Big Class Graduates

E. J. H. S. Has Largest Class In Its History.

The Senior Class of the East Jordan High School of 1922 will perhaps set a record in more ways than one. Being thirty-two in number, they are larger by eleven than any class that ever left the school. This is not the only record that they will perhaps leave behind for six members of this class have 95 per cent or better which is a very remarkable record. Most classes do well to have two or three in the 95 per cent list. There were seven with a percentage of 90 or better. Those with 95 per cent or better are:

Lona Swafford.....95.9
Julia Supernaw.....95.8
Sena Franseth.....95.5
Doris Colden.....95.
Lena Ekstrom.....95.
The following have 90 per cent or better:

Francis Cook.....94.6
Heleu Stroebel.....94.
Inez Golden.....93.1
Marie Tindale.....92.2
Trena Larson.....92.2
Claude Stokes.....90.1
Christa Hoover.....90.

Of course there were others near the 90 per cent mark but the above record is one of which any class might well be proud.

The Commencement exercises will be held at the High School Auditorium Thursday evening, June 15th, at 8:00 o'clock standard time. Joseph H. Green of Mt. Pleasant will give the Commencement address and I am sure that the class has one of the best speakers we could procure for such an occasion. There will be good music; the exercises will start on time and will be brief and to the point.

The Baccalaureate Exercises will be held Sunday evening, June 11th, at the High School Auditorium at 7:30. Rev. Charles W. Sidebotham will preach the sermon with Rev. Thomas Marshall acting as Chaplain. This exercise will also be favored by good music.

The Class Day Exercises have been mentioned in another article of this issue of the Herald.

The general public are cordially invited to attend all of these exercises. The present class, as already indicated deserve the best send off East Jordan can give them. The class is composed of not only numbers and good standing but are blessed with a great deal of good common sense and we are certain they are going to make good, but they need all the encouragement possible at the Commencement of their career in a world filled with the keenest competition that any generation ever faced. So again we invite your attendance and feel that you will be fully repaid for your brief time with us.

Baccalaureate, Sunday Evening.

The Baccalaureate Services will be held Sunday evening, June 11th, at 7:30 at the High School Auditorium.

Seniors Chapel Entertainment

The graduating class of '22 will present the two one-act plays "My Aunt from California," and "Two Flats and a Sharp," in the High School Auditorium June 12, at 1:00, for the entertainment of their classmates and friends. This will be the seniors last appearance in assembly and promises to be one of exceptional merit.

The play "Our Aunt from California" deals with the experiences of three sisters. During the absence of the mother, a telegram is received from a rich aunt living in California, telling of her intention to visit the girls. However, when a later telegram comes to the contrary of this a mixup occurs as Sally, played by Doris Colden impersonates the aunt and the real aunt arrives. Rosalie, a fashionable type of girl is played by Virginia Pray. The role of Felicia, a sad and woeiful girl, is played by Lena Ekstrom. The dress makers, Trena Larson, the real aunt played by Marie Tindale, and the others become entangled in

DISTRICT CONVENTION PYTHIAN SISTERS ENTERTAINED HERE.

The 17th Annual District Convention of Pythian Sisters was held at Castle Hall, East Jordan, Tuesday, June 6th. The hall was beautifully decorated with Temple colors, ferns and flowers. Monday evening a 6 o'clock dinner party was given at the home of Mrs. Dechold by the Past Chief to the visiting guests arriving Monday, and to the Grand Officers, Ida M. Ryan of Detroit and Jessie R. Adams of Litchfield.

At the afternoon session a program of musical numbers and reports of Temples was given. The Ludington Temple gave the Memorial in a very impressive manner, and the work was beautiful.

At six o'clock a banquet was served at the M. E. Church parlors. At eight o'clock the business meeting was called to order by East Jordan Temple No. 65. The Degree work was exemplified by the officers of Hannah Temple of Traverse City, East Jordan Temple furnishing the guards for the floor work. Music, dancing and light refreshments closed the day and all went home feeling they had a very successful Convention.

such difficulties—but come everyone—to see how things are straightened out.

The other short play "Two Flats and a Sharp," to be presented at the Senior Chapel tells the story of Mr. and Mrs. Key and the mother-in-law who creates a discord. Pauline Hoover as the mother-in-law, who is a perpetual trouble maker persuades her daughter of her husband's wrong doing. Claude Stokes as Mr. Key, the irate husband, then had to make peace with his jealous wife, played by Christa Hoover.

The two plays will be the seniors Chapel entertainment which closes the year of class programs.

Class Day Program.

The Class Day Program will be given Wednesday, June 14, at the High School Auditorium at 7:30 p. m.

The class has spent much time in planning this program and have succeeded in making it unique, in that there will be three short original plays presented. In order to do this successfully it has been necessary to import from Arabia, a maiden to tell the history. The setting is that of her native country.

From the fables we have induced two to help us with the Will and give us a glimpse of Fairyland.

The Prophecy brings you back to the every day business life and you may learn the future of the members of this class.

The following people will take part in the program.

Salutatory.....Julia Supernaw
History.....Sena Franseth
Piano Solo—"Hungarian Rhapsody"
Helen Stroebel.
Poem.....Fannie Jackson
Will.....Edith Olson, Hugh Dicken, Marjorie King.
Duet—"The Violet Lady"—Pauline and Christa Hoover.

STILLS AND MOONSHINE

Sheriff Weaver took an exploration trip in Eastern part of the County last Monday that netted him three stills, two prisoners and about forty gallons of Moonshine liquor.

One still, about twelve quarts of liquor and one prisoner, Andrew Scope.

One still, thirty-five gallons of moonshine and one prisoner, Peter Scope.

One still and several gallons of mash from Tony Raski.

The three stills with the manufactured concoction and the two Scopees are in possession or under the sheriff's care at County jail, Raski was not placed under arrest.

The three cases will soon be brought before the Court for legal adjustment.—Charlevoix Sentinel.

Winners In Essay Contest

Charlevoix County Good Roads Ass'n Announce Results.

The Charlevoix County Good Roads Assn. are ready to distribute the $100 in prizes offered this year for the best essays on the subject: WHY CHARLEVOIX COUNTY SHOULD BUILD ROADS OF CONCRETE RATHER THAN GRAVEL AND OTHER SOFT MATERIAL.

Mr. Frank Hamilton, Chairman of the State Highway Advisory Board, Traverse City, judged the papers from the high school section and awarded the following prizes:

First prize, $30 to the writer of No. 11
Second prize $20 to the writer of No. 16
Mr. Earnest Peasley, Clerk of the Co. Road Commission, R. F. D. Charlevoix, judged the papers from the grammar school section and awarded the following prizes:

First prize, $15 to the writer of No. 19
Second prize $10 to the writer of No. 17
Mr. Dwight L. Wilson, of East Jordan, judged the papers from the rural school section. Because of the fact that only two papers were submitted from this section and both gave evidence of insufficient thought and time spent in their preparation, Mr. Wilson recommended that no awards be made in this section, but designated No. 20 as the best and 21 second. The Association, however, have decided to overrule Mr. Wilson and award the following prizes:

First prize, $10 to the writer of No. 20
Second prize, $5 to the writer of No. 21
The judges were not informed as to the name and address of the contestants.

The committee are pleased to announce the following prize winners:
No. 11—Mr. Robert Quigley, Boyne City High School
No. 16—Mr. Hugh Mayne, Charlevoix High School.
No. 19—Mr. Joseph Quigley, Sixth Grade, Boyne City.
No. 17—Miss Helen Hooper, Seventh Grade, Deer Lake
No. 20—Mr. Forrest Griffin, Seventh Grade, Deer Lake
No. 21—Miss Zola Barber, eighth Grade, Deer Lake
The essays and all correspondence incident to the conducting of this contest will be kept on file in the office of the Secretary of the Association. The prizes will be mailed in the near future.

Signed,
R. L. LEWIS,
Secretary.

NEARLY ALL TEACHERS HIRED FOR NEXT YEAR.

A very remarkable situation has arisen in the East Jordan Public Schools in that all the teachers are returning but three. Two of these would return only that they have very fine positions in other cities. Miss June Hoyt goes to Saginaw and Miss Carolyn Hughes to Mt. Clemens. Miss Snyder will likely not teach another year. However we are assured of as good if not better teaching force than we have this year. It would seem to be a compliment to East Jordan and to the public schools to have so many teachers return when many of them could have gone to other positions in larger cities. Perhaps no other city in northern Michigan has a like record. In fact, nearly all of our neighboring cities lose from a half to two-thirds of their teaching force, so if we continue to cooperate and stand back of the school the way we have the past year with the increased experience and knowledge of the pupils that our faculty have, we cannot help but have a successful year for 1922-23.

Packing China.

When packing glass or china use straw or excelsior that has been slightly dampened. The water causes both of these materials to swell, and this swelling fills up the crevices, thus wedging the packing in between the breakable articles much tighter than it can be done by hand. This is the method used by professional packers.

Ball Games Going Fine

More Interest Being Manifested Each Week.

Two good games of ball were pulled off Wednesday afternoon in the City League series.

The first game between the Methodists and Holy Name was a good game to watch; was well played and closely contested throughout.

The Holy Name tried hard to break their losing streak, but once again bowed to defeat in the tune of 7 to 4. Miles pitched a good game and had good support. Green also pitched a good game and had better support than he has had this year. The Holy Name team was strengthened by the addition of Ed LaLonde which permitted Plamondon to go to short stop where he played a star game. Short stop Davis on the Methodist team played brilliantly. Cort Hayes starred at the bat in addition to catching a good game. The features of this game were a fine running catch by Davis and one by Plamondon.

The second game between the League leaders and the K. P. I. O. O. F. team was closely contested throughout. The K. P. I. O. O. F. combination tried hard to break the winning streak in the Mason-Presbyterian and were nearly successful when they filled the bases in the last inning with the score of seven to five against them. Sedgeman pulled himself out of the hole that he had gotten into by issuing several walks and Fred Vogel who had previously made a two base hit, rolled an easy one to the infield ending the old ball game.

Ray Gee again pitched a very good game of ball as also did Sedgeman. With better support Gee would have lead the team to victory as several glaring errors on the part of both the K. P. I. O. O. F. and the League contributed largely to the final result. John Seiler at 3rd base played an exceptionally fast game and Capt. Watson and Enoch Giles made some very good plays. The crowd seemed to get a great deal of enjoyment out of watching the supposed heavy hitters on the Mason-Presbyterians whiff the air.

The day was an exceedingly hot one causing considerable discomfort to both players and spectators. A good sized and good natured crowd was in attendance. Each team is getting its partisans among the rooters and the interest and enthusiasm is as intense as it was at the indoor base ball games last winter. Each team in the League is making it a best effort to cause the downfall of the Mason-Presbyterians who have won three games and lost none. Next Wednesday afternoon games will be played between Mason Presbyterians vs. Holy Name. K. P. I. O. O. F. vs. M. E. These will be good games and any one who cares for the game of base ball should be in attendance. The admission is 10c for the afternoon and games are scheduled to start at 1:30 P. M.

The public has readily adapted itself to the Wednesday afternoon closing and Wednesday evening opening of the stores as was attested by the large number of cars on the downtown streets Wednesday night. Farmers appreciate this arrangement. Main street Wednesday night greatly resembled Saturday nights and anyone not knowing what day of the week it was and being downtown would have said it was Saturday night. The band was not organized sufficiently to give band concerts Wednesday night but it is hoped that it will be, by next Wednesday night.

Plants That Catch Cold. That trees, like human beings, are liable to catch cold, was a point in a paper on "The Relation of Soil to Plant Growth," read in England at the Surveyors' Institution. "Plants respond to changes in environment," said the author.

Concerning Floor Coverings. Floors are not only part of the background of the room along with the walls and ceiling, but they also form the foundation of the whole decorative scheme. Therefore, the floor coverings must necessarily be darker in color than the walls, otherwise they will spoil the entire proportion of the room by the effect of instability produced.

CHARLEVOIX CITY VALUATION RAISED $839,740 BY STATE TAX COMMISSION

After being in session for two weeks the members of the Board of Review completed their work last Saturday. Two full weeks of strenuous work for members as well as for several members representing the State Tax Commission who were active participants for some considerable part of the time, making some, perhaps, valuable suggestion, and at the same time some that did not meet with the approval of the local board members who were satisfied that the visitors were not fully conversant with property valuation and succeeded in convincing them that their position in many instances was erroneous.

With the completion of the work the roll shows an assessed valuation for the City of $3,477,625 as against $2,637,885 for the year 1921, a raise of $839,740. Of this amount of the boost $394,090 was placed against real-estate and the balance $445,650 was placed on personal property.

Naturally some dissatisfaction is expressed concerning the work of members of the state commission wherein certain properties have been assessed on fictitious values, values that are non-existent and can not by any stretch of imagination be created.

Some of our local citizens well informed on local values and conditions state that, in their judgment, the city as a whole, is not overassessed but, that certain properties are over assessed while some other properties, bear a relatively low valuation and that the tax roll in this particular respect conforms to all prior assessments.

Some few of our tax payers, providing they carry out their expressed intention, will make an effort to get relief by some legal action, but whether or not they will attempt to make good their threat is entirely problematical, and we apprehend that they will abandon their threatened action.—Charlevoix Sentinel

EAST JORDAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The High School and visitors were surprised last Friday, when called into assembly to find the stage transformed into the Forest of Arden.

The Freshmen having studied Shakespeare's "As You Like It," decided to act this play out for the benefit of the rest of the High School.

Although this was a rather serious undertaking for a class so young in years, they certainly did credit to their numbers and a satisfactory chapel hour, was enjoyed by the spectators.

Plans are now being made for a big Senior Class Picnic which is to be held next week. Owing to the fact that it will perhaps be the last time the entire class will be associated together for a good time, it is urged that every member of the class be present. Time and place will be decided on later.

On Class Day, June 14th, the Senior Class will distribute Annuals to those wishing to purchase them. These Annuals are put up in excellent form. They contain work done by members of the class, photographs and sketches of baseball, basketball and football teams; something about the track, which is now but newly started in the school, many amusing stories of school days, photographs of all the classes in the school with the work they are doing and many individual photographs. Besides these, this Annual contains some of the highest standards of work done in the school with many interesting and amusing articles given by the various grades.

The whole school has nobly given their time and spirit to the production of a first class Annual. We, the Senior Class, request the patronage of our friends about the city to help us meet our expenses by buying one of these Annuals. Today is the time to purchase for the price must be raised if more Annuals are not sold. Ask for them and get your receipt from the members of the class or from any member of the school. The Annuals will be delivered on Class night June 14th.

This is your last chance to obtain the excellent and well made Annuals at only $1.25. Purchase at once and note the work of E. J. H. S.

IT CAN BE DONE

East Jordan can be made one of the most popular summer outing points in Michigan, and there is no good reason why it should not be started this year. Few of us fully appreciate the beautiful lake, the wonderful scenery, the pure crystal waters which originate from cold springs, how easy it is to run out for a day's or even an hour's fishing, the wonderful drives through the country and to neighboring cities which are already known throughout the country as "beauty spots"—these and many other points we fail to get until we have spent months or possibly years in other localities, or have traveled and actually seen some of the wonderful beauty spots better known and advertised.

All East Jordan needs is to "tell the world," and be prepared to accommodate the people who come here with the willingness to try us out.

A movement is on foot to get them coming to East Jordan, and along the lake. The first thing is to have a complete list of all available furnished rooms, or furnished homes, which can be rented for one week or more or for the entire season. This must be attended to at once, and all who can possibly spare rooms—especially sleeping accommodations—should leave the details at the office of E. A. Lewis in the Loveday block.

Officers of the Board of Trade feel they may be justified in doing a little outside advertising if sufficient accommodations can be depended upon to warrant the move.

Opera House Rarely Opened. At San Jose, in Costa Rica, there is a gorgeous opera house, said to be the "finest" in the world, but there is little use for it. It is rarely opened more than once or twice during the year for a theatrical or musical event. The great social event of the country, the presidential ball, is held here each New Year's eve.

COUPLE GOES BACK TO NATURE
Unclad Pair to Live Absolutely Primitive Life.
Boston—Entering the Maine woods naked without food or weapons, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Sutter announced here that they will prove that they can live an absolutely primitive life for six weeks.
Sutter, who is 27, and his wife, a slight but strong young woman of 23, have picked the wildest part of north central Maine for their experiment.
Their first problem, in view of the coldness of the climate, will be to make themselves clothing from the inner bark of certain trees. Fish and game will be caught with crude implements of their own manufacture.
The area selected is uninhabited and abounds with various wild animals, but the pair of nature lovers, skilled in woodcraft, scoff at suggestion of danger.
If they can live in the woods six weeks, they contend, it will be proof that man can return to primitive conditions and live so indefinitely.
The cockiness of youth takes the place of confidence of old age.

"BULL MOOSER" WINS IN PENNSYLVANIA PRIMARY

GIFFORD PINCHOT

Philadelphia — Gifford Pinchot, friend of former President Roosevelt, and a Progressive party supporter in the 1912 campaign, won his race for the nomination for the governorship of Pennsylvania in the primary last week, defeating George E. "WHITE WING" WINS ELECTION

Jim Gannon Shocks Society Town He Now Represents as Alderman.

Chicago—A month ago, Jim Gannon was working on the streets of the exclusive little town of Lake Forest, sweeping or repairing pavements.

He is now alderman of the Third ward of the village and is the political representative of such men as Laurence H. Armour, Louis F. Swift, Delavan Smith and John A. King, whose motor cars rumble down the winding pathways which were ministered to by his broom.

Gannon did not slide into office on the nicely greased skids of a political machine. Far from it. He worked harder to get votes than ever he did on the streets of Lake Forest.

William J. Quigley was the alderman candidate on the "regular" ticket, which was headed by Henry Rumsey, candidate for re-election as mayor of Lake Forest and head of Rumsey & Company, Chicago grain brokers.

When the election returns were in it was discovered that Gannon led Quigley by 51 votes. Now Jim had given up his work on the streets. The little city on the north shore has not yet recovered from the shock of Mr. Gannon's election.

Wassaquam brought the mackinaw and cap which Alan had worn on Number 25; he took from the bed the new blankets which had been furnished by Sherrill. They waited until a farmer appeared driving a team hitched to a low, wide-rimmed sled. The Indian settled Alan on the sled, and they drove off.

They traveled south along the shore, rounded into Little Traverse bay, and the houses of Harbor Point appeared among their pines. The sled proceeded across the edge of the bay to the little city; even before leaving the bay ice, Alan saw Constance and her father; they were walking at the water front near the railway station, and they came out on the ice as they recognized the occupants of the sled.

Alan felt himself alternately weak and roused to strength as he saw her. Their eyes encountered, and hers looked away; a sudden shyness, which sent his heart leaping, had come over her. He wanted to speak to her, to make some recognition to her of what she had done, but he did not dare to trust his voice; and she seemed to understand that. He turned to Sherrill instead. An engine and tender coupled to a single car stood at the railway station.

"We're going to Chicago?" he inquired of Sherrill.

"Not yet, Alan—to St. Ignace. Father Perron—the priest, you know—went to St. Ignace as soon as he recovered from his exposure. He sent word to me that he wished to see me at my convenience; I told him that we would go to him as soon as you were able."

"He sent no other word than that?"

"Only that he had a very grave communication to make to us."

Alan did not ask more; at mention of Father Perron he had seemed to feel himself once more among the crashing, charging freight cars on the ferry and to see Benjamin Corvet, pinned amid the wreckage and speaking into the ear of the priest.

It was not merely a confessional which Father Perron had taken from the lips of the dying man on Number 25; it was an accusation of crime against another man as well; and the confession and accusation both had been made, not only to gain forgiveness from God, but to right terrible wrongs. If the confession left some things unexplained, it did not lack confirmation; the priest had learned enough to be certain that it was no hallucination of madness. He had been charged definitely to repeat what had been told him to the persons he was now going to meet; so he watched expectantly upon the railway station platform at St. Ignace. A tall, handsome man whom Father Perron thought must be the Mr. Sherrill with whom he had communicated appeared upon the car platform; the young man from Number 25 followed him, and the two helped down a young and beautiful girl.

They recognized the priest by his dress and came toward him at once.

"Mr. Sherrill?" Father Perron inquired.

Sherrill assented, taking the priest's hand and introducing his daughter.

"I am glad to see you safe, Mr. Stafford." The priest had turned to Alan.

"We have thanks to offer up for that, you and I!"

"I am his son, then! I thought that must be so."

Alan trembled at the priest's sign of confirmation. There was no shock of surprise in this; he had suspected ever since August, when Captain Stafford's watch and the wedding ring had so strangely come to Constance, that he might be Stafford's son. He looked at Constance, as they followed the priest to the motor which was waiting to take them to the house of old Father Benito, whose guest Father Perron was; she was very quiet. What would that grave statement which Father Perron was to make to them mean to him—to Alan? Would further knowledge about that father whom he had not known, but whose blood was his and whose name he now must bear, bring pride or shame to him?

A bell was tolling somewhere, as they followed the priest into Father Benito's small, bare room which had been prepared for their interview. Father Perron went to a desk and took therefrom some notes which he had made.

TO STOP COUGHING AT NIGHT.

A summer bronchial cough keeps not only the sufferer but other members of the family awake. Alfred Barker, 1061 Avondale St., E. Liverpool, O., writes: "My boy was suffering from a bronchial cough for 7 or 8 weeks. Foley's Honey and Tar has done him wonderful good. No opiates.—Hite's Drug Store."

"What I have," he said, speaking more particularly to Sherrill, "is the terrible, not fully coherent statement of a dying man. It has given me names—also it has given me facts. But isolated. It does not give what came before or what came after; therefore, it does not make plain. I hope that, as Benjamin Corvet's partner, you can furnish what I lack."

"What is it you want to know?" Sherrill asked.

"What were the relations between Benjamin Corvet and Captain Stafford?"

Sherrill thought a moment. "Corvet," he replied, "was a very able man; he had insight and mental grasp—and he had the fault which sometimes goes with those, a hesitancy of action. Stafford was an able man, too, considerably younger than Corvet. Twenty years ago, when the conflict of competing interests was at its height, Corvet was the head of one line, Stafford was head of another, and the two lines had very much the same connections and competed for the same cargoes."

"I begin to see!" Father Perron exclaimed. "Please go on."

"In the early nineties both lines still were young; Stafford had, I believe, two ships; Corvet had three."

"So few? Yes; it grows plainer!"

"In 1894, Stafford managed a stroke which, if fate had not intervened, would have assured the ultimate extinction of Corvet's line or its absorption into Stafford's. Stafford gained as his partner Franklin Ramsdell, a wealthy man whom he had convinced that the lake traffic offered chances of great profit; and this connection supplied him with the capital whose lack had been hampering him, as it was still hampering Corvet. The new firm—Stafford and Ramsdell—projected the construction, with Ramsdell's money, of a number of great steel freighters. The first of these—the Miwaka, a test ship whose experience was to guide them in the construction of the rest—was launched in the fall of 1895, and was lost on its maiden trip with both Stafford and Ramsdell aboard. The Stafford and Ramsdell interests could not survive the death of both owners and disappeared from the lakes. Is this what you wanted to know?"

The priest nodded. Alan leaned tensely forward, watching; what he had heard seemed to have increased and deepened the priest's feeling over what he had to tell and to have aided his comprehension of it.

"His name was Caleb Stafford," Father Perron began. "(This is what Benjamin Corvet told me when he was dying under the wreckage on the ferry.) He was as fair and able a man as the lakes ever knew. I had my will of most men in the lake trade in those days; but I could not have my will of him. With all the lakes to trade in, he had to pick out for his traffic which I already had chosen for my own. But I fought him fair, Father—I fought him fair, and I would have continued to do that to the end."

"I was at Manistee, Father, in the end of the season—December fifth of 1895. The ice had begun to form very early that year and was already bad; there was cold and a high gale. I had laid up one of my ships at Manistee, and I was crossing that night upon a tug to Manitowoc, where another was to be laid up. I had still a third one loading up on the northern peninsula at Manistee for a last trip which, if it could be made, would mean a good profit from a season which so far, because of Stafford's competition, had been only fair. After leaving Manistee, it grew still more cold, and I was afraid the ice would close in on her and keep her where she was, so I determined to go north that night and see that she got out. None knew, Father, except those aboard the tug, that I had made that change."

"At midnight, Father, to westward of the Foxes, we heard the four blasts of a steamer in distress—the four long blasts which have sounded in my soul ever since! We turned toward where we saw the steamer's lights; we went nearer and, Father, it was his great ship—the Miwaka! We had heard two days before that she had passed the Soo; we had not known more than that of where she was. She had broken her new shaft, Father, and was intact except for that, but helpless in the rising sea."

The priest broke off. "The Miwaka! I did not understand all that that had meant to him until just now—the new ship of the rival line, whose building meant for him failure and defeat!

"There is no higher duty than that of those in peril at sea. He—Benjamin Corvet, who told me this—swore to me that, at the beginning none upon the tug had any thought except to give aid. A small line was drifted down to the tug and to this a hawser was attached which they hauled aboard. There happened then the first of those events which led those upon the tug into doing a great wrong. He—Benjamin Corvet—had taken charge of the wheel of the tug; three men were handling the hawser in ice and washing water at the stern. The whistle accidentally blew, which those on the Miwaka understood to mean that the hawser had been secured, so they drew in the slack; the hawser, tightened unexpectedly by the pitching of the sea, caught and crushed the captain and deckhand of the tug and threw them into the sea."

"Because they were short-handed now upon the tug, and also because consultation was necessary over what was to be done, the young owner of the Miwaka, Captain Stafford, came down the hawser onto the tug after the line had been put straight. He came to the wheelhouse, where Benjamin Corvet was, and they consulted. Then Benjamin Corvet learned that the other owner was aboard the new ship as well—Ramsdell—the man whose money you have just told me had built this and was soon to build other ships. I did not understand before why learning that affected him so much."

"Stafford wanted us" (this is what Benjamin Corvet said) "to tow him up the lake; I would not do that, but I agreed to tow him to Manistee. The night was dark, Father—no snow, but frightful wind which had been increasing until it now sent the waves washing clear across the tug. We had gone north an hour when, low upon the water to my right, I saw a light, and there came to me the whistling of a buoy which told me that we were passing nearer than I would have wished, even in daytime, to windward of Boulder reef. There are, Father, no people on that reef; its sides of ragged rock go straight down forty fathoms into the lake."

"I looked at the man with me in the wheelhouse—at Stafford—and hated him! I put my head out at the wheelhouse door and looked back at the lights, at the new, great steamer, following safe and straight at the end of its towline. I thought of my two men upon the tug who had been crushed by clumsiness of those on board that ship; and how my own ships had had a name for never losing a man and that name would be lost now because of the carelessness of Stafford's men! And the sound of the shoal brought the evil thought to me. Suppose I had not happened across his ship; would it have gone upon some reef like this and been lost? I thought that if now the hawser should break, I would be rid of that ship and perhaps of the owner who was on board as well. We could not pick up the tow line again in so close to the reef. The steamer would drift down upon the rocks."

Father Perron hesitated an instant. "I bear witness," he said solemnly, "that Benjamin Corvet assured me—his priest—that it was only a thought; the evil act which it suggested was something which he would not do or even think of doing. But he spoke something of what was in his mind to Stafford, for he said:

"I must look like a fool to you to keep on towing your ship!"

"They stared, he told me, into one another's eyes, and Stafford grew uneasy."

"We'd have been all right," he answered, "until we had got help, if you'd left us where we were!" He, too, listened to the sound of the buoy and of the water dashing on the shoal. "You are taking us too close," he said—"too close!" He went aft then to look at the tow line."

Father Perron's voice ceased; what he had to tell now made his face white as he arranged it in his memory. Alan leaned forward a little and then, with an effort, sat straight. Constance turned and gazed at him; but he dared not look at her. He felt her hand warm upon his; it rested there a moment and moved away.

"There was a third man in the wheelhouse when these things were spoken," Father Perron said, "the mate of the ship which had been laid up at Manistee."

"Henry Spearman," Sherrill supplied.

"That is the name. Benjamin Corvet told me of that man that he was young, determined, brutal and set upon getting position and wealth for himself by any means. He watched Corvet and Stafford while they were speaking, and he, too, listened to the shoal until Stafford had come back; then he went aft."

"I looked at him, Father, Benjamin Corvet said to me, 'and I let him go—not knowing. He came back and looked at me once more, and went again to the stern; Stafford had been watching him as well as I, and sprang away from me now and scrambled after him. The tug leaped suddenly; there was no longer any tow holding it back, for the hawser had parted; and I knew, Father, the reason was that Spearman had cut it!"

"I rang for the engine to be slowed, and I left the wheel and went aft; some struggle was going on at the stern of the tug; a flash came from there and the cracking of a shot. Suddenly all was light about me as, aware of the breaking of the hawser and alarmed by the shot, the searchlight of the Miwaka turned upon the tug. The cut end of the hawser was still upon the tug, and Spearman had been trying to clear this when Stafford attacked him; they fought, and Stafford struck Spearman down. He turned and cried out against me—accusing me of having ordered Spearman to cut the line. He held up the cut end toward Ramsdell on the Miwaka and cried out to him and showed by pointing that it had been cut. Blood was running from the hand with which he pointed, for he had been shot by Spearman; and now again and a second and a third time, from where he lay upon the deck, Spearman fired. The second of those shots killed the engineer, who had rushed out where I was on the deck; the third shot went through Stafford's head. The Miwaka was drifting down upon the reef; her whistle sounded again and again the four long blasts. The fireman, who had followed the engineer up from below, fawned on me! I was safe for all him, he said; I could trust Luke—Luke would not tell! He too thought I had ordered the doing of that thing!"

"From the Miwaka, Ramsdell yelled curses at me, threatening me for what he thought that I had done! I looked at Spearman as he got up from the deck, and I read the thought that had been in his mind; he had believed that he could cut the hawser in the dark, none seeing, and that our word that it had been broken would have as much strength as any accusation Stafford could make. He had known that to share a secret such as that with me would 'make' him on the lakes; for the loss of the Miwaka would cripple Stafford and Ramsdell and strengthen me; and he could make me share with him whatever I made. But Stafford had surprised him at the hawser and had seen."

"I moved to denounce him, Father, as I realized this; I moved—but stopped. He had made himself safe against accusation by me! None—none ever would believe that he had done this except by my order. If he should claim that; and he made plain that he was going to claim that. Luke called me a fool and defied me. Luke—even my own man, the only one left on the tug with us—believed it! And there was murder in it now, with Stafford dying there upon the deck and with the certainty that all those on the Miwaka could not be saved. I felt the noose as if it had been already tied about my neck! And I had done no wrong, Father! I had only thought wrong!"

"So long as one lived among those on the Miwaka who had seen what was done, I knew I would be hanged; yet I would have saved them if I could. But, in my comprehension of what this meant, I only stared at Stafford where he lay and then at Spearman, and I let him get control of the tug. The tug, whose wheel I had lashed, heading her into the waves, had been moving slowly. Spearman pushed me aside and went to the wheelhouse; he sent Luke to the engine, and from that moment Luke was his. He turned the tug about to where we still saw the lights of the Miwaka. The steamer had struck upon the reef; she hung there for a time; and Spearman—he had the wheel and Luke, at his orders, was at the engine—held the tug off and we beat slowly to and fro until the Miwaka slipped off and sank. Some had gone down with her, no doubt; but two boats had got off, carrying lights. They saw the tug approaching and cried out and stretched their hands to us; but Spearman stopped the tug. They rowed toward us then, but when they got near, Spearman moved the tug away from them, and then again stopped. They cried out again and rowed toward us; again he moved the tug away, and then they understood and stopped rowing and cried curses at us. One boat soon drifted far away; we knew of its capsizing by the extinguishing of its light. The other capsized near to where we were. Those in it who had no life-belts and could not swim, sank first. Some could swim and, for a while they fought the waves."

Alan, as he listened, ceased consciously to separate the priest's voice from the sensations running through him. His father was Stafford, dying at Corvet's feet while Corvet watched the death of the crew of the Miwaka; Alan himself, a child, was floating with a lifebelt among those struggling in the water whom Spearman and Corvet were watching die. Memory; was it that which now had come to him? No; rather it was a realization of all the truths which the priest's words were bringing together and arranging rightly for him.

Alan's father died in the morning. All day they stayed out in the storm, avoiding vessels. They dared not throw Stafford's body overboard or that of the engineer, because, if found, the bullet holes would have aroused inquiry. When night came again, they had taken the two ashore at some wild spot and buried them; to make identification harder, they had taken the things that they had with them and buried them somewhere else. The child—Alan—Corvet had smuggled ashore and sent away; he had told Spearman later that the child had died.

"Peace—rest!" Father Perron said in a deep voice. "Peace to the dead!" But for the living there had been no peace. Spearman had forced Corvet to make him his partner; Corvet had tried to take up his life again, but had not been able. His wife, aware that something was wrong with him, had learned enough so that she had left him. Luke had come and come and come again for blackmail, and Corvet had paid him. Corvet grew rich; those connected with him prospered; but with Corvet lived always the ghosts of those he had watched die with the Miwaka—of those who would have prospered with Stafford except for what had been done. Corvet had secretly sought and followed the fate of the kin of those people who had been murdered to benefit him; he found some of their families destroyed; he found almost all poor and struggling. And though Corvet paid Luke to keep the crime from disclosure, yet Corvet swore to himself to confess it all and make such restitution as he could. But each time that the day he had appointed with himself arrived, he put it off and off and paid Luke again and again. Spearman knew of his intention and sometimes kept him from it. But Corvet had made one close friend; and when that friend's daughter, for whom Corvet cared now most of all in the world, had been about to marry Spearman, Corvet defied the cost to himself, and he gained strength to oppose Spearman. So he had written to Stafford's son to come; he had prepared for confession and restitution; but, after he had done this and while he waited, something had seemed to break in his brain; too long preyed upon by terrible memories, and the ghosts of those who had gone, and by the echo of their voices crying to him from the water, Corvet had wandered away; he had come back, under the name of one of those whom he had wronged, to the lake life from which he had sprung. Only now and then, for a few hours, he had intervals when he remembered all; in one of these he had dug up the watch and the ring and other things which he had taken from Captain Stafford's pockets and written to himself directions of what to do with them, when his mind again failed.

And for Spearman, strong against all that assailed Corvet, there had been always the terror of the Indian Drum—the Drum which had beat short for the Miwaka, the Drum which had known that one was saved! That story came from some hint which Luke had spread, Corvet thought; but Spearman, born near by the Drum, believed that the Drum had known and that the Drum had tried to tell; all through the years Spearman had dreaded the Drum which had tried to betray him.

"So it was by the Drum that, in the end, Spearman was broken."

The priest's voice had stopped, as Alan slowly realized, he heard Sherrill's voice speaking to him.

"It was a trust that he left you, Alan; I thought it must be that—a trust for those who suffered by the loss of your father's ship. I don't know yet how it can be fulfilled; and we must think of that."

"That's how I understand it," Alan said.

Through the tumult in his soul he became aware of physical feelings again, and of Sherrill's hand put upon his shoulder in a cordial, friendly grasp. Then another hand, small and firm, touched his, and he felt its warm lightning grasp upon his fingers; he looked up, and his eyes filled and hers, he saw, were brimming too.

They walked together, later in the day, up the hill to the small, white house which had been Caleb Stafford's. The woman who had come to the door was willing to show them through the house; it had only five rooms. One of those upon the second floor was so much larger and pleasanter than the rest that they became quite sure that it was the one in which Alan had been born, and where his young mother soon afterward had died.

The woman, who had showed them about, had gone to another room and left them alone.

"There seems to have been no picture of her and nothing of hers left here that any one can tell me about; but," Alan choked, "it's good to be able to think of her as I can now."

"I mean—no one can say anything against her now!"

Alan drew nearer her, trembling.

"I can never thank you—I can never tell you what you did for me, believing in—her and in me, no matter how things looked. And then, coming up here as you did—for me!"

"Yes, it was for you, Alan!"

"Constance!" He caught her. She let him hold her.

The woman was returning to them now and, perhaps, it was as well; for not yet, he knew, could he ask her all that he wished; what had happened was too recent yet for that. But to him, Spearman—half mad and fleeing from the haunts of men—was glancing to be like one who had never been; and he knew she shared this feeling. The light in her deep eyes was telling him already what her answer to him would be; and life stretched forth before him full of love and happiness and hope.

Miss Ethel E. Brintnall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Brintnall, and Clifford G. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Brown, were united in marriage at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, June 7th, at the home of the bride's brother, Arthur W. Brintnall, in Wilson township. Rev. Thomas Marshall of the Methodist Church officiating. The ceremony was performed in the grove near the Brintnall home. The bridal couple were attended by Miss Blanche Stohman, cousin of the bride, acting as maid of honor, and Luther Brintnall, brother of the bride, as best man.
 The bride was prettily gowned in coral crepe-de-chine, and carried a bouquet of carnations.
 Following the wedding ice cream and cake were served to about forty guests.
 Miss Brintnall has been a successful teacher in our rural schools of the county for a number of years. Mr. Brown is with the Overland Garage.
 Many useful gifts were presented to the happy couple. They will make their home in this city on Bowen's Addition.

SPANISH VETERANS CAMP ASKS HER DEPORTATION

LADY NANCY ASTOR
 Passaic, N. J.—The federal government was asked in a resolution to deport Lady Nancy Astor as an undesirable alien by the General A. S. Burt camp, Spanish American War veterans. The action of the members followed a lively discussion over charges that the members of the G. A. R. had been insulted in speeches made by the only feminine member of the British commons during her visit to this country. Lady Astor was born in the United States.

 Chicago—Ben W. Hooper, member of the public group of the United States railroad board and a former governor of Tennessee, was elected chairman of the board at the annual meeting, succeeding Chairman Barton. G. W. W. Hanger, also a member of the public group, was elected vice chairman.
 The vote was unanimous, Mr. Hooper's name being placed in nomination by the retiring chairman, who had served for two years or since the creation of the labor board. Judge Barton was not a candidate for the office. Mr. Hooper's name was placed in nomination a year ago, but he declined and supported Judge Barton.

BANDITS LOSE IN FIGHT WITH POSSE

TWO THUGS WHO ROBBED BANK AT METAMORA KILLED, TWO OTHERS CAPTURED.

ABOUT 500 JOINED IN CHASE

Farmers Help Officers of Lapeer, Oakland and Genesee Counties to Get Bandits and $6,500 Cash.

Metamora, Mich.—Two of the thugs who robbed the local State Savings bank of $6,500 June 1, were shot to death and the other two were captured and lodged in the county jail at Lapeer. The robbers were cornered in the Coleman woods, near Hadley, by a posse of farmers and officers from three counties, Lapeer, Oakland and Genesee. The fugitives, in the fight that preceded their capture, wounded William Buckler, of Flint, a Pere Marquette railroad detective. The top of his skull was torn away.
 The bank was robbed at 9:30 a. m. Cashier Ward Peck and Assistant Cashier Omar Potter were locked in the vault but later made their escape and gave the alarm. Telephones were pressed into service and help was secured from miles around. The bandits, garbed in overalls which covered expensive clothing, had made their escape in a green touring car but other cars with armed men were put in pursuit and the robbers abandoned their automobile near Davison's lake, near Ortonville and took refuge in the woods where they were soon surrounded by the fast gathering posse.
 Shots were fired into the swamp and two of the robbers walked out and came face to face with Leo Cummins, 18 years old, C. W. Major and George Withey, all of Goodrich, and after an exchange of shots, young Cummins felled one of the men who gave the name of Mike Kovalsky. Flint, 30 years old and Polish. He was wounded in the right hip when captured. The other who was captured, Jerry Skopeny of Detroit, admitted being the driver of the green car but claimed that he was forced to do it by the other three.
 After the capture of the pair, the posse believed the other two had escaped but Shirley Johnson, Flint detective sergeant, arrived with a machine gun and a brief search revealed the hiding place. Sergeant Johnson, who has fought Mexican Indians, started the machine gun going toward a clump of trees pointed out by Buckler who had spied the thugs. They returned the fire with high powered rifles for awhile but when their fire ceased, members of the posse advanced and found the bodies riddled with bullets. No identification marks were found and photographs have been taken to be sent out for this purpose.

SAYS CHURCH MUST CO-OPERATE

Condemnation of Movies Must Stop Says Minister at Conference.

Chicago—If the church is to correct any of the unfortunate abuses now to be found in the motion picture world, the whole policy of isolation and condemnation must be dropped, Rev. Irvin E. Deer, of Dayton, O., told the annual conference of church federation secretaries. "Only by the heartiest co-operation of church and theater can these problems be solved," he said.

Fights to Enforce Blue Laws.

Yakima, Wash.—Rev. L. J. Sawyer, pastor of the First Baptist Church here, called a special meeting of his church recently to urge re-enactment of a forgotten church law, under which members indulging in dancing, card-playing or theater-going would be liable to church discipline. The congregation appears sharply divided and a number have stated they will leave the church if the stringent ordinance is adopted. The board of deacons has recommended the re-enactment.

He will be the only boy agent in this town for the famous MOVIE WEEKLY MAGAZINE. He will work after school and other spare time. His pay will be what he makes it; besides fine prizes and free Movie Tickets. When he makes good, he will be promoted. If you are between 14 and 19 years old, determine to "make good" and truly think you are the boy for this job, then apply by letter to Mr. E. L. BRITISH BATTLE SINN FEIN TROOPS

WAR BETWEEN FACTIONS IN IRELAND CAUSES INTERVENTION

REINFORCEMENTS BEING SENT

Looting of Border Towns and Uprisings in Northern Ireland Make Open Break Seem Likely.

Belfast—Infantry, cavalry, artillery and whippet tanks took part in the first offensive action of the British troops on the Ulster borderland early Sunday afternoon, when Pettigo, which straddles the line, though a large part of the town is in Free State territory, was stormed and retaken from troops of the Irish Republican army.

Reinforcements for the British military forces in northern Ireland have been pouring into Belfast since last Saturday. The record for last week was 18 killed and 74 wounded in the various outbreaks.

There has been a considerable renewal of the looting which featured the rioting of July and August, 1920, and the authorities have issued a warning that they will put it down with a strong hand.

Ulster Seen As British Base.

London—Arrival of British military reinforcements in Belfast was commented upon here as indicating that the government had made up its mind to deal firmly with the northern Irish situation, and there is already talk in London that Ulster would be used as the base for an advance into Southern Ireland in the event of the ultimate failure of the Anglo-Irish treaty.

Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, on his recent visit to London, asked for reinforcements to recover the villages held by the Southerners and to resist further incursions of Ulster.

DETROIT AUTO RACER KILLED

Buried Beneath Wrecked Machine on Toledo Race Course.

Toledo—Sterling Porter, Detroit race driver, with his wife at his side, drove his automobile at breakneck speed to Toledo, Sunday, to keep what proved to be an appointment with death.

Porter raced to Toledo to participate in a qualifying test for a 100-mile race and arrived there just in time to make the entry. He drove through the gates to the track, and with hardly a halt, participated in the qualifying test.

In the back stretch of the first lap, he apparently lost control of his machine. It wobbled through the fence and turned over. Attendants on the track found Porter's body beneath the wreckage.

GIRL BURNED IN WRECKED AUTO

Loses Life When Closed Machine Is Caught Between Two Street Cars.

Detroit—Trapped in a closed automobile which had caught fire after being ground between two M. O. street cars, Miss Irla Strong, a young woman of 23, was seriously burned Sunday that she died a few hours after being taken to Receiving hospital.

The accident in which Miss Strong was burned was at Charlevoix street and Connors avenue, Miss Amy Nichols, a room-mate who was with her in the automobile, and William Leavoy, driver of the machine, escaped with their lives, but were seriously injured.

Miss Strong's clothing literally was burned off, and some silver pieces in the pocket of her dress were burned black.

NURSE SLAYS "PERFECT LOVER"

Says She Did It To Save the Souls of Forty-nine Other Women.

Kansas City, Mo.—Miss Marie L. Beal, 26 years old, pretty former Red Cross nurse, shot and killed her "perfect lover" in order that "other women's souls might live" and then turned the weapon on herself. Physicians declare she will recover however.

Frank Warren Anderson, 29 years old, after promising to get a divorce and marry her, refused to do so, she said, and showed her a list of 49 other women and declared: "They all love me and I love them." This was the story she sobbed out.

Miss Beal, a graduate nurse, served as a Red Cross nurse in France during the war. Anderson was an aviation lieutenant.

Wife Slayer Is Electrocuted.

Michigan City, Ind.—William E. Donovan, 38 years old, was electrocuted here for the murder of his wife. The electrocution followed the plea to Gov. McCray, of Donovan's 17-year-old daughter, Mabel, that her father pay the extreme penalty. Friends of Donovan were attempting to obtain clemency for Donovan when the daughter wrote to the governor demanding the death sentence. Donovan walked to the electric chair with no show of nervousness.
