Just as soon as our warriors got on the war path the ball went all over the The Boyne City players became exhausted chasing the apple. If Boyne City thinks they have a ball club they are badly mistaken. The only ball player on their team was Elmer Haynor and he is an Afton boy.

The game started with the Mayor of Boyne City and Dr. Parks as the bat The mayor threw the first ball and Park's caught, while Morgan missed the first ball which was a strike right over the heart of the plate.

Sam Kamradt got the first home run of the season. Every time he went to bat, Boyne City closed their eyes.

Morgan (Snowball) had a poor day at the bat—he only got two hits. Ed LaLonde (the Detroit kid) had all the fun in the field by catching all the flies that came out his way. H. Kamradt (Dutchy) got three hits. The last time to bat he was struck in the leg by a pitched ball which crip pled him up a bit but will be all right by next Sunday-thanks to Dr. Parks for his prompt attention to our ball

Covey (Pepper) also got thrre hits which isn't so bad for a day's work.

COMMUNITY CHATAUOUA IN EAST JORDAN JULY 25-29 INCLUSIVE

We think it none too soon to begin o advertise one of the biggest events East Jordan has had in some time. The Central Community Chatauqua takes place from July 25th to 29th, inclusive. about twenty-five men have assumed the risk of making a success of this undertaking. This does not mean that Boyne City fan brought out a goat all they can do it alone. This is somedecorated to kill and we sure did kill thing for the uplift and benefit of the whole community and region round about, and nearly every progressive

More details of the committee and the program will be in The Herald in a future issue so, where you can, mention to visitors and others about the Chatauqua.

The meeting of the committee will be called within a few days. Every one will have to assume a certain amount of responsibility or the thing will be killed from the beginning. Let's make 'it go!

R. G. WATSON'S HOME DAMAGED BY FIRE MONDAY AFTERNOON

The home of R. G. Watson on North Main Street was damaged by fire Monday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock. The flames were discovered in the roof and before it could be checked the roof was practically destroyed, while both the interior of the house and house hold goods were somewhat damaged by water. CERTIFIED SEED POTATO GROWERS ATTENTION.

No doubt every potato grower who grew certified seed last year has noticed with interest and curiosity that there will be two organizations receiving applications for inspection and certification service for the coming year in the certified seed potato indus-

These two organizations are the Michigan Potato Producer's Association and the Michigan Potato Growers Exchange.

Your humble servant, the County Agent, has digested as thoroughly as possible the rules and regulations governing the certification of potatoes in each of these two organizations. This office is being constantly consulted as to which organization to line up with. It would seem that with the two organizations that any grower ought to encounter satisfaction this year. The most apparent differences as found by this investigation of the two organizations are as follows:

1. The Michigan Potato Producers' Association states in their rules and regulations that certified seed must be planted in order to have potatoes cer-tified this year.

2. The Potato Producers Associations assumes no responsibility in the marketing of the potatoes, although it is understood that the grower will have the co-operation of the Michigan State Farm Bureau and the assistance of the office of the Michigan Potato Producers Association in the marketing of their certified seed. Grasshoppers Are Returning Better Be Safe Than Sorry. Get Arsenic and be Prepared.

Reports have come in from some sections of the County that the grasshoppers are again showing up in numerous quanities. The old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," is a very adaptable one in this case. Following are the two most common baits used in fighting this pest: CRIDDLE MIXTURE

Criddle-mixture is horse-manure with an arsenical, and slightly salted. It is to be distributed about the field ful in combating grasshoppers, as it takes advantage of their well known love of salt. The proportions are as follows: White arsenic, one pound; salt, two pounds; fresh horse-manure, 100 pounds or five three-gallon pailfuls. The salt is dissolved in a pail of water, the poison stirred in, and the whole mixed with the horse-manure in a half barrel.

Add enough water to produce a good stiff mash and broadcast. The ethyl acetate and amyl acetate are not absolutely necessary, but they do make the bait attractive. Remember you can get the white arsenic at your Co-ops by paying only the handling charges. Don't get more than you need as the price of this stuff has gone up and it is valuable.

WISCONSIN "WETS" WIN IN TEST VOTE

Madison, Wis.-The Wisconsin assembly, striking the first western blow at absolute prohibition, Thursday, approved the Tucker bill to repeal the state dry enforcement law and sent it to engrossment. The vote of approval was 48 to 43.

The question of final passage in the assembly is expected to be decided in favor of the "wets" by virtue of the two 48 to 43 votes favorable to the measure.

Shortly before the approval and engrossment vote, the assembly refused to kill the repealer by an identical ballot. After final passage the measure would then go to the senate which has killed a half dozen less drastic in small masses and is especially use-ful in combating grasshoppers, as it Prohibition forces will mobilize to attempt its death in the senate. They will probably attempt to enlist the "moral support" of Senator Robert M. LaFoilette and Governor Blaine by convincing them it is too drastic.

gage Industries.

Berlin-The German note placed n the hands of the allies late Thursproposes payment of exactly 1,200,000,000 gold marks annually as eparations.

The amount in gold marks which Germany proposes to pay each year equivalent to $300,000,000 dollars. Chancellor Cuno proposes to raise his amount as follows:

1.-Five hundred million marks through a mortgage on the national railraads 2.--Another five hundred million marks by mortgaging industry, commerce, lands and factories. 3.-Two hundred million marks by a luxury tax. The latter amount would be comensurately increased as the ecostability of Germany is restored, Cuno pointed out to the allies. Such a tax before the war vielded considers that it could increase as conditions improve. An international conference would be called to suggest any changes in the plan.

The official text of the German note declares that it would not be honest to promise more than, the nation would be able to pay, and that, moreover the ability to pay is a question on which opinions differ,

A NGEL-LIKE is the translation of Angela, from the Greek angelos, meaning messenger, which the Romans interpreted as "heavenly messenger" and hence "angel." Angelos first be-came proper in the Byzantine empire. It is believed to have begun as epithet since it comes to light in Konstantinos Angelos, a young man of noble family whose beauty caused him to be the choice of the Princess Theodora Komena in 1100. Because of the beauty of the family, Angelos became its surname. The misdirected crusade of the Venetians brought it to Greece and a monastic saint, who preached at Pa lermo and was afterward murdered by a wicked count whose evil deeds he had rebuked, was one of the first to bear the name. The Carmeliter claimed St. Angelo as a saint of their order and the name, in both its muscu-line and feminine forms, caught the fancy of Italy.

It became popular in the other na tions, due perhaps to its inseparable associations with beauty, and also to the fashion of complimenting women as angels. The derivative Angelica is noted in romance as the faithless lady for whose sake Orlando lost his heart and senses. But she was a gratuitous invention of Boiardo and Aristo, for Spanish ballads and earlier Italian poets make him the faithful husband of Alda. However, Angelica obtained that character for beauty wi made the name popular through the centuries. It has been a particular favorite with authors through all ages of literature, particularly in mid-Victorian fiction, where its heritage of fragile, virtuous beauty fitted it exceptionally for the name of its hero-ines. Angela, from time immemorial, has been applied to the fluffy, youthful, unsophisticated type with curly hair and wide innocent blue eyes. The French call her Angelique and Angeline. England has evolved the derivative Angelot- Angiola, Angioletta and Angiolota are the Italian forms. The Teutonic versions are Engel and Engelchen. Ancela is Polish and Anjela and Anjelina have been evolved in Bohemian. It is fitting that the pure beauty of Angela should have the pearl as her talismanic jewel. It assures her charm and purity and popularity. Should she dream of pearls, she will find new faithful friends. Monday is her lucky day, when she wears a pearl, and 7 her lucky number.

It appears that apes understand the action of a lock. One animal in a city "zoo" was taught to unlock his door and it was amusing to see him choose the right key and let himself out. But the experience taught the keepers never to teach another animal. Twice this creature was found at large in the gardens; he must have opened the doors with tools of his own making.

BRITISH TROOPS ENTER RUHR

Artillery and Infantry Detachments Arrive in the Industrial Centre of Germany.

Paris-A critical situation is de veloping through the occupied Ruhr district following the assassination of two French officers.

Dispatches from Dusseldorf report hat the two officers were ambushed by three Gorman civilians near Dort mund. Their assailants fired several revolver shots before the officers could draw their guns. Both Frenchmen were found dead.

Occupational authorities are greatly incensed over the crime and dispatches from French sources say the Germans are "in an ugly mood."

Berlin-British military forces have entered Dusseldorf in the Ruhr valley, it was stated here. A section of ar tillery and infantry was reported as having arrived in the industrial cen-ter, which has been in the hands of French occupational troops since the Ruhr first was scized.

Government advices declare additional British infantry and artillery detachments are enroute to Dussel

While it was at first believed the movement was only a "parade" measure, there is now some evidence that the British intend to take over the southern section of the Ruhr, and per mit the French and Belgians to hold the north.

Germany will continue her policy of passive resistance in the Ruhr valley unabated. This is the answer of Chancellor

Water—that was the test! There was water that Cookie had brought in for coffee, half a bucket, by the stove. He felt a sudden repugnance toward it. The slashed veins in his wrists burned and throbbed as if they were oozing molten lead instead of blood. And he was growing weak. If he didn't get a tourniquet fixed he might bleed to death. But what was for Molly, lay still beneath the table. Molly, overtaxed, was in a swoon. Plimsoll sat in a stupor. The door swung wide. Cookie rushed in, his face muddy with alarm.

The shew's gone wrong," he cried to Plimsoll, who stared at him half-comprehending. "For Gawd's sake, what's happened here? Gimme a drink." He snatched at the bottle and swallowed from the neck. "Here, you need a swig. We got to git out of here, pronto. Have you scragged the gel?" He thrust the bottle at Plimsoil, who drank, senses rallying by the urge of danger that emanated from the cook like the sweaty stench of a frightened animal.

"Brandon's gang has come back," said Cookle. "It's the d—dest streak of luck. They must have fell in with Wyatt or some of his pals. They must have been to the ranch. They cut off the boys and the horses over by Sand crick! Reynolds got clear. He saw them comin' an' streaked it. They were shootin' like h—l, he said. Hahn an' Butch has gone up to the lookout to . . . Hear that?"

That was a single rifle-shot, followed by the others, the last almost as one,
"H—l" cried Plimsoll, "they've got us this end. It's Wyatt. Just my d-d luck for him to meet up with Brandon."

Cookie ran outside and Plimsoll followed to the door, lethargy leaving him in the face of disaster, though he could not think fast or clearly. Hahn came clattering over the rocks on his horse, his face chalky white.

"Go get him a slug of whisky," Plimsoll ordered Cookie. But Cookle, his face twitching with fright, jumped for his own mount and went galloping down the valley to the

The handkerchief about Plimsoll's wounded wrist was now a sodden rag. but the loss of blood had cleared his brain. He set his left arm about Hahn and helped him into the cabin Molly was stirring and Plimsoll scowled blackly at her. He gave Hahn a drink.

"Brace up," he said; "what happened? I know about Reynolds. I mean at the lookout." "We no more than made the look-nt," said Hahn, "before six men came riding along, heeled for trouble One of them was the black-bearded guy from California who was here with that Brandon, first time they came nosing around. And another was Wyatt. Wyatt was just starting to point 'em out the entrance when Butch lets him have it. Hits him smack in the forehead. Before he could show 'em the way in. He may have told 'em about it on the way up. But Blackbeard must have caught the shine of Butch's barrel. He fires back—they all had their rifles handy cross the pommel—the bullet goes plumb through the tree and knocks Butch down. Went through both hips. He falls against me and I show in the open, sliding on that d-d slippery lar rock, to his left the curve of the blocking bowlder with the skeleton tree topping it, withered in the cleft that had first nourished, then denied ized. But, if he could bring Grit back, it nourishment. It gleamed silver gray, attracting his attention. As he gazed his sharp ears caught the tiny crack of a brittle branch. Instantly he dropped to all fours as a spurt of flame showed from the tree and a bullet whined over him, to smack against the rock and fall flattened.

Sandy did not move. He knew that, to the man firing, his fall might have seemed a hit, that he had beaten the missile by the space of a wink. heard more broken boughs, as if his assailant were clumsily, assuredly, clambering out of ambush, and he shifted silently into position, rifle set down, both guns ready. There came a strange thrashing sound, a groan of mortal anguish, silence. If this was mortal anguish, shience. If this was a trick, it was a crude one. Sandy waited. That groan, half sigh, half rattle, could not be mistaken. He half circled the bowlder, gliding up a flattened traverse, and saw, lying out-spread over a low bough of the withered tree, face to the moon, gun away from the curling hand, Butch Parsons.

With ready gun Sandy reached him, bent, turned him on his side. A bullet had ranged through both hips, shattering them. The spine must have been injured. There were pud-dles of blood that told the injury was some hours old. Butch had lain there paralyzed, passed by Brandon's men as dead, lingering like the traditional snake until sunset to see and recognize Sandy coming through the gap. to use his last remnant of life to pull trigger and so to die, the injured ver-tebrae giving away to the effort, the spark of life pinched out.

Sandy left him and returned to the gap. He could still read sign, plain as it was on every side. He found the side-gulch, saw the cabin, saw Hahn's saddle horse grazing free, Blaze in the corral, the cabin door open with the moon streaming in. He had pieced out the puzzle to his own satisfaction. Brandon and his men had arrived and, in Hereford, they had run across Wyatt, procuring horses there and saving themselves the trip to Three Star. Butch's body was evidence that they had not been unsuccessful, Wyntt's that the fight had not been all one-sided, the sur-prise not perfect. And, if Plimsoll had been warned, what had become of Molly?

He got an answer that made his heart stand still, then pound in a rush of action. On the floor, in the beam of the moon, lay the luck-piece, a few links of gold chain attached to the coin. Stooping for it, he brushed a strand of brown hair. Then he saw Grit's body beneath the table. Fury boiled in him, chilled to icy wrath and determination. He put away the coin and hauled out the dog's body into the moonlight. It was limber and still warm. Sandy rose from his squat and swiftly examined the cabin. He discovered a lantern with oil in it, which he lit. He had no fear of interruption. Before very long Sam and the Three Star riders would be along. The sight of Blaze suggested that Molly was not far away. If she had gone, by force, or her own free will, the probability was that her own mount and saddle would have been requisitioned. He found warm water in a kettle he had the first-aid kit with its band ages, lodine, lint. And, above all, he had Kelth's silver flask, half full. He did not fail to note the empty bottles on the table, the blood marks where Plimsoll's veins had sprinkled and Grit had stained the floor. He found, too, a button of horn with a fragment of black and white check, torn from Molly's riding coat in the struggle. Sandy's anger crystalized into one ambition beyond the finding of MoHy, and that was to kill Plimsoll, if possible with his hands. He pictured the struggle between the gambler and the girl, desperate on one side, brutal on the other, and, whether the stake had been won or lost, he resolved that Plimsoll should die for that attack. Now his hope hung on Grit. He took the collie's head on his lap and examined the blow made by the butt of Plimsoll's gun. It had laid bare the bone but he did not think it either splintered or fractured. Sandy knew that dog or wolf or coyote will lie in a torpor after being badly wounded and often recover slowly, waking from the recuperating sleep revital-range, but they got me.

"They'll be through any minute Plim. You can't tell how much Wyatt told 'em on the way up. They've got me. I can't ride. My lungs are filling up. Butch is paralyzed—if he ain't dead. A h-l of a wind-up! You can make it out the way Reynolds did. None of the gang that left with Wyatt knows about the side-trail by Spur rock. But you'd better beat it. Me, I've turned my last card. The case is empty!" His head fell forward onto his arms. A trickle of scarlet came from the corner of his mouth. Plimsoll the corner or his mouth. Finason looked at him calculatingly. Hahn could not ride. But he wouldn't die for a while. To leave him here where is wuth is counterfeit."—Washington the raiders would find him might feer, mean a confession wrung from him that would tell of the get-away trail by Spur rock and Nipple peaks. He shook Hahn by the sound shoulder.

"Brace up," he said. "You can hide in Split Rock cave. I'm going to put the girl in there. Take another drink Pick up some grub. There's water in the cave. You can come out soon's the coast is clear."

"I'll not be coming out," said Hahn huskily. "But it's a good move." He weakly collected the bottle, some scraps of food.

Plimsoll stooned over Molly, coming out of her faint, and gagged her with her own scarf as her eyes opened and looked at him. He took off her belt and strapped her arms behind her back. Then, despite his wounded wrist, he lifted her easily enough and strode with her out of the door, Hahn following.

Hahn's horse was standing there obediently with pendent reins anchoring it! Blaze and Plimsoll's black were nipping grass in the little corra where they had been placed. Blaze whinnied at the sight, or the scent, of his mistress. Plimsoll turned into a cleft, stopping at a rock whose al most flat surface was level with his feet, a great mass of granite that some freak of weathering or convulsion of earthquake had split almost in half. Into the crevice a wild grape-vine had twined, and died.

"Can you make it, Hahn?" he asked. The dealer nodded and knelt, using his sound arm to aid himself by the tough fibers, bracing with his knees.

Down some ten feet in the crack he booked up, his ghastly face pallid in the shadow, with an attempt at a grin. "Good-by, Plim," he said. "Good luck! What do I do with the girl?"

"Keep her from calling out. She's gagged but she might try it. Make her nurse you. Do anything you d-please with her!"

Hahn dropped out of sight. Plim-soll did not wait, but picked Molly up from where he had deposited her helpless bundle, on the rock.

"The bottom's soft down there," he said. "Sand. It ain't more than fifteen feet. Down you go, you h-1 cat! They'll have a fine time locating you And you've got a dying man for com pany. He'll be a dead one before morning."

He lowered her, feet down, released her and watched her disappear. He swung about and ran back to the corral, his hurt arm throbbing with his exertion. He flung himself into the saddle of the black horse, once leader of a slickear herd of wild mus tangs, magnificent for speed and symmetry, worthy a better master, and calloned out of the corral, out of the side-ravine, into the open park. The rough towel about his arm was becom ng soaked. Every jump of the black horse seemed to increase the bleed ing. The spurt of fictitious energy that had carried him through since the arrival of Cookie was dying away. But he was on a mount that none could match, he was going on a trail that was hard to follow, practically unknown. Unless he was headed off, he could break through. At Nipple peaks he could rest, attend to his wound, A shout, a bullet whistling past that nicked the stallion's ear and sent him plunging and bucking, warned him that his enemies had found the way in and were after him. He did not look back, but bent forward in his saddle and sunk the spurs into the black's flanks. The half-tamed mustang's indignant bounds spoiled the aim of the marksmen, and, though the steel-nosed missiles hummed like bees about them, they gained the shelter of the same trees that had covered lookie. Belly almost to ground, the black swept over the cropped turf at racing speed, the drum of his hoofs like distant thunder, crest high, crimson-satin nostrils flaring, mad at the sting of the red notch in his ear.

Round the elbow of the Hideout with Brandon's men distanced, into the gorge at the south end. A wild cramble up a steep slope and the way to Spur rock was clear. Plimsoll smiled grimly. "D-n them, I'll bent them yet!" For a second he was silhouetted against a sky-line, then he plunged down. Fresh droppings told him that Reynolds had won clear. He was safe from pursuit. If the woundhe should have cauterized it. But . .

He reined in for a moment. The sound of a shout rang in his ears. It was an echo, he fancled, it must be an echo, flung back from the mountain walls ahead. But it could mean nothing else than a view-halloo. Someone had glimpsed him disappearing beyond the ridge.

Where Quality Counts Above Everything Else

Quality is more important in an enclosed car than in most any other product in daily use.

Regardless of price, it is not economy to buy a makeshift job in which the quality is skimped and cheapened at every turn. Paint, imitation leather and fibre board too often cover serious structural defects and cotton-and-wool trimming cloths are short lived. The chances are that the buyer will more than pay the difference later - in higher upkeep cost, frequent repairs and ex-cessive depreciation.

The price of the Light-Six Sedan is the lowest at which it is possible to obtain a substantial, high grade hardwood and steel body, upholstered in mohair, in combination with a chassis of proveddependability and performance.

Studebaker's South Bend plants build more high quality closed bodies than those of any other automobile manufacturer and consequently overhead costs are reduced and the price to the customer is low.

The in-built quality of the Light-Six Sedan is evident the moment one gets behind the wheel, and is appreciated far more after twenty-five or thirty thousand miles of service.

The Light-Six Sedan, with its sturdy four-door body, its improved L-head motor, and the excellence of its chassis, combines distinction of appearance with a reliability of performance, a degree of comfort and economy of operation unknown in any other car at anywhere near its price.

EASY TO DARKEN

YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED BY THIS SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

Decreased Number of Work Animals Makes It Difficult to Maintain Soil Fertility.

PLANT SOIL-BUILDING CROPS

Clovers and Other Legumes Are Good as They Gather Nitrogen From the Air-Lime Will Prevent Any Sourness.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Years ago, when manure was plenti-ful around cities and on farms, the question of keeping up the fertility of the back yard or farm garden was very simple, but with the decreased num-ber of work animals now being kept especially in cities, it is no longer pos sible to get manure in sufficient quan tity to maintain the fertility of our The farmer has been comselled to blant soil-building crops in order to keep up his fertility and the back-yard gardener must necessarily resort to some similar method. Clovers and other legume crops are consid ered best for this purpose, as they gather nitrogen from the air, but legume crops are subject to a good many limitations and do not always fill the bill for the home gardener Possibly old-fashloned rye comes near er answering the requirements of the home gardener than any other crop Rye grows anywhere from North to South, or in the Northwestern sections barley may be used instead, suggests the United States Department of Ag-Work During Winter,

One home gardener who always has good garden follows the practice of buying a small supply of seed rye along in August and keeping a palifull of this seed hanging inside the door of his garage, where his garden tools are kept. Beginning about the middle or 20th of August, this gardener follow the practice of sowing rye on every foot of his garden that becomes vacant In fact, he goes further than this and sows rye between practically all of his fall crops. The rye makes a good start in the autumn and gets a firm hold on the soil before winter sets in All during the winter, whenever the ground is not frozen, the roots of the rye are developing and working their way between the soil particles and are picking up every choice morsel of plant food that nature sets free in the soil.

This gardener keeps chickens and all during the winter, when the ground is not covered with snow, he turns his laying hens out upon the growing rye in his garden for a short time before they go to roost in the evening. This gives the hens the necessary green eed to stimulate egg production and costs practically nothing Rye Turned Under,

In the springtime, as soon as the sof is dry enough to be plowed or spaded and before the rye has made any appreciable growth, the land is complete ly turned over and the roots of the rye have formed almost a perfect mat o sod in the top three inches of soil. In turning under the rye the important thing is to see that it all goes under because if any of the tors are left sticking out of the soil they will grow have to be worked out vith a ho later. In ten days to two weeks after the rye is turned under the roots decay and, as there is not enough of the top of the rye present to give any difficulty the soil breaks down in a loose mellow loam and every particle of the plant food that the rye has picked up during the winter time becomes available for the summer garden crops. The rye not only prevents the gar den soil from washing during the win-ter, but adds organic matter or green manure to the soil. A very little lime should be sprinkled over the surface after the rve is plr-ved or spaded under, to correct any possible sourness that might be caused by the decay of the rye itself. If more gardeners would plant rye or barley or even wheat on their graden soil during the fall of the year, "e would hear less about the scarcity and need of manuro for gardens.

SEED BED FOR SWEET CLOVER

Seems to Germinate Much Better and Make Quicker Growth on Well Packed Soil.

A deep, well worked seed bed such as other crops demand, is decided unfavorable to growing sweet clover, as it seems to germinate much better and make a better growth on well-packed soil a simple covering of the seed being all that is necessary, and many a good stand has been secured by sow ing on unbroken land or on that put to small grain the previous year.

USE PUREBRED SIRES IN IMPROVING HERD

Fifteen-Year Experiment Recently Ended at Iowa Station.

Milk Production of Scrub Cows In creased 83 Per Cent by Their Half-Blood Daughters-Many Farmers Are Afraid.

The value of purebred sires in build ng up a dairy herd is shown by a Af teen-year experiment recently con-cluded at the Iowa Agricultural college. By the use of purebred Holstein bulls, the milk production of the scrub cows was increased 83 per cent by their half-blood daughters and 180 per cent by their three-fourths blood granddaughters. The butterfat production was increased by the daughters 58 per cent, and by the granddaughters 128 per cent.

The offspring in nearly every case showed improvement also in body con-formation, persistency of milk flow and more economical production. A good flow of milk for a short period is not desirable. Animals which have a large milk flow and a long sustained milking period are always to be pre terred.

The superiority of purebreds and grades over scrubs in actual average monthly production is clearly proved by the figures. One of the main reasons the scrubs showed such poor production was their lack of persist The improvement in the offspring in this respect is due entirely to the pure blood of the sire.

Many farmers milking a string o scrub cows want to own better cattle but fear the cost. They are anxious to improve the milking qualities of their herds and really enter in the dairy business. They fear to "buy in' and do not "grow in" because they are unaware of the rapid progress pos sible in grading up. The lowa investigation shows that a herd of profitable producers can be built from a founda tion of common cows where the initial expense is a good purebred sire.

TO PROPERLY MIX BORDEAUX

It is almost as important to properly mix bordeaux as it is to get the quantities of materials right, and it is of far greater importance in the matter of ease of application.

There is a right way and a wrong way of making up bordeaux. For example, suppose you are making a 5:5:50 batch. This would be made up of five pounds of copper sulphate or blue vitriol and five pounds of freshly burned lime in 50 gallons of water. The copper sulphate is dissolved and the lime is slaked separately and then the two are mixed. The right way to do the work is to dilute both the copper sulphate and the lime as much possible. In other words, dissolve the five pounds of copper sulphate in water. This is best done by putting the copper sulphate into a bag and then the bag into the water, near the surface. Bring up the copper sulphate solution to 25 gallons.

Slake the lime, pouring on a little hot water at first, until the lime becomes active, then cold water should be added slowly as the lime slakes until a fairly thin white liquid results. Bring the lime milk mixture up to 25 gallons and then pour into it the solution of copper sulphate, stirring vigorously while doing so.

There is all the difference in the world in bordeaux mixture properly prepared and bordeaux mixture in properly prepared.

SPREAD OF WEEDS ON FARM

Large Percentage of Noxious Plants Are Put on Faim by Improper Planting of Seed, There are many natural agencies such as wind, water, animals, etc. which cause the spread of weeds. There is still another way in which weeds are brought on the farm; that is, by sowing seed which has mixed with it many weed seeds. A large percentage of the weeds are put on the farm by actually planting weed seeds with farm or garden crops. In most cases a farmer sows weed seeds because he is not familiar with them Every farmer should be just as familiar with the bad weed seeds as he is with seeds of wheat, clover and tim-

AVOID SORE EYES OF LAMBS

Trouble Can Be Controlled by Rubbing Back Hairs Which Have Been Scratching Eyeball.

Many a lamb has one or both eyes sore before he is born these days just because the eyelid has turned in against the ball and started Irritation by reason of the hairs scratching the eyeball. The remedy is re-peatedly rubbing it backward several times a day. In a day or two the eye will clear up.
