Graduation Week in Public School

Commences this Sunday Evening At H. S. Auditorium.

The Commencement for the Class of 1923 of the East Jordan Public Schools will take place at the High School Auditorium, Friday evening, June 8th, at 7:30 standard time.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be preached at the same place at 7:00 Sunday evening. The Rev. Henry Hulme will be the Commencement preacher. The Rev. Charles W. Sidebotham will be Commencement Chaplain.

Class Day will take place at the High School Thursday, June 7th at 7:00 o'clock.

This in brief gives an outline of Commencement week. The class of 1923 numbers 24. As far as the records show, this class has only been surpassed in numbers by the class of '22. This alone marks the class for distinction. This is not all, however, and not by any means as important as the record they have made. Fourteen of the 24 members of this crowd of young people are from the country and they are true to rural characteristics. They not only have made a very fine record in school but as a class will have a place in the memory of their faculty and townspeople, for they have those qualities that are so often characteristic of the boys and girls so close to the soil. They have been upright and fair to all with whom they came in contact, a class that has always known its place and the faculty cannot recall one person who needs a band around his head. This is seldom true of High School Senior classes.

They also have shown their good judgment in the matter of the uniform dress for graduation. Then most classes are in debt at the close of this class's activities, they had $127.00 in the treasury which made it possible to pay for their invitations and besides leave at least two very fine pictures in the High School.

Then, in scholarship they rank high. One of the most unusual things done by this class is the fact that three of their members graduate in three years. Not only that, but they had the following averages: Alma Anderson, valedictorian, average 96.4 per cent; Anita MacDonald, 95.8; and Evelyn Nelson 92.25. Then three other students, Mary Shedina with 93.3 per cent, Mildred Wangerman 92.4 and Olga Wagbo with 91 are among those who have very fine records.

To indicate farther the scholarship of this class, let us note the fact that Olga Wagbo has won first place in Shorthand last year and first place in Typewriting this year in northern Michigan and this year getting fourth place in the state contest at Kalamazoo in Shorthand. Miss Wangerman also won first honors in Northern Michigan Typing and Shorthand Meet and stood near the top at Kalamazoo. Mary Shedina, besides being honor student, is perhaps as fine a Mechanical Drawing student as ever left East Jordan High School, and, without a doubt, will make a record.

Others like Roy Vance and Manuel Bartholomew made unusual records in Agriculture. I am confident these men with one or two other members of the Agricultural team would have crowded first place in stock judging at M. A. C. We could mention other notable things in connection with their scholarship records but time and space does not permit.

REV. HENRY HULME
Who will deliver the Baccalaureate Address at High School Auditorium, Sunday evening.

In Athletics this class has some very unusual people. John Peebles, the star pitcher of the High School Baseball team this spring perhaps leads the list. Then there is Roy Stewart, Roy Vance, Manuel Bartholomew in Football and Alma Anderson and Mary Shedina, who are stars in Girl's Basketball. Two or three members of this class already have their teachers' certificates as well as their schools for next year.

In Science and Electricity, they have a genius in Lucas Knight who also was perhaps the most popular student in Dramatics in the High School. Frank Lawton also is an unusual man in Science and Radio work. Altogether, this class makes an impressive showing from nearly every angle.

The Commencement speaker is Chas. T. Grawn, perhaps one of the strongest Commencement speakers in the state. Many citizens perhaps recall Mr. Grawn being Superintendent of Traverse City, where he served eighteen years, from there going to Central Michigan Normal as President where he remained another eighteen years. Since leaving Central Michigan Normal he has lectured throughout the Central West, going to Pennsylvania many times as well as Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Mr. Grawn is a very impressive speaker. He is a gentleman who has always lived what he says. No East Jordan citizen can afford to miss hearing Mr. Grawn. All in all, we should have one of the very best Commencements the High School has had.

The play that the Seniors are giving for Class Day is rather an unusual way of doing their part and will interest a great many.

THE GRADUATES

SHALL WE HAVE A SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL HERE?

A call from Floyd S. Rowe, Tuesday afternoon to Supt. A. J. Duncanson, inquiring about the establishment of a summer training school for the Physical Training teachers of the State of Michigan was received and a committee has looked up the proposition and telegrams went to the State department saying we have such a location and can furnish the Athletic field, including the cinder Track and Baseball diamond, and Football, Schools and Camp Site.

Mr. Rowe seemed very favorably impressed with the prospects of establishing a permanent training school for teachers of Physical Training at East Jordan. If such an institution is established, there will be 100 men here this summer for a period of from four to six weeks with, as he said, as many as three hundred within the next two years.

This looks like a real opportunity for East Jordan. The details of this school will be made known within a very short time. A committee looked over the grounds and found that all local arrangements can be easily made so we should have favorable news within a very short time.

MEGUZEE ASSOCIATION TO MEET IN EAST JORDAN IN 1924.

East Jordan members of the Eastern Star who attended the Meguzee Ass'n Convention at Traverse City, Thursday and Friday, report one of the most pleasant Conventions in the history of the organization. The talks were instructive and interesting and the initiatory ceremony beautifully given.

Myrtle Paige of Traverse City, was elected President for the coming year and it is expected the 1924 meeting would be at East Jordan.

The complete list of officers follows: President—Myrtle Paige, Traverse City. First Vice-president—Glady's Bechtold, East Jordan. Second Vice-president—W. E. Ellis, Petoskey. Secretary—Glendora Williams, Mancelona. Treasurer—Stella Voorheis, Harbor Springs.

Marshal—Jennie Haroun, Kalkaska. Chaplain—Nellie Grayson, Pellston. Member of executive committee, for three years, Ella Wallbrecht, Central Lake; for two years, Thressa Maltby, Bellaire; for one year, Effie Marshall, Charlevoix.

Fine Memorial Day Observance

Impressive Ceremonies Mark the Day in East Jordan.

The usual ceremonies in East Jordan were carried out in the morning, the casting of flowers on Pine Lake for the sailor dead and the decorating of the graves at the Bohemian settlement, bringing the celebration up to 1:00 o'clock with one of the finest parades in recent years which was led by the Ellsworth Band, followed by the American Legion, the K. of P.'s, the Catholic school children and the Public Schools. Besides the Legion and Lodges there were about 100 children from the Catholic School and just an even 700 from the Public School, making about 1000 in line.

The G. A. R. and W. R. C. followed in autos back to the school house where the parade disbanded and a large crowd attended the Memorial Day exercises. The feature of the afternoon was the talk by Chaplain Floyd Bluefield of Petoskey. It was the consensus of opinion that Rev. Bluefield of the M. E. church of Petoskey, who is at present Chaplain of the 128th F. A. U. S. Reserves, gave the finest Memorial Day address that we have had in many a day. He held his audience from the beginning and hardly a move was made until he concluded with a poem from Edgar Guest "The Kind of a Man I Would Like To Be."

The male quartet composed of Sloan, Watson, VanHusen and Porteras usual immensely pleased the large audience with their selection.

The following G. A. R. members still were able to answer the roll call for the boys of '61: H. C. Swafford, Wm. Harrington, George Pringle, A.R. Ostrander, Aldrich Townsend, Frank Smith, and Alexander Bush.

CHARLES FARMER PASSED AWAY FROM LEAKAGE OF HEART.

Charles Bertram Farmer passed away at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Farmer, in this city, Friday, May 25th.

Deceased was born in East Jordan, Oct. 9th, 1904, being in his 19th year at the time of his death. He attended our public school up until some two years ago, when illness compelled him to discontinue his studies.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his parents, two brothers—Garth and Douglas and one sister, Erlene.

Funeral services were held from the home Sunday afternoon, May 27th, conducted by Rev. C. W. Sidebotham. Interment at Sunset Hill.

Track Team Wins Honors

Our H. S. Boys Win Class B Contest at Cadillac.

The second annual Track Meet at Cadillac found East Jordan in the front in their class, winning the Class B Championship with the impressive score of 44 points. Following is the score for the Meet for Class B:

Harbor Springs.....24	Manton.....3½
Boyer City.....11	Kingsley.....3
Everett.....11	Honor.....1
Buckley.....11	East Jordan.....44
Charlevoix.....5½

Mr. Vernon Gibbs, starting with a green track team a year ago had developed by far the best Track team in its class in northern Michigan. A number of these schools have had Track years before yet East Jordan, with a thoroughly coached and well balanced team won by the lop-sided score indicated above. It was rather a surprise to the different schools of northern Michigan to see the little town on the Pine scoring in nearly every event. The work of the local team can be judged by the showing of some of their nearby friends. Without a doubt, the men deserve a great deal of credit. Not so often does a coach deserve even more credit than the players themselves but in this case Coach Vernon Gibbs deserves a lion's share for the impressive showing made at Cadillac.

John McCalmon was perhaps the most impressive performer on the East Jordan team, he winning the 100 yard dash, getting second in the 220 yard, first in the Pole Vault and doing his share in the championship relay team which also carried a cup as did the championship for the Class B schools. These cups will be displayed in one of the down town windows as soon as they arrive. Floyd Walker also did unusual work getting second in the shot, second in the discus and second quarter mile. Elmer Smith did very well in the broad jump, winning that with a jump of 18 feet and 2 inches. Edward Streeter got second place in the high hurdles also helped in winning the relay championship. He was disqualified in the low hurdles where he had a very good chance of getting first place but not being quite in time for the race. Robert Kowalski ran a great race for second place in the mile. Kenneth Love, as expected, got first in the 440 yard and closed the final gap in the relay in a very impressive manner, winning by ten yards. Childs did very well in two or three events. Later on this man will surprise somebody when he gets so that he can handle his giant form. Isadore Kling is up against the fastest half mile East Jordan has made and did his race. The following is the records of the meet. Petoskey helped East Jordan to carry back most of the honors to the northern part of the State. Cadillac got second, Traverse City third. Without a doubt, it was the best Meet ever held in Cadillac.

Seven records were broken and in many other ways it was the best program ever seen in this line of sport.

Today Vernon Gibbs and his men are trying for State honors in Class C at Lansing through the generosity of one of the finest bunches of business men in Michigan. We are expecting some good things from the boys at Lansing.

Right here, we would like to, as a student body and High School, express our sincere appreciation of the interest, patience and kindness of the same business men referred to above. No other High School in Michigan gets similar support. As the High School said this morning, no request from the business men will go unheeded as far as they are concerned.

CHARLEVOIX CO. S. ASS'N ELECT OFFICERS FOR ENSUING YEAR.

The program outlined by the Convention for the Association for the coming year was to plan an Exhibit for the County Fair; to hold a County Picnic; to urge week day religious instructions, also daily vacation bible schools, and to try to introduce into our public libraries of our county, books on reference of religious topics, also to urge a County Religious Survey. The next County Convention will be held in Charlevoix the 3rd week of June 1924.

JOSEPH T. NORTON DIES SUDDENLY AT THREE OAKS, MICH.

Joseph T. Northon, formerly Superintendent of East Jordan's Public Schools, passed away at Three Oaks, Mich., Friday, May 18th. He suffered a stroke of apoplexy the previous Thursday while engaged as Supt. of the schools of that city.

Joseph Thomas Northon was born in Mt. Bridges, Ontario, February 22, 1867. He moved with his parents to Vernon township, Isabella County in 1882. His education and preparation for his life's work, teaching, was received in the Phinney District school, Alma Academy and College, Chicago and Michigan Universities.

During his teaching profession of over thirty-two years, among the places he taught were Vernon township, East Jordan, Farwell, Kalkaska, four years in Illinois and Three Oaks. Besides his wife, he leaves to mourn their loss one son and three daughters, Mrs. Ethel Smollett and Harold, of Detroit; Agnes and Marguerite, students at Ypsilanti, together with an aged mother, four brothers, two sisters and other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at Clare, Mich., May 20th. Interment at that place in charge of the local Masonic lodge.

South Arm Board of Review

The Board of Review of South Arm Township will meet at the office of the Supervisor of said township on Monday and Tuesday, June 11th and 12th. Sessions from 9:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. H. E. HUTTON, Supervisor.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our appreciation for kindness extended us by friends and neighbors during the illness and death of our son, Charles. Also for the beautiful floral offerings. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Farmer.

Pup Had Been Called For. Little Richard came home from school with a stray dog that was very playful. They had a great time. At supper time Richard's mother asked him what became of the dog. He replied, "O, his parents came after him."

E. J. Defeats Traverse City

"Independents" Get Short End of 10 to 6 Score.

Traverse City Independent came here Memorial Day with the idea of giving us a good bath but East Jordan showed them they were the bunch that needed the washing and we sure did give it to them. They also found out where East Jordan is located and they won't have any trouble finding out from now on.

They had to use three pitchers before they could stop our boys' war clubs from knocking the ball all over the lot. The Traverse City Ball Club are sure a nice bunch of fellows and good, clean sports. Their umpire was the best we ever had here.

The game started out with Traverse City jumping in the lead but our boys soon overcame that. For the first three innings it was a pitcher's battle and after that the balloon went up and oh boy how our youngsters did miss up their pitcher.

Our little Hanky boy caught the best game we ever saw him catch; not a man dared to steal bases on him; when a man did get on first he hugged to the bag just as if it was a refrigerator. Ward, the eagle-eyed first baseman, played his position well and never made a misplay.

Covey our second baseman, who is an ex-Traverse player, showed his old team-mates how to play the second bag and got a loyal hand from his old-time friends.

Morgan made one of the most sensational catches that has ever been made on the East Jordan ball field. A Traverse City man hit the ball and it traveled pretty fast but Morgan, running backwards, speared the leather from the air and fell, turning over twice but hanging on to the ball.

Sam Kamradt had a little accident in the field when he stepped into a rabbit hole and lost his balance which caused him to drop a fly ball.

Ed LaLonde looked good out in centerfield and played in mid-season form.

Rod Davis, playing in right field, had a little hard luck as he is not used to this position but just watch him go in the coming games.

East Jordan plays Charlevoix June 3rd at East Jordan. Game starts at 3:00 p. m., sharp.

East Jordan High School with journeyed to Charlevoix, Tuesday, with good intentions of taking part in a baseball game. However, Charlevoix is noted as a track town, and the East Jordan boys decided to meet them at their own game. It didn't take the visiting boys long to get started and when the 7th inning opened the score stood: E. J. H. S. 15—C. H. S. 9.

Then came the relay in which 15 E. J. H. S. batsmen took part for a total of 11 runs. C. H. S. got one point in this event. At the close of game it was found that 28 to 10 was the score.

Dagwell was wild in addition to being hit hard, which coupled with very poor support, was responsible for the high score. Peebles got poor support early in the game, but the boys soon settled down to real baseball.

STATE ROAD CONTROL PASSES Reorganization for Efficiency Ends Long Sway of Power.

Lansing—The state highway department, government unto itself from the time it was created, and a state agency which last year spent $22,000,000, lost supremacy over its own domain, and became a department of the state government.

Left without construction funds by the failure of the legislature to pass the Smith automobile weight tax bill, and his departmental appropriation for operating expenses made subject to supervisory control of the administrative board. Commissioner Frank Rogers gave up the long fight he had waged with the help of legislative friends to evade outside control and agreed to an efficiency re-organization.

Effective July 1 the state accounting division, headed by Fred Perry, secretary of the administrative board, and C. A. Parker, will assume charge of the highway department's books.

Simultaneously, Harry H. Parlow, highway legal advisor, will step out and his work will be carried on by the attorney general's department henceforth.

Probably the most important change is that which brings the highway department accounting under closer supervision of other administrative officers.

There has been a feeling for months that the "overhead" of this department which involved legislative appropriations of $1,600,000 for the two years, can be cut considerable.

Sews Up Wound in Heart. New Orleans—Belle Smith, Negress fought an apparently winning battle with death here last week, after physicians closed a stab wound in her heart with three stitches. When taken to the hospital here physicians said she had very little chance to recover. They removed a clot from her heart, sewed up the wound and injected a saline solution. The following day she was given a blood transfusion. She has gradually improved since the operation.

MEXICO PARLEY BINDS NATIONS American Delegates Declare International Law Supreme.

Mexico City—Should the United States and Mexican delegates to the pre-recognition conference, which is in session here with the purpose of attempting to remove obstacles in the way of recognition of the Obregon administration by the United States solve the problem, the agreement reached would be binding upon both the United States and Mexican governments.

Ramon Ross and Senor Gopzaes Roa, and Charles B. Warren and John Barton Payne act respectively as the personal representatives of President Obregon and President Harding and also bind both governments to observe any agreement which the delegates may reach.

The three main points developed during the first seven sessions of the mixed commission centered about the understandings reached at the conference last year in Washington between Secretary of States Hughes and Adolfo De La Huerta, Mexican secretary of the treasury.

These points were: Resumption of payments on foreign debt obligations; satisfactory indemnification for expropriated lands, and settlement of the petroleum controversy resulting through the alleged retroactive and confiscatory interpretations of article 27 of the Mexican constitution of 1917.

During the presentation of the case of the United States, Mr. Warren insisted on the observance of the principles of international law over state and municipal legislation whenever the United States interests or rights are involved.

"If I was not friendly to you, Bourke, I should take that as a direct insult. I can understand that you believe in Westlake and take stock in what he told you. But he is a discharged employe. He has every reason . . ."

Sandy held up his hand. "He's a friend of mine," he said. "Keith, I may not know the mining game—as you play it. In some ways it's gamblin', like playin' poker. I've played that a heap. I can tell pretty well when a man's bluffin'. Maybe you're losin' some of yore nerve lately. You show it in yore face. I don't believe you. An' here's this stock you sold. I've got the names of yore buyers."

"I have a right to sell my stock." "You ain't goin' to exercise that right, Keith. You may make a business sellin' chances to folks who like to buy 'em, but you can't sell Hereford's folks paper when they think they're buyin' gold. You'll give me the money you got for the shares with a list of the men you sold 'em to an' I'll tell 'em the Molly is pinched out—as it is."

"You must be crazy, man! They wouldn't believe you. If you went round with a statement like that you'd lose every cent of your own and your ward's. You have no right . . ."

"Trouble is with you, you don't know the meannin' of that last word," said Sandy. "Right is just what I aim to do. We'll put it up to Molly an' you'll see where she stands. We don't do business out West the way you do. We don't rob our friends or even try an' run a razzo on strangers. The Molly'll shut down. I'll git you to give me a statement long with the money an' the list fo' me to check up, sayin' you've just had news the vein has petered out sudden—like it has. That's lettin' you down easy. I'm doin' this 'count of the fact you folks have looked out fo' Molly. An' I'm tellin' you, Keith, that if Hereford folks knew you'd deliberately sold their rotten stock, you an' yore private car might suffer considerable damage befo' you got away. I'd sure advise you to come across."

Keith looked into the face of Sandy

Keith Looked Into the Face of Sandy and, Briefly, Into His Eyes, Hard as Steel.

and, briefly, into his eyes, hard as steel. He made one more attempt. "Let's talk common sense, Bourke. The Molly is capitalized for a quarter of a million dollars. The stock can be sold at par if it's done quietly. I can dispose of it for you. There is no certainty that the mine will not produce richly when we strike through the second level of porphyry. There are plenty of people willing to buy shares on that chance after the showing already made. People buy stock as a gamble."

"No sense in you talkin' any mo' that way, Keith. Maybe you sell paper to folks who gamble on it, an' on what you tell 'em about the chances, makin' yore story gold-colored. Folks may like to git someh'n fo' nex' to nothin', but I won't sell 'em nothin' fo' someh'n, neither will Molly Casey. She's a western gal. Above all, I won't gold-brick my friends. I know the mine is petered out. We've had our share of the gold in it an', we won't sell the dirt. No mo' wud Pat Casey, lyin' out there by the spring, if he was alive."

"Suppose I refuse?" asked Keith, his square face obstinate. "I've done nothing outside the law." "To h—l with that kind of law! We make laws of our own out here once in a while. Justice is what we look fo', not law. I reckon you'll come through. Fo' one thing I expect to have yore boy visit with us till you do."

The promoter's face twisted uglyly and he lost control of himself. "Kidnapin'? A western method of justice. Not the first time you've been mixed up in it either, from what I hear. You don't dare . . ."

Keith stopped abruptly. Sandy had not moved, but his eyes, from resembling orbs of chilled steel, seemed suddenly to throw off the blaze and heat of the molten metal.

"Fo' a promoter yore a mighty pore judge of men," he said. "I'm warnin' you not to ride any further along that trail. Yore son can stay here, or we can tell the Hereford folk what you've tried to hand to them. Yore apt to look like a buzzard that's fallen into a tar barrel after they git through with you, Keith. I can find out who you sold stock to easy enough, but I don't care to waste the time. You an' no can ride into town in yore car an' clean this all up befo' the bank closes. We'll leave the money with Creel of the Hereford National. Then you can come back an' git yore boy."

"I don't remember the names. Blake took the record of them," said Keith sullenly.

"Then we'll have him in." Sandy went to the door and hailed Sam and Mormon. They came to the office escorting Blake, whose fox-face moved from side to side with furtive eyes as if he smelled a trap.

"We want the list of the folks you unloaded Molly stock to," said Sandy. Blake looked at his employer who sat glowering at his clear end, licked his lips and said nothing.

"Tell him, you d—d fool!" granted Keith. "The stubs are in the car at Hereford depot," said Blake. "In the safe." "Money there, too? I suppose you cashed the checks?"

"I deposited them to my own account," said Keith. "Come on, let's get this over with since you are determined to throw away your own and your partners' good money, to say nothing of the girl's. She could bring suit against you, Bourke, with a good chance of winning."

He glanced hopefully at Mormon and Sam. They kept on grinning. "Round up that chauffeur, Sam. We'll work," asked Sandy. "Tell him we're startin' fo' Hereford right off."

Kate Nicholson and Miranda Bailey were on the ranch-house veranda. "Could I ask you to mail these letters, Mr. Keith? Two of Molly's and one of my own." Kate Nicholson advanced toward him, the letters in hand. With a spurt of fury Keith snatched at the letters and threw them on the ground.

"To h—l with you!" he shouted, his face empurpled. "You're fired!" All of his polish stripped from him like peeling veneer, he appeared merely a coarse bully.

Sam came up the veranda in two jumps and a final leap that left him with his hands entwined in Keith's coat collar. He whirled that astounded person half around and slammed him up against the wall of the ranch-house, rumped, gasping, with trembling hands that lifted before the menace of Sam's gun.

"I oughter shoot the tongue out of you befo' I put a slug through yore head," said Sam, standing in front of the promoter, tense as a Jaguar coiled for a spring, his eyes glittering, his voice packed with venom. "You git down on yo' knees, you ring-tailed skunk, an' apologize to this lady. Crook yo' knees; you stinkin' polecat, an' erawl. I'll make you lick her shoes. Down with you or I'll send you straight to judgment!"

"No, Sam, Mr. Manning—it isn't necessary," protested Kate Nicholson. "Please . . ."

Sam looked at her cold-eyed. "This is my party," he said. "I'll do him good. I'll let him off lickin' yo' shoes, he might spile the leather. But he'll git them letters he checked away, git 'em on all-fours, like the sneakin', sinkin', double-crossin' coyote he is. Crook yo' knees first an' apologize!"

Sam fired a shot and the promoter jumped galvanically as the bullet tore through the planking of the ranch house between his trembling knees. "I regret, Miss Nicholson," he commenced huskily, "that I let my temper get the better of me. I was greatly upset. In the matter of your services I was—er—doubtless hasty. It can be arranged."

He shrank at the tap of Sam's gun on his shoulder, willing to his knees. "She wudn't work fo' you fo' the time it takes a rabbit to dodge a rattler," said Sam. "She never did work fo' you. It was Molly's money paid her. Kate's goin' to stay right here as long as she chooses an' I . . ."

Catching Kate Nicholson's gaze, the admiring look of a woman who has never before been championed, conscious of the fact that he had blurted out her Christian name and disclosed the secret of that touch of intimacy between them, Sam grew crimson through his tan. Kate Nicholson's face was rosy; both were embarrassed.

"Thank you, Mr. Manning," she said. "Please let him get up, and put away your pistol."

"Git up," said Sam, "an' go pick up them letters."

Keith gathered up the envelopes and presented them, with a bow, to the governess. He had recovered partial poise and his face was pale as wax, his eyes evil.

"I'll mail them, Miss Nicholson," said Sandy. "Let's go." He took Sam aside as the car swung round and up to the porch. "Sammy," Sandy's eyes twinkled, "I didn't save you an' Miss Nicholson was so well acquainted."

Same looked his partner in the eyes and used almost the same words for which he had just fumed Keith. But he said them with a smile. "You go plumb to h—l!"

Creel, president of the Hereford National bank, a banker keen at a bargain, shot out his underlip when Keith, with Sandy in attendance, tendered him the money for all shares of the Molly mine sold in Hereford, including his own.

"You say the mine has petered out?" he asked Keith, with palpable suspicion. Keith glanced swiftly at Sandy sitting across the table from him in the little directors' room back of the bank proper. Sandy sat sphinx-like. As if by accident, his hands were on his hips, the fingers resting on his gun butts.

"That is the news from my superintendent," said Keith. "I wish I could doubt it. Under the circumstances, consulting with Mr. Bourke, who represents the majority stock, we concluded there was no other action for us to take but to recall the shares, although the money had actually passed."

"Humph!" Keith's snavity did not appear entirely to smooth down Creel's chagrin at losing what he had considered a good thing. He smelt a mouse somewhere. "There are only two reasons for repurchasing such stock," he said crisply. "The course you take is rarely honorable and suggests great credit. The second reason would be a strike of rich ore rather than a failure."

"I will guarantee the failure, Creel," said Sandy. "If, at any time, a strike is made in the Molly, I shall be glad to transfer to you personally the same amount of shares from my own holdin's. I'll put that in writin', if you prefer it."

"No," said Creel. "It ain't necessary." He glumly made the retransfer. Sandy visced Keith's accounts and took Keith's check for the balance, placing it to a personal account for Molly. The check was on the Hereford bank and it practically exhausted Keith's local resources.

Keith's powerful car made nothing of the few miles between Hereford and the Three Star and it was only mid-afternoon when they arrived. Molly and Donald Keith were still absent, there was no sign of Brandon.

Keith stayed in his car, smoking, ignoring the very existence of the ranch and its people. The afternoon wore on with the sun dropping gradually toward the last quarter of the day's march. At four o'clock one of the Three Star riders came in at a gallop, carrying double. Behind him, clinging tight, was Donald Keith, woe-begone, almost exhausted, his trim riding clothes snagged and soiled, his shining puttees scuffed and scratched.

He staggered as he slid out of the saddle and clung to the cante, head sunk on arms until Sandy took him by the arm. Keith sprang from his car and came over. Sam and Mormon hurried up.

"What's this?" demanded Keith angrily, suspicion rife in his voice. "I picked him up three mile back, hooiin' it. He was headin' fo' Bitter Flats but he wanted the ranch," said the cowboy to Sandy, ignoring Keith. "We burned wind an' leather comin' in, seein' Jim Pillsoll an' some of his gang have made off with Miss Molly!"

"Where'd this happen?" demanded Sandy. "Sam, go git Pronto fo' me an' saddle up."

"That's the h—l of it," said the rider. "The pore d—n fool don't know. Plumb loco! Scared to death. Been wanderin' round sence afore noon."

Donald Keith sagged suddenly and Sandy picked the lad up in his arms, strode with him to the car and laid him on the cushions.

"Git some water," he ordered Keith. "We've got no lick on the ranch."

Keith bent, opened a shallow drawer beneath the seat and produced a silver flask. He unscrewed the top and poured some liquor into it. Sandy raised the boy's head and lifted the whisky to his pallid lips, gray as his face where the flesh matched the powdery alkali that covered it.

The cordial trickled down and Donald's eyes opened. Almost immediately color came back into his cheeks and lips and he tried to sit up. Sandy helped him.

"Now, sonny," he said. "Tell us about it. Where'd you leave Molly?"

"I don't know just where. I wasn't noticin' just which way we rode. She did the leadin'. I don't know how I ever got back."

"Didn't she tell you where you were ridin' fo'?"

"She didn't name it. It was a little lake in some canyon where Molly said there used to be heavers."

"Beaver Dam canyon," said Sandy excitedly. "You left here 'bout seven. How fast did you trail?"

"We walked the horses most of the time. It was all uphill. And I looked at my watch a little before it happened. It was a quarter of eleven. We saw some men ahead of us. Molly wondered who they could be. Then they disappeared. We were ridin' in a pass and two of them showed again, coming out of the trees ahead of us. One of them, on a big black horse, held up his hand."

"Jim Pillsoll?"

"Yes. Molly recognized him and spoke to him to get out of the trail. Grit was trailin' us. Pillsoll wouldn't move. I heard more horses back of us and I turned to look. Two more men were coming up behind. Molly spurred Blaze on and out at Pillsoll with her quirt. He grabbed her hand with his left. Grit sprang up at him and he got out his gun from the shoulder sling and shot him."

"Shot the dawg? Hit him?"

"Yes, in the leg. He fired at him again, but Grit got into the brush."

"Just what were you doin' all the time?" Sandy knew the lad was a tenderfoot, knew he would have been small use on such an occasion, but the thought of Grit rising to the rescue, falling back shot, brought the taunt.

"The two men behind told me to throw up my hands," said young Keith, his face reddening. "What could I do?"

"Nothin', son. You c'dn't have done a thing. Go on."

"Pillsoll twisted Molly's wrist so that the quirt fell to the ground. The man who was with him tossed his rope over her and they twisted it round her arms. I had the muzzle of a rifle poked into my ribs. They made me get off my horse. And they made me walk back along the trail. They fired bullets each side of me and laughed at me when I dodged."

Donald's eyes were filled with tears of helplessness and the remembrance of his helpless rage. "I didn't know what to do. I couldn't rescue Molly without a horse. I only had a revolver against their rifles and I'm not much but it was hard to find the way. I was all in when your man found me."

"All right, my son. Keith, I'm goin' to borrow that flask of yores. Might need it."

He jumped from the car, flask in hand, and ran to the ranch house. Kate Nicholson met him as he entered. "Has anything happened to Molly?" she gasped.

"That's what I'm goin' to find out," Sandy answered. "Mormon, git me my cartridge belt an' some extra shells fo' my rifle."

"You ain't takin' Sam?" asked Mormon, returning with the cartridge belt, Sandy's rifle and a box of shells.

"Sam ain't comin'," said Sandy, filling his rifle magazine and breech, stowing away extra clips. "I'm goin' in alone. Mo'n one 'ud be likely to spoil sign, Mormon, mo'n one is likely to advertise we're comin'."

"They're liable to leave a lookout. Pillsoll's clearin' out of the country an' I'm trailin' him clear through h—l if I have to. Ef he's harmed Molly, I'll stake him out with a green hide wrapped around him an' his eyelids sliced off. I'll sit in the shade an' watch him frizzle an' yell when the hide shrinks in the sun. This is my private play, Mormon. You an' Sam can back it up, but I'm handlin' the cards."

He left the room and they saw him covering the ground in a wolf trot to where Sam, astride his own favorite mount, held Pronto ready saddled. They saw Sam's protest, Sandy's vigorous overruling of it, and then Sandy was up-saddle and away at a brisk lope with Sam gazing after him disconsolately. Keith's car was turning for the trip to Hereford, spurning the dust of the Three Star ranch forever—and not lamented.

Sandy, his eyes like the mica flakes that show in gray granite, his humorous mouth a stern line, little bunches of muscles at the junction of his jaws, held the pinto to a steady lope that ate up the ground, drifting straight and fast across country for the opening in the mesa that he had marked as the short-cut to the spot described by Donald Keith. Every now and then he talked his thoughts aloud, as the lonely rider will and, if the pinto could not understand, he listened with pricked ears.

"Grit must have been hurt pretty bad, I'm afraid. Wonder who the three were with Pillsoll? They've gone to the Hideout an' we got to find it, I'll hawss. Some job, I reckon. But Pillsoll's goin' to be mighty sorry fo' himself befo' long."

Sandy was a crucible filled with glowing white fury. Thoughts of what Pillsoll might achieve in insult and injury to Molly could not be kept out of his mind and they but added fuel. It was not Sandy Bourke of the Three Bar, riding his favorite pinto, but a desperate man on a horse infected with the same grim determination, a man with a face that, despite the fiery heat within, blazing from his eyes, would have chilled the blood of any meeting him.

The place it had taken Molly and young Keith nearly three hours to reach in leisurely fashion. Sandy gained in one, splashing through the shallows of Willow creek at the ford below the big bend and giving Pronto the chance to cool his fellocks and rinse out his mouth in the cold water.

Ahead lay the chimney ravine that led around into Beaver Dam canyon. In which Molly and the boy had been attacked. Sandy rode on down the narrow trail. Once in a while he broke a branch and left it swinging as a guide to Sam when he should follow with the riders from the ranch.

The tracks of Molly's Blaze and the horse Donald had been riding were plain as print to Sandy. He even noticed the slot of Grit's pads here and there in softer soil.

The place of the struggle was plain. The brush was trampled. To one side of the trail there was a clot of blood, almost black, with flies buzzing attention to it. It must have come from Grit.

"I'll score one fo' you, Grit, while I'm about it," muttered Sandy as he dismounted and carefully surveyed the sign. Six horses had gone on, one left.

Sandy swung up the heavy stirrups and tied them above the saddle seat. He stripped the reins from the bridle and pulled down Pronto's wise head.

"Hit the back-trail fo' home, I'll hawss," he said. "If I need me a mount to git back I'll borrow one. I got to go belly-trailin' pritty soon."

He gave the pinto a cautious slap on the flank and Pronto started off down the trail. So far Sandy believed he had not been seen. If he had, a rifle-shot would have been the first warning.

A buzzard hung in the early evening sky, circling high and then suddenly dropping in a swoop.

"Looks like Grit's cashed in," thought Sandy. "That bird was a late comer, at that."

But it was not Grit. The ravine curved, forked. One way led to Beaver Dam lake, the other rifled deep through rocky outcrop, leading to the Waterline range. The boundary fence crossed it. Two posts had been broken out, the wire flattened. Through the gap led the sign that Sandy followed. The clouds were assembling for sunset overhead, the moon just topped the eastern cliffs, beginning to send out a measure of reflected light. A beam struck a little cylinder, the emptied shell of a thirty-three rifle. There was another close by. And scanty soil was marked with more hoofs. Sandy halted, wondering the key to the puzzle. Did it mean a quarrel between Pillsoll's men? Altogether he figured there had been a dozen horses over the ground. It was only a swift guess but he knew it close to the mark. Had Pillsoll been joined or attacked? And . . . ?

Walking cat-footed, he made no sound but suddenly three buzzards rose on heavy wings and he went swiftly to where they had been squaring. A dead man lay up against the cliff, a saddle blanket thrown over his face. This had held off the carrion birds. The body was limp and still warm, it had been a corpse only a short time. Sandy took off the blanket.

It was Wyatt! A bullet had made a small hole in his skull by the right temple and crashed out through the back of his head in a bloody gap!

CHAPTER XIX

The Hideout.

The row that had culminated at the Waterline ranch, ending in the trouble between Pillsoll and Wyatt, had brewed steadily. There had collected, besides Pillsoll's riders, Butch Parsons, Hahn and others of Pillsoll's following who had been forced from their livelihood as gamblers. They still hung together, waiting for Pillsoll to make a clean-up of his horses and move to places where they were less discredited.

Pillsoll had lost caste as a leader. His moods were morose or bragging. His ascendancy was gone. The crowd clung to him like so many leeches, waiting for a split of the proceeds of the sale of horses that he could uppeared eager to buy in quantity. Ready cash was short. There were frequent quarrels; through it all there worked the leaven of Wyatt's jealousy, fermenting steadily.

When the split came, after an all-night session with cards and liquor, following the refusal of a dealer to buy the herd, it was not merely a matter between Wyatt and Pillsoll. Sides were taken and the weaker driven from the ranch. Preparations were made for departure.

"It's a rotten mess," Butch Parsons told Pillsoll. "Wyatt or one of the others'll tell all they know. We'll go South. That's my plan. You can find a buyer in Tucson. Put the horses in the Hideout. There's grub there and a safe place to lay low if anything goes wrong. They'll have a fine time proving up the horses as stolen. We've got to take a chance. There's a good chance of a sale in Tucson."

Within an hour the herd, already corralled for the chance of a quick sale, was being driven to the glen known as the Hideout, a little mountain park with water and good feed where Pillsoll placed the horses that his men drove off from far-away ranches, or Pillsoll bought from other horse dealers of his own sort, keeping them there until their brands were doctored and possible pursuit died down. There were two entrances to the Hideout, one through a narrow gut almost blocked by a fallen bowlder, with only a passage wide enough to let through horse and rider single file, a way that could be easily barricaded or masked so that none would suspect any opening in the cliff. The second led by a winding way through a desolate region, over rock that left no sign and wound by twists and turns that none but the initiated could follow. The place, accidentally discovered, was perfect for its purpose. There was feed enough for the entire herd for a month. There was a cabin in a side gully of the park, near the blocked entrance, the whole place was honeycombed with caves, in the towering sidewalls and underground.

Five of the nine left of the Waterline outfit drove the herd. Hahn and Parsons could both ride, but they were not experts at handling horses. They chose to go with Pillsoll and the outfit-cook, while the rest took the long way round to the other way in. The four lingered to give the rest a start.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK.

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation. Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. If soreness fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used in cold cream.

THE SEASON FOR SAUERKRAUT

It has been known for years that sauerkraut was a good, wholesome vegetable food, but recent study tells us that it is bristling with the vitamins which are so essential for health and growth in the young.

The juice of the kraut is active with bacilli which destroy the disease or bad kinds of bacilli. We are thus advised to save the cabbage juice from sauerkraut and drink it. One physician prescribes a wineglassful of the juice before meals and before retiring—a cure for all kinds of stomach troubles.

Doctor Willey says: "Cooking destroys or injures the activities of some of the vitamins to some extent, although there are enough left in working condition to make cooked cabbage wholesome. After all there is no form of cabbage which can be used to such an advantage as sauerkraut."

We understand the value of silage for the dairy industry, and the pleasure the cattle take in that food; it is of great value to the dairy herd. Sauerkraut is another form of silage and much more healthful eaten raw than when cooked, as is fresh, plain cabbage.

The acidity of the sauerkraut saves the vitamins in cooking, as they are able to resist a high temperature much better in an acid than an alkaline medium.

A leading authority says: "Sauerkraut, especially the juice, is an invaluable food to the stomach and bowels. There is nothing better for impure blood."

Metchnikoff of the Paris Institute discovered the little lactic acid bacilli which thrive in buttermilk, kumiss, matzoon, Bulgarian clabber and yalhourt. These lactic acid germs destroy the poisons in our systems and the vitamins are the strongest and most energetic for building growth and health.

Sailing men know the value of sauerkraut, as it is always a food carried on ships to keep the men in good health and free from scurvy.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

BEATRICE

SCORES of lovely women have answered to the name of Beatrice. It comes from the old verb beo, meaning to make happy or bless, but because the Beatrices of history have invariably been extraordinarily beautiful does not signify that they have been happy, nor that their loveliness has given pleasure to beholders, for some of them have been the wickedest women of their time and brought suffering and destruction wherever they went. So it seems rather curious that the name should have such an auspicious and indeed ecclesiastical beginning.

The church first used the word beo to apply to her departed members who were gathered together somewhere on the Isle of the Blessed, and in time it was bestowed on living members. There was even a St. Beatus of Beat, who was an anchorite near Vendome in the Fifth century. The original Beatrice, called then Beatrix, is said to have been borne by a Christian maiden who in Diocletian's persecution drew the murdered bodies of her brothers from the Tiber and buried them. She afterward shared their fate and her relics were enshrined in a church in Rome.

But lovely and estimable as this maiden was, it is not she who is remembered so vividly as the exquisite Beatrice Portinari, love of Dante's youth, whom he immortalized in verse and who represents, with him, one of the famous loves of history. Dante has set a standard for feminine beauty in all subsequent Beatrices when he says:

One charm remark, peculiarly hers—
An elegance unmatched with modesty combined;
"And would you see it in a living proof,"
Says Thought to me, "attend well to thy mind,
When, with a lady elegant and fair
Harmoniously conjoined, she moves along;
Then as the brilliant stars seem chased away,
By greater brightness of the advancing sun,
So vanish other charms when hers are viewed."

Unfortunately for the world, the "habits of virtue and of loyalty" of which Dante also sings are not to be found in some of the Beatrices of early centuries. Beatrice de Cenci, for instance, had a heart as black as her face was lovely.

The French have adopted Beatrix and added to it Benoitte, deriving the latter from benus, an adjective taken from the same beo and meaning good. From the same source comes the Italian Benditta, Betta, and Bettina, which is usually and erroneously considered a diminutive of Elizabeth. Spain has contributed Benta and Germany gives us Benedikta and Benedictine. It remained for America to evolve the good old chorus favorite, "Trixie."

It is impossible to overestimate the effect of color in determining the supposed influence of gems upon the fortunes and health of their wearers. For that reason, every Beatrice should include a bit of basalt among her jewels to insure the immunity from evil which the talisman promises. While she wears it, Saturday should be her lucky day and 4 her potent number.

EAST JORDAN WINS FROM PETOSKEY 16 TO 3 IN PRACTICE GAME

Petoskey League Club came to East last Sunday with an inexperienced baseball team and were badly handicapped when they went against the fast Jordanites.
 Ed. LaLonde, veteran of last year's team, was back in centerfield and fields his position as good as ever. The Kid said he is going to make this season his best—and watch him go.
 As to the game itself, there was not much to it except that our boys got a good batting practice out of it. This is Johnson's second victory of the season. The dope—

SHAW TAKES OVER M. A. C. PRESIDENCY

R. S. Shaw, dean of agriculture and director of the agricultural experiment station at the Michigan Agricultural College for the past twenty years, and acting president of the college from September 1921 until April 1922, has been appointed acting-president to succeed David Friday, whose resignation was announced last week, to become effective June 1st.

Dean Shaw is intimately acquainted with phases of Michigan's agricultural problems and is known personally by thousands of the state's farmers. This broad range of practical experience, coupled with his proved ability as an executive and leader, qualifies Shaw unusually well for the executive tasks he will face as executive officer of M. A. C.
 It is understood that, while Dean Shaw will carry the title of acting-president, and that a permanent incumbent for the position will be sought by the State Board of Agriculture during the coming months, the Board has nevertheless vested Shaw with full powers to carry on the complete and active executive work of the institution.
 David Friday, president since April 1, 1922, resigned to accept a position with the New School of Social Research at New York City. It is understood that Friday will probably spend much of his time in Washington, D. C., carrying on extensive investigation and writing projects, and continuing many of the analytical studies he has started while president of M. A. C.

What does your washing cost?

A laundress would cost you about $200 a year, yet a Thor can be had for $125. It's more costly to do without a Thor—even if you do the work yourself.

The Thor returns its price every year in the saving on clothes alone. Thor dissolves the dirt—does not pound or rub it out. There's great satisfaction, too, in having the clothes washed under your own sanitary, home conditions.

Rome Believed 3,000 Years Old.
Rome—Rome was founded 3,100 years ago, on and about Monte Mario hills, according to archaeological discoveries made by Professor Dall'Osso which indicate that in the Twelfth century, B. C., an artistic race called the Palasgi crossed Alban and Palatine hills, united with warriors and industrial clans called the Pebengesi who occupied other Roman hills, and founded the city of Rome before the year 753 B. C. as claimed by some authorities.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Albion—The corner-stone laying of the new James W. Sheldon memorial hospital here last week was featured by an address by Dr. Samuel Dickie, president emeritus of Albion college.

Bay City—The largest pleasure yacht ever built on the Saginaw river was launched at the Defoe steel shipyards here. The vessel is Windsor 2nd, built for G. W. Megeath, of Omaha. Her hull is of steel.

Owosso—George Brown, former Bancroft resident, has returned from the West where he had spent 20 years in a vain search for his sister, Mrs. Mabel Fox. Mrs. Fox moved West many years ago and Brown lost track of her.

Grand Rapids—The third gift of $10,000 from the same anonymous donor, has been received by J. J. Heimenga, president of Calvin college, for the $100,000 dormitory to be erected this summer. The gift swells the fund to $32,000.

Detroit—A ball pitched in the third inning of a City league baseball game on Northwestern high school field, last week, hit Joe Lan, 26 years old, on the head, fracturing his skull. He was taken to the hospital, where he died several hours afterward.

Fenton—Aviator John Burns opened a flying school at his aviation field here. This is the second school of its kind to be operated here, the first having been conducted by O. E. Williams, who later was killed while giving an exhibition in Georgia.

Ironwood—The annual upper peninsula firemen's tournament will be held in Ironwood July 17, 18 and 19. Thirty-three towns and cities will be represented at the big meet most of which will send the old time running teams for the track events.

Detroit—Lieut. Col. Orville G. Brown, medical corps, United States army, has been detailed to act as instructor of the medical department of the Thirty-second division, National Guard, and will take his station at Detroit. He is now at Fort Benning, Ga.

Grand Rapids—Injuries suffered two years ago when a gun accidentally exploded, are believed to have caused the death of Ernest M. Monnette, 27 years old, youngest member of DeMolai commandery, Knights Templar. His grandfather, Captain E. A. Kaler, is the second oldest Mason in the city.

Lansing—Governor Grosbeck, signed a bill providing for a one-man securities commission to become effective immediately. In the past this commission has been composed of the attorney general, banking commissioner and commissioner of insurance together with an executive officer.

Grand Rapids—Instructors in the Grand Rapids public schools will use the encampments of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Spanish-American war veterans for lessons in patriotism. That the children may attend the encampment parade, the schools will be closed the morning of June 7.

Drink Water If Kidneys Bother

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaker; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness. To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
