Child Lost In Storm

Wanders Over 24 Hours. Found After Diligent Search

Clad only in light summer garments, a child became lost in the woods, Tuesday noon; he crossed a deep creek where a mis-step meant death by drowning; survived the chills of stormy October weather; and was found, numb with cold but still alive, at 3:00 p. m., Wednesday.

Such was the experience of 3½ years old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Metcalf residing about a mile west and south of Kemp's Corners on the East Jordan Charlevoix stone road.

The child wandered away from home Tuesday noon and throughout the afternoon and night search was made by the family and neighbors. Wednesday morning Sheriff Weaver and Under-Sheriff Cook were notified and a posse of several hundred men were organized. Search was continued throughout the forenoon and until the middle of the afternoon, when the child was found, numb with cold, but still alive.

In its wanderings, the child had crossed a deep branch of Monroe Creek, and was found in the high-lands of the woods beyond—over a mile from his home.

The regular October storm was prevalent, with high winds and cold, rainy weather and his survival of may well be ascribed to "An Act of God".

BANKER URGES DEBT SUSPENSION

Would Take European Finances Out of Politics for 10 Years.

New York—The Allied debts to the United States and German reparations and settlement of these problems as they may affect the industry and commerce of the United States were the outstanding topics of interest at the third and closing session of the convention of the American Bankers' association here last week.

Suspension of the debts of France, Italy and other European debtors of the United States for a period of 10 years was recommended by President Alvin K. Krech, of the Equitable Trust company as a means of taking the Allied debt question out of politics for a definite period and creating an atmosphere of judicial aloofness into which the subject might be approached.

COMBINED UNION IS INDORSED

Maintenance of Way Men Vote to Combine 16 Brotherhoods

Detroit—Amalgamation of the 16 railroad brotherhoods in one big union was recommended in resolutions adopted by the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers in triennial convention at the Woodward Auditorium. The resolutions, three in number and along similar lines, were carried by three to one votes, after a heated debate.

Brotherhood officials of the faction supporting E. F. Grabie, grand president, said that passing of the resolutions indicated that the radical element had obtained control of the convention. Mr. Grabie declined to comment.

FOREST FIRE FATAL TO MANY

33 Lose Lives When Flames Over- Run Canadian District.

Quebec—Thirty-three persons lost their lives in the brush and forest fires which raged last week in the Cobalt district in Northeastern Ontario, and in the St. Maurice Valley in Quebec.

Many persons who lost their homes in the burning of six North Country villages, including the town of Hatleybury, are reported missing.

More Roads Arrange Peace.

Chicago—Eighty-three railroads of the United States, operating approximately 65,000 miles and employing between 125,000 and 130,000 members of the federated shop crafts, have settled the shop crafts strike with their system federations, according to a special bulletin sent to all members of the organization over the signature of B. M. Jewell, president. The latest additions to the settling roads were the Fort Smith & Alabama and the Chicago Great Western.

The biggest lies begin, "Now when I was your age—"

Old age isn't respectable just because it is old. Nothing is less so than an old reprobate.

MRS. JOSEPH A. KING PASSED AWAY AT HOME OF DAUGHTER

Mary B. Stott was born in Stockport, Renssler Co., N. Y., on the 28th day of May, 1839. Her early life was spent with her parents here. At the age of 17 she went to live near Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where she resided until 1859, when she went to Fredericksburg Iowa, to live with her sister, Mrs. E. B. Bolton. On August 21 of the same year she was united in marriage to Joseph A. King of the same place. Here they resided until 1867 when they took up a homestead in Section 32, South Arm Township, Michigan. Her husband, deceased, preceded her 18 years ago. She continued to live on the homestead with her son, Allen King, until 1908, when she went to Echo township, Antrim Co., to live with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Bartholomew, where she resided until Sunday, October 8th, when she peacefully passed away in the hope of blessed immortality.

She leaves four daughters and one son—Mrs. Thomas Bartholomew, Mrs. George Murray, Mrs. Joseph Walker, Mrs. Joseph Rebec, all of East Jordan, and Allen King of Washington. She had 9 grandchildren and 13 great grand children. The funeral services were from the residence of Mrs. Thomas Bartholomew, Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. C. W. Sidebotham. Interment at Jones Cemetery.

HOWARD—REESE

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Howard in Wilson township, Sunday forenoon, Oct. 8th, when their daughter, Grace, was united in marriage to Eugene F. Reese of Chicago, Ill., in the presence of the immediate family and Mrs. Henry Cook and Miss Wilma Pickard.

The house was decorated in autumn leaves and beautiful fall flowers. The bride was dressed in white brocaded satin crepe, with a veil of tulle, and carried a beautiful bridal bouquet of white roses and baby's wreath.

The marriage ceremony followed by the ring service was performed by Rev. Warren W. Lampport of Central Lake. A wedding breakfast was served and the young couple left at noon for Chicago, where they will make their future home.

A wedding of much interest to a large circle of friends took place on the morning of Sunday, Oct. 8th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Howard, east of town, when their daughter, Grace was united in marriage to Eugene F. Reese of Chicago. The ceremony took place in the presence of the parents, and of Miss Fern Howard, Mrs. Henry Cook, Howard Cook and Miss Wilma Pickard, the officiating pastor being Rev. Warren W. Lampport of Central Lake, formerly pastor of the Methodist Church here in East Jordan.

The bride is one of our finest young ladies, she was born here and this has always been her home. She will be greatly missed among social circles.

The groom is Secretary-Treasurer of the System Bible Study Pub. Co., of Chicago. He is a southerner by birth, a college graduate, and at present is serving as literary critic of "The System Bible Study," a publication whose contributors are among the foremost ministers and educators of America and England.

The young couple left soon after the wedding for Chicago, where they will make their home.

Three Peaks Out of One.

Remnants of the ice age are particularly interesting in the Rocky Mountain National park, where huge valleys have been plowed out through countless ages, possibly 5,000,000 years ago. Glaciers transformed what was a single mountain mass into three peaks—Long's, Meeker and Lady Washington—as they are known, with Long's rising to an elevation of 14,255 feet, or nearly three miles above sea level.

Of Course the Star Prints This.

The Wamego (Kan.) Times tells of a little boy of that city who was taking his first lesson in astronomy the other night and was very much interested in the names of the various stars and planets to be seen from the sleeping porch. Finally he asked, "Mamma, which one is the Kansas City Star?"—Kansas City Star.

Low Visibility.

An American has invented a wireless receiving set which fits into a finger ring. We await with interest the announcement that another American has invented one which is only visible through a microscope.—The Passing Show (London).

East Jordan Wins at Onaway

East Jordan High School Chases Its Football Jinx

Onaway was doped to be easy by some of the other teams in northern Michigan, including East Jordan High School for Potoskey said they played with lack of pep on their grounds the week before but evidently the reason was that Onaway played Cheboygan on Tuesday and played Potoskey on Saturday, perhaps accounting for the slower work of the Onaway team at Potoskey. Onaway showed no lack of snap in the game against the local boys for it was one of the scrappiest see-saw games one could imagine.

East Jordan excelled on forward passing while Onaway put up a good game running at the ball. The details of the game will have to be largely imagined. We simply are going to mention a few of the unusual things that happened. The whole Onaway back field were fast and played a very fine running game. No unusually long games were made by Onaway, while East Jordan made a number mostly by intercepted passes, Eddie Streeter intercepting three forward passes for long games, one for 50 yards. Almer Smith grasped one of Onaway's passes and ran 70 yards for touchdown in one of the nicest runs you perhaps have seen on the football field, dodging three tacklers in order to make the run. We carried the ball to Onaway's 10 yard line five or six times, only to lose it on downs. Our punting was far superior to Onaway's. How we got but one touchdown is almost impossible to figure out. As it was, we just won the game by the small margin of one point in a very exciting finish.

Onaway fumbled on our one foot line. We carried the ball across and on another fumble we covered and saved the game and made a forward pass, and in the last half minute. The team still shows greenness but are improving and we expect to see some good games before the end of the year.

Washington—President Harding has another unemployment problem before him now. Word has drifted into headquarters of the anti-saloon league that shipping board vessels will have their bars closed shortly through orders from Attorney General Daugherty and Chairman A. D. Lasker.

The bartenders will be without jobs, and as the shipping board announced informally at one time that the bartenders were appointed because of efficiency and in disregard to politics, the argument is made that the Harding administration should care for them in some manner.

TO BAN LIQUOR ON U. S. SHIPS

And Now Government Must Find Work for Bartenders.

Washington—Neither rural nor star route mail carriers have any special privileges in the use of public highways. This ruling has been made by Postmaster General Work in connection with government projects in giving financial aid for the construction and improvement of roads in various states.

Disregarding of barricades placed on roads under repair by contractors and ignoring of warning signs by rural route and star route carriers on the ground that they interfere with the quick delivery of the mail are forbidden by the ruling of Postmaster General Work.

B. & O ENTERS INTO AGREEMENT

Eastern Trunk Line Arranges Wage Scale for Next Year.

Cleveland—The entire Baltimore & Ohio railroad system has signed an agreement with brotherhood organizations of trainmen and conductors extending present wage and working agreements for one year, it was officially announced at brotherhood of railroad trainmen headquarters here.

The Baltimore & Ohio was the only trunk line of the eastern group of roads not previously reaching an agreement with their trainmen and conductors.

Voliva Raises Another Sign.

Zion City, Ill.—A sign board, 198 feet long, was put in place of those recently mutilated by vandals. The huge bulletin board, erected along the main thoroughfare, flashes the following warning of Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva: "This city belongs to Zion and Zion people only, and I'll fight anybody else who comes in here to try to mar it." Voliva is said to be making an active campaign to induce all "independent" religionists to join his church.

No Help.

Jud Tunkins says the camera has become a great power, but people never yet elected a man to office simply because he took a good photograph.—Washington Star.

Real Whisper of Wisdom.

To have ideas is to gather flowers; to think is to weave them into garlands.—Mme. Swetchine.

U. S. SUES AIRPLANE COMPANY

Government Seeks to Recover $2,408,287.41 Overpayment.

Cincinnati—The United States government has filed suit in Dayton, O., against the Dayton Airplane company, formerly known as the Dayton Wright Airplane company, seeking to recover $2,408,287.41 at 6 per cent interest from June 11, 1919, alleged to have been fraudulently paid to the company by the government officials.

The government's claim recites seven contracts and supplements, among which are two contracts in which the government agreed to provide the defendants with $2,500,000 to carry out the contract.

The bill continues that during the progress of work under these contracts the government paid to the company $31,486,175.11 as payment under the terms and conditions of such contracts and supplements.

Liquor used to make 'em sing and fight, but now it just makes 'em fight.

JOHN MONROE, SR. PIONEER OF THIS REGION PASSED AWAY.

John Monroe, Sr., father of John Monroe, Jr. of East Jordan, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes at Northport, Wednesday, Sept. 27th, at the advanced age of 102 years.

With the death of this pioneer, who bore a striking resemblance to the martyred President, William McKinley, comes the first break in a four-generation household. The daughter, her son, Delbert, 49, and the latter's son, Virgil, 21, all live in the same dwelling.

Mr. Monroe was born at Inverness, Scotland, Nov. 20, 1820. He took out naturalization papers 57 years ago and filed on a homestead at East Jordan.

Later he followed gold mining in Australia and the Klondike and built the first dam over the Pine river at East Jordan. A man of Herculean strength and size, he often carried a 500 pound load without effort.

Nine of fourteen children survive: John Monroe, Jr., East Jordan; Mrs. Anna Miles, Ellsworth; Alex Monroe, Detroit; Mrs. Hattie Matthews, Toronto, Can.; Mrs. Mary McIntosh, Tacoma, Wash.; Joseph Monroe, Myager, Ore.; Henry Monroe, Astoria, Ore.; Augustine Monroe, Northport, and Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes, Northport.

MAIL CARRIERS NOT PRIVILEGED

Postmaster Denies Rural Carriers May Disregard Road Signs.

Washington—Neither rural nor star route mail carriers have any special privileges in the use of public highways. This ruling has been made by Postmaster General Work in connection with government projects in giving financial aid for the construction and improvement of roads in various states.

Disregarding of barricades placed on roads under repair by contractors and ignoring of warning signs by rural route and star route carriers on the ground that they interfere with the quick delivery of the mail are forbidden by the ruling of Postmaster General Work.

GEORGIA SENDS FIRST WOMAN TO U. S. SENATE

MRS. W. H. FELTON

Washington—American women everywhere have been stirred to enthusiasm by the appointment of Mrs. W. H. Felton, "the grand old lady of Georgia," as the first woman United States senator.

The octogenarian "senator" accepted the appointment not as a personal honor but as a signal tribute to the women of the United States.

"It means nothing to me at my age, but it will thrill all American women," she commented.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL
Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

MILDRED

MILDRED is something of a holy name, since it has a heritage closely associated with religious orders. Though said to be of Teutonic origin, it was exclusively Saxon in its early use; indeed it may be said to be almost Mercian, since its first appearance was in the family of King Merowald.

Mild was a Saxon word meaning "mild", and by the addition of "lyth", another Saxon term signifying "command", the feminine name Mildlyth was formed. Because it was translated to mean "mild speech," it was much used as a name for gentle damsels with religious inclinations.

King Merowald had three daughters whom he named Mildgyth, Mildburgh, and Mildlyth—thus employing all versions of the name then in use. All three became nuns of a holy order. The two latter were later abbesses, one in Shropshire, the other in the Isle of Thanet. They were finally canonized in recognition of their saintly lives, as Mildburgh and Mildreda.

Thus Mildred, Mildrid, or Mildreda (as you prefer) came into existence and straightway won great popularity in Shropshire and, later, throughout all England. Germany adopted Mildred, but it has never had definite vogue there in spite of its supposed Teutonic origin. The consonants were too harsh for France and Spain, though the latter occasionally employs Mildreda, accenting only the vowels in the soft Latin manner.

Mildred was the name given to the famous daughter of Burleigh and through her, its place among English maids was forever assured. Recently it was revived to even greater vogue in England and America, and etymologists claim that the record of babies christened by that name in late years, would be astounding and unbelievable.

The emerald is Mildred's talismanic gem. It is said to promise her a keen intellect, charm, and success in affairs of the heart. The Hawthorne, signifying hope, is her flower. Wednesday is her lucky day and three her lucky number.

WHY?
DOES SALT MAKE US THIRSTY

ANYONE who has suffered from nose-bleed or who has fisted human blood knows that it contains a considerable proportion of salt—approximately the same amount as is present in sea water. This is only natural, because salt is one of the essentials of the body and is carried through it by means of the veins and arteries which feed the different parts of this intricate mechanism.

When an unusual amount of salt is taken into the stomach, it reacts in two ways. In the first place, the blood, being already supplied with all the salt that it cares to handle, declines to take on any more and the saline solution remains in the stomach—"uncalled for" as it were. Then, too, salt rapidly absorbs water and its presence in the stomach causes that organ to send out a hurry call for some means of flushing out the excess which cannot be utilized by the body. The sensation of being "thirsty" is, therefore, merely the manifestation that the stomach needs something with which to dilute the unusual amount of salt—just as when we feel thirsty from other causes it is a sign that the body needs some kind of a liquid to assist it in its usual functions.

FIGHT PROFITEER THROUGH LICENSE

SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE SESSION TO PROVIDE BILL FOR STATE CONTROL.

STATE MAY SELL TO DEALERS

Governor Groesbeck Believes Fuel for Domestic Use Can Be Secured By State at a Saving.

Lansing—The state of Michigan will have a weapon with which it will be able to eliminate profiteering in coal and, if necessary, drive dishonest coal dealers out of business, if the fuel bill proposed by Governor Alex. J. Groesbeck is enacted into a law at the special session of the legislature which convened Oct. 10.

It became known following a conference between Governor Groesbeck, State Fuel Administrator William W. Potter, Attorney General Merlyn Wiley and other state officials and Detroit civic heads in the governor's offices in that city, that the bill provides for a state license for coal dealers and fixes heavy penalties for failure to obtain the license.

This will mean, the conferees said, that every coal dealer in the state must take out a state license before he can transact business, and that the license can be revoked at any time by the state fuel administrator upon showing that a dealer has been guilty of dishonesty or has attempted to charge an excessive price.

The bill as drawn provides for either fine or prison sentence, or both, for violations of the law. One of the state officials sitting in the conference said:

"No honest coal dealer has anything to fear in this bill. It is an entirely fair measure, and will be found to be an aid to the coal man who is trying to transact business honestly and to be fair with his customers." Another development of the conference was an intimation that the state intends to buy coal, if possible, for the use of dealers to resell to domestic consumers, and that state officials believe they can obtain fuel at a much lower price than is being offered to dealers now.

State Fuel Administrator Potter probably will continue to serve as administrator, it was said, although Mr. Potter some time ago expressed a wish to be relieved of the duties of the office.

The third corner of the "eternal triangle" is never "square."

Hours passed, while the sweat poured from his forehead and his muscles seemed to tear themselves loose from their fastenings with the exertion that was placed upon them. Foot after foot, the muck was torn away, as Fairchild, with pick and shovel, forced a tunnel through the great mass of rocky debris which choked the drift. Onward—onward—at last to make a small opening in the barricade, and to lean close to it that he might shout again. But still there was no answer.

Feverish now, Fairchild worked with all the reserve strength that was in him. Behind that broken mass, Fairchild felt sure, was his partner, torn, bleeding through the effects of some accident, he did not know what, past answering his calls, perhaps dead. Greater became the hole in the cave-in; soon it was large enough to admit his body. Seizing his carbide lamp, Fairchild made for the opening and crawled through, hurrying onward toward the chamber where the stope began, calling Harry's name at every step. In vain. The place was empty, except for the pile of stone and refuse which had been torn away by dynamite explosions in the hanging wall, where Harry evidently had shot away the remaining refuse in a last effort to see what lay in that direction—stones and muck which told nothing. On the other side—

Fairchild stared blankly. The hole that he had made into the foot wall had been filled with dynamite and tamped, as though ready for shooting. But the charge had not been exploded. Instead—on the ground lay the remainder of the tamping paper and a short foot and a half of fuse, with its fulminate of mercury cap attached, where it had been pulled from its berth by some great force and hastily stamped out. And Harry—Harry was gone!

CHAPTER XVI

It was as though shades of the past had come to life again, to repeat in the Twentieth century a happening of the Nineteenth. There was only one difference—no form of a dead man now lay against the foot wall, to rest there more than a score of years until it should come to light, a pile of bones in time-shredded clothing. And as he thought of it, Fairchild remembered that the earthly remains of "Sisak" Larsen had lain within almost a few feet of the spot where he had drilled the prospect hole into the foot wall, there to discover the ore that promised bonanza.

But this time there was nothing and no clue to the mystery of Harry's disappearance. Fairchild suddenly strengthened with an idea. Perhaps, after all, he had been on the other side of the cave-in and had hurried out of the mine. But in that event, would he not have waited for his return, to tell him of the accident? However, it was a chance, and Fairchild took it. Once more he crawled through the hole that he had made in the cave-in and sought the outward world. Then he hurried down Kentucky gulch and to the Sampler. But Harry had not been there. He went through town, asking questions, striving his best to shield his anxiety, cloaking his queries under the cover of cursory remarks. Harry had not been seen. At last, with the coming of night, he turned toward the boarding house, and on his arrival, Mother Howard, sighting his white face, hurried to him. "Have you seen Harry?" he asked. "No—he hasn't been here."

It was the last chance. Clutching

A GOOD FRIEND

A good friend stands by you when in need. East Jordan people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. H. H. Cummings, prop. feed and grain business of Main St., endorsed Doan's many years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony? "My kidneys were not acting right and I had a dull ache in the small of my back just over my kidneys," says Mr. Cummings. "I used a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and they acted promptly in correcting the action of my kidneys and ridding me of the backache and pains. I know Doan's have been beneficial to me." (Statement given Aug. 3, 1909.)

On April 23, 1920, Mr. Cummings added: "I haven't had any further need of a kidney medicine since Doan's rid me of the trouble years ago. I gladly confirm the statement I made before."

fear at his heart, he told Mother Howard of the happenings at the mine, quickly, as plainly as possible. Then once more he went forth, to retrace his steps to the Blue Poppy, to buck the wind and the fine snow and the high, piled drifts, and to go below. But the surroundings were the same; still the cave-in, with its small hole where he had torn through it, still the ragged hanging wall where Harry had fired the last shots of dynamite in his investigations, still the trampled bit of fuse with its cap attached. Nothing more.

Back into the black night with the winds whistling through the pines. Back to wandering about through the hills, hurrying forward at the sight of every faint, dark object against the snow, in the hope that Harry, crippled by the cave-in, might have some way gotten out of the shaft. But they were only boulders or logs or stumps of trees. At midnight, Fairchild turned once more toward town and to the boarding house. But Harry had not appeared. There was only one thing left to do.

This time, when Fairchild left Mother Howard's, his steps did not lead him toward Kentucky gulch. Instead he kept straight on up the street, past the little line of store buildings and to the courthouse, where he sought out the sole remaining light in the bleak, black building—Sheriff Bardwell's office. That personage was nodding in his chair, but removed his feet from the desk and turned drowsily as Fairchild entered.

"Well?" he questioned, "what's up?"

"My partner has disappeared. I want to report to you—and see if I can get some help."

"Disappeared? Who?"

"Harry Harkins. He's a big Cornishman, with a large mustache, very red face, about thirty years old, I should judge."

"Wait a minute," Bardwell's eyes narrowed. "Ain't he the fellow I arrested in the Blue Poppy mine the night of the Old Times dance?"

"Yes."

"And you say he's disappeared? When does his trial come up?"

"A week from tomorrow."

"And he's disappeared?" A slow smile came over the other man's lips. "I don't think it will help much to start any relief expedition for him. The thing to do is to get a picture and a general description and send it around to the police in the various parts of the country! That'll be the best way to find him!"

Fairchild's teeth gritted, but he could not escape the force of the argument, from the sheriff's standpoint. For a moment there was silence, then the miner came closer to the desk.

"Sheriff," said he as calmly as possible, "you have a perfect right to give that sort of view. That's your business—to suspect people. However, some sort of an accident happened at the mine this afternoon—a cave-in or an explosion that tore out the roof of the tunnel—and I am sure that my partner is wandering among the hills. Will you help me to find him?"

The sheriff wheeled about in his chair and studied a moment. Then he rose.

"Guess I will," he announced. "It can't do any harm to look for him, anyway."

Half an hour later, aided by two deputies who had been summoned from their homes, Fairchild and the sheriff left for the hills to begin the search for the missing Harry. Late the next afternoon, they returned to town, tired, their horses almost crawling in their dragging pace after sixteen hours of travel through the drifts of the hills and gullies. Harry had not been found, and so Fairchild reported when, with drooping shoulders, he returned to the boarding house and to the waiting Mother Howard. And both knew that this time Harry's disappearance was no joke, as it had been before. They realized that back of it all was some sinister reason, some mystery which they could not solve—for the present, at least. That night, Fairchild faced the future and made his resolve.

There was only a week now until Harry's case should come to trial. Only a week until the failure of the defendant to appear should throw the deeds of the Blue Poppy mine into the hands of the court, to be sold for the amount of the bail. And in spite of the fact that Fairchild now felt his mine to be a bonanza, unless some sort of a miracle could happen before that time, the mine was the same as lost. True, it would go to the highest bidder at a public sale and any money brought in above the amount of bail would be returned to him. But who would be that bidder? Who would get the mine—perhaps for twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars, when it now was worth millions? Certainly not he. Unless something should happen to intervene, unless Harry should return, or in some way Fairchild could raise the necessary five thousand dollars to furnish a cash bond and again recover the deeds of the Blue Poppy, he was no better off than before the strike was made. Long he thought, finally to come to his conclusion, and then, with the air of a gambler who has placed his last bet to win or lose, he went to bed.

But morning found him awake long before the rest of the house was stirring. The first workers on the street that morning found Fairchild offering them six dollars a day. And by eight o'clock, ten of them were at work in the drift of the Blue Poppy mine, working against time that they might repair the damage which had been caused by the cave-in.

That day and the next and the next after that, they labored. Then Fairchild glanced at the progress that was being made and sought out the pseudo-foreman.

"Will it be finished by night?" he asked.

"Easily." "Very well. I may need these men to work on a day and night shift—I'm not sure. I'll be back in an hour."

Away he went and up the shaft, to travel as swiftly as possible through the drift-piled road down Kentucky gulch and to the Sampler. There he sought out old Undertaker Chastine, and with him went to the proprietor. "My name is Fairchild, and I'm in trouble," he said candidly. "I've brought Mr. Chastine with me because he assayed some of my ore a few days ago and believes he knows what it is worth. I'm working against time to get five thousand dollars. If I can produce ore that runs two hundred dollars to the ton, and if I'll sell it to you for one hundred seventy-five dollars a ton until I can get the money I need, provided I can get the permission of the court—will you put it through for me?"

The Sampler owner smiled. "If you'll let me see where you're getting the ore." Then he figured a moment. "That'd be thirty or forty ton," came at last. "We could handle that as fast as you could bring it in here."

But a new thought had struck Fairchild—a new necessity for money. "I'll give it to you for one hundred and fifty dollars a ton, providing you do the hauling and lend me enough after the first day or so to pay my men."

"But why all the excitement—and the rush?"

"My partner's Harry Harkins. He's due for trial Friday, and he's disappeared. The mine is up as security. You can see what will happen unless I can substitute a cash bond for the amount due before that time. Isn't that sufficient?"

"It ought to be! But as I said, I want to see where the ore comes from."

"You'll see in the morning—if I've got it," answered Fairchild with a new hope thrilling in his voice. "All that I have so far is an assay of some drill scrapings. I don't know how thick the vein is or whether it's going to pinch out in ten minutes after we strike it. But I'll know mighty soon."

Every cent that Robert Fairchild possessed in the world was in his pockets—two hundred dollars. After he had paid his men for their three days of labor, there would be exactly twenty dollars left. But Fairchild did not hesitate. To Farrell's office he went and with him to an interview, in chambers, with the judge. Then, the necessary permission having been granted, he hurried back to the mine and into the drift, there to find the last of the muck being scraped away from beneath the site of the cave-in. Fairchild paid off. Then he turned to the foreman.

"How many of these men are game to take a chance?"

"Pretty near all of 'em—if there's any kind of a gamble to it."

"There's a lot of gamble, I've got just twenty dollars in my pocket—enough to pay each man one dollar apiece for a night's work if my hunch doesn't pan out. If it does pan, the wages are twenty dollars a day for three days, with everybody, including myself, working like h—ll! Who's game?"

The answer came in unison. Fairchild led the way to the chamber, seized a hammer and took his place.

"There's two-hundred-dollar ore back of this foot wall if we can break in and start a new stope," he announced. "It takes a six-foot hole to reach it, and we can have the whole story by morning. Let's go!"

Along the great length of the foot wall, extending all the distance of the big chamber, the men began their work, five men to the drills and as many to the sledges, as they started their double-jacking. Midnight came, the first of the six-foot drills sank to its ultimate depth. Then the second and third and fourth; finally the fifth. They moved on. Hours more of work and the operation had been repeated. The workmen hurried for the powder house, far down the drift, by the shaft, lugging back in their pockets the yellow, candle-like sticks of dynamite, with their waxy wrappers and their gelatinous contents, together with fuses and caps. Crimping nippers—the inevitable accompaniment of a miner—came forth from the pockets of the men. Careful tamping, then the men took their places at the fuses.

"Give the word!" one of them announced crisply as he turned to Fairchild. "Each of us'll light one of these things, and then I say we'll run! Because this is going to be some explosion!"

Fairchild smiled the smile of a man whose heart is thumping at its maximum speed. Before him in the long line of the foot wall were ten holes, "upholes," "downs" and "swimmers," attacking the hidden ore in every direction. Ten holes drilled six feet into the rock and tamped with double charges of dynamite. He straightened.

"All right, men! Ready?" "Ready!" "Touch 'em off!"

The carbide lamps were held close to the fuses for a second. Soon they were all going, spitting like so many venomous, angry serpents—but neither Fairchild nor the miners had stopped to watch. They were running as hard as possible for the shaft and for the protection that distance might give. A wait that seemed ages. Then:

"One!" "And two—and three!" "There goes four and five—they went together!"

"Six—seven—eight—nine—" Again a wait, while they looked at one another with vacuous eyes. A long interval until the tenth.

"Two went together then! I thought we'd counted nine?" The foreman stared, and Fairchild studied. Then his face lighted.

"Eleven's right. One of them must have set off the charge that Harry left in there. All the better—it gives us just that much more of a chance."

Back they went along the drift tunnel now, coughing slightly as the sharp smoke of the dynamite out their lungs—a long journey that seemed as many miles instead of feet. Then with a shout Fairchild sprang forward, and went to his hands and knees.

It was there before him—all about him—the black, heavy masses of lead-silver ore, a great, heaping, five-ton pile of it where it had been thrown out by the tremendous force of the explosion. It seemed that the whole great floor of the cavern was covered with it, and the workmen shouted with Fairchild as they seized bits of the precious black stuff and held it to the light for closer examination.

"Look!" The voice of one of them was high and excited. "You can see the fine streaks of silver sticking out! It's high-grade and plenty of it!"

But Fairchild paid little attention. He was playing in the stuff, throwing it in the air and letting it fall to the floor of the cavern again, like a boy with a new sack of marbles, or a child with its building blocks. Five tons and the night was not yet over! Five tons, and the vein had not yet shown its other side!

Back to work they went now. Again through the hours the drills bit into the rock walls, while the ore car clattered along the tram line and white the creaking of the block and tackle at the shaft seemed endless. In three days, approximately forty tons of ore must come out of that mine—and work must not cease.

Morning, and in spite of the sleep-laden eyes, the heavy aching in his head, the tired drooping of the shoulders, Fairchild trotted to the boarding house to notify Mother Howard and ask for news of Harry. There had been none. Then he went on, to wait by the door of the Sampler until Bittson, the owner, should appear, and drag him away up the hill, even before he could open up for the morning.

"There it is!" he exclaimed, as he led him to the entrance of the chamber. "There it is; take all you want of it and assay it!"

Bittson went forward into the cross-cut, where the men were drilling even at new holes, and examined the vein. Already it was three feet thick, and there was still ore ahead. One of the miners looked up.

"Just finishing up on the cross-cut," he announced, as he nodded toward his drill. "I've just bitten into the foot wall on the other side. Looks to me like the vein's about five feet thick—as near as I can measure it."

"And—" Bittson picked up a few samples, examined them by the light of the carbides and tossed them away—"you can see the silver sticking out. I caught sight of a couple of pencil threads of it in one or two of those samples. All right, Boy!" he turned to Fairchild. "What was that bargain we made?"

"It was based on two hundred dollars-a-ton ore. This may run above—or below. But whatever it is, I'll sell all you can handle for the next three days at fifty dollars a ton under the assay price."

"You've said the word. The trucks will be here in an hour if we have to shovel a path all the way up Kentucky gulch."

He hurried away then, while Fairchild and the men followed him into town and to their breakfast. Then, recruiting a new gang on the promise of payment at the end of their three-day shift, Fairchild went back to the mine. But the word had spread, and others were there before him.

Already fifteen or twenty miners were assembled about the opening of the Blue Poppy tunnel, awaiting permission to enter, the usual rush upon a lucky mine to view its riches. Behind him, Fairchild could see others coming from Ohndi to take a look at the new strike, and his heart bounded with happiness tinged with sorrow.

Harry was not there, to enjoy it all; Harry was gone, and in spite of his every effort, Fairchild had failed to find him.

Some one brushed against him, and there came a slight tug at his coat. Fairchild looked downward to see passing the form of Anita Richmond. A moment later she looked toward him, but in her eyes there was no light of recognition, nothing to indicate that she had just given him a signal of greeting and congratulation. And yet Fairchild felt that she had. Then, absently, he put his hand into his pocket.

Something there caused his heart to halt momentarily—a piece of paper. He crumpled it in his hand, he rubbed his fingers over it wonderingly; it had not been in his pocket before she had passed him. Hurriedly he walked to the far side of the chamber and there, pretending to examine a bit of ore, brought the missive from its place of seclusion, to unfold it with trembling fingers, then to stare at the words which showed before him:

"Squint Rodaine is terribly worried about something. Has been on an awful rampage all morning. Something critical is brewing, but I don't know what. Suggest you keep watch on him. Please destroy this."

That was all. There was no signature. But Robert Fairchild had seen the writing of Anita Richmond once before!

So she was his friend! So all these days of waiting had not been in vain; all the cutting hopelessness of seeing her, only to have her turn away her head and fail to recognize him, had been for their purpose after all. And yet Fairchild remembered that she was engaged to Maurice Rodaine, and that the time of the wedding must be fast approaching. Perhaps there had been a quarrel, perhaps—Then he smiled.

Anita Richmond was his friend; she had been forced into the promise of marriage to Maurice Rodaine, but she had not been forced to a relinquishment of her desire to reward him somehow, some way, for the attention that he had shown her and the liking that she knew existed in his heart.

Hastily Fairchild folded the paper and stuffed it into an inside pocket. Then, seeking out one of the workmen, he appointed him foreman of the gang, to take charge in his absence. Following which, he made his way out of the mine and into town, there to hire men of Mother Howard's suggestion and send them to the Blue Poppy, to take their stations every few feet along the tunnel, to appear mere spectators, but in reality to be guards who were constantly on the watch for anything untoward that might occur.

Fairchild was taking no chances now. An hour more found him at the Sampler, watching the ore as it ran through the great crusher hoppers, to come forth finely crumbled powder and be sampled, ton by ton, for the assays by old Undertaker Chastine and three other men of his type, without which no sampler pays for ore. Bittson approached, grinning.

"You guessed just about right," he announced. "That stuff's running around two hundred dollars a ton. Need any money now?"

"All you can let me have!"

"Four or five hundred? We've gotten in eight tons of that stuff already; don't guess I'd be taking any risk on that," he chuckled. Fairchild reached for the currency eagerly. "All but a hundred dollars of it would go to Mother Howard—for that debt must be paid off first. And, that accomplished, denying himself the invitation of rest that his bed held forth for him, he started out into town, apparently to loiter about the streets and receive the congratulations of the townspeople, but in reality to watch for one person and in one alone—Squint Rodaine!

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wych's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen it with perfume brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if kidneys feel like lead or bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

PEACE PARLEY STRIKES SNAG

TURKEY DEMANDS PERMISSION TO OCCUPY EASTERN THRACE NOW.

READY TO FIGHT FOR PROVINCE

France Backs Angora Government

White Italian and British Delegates Oppose Pasha's Demands.

London—A new crisis arose in the Near Eastern situation, which had seemed on a fair way to settlement.

The armistice conference of Allied, Greek and Turkish military leaders at Mudant was adjourned suddenly after a dramatic passage in which Ismet Pasha, representing the Angora government, demanded that the Turks be allowed to occupy Eastern Thrace as a precedent to any peace conference.

Ismet Pasha told the Allied generals that if the Turks could not have Thrace peacefully, "we have the means to enforce our determination."

Earlier in the day the Greek delegates had declared in no less certain terms their readiness to fight, if necessary, to retain the province.

That the Turkish demand had been duly weighed and calculated is evidenced by the almost simultaneous receipt of an Angora dispatch quoting Mustafa Kemal Pasha as declaring before the National Assembly:

"The evacuation and surrender of Thrace must occur immediately, especially as since the Greek revolution the Moslem subjects are in great danger."

Ismet Pasha's bombshell was followed by another when the French delegates announced they were instructed to support the Turkish demand. This created a definite split, with the Turks and French opposed to the British and Italians, the latter holding that evacuation of Thrace by the Greeks and reoccupation by the Turks should follow and not precede the peace conference.

The Allied generals thereupon adjourned the meeting and left for Constantinople to consult with the high commissioners and the British and Italians to ask definite instructions from their home governments, with the understanding that a further meeting would follow their receipt.

There is a lot of hope for the man who has courage to refuse unasked advice.

The man who has the reputation for "playing the game" never will lack for fellow-players.

A Newspaper's TWO Sources of Revenue

Subscriptions and Advertising Are the Only Sources of Revenue a Newspaper Has and Often the Subscriptions Do Not Pay for the Cost of White Paper

Advertising today, especially in newspapers, is the greatest business getter there is. This is acknowledged by men who know. People read advertisements in newspapers. They have been educated to do so. Every merchant in our town ought to advertise. You remember the story about John Wanamaker? The first day he was in business his receipts were $24.64. He kept the 64 cents and spent the $24 the next day in advertising. We all can't duplicate this feat, but according to the best statistics available three per cent of the gross sales should be put aside for advertising.

Possibly you will say, "I don't need to advertise. I've been in this town thirty years and everybody knows me."

Probably they do, but did you ever stop to think of the sales you lose because your fellow competitor advertises? He may advertise the same goods you have in your stock, but the people don't know you have them. The other fellow gets the sale because he advertises. And, then, how much more business you would do if you did advertise?

We know of one merchant who advertised a lot of goods at 19 cents a yard. They cost him 27 cents. He took a clean loss, but while the sale was going on he could buy new goods at 12 cents. He put them in with the other goods and the result was that he cleaned his shelves of the old goods and he broke even on the deal. Advertising and good buying liquidated his stock without a loss.

We can't all be John Wanamakers, but we all can advertise in proportion to our business. Results will be sure if you advertise honestly and give service. A newspaper can bring people to your store, but it can't make people buy your goods. Your clerks must do that, and it depends on the service you give as to how successful your business will be.

What is done in the big cities can be done right here in this town if you will show the pep, give the service and advertise. Make business good. You can do it through this newspaper.

MENTHOLATUM

is antiseptic and healing.

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism.

It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappears and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

Rub Rheumatic Pain From Aching Joints

BREAK CHEST COLDS WITH RED PEPPER

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Pepper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known. Always say "Rowles."

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

THE FRIENDLY PATH

By WALTER I. ROBINSON

"WE ARE not especially concerned about how you feel when you enter our store, but we are extremely anxious to know how you feel when you leave."

This sign greets the eyes of customers entering one of the big, successful stores in an eastern city. It is an indication of the new attitude many engaged in commercial business are assuming.

There was a period following the armistice when in virtually all big cities many of those engaged in selling found business so brisk that they did not deem it necessary to keep the patrons smiling while they separated them from their money. Too many of the customers, in fact, did find enjoyment in spending, and they may be partially blamed for the indifference of merchants to please. But, with the drop in business and profits, it is encouraging to find a rebirth of the old-fashioned regard for courteous and square dealing. Such sentiment as that expressed in the quotation given above is evidence that, willingly or unwillingly, those engaged in business desire to re-establish old-time friendly relations with those who trade with them.

With the changed attitude there is certain to come a higher regard for principle, upon which in large measure the happiness of business people is dependent. There should, therefore, be no wide regrets among those who have to reduce prices to such an extent that profits decreased reasonably below the peak level. Not alone because of the greater happiness which results from honest principles in business, but also due to the satisfaction of greater volume in business, assured through the law of diminishing returns, should business people be thankful that they and their customers are coming to meet again on more friendly terms.

Let everyone remember these words of Skell!

"Our principle is the springs of our action; our actions, the springs of our happiness or misery. Too much care, therefore, cannot be taken in forming our principles."

ONCE IS ENOUGH

PROMISING.

I introduced a grass widow to a grass widower today.

Will anything come of it?

Can't tell. They exchanged references.

Wash the peas before shelling, then shell the peas and put the pods on to cook for fifteen minutes or longer in enough cold water to just keep from scorching. Use this water, hot, to put the freshly shelled peas on to cook, add two green onions, a sprig of parsley, and a head of lettuce well washed and dry; there should be added two tablespoonsfuls of butter and cover the kettle closely. Cook slowly one hour. This is a delicious dish and one which will be often served after once testing.

By Will M. Maupin

AFTERWHILE

WE ARE going to "cut the mustard." Afterwhile, Likewise be "all to the custard." Afterwhile. But today we're in poor fettle. So we'll let our feelings settle; But we're going to show our mettle Afterwhile.

We will wipe out all injustice Afterwhile. We'll do lots of big things—trust us— Afterwhile. But today is full of pleasure And its golden hours we'll treasure; But we'll stand on some great measure Afterwhile.

It's the greatest country ever— Afterwhile. And to reach it's our endeavor, Afterwhile. But today we'll spend in dreaming, Wasting hours of golden gleaming; And await a glad dawn's beaming Afterwhile.

Mother's Cook Book

This world's need is men and women great enough to be small enough to be used.

DURING the mid-summer sultry days a cool drink, ice, or frozen cream is always acceptable.

Date Sandwich Cookies.
Take one package of dates, stone and chop; mix with one cupful of orange marmalade, one cupful of chopped nuts. Prepare a white cookie mixture, roll out very thin, place a spoonful of the mixture in the center and cover with another cookie; sprinkle with sugar and bake in a moderate oven. These cookies may be cut in fancy shapes, baked and then be put together with the filling, if one so desires.

Lemon Cake.
Take three-fourths of a cupful of butter, cream it, adding two cupfuls of sugar gradually. Beat the whites of seven eggs and add to the creamed butter and sugar a spoonful at a time. Beat well, add three cupfuls of sifted flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, the grated peel of one lemon alternately with one cupful of milk. Fold in the whites at the last. Bake in three layer pans.

Baked Apples.
Core and peel good flavored apples. Place on a round of bread that has been buttered. Fill the cavity of the apple with sugar and butter creamed together, adding a bit of ginger, place apple or other fruit if desired. Bake in a slow oven, basting the apples often with melted butter and sugar and with the juice from the apple. Serve hot on the rounds of bread which by this time are well soaked with the luscious syrup.

Peas and penches may be prepared in this same manner.

Green Peas Francaise.
Wash the peas before shelling, then shell the peas and put the pods on to cook for fifteen minutes or longer in enough cold water to just keep from scorching. Use this water, hot, to put the freshly shelled peas on to cook, add two green onions, a sprig of parsley, and a head of lettuce well washed and dry; there should be added two tablespoonsfuls of butter and cover the kettle closely. Cook slowly one hour. This is a delicious dish and one which will be often served after once testing.
