were resumed between union leaders and executives.

Students Back Up Professor.

Gloucester, N. J.—Members of the sophomore and senior classes of the Gloucester High School, who went on strike in protest against the suspension of William Katcher, hygiene teacher, have returned to their classes. They announced, however, that they will continue to fight for the reinstatement of Katcher, who was suspended following charges that he spoke too frankly in lectures on social hygiene before mixed classes of the students.

Wireless Waves. Wireless waves travel with a velocity of 300 million meters per second. They have the properties of the more familiar and shorter kinds of waves, such as light, heat and X-rays. Radio waves from a transmitting station spread out symmetrically from the station with uniform intensity, very much as waves spread out on a quiet pond when a pebble is dropped in. In a given direction from the transmitting station, at a given instant the distance between successive wave crests is the wave length.

Would the Lighthouse Keeper? A lady advertised for a servant to do light house work. She received a letter from a girl who said she would like the position, for she thought the sea air would do her good, but she wanted to know where the lighthouse was situated.—H. S. Johnson, in Detroit Free Press.

Old Woodwork Made New. A wood dye is a good finish for old woodwork. If the old finish is unsatisfactory and you do not wish to remove it a wood dye may be put over it. There are a number of different shades made. A final finish of an enamel makes the wood look as good as new.

Inspiration may make you jump a hedge, but it won't make you pound the road all day long.

Starvation on Sunday. The medical correspondent of a prominent London paper attributes much of the illness of the world to the custom of hearty eating on Sunday, the day on which most of us take the least exercise. He advocates Sunday as a day of abstinence and says we would all be better for it.

Wonder at Fair-Haired Woman.

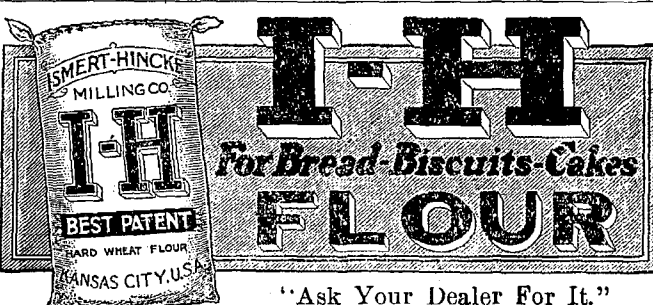

While visitors from the West are no longer looked on with amazement and awe by the Japanese, there is one accidental type that never fails to excite interest, and that is the fair-haired woman. Not long since, a young golden-haired Scotch girl was almost responsible for a riot in the streets of Tokyo, so eager were the populace to catch a glimpse of her.

Each Man's Rights Limited.

Every man must work out his own salvation, but in doing so must recognize that millions of other men are doing the same thing and have rights as well as he. Therefore, what he does must not unnecessarily interfere with what they are doing.

Old and Gray.

A woman and her niece were standing at the brink of the Grand canyon. Finally the woman spoke, "Do you know, my dear," she said, "I think the canyon is beginning to show its age. It's lots dirtier than when I was here six years ago."
