EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1922.

No. 35

Schools Open Tuesday, Sept. 5

East Jordan Should Have Great School Year. All members of Faculty Return Except Three.

The East Jordan Public Schools open next Tuesday at 8 o'clock. Perhaps no other school in northern Michigan has better prospects for the coming year than our local schools. Not only was last year's class a brilliant one individually, but it was no doubt partly due to the work done in our local institutions of learning. Perhaps few schools, if any, in the state have all of their high school faculty returning. The grades lose but three members and, since last year's teachers were universally successful, it is only natural that we should expect them to do even better in 1922-3.

Many of the boys and girls throughout this region may be undecided which school they will attend this year. If so, do not forget that East Jordan is one of the very best schools in northern Michigan, suffice it to say that keen observers, among others Mr. Gallop of M. A. C., remarked how well balanced the departments were in the public school. Many schools have a strong History department and English department and a weak Science department, yet the East Jordan schools last year and will this year have a strong department in History, English, Science, Manual Training, Domestic Science and Art, Commercial Work and Agriculture and what is very unusual for a school of 165 students, we had some 65 Latin students and as for our agricultural department, we had the largest number of students in that work of any high school in northern Michigan. Without a doubt East Jordan has the best agricultural department in this section.

The regular line of work is not the only activity of the East Jordan High School. East Jordan takes an active part in nearly all lines of outside activity, all branches of athletics, football, basketball, baseball and track, debating, typewriting and shorthand contests, and with our fine gymnasium and auditorium, many social advantages. Along with these activities, we have a fine lecture course and a good high school chorus. No doubt many of the citizens of East Jordan were unaware of the many-sided activities of our local school, so along with the prospective student, this article might be of interest to them.

Among other things we are going to do this year is to arrange with a responsible lady of the city in cooperation with the school to know where every student room, to know whether the rooming place is of the right sort and to supervise in a general way the social activities of the country student whose activities at times are little known to the parent. In fact, this lady will act as a sort of parent or dean to the foreign pupil, making the mother and father at home feel quite safe about their boy and girl attending school in East Jordan. The schools expect to install a first class radio phone.

By the way, many of the country boys may be interested in athletics and do not know that the East Jordan High School teams are equipped to the letter. Everything required for a football or basketball player is on hand, therefore, in many ways the boys and girls of the surrounding region should think twice before deciding on what school to attend. We have come to the school that has a first class faculty and student body with lots of pep and a body of citizens that are behind everything that is progressive.

MAKE WAR ON LOWER PENINSULA STUMPS

The special land clearing demonstration train, which under the direction of L. F. Livingston has been touring the Upper Peninsula of Michigan during the spring and summer months, will visit the northern part of the Lower Peninsula in the near future, according to word from Mr. Livingston at Marquette. He is now making arrangements for special "schools," at various points and any groups of farmers who wish the train to visit their section should communicate with Mr. Livingston at his Marquette office.

HOWARD PORTER HEADS LOCAL SALVATION ARMY CAMPAIGN

Howard Porter was selected at an Executive Meeting held last week in the Wolverine Hotel, Boyne City to be the director of the Campaign to raise $750, East Jordan's share of the $3,000 County Quota in the Annual Salvation Army Campaign. The campaign is on this week, and the money raised is to be used to support the work of the Salvation Army.

A campaign organization consisting of local business men, ladies and junior workers will be formed.

F. O. Barden of Boyne City is General Chairman of the County Campaign.

During the winter months, meetings are often held among the Lumber Camps and seem to be much enjoyed by the men.

A Boy Scouts troop has been organized and so far have a membership of 20. They will be ready for public appearance about Sept. 15. Instruction is being given in Camp Craft, First Aid Music, Religion, Manhood, and many other subjects. Meetings, hikes, swims outings, etc are held every Monday evening.

Much relief work has been done in East Jordan during the past year. Several inmates have been provided for Salvation Army institutions and many families were last winter found destitute. Meetings are held often.

The Salvation Army Headquarters for the county is located at Boyne City but the efforts of the Army are divided between East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix.

The slogan adopted for the campaign to be staged this week is, "Everyone for The Salvation Army for Everyone."

Wood To Stay at Philippines

Manila—Governor Leonard Wood will remain as Philippine administration head until the four-year program considered essential for the rehabilitation is assured of success. Despite reports that he will become president of the University of Pennsylvania in January, it seemed apparent he would be unable to leave Manila until the close of the legislative session early in 1923 or perhaps later if an extra session of the legislature should develop.

Around-the-World Flyer Quits.

London—Major Walter T. Blake, who left the Croyden aerodrome on May 24 for a flight around the world, may be forced to abandon his trip on account of illness. Dispatches received from Calcutta state that Major Blake may not fly in the remaining portion of the trip. Major Blake is accompanied on his world trip by Captain Norman MacMillan as pilot, and by Lieutenant Colonel L. E. Broome, who is the scientific member of the party.

Fair Week Sept. 11th-15th

Annual Home-Coming Week for Northern Michigan.

The Charlevoix County Fair will begin a week from next Monday, Sept. 11th, and will close Friday, Sept. 15th. It is annual home-coming week for Charlevoix County and Northern Michigan.

Have you made arrangements to hop into the "Old Bus"—or the new one—and take your family or your friends out to enjoy the merriment and thrills of an old-fashioned county fair? If you haven't an auto, hook up Dolly and Nelly to the spring wagon. The main thing is to GO. Take your lunch with you, if you prefer, or get good, wholesome "eats" on the grounds. Make a picnic of your visit to the fair.

The officials in charge of your fair have worked hard. The program provides for the entertainment of every member of your family—for dad, mother, the kiddies, and all the cousins uncles and aunts. You simply mustn't miss it!

In addition to the regular baseball games between the Charlevoix County teams and either Harbor Springs or Petoskey, Secretary Bird has secured Masonic teams from Alba, Boyne City, Manvela and East Jordan to put on three forenoon games beginning Wednesday. It now develops that the East Jordan Masons under Doc Parks and Doc Bechtold are feeling very cocky over the outcome of these games.

It seems that about six weeks ago Doc Parks, in looking through the advertising pages of the "Hot Stuff Magazine," saw a picture of a gentleman pointing an accusing finger right at him. Underneath the cut were the words: "Be a Big League Ball Player! We teach you how—by mail!" It further explained that Rogers Hornsby, Babe Ruth and a lot of others made "big money," and that it was all a secret of "inside baseball."

It is rumored that the East Jordan Masons have taken a full correspondence course in inside baseball and have a new "hidden-ball" trick and a lot of other up-to-date stuff ready for their opponents. Don't miss these games.

Read the advertisement in this issue and make your plans accordingly. Nothing that does not lend itself to cleanliness and wholesomeness can be found at the Charlevoix County Fair. It is your fair, Mr. Citizen, worthy and deserving of your support. You and your family cannot fail to enjoy and profit by the varied amusement and educational features. Be there!

PLAN ASSISTANCE FOR RASPBERRY INDUSTRY

East Lansing, Aug. 31.—Rehabilitation of the raspberry industry in Michigan will be undertaken by federal and state authorities, following a survey of the industry in Berrien and Van Buren counties. It was found that the decline in production is due to unsatisfactory cultural conditions and to the prevalence of several diseases.

Plans formulated by the authorities call for: first, an increase in the number of inspectors and more rigid inspection by the state department of agriculture; second, acquainting the raspberry growers with the importance of better cultural and fertilization practices and with the serious nature of the several diseases by means of field meetings; and third, organizing the raspberry interests so they may be in a position to certify plantings which are disease free and true to variety name much after the fashion of the potato producers.

The surveying party was headed by Dr. W. A. Taylor, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, and included representatives of M. A. C., the state department of agriculture and many other agencies.

Old-fashioned women speak of them as "bobbed heads," instead of bobbed hair.

When a man is "broke" he probably can't be any broker, but on his return from a vacation he feels that way.

"Finishing schools" for girls often are rightly named. They frequently finish a girl's usefulness or her common sense, or both.

The joy-ride is so called because it so often ends in a gloom ride with friends of the victim walking slow behind.

COUNTY S. S. PICNIC AT BOYNE CITY FRIDAY, SEPT. 1ST.

The County Sunday School Picnic will be held at the Boyne City State Park this Friday, Sept. 1st. A very interesting program of games, stunts and water sports has been arranged.

Each picnicer is expected to bring a bathing suit, a well filled lunch basket with dishes, sugar and lemon juice. The association will provide ice cream.

Each Sunday School will be called upon to put on some stunt, a play, song or any sort of a stunt. A pennant will be awarded to the school having the largest percentage of attendance, based upon the attendance at Sunday School last Sunday.

Be there for dinner at noon. Stay all day. Bring the children and have a good time.

TARDY MARKS

School time has been pushed ahead to start at 8 o'clock in the morning. Therefore, we may expect a few more tardy marks, however, that should not be if parents knew the real meaning of tardy marks.

Perhaps nothing is so detrimental to a boy or girl as the lack of promptness. It is far better for a student to be out a whole day than to be tardy for the reason that many times there are good excuses for absences but there is practically no excuse for being late. When the records are looked up by prospective employers they will say that likely he was ill the day he was marked absent but when they see the tardy mark they shake their head and do not want that student. No superintendent or principal will highly recommend any student to a position or to a college who is persistently late. This is not just true of the high school but of the grades as well. It is just as important that the grade child learn the habit of promptness and thoroughness as it is for the high school student.

Promptness and punctuality are as great assets as anything a student will carry away from the school. One of the things which tends to make our present civilization irregular is lack of respect for law and order. Therefore will the parents do all they can to have their child here on time. In case it is absolutely necessary because of sudden illness or other like cause, the parent may call the school or send word by someone else so it may be possible for us to not count the student tardy. You understand that if it is arranged ahead of time for a student to come at a certain time, even an hour later, we cannot count it tardiness. Therefore, let me ask again that you try to cooperate with us in our effort to teach the boy and girl promptness and punctuality.

A. J. DUNGANSON, Superintendent.

IRELAND LOST ANOTHER LEADER

Michael Collins, Herold Figure, is Martyr for Irish Cause.

London—Michael Collins, head of the Irish provisional government and the Irish national army, was shot and killed from ambush at Bandon, County Cork, Aug. 22, a few hours after he had been given an ovation by the people of Cork, who for the first time saw the Free State hero in the uniform of commander-in-chief.

Thus within 10 days two of the most prominent figures in the new Irish government have been removed by death. Just 10 days before President Griffith of the Dail Eireann, considered the brains of the new organization, died in Dublin.

FORMER MAYOR OLES ARRESTED

Youngstown's Eccentric Leader Charged With Obstructing Sidewalk.

Youngstown, O.—George L. Oles, who resigned as mayor two months ago, after a stormy administration, was arrested Aug. 24 and taken to the police station in a patrol wagon to face charges of obstructing the sidewalk in front of his downtown market.

The complaint was made by Morris Squires, proprietor of a rival market. Squires and Oles have engaged in bitter personal exchanges through their newspaper advertisements for a long period. The former mayor gave bond of $10 for his appearance later for a hearing.

MISS OTTILIA SCHULTZ BECOMES BRIDE OF LUTHER A. BRINTNALL

Miss Ottilia Rose Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schultz of Wilson township, and Luther A. Brintnall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Brintnall, were united in marriage at Petoskey, Wednesday afternoon, August 30th, at the Lutheran parsonage by Rev. Succop. The couple were attended by Frank Schultz and Miss Matilda Knop, brother and cousin of the bride.

A wedding supper was served to over 150 guests at the home of the bride's parents.

Many useful gifts were presented to the happy young couple. They will make their home on his farm in Wilson township.

FRED K. NIELSEN

Fred K. Nielsen, of Nebraska, a solicitor of the State department, has been named by President Harding to be agent of the United States on the British-American claims commission. Mr. Nielsen has had extensive training and experience in matters relating to international law and diplomacy.

SAYS PROFITEERS CONTROL FUEL

State Administrator Declares Operators Comprise Advisory Board.

Lansing—William W. Potter, state fuel administrator, has charged that the coal concerns most closely affiliated with the Federal Fuel Administration are "getting theirs and getting it first."

He declared that the public is not in control of the distribution of coal; that coal is being daily offered at exorbitant prices, and asserted that the inability or disinclination of the Federal Fuel Administration to furnish Michigan sufficient coal for its necessary needs, makes it evident that enough coal can not be gotten into the state in time to prevent serious discomfort and loss of life.

Mr. Potter declared that the operators comprise the advisory board of the Federal Fuel Administration and added that "when a handful of men may throttle the American public and demand double a fair price for coal, it is time this American public was taking some action to change the personnel of the activities of the Federal Government."

SIX OFFICERS URGED TO RETIRE

Army Would Reduce Personnel by Letting Aged Officers Quit.

Washington—Suggestions have been advanced by the war department to four major and two brigadier generals of the army that, in view of their early retirement from the army under the age limitations fixed by statute, they make application for transfer from the active to the retired list.

If the six general officers applied for retirement without waiting until their brief time limits were reached it was said, they would do the service a tremendous good by making possible the retention of a number of the younger personnel in junior commissioned grades.

Dehydrated Vegetables.

When dehydrated raw vegetables are stored in airtight containers at ordinary temperatures investigations show that their moisture content is an important factor in their preservation. There is a "critical moisture content" below which the distinctive color and taste is retained unimpaired for upward of six months. For cabbage this is from 8 to 8.34 per cent; for onions, from 5.74 to 6.64 per cent. There is more injury from exposure to an atmosphere of comparatively high humidity at lower temperatures than from similar exposure in a dry atmosphere.

CHARLES H. EMREY FOR COUNTY CLERK

Since Mr. Emrey has been County Treasurer $72,000.00 in County Road Bonds have been cancelled and the interest stopped, plans have also been arranged for the incoming Treasurer to cancel an additional $30,000.00, so that in April 1923 a total of $102,000.00 of our County Road Bonds will be cancelled which is nearly one-third of our entire County indebtedness.

Mr. Emrey has handled more County money during the past four years than has been handled in the same office in any other ten years, because of the County Road Bond issue and the great amount of money expended in construction and maintenance of County Highways.

Mr. Emrey is a tax payer and has held County office only four years, while his opponent, Mr. Weaver has been granted eight years in office.

Mr. Emrey gave up all other work when elected to the office of County Treasurer and has worked diligently the past four years in the service of all who have come in contact with this busy office.

Compare the record made by Mr. Emrey as your County Treasurer with the record made by his opponent Mr. Weaver and then vote without friendship and without malice, but with ability and service as your only guide and may the best man win. adv. 35-2

Mrs. John Fitzgibbons, Bridge St., East Jordan, says: "Whenever I did any stooping my back always to hurt me and it had me all tired out. The greatest trouble was a dull ache through the small of my back which settled there. I often saw black specks before me and they bothered my sight considerably. My kidneys were weak and irregular and I was nervous, run down and worn out. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to try them. I used Doan's and they cured me."

SENATE FINALLY PASSES TARIFF

MEASURE NOW IN CONFERENCE AFTER RECEIVING 45 TO 25 VOTE OF APPROVAL.

MANY POINTS STILL UNSETTLED

Main Objection Will Come From Opponents of American Valuation Plan Favored by House.

Washington — The Administration tariff bill, the first Republican tariff bill in 13 years, officially "The Tariff Act of 1922," was passed late Aug. 19 by the Senate after four months of debate. It now goes to conference. The vote was 45 to 25.

Senator Borah of Idaho was the only Republican to vote against the measure. Three Democrats—Broussard, Kendrick, and Ransdell—voted for it. Twenty-one senators, 14 of them Republicans and seven Democrats, were absent and did not vote.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, president pro tempore, announced the appointment of the Senate conferees: Chairman McCumber and Senators Smoot of Utah, and McLean of Connecticut, Republicans; and Simmons of North Carolina, and Jones of New Mexico, Democrats.

Senator McLean is the fourth ranking Republican on the Finance Committee and was named in place of Senator La Follette, who under the usual rule would have drawn the assignment, but is opposed to the bill.

The measure was returned to the House Monday with a formal request for a conference. American valuations will be the biggest issue in conference, but the general belief at the capitol is that the House will yield on this, accepting the Senate "flexible" tariff plan as a substitute.

Chairman Fordney said he would hold out for American valuation, asking instructions from the House. Under this plan the House would decide the issue by a direct vote and the conferees then would proceed with their work of adjusting the 2,000 odd points in dispute between the two houses. Mr. Fordney thought the work could be completed within a month and the same view was entertained by Senate leaders.

LOVE TRAGEDY ENDS IN DEATH

Man Kills Brother Who Wed His Wife, and Ends Own Life.

Portland, Mich.—A love pact, broken as Enoch Arden of old, had its result, early Sunday, when William Hughes, 43 years old, Alaskan prospector, killed his brother, David, who had married William's wife while he was away in Alaska, authorities say. William turned the gun on himself and the top of his head was blown off.

Nearly 20 years ago, William Hughes left his wife and started to Alaska, seeking his fortune as a gold miner. For a time he served as cook. When he returned, it is said, he found that, 16 years ago his wife had divorced him and had married his brother, David.

William had been making his home with his brother and former wife. The shooting followed a quarrel in which he wanted to right the love tragedy.

"BIG 4" MEN STAY AT POSTS

Won't Strike, Even If Parley Falls, Spokesmen Declare.

Cleveland—There is no danger of the big four railroad transportation brotherhoods being drawn into a sympathetic strike, even should negotiations to end the strike of the shop crafts workers fail.

This was the declaration made by Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, on their return to their homes here late Sunday from New York and Washington, where for 10 days they have attempted to mediate the shopmen's controversies.

COAL DIGGING BACK TO NORMAL

Ohio Reports Production of 5,000 Cars Per Day This Week.

Washington—An increase in the mining and movement of coal was reported during the week, according to fuel administration officials, notwithstanding the decline in production of the week just ended.

The central fuel committee has been advised by George T. Poor, chairman of the Ohio fuel committee, Columbus, that coal production in that state is practically on a normal basis, with an approximate output of 5,000 cars a

CONGRESS BACKS SEIZURE OF MINES

LEADERS IN BOTH HOUSES ARE PREPARED FOR QUICK ACTION, IF ASKED.

PEACE EFFORTS ARE RENEWED

Anthracite Miners and Operators Are Induced By Officials to Resume Discussions Under Threat.

Washington—Congress will give full support to President Harding if he decides to seize the anthracite mines to stave off a fuel shortage, advisers to the president made known Sunday. Leaders in both houses were understood to have given assurances of quick action on any legislation the president may request to meet the situation.

Mr. Harding will ask for such legislation this week if the anthracite strike shows no signs of settlement. Senator Cummins, Iowa, chairman of the Interstate Commerce committee, is ready to take the initial steps in the senate.

This may not be necessary, it was stated, as word here Sunday indicated a renewal of the effort to make peace between the operators and strikers at Philadelphia. Secretary of Labor Davis and Senator Pepper, Pennsylvania, have been successful in getting both factions to renew discussions.

In the meantime, Mr. Harding and his "strike cabinet" were completing their plans to meet the extreme emergency. For the first time in several months, the president took a trip down the Potomac on the Mayflower, presidential yacht. His "strike cabinet," consisting of Secretaries Hoover and Fall, Attorney-General Daugherty and Senators Cummins and Kellogg, were with him, along with other guests.

Mr. Harding and his "strike cabinet" took along a large mass of data dealing with the anthracite situation; the danger facing the domestic consumers, and a large portion of the eastern part of the country in the event of an anthracite famine. A complete plan of action probably will be in readiness by Monday. According to Senator Watson, one of the president's advisers in the troubled industrial situation, Mr. Harding will ask for Congress to vest him with seizure power some time this week if the coal strike is not settled.

FORD PLANT WILL BE CLOSED

Thousands of Men Will Be Workless Due to Coal Crisis.

Detroit—Because of the shortage of fuel following the coal miners' strike the Ford Motor Company's plants in Detroit will cease operations Sept. 16, it was announced by Henry Ford Aug. 26.

The closing of the three Ford plants here will leave 55,000 men without employment. The assembly plants in several parts of the country, which also will close, employ 30,000 more, and the employment of some 300,000 other persons will be indirectly menaced.

Mr. Ford declared that coal had been offered his plant at a higher price but that he would not pay profiteers in order to keep the plant going.

U. S. TO BUILD POSTOFFICES

Will Check "Profiteering in Rentals," Declares Postmaster.

Washington — Government ownership of postoffice buildings in every city and town in the United States, where none now is owned, has been proposed to congress by Postmaster General Work with the approval of President Harding.

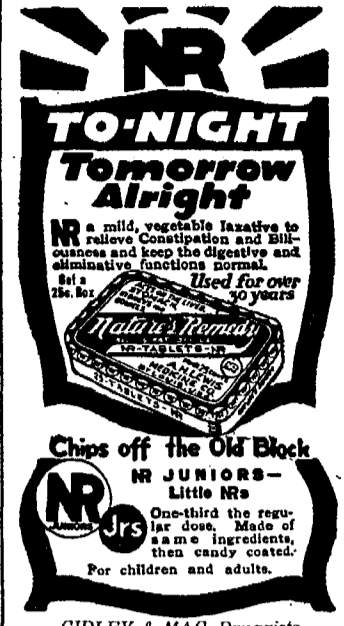

The president's approval, administration officials said, Sunday, was based upon reports showing that the plan, once put into effect, would mean a saving to the government of approximately half a billion dollars within the next ten years.

THE RIGHT THING at the RIGHT TIME
By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

FOR THE CHAPERON
Air and manner are more expressive than words.—Richardson.

IF YOU were asked to act as chaperon for a party of young girls and boys would you know just what you ought to do if you undertook that responsibility?

A chaperon need not be married—but when an unmarried chaperon is chosen she should be a person of dignified appearance and of mature years. If the chaperon is married, she need not be accompanied by her husband, even when the party is in the evening; though if you are asking a married woman to perform this service for you you should, of course, include an invitation to her husband also.

If it is a theater party, she should be given the best place. If the guests are seated in a box then she sits in one of the front seats. At a dance a chaperon may dance a few dances, but it would be rather out of keeping with her responsibility to dance all or even the majority of the dances. She need not, of course, watch the young women in the party as if she were a duenna, but she should make a point to be in evidence all through the party. At a small dance the guests who know her should make it a point to present the other young people to her. If she is chaperoning a certain young woman at a larger dance then they should emphatically present their escorts to her. Needless to say, the chaperon always remains until the last guest or dancer has gone. If you do not feel like remaining until the "wee sma' hours" do not accept an invitation to chaperon a dance, for since the war is over dances are continued much later than they have been; and unless the chaperon has been especially enjoined by the parents of her charges, or unless they are very young, she should not object to this late dancing.

One of the most difficult tasks that any chaperon ever has to perform is that of "calling down" one of her charges. Occasionally, of course, some daring young person will indulge in one of the dance steps that are looked upon as a disgrace by proper folks. But if the chaperon herself has not danced for a decade or so she must make allowances for the changes that have taken place in the way young persons dance. It is extremely ill-bred to call a dancer down conspicuously. In most cases it is better to wait until the dance is through and the dancers have left the floor and then to make the request for a change in mode of dancing quite confidentially.

MR. FOX SPOILS PARTY

OLD Mr. Drake waddled down to the pond one morning, and seeing a boat nearby, made up his mind that as he had been swimming for a long time he would take the easy; so he hopped into the boat and called to the Ducks on the pond to come along.

"I will be the captain," explained old Mr. Drake, "and you youngsters can be the crew. I do not mean to work any more, for why should I sure would be swimming about, and when the wind blew the boat, with the captain and his crew, to that side Mr. Fox could hardly wait quietly, so sure was he of having a feast.

"A whole boatload of young Ducklings!" thought hungry Mr. Fox. "Whoever was in such luck before? I would not bother with old Mr. Drake, but how I wish I had a dozen months and paws! I could have Ducklings for dinner for a week!"

Mr. Fox grew hungrier every second, and when the boat touched the bank, without waiting to find out if the Ducks were going to get out of it, he made a spring for the boat, expecting to land right in the midst of the Ducklings.

But alas and alack for all well-laid plans!—they often go awry; and so it was with the well-laid plan which Mr. Fox had, for when he struck the boat, out flew all the Ducks, and even old Captain Drake was as spry as the others. Fright made him forget his old age, and he flapped his wings and away he swam.

And where do you think Mr. Fox was all this time? Under the boat, trying to get free, for he hit the side and over it went, with him under it. After a while he managed to swim out, and there, far off in the distance, Mr. Fox saw his dreamed-of dinner.

It was no use to swim after them, for they were close to the bank, and he knew that the farmer's gun might put an end to his ever again being hungry if he was seen near the farm, so he swam for the bank and sadly walked toward home, a hungrier but a wiser fellow.

"A duck on land is worth more than a boatful," thought Mr. Fox, "and if I should meet one this minute here in the woods, even if it was tough old Mr. Drake, I would like to see it get away."

Famous Men Wore Earrings.
Earrings were first adopted by men and have been popular with them since primitive times. They dangled in the first instances from the ears of savage chieftains. The Ishmalites of the Bible gave the custom considerable vogue. And it is a time-honored and venerable superstition among sailors and fishermen that piercing the ears cures and prevents sore eyes. Many famous men have worn earrings—Sir Walter Raleigh, William Shakespeare and the earl of Southampton.

Put Pony's Comfort First.
One Sunday afternoon when I was ten years old my beau came over to take me for a ride in his pony cart. I took my new red parasol along, as it was a very hot day. On the way home my beau thought it was too hot for his pony so he took my parasol and climbed on the pony's back and held it over the pony's head. I was left sitting alone in the cart, with not even a hat on my head. This ended my first love affair.—Chicago Journal.

WHY?
IS THE SKY BLUE.

AFTER astronomers and scientists of various kinds had puzzled over this apparently simple question for many hundreds of years, Prof. John Tyndall, a famous scholar of the last century, solved the mystery with the following explanation:

Starlight is pure white light, made up of rays of the seven primary colors which are seen in the rainbow—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. The sky, which is really the air which surrounds the earth, is filled with myriads of tiny specks or particles of matter which absorb some of the colors in the rays of sunlight and reflect others—forming the combination which we have come to know as "sky blue." The variations in shade of this blue is due to the fact that the atmosphere is filled with different densities of these dust-particles at different times and also to the varying angles at which the sunlight strikes upon them. After a rain, however, the air is washed comparatively clear and the sky then appears at its true blue which we are accustomed to associate with it. If one could penetrate outside the shell of air which surrounds the earth, the "sky," instead of being blue, would appear to be pure white because there would be nothing to impede the direct rays of the white sunlight.

"SHALL I TRAVEL?"
SOMETIMES the mount of the moon, or Luna, bears a large number of horizontal lines. In addition to the vertical lines cross the face of the mount and reach the line of fate, the journeys undertaken by the subject have been or will be longer and more important than those indicated by the short, heavy, vertical lines on the same mount. But the travels, in this case, may be within the subject's own country and not outside its boundaries. When the horizontal lines enter the line of fate and travel upward with it, they show voyages that will benefit the subject materially. But when the end of any of these horizontal lines droops or curves downward toward the wrist, the voyage has been or will be unsuccessful. Lines that ascend, no matter how short a distance, indicate successful voyages. When one of these horizontal lines crosses another, the voyage will be repeated, for some important reason. If such a line bears a square, danger is indicated, but the subject is protected from misfortune.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

BERNICE

BERNICE is an auspicious name. It means "bringing victory" and is one of the many names derived from the Greek "nike," signifying victory. Nike was the goddess of victory and named the images which adorned the prows of the warships of Greece. The famous Winged Victory is the largest of the Nikes.

Feminine names ending in "nike" were very popular with the Greeks. Bernice was used in early times in Macedonia and was sometimes spelled Pherenike. The princesses of the two Greek kingdoms of Syria and Egypt favored Bernice and there are innumerable instances of its use by them in early Greek history.

It was from these royal patrons Bernice came to be adopted by the family of Herod. The name occurs frequently in the history of Christianity and it was borne by St. Bernice who heard the defense of St. Paul.

France liked the name, though it seems to lack all trace of French influence. The peasants of Normandy created Bernice and bestowed it upon their daughters. The French Bernique and the English Veronica are said to be corrupt forms of the name, but much doubt is cast upon such a contention.

The moonstone is the gem of Bernice. It is said to protect her from all danger and to bring her true love. It is believed that one can note the waxing and waning of the moon in its depths and that lovers can read the future therein. Monday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

"NERVES," A LUXURY

IF YOU have an inherited fortune, which some one else is taking care of for you, you can afford to have "nerves."

You can afford to be sensitive, to be easily irritated, to be extravagantly disturbed at small annoyances.

You will not enjoy this, but it may be some comfort to know that you can afford it.

But if you have your way to make, and are anxious to get as far as is possible with your particular mental equipment, you will find that "nerves" are too big a load to carry.

As you no doubt have discovered by this time, the world in which we live our being is not altogether a pleasant one.

In it there are loud and raucous noises, offensive sights, and displeasing people.

There is also a thing called labor, which viewed from the standpoint of the busy man is a good deal of a burden.

But this happens to be the only world you are in, for the present at least.

And if you permit all its unpleasant features to get on your nerves, you are going to be so busy with your unhappiness and your self-pity that you will have very little time to improve your natural gifts.

If you are nervous and touchy and sensitive, and always looking for offense, you might as well go directly to the poor house and give yourself up. You will get there in the end, and it will only be a waste of time to delay your arrival.

A good many cases of "nerves" were cured by the great war, permanently.

Young gentlemen who thought they could not eat, save from a nice mahogany table, spread with the best food, and who fancied they could not sleep if a trolley car was rattling by, discovered that they were mistaken.

After they had slept for a few days within the sound of exploding shells, they saw that they hadn't had much to worry about back in peace times.

Get rid of your nerves if you want to get along. Take the world as you find it, and put up with it. You may be able to improve it just the least bit later on, but you will have to become very able, and very great, before you can do so.

The Alhambra.
The Alhambra, most beautiful of all the palaces in Spain, was built by a Moorish king in about 1250, but has been enlarged by several successors of this ruler. It is a marvel of lovely arches and mosaics, halls and corridors, and courts, of which the court of Lions is the most known and admired. The hall of the Ambassadors is, supposedly, the square apartment in which Columbus presented his project to Ferdinand and Isabella.

Hello Mary! Are you going to the fair at East Jordan this year?

Yes indeed! I haven't missed the East Jordan Fair for ten years, and this time I hear it's to be extra good. What are you going to take for lunch?

I'm not going to bother with lunch. In the first place, it's all I can do to get the children ready and the work done so I can leave and then my head aches if I don't have something hot to eat and drink. Then it comes only once a year, I think we can afford to buy our meals. If we can get a good dinner from soup to pie for fifty cents or supper and breakfast for thirty-five isn't it better than fussing with a lunch?

Yes, of course, but where can you get all of this?

At the Dining Hall. Didn't you know the Presbyterian Ladies of East Jordan have the Dining Hall this year?

No I didn't, good for us they are all such good cooks. No lunch basket for me.

I'll see you week after next. I want to tell you about Florence's baby, its the dearest baby. Hello—somebody ringing in, pity one couldn't say good-morning on this line without being cut off. Good bye.

Other than the above the belt is all right. Yours, etc., D. S. O.—Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Meek and his wife had just settled themselves in their seats at the "movie" when three large, buxom women took seats in front of them, cutting off their view of the screen. Explaining the Difference Between Checks Printed on Ordinary Safety Paper and

Super-Safety Insured Checks

While checks printed on ordinary safety paper are somewhat safe from alteration by acid, rubber or knife erasure, they are not positively safe against alteration by the many other means open to the crook.

On Guard!
This bank stands guard ceaselessly providing your funds with protection

There is no mechanical or chemical means you can use to positively protect your checks against such alterations as adding "0" to "8" and adding "Y" to "Eight," thus making eighty dollars—a loss of $72.00 to the writer of the check.

INSURANCE is the only positive protection against this form of alteration and all other forms of fraudulent alteration.

The clever crook or the "greenest" of amateurs may alter your checks but if you have Super-Safety Insured checks, you cannot lose—the insurance repays you for any loss you may have incurred.

THE PEOPLES STATE SAVINGS BANK PROVIDES ALL DEPOSITORS WITH SUPER-SAFETY CHECKS — POSITIVE PROTECTION.

As visible evidence of the positive protection which we give depositors' checking funds, we will issue you an individual vest pocket insurance policy for $1,000.00 protecting you against any loss due to fraudulent alteration of your checks.

As a part of this insurance policy is an identification card with space for your signature, finger prints and photograph (to be furnished by you) which will identify you any place in the world. Sometime when you are out of the city this little identification card might help you in many ways.

NOTE—Super-Safety Insured checks are kind you see advertised in the leading magazines such as the Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, American Magazine and System.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

ENCOURAGING WORDS

TO FORM a pleasant background for a pleasing accompaniment to the drudgery of every day life, pass around among the hordes of weary mortals whose backs are bent under heavy loads a few encouraging words and observe, while you are doing it, the happy change that comes over their stoical countenances.

It takes but little kindness and manifestation of interest to brighten dull eyes and move sad faces to a smile.

As the lips curl at the corners, you comprehend with a new understanding the value of cheering words spoken in a kindly voice whose ring is sincere.

Whatever opinion you may entertain as to the influence helpful acts and speech have upon others, you will find upon intimate observation that it is always acceptable, uplifting and productive of friendship.

Encouraging smiles and words are like bright lights on a dark highway, guiding the tired traveler to his destination, who but a little while ago had lost his way and fallen into the "slough of despond."

Reason as you may, the tongue plays the leading role in the great drama of life, permitting itself liberties that make for peace or war an enemy or love, often forgetting in an unguarded moment its great responsibility.

No man or woman who indulges in gross speech can expect to get anything in return except that which arouses resentment.

If you should incline to prove this for yourself, scold your pet dog. If for the opposite you would verify, fill your purse tomorrow morning with kind words of encouragement, crisp as new bills, and pass them around as you would your way to business.

Give one to the old newsman on the corner, and see his face light up as the sun of happiness touches his heart and suddenly warms his whole being.

Hand them out all along the way until you are ready to assume your duties of the day.

You may marvel as you begin at the ease and gladness with which you take up your work.

The troublesome perplexities of yesterday have vanished, and there is a goodly spirit hovering over you, whose presence you have not felt for months, and all because you started the day by cheering others and thus unconsciously cheered yourself.

ARGO MILLING COMPANY

LITTLE DUTCH HANS

LITTLE DUTCH HANS stood on the doctor's desk. He had been made by a little girl and sent to the doctor for a birthday gift. Hans wore a pair of tan pantaloons that made everybody who saw them smile, and on his light hair, which hung over his shoulders, he wore a blue cap. His jacket was a lighter blue and his red tie matched his cheeks, which were very round and red.

But with all these gorgeous clothes it was Hans' smile that made you feel so pleased when you looked at him, but this he wore only in the day time, for Hans was very unhappy at night when all was still in the doctor's office. Right under Hans' feet was a little calendar over which Hans seemed to be standing guard, but though he had such an important duty he was not at all happy because near him stood a paperweight in the form of a stern-looking boy with his arms folded in such a way that he could hold a pencil or penholder.

Paper-weight boy looked upon Hans with disdain, and told him that he was too gaily dressed for a boy, and besides that his hair was cut like a girl's.

Poor little Hans was very unhappy, because though he told Paper-weight boy he was a Dutch boy and that was the way they dressed in his country, the brass clothes which his companion wore did look more like boy's clothes.

Then Paper-weight Boy, being made of brass, did not tumble over as did Hans when the wind happened to blow through the office. "You are as light as a feather," said Brass Boy.

"Look at me. How strong I am, and then I should like to know of what use you are, anyway."

"I take care of all the important papers for the Doctor. Look how many I hold under my feet. But for me the Doctor could not keep track of anything."

Poor little Hans could not say a word to all this, for though he did have all the days and months at his feet, he really could not say he was a great help, for sometimes the Doctor did not look at the calendar for a long time.

But one day a little girl came to the office with her mother, and when she cried because the Doctor wanted to look at her tongue he gave her Hans to hold and she stopped crying at once.

That night Brass Boy did not say much to Hans, for he knew he had helped the Doctor, and the next day another little girl came to see him, and when she, too, cried, the Doctor offered to let her hold Brass Boy, but she shook her head and pointed to Hans. "Pretty boy," she said.

"Ah, you like my little Dutch Hans best," said the doctor. "Well, so do I, for his happy smile cheers me sometimes when I am tired. I could not keep house without him."

That night when the office was still little Hans was smiling just as he did in the day time and Brass Boy knew that he would be wise to hold his peace and never again did he taunt Hans with being useless.

Hans' coat grew dingy from so much handling, but his smile remained, and so long as he helped the Doctor he could smile in spite of faded clothes.

Brass Boy, knowing that Hans was very important, now grew friendly and they lived in peace, for Hans was as good natured as he looked, and did not say any unkind things as he might have done.

CONTROL OF COAL AND RAILS URGED

PRESIDENT'S PROPOSAL OFFERED IN SENATE BY SENATOR CUMMINS.

I. C. C. WOULD BE GIVEN CHARGE
Fuel Problem Recognized as Most Important Issue and Need of Drastic Action Seen.

Washington—Control of mines, prices and distribution of coal during the period of the fuel emergency, and complete control of coal transportation by the interstate commerce commission, has been proposed to congress by the president, and put before the senate in the form of an administration bill, offered by Senator Cummins, chairman of the committee of interstate commerce, Aug. 24.

Almost coincident with the introduction of this bill came a serious debate in the senate on the coal and rail crisis, and just before adjournment, Senator Walsh, Massachusetts, member of the committee on education and labor, offered a joint resolution empowering the president to take over and operate the coal mines.

During the debate there was reference by several senators to the possibility of government operation of the mines and Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin, hinted at government seizure of the railroads.

Senator Lenroot said the time had now come to vote the president authority to take over both the coal mines and the railroads, the president to use such authority "in his discretion and when he thinks it necessary."

Senator Cummins in the debate inferentially approved of this sweeping suggestion and the temper of the senate was plainly for drastic action.

Senator Cummins and others warned the senate that the coal question today is the vital problem of the nation transcending in importance the soldier bonus, the tariff or any other issue.

"I wonder while the senate was going along discussing 2,000 amendments to the tariff bill if it realized the seriousness of this coal situation?" said Senator Cummins. Later, he said he was willing to go to any end possible under the constitution to meet the emergency, and would support drastic temporary measures that he could not support as a permanent proposition.

"MOVIE" MANNERS

IT ISN'T always a good plan to look to your favorite film star for an example of good manners, for it may be that the fact that she is acting for motion pictures has had something to do in determining her manners.

Did you ever notice that even retiring young girls in the moving pictures have a way of laying their hands upon the arms of the men with whom they are conversing, sometimes stroking the lapels of their coats and otherwise handling them as they surely would not do in real life? Because this sort of thing is not regarded as good form, men very much dislike to have the girls they know affect this familiar manner. But remember that in the motion pictures, when we must depend on gesture for what we cannot indicate by spoken word, such show of feeling is often necessary.

So the young girl in the motion pictures meets a man at a ten and lays two hands familiarly on his arms and stands close to him, talking up into his face. In real life she would doubtless stand talking three or four feet away with hands hanging lifelessly at her side. Now, this would indicate nothing in the picture. The actress must show what is really being achieved by spoken word.

And this very thing accounts for much of the rushing around and close grouping and waving of arms that you see in the pictures, but which certainly is not characteristic of well-bred society. Polite Americans, like the English, avoid gesture to a surprising extent.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

ISABEL

ETYMOLOGISTS claim that Isabel is only another form of Elizabeth, whose intricate, but interesting history will be discussed later. Accepting the theory of the experts, Isabel would seem to be derived, then, through the Hebrew Elisebea, much used in the time of Charlemagne. It soon became Elisaba and was shortly abbreviated to Isabeau through the wife of Charles VI of France.

Another more romantic version claims that Isabel, which is translated to mean "oath of Baal," originated with the daughter of the Zidonian king whom we call Jezebel. She is also thought to be equivalent to Elizabeth, though she appeals to the oath of the heathen Baal whose votress she is. Her name was given, with expressions of hatred, by the Spanish Jews to Isabel the Catholic when she permitted them to be persecuted, and both Spain and Italy applied the epithet to Queen Elizabeth.

The wife of Philippe Auguste of France was called Isabelle by the French when she was brought from Hungary a bride, and the name thus became popular in the French court. Isabelle of Angouleme, the betrothed of Hugues de Lusignan, who afterward married King John, brought Isabelle to England. Her namesake daughter became the wife of Friedrich II and carried Isabel to Germany and Sicily. Spain adopted it as Isabel or Ysabel and it was given vogue there through the marriage into Portugal of Isabel de la Pays, great niece of Elizabeth of Hungary. But, curiously enough, Isabel was never greatly liked or used in England, though the child-queen of Richard II was so called, and many daughters of the Plantagenets received it in baptism. Scotland, on the other hand, favored it, calling it Isobel and Isabel. Isabella is a form used in England and America to some extent.

Isabel's gem is the diamond. For her, the diamond is talisman against all harm, disease, and sorrow. If worn upon her left arm, which is nearest the heart, it will bring her the devotion of others. Saturday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The daisy, signifying innocence, is her flower.

A Triumph for Value

IN the past two months Firestone has built and marketed more tires than in any similar period in its history.

This steadily increasing public preference is proof of the recognition by car owners of the greater values offered by Firestone. It is a tribute to Firestone men—all stockholders in the company—all actuated by the operating principle of Most Miles per Dollar.

The high average performance of Firestone Cords is without equal in the annals of tire making and is reflected by the general tendency to specify Firestone for hard service. Taxicab and bus lines, buying tires by the mile, are universally equipping with Firestone Cords.

There are many reasons for the high quality of Firestone tires but chief among the special manufacturing processes are double gum-dipping, thus eliminating internal friction by insulating each cord strand, and air-bag cure, insuring a well-balanced and perfectly shaped product.

Don't speculate in tires—you will find the right combination of price and quality in Firestone. Come in and let us tell you about the service these Cords are giving other car-owners whom you know.

Fairchild went back into the tunnel, spun the flywheels of the gasoline engines and started them revolving again...

Several hours passed, then Harry returned, minus his gorgeous clothing and his diamond ring...

fully forgot the earlier meeting. "Then we've happened to meet several times after that..."

Harry nodded. "So 'e was. And a good friend. But that was before things 'appened—like they've 'appened in the last ten years..."

"You won't—if Mother 'Oward knows anything. 'E ain't able to get out. 'E's sick—apoplexy—a stroke..."

"How?" "Ow does anybody take advantage of somebody that's sick? 'Ow does anybody get a 'old on a person?"

"But a judge—" "Judges is like anybody else when they're heddrilled and only 'arf their faculties working..."

"Ow should I know? You own it?" "I don't mean that way. We were fifty-fifty from the minute you showed up..."

"Suppose," answered Harry after a communication with his magic mustache, "that we go dye and night 'til we get the water out?"

"Good. But the pumping will last through tomorrow night. Can you take the night trick?"

"Sure. But why?" "I want to go to that dance!" Harry whistled. Harry's big lips spread into a grin.

"And she's got brown eyes!" he chortled to himself. "And she's got brown 'air, and she's a wye about 'er."

"I hope I will. Or rather, I hope that you'll make such a thing possible for both of us. But I was talking about something else; are we going to work hard and fight it out day and night for awhile until we can get things clear, or are we just going at it by easy stages?"

overdressed costumes of the women, the old-fashioned affairs with which many of the men had arrayed themselves...

From far away the drone of the caller sounded in a voice familiar, and Fairchild looked up to see the narrow-eyed, scarred face of Squint Rodaine...

Only a moment he hesitated. Maurice Rodaine, attired in a mauve frock suit and the inevitable accompanying heaver, had stopped to talk to some one at the door...

"One more couple—then the dance starts. One more couple, lady an' a gent! One more—"

"Please!" Robert Fairchild had reached her and was holding forth his hand. She looked up in half surprise, then demurred.

"Neither do I—or any other, for that matter," he confessed with sudden boldness. "But does that make any difference? Please!"

She glanced quickly toward the door. Maurice Rodaine was still talking, and Fairchild saw a little gleam come into her eyes—the gleam that shows when a woman decides to make some one pay for rudeness.

Fairchild's hand was still extended. Again Anita Richmond glanced toward the door, chuckled to herself, and then Fairchild watched the dimples that the merriment caused, and then—Fairchild forgot the fact that he was wearing hornbloused shoes and that his clothes were worn and old...

All in a moment the dance hall seemed to have gone mad. Men were rushing about and shouting; panic-stricken women claved at one another and fought their way toward a freedom they could not gain...

And then he straightened. A man had unlocked the door from the outside and had rushed into the dance hall, excited, shouting. It was Maurice Rodaine.

"I know who it was," he almost screamed. "I got a good look at him—jumped out of the window and almost headed him off. He took off his mask outside—and I saw him."

"You sav him?" A hundred voices shouted the question at once.

"Yes." Then Maurice Rodaine nodded straight toward Robert Fairchild. "The light was good, and I got a straight look at him. 'E was that fellow's partner—a Cornishman they call Harry!"

"I don't believe it!" Anita Richmond exclaimed with conviction and clutched at Fairchild's arm. "I don't believe it!"

"I can't!" Robert answered. Then he turned to the accuser. "How could it be possible for Harry to be down here robbing a dance hall when he's out working the mine?"

"Working the mine?" This time it was the sheriff. "What's the necessity for a day and night shift?"

"We agreed upon it yesterday afternoon." "At whose suggestion?"

"I'm not sure—but I think it was mine." "Young fellow," the sheriff had approached him now, "you'd better be certain about that. It looks to me that might be a pretty good excuse to give when a man can't produce an alibi. Anyway, the identification seems pretty complete. Then he turned to the crowd. "I want a couple of good men to go along with me as deputies."

"I have a right to go," Fairchild had stepped forward. "Certainly. But not as a deputy. Who wants to volunteer?"

Half a dozen men came forward, and from them the sheriff chose two. Fairchild turned to say good-by to Anita. In vain. Already Maurice Rodaine had escorted her, apparently against her will, to a far end of the dance hall, and there was quarreling with her. Fairchild hurried to join the sheriff and his two deputies, just starting out of the dance hall...

Slowly, the motor car fighting against the grade, the trip was accomplished. Then the four men leaped from the machine at the last rise before the tunnel was reached and three of them went forward afoot toward where a slight gleam of light came from the mouth of the Blue Poppy.

The sheriff took the lead, at last to stop behind a boulder and to shout a command: "Hey you, in there."

"By yourself!" It was Harry's voice. "Come out—and be quick about it. Hold your light in front of your face with both hands."

"The 'ell I will! And 'oo's talking?" "Sheriff Adams of Clear Creek county. You've got one minute to come out—or I'll shoot."

"I'm coming on the run!" And almost instantly the form of Harry, his acetylene lamp lighting up his bulbous, surprised countenance with its spraylike mustache, appeared at the mouth of the tunnel.

"What the bloody 'ell?" he gasped, as he looked into the muzzle of the revolver. From down the mountain side came the shout of one of the deputies: "Sheriff! Looks like it's him, all right. I've found a horse down here—all sweated up from running."

"That's about the answer." Sheriff Adams went forward and with a motion of his revolver sent Harry's hands into the air. "Let's see what you've got on you."

A light gleamed below as an electric flash in the hands of one of the deputies began an investigation of the surroundings. The sheriff, finishing his search of Harry's pockets, stepped back.

"Well," he demanded, "what did you do with the proceeds?" "The proceeds?" Harry stared blankly. "Of what?"

"Quit your kidding, now. They've found your horse down there." "Wouldn't it be a good idea—" Fairchild had cut in acridly—"to save your accusations on this thing until you're a little surer of it? Harry hasn't any horse. If he's rented one, you ought to be able to find that out pretty shortly."

As if in answer, the sheriff turned and shouted a question down the mountain side. And back came the answer: "It's Doc Mason's. Must have been stolen. 'Doc was at the dance."

"I guess that settles it." The officer reached for his hip pocket. "Stick out your hands, Harry, while I put the cuffs on them."

"But 'ow in bloody 'ell 'ave I been doing anything when I've been up 'ere working on the chiv wheel? 'Ow—?" "They say you held up the dance tonight and robbed us," Fairchild cut in. Harry's face lost its surprised look, to give way to a glance of keen questioning.

"And do you say it?" "I most certainly do not. The identification was given by that honorable person known as Mr. Maurice Rodaine."

"Oh! One thief identifying another—" "Sheriff!" Again the voice from below. "Yeh!"

"We've found a cache down here. Must have been made in a hurry—two new revolvers, bullets, a mask, a couple of new handkerchiefs and the money."

Harry eyes grew wide. Then he stuck out his hands. "The evidence certainly is piling up!" he grunted. "I might as well save my talking for later."

"That's a good idea." The sheriff snapped the handcuffs into place. Then Fairchild shut off the pumps and they started toward the machine. Back in Ohadi more news awaited them. Harry, if Harry had been the highwayman, had gone to no expense for his outfit. The combined general store and hardware emporium of Gregg Brothers had been robbed of the articles necessary for a disguise—also the revolvers and their bullets.

Robert Fairchild watched Harry placed in the solitary cell of the county jail with a spite that could not respond to the Cornishman's grin and his assurances that morning would bring a righting of affairs. Four charges hung heavy above him: that of horse-stealing, of burglary, of highway robbery, and worse, the final assault with attempt to kill. Fairchild turned wearily away; he could not find the optimism to join Harry's cheerful announcement that it would be "all right." The appearances were otherwise. Besides, up in the little hospital on the hill, Fairchild had seen lights gleaming as he entered the jail, and he knew that doctors were working there over the wounded body of the fiddler. Tired, heavy at heart, his earlier conquest of the night sodden and overshadowed now, he turned away from the cell and its optimistic occupant—out into the night. It was only a short walk to the hospital and Fairchild went there, to leave with at least a ray of hope. The probing operation had been completed; the fiddler would live, and at least the charge against Harry would not be one of murder. That was a thing for which to be thankful; but there was plenty to cause consternation as Fairchild walked slowly down the dark, winding street toward the main thoroughfare. Without Harry, Fairchild now felt himself lost. Before the big, genial, eccentric Cornishman had come into his life, he had believed, with some sort of divine ignorance, that he could carry out his ambitions by himself, with no knowledge of the technical details necessary to mining, with no previous history of the Blue Poppy to guide him, and with no help against the enemies who seemed everywhere. Now he saw that it was impossible. More, the incidents of the night showed how swiftly those enemies were working, how sharp and stiletto-like their weapons.

"He Was That Fellow's Partner."

That Harry was innocent was certain—to Robert Fairchild.

Insects Use Tools. In intelligence the insect world ranks next to humankind. Two naturalists tell of seeing a wasp closing a hole in the ground leading to a food cache by tamping the earth with a small pebble it had seized in its mandibles. Heretofore man was supposed to be the only tool user. Out at Grays Harbor, Wash., bandit wild bees have invaded the tame hives and carried away the honey to their hives in the forest. They have stolen more than one-third of the domestic honey gathered in this district. Insect civilization seems right up-to-date.

How Soldiers Met Death. During the World war it was frequently observed that the British soldiers were wont to die with stoic calm, that the emotional nature of the Frenchman often expressed itself, not unreasonably, in tears, and that the Americans in many cases were known to die with a laugh or a joke on their lips.

HAY FEVER SUFFERERS UNLUCKY. In August the air is full of pollen and dust that cause trouble for some, yet others are never bothered. No remedy does more to relieve hay fever and asthma than Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds, croup. It clears and soothes the afflicted nose, throat and bronchial tubes.—Hite's Drug Store.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Finish the Kidneys at once when Back Hurts or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then set fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage. Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

NEW RECORD IN PLANE LANDING

Machine Stopped Within 50 Feet of Place it Struck.

Farmingdale, N. Y.—Using skids, instead of wheels, an aeroplane, piloted by Lawrence B. Sperry, one of the governors of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, stopped within 50 feet of the place it struck. The landing broke all records for quick stops, he declared.

The plane was equipped with wheels for the take-off, but as soon as it got into the air, dropped them automatically. The skids stopped the craft as it hit the ground.

C. E. HUGHES ON WAY TO BRAZIL

Secretary of State To Make Official Visit During Centennial.

New York—Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state, sailed Aug. 24, on the Pan America to return the visit to Brazil, which Emperor Don Pedro made to the United States in 1876, and to visit the Brazilian centennial exposition.

Ambassador Allencar, of Brazil,
Consul General Lobo, in New York, and the entire staff of the New York
Brazilian consulate were at the pier.
The ship, delayed almost two hours, because Mr. Hughes was late in arriving, finally got away at 6 o'clock, with tugs, ferries and small boats in the harbor whistling a farewell salute.

FRANCS AND MARKS AGAIN DROP

German Mark Now 5/16 a Hundred, or 20 For a Cent.

New York—Reported failure of the Reparations Commission to reach an agreement with the German government, combined with disquieting cable dispatches regarding political and economic conditions in Germany, caused another sharp collapse in German exchange.

Marks, which have been steadily declining for the last two months, were quoted Aug. 24 at 5 1-8 cents a hundred or approximately 20 for a cent. The normal, or pre-war, price of the mark was 23.3 cents each.

French francs also sank to the year's lowest level, being quoted at 7.76 cents each.

Board Absolves Slain Officer.

Washington—Lieut. Col. Paul W.
Beck, army aviator, whose death at the hands of Judge Dean Day of Oklahoma City, under sensational circumstances, involving Day's beautiful young wife, was killed "in line of duty," according to the final official report of the investigating board of army officers. The conclusions of the board are that there is no evidence worthy of credence to show the slain officer was guilty of any act reflecting on his honor.
