EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1922.

Co-Op Purchase Argo Milling Co

Largest Local Business Deal In Several Years

The largest single business deal in East Jordan for several years was completed last week when the East Jordan Co-Operative Association purchased the Argo Milling Company's interests in this city, taking over the holdings, Friday.

The purchase comprises the Argo Milling Co's 125-barrel flour mill the Argo's Warehouses and Coni Sheds.

R. C. Supernaw Manager for the Co-Operative Ass'n will have charge of the new addition to their holdings.

Since organizing a number of years ago, the East Jordan Co-Operative Ass'n have been handicapped for elevator facilities, and the new purchase gives them one of the best flour and feed mills in Northern Michigan.

They plan to employ a first-class miller and build up the local trade. The new purchase also gives them ample room to handle a complete line of Builders Supplies. So far they have only been able (on account of room) to handle a limited supply of roofing etc.

East Jordan is the community center of one of the finest farm regions in Northern Michigan, and anything pertaining to the interest of the farmers surrounding East Jordan, is of more than passing importance.

Since its inception, the East Jordan Co-Operative Association has been a pronounced success and there is every reason to believe that their new venture is but a step forward in progress.

The flour mill here was erected and completed some eighteen years ago, and at that time was the latest word in milling equipment with electrical power. It is located on the lake front and has the advantages of both railroad and waterway transportation, being on the line of the East Jordan and Southern R. R. on one side and deep sea navigation on the opposite.

Another Pioneer Passes Away

Mrs. Adiel Kenny Located Here 56 Years Ago

Mrs. Adiel Kenny passed away at the home of her son, Joseph, near this city, Thursday, Aug. 17th from heart trouble following an illness of several years duration.

Adiel Burney was born at Ogdensburg, N. Y., February 24th, 1840, her parents being Pascal and Marcelline Burney.

On December 4th, 1858, she was united in marriage to John Martin Kenny at County Gray, Normanbay, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Kenny were among the first settlers of this region, coming here in the late fall of 1866—fifty-six years ago. They "homesteaded" just north of what is now East Jordan and continued to make this place their home until death.

Mr. Kenny preceded his wife to the great beyond Dec. 20th, 1920.

Surviving sons and daughters of the deceased are John F., Anthony, William, and Joseph—all of East Jordan; Mrs. Jane Rigg of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. F. W. Garrett of Council Bluffs, Iowa; Mrs. John Kelly of Peoria, Ill.

Decided among the first members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church of this city and funeral services were held from her church home Monday, Aug. 21st, at 10:00 a. m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. Fr. D. M. Drinan. Interment at the Catholic cemetery.

Wall Paper.

Persons who "don't know what all this" may find a cure in choice of a wall paper that suits their tastes. It has been proven that wall paper can produce nervousness and irritability, if its tone clashes with the feelings of anyone in the house.

Magnified Trifles.

Trifles that amount to little are too frequently magnified and those which really should receive attention are ignored. This is because too many men and women lack ability properly to estimate the value of things. Ability to appraise is at a premium nowadays.

Hated to Part With Jewels.

The maxim expressing the futility of earthly possessions, "Shrouds have no pockets," was recognized with frank regret by Rachel, the French netress. Fondly contemplating her jewels, she said, "And must I part with these so soon?"

S. E. Rogers Elected Director

Michigan Potato Growers Exchange Hold Annual Meet.

At the annual meeting of the Michigan Potato Growers Association held at Cadillac last week S. E. Rogers of East Jordan was elected a director and at a later meeting of the directors was elected secretary of the Board.

Charles A. Wood of Kingsley and Mr. Wierck of Hart were the retiring members, Mr. Rogers and O. S. Wood of Barryton being elected to fill these vacancies. Hold-over directors are Herbert F. Baker of Cheboygan, Fred Smith of Elk Rapids, A. B. Large and Henry Curtis of Cadillac, Ernest Snyder of Lakeview.

Resolutions were adopted indorsing the program of President David Friday of the Michigan Agricultural College, also others assuring the Michigan Farm Bureau of the co-operation of the exchange, and authorizing affiliation with the Federated Growers, Inc., a federation of co-operative marketing societies.

The new Board of Directors met Thursday afternoon and organized with the following officers:—

President—Henry Curtis of Cadillac.

Vice-President—Fred Smith of Elk Rapids.

Secretary—S. E. Rogers of East Jordan.

Treasurer—O. S. Wood of Barryton.

Annual reports of the exchange, which markets the potatoes of its members, show that the association last season produced 96,685,114 pounds of potatoes from 2,439 acres. Small sales were also made of apples, celery and cabbage, bringing the total value of business done to $1,777,829.11.

The expense of the marketing machinery was $76,338.50 for everything.

The association charges eight cents a hundredweight for marketing, and then returns the difference between costs of marketing and the revenue obtained to the farmers in dividends. It is proposed to reduce this cost to six cents next year.

Michigan itself consumes but a small portion of the potatoes grown in the state. Ohio takes the most, 783 cars; Indiana second, with 586; Pennsylvania third, with 562; Illinois fourth, with 272, and Michigan fifth, with 79.

Michigan is said to ship in potatoes from outside states, because the arrangements of railroads and freight rates make it as cheap as to buy home-grown potatoes.

Officials say that last season was a successful year for Michigan potato growers, even though some conditions were against them. The success is said to be due to increasing care in selection and marketing.

The Chief Petoskey variety, featured by Michigan growers, brought 8½ cents more a hundredweight than the unbranded No. 1 stock in the markets.

Marketing of the 1921 crop was also said to have been easy because of the shortage of potato crops in many large producing states. Losses were sustained, however, it was said, because of the inaccuracies in the Government estimate of the potato crop, on which the industry based its calculations.

Those attending the meeting from East Jordan were R. C. Supernaw, J. E. Secord and S. E. Rogers.

Two Killed in Auto Mishap.

Reading, Mass.—William M. Wood, Jr., son of William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, and Alex Gardner, of North Andover, were instantly killed when their automobile, after demolishing two other cars on the Reading-Andover boulevard, near this town, crashed into a telegraph pole. Paul Rice, of Shawshen village, the third occupant of the automobile, was hurled 20 feet into a swamp. He escaped with a broken rib.

East Jordan Has One Candidate

From the above list of candidates, it will be seen that East Jordan has but one candidate in the field. As the second largest city in the County has no representation in County offices, The Herald believes it only fair that East Jordan's Candidate for Prosecuting Attorney be elected to office.

Atty' Wilson is thoroughly qualified for the office and we believe the electorate of the County in general will endorse his candidacy.

Charlevoix, our County Seat, is well supplied with candidates, having eleven in the field; with Boyne City in the field with four.

Those of which some disposition was made were: Andrew Slop, violation of liquor law, pleaded guilty but as yet has not been sentenced; Jack Peters, charged with rape and assault, received a jury trial and was convicted on the assault charge, he has not been sentenced; the cases of J. F. A. De-Wordy, charged with violation of medical registration law, and A. J. W. UNCLE GEO. VAN PELT IN A FEW MORE REMARKS ON CONCRETE ROADS

Charlevoix, Mich., Aug. 20
Dear Charlevoix County Herald:—

So far as I am concerned, I do not care much what the opinion may be of the man of today, whether they like me or not, but I do want the respect and confidence of the boys and girls. That was the reason I planked down the prize money for the winners of best essays written by the school children last winter on the advantages and benefits of good concrete roads, over those of any other type—and did not wait for those to send it in who pledged it and I am still waiting, but it is getting a long time between drinks "aint it?" In a few years the men will all be dead and gone, while the boys and the girls and I will be left to take up the burdens our parents have left us, and we will have the building of good concrete roads all to ourselves. This is the only type of road that we will build. No more gravel nor gravel and S. S. (Soft Stuff) or gravel and dust, or dust and gravel roads. They are all the same. When the road bonds fall due that have recently been issued to build roads, and will have to be paid, all the roads except the concrete roads will have been worn out disintegrated ground to dust and blown away. Then they will have to be rebuilt with concrete. The boys will say to each other "Why didn't your dad, and my dad, build more concrete roads, and less gravel, when they could have built them about as cheap as the gravel?" Unpleasant thoughts regarding this unfortunate road situation cannot then be suppressed by the grown-ups who now are children.

All that I ask the people of Charlevoix County to do is this. Go back six years when I first began howling my fool head off for Good Concrete Roads which I had learned about during the time I was (and still am) a member of the Good Roads Committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Just compare the road conditions of 1916 with that of 1922, and you cannot help seeing that the megaphone I used then—giving out to you what men of road vision and experience were doing—you will see that they were right in giving it me, so that I could give it to you.

Your good roads, or your poor roads, have not and will not make a cent's worth of difference in the quality of clothing I wear, the things I wish to get, the hotels I stop at, or any other personal expense I wish to indulge in, but TO YOU PEOPLE who will pay for the upkeep of the roads you have built and are still building it will make one cent of a difference and it will grow larger and larger as time goes on and the upkeep keeps on increasing.

The concrete roads the County built twelve years ago is a monument which will last 100 years, and which has worn 3-32 of an inch in that time, and has only cost you $14.00 or one dollar and seventeen cents per year per mile for upkeep will always stare you in the face. Especially so once a year when you receive your bill for State, County and Twp. road tax. The man who is alive today and whose children will be alive 100 years from now, will participate in the mistakes we have made and are still making in building gravel roads. If the County had stamped the date each year the three years' work we put in on the 5½ miles of good concrete roads that we built for Petoskey in Charlevoix County—or if they will do it on all the concrete roads they build in the future—then those alive 100 years from now will say, "God bless em—why didn't they build more of it."

Yours truly,

GEORGE H. VAN PELT

VAUGHAN FOR SHERIFF

I desire to announce to the voters of Charlevoix County that I will be a candidate for the office of Sheriff, on the Republican county ticket, at the primaries to be held Sept. 12, 1922. I will greatly appreciate the support of voters and taxpayers in this county and will do my best to merit the help they give me.

Respectfully yours,

DAVE VAUGHAN.

Perhaps the quaintest form of tea drinking is that practiced by the savage tribe in Tartary, in Central Asia. The leaves are first boiled in soda, then seasoned with butter and salt and then eaten.

Livestock Judg- ing Contest

To Be One Of The Big Features Of Our County Fair.

The county banks, the fair associations, the county farm bureau, the marketing associations and the chambers of commerce in Charlevoix County have made it possible to hold the First Annual Livestock Judging Contest at the County Fair beginning at East Jordan Sept. 11. It is up to the boys and girls of the county to do the rest.

Believing that there is a promising future in the agricultural and livestock industry here, the above organizations have made it possible for the fair association to offer three very liberal prizes for the contest. The first prize will be a $200.00 registered Holstein heifer, the second prize a Duroc-Jersey gilt, the third prize three yearling ewe lambs.

Boys and girls who consider entering the contest will find rules and regulations in the attractive premium books which have been distributed among the county business places. If you are unable to procure a book, the following will give an idea as to the method of conducting the contest.

Dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep and hogs will be judged. There will probably be three animals of each kind. The boy or girl judging will have to pick out the best, the second best and third best, and write down on paper his or her placings and the reasons for placing them that way. Twenty minutes will be allowed for judging each ring.

B. O. Hagerman, County Agricultural Agent, will be in charge of the contest. Write him at Boyne City for further particulars. He will be glad to help you.

Pigs Eat Mash Go On Toot

Emmet Co. Farmer Charged With Making Moonshine.

A litter of pigs on a glorious jam-boree has caused the arrest of James Wesley Johnson, a Pleasantview township farmer, on a charge of having manufactured moonshine whiskey.

The complainant alleges that Johnson took a quantity of mash to his neighbor's hog yard and dumped it there. The mash is said to have caused said pigs to become ossified, spifflicated, inebriated, intoxicated, soaked, drunk, paralyzed and oreyed, and to indulge in antics unbecoming to pigs residing on a well-ordered farm where no pig ever had acquired a jag and gone on a riotous toot before. It also is alleged that because of the consumption of said alcoholic preparation said pigs' heart actions were increased to the great detriment of their health and the possible enlarging of their auricles, ventricles and arteries, and their moral stamina has been impaired; that a taste for whiskey may have been acquired, that the mucous membranes of their mouths, throats and stomachs may have been injured, and that their breaths were made to smell bad.

When the owner of the pigs discovered their staggering condition he questioned them closely, but, like many other Emmet county residents who have substances containing alcohol handed them, they steadfastly refused to tell where they got it. He feared they were suffering from alcoholic poisoning, and notified an officer who told the prosecuting attorney who said, "Go and get him." He did.—Petoskey News.

HARDING IS RIGHT

President Harding—"A free American has the right to labor without any other's leave. It would be no less an abridgment to deny men to bargain collectively. Governments can not tolerate any class or grouped domination through force. It will be a sorry day when group domination is reflected in our laws. Government, and the laws which government is charged with enforcing, must be for all the people, ever aiming at the common good. The foremost thought in the Constitution is the right to freedom and the pursuit of happiness. Men must be free to live and achieve. Liberty is denied in America when any man is gone by anybody the right to work and live by that work. It does not matter who denies."

No Protection From Toxins Given by Canning Powders.

Canning powders can not be depended on for safety from food poisoning, according to the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture. Extensive experiments recently conducted to test the claims made by certain widely advertised and distributed canning powders, which consisted mainly of 95 per cent boric acid, with 5 per cent of salt added, have shown conclusively that the anti-septic properties of the powder only affect a few molds and microorganisms which are not responsible for spoilage in properly processed cans or jars.

Fruits and other acid products properly packed when fresh and in good condition keep without any canning preparations. "Much larger amounts of canning powder than those recommended on the package had no effect whatever on the growth of spore-forming bacilli, which do not require free oxygen for growth, particularly the toxin forming Bacillus botulinus, which has recently been responsible for many deaths.

ROADS TO USE DETROIT TIME

I. C. C. Orders Trains To Be Run On Eastern Time There.

Detroit—Endless confusion and inconvenience to the traveling public will be eliminated, it is believed, by an order which was promulgated by the interstate commerce commission directing the railroads to use standard eastern time in Detroit.

The railroads have been operating here on central time, despite the use of eastern time by the city.

The commission acted in view of the fact that, although most of Michigan is in the central time belt, Detroiters have consistently shown a preference for keeping the earlier time.

27 HURT IN TROLLEY SMASH

Uncoupled Freight Car Spills Plenic for 50 Detroiters.

Windsor, Ont.—Twenty-seven persons, 17 of them Detroit church members on their way to a picnic on the Canadian shore, were injured, most of them slightly, when a box car, becoming uncoupled from its train, crashed into the rear end of a Tecumseh car which was passing the Ford plant in Ford, Ont.

Members of the Christ Lutheran Church, Iroquois avenue and Waterloo street, Detroit, made up the majority of the list of passengers which totalled about 50 at the time of the accident.

Thoughts After Forty.

A man came to see me the other day with a book demonstrating that we are all free and equal. Said he was only offering it to a few of our best people.

EAST JORDAN LUMBER COMPANY

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Big Rapids—Henry Swanson, living east of the city, ran a straw in his eyeball while operating a threshing machine and his condition is critical.

Bay City—James McGivern, 71 years old, well-known old resident, is dead at his home here. He formerly was prominent in union labor circles. He leaves his widow and one daughter.

Albion—Gerald Miller, 10-year-old boy, living in the village of Homer, died of lockjaw at the City hospital. He stepped on a rusty nail and was rushed to the hospital after the disease had advanced too far.

Otsego—The peaceful trend of Otsego happenings was broken by the appearance of flapper worn knickers. Still necks, horns of too much interest on the part of the males of the village, have become a popular malady.

Pontiac—An insanity commission will be asked in Circuit Court by Prosecutor A. F. Blake to examine Albert Schroeder, young Ortonville farmer who is said to have confessed to killing his father and brother-in-law.

Owosso—Fred Phillips, of Burton, west of here, was buried alive by a cave-in at a gravel pit, where he was working. He was rescued by fellow workmen, and was found to have suffered a broken rib and other slight injuries.

Saginaw—Contracts have been awarded by the East Side school board for the construction of a 23-room addition to the Webster Park school to a Saginaw firm for $154,574. The total cost without equipment will be $195,000.

Hillsdale—Irving Ayres, of Pioneer, O., is near death in a hospital here where his right arm was amputated at the shoulder to prevent the spread of blood poisoning. His arm was injured in a friendly wrestling match in his home town.

Albion—Postmaster Willard D. Noyes has received word that Albion has one of the three best conducted postoffices in the state, the other two being Ionia and Niles. An inspector from Washington recently complimented Mr. Noyes.

Mendon—Kicked by a horse and trampled to the floor as she directed her husband, who was driving their automobile, Mrs. A. D. Collard was so badly injured that she lived only two hours. The Collards had just returned from a pleasure drive to a lake.

Flint—Five-pound tomatoes are being raised by Frank Kidwell, in his back yard garden. All the tomatoes average three pounds, he says, the seed having been imported from Virginia this spring. He claims to be the champion tomato grower of this part of the state.

Pontiac—Several thousand Oakland County farmers assembled at Maccady Lake, where in a natural amphitheater a pageant depicting the progress of farm organization was presented by 400 men, women and children. A program of sports, followed by speeches by a number of candidates for public office, concluded the day.

Lansing—A recommendation from the state department of agriculture that $5,000 be set aside for a survey of Michigan's peat resources has been taken under advisement by a committee of the state administrative board. According to a communication received by the board there are extensive areas of peat in the state which could be developed into valuable fuel resources.

Mt. Clemens—The discontinuance of a rural route leading from this city which previously covered the Shook and Ballor roads, has raised a storm of protest from more than 100 farmers. It is proposed to send a delegation to Washington to take the matter before the postmaster-general. The delivery was cut by the postoffice department to economize, it was reported.

Kalamazoo—Mrs. Joseph Herman, of Ontario, Calif., has written officials here asking proof of her wedding 70 years ago for use in obtaining a pension in Washington. She says she was married in this city Oct. 9, 1855. The records in the county office were destroyed by fire many years ago. She is too feeble to remember the name of the minister who officiated, the letter says.

Denton Harbor—Berrien County fruit growers are shipping direct to Chicago consumers—with no middlemen to share the profits. The gasoline boat Imperial is hauling the fruit, fresh from trees and vine, across the lake, making three trips a week. Its carrying capacity is 1,500 bushels a trip. It is understood that Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago is sponsor for the plan.

Detroit—"Dr." Irving E. Sanders, proprietor of an alleged "baby farm" on West Fort street, was found guilty of practicing medicine without a license, by a jury before Judge Harry B. Keldan. The principal witness against him was Leola Sonnenberg, 15 years old, of Northville, who testified she took her two-days-old baby to Sanders' place for treatment for an infection and in the expectation that he would find a home for the infant. Judge Keldan remanded Sanders for sentence. His attorney intimated an appeal would be taken.

Grand Rapids—Elmer F. Dean, 61 years old, prominent in grange activities of the state, is dead. He had resided on his Caledonia township farm his entire lifetime.

Caro—All sugar beet crop records for this section will be surpassed this year, it was declared by L. R. Stewart, manager of the local plant of the Michigan Sugar Co.

Cadillac—One hundred fishing licenses have been taken out here this summer by tourists. This number beats all records among tourists. Ohio leads in the list with around 20.

Marquette—The Rt. Rev. Frederick Eis, D. D., 86 years old, bishop of the Catholic diocese of Marquette since 1899, has received notice that his resignation, sent to the Pope last May, has been accepted.

Eaton Rapids—City Treasurer Mrs. Artie Handee reports that out of a tax roll of $26,000, $21,000 has been paid, the record. The tax rate for Eaton Rapids is $9.12 a thousand, the lowest in this city for 20 years.

Port Huron—Rev. S. G. Schiek, of West Unity, O., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church, of this city, and will succeed Rev. Ralph Crissman, who recently became pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian church.

Kalamazoo—With simple but impressive services, the cornerstone of the new Y. W. C. A. was laid. Inside the cornerstone were placed newspapers, a list of names of patrons of the Y. W. C. A. and a general history of the Kalamazoo branch.

Kalamazoo—Clyde Foster, a student of the University of Chicago, has been sentenced to serve 18 months in the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia by Judge Weimer in circuit court here. Foster pleaded guilty to a charge of passing worthless checks.

Holland—James A. Hutson, Negro, graduate of Lane college, of Jackson, Tenn., was drowned in Black Lake in front of the Ottawa Beach hotel. The body was recovered within 10 minutes after the drowning, but more than an hour and half of work failed to revive him.

Potosky—Gilbert Sweet, 70 years old, is in a critical condition as the result of the explosion of a celluloid eyeshade he was wearing. The heat of a cigar Sweet was smoking caused the eyeshade to ignite and the flames badly burned the man's face, scalp and hands.

Otsego—Otsego's new library, said to be one of the finest in middle western cities, has been dedicated formally. The library is located in a building formerly used by the Ladies Library association. Mural paintings valued at thousands of dollars are among its expensive furnishings.

Dowagiac—Sawdust for fuel is being used through Cass County because of the extreme shortage of coal in this locality. Robert C. Phillips, official fuel administrator for the county, estimated the county supply at 400 tons. Dealers have been asked to supply only one-half a ton to patrons.

Hart—Mrs. Horace E. Fritze, 30 years old, of Chicago, and her 9-year-old daughter, were drowned in Silver Lake, as the mother attempted rescue of the girl. Mother and daughter were bathing when the little girl stepped from a sand bar into deep water. Although she could not swim, the mother attempted rescue.

Grand Rapids—Michigan easily takes first place among the states of the union in the production of cherries, according to Dr. A. C. Todd, secretary of the Michigan Canners' association, who has just completed a report showing that 9,035 tons of cherries were packed this season in this state by commercial canners.

Niles—Arthur Gregg suffered a few badly lacerated toes seated in a boat with one barefoot in the water. Gregg hooked a blue gill and as he was pulling the blue gill up past his bare foot, a three-foot pike, in pursuit of the blue gill, making a mighty grab for its intended prey, buried its teeth in Gregg's toes and clung to the lacerated members until it was lifted about half way out of the water.

East Lansing—A diminishing supply of coal on hand at the Michigan Agricultural College has led President David Friday to issue orders restricting the burning of electric lights and the promiscuous running of drinking fountains and faucets. The library will be open only between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. each day. Night work will be discontinued except in the barns, dairy building and departments engaged in experiments.

Grand Rapids—Mrs. F. Hyatt and Mrs. I. E. Sleeper, and Mrs. Sleeper's two children, missing from their homes in Cadillac for a week, were found here. According to the officers they were found in the apartment of Clarence Warner, 33 years old, of this city. Warner is under arrest. Mrs. Hyatt is a bride of only a few weeks. The women are said to have told the police that they became tired of their homes in Cadillac and decided to see this city.

Lansing—The State Athletic Board of Control, of which Thomas Bigger was commissioner, was virtually wiped out of existence by the State Administrative Board when the board voted to pay all outstanding debts of the department and close its accounts. Recently the salary of Commissioner Bigger was ordered stopped by the board. E. A. Maccanly, secretary of the commission, was transferred to the Department of Public Safety, from where he is to look after boxing shows and similar matters. This arrangement will be continued.

HARDING APPEALS FOR STRIKE CURE

PRESIDENT ADDRESSES JOINT SESSION TO REVIEW PRESENT CRISIS.

COAL INDUSTRY OVER-MANNED

Declares Putting Mines on Competitive Basis Would Secure Steadier Work for Miners.

Washington—President Harding appeared before a joint session of congress Aug. 18 to read a message on the industrial situation.

The president asked for definite legislation to prevent a recurrence of mine and railroad strikes.

The message dealt largely with suggestions for modernizing the coal industry and in transferring the railroad labor board from Chicago to Washington.

In normal years the average miner works only 160 days. This intermittent employment, the president believes, is largely responsible for constant labor troubles. By putting the coal industry on a sharply competitive basis, inefficient mines would be automatically eliminated, it is believed. The claim is also made that modern methods would reduce the over-manning of the industry by 150,000 workers, thus securing steady work and greater aggregate pay for the remaining 400,000 men.

A major portion of the president's message was devoted to a review of the present industrial crisis since its inception. The president hoped by detailing the various obstacles encountered in efforts toward settlement to suggest to congress means of preventing a similar crisis in the future.

Not only did the message omit all reference to "anti-strike" legislation, but the whole document is to be considered as distinctly favorable to labor. One high administration official stated that "labor would be greatly pleased" with the president's views.

Lightest of Liquids. Many experiments here and abroad have shown that liquid hydrogen is by far the lightest of all known liquids. Its density is one-fourteenth that of water, and, curiously enough, this happens to be the same ratio of density that hydrogen in the gaseous state bears to air. For long the lightest liquid known was liquefied marsh gas, which possesses about two-fifths of the density of water.

SEEKS CAUSE FOR CRIME WAVE

Large Number in Prisons Induces Governor to Act.

Lansing—Governor Groesbeck is seeking answers to the question, "why the steady increase of crime in Michigan?"

A report from Warden Harry Hulbert, of Jackson prison, announced a new high record for the population of the state's largest penal institution. The total number of inmates was given at 1,825—a number far in excess of the prison's normal capacity.

The warden has been asked for a classification of the crimes for which prisoners were convicted; in the hope that it will throw some light upon what is responsible for the increasing number of inmates.

Mrs. Stanchfield had been ill for some time with heart trouble. Masons, Knights of Pythias, Congregational, Presbyterian and Baptist societies and the Pauline Stearns Hospital, of Ludington, will get the estate.

Studebaker Low Special-Six Touring $1275. SAVINGS resulting from capacity manufacture are now offered to the buyer of the Studebaker Special-Six. The new price of $1275 is $200 under its former price. Studebaker reductions became effective August 1st after Studebaker had completed the biggest seven months in its 70 years' history. And at a time when Studebaker had 15,000 unfilled orders on hand! It is a Studebaker policy of long standing to share manufacturing savings with the customer. The performance, durability, comfort and quality of the Special-Six are recognized everywhere. And here's new proof of its endurance: Studebaker's sales of repair parts, covering accidents as well as service, for the first seven months of 1922 were less than they were for the first seven months of 1919, in spite of the fact that 186,000 new cars were sold and put into operation since January 1, 1920. The Special-Six at $1275 represents a new standard of value—the greatest value Studebaker has ever offered, and that means a value that is positively unapproached anywhere in the industry.

Table with 3 columns: Model, Price, and Features. Includes models like Light-Six, Special-Six, Big-Six, Touring, Roadster, Coupe, Sedan.

Fairchild laughed—he couldn't help it—in spite of the fact that five hundred dollars might have gone a long way toward unwatering that shaft. Harry was Harry—he had done enough in crossing the seas to help him. And already, in the eyes of Fairchild, Harry was swiftly approaching that place where he could do no wrong.

"You're wonderful, Harry," came at last. The Cornishman puffed with pride.

"I'm a cuckoo!" he admitted. "Where's Mother 'Oward? Where's 'Oward. Won't I knock 'er eyes out, now?"

And he boomed forward toward the dining room, to find there men he had known in other days, to shake hands with them and to hang them on his back, to fight Hildey's Bozeman and Taylor Bill sitting hunched over their meal in the corner and to go enthusiastically toward them.

drowned, about an hour ago, in the Blue Poppy shaft!"

CHAPTER VIII

The news caused Fairchild to recoil and stand gasping. And before he could speak, a new voice had cut in, one full of excitement, tremulous, anxious.

"Drowned? Where's his body?"

"How do I know?" Squint Rodaine turned upon his questioner. "Guess it's at the foot of the shaft. All I saw was his hat. What're you so interested for?"

The questioner, small, goggle-eyed and given to rubbing his hands, stared a moment speechlessly.

"He—he bought a diamond from me this morning—on the installment plan!"

Rodaine smiled again in his crooked fashion.

"That's your own fault, Sam," he announced curtly. "If he's at the bottom of the shaft, your diamond's there too. All I know about it is that I was coming down from the Silver Queen when I saw this fellow go into the tunnel of the Blue Poppy. He was all dressed up, else I don't guess I would have paid much attention to him. But as it was, I kind of stopped to look, and seen it was Harry Harkins, who used to work the mine with this fellow's father. About a minute later, I heard a yell, like somebody was in trouble, then a big splash. Naturally I ran in, the tunnel and struck a match. About twenty feet down, I could see the water was all riled up, and a new hat was floating around on top of it. That's all I know. You can do as you please about your diamond. I'm just giving you the information."

He turned sharply and went on then, while Sam the jeweler, the rest of the loiterers clustered around him, looked appealingly toward Fairchild.

"What'll we do?" he asked.

Fairchild turned. "I don't know about you—but I'm going to the mine."

"It won't do any good—bodies don't float. It may never float—if it gets caught down in the timbers somewhere."

"Have to organize a bucket brigade." It was a suggestion from one of the crowd.

"Why not bury the Argonaut pump?" They ain't using it.

"Go get it! Go get it!" This time it was the wail of the little jeweler. "Tell 'em Sam Herbenfelder sent you. They'll let you have it."

Another suggestion, still another. Soon men began to radiate, each on a mission. The word passed down the street. More loiterers—a silver miner spends a great part of his leisure time in simply watching the crowd go by—hurried to join the excited throng. Groups, en route to the picture show, decided otherwise and stopped to learn of the excitement. The crowd thickened. Suddenly Fairchild looked up sharply at the sound of a feminine voice.

"What's the matter?"

"Harry Harkins got drowned!" All too willingly the news was dispersed. Fairchild's eyes were searching now in the half-light from the faint street bulbs. Then they centered. It was Anita Richmond, standing at the edge of the crowd, questioning a miner, while beside her was a thin, youthful counterpart of a hard-faced father, Maurice Rodaine. Just a moment of queries, then the miner's hand pointed to Fairchild as he turned toward her. "It's his partner."

She moved forward then and Fairchild went to meet her.

"I'm sorry," she said, and extended her hand. Fairchild gripped it eagerly.

"Thank you. But it may not be as bad as the rumors."

"I hope not." Then quickly she withdrew her hand, and somewhat flustered, turned as her companion edged closer. "Maurice, this is Mr. Fairchild," she announced, and Fairchild could do nothing but stare. She knew his name! A second more and it was explained. "My father knew his father very well."

"I think my own father was acquainted too," was the rejoinder, and the eyes of the two men met for an instant in conflict. The girl did not seem to notice.

"I sold him a ticket this morning to the dance, not knowing who he was. Then father happened to see him pass the house and pointed him out to me as the son of a former friend of his. Funny how those things happen, isn't it?"

"Decidedly funny!" was the caustic rejoinder of the younger Rodaine. Fairchild laughed, to cover the air of intensity. He knew instinctively that Anita Richmond was not talking to him simply because she had sold him a ticket to a dance and because her father might have pointed him out. He felt sure that there was something else behind it—the feeling of a debt which she owed him, a feeling of companionship engendered upon a street, during the moments of sunlit, and the continuance of that meeting in these few moments in the drug store, when he had handed her back her ten-dollar bill. She had called herself a cad then, and the feeling that she perhaps had been abrupt toward a man who had helped her out of a disagreeable predicament was prompting her action now; Fairchild felt sure of that. And he was glad of the fact, very glad. Again he laughed, while Rodaine eyed him narrowly. Fairchild shrugged his shoulders.

"I'm not going to believe this story until it's proven to me," came calmly. "Who brought the news?"

Fairchild deliberately chose his words:

"A tall, thin, ugly old man, with mean squint eyes and a scar straight up his forehead."

A flush appeared on the other man's face. Fairchild saw his hands contract, then loosen.

"You're trying to insult my father!"

"Your father?" Fairchild looked at him blankly. "Wouldn't that be a rather difficult job—especially when I don't know him?"

"And you recognized the description."

"Maurice! Stop it!" The girl was tugging at Rodaine's sleeve. "Don't say anything more. I'm sorry—" and she looked at Fairchild with a glance he could not interpret—"that anything like this could have come up."

"I am equally so—if it has caused you embarrassment."

"You'll get a little embarrassment out of it yourself—before you get through!" Rodaine was scowling at him. Again Anita Richmond caught his arm.

"You're Trying to Insult My Father!"

"Maurice! Stop it! How could the thing have been premeditated when he didn't even know your father? Come—let's go on. The crowd's getting thicker."

The narrow-faced man obeyed her command, and together they turned out into the street to avoid the constantly growing throng, and to vent toward the picture show.

Carbide lights had begun to appear along the street, as miners, summoned by hurrying gossip mongers, came forward to assist in the search for the missing man. High above the general conglomeration of voice could be heard the cries of the instigator of activities, Sam Herbenfelder, bemoaning the loss of his diamond, ninety per cent of the cost of which remained to be paid. Hastily he shot through the crowd, organizing the bucket brigade and searching for news of the Argonaut pump, which had not yet arrived.

Half-dissatisfied, Fairchild turned and, started up the hill, a few miners, their carbide lamps swinging beside them, following him.

Fairchild turned at the entrance of the mine and waited for the first of the miners and the accompanying gleam of his carbide. Then they went within and to the shaft, the light shining downward upon the sily, black water below. Two objects floated there, a broken piece of timber, torn from the side of the shaft, where someone evidently had grasped hastily at it in an effort to stop a fall, and a new, four-dented hat, gradually becoming water-soaked and sinking slowly beneath the surface. And then, for the first time, fear clutched at Fairchild's heart—fear which hope could not ignore.

"There's his hat." It was a miner staring downward.

Fairchild had seen it, but he strove to put aside the thought.

"True," he answered, "but anyone could lose a hat, simply by looking over the edge of the shaft. Harry's a strong man. Certainly he would know how to swim. And in any event he should have been able to have kept afloat for at least a few minutes. Rodaine says that he heard a shout and ran right in here; but all that he could see was ruffled water and a floating hat. I—" Then he paused suddenly. It had come to him that Rodaine might have helped in the demise of Harry!

Shouts sounded from outside, and the roaring of a motor truck as it made its slow, tortuous way up the boulevard-street, with its gaities and innumerable ruts. Voices came, rumbling and varied. Lights. Glimpses of the month of the tunnel, Fairchild could see a mass of shadows outlined by the carbides, all following the leadership of a small, excited man, Sam Herbenfelder, still seeking his diamond.

The big pump from the Argonaut tunnel was aboard the truck, which was followed by two other auto vehicles, each loaded with gasoline engines and smaller pumps. A hundred men, were in the crowd, all equipped with ropes and buckets. Sam Herbenfelder's pleas had been heard. The search was about to begin for the body of Harry and the diamond that circled one finger. And Fairchild hastened to do his part.

Until far into the night they worked and strained to put the big pump into position; while crews of men, four and five in a group, bailed water as fast as possible, that the aggregate might be lessened to the greatest possible extent before the pumps, with their hoses, were attached. Then, the gasoline engines began to snort, great lengths of tubing were let down into the shaft, and spurling water started down the mountain side as the task of unwatering the shaft began.

But it was a slow job. Morning found the distance to the water lengthened by twenty to thirty feet, and the bucket brigades nearly at the end of their ropes. Men trudged down the hills to breakfast, sending others to meet Mother Howard and assure her nervousness as best he could, dividing his time between her and the task before him. Noon found more water than ever tumbling down the hills—the smaller pumps were working now in unison with the larger one. Afternoon—and most of Ohad! was there.

Fairchild could distinguish the form of Anita Richmond in the hundreds of women and men clustered about the opening of the tunnel, and for once she was not in the company of Maurice Rodaine. He hurried to her and she smiled at his approach.

"I have you found anything yet?"

"Nothing—so far. Except that there is plenty of water in the shaft. I'm trying not to believe it."

"I hope it isn't true." Her voice was low and serious. "Father was talking to me—about you. And we hoped you two would succeed—this time."

Evidently her father had told her more than she cared to relate. Fairchild caught the infection in her voice but disregarded it.

"I owe you an apology," he said bluntly.

"For what?"

"Last night. I couldn't resist it—I forgot for a moment that you were there. But I—hope that you'll believe me—well, that you'll forget something."

She smiled up at him quickly.

"I already have had proof of that, I—I am only hoping that you will believe me—well, that you'll forget something."

"You mean—"

"Yes," she countered quickly, as though to cut off his explanation. "It seemed like a great deal. Yet it was nothing at all. I would feel much happier if I were sure you had disregarded it."

Fairchild looked at her for a long time, studying her with his serious blue eyes, wondering about many things, wishing that he knew more of women and their ways. At last he said the thing that he felt, the straightforward outburst of a straightforward man:

"You're not going to be offended if I tell you something?"

"Certainly not."

"The sheriff came along just after you had made the turn. He was looking for an auto bandit."

"A what?" She stared at him with wide-open, almost laughing eyes. "But you don't believe—"

"He was looking for a man," said Fairchild quietly. "I told him that I hadn't seen anything but—a boy. I was willing to do that then—because I couldn't believe that a girl like you would—" Then he stumbled and halted. A moment he sought speech while she smiled up at him. Then out it came: "I—I don't care what it was. I—I like you. Honest, I do. I liked you so much when I was changing that tire that I didn't even notice it when you put the money in my hand. I—well, you're not the kind of a girl who would do anything really wrong. It might be a prank—or something like that—but it wouldn't be wrong. So—so there's an end to it."

Again she laughed softly, in a way tantalizing to Robert Fairchild, as though she were making game of him.

"What do you know about women?" she asked finally, and Fairchild told the truth.

"Nothing."

"Then—" the laugh grew heartier, finally, however, to die away. The girl put forth her hand. "But I won't say what I was going to. It wouldn't sound right. I hope that I—live up to your estimation of me. At least—I'm thankful to you for being the man you are. And I won't forget!"

And once more her hand had rested in his—a small, warm, caressing thing in spite of the purely casual grasp of an impersonal action. Again Robert Fairchild felt a thrill that was new to him, and he stood watching her until she had reached the motor car which had brought her to the big curve, and had faded down the hill. Then he went back to assist the sweating workmen and the anxious-faced Sam Herbenfelder. The water was down seventy feet.

That night Robert Fairchild sought a few hours' sleep. Two days after the town still divided its attention between preparations for the Old Times dance and the progress in the dewatering of the Blue Poppy shaft. Now and then the long hose was withdrawn, and dynamite lowered on floats to the surface of the water, far below, a copper wire trailing it. A push of the plunger, a detonation, and a wait of long moments; it accomplished nothing, and the pumping went on. If the earthly remains of Harry Harkins were below, they steadfastly refused to come to the surface.

The water had fallen to the level of the drift, two hundred feet down; the pumps now were working on the main flood which still lay below.

A day more and a day after that. The water was now only a few feet high in the shaft; it meant that the whole great opening, together with the drift tunnel, soon would be dewatered to an extent sufficient to permit of exploration. Again the motor cars ground up the narrow roadway. Outside the tunnel the crowds gathered. Fairchild saw Anita Richmond and greeted his teeth at the fact that young Rodaine accompanied her. Farther in the background, narrow eyes watching closely, was Squint Rodaine. And still farther—

Fairchild gasped as he noticed the figure plodding down the mountain side. He put out a hand, then, seizing the nervous Herbenfelder by the shoulder, whirled him around.

"Look!" he exclaimed. "Look there! Didn't I tell you! Didn't I have a hunch?"

For, coming toward them jauntily, slowly, was a figure in beaming blue, a Fedora on his head now, but with the rest of his wardrobe intact, yellow, bump-toed shoes and all. Someone shouted. Everybody turned. And as they did so, the figure hastened its pace. A moment later, a booming voice sounded, the unmistakable voice of Harry Harkins:

"I eye! What's the matter over there? Did somebody fall in?"

The puffing of gasoline engines ceased. A moment more and the gurgling cough of the pumps was stilled, while the shouting and laughter of a great crowd sounded through the hills. A leaping form went forward, Sam Herbenfelder, to seize Harry, to pat him and paw him, as though in assurance that he really was alive, then to grasp wildly at the ring on his finger. But Harry waved him aside.

"Ain't I paid the installment on it?"

"What's the Rumpus?"

he remonstrated. "What's the rumpus?"

Fairchild, with Mother Howard, both laughing happily, was just behind Herbenfelder. And behind them was thronging half of Ohad!

"We thought you were drowned!"

"Me?" Harry's laughter boomed again, in a way that was infectious. "Me drowned, just because I let a 'oller and dropped my 'at?"

"You did it on purpose?" Sam Herbenfelder shook a scrawny fist under Harry's nose. The big Cornishman waved it aside as one would brush away an obnoxious fly. Then he grinned at the townspeople about him.

"Well," he confessed, "there was an 'm'oly lot of water in there, and I didn't 'ave any money. What else was I to do?"

"You—!" A pumpman had picked up a piece of heavy timbering and thrown it at him in mock ferocity. "Work us to death and then come back and give us the laugh! Where you been at?"

"Center City," confessed Harry cheerily.

"And you knew all the time?" Mother Howard wagged a finger under his nose.

"Well," and the Cornishman chuckled, "I didn't 'ave any money. I did get that shirt unwetted, didn't I?"

"Get a rail!" An irate—but laughing—pumpman had come forward. "Think you can pull that on us? Get a rail!"

Someone seized a small, dead pine which lay on the ground near by. Others helped to strip it of the scraggly limbs which still clung to it. Harry watched them and chuckled—for he knew that in now was there malice. He had played his joke and won. It was their turn now. Shouting in mock anger, calling for all dire things, from lynchings on down to burnings at the stake, they dragged Harry to the pine tree, threw him astraddle of it, then, with willing hands volunteering on every side, hoisted the tree high above them and started down the mountain side, Sam Herbenfelder trotting in the rear and forgetting his anger in the joyful knowledge that his ring at last was safe.

Behind the throng of men with their mock threats trailed the women and children, some throwing pine cones at the booming Harry, juggling himself on the narrow pole; and in the crowd, Fairchild found someone he could watch with more than ordinary interest—Anita Richmond, trudging along with the rest, apparently unconstraining with the sullen, mean-spirited young man at her side. Instinctively Fairchild knew that young Rodaine was not pleased with the return of Harkins. As for the father—

Fairchild whirled at a voice by his side and looked straight into the crooked eyes of Thornton Fairchild's enemy. The blue-white scar had turned almost black now, the eyes were red from swollen, blood-stained veins, the evil, thin, crooked lips were working in gullen fury. They were practically alone at the mouth of the mine, Fairchild with a laugh dying on his lips, Rodaine with all the hate and anger and futile malice that a human being can know typified in his scarred, hawk-like features. A thin, taloned hand came upward, to double, leaving one bony, curved finger extending in emphasis of the words which streamed from the slit of a mouth:

"Funny, weren't you? Played your cheap jokes and got away with 'em. But everybody ain't like them fools!" he pointed to the crowd just rounding the rocks, Harry bobbing in the foreground. "There's some that remember—and I'm one of 'em. You've put over your fake; you've had your laugh; you've framed it so I'll be the butt of every numbskull in Ohad! But just listen to this—just listen to this!" he repeated, the harsh voice taking on a tone that was almost a screech. "There's another time coming—and that time's going to be mine!"

And before Fairchild could retort, he had turned and was scrambling down the mountain side.

A GOOD FRIEND

A good friend stands by you when in need. East Jordan people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. H. H. Cummings, Prop., feed and grain business of Main St., endorsed Doan's many years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

"My kidneys were not acting right and I had a dull ache in the small of my back just over my kidneys," says Mr. Cummings. "I used a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they acted promptly in correcting the action of my kidneys and ridding me of the backache and pains. I know Doan's have been beneficial to me." (Statement given Aug. 3, 1909.)

On April 23, 1920, Mr. Cummings added: "I haven't had any further need of a kidney medicine since Doan's rid me of the trouble years ago. I gladly confirm the statement I made before."

With the Passing of Time. Nothing is more disappointing than a reunion of the "old gang" you used to know. A good many of them are no longer the fellows they used to be, and the ones that still are don't come.

Holding Breath Health Test. Holding your breath is to a certain extent a test of your health. Normally, adults should be able to hold this for from 30 to 50 seconds.

HAY FEVER SUFFERERS UNLUCKY. In August the air is full of pollen and dust that cause trouble for some, yet others are never bothered. No remedy does more to relieve hay fever and asthma than Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds, croup. It clears and soothes the afflicted nose, throat and bronchial tubes.—Hite's Drug Store.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended to cure, mitigate or prevention of disease.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Sals if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salt occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that most forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Sals if any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithic acid, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it is no longer irritating, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Sals is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithic-water drink.

MADAM CROW; MR. FOX

MADAM CROW was on the limb of a tree by the cornfield trying to make out whether the ragged-looking figure in the field was a real man or a scarecrow.

She was well hidden by the leaves of the tree, and her bright eyes and quick twisting head took in everything for some distance around.

Now, it happened that Mr. Fox had been foolish enough to come that way in broad daylight, and was running along the top of the stone wall not far from where Madam Crow was perched in the tree.

There was no reason for her to give anyone warning that Mr. Fox was around, for there was no one in sight but Madam Crow, who had rather a bad disposition and a sharp tongue, so when she saw Mr. Fox she gave the call which means to all who hear it, "Look out, Mr. Fox is nearby." Mr. Fox heard it, for his sharp ears hear things that his eyes often fail to see, and he knew that his plan for reaching the stray hen that he was sure to find in the field beyond was spoiled.

He knew that the farmer would hear it and run for his gun or call to Mr. Dog, and they would be on the lookout.

So he dropped to the ground on the side of the cornfield and hid under some bushes, but he kept his eyes open to see where the call came from.

He had not long to wait, for presently down flew Madam Crow, satisfied that the figure was only a scarecrow, and to show her scorn she slighted right on its old, battered hat. "You gossiping old tell-tale," said Mr. Fox, poking out his nose far enough to let Madam Crow see him. "Why did you interfere in my affairs? I never harm your family."

"I don't care if you do not," cawed Madam, "you are a bad fellow, and I feel that it is my duty to give warning when I see you. I do not steal the farmer's chickens."

"Oh, dear, no; of course you don't. You do not like them, but you steal the farmer's corn."

Madam did not answer. She flew down, picked up some corn, and away she went with loud caws at Mr. Fox's anger.

But Mr. Fox was not through with Madam Crow. He watched her fly straight to her home near the top of a tree, where she had made a nest lined with wool and hair, and Mr. Fox smiled to himself as he trotted off to the home of his friend Coon.

Mr. Fox did not want that nest, but he was sure Mr. Coon would be interested, and that was why he smiled, for Mr. Coon has a trick of taking the nest of a crow or a hawk if he feels disposed to take a nap when he is prowling about among the trees, and he is such a good and careful climber that a nest high up among the slender branches is no bother for him to reach.

When Mr. Coon heard about Madam's nest he smiled, too. "That is just where I am planning to roost about tonight," he said, "and if I find Madam at home it will not matter, for I shall sleep just the same."

Poor Madam Crow sat on a low bough of the tree the next morning in the early dawn, and Mr. Fox, who was passing, called out, "Good morning, Madam Crow, you look as if you did not rest well last night. I wonder if my friend, Mr. Coon, routed you out of your nest?"

Madam stretched out her neck, she opened her bill and spread her wings in a threatening manner, then she thought better of it and flew away with loud caws to the cornfield to fetch her wren and her anger by eating a good breakfast.

But Mr. Fox did not feel any happier for having made Madam Crow uncomfortable; in fact, he was feeling cross as he trotted off home, and that is usually the way when one tries to get revenge.

THE RIGHT THING at the RIGHT TIME

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

DO YOU LIKE TO TALK?

FRANKLY ask yourself the question: "Do you like to talk?" And if you have to admit that you do then bear in mind that certain pitfalls of bad manners lie in your path that do not beset the person who has no such fondness for the sound of his own voice.

Very often the person who likes to talk is the person who actually does talk cleverly. He likes to talk because he can see that people are interested by what he says and their show of interest is gratifying to his vanity. It is very pleasant to see a group of keenly interested faces around you when you are letting your tongue wag and when you tell a droll story it is gratifying, indeed, to hear the peals of hearty laughter. The person who sees readily that his listeners are bored can get no pleasure from talking. And usually, though not always, people who talk too much are persons who have naturally a gift in that direction. But they are wise if they do not abuse it.

The hostess especially should never monopolize the conversation. She should remember even if her women guests are extremely poor conversationalists, even if they are young and shy and timid, that good breeding demands that she bring them out and give them a chance to express their view and tell their funny anecdotes rather than that she should seize every opportunity to show her own wit and fluency.

Don't make the mistake of thinking so intently about what you are going to say when you can get a lull in the conversation that you do not know what the others are talking about. Do not expect to gain their attention if you do not give them your attention when they are talking.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

JUNE

THE lovely name of June is as suggestively sweet and fragrant as the month which it honors. Of course, there are two explanations of the existence of June and its fortunate possessor may take her choice.

For those who prefer to establish a direct classical connection, June may be said to be bestowed in honor of the goddess Juno, wife of the mighty Zeus, father of the gods. Not only was Juno the feminine ruler of the mythological kingdom on Mount Olympus—and more than often the ruler of Zeus as well—but her splendid physical proportions have set her aside as an ideal of feminine womanhood. Her modern namesakes have a standard of beauty almost unattainable.

However appealing the classical legend may be, the simpler explanation for the bestowal of the name today points to the sixth month of the year. June is generally given to girls born in the "month of roses," though its adaptability to romance has given it tremendous vogue among the fanciful names.

June is, of course, purely English. It has no derivatives or contractions and no translations into other languages which may be said to preserve its identity. Junius, meaning "of June," is the only masculine form.

The agate is June's talismanic stone. It is said to give its wearer courage, to guard her from danger and to bring her heart's desires. Monday is her lucky day and two her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.

Vivienne Osborne

Pretty Vivienne Osborne, a Spokane (Wash.) girl, has been on the stage since she was nine years old. Miss Osborne toured in vaudeville, in which work she was conspicuous. More recently she has been in the "movies." Only a short time ago the handsome little actress celebrated her twentieth birthday.

KINDNESS

BE KIND. "Kindness is the noblest weapon to conquer with."

If one does kind acts, thinks kind thoughts and brightens the pathways of his fellows with kindly smiles, he is almost certain to find his kindness reflected into his own life. On the other hand, if one is gruff and unthinking of the happiness of others, his face usually is hard, his thoughts selfish and his own pathway bare of the flowers of beauty which are necessary if it is to be a pleasant path to tread.

The person who is unkind is not likely to find a welcome anywhere. Even one's own baby quickly recognizes whether he is kind or unkind. Gruff words never bring smiles from baby's lips and the happiness of rosy, outstretched arms of children never is experienced by those who treat their little ones harshly.

"Spare the rod and spoil the child" used to be the proverb quoted most frequently by parents who gave advice on bringing up the young. But, fortunately, the day when that proverb flourished is past. There are some, however, who imagine that the only way to rear children properly is by beating the bad out of them. And in consequence one finds little cheerfulness in certain homes. And we do not think it would be wide of the mark to charge much of the lawlessness of the present to the harsh methods used by parents in rearing their little ones.

Respect for parents, and respect for the right are the two things essential to make a good man and woman out of a boy and girl. But the proper kind of respect for neither can be acquired by frequent applications of the rod.

The same rule applies in every pathway through life. Business men who rule with the iron hand, who try to keep their employees efficient by ill-treatment, and "mule-driving" get nowhere in the long run. Certain it is that they do bring down upon themselves the hatred of scores of good employees and in the days when co-operation is essential to the successful progress of business, there is likely to be a very big monkey-wrench in the wheels of machines.

Life is too short and the biggest worldly accomplishments are entirely too small to make it worth while for one to spoil others' pleasure by his own selfishness.

Kindness is the one sure producer of success and smiles.

BOOTLEGGERS HELPING CANADA

Liquor Sales Credited With Return of Dollar to Par.

New York—The Canadian dollar was virtually at par on the exchange market Aug. 17 for the first time in seven years. The rise in the value of Canadian money is attributed partly to the large sums spent in Canada for liquors by American bootleggers.

Campaign Cards Are Handy.

St. Clairsville, Ohio.—A new use has been found for the campaign cards handed out by Belmont county candidates for political office. A Belaire picnic party, pitching horse-shoes late in the evening, was unable to see the pegs when dusk arrived until someone thought of the candidates' cards, which were tacked about the park. The cards were forced down over the pegs. The white surface of the cards rendered the dark pegs visible.

"Biglow Papers."

The "Biglow Papers" were a series of humorous and satirical poems which at two critical times in the nation's history made James Russell Lowell not only a popular poet but an important figure in the life of the country. The first, relating to the Mexican war, appeared in 1848; the second, dealing with the Civil war and reconstruction, in 1867. Both were signed with the fictitious name of Hosea Biglow.
