Normal Bill Passed Senate

Senator Wm. Pearsons' Bill Gets Strong Support

Sen. Bill Pearsons' bill providing for the establishment of a Normal School at East Jordan, passed the senate Monday, April 16th with but a single vote, that of Sen. James Henry, in opposition. Sen. Pearsons grabbed this normal school out of the thin air and has put it through the upper body. He will now begin campaigning on the trail of the house members in the effort to get the bill through there, and Bill is some sticker who never quits.

MEGGISON BILLS MUCH TO EAST JORDAN

By a vote of 72 to 22, the Meggison bill, providing for the distribution of the primary school fund on the basis of the Escanaba plan was passed by the house Monday. The bill presents a fine theory of equal distribution and aid to the poor districts of the northern part of the state, but it likewise robs Wayne County of nearly $1,000,000 and takes from the city of Grand Rapids approximately $100,000.

The bill was passed after another big wind storm in which all the regulars and some others talked their heads off about the magnanimous sentiments of the richer districts and the awful needs of the poor ones. But strange as it may seem it was from many of the districts which lose by the passage of the bill that much of the support for the bill came.

Ate Dykstra of Grand Rapids led the opposition to the bill and his only support came from John Holland of Gogebic county. On the other hand Rep. Meggison of Antrim County, introducer of the bill and perhaps the clearest speaker in the house as well as one of the most influential members, led the battle for his bill. He was supported by Rep. Miles of Mecosta, Espie of Clinton, Butler of Lapeer, Roxborough of Osceola, Lennan of Genesee and Manwaring of Wastonia.

At the present time the City of East Jordan receives about $8,000.00 from the Primary Fund, but with the passage of the Meggison bill, we would receive about $22,000.00 or enough to pay three-fourths of the present teachers salaries, which would reduce school taxes about 33 per cent for the citizens of East Jordan.

WATER TAX NOTICE

Water taxes for the City of East Jordan will be due May 1st and are payable until June 1st, 1923.
G. E. BOSWELL,
City Treasurer.

U. S. Civil Service Examination for Postmaster.

The United States Civil Service Commission, at the request of the Postmaster General, announces a competitive examination for Postmaster in this city.

This examination is held under the President's Order of May 10th, 1921, and not under the civil service act and rules. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated upon their education and training, business experience and fitness.

Apply to the secretary of the board of civil service examiners at the Postoffice in this city or to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., for application Form 2241, and Form 2213 containing definite information in regard to the examination.

Applications must be properly executed on Form 2241, and filed with the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., prior to the hour of closing business on May 15, 1923.

UNITED STATES CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

Definite Command.

Rossie and Jack had quite a serious snow fight. Jack coming out victorious and leaving Rossie in a snuff on the sidewalk, bedraggled and sniffling. Rossie was furious, and as she got up and started for the house she called after Jack, "Don't you dare to come back in my yard until never."

Youthful Chivalry.

A young grade teacher asked her pupils what a coward was. One little boy raised his hand and said: "A coward is a boy who fights girls."

GRAND JURY PROBE ORDERED

Judge Dingeman Heads Quiz—Berrien County Asks for Rigid Inquiry.

Presiding Judge Harry J. Dingeman, of the circuit courts of Michigan, personally will conduct the one-man grand jury investigation ordered by the state into charges of alleged immorality on the part of "King" Benjamin Franklin Purnell, founder and high priest of the Israelite House of David, Benton Harbor, Mich.

The grand jury will be held at St. Joseph, Berrien county seat and sister town of Benton Harbor, beginning Monday, April 23.

Attorney General Dougherty told Judge Dingeman that upon a grand jury investigation into the affairs of the House of David, and requests that Judge Dingeman, in his capacity as presiding judge of Michigan's circuit courts, assign a judge to conduct the inquiry.

If it is deemed necessary, the grand jury will make a thorough inspection of the House of David premises at Benton Harbor. Special attention will be given to Shiloh, headquarters of the cult and official abode of "King" Benjamin and "Queen" Mary, his wife.

Young girls found living under the same roof with the self-styled "seventh angel" will be summoned before the grand jury, should such a step be deemed essential to a thorough going inquiry. Judge Dingeman hinted, and every effort will be made to locate the allegedly missing cult chief himself.

Since the trial, and following statewide indignation roused by the girls' testimony, Sheriff George C. Bridgman, of Berrien county, was reported to have failed to find Purnell at the colony.

The cult leader since that time has variously been reported as dead, as a fugitive in Australia, or as hiding at the colony for fear of being lynched by angry mobs, should he emerge into the streets of Benton Harbor.

Governor Halts Boy's Execution.
Atlanta—Governor Hardwick, after three hours' deliberation, granted a reprieve of two weeks for the two Baker boys, sentenced to die on Friday, April 13, for slaying Deputy Sheriff Joseph Morton in 1922.

Twenty-two Earthquakes in 2 Days.
Ponta Del Gada—Twenty-two earthquake shocks have been felt in the Azores in the last two days. The tremors were the strongest in the western part of St. Michael's Island, on which Ponta Del Gada is situated.

More Alfalfa Need of Farms

Leguminous Crop Proves Worth in State-Increased Acreage

Although Charlevoix County has had a great increase in her acreage of alfalfa during the past three years, coming from only 1,590 acres in 1919, to 3,915 in 1922 (according to figures given out by Verne H. Church, of Lansing, Federal crops statistician for Michigan), there is room for a still further heavy increase, in the interests of more efficient farming in the county.

Realization of the value of this leguminous crop has been general over the entire state, the state increase in acreage planted to alfalfa having been since 1919. The state cut 348,000 acres in 1922, as against 74,000 in 1910.

The effectiveness of alfalfa in the production of milk and meat, and in soil improvement, should prove a great advantage to those farming sections which have taken up alfalfa on an increased scale. Present conditions warrant still further substantial increases in the area planted to alfalfa in Charlevoix County.

During the past twenty years alfalfa has commanded more interest in Michigan than any other forage crop. At the present time those who have had experience with growing it are fairly well divided into two classes. One is the enthusiastic group made up of those who have worked out successful methods of handling this crop, and who have grown alfalfa under adapted conditions. These are inclined to speak in glowing terms of the high yield of hay secured, its superiority for feeding purposes and the value of alfalfa in improving the land.

The other, the doubtful or pessimistic group, is composed of those who have not made a success with alfalfa or who have planted it under conditions not suited to its growth. They are often equally emphatic in stating that alfalfa cannot be considered as a dependable crop for Michigan.

Through the experience of those who have succeeded and those who have failed in alfalfa growing, the production of alfalfa has at the present time become quite well stabilized. Its acreage is increasing steadily each year. The success of this crop rightly handled and the value of alfalfa hay as feed, has been demonstrated to the extent that it is apparent that a much greater acreage of alfalfa is warranted in Michigan.

Successful crops may be found growing on soils ranging in texture from light sands, light enough to blow, to heavy clays which work with difficulty. Good drainage which is characteristic of all soils where thrifty alfalfa is found.

Alfalfa fields may be found well distributed throughout the southern peninsula counties. This crop is of greatest value in the older farming sections and has no great place at present in newly cleared sections of northern Michigan where June grass comes in with surprising vigor and clover is easily secured.

Experience has shown that ordinary methods of culture which may give good results with out better known forage crops, cannot be depended upon to give successful results with alfalfa but if the requirements and culture of this crop are thoroughly understood, dependable and profitable returns may be secured under a wide variety of soil and climatic conditions.

While a comparatively few farmers located on favorable soils may secure a good stand with little effort, it is necessary for the majority who wish to grow alfalfa to understand the requirements of this crop and make proper preparations before seeding.

Increase in the production of alfalfa will be largely in proportion to the spread of accurate information regarding the proper handling of this crop. An increased alfalfa acreage will insure the production and increase the yield of leguminous hay so necessary in feeding economically.

Information of this kind will be brought out in the Dairy and Alfalfa Campaign which will start April 30.

Teachers' Examination April 26-27-28

Applicants for Teachers' Certificates will be examined at the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, on April 26-27-28. Examinations will commence at 8:00 a. m., standard time.

P. T. A. ENJOY FINE SOCIAL TIME WED.

Eighty social patrons enjoyed a one-act play and other stunts in the High School Auditorium, Wednesday evening.

The first social gathering of the P. T. A. in the High School Auditorium Wednesday evening, was an enjoyable affair. The committees had prepared for a larger number of people who, had they known about the clever arrangement of the whole evening, would have been there.

The Get Together Committee, headed by Mrs. Gidley and the Eats Committee, by Mrs. Boswell, had so effectively worked that they made it impossible for anyone not to have a good time. These committees are to be congratulated on the informal and yet original way they carried out their program starting out by having each person fill out a card with ten numbers just as you would for a dancing party but instead of dancing they were required to talk two minutes with someone they did not know. This got nearly acquainted and was a very fine idea.

The next stunt on the program was a test of the ability to smell, taste, feel and hear. Twelve substances in small bottles were passed before each one. Then you wrote down what you smelled. The same for the other three senses, for instance, for the feeling sense, you had to reach down into a bag and afterwards name the things you felt, etc.

Then a one-act farce play was given, showing how the parents have to hustle in the morning to get their Mary and Johnny off to school in order to carry out this tiresome idea of co-operation with the school. Mr. Sloan was Johnny and Mrs. Snellenberger was Mary and Mrs. Kitzman was the cooperative mother. They all did their part nobly. After this, the meeting adjourned again to the Junior High School room where very good refreshments were served. We would like to congratulate the Domestic Science department and also thank the girls and department for their important part in the program.

After this quite a number remained to hear something on the Radio. Altogether the evening was declared a real success by many of those present. Such a delightful affair they hoped would be repeated sometime in the future.

U. S. RECRUITS CITIZENS' ARMY

War Department Takes Up Summer Job of Running Training Camps.

Washington—All energies of the military establishment for the next four or five months will be concentrated upon the training of the citizens' army, the organized reserve, the officers' training corps and the national guard.

The entire mobile force of the regular army is under orders to lend itself to the instruction of these elements, each of which is designed to reinforce the professional establishment and to contribute in large measure to the national defense.

Recruiting, it is announced, has just begun in the nine army corps areas for the summer's citizens' military training camps and detailed arrangements are being perfected by the War department for summer courses for the organized reserves, the officers' training corps and the national guard.

Practically the whole of the regular army will participate in the purpose will now participate in training service, a feature which will mark the training season.

With the funds available it will be possible for the War department to train approximately 30,000 men in the several army corps areas, recruiting having opened yesterday.

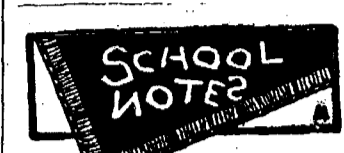

Voluntary candidates only will enter these camps.

At Sea After 200 Mile Sleep.

Boston—A sleep, that began in the hold of a vessel docked in New York and ended 200 miles at sea and life as a stowaway for three months on an unlooked for cruise to Danzig, Riga, and other Baltic ports were chapters in the adventure of Carlo Grasso, a longshoreman of New York, culminated last week. When he awoke the ship was far beyond Sandy Hook. The longshoreman's chief worry was that his wife, believing him dead, might wed again.

Flier Falls on Barn Roof, Dies.

Dayton, O.—Capt. Richard Derby, 28 years old, Dayton, was killed when his airplane went into a nose dive and fell 2,000 feet at McCook Field. The plane struck a barn and was splintered.

EAST JORDAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Athletic Fair

The Athletic Fair this year will be held a week from Friday, on April 27. A complete carnival from door to door, every room offering an opportunity for the Juniors and Athletic Association are planning an unusual program of entertainment.

Several plays will be given in the Auditorium, both grades and high school students taking part. The basketball team will give a treat; Francis Rogers will give a reading; and don't miss the boxing match. Get your fortunes told and try your luck at the fish ponds. Fill up on ice cream, candy and lolly pops, see the marvelous wonders, and keep on guard in the chemistry room. Don't forget the date, April 27th.

Sophomore Party

Last Saturday evening the Sophomores gave a very delightful party with Mrs. Wyatt as chaperon.

Including the guests there were about fifty present.

The party had no sooner begun when the lights went out, but they managed alright with candles.

After dancing they served ice cream and cake.

Art Exhibit Here

One of the surprising events which the Senior Class have planned for the benefit of their fellow classmates and friends, is an art exhibit which will be given at the High School, May 11th. It is the first Art Exhibit that has ever been put on by the high school and should be a matter of personal interest to all the townspeople. By coming to the Senior play, it will be your privilege to see a stunt to advertise the exhibit. Further announcements will appear later.

Assembly

Friday, April 13th, the First and Second, and Fifth and Sixth grades of the West Side School entertained the High School in Assembly. The First and Second Graders gave a Mother Goose Play which was very much enjoyed by all. A few of the characters portrayed were Mistress Mary, quite contrary, Simple Simon, Jack and Jill, Little Bo-Peep, Little Boy Blue and Little Jack Horner. After the play the actors sang a Mother Goose song.

The Fifth and Sixth Graders interpreted the "Enemies of the Soil Brush" and the acting was so well done that we are assured that the play of the Tooth Brush will not easily be forgotten.

Harold Gidley gave a violin selection accompanied by Lois Lanway, and he did so well that he was requested to respond to an encore.

Base Ball

Bay City has challenged East Jordan to Base Ball game to be played here June 8th.

The High School Indoor Baseball team defeated the Agriculture Club team Friday night 30-10. A short dance followed the game; the Radio was also working good that night.

The Chemistry Class is going to make chemical fire extinguishers, and is for a good bonfire to try them on.

The Agriculture Club at its monthly meeting last week decided to have a maple sugar social at the High School in the near future. It also decided to ask either the Harbor Spring or Traverse City Club to hold its annual picnic with the East Jordan Club, and challenge them for a game of baseball.

The Agriculture Club appointed a committee to supervise the filling of the boxes at the front entrances with proper plants.

Monday night the High School Indoor team defeated one of the League teams 16-11 in a fast and exciting game. Streeter and Wright pitched a very good game, considering they had not had any practice.

The Physical Culture Class of the East Jordan High School will "pull off" some foolishness at the annual Junior Fair, Friday April 27. The main thing is to see how the fat lady reduces. Other fat ladies that want to reduce can join the class.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of East Jordan held at the council rooms Monday evening, April 16, 1923.

Meeting was called to order by the Mayor. Present: Mayor Dicken, and Aldermen Aldrich, Kowalske, Proctor, Watson and Farmer. Absent: Alderman Sedgman.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The following resolution was offered by Alderman Kowalske, who moved its adoption; seconded by Alderman Farmer:

Whereas, it is a difficult matter to read the water meters during the winter months, and, whereas, it is the opinion of this council that water taxes can be more economically collected semi-annually than quarterly, therefore,

Resolved, that the city treasurer be notified that on and after the first day of May, 1923, water taxes will be due and collectable semi-annually on the first day of May and the first day of November of each year.

Adopted by the council of the City of East Jordan on the 16th day of April, 1923, by an aye and nay vote as follows: Ayes—Farmer, Watson, Kowalske, Proctor, Aldrich and Dicken.

Assembly

Tuesday, April 17, Prof. E. E. Gallup the inspector of schools from M. A. C. made his annual visit to our High School.

He gave an inspirational talk on "From the Ox Team to the Automobile" using the ox team as the symbol of a past age and the automobile of the present age. He emphasized the relative speeds and the importance of keeping up with the speed of the age.

History Class Plan Pageant

Miss Shipp's Modern History Class are planning an Educational Pageant to be given in assembly sometime in May. Tuesday, April 17, Miss Shipp suggested the plan of which the students heartily approved. The students themselves will write the scenes which represent a step in the progress of education. Each scene has been given to certain members of the class who were elected by the class.

Bullet in Head, Didn't Know It.

Winsted, Conn.—While playing in a tree last fall, Raymond, 10 years old, son of Orson Howath, felt something strike the back of his head. The wound healed rapidly and the boy gave the matter little thought until a few days ago when a hard lump appeared on his head where the wound was. A surgeon's knife revealed a .32 caliber bullet.

New National Anthem Needed.

Cleveland—Deploring the "Star-Spangled Banner" probably is the most difficult song for the human voice to negotiate, R. G. Jones, superintendent of Cleveland Schools, urged that a substitute be selected as the national anthem. Mr. Jones suggested that "some beautiful, dignified expression of emotion found in American life" be chosen.

The Bible.

Men who no longer hold the Bible in esteem—"which," as Menckley so truly said, "if everything else in our language should perish, would alone suffice to show the whole extent of its beauty and power"—do not wish to stand on resplendent mountain peaks, but are content to be in the valley without the companionship of light.—Joseph S. Auerbach.

Locomotive Explodes, Kills Two.

Scranton, Pa.—Samuel Martin, engineer, Pittston, and James Bryden, fireman, West Pittston, were killed when a locomotive on the Lehigh Valley railroad coal train blew up, 15 miles south of Scranton. Two other men were injured.

Dirigible Completes Flight.

Belleve, Ill.—The TC-1, largest non-rigid dirigible of the United States Army, landed at Scott Field, the army aviation post near here last week, successfully completing a 500-mile trial flight from Wingfoot Lake Station, Akron, O.

Man's Body Found in Pulp Car.

Hamilton, O.—Finding of the body of George B. McAllister, of Woodbury, N. J., in a car of wood pulp bales here last week may develop a story of a slaying at Norfolk, Va. The imported pulp was shipped from Norfolk and the body was found by a truckman between a row of bales, head down.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP BY THIS SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin troubles should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

HELPFUL HINTS AND RECIPES

Citron, cut in thin slices and as large in the surface as possible, may be colored any desired color for cake decorations by soaking over night in a vegetable coloring.

Don't put damp clothes down the clothes chute or in the hamper; in warm weather they mildew quickly.

Don't put linen covered with stains into hot soap suds. Remove the stains, if of fruit, by pouring boiling water through the linen over the spot. If the stain is caused by rust use salts of lemon in solution, being sure it is well washed out after it has been hung in the sun.

Beef Goulash.—Take two pounds of lean beef cut into two-inch squares, three large onions sliced, two tablespoonfuls of fat, one cupful of chopped cabbage, eight small potatoes, two tablespoonfuls of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, one cupful of boiling water and one-half cupful of milk. Brown the meat in the fat, remove the meat and add the vegetables, fry for five minutes, then add the water and the seasonings. The potatoes are better added after the cabbage, as they do not require so long cooking. When all are tender add the milk. Boil up once and serve.

Chicken Jelly.—Cut up a large chicken into small pieces. Take each piece and pound on a board until the flesh and bone are well mashed. Put the chicken into a kettle and add a teaspoonful of salt and a quart of cold water. Simmer closely covered twenty minutes, then put in a fireless cooker for eight hours. Strain and mold; serve with lettuce with any desired dressing.

When a sandwich is needed to serve a guest try Horseshoe Sandwich.—Cream three tablespoonfuls of butter and add two tablespoonfuls of freshly grated horseradish, one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice and a dash of salt. Spread this on rounds of bread and decorate with sliced stuffed olives.

Celebrates Wedding, Bride Waits.
Scranton, Pa.—J. H. Burke, 42 years old, of Oil City, was not married the day he planned to be, all because his farewell to bachelorhood was too successful. While a young woman was waiting for her fiancé in Wilkes-Barre, where he ceremony was to have been performed, Burke was awaiting a hearing in police court in this city. The celebration staged by himself and half a dozen friends the night before was so wet he forgot about marriage.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Firestone

will not increase prices until May 1st

Firestone Prices on Fabric and Cord Passenger Car Tires and Tubes, also Solid and Pneumatic Truck Tires Will Advance May 1st

The postponement of this price revision is possible only because of our realization of the price danger in the British Crude Rubber Restriction Act which became effective November 1, 1922. We were fortunate in our rubber purchases before the Restriction Act increased the price of crude rubber 150%.

We have always endeavored to champion the cause of better made tires delivered at lowest cost to the tire user by economic manufacturing and distribution. And we are glad of the opportunity to give the car-owner the additional saving at this time.

Firestone Cords embody certain special processes which result in their producing mileage records, heretofore unheard-of in the industry. Among the more important of these superior methods are blending, tempering, air-bag cure and double gum-dipping.

Firestone Dealers are co-operating with us in our movement to supply your needs at present prices as long as their stock lasts and we have advised our dealers that we will supply them with additional tires this month only so far as our output will permit.

See the nearest Firestone Dealer. Purchase a set of these Gum-Dipped Cords. Prove for yourself their remarkable mileage advantages and easy riding qualities.

The High-Grade Gasoline

Better Than Ever

There is an erroneous idea abroad. You hear it every day. "Gasoline is not as good as it used to be." The fact is that the Red Crown Gasoline you are getting today is an almost perfect fuel.

Perhaps there is no industry where progress has made such rapid strides as the refining of petroleum.

For example, we cite the Burton Process, developed and perfected in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). The Burton Process has enabled the refiner to bring gasoline to a point of efficiency hitherto un hoped for.

Red Crown Is Made by the Burton Process

Red Crown vaporizes to the last drop. There is no waste—it produces instant starting Winter or Summer—a quick get-away—a smooth running engine—tremendous sustained pulling power and racing speed if you want it.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—To the Three-Bar ranch, Arizona, owned jointly by Sandy Bourke, "Mormon" Peters and "Soda-Water Sam" Manning, a dog makes its way in the last stages of exhaustion. Inscription on its collar says its name is Grit, property of B. Casey. Seeing a deserter, tragedy, Louko and Sam mount and let the dog lead them.

CHAPTER II.—The two find a dying man, Patrick Casey, pinned under an overturned wagon, and a young girl, his daughter. They get him out, but he dies almost instantly, murmuring "Molly—Molly." Sandy takes the girl, Molly, to the ranch.

CHAPTER III.—It is agreed that Molly stays as "nascot" of the ranch. Sandy insists, though, that she must have education. Jim Plimsoll, gambler, visiting the ranch, insults Molly. He claims he grabbed Casey, which made him the old man's partner. Mormon drives him off.

CHAPTER IV.—Starting with a gold eagle, Molly's luck runs. Sandy, with Sam, plays faro at Plimsoll's place, winning in the neighborhood of $10,000.

CHAPTER V.—It is arranged that Molly, to whom the half of Sandy's winnings belong, shall go East to be "educated."

CHAPTER VI.—A neighbor, Miranda Bailey, warns the ranchers that Jim Plimsoll, as Patrick Casey's "partner," claims guardianship of Molly, and the authorities stand in with him. Sandy determines to take the girl to New Mexico, visiting on the way an old friend, Barbara Redding, for advice as to Molly's going East. The three men, with the girl, set out.

Either Mormon or Sam sat always with neck twisted, watching for a flash-signal from the butte. Sometimes Molly relieved them as lookout, but hour after hour passed without sign.

Close to noon they reached a watering hole, with water none too cool or sweet, but still welcome. There the buckskins were un hitched, rubbed down and, after they had cooled off, given water and grain. As they ate cactus, Sandy suddenly gave a grunt of satisfaction, pointing with outstretched forefinger to the butte. Five flashes had flickered up. They were repeated. Jim had signalled a suspicious party on their way to Three Star. The sheriff was out with his papers.

"We got five hours' stahnt," said Sandy. "Made close to thirty mile. They've got thirty-five to make. Take 'em mo'n two hours, countin' questions with Buck. Good enough. See anything of the boys, Sam? They ought to be showin' up. I told 'em noon."

"On time," announced Sam. The two riders who had last talked with Sandy rode out of a straggling thicket of cactus and skirted the lava flow. Each led a spare horse, unsaddled.

CHAPTER VII

Bolsa Gap.

Sheriff Jordan had a high-powered car purchased, not so much from the fees of his office as with his perquisites, a word covering a wide range of possibilities, all of which the sheriff made the most of. He had taken up his brother-in-law's grievance with the greater zest since he had a half-interest in Plimsoll's Good Luck pool parlors, a share that had cost him good money. On top of that had come Sandy's flouting of him on the bridge in front of the sheriff's own followers. He had to save his face, politically as well as personally.

Armed with the necessary warrant, backed by an assurance that, unless some extraordinary howl went up, the girl would be given into the custody of Jim Plimsoll as guardian, by virtue of his claim to partnership with her father, the sheriff, Plimsoll and two others, all three deputized for the occasion, started the car from Hereford at a quarter of twelve, after an early lunch. At a few minutes after twelve they reached Three Star, where Buck, seated on the porch, his saddle astride a sawhorse, stitted away at a cinch.

Buck played his part well, allowing Jordan to ferret out information to his own satisfaction. It appeared plain that all three partners had taken flight with the girl in the buckboard. "Someone tipped this thing off," Jordan said sternly to Buck. "Who was it?"

"Meanin' this visit's offishul?" asked Buck. "What's it fo', Sheriff? Moonshine or hawss stealin'?" He spoke in a jesting note, his weathered face impassive as the shell of a walnut, but Plimsoll scowled, noting the turn of Buck's bland countenance in his direction for the first time. It was whispered that the brands on Plimsoll's horse ranch were not those usually known in the county, nor even in the counties adjoining. There were rumors, smothered by Plimsoll's stand with the authorities, of bands of horses, driven by strangers, arriving warlike—and always by night—at his corral.

"It don't matter—to you—what it's for," answered Jordan. "I'll overhaul 'em an' bring 'em back. Ef they try hide-out tactics or put up a scrap, I'll be kidnappin' an' that's a penal offense."

Buck whistled.

"Thought you wasn't goin' to let me know," he said. "It's the gel."

"Who's been here to tip it off?" asked Jordan.

Buck looked at him serenely, took a plug of chewing from his pocket, took his knife, opened it deliberately and slowly cut off a corner of the tobacco.

"Search me," he drawled. "Me, I don't stay up to the house."

Jordan, temporarily discomfited but still confident of bringing back his quarry, marked the trail of the buckboard in the alkali soil, noted the hoof-prints of the diverging riders and nodded with the semi-smile and half-closed eyes of conscious superiority. He had already elicited apparently reluctant information from Pedro as to the four passengers in the buckboard.

"You 'tendin' ranch?" Jordan asked Buck.

"Yep. Till I get fresh orders."

"I'll bring you back those orders, also yore bosses, before sundown."

Buck permitted himself his first grin.

"You'll have to go some," he said. "Goin' to bring 'em back in trons? Figgerin' on abduction?"

Jordan gave no hint of how Buck's shaft might have targeted his intentions, but climbed into the car and started it. Reaching the lava strip where the buckboard had halted for water and the noon meal, they found the trail skirting the flow toward the south. The main mass of the mesa, broken up into gorges, gaps, stairway cliffs, marked by purple shadows, scanty in the early afternoon but gradually widening, was about fifty jittles away. Jordan turned to one of his deputies.

"Which way do you figger they're headin', Phil?" he asked. "Is there a cut or a pass through the mesa?"

"Damfino. One thing's sure an' certain. Them fellers from the Three Star usually know where they are headin'. Trail's plain."

"Sure is." But Jordan scratched his head a trifle doubtfully. If Sandy Bourke and his chums had been tipped off, this trail was a little too plain to be true.

"They're on about us gettin' the papers," said Plimsoll. He had not said much on the trip so far. "Too much talk nowadays. Bourke sabs that gettin' the girl out of the county won't do any good; he aims to get her out of the state and any Arizona court or sheriff jurisdiction. He's the brains of the outfit. We've got to get her, Jordan."

"You ain't tellin' me a thing I don't know, Jim. But there's one thing you can tell me. Is that tip you got about Dynamite a sure one?"

Plimsoll, sitting beside Jordan, flashed him a look of contempt.

"Do you think I'm chasing this girl because I'm stuck on her? One of the party with this eastern crowd dropped into my place and talked. Here is where I get back the money I put up to grabstake Casey."

Jordan gave him a grin of derision.

"You an' yore grabstake," he jeered. Plimsoll said nothing more.

"No shootin' in this deal," Jordan warned. "Come to a showdown, Bourke won't buck the law soon's we show papers. So long's he ain't been notified the court is makin' a ward of the girl they ain't done nothin' wrong. But—if he resists, that's different."

"I ain't goin' to be awful anxious to start shootin'," said Jim. "Sandy Bourke's a two-handed lead flogger an' Soda-Water Sam's no slouch. Neither's Mormon. Me, I'll be peaceable 'less it's forced on me otherwise."

They entered the split in the mesa. The floor was fairly smooth, swept clean by occasional cloudbursts, save for the skeleton of a tree and another of a too-far wandering steer, both blanched white as the alkali-crusted boulders. It was nearly level going and the car pounded along, all the occupants looking for trail sign.

"Keep an eye peeled for rain," said Jordan. "I'd sure hate to get caught in here with a cloudburst."

Ahead was an abrupt turn. Jordan slowed. Making the curve, a fence stretched across the gorge, reaching from wall to wall, a four-strand barrier of barbed-wire, strung on patent steel posts. Jordan braked with emergency. The sight of such a fence in such a place was as unexpected as the sun-dried carcass of a steer would be on Broadway. Plimsoll and Jordan cursed, the former in pure anger, the latter with some appreciation of the stratagem for delay.

"We can tear it down quicker'n they fixed it," he said. "I've got a pair of nippers in the tool kit. They can't have driven in those posts deep. Come on."

A voice floated down to them.

"You leave that fence alone, gents, if you please. I went to a heap of trouble puttin' up that fence. It's my fence."

They looked up, to see Mormon seated on the top of a great boulder that had land-slipped from the cliff into the gorge. From thirty feet above them he looked down, amiably enough, though there was a glint of blue metal in his right hand.

Jordan advanced to the foot of the rock, producing his papers.

"I have a bench warrant here to bring into court for the appointment of a proper guardian, the child Molly Casey, she being a minor and without natural or legal protectors. I've got yore name on these papers, Mormon Peters, as one of the three parties with whom the girl is now domiciled. I warn you that you are obstructing the process of the law by yore actions. You put up that gun an' come down here an' help to pull down this fence, illegally erected on property not yore own. Otherwise yore subject to arrest."

"That is sure an awful long speech fo' a hot day," said Mormon equably. "But I don't sabs that talk at all. Molly Casey ain't here, to begin with. Nor she ain't been here. An' I don't sabs no obstruction of the law by settin' up a fence in a mesa canyon to round up broom-tails."

One of the deputies snickered.

"Broom-tails?" cried Jordan. "That's too thin. There's no mustangs hangin' round a mesa like this, 'bout feed or water." He flushed angrily.

"You never kin tell about wild hawsses, or even branded ones," said Mormon pleasantly. "Ask Plimsoll. He picks 'em up in all sorts of places."

Plimsoll cursed. Mormon still held his gun conspicuously, and he restrained his own impulse to draw.

"You come down an' help remove this fence," Jordan shouted up at the smiling Mormon, "or I'll start something. It ain't on yore property and it's hinderin' the carryin' out of my warrant."

"It ain't on a public highway neither," retorted Mormon. "But I'll come down. Don't go to clippin' those wires an' destroyin' what is my property." He slid down the rock and commenced to unbend the metal straps that held the wire in place. Jordan and one of his men followed suit with pliers from the motor kit. The job took several minutes.

"You'll come along with us," said Jordan. "You lied about the girl comin' this way. I've a notion to take you in for that. But I reckon you can go back in the buckboard with yore partners."

"Teckon I'll travel in the buckboard, when you catch up with it," said Mormon. "But I'll come along with you fo' a spell—of my own free will. I don't see no harm in takin' the gel visitin', anyway," he concluded as he took an extra seat in the tonneau.

Jordan made no answer but started the engine. The way zigzagged for half a mile and then they came to a second fence. No buckboard was in sight. Leaning against a post stood Soda-Water Sam, smoking a cigarette, his gun holster hitched forward, the butt of the weapon close to one hand. Jordan and his men leaped out as the car stopped, Mormon following more slowly.

"Afternoon, hombraes all," said Sam. "Joy-ridin'?"

Jordan wasted no more explanations.

"You take down this fence," he fairly shouted.

"What fo'?"

"Ask yore partner."

"Sheriff claims we're cumberlin' the landscape with our 'll' corral, Sam," said Mormon. "He's got a paper that gives him right of way, he says. Seen anything of Molly Casey?"

"Not for quite a spell. Go easy with them wires, Sheriff. Price of wire's riz considerable."

The second barrier down and the car through, Jordan ordered Sam to get in the car.

"Jump, or I'll put the cuffs on you," he said.

"Not this trip," replied Sam coolly. "No sense in my climbin' in there. Me an' Mormon's through with our 'll' job. We'll go back in the buckboard. It's round the bend. I was jest goin' to hitch up."

Jordan glared unbelievably, yet Sam's words carried conviction.

"You're sure goin' to have trouble turnin' yore car right here," Sam went on imperturbably. "Kind of mean to back down, too. It's worse higher up. Matter of fac' the gap peters out jest round the turn. Look for yo'self, if you don't believe me."

Jordan and Plimsoll strode on up the pitch. Mormon followed, Sam stayed with the two deputies. Around the bend stood the buckboard with the buckskins in a patch of shadow under a scoop in the ending wall that turned the so-called pass to a box canyon.

"I told you the gel warn't erlong," said Mormon. "She and Sandy was with us fo' a spell. But they're goin' visitin' an' they shifted to saddle way back, out there by the spring beside the lava strip."

Mormon's bland smile masked a sterner intent than showed in his eyes. Jordan, furious at being outwitted, dared not provoke open combat. Mormon hitched up the buckskins, but followed the sheriff and the scowling, silent Plimsoll back to the car.

"See that notch, way over to the north?" said Mormon, bent on exploiting the situation to the full. "I reckon Sandy and the gel's shackin' through there about now. Hawss trail only. 'Fraid you won't catch him, Sheriff. They aim to ketch the seven o'clock train at Caroca. It's the on'y pass over the mesa. If Sandy had knowed you wanted him he might have waited. Why didn't you phone? Ninety mile around the mesa, nearest way, an' it must be all of five o'clock now, by the sun."

He stopped, puzzled by the change in the sheriff's face. Chagrin had given place to exultation.

"Catch the seven o'clock train at Caroca?" said Jordan. "Thanks for the information, Mormon. That schedule was changed last week when they pulled off two trains on the main line. The train leaves at nine-thirty, an', if I can't make ninety miles in four hours an' a half, I'll make you a present of my car. Stand back, both of you. No monkey business with my tires. Cover 'em, boys. The law's on my side, you two gabbin' word-shooters."

He handled the car wonderfully, backing and turning her, and, while Mormon and Sam stood powerless, the former crestfallen, the latter sardonically gazing at his partner, the machine went tilting, snorting down the gorge.

"You sure spilled the beans, Mormon," said Sam finally. "I'd have thought them three wives of yores 'ud have taught you the vally of silence."

"I ain't got a d—d word to say, Sam. But I'd be obliged if you'd kick me—good. Use yore heels, I see you got yore spurs on."

CHAPTER VIII

The Pass of the Goats.

In the throat of the gorge the sun shone red on the tawny cliffs. It was close to seven o'clock. Sandy's lean face was anxious. The girl drooped in her seat, tired from the long climb, not yet injured to the saddle.

Sandy had only once crossed the Pass of the Goats and that was years before. There had been washouts since then. Several times they were forced to dismount and lead the nervous beasts, Sandy doing the coaxing, helping Molly over the difficult places. He rode a mare named Goldie and the girl a bay with a white blaze that Sandy had chosen for the mountain work and which had been brought to them at the lava strip.

The mare halted, neck stretched out, turning it to look inquiringly at her master. A sharp incline lay ahead, the path little better than one made by the goats for which the pass was named. Behind, Molly's mount followed suit, blowing at the dust. Sandy patted the mare's neck and dismounted.

"You're sure game, Molly," he said admiringly; "you must be clean tuckered out."

She shook her head with an attempt at a smile.

"I'll be glad when we start goin' down, fer a change," she admitted, looking into the gloomy trough of the canyon through which the night wind sougled.

"I'll tighten up yore cinches," said Sandy. "Worst of the climb's jest ahead. Then we start to drop down 't'other side. You don't have to git off."

He tugged at the leathers, his knee against the bay's ribs as she grunted.

"You ain't much further to go, I'll hawss," he chatted on. "Downhill all the way soon, an' then a drink to wash out yore mouth an' the best feed in Caroca fo' the pair of you."

"Gits dark mighty quick up here," said the girl.

A great cloud was ballooning above them, like a dirigible that had lost buoyancy and was bumping along the mesa ridge. Its belly was black, its western side ruddy in the sunset. Sandy viewed it apprehensively. The cloud was soggy with moisture. Bursting, it would send torrents roaring down every ravine, wash out weathered masses of earth, sweep all before it as it gathered forces and rushed out on the desert.

Where Molly and Sandy rode they were exposed to the first drench of a cloudburst. Deeper in the pass, where the flood would be confined, their chance for escape would be infinitesimal.

Sandy examined his own cinch and tightened it before he mounted. And he whispered something in the mare's ear that caused her to lip his sleeve.

"Let yore hawss have his own way, Molly," he said. "I'm lettin' Goldie do the pickin' fo' the lead. Ready?"

It was growing cold in the twilight. One spire ahead glowed golden. The cloud drifted down upon it, glooming and glowing on its sunset side. The crag pierced it, ripped it as it glided along, like the knife of a diver in the belly of a shark. A cold wind blew from the riven mass. Then came the hiss of descending waters.

Through the steady patter began to sound the savage voice of torrents falling over cliffs, rapids rising and surging in deep gorges. The wetness and the cold sapped Molly's vitality.

She Rode With Hands on the Saddle Horn, Her Head Bowed, Water Streaming From the Rim of Her Stetson.

She rode with hands on the saddle horn, her head bowed, water streaming from the rim of her Stetson, the thud of the rain on her tired shoulders heavy as shot. She saw Sandy ahead, dimly, like a sheeted ghost, twisted in his saddle, watching her.

To her right was the cliff, slimy with water, the trail so narrow that now and then her elbow dug into the soft stuff. The light rayed upward at an acute angle. In a few moments it would be dark. But they were close to the top. The mare already stood on a level ledge of side-jutting rock, from which one could look down into the canyon of the oaks and the unfalling stream.

Sandy heard a cry from Molly and saw, through the curtain of the falling rain, the wide-flared nostrils of her horse, its eyes protruding as the brute, with the ground sloping away beneath him, slid slowly down toward the gulf, her weight flung forward on the withers, her face white as paper, turning to him mutely for help. It was a bad moment. Sandy had no space to turn in, no chance to whirl his lariat, even for a side throw. There was no time to spin a loop. But his hand detached the rope, flying fingers found the free end as he pivoted in the saddle, thighs welded to the mare.

"Take a turn about the horn!" he shouted. "Hang to the end yo'self!"

He sent the line jerking back, whistling as it streaked across the girl's shoulders. She clutched it, with plenty of slack, snubbed it about the saddle horn, clung to the end, made a tight of it about her body.

Sandy spoke to the mare.

"Steady, 'll' lady, steady!" The rope was about his own horn; he thanked God that he had examined the cinches of Molly's saddle. The bay was cat-footed; with the help of the mare Sandy believed he could dig and scrape and climb to safety.

He felt Goldie stiffen beneath him, braced against the strain she knew was coming. The taut lariat hummed, it bruised into Sandy's thigh. Behind, the bay snorted, struggling gallantly.

They were poised on the brink of death for a moment, two—three—and then the mare began to move slowly forward, neck curved, ears cocked to her master's urging, while the bay sloshed through the treacherous muck, found foothold, lost it, made a frantic leap, another, and landed trembling on the ledge. Sandy leaped from his saddle and caught Molly, sliding from her seat in sheer exhaustion and the revulsion of terror, clinging closely to him.

"I'm all right," she said. "I was scared an' yet I know you'd pull me out. I'm plum' shamed of myself. Jest like a d—d gel to act that way."

"Shucks! You wasn't half as scared as the bay. Wonder did he strain himself?" He passed clever hands over the bay's legs, talking to it.

"You're all right, ol' surelegs. Right as rain." Sandy recoiled his lariat, gave Molly a hand to her foot to lift her to her saddle, mounted himself, and they rode slowly down. The turmoil of running waters far below burdened the night, but the danger from the storm was over.

Train time was long past. Sandy knew nothing of the change of schedule, but he was confident of winning clear. He knew a man in the little town they were aiming for whose livery stable was, in the march of the times, divided between horses and machines. There he expected to put up the horses until they could be returned to Three Star, and there he figured on hiring a car and a driver if, as he anticipated, there were no more trains that night. He believed that Mormon and Sam had delayed the sheriff. Probably the latter had given up the chase, but there was no telling. They should lose no time in getting out of the state.

CHAPTER IX

Caroca.

Sandy led the way on the mare to a shelving bench, a place where he had camped once long before and, with his out-of-doors-man's craft, never forgotten. Molly was tired almost to insensibility as to what might be going on, soaked and chilled to limpness. Sandy got her out of the saddle and into a shallow cove in a sandy bank. The next thing she knew a fire was leaping and sending light and warmth into her nook.

"Eat this, Molly, an' we got to be on our way," Sandy was handing her a cupful of hot, savory stew, made for the trip, warmed up hastily, the best kind of a meal after their strenuous experience, though Sandy be-moaned its quality.

"Figgered you an' me 'ud eat on the Pullman tonight," he said. "But this snack'll do us no harm. We'll git a cup of coffee in Caroca if there's a chance."

She gulped the reviving food gratefully, strength coming back with the fuel that gave both warmth and motive power. Soon they were jogging on down the wide trough of the canyon. They crossed a white road, unfenced but evidently a main source of travel though now deserted.

"County line runs plumb down the middle of the road," announced Sandy. "There's the lights of Caroca blinkin' away to the left. Too bad we missed the train. Sleepy?"

"Some," she admitted.

"Me, too," lied Sandy companionably.

Coming down from the mesa he had talked with her about Barbara Redding, how welcome she would make Molly and what she would do for her. Molly had listened silently.

They entered the little town, once a cattle station, now renamed in musical Spanish, Caroca—A Caroca—a spot where fruits were grown and flowers bloomed the year round wherever the water caressed the earth. Sandy rode the mare into the livery where the last skirmish between hoof and rim, iron and rubber tire, was being fought, and called for "Cluck" Goodwin.

DOES YOUR BACKACHE?

It's usually a sign of sick kidneys, especially if the kidney action is disordered, passages scanty or too frequent. Don't wait for more serious troubles. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this East Jordan man's testimony.

Albert Turk says: "Mornings my back felt lame and at times I found it hard to get up. Those jerky pains pulled me back more than once. I was handling lumber at that time and my back got so weak and sore I couldn't stoop over. I couldn't get rested and always felt tired and worn out. When dizzy spells came over me I couldn't see anything. My kidneys were often weak and irregular and I had to get up during the night. The secretions were often badly colored and painful in passage. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me."

Price, 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Turk had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Ouch! Aching Joints, Rub Rheumatic Pain

Making the Home Bright and Cheerful

"BEAUTIFUL Walls and wood-work that look as if a great water color artist had tinted them by hand in a moment of inspiration."
This is the best description that could be given of the wonderful effects secured by using Washable Interior Colors on your walls and ceilings.
The result of such painting produces entirely different results from those which can be had by the use of ordinary Flat Wall Paints.

Bradley & Vrooman
Washable Interior Colors

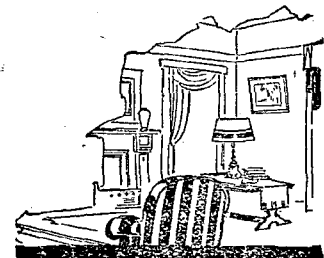

Are soft and velvety—most pleasing to the eye. They dry with a subdued artistic "sheen" which satisfies that inborn craving all of us have for that which is unique and harmonious.

They are superior in every respect to kalsomine and wallpaper and more sanitary. The cost is small—the results most satisfying. Try them in your home—you will be gratified and pleasantly surprised.

Paint Doesn't Cost Money—It Saves It!

Unless your home is protected inside and outside by repainting at least once every four years, you will lose in repairs and lessened value, from five to ten times what the paint and labor would cost.

Paint that is fresh always yields maximum satisfaction. D. & V. Washable Interior Colors are invariably fresh and good because they are combined in the Base and Tint way on the job.

Indoor Baseball

The High School won its Baseball game to the delight of the fans Monday night, from a team made up of men who played in the regular League season. The men led in the beginning, the High School overhauling them later on and winning out 16 to 11.

Nachazel pitched very good ball for the Leaguers. The High School were unable to do much of anything with him. The boys will be outdoors now so this is the last Indoor Ball for the High School team.

In the other game between Covey's team and the Hopefuls, Covey's team showed a decided superiority and won as they pleased in this game, the score being 19 to 3. The chief reason for the score being so one sided, the pitchers of the Hopefuls were far from their usual form and the stars hit pretty hard and consistently. The pitching of Jack McKinnon featured this game along with some very good work around second base by Capt. Covey, and a sensational catch by Dr. Parks.

This game was marred by a little umpire debating. It surely is embarrassing for the umpires who reluctantly agree to do this kind of work and then have people, as they say in Baseball terms, ride them all the while.

The results of these games are entirely unimportant outside of a little sport and this should be kept in mind. The crowd dwindled Monday night to such an extent that there will be no admission charge Monday night if there is any game at all.

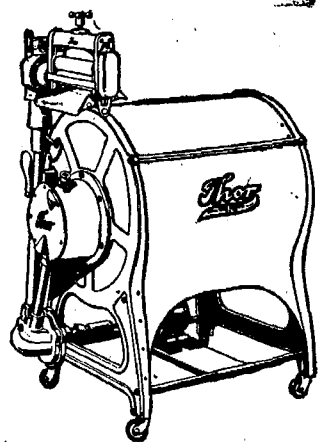

Alma, Mich., April 12—Mr. Wallace Kemp of East Jordan, a Senior at Alma College, has been greatly honored by being elected to the Presidency of the Phi Phi Alpha Literary Society. Mr. Kemp possesses good executive ability and should prove to be an excellent president.

The Woman's Relief Corp were entertained last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Rogers, in honor of Mrs. Al Tindale, who expects to leave in the near future for Manton. The afternoon was spent in visiting, after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Tindale was presented with a three-piece hand painted china set.

The Women's Presbyterian Society will meet at the Presbyterian Church next Tuesday and Wednesday, April 24th and 25th. There will be meetings Tuesday forenoon, afternoon and evening, and Wednesday forenoon and afternoon. F. H. Throop of China will give a lecture Tuesday evening, also a Playette will be given by a number of young people. All the young people of East Jordan are especially invited for that evening.

Farms for Sale

Good farms will never be so cheap again. If this is a good guess now is the time to buy. We offer the Leo Umlor farm at a ridiculously low price. There are few better forty acres out doors; the buildings are fair and the farm will be sold "dirt cheap."

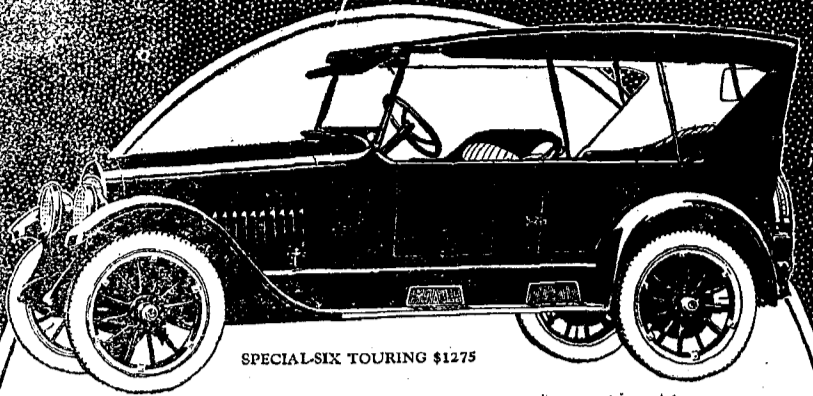

We also have thirty-three acres close to town that can be sold at the price of a second hand automobile and about the same terms.

SPECIAL-SIX TOURING $1275

Wherever motor cars are discussed, and that's nearly everywhere, somebody is sure to remark—"That Studebaker Special-Six is a regular automobile."

The Studebaker Special-Six has been on the market for four years. Each year has seen added to it such refinements and improvements as time has made possible. Today there are more than one hundred and twenty-five thousand in every-day service and we don't believe there's a dissatisfied owner.

The name was selected because comparative tests against all kinds of cars made this car stand out as something special and apart from the ordinary run of automobiles. It requires special merit to warrant calling any car a special—and if the value isn't special the car quickly fades away.

Count the "Special-Sixes" that have appeared since the arrival of the Studebaker Special-Six. That's the proof of the value of the original Special-Six.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; can't injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS BACKACHE

The heat of red peppers takes the "out" from a sore, lame back. It can't hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.
When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.
Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.
Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.
