Feed Sheep on Waste Grain.

Ft. William, Ont.—The feeding of Western sheep and cattle on the screenings from the big elevators at the head of the Lakes has been carried on successfully during the past winter. The animals are brought here from the prairie provinces and finished for shipment to Eastern markets. This plan was inaugurated by R. C. Harvey, an Alberta sheep rancher, two years ago. In 1921 he wintered some 6,000 sheep.

"Canned Blizzards" Predicted.

Washington—Scientists at the Bureau of Standards in Washington have just discovered how to produce a temperature of 425 degrees below zero, freezing hydrogen, the most difficult of all gases to condense, except helium. This degree of coldness, which was the result of experiments in charge of Dr. C. A. Kanot, a chemist, broke all records at the government's experimental laboratory being 115 degrees colder than liquid air.

FOURTH OF JULY TO BE CELEBRATED AT CHARLEVOIX THIS YEAR.

This is Charlevoix's year to celebrate says the Charlevoix Courier and we are going to do it RIGHT. Under an agreement made some three years ago between East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix, each was to celebrate the Fourth in turn and the other two towns were to stay out of it until their respective turns came. Charlevoix started the ball in 1920, Boyne City and East Jordan followed in the order named and now it comes Charlevoix's turn again.

The day will be given over to sports both land and aquatic. East Jordan baseball team will play here and there will be swimming races, field sports and a variety of interesting contests.

The king pin of the attractions will be a series of boxing bouts, held in Charlevoix's natural amphitheatre—what, didn't you hear we had one? Go to the corner of River and Bridge Streets and let your gaze ramble in a northwesterly direction over the grassy slope of the old gravel pit. Can you beat it? Ancient Rome never watched its gladiators bite each others' ears off in a prettier spot. At least one stellar ornament of the leather-pushers art will be on hand to give an exhibition of his powers and two fast boys from somewhere upstate, who are reputed to be "good"; also, two or three local sockers who are pretty handy with their mitts.

In the evening, $500.00 of fireworks will blaze over the town and those who are light of foot and unaffected by corns or other impediments will trip the light fantastic over the pavement to the strains of music which will be on tap during the day, thanks to the efforts of three bands, from East Jordan, Boyne City and Ellsworth, respectively.

We confidently predict a big day. People will pour in from every direction and we want to show them that we have a live wire burg here. Some already know it, others suspect it and—we want to confirm their suspicions. Pedestrians and drivers of cars will have to keep their eyes peeled, as the traffic jam is likely to be enormous. Folks will talk about Fourth of July in Charlevoix for many a day. Now then, altogether—Hip! Hip! H-o-o-r-a-y!!

E. Jordan Defeats Petoskey

Game Cinched With Eight Runs In Second Frame.

East Jordan's bunch of base ball sluggers went after Coby, Petoskey's star twirler, in the second inning of Sunday's game, and before they could be retired had scored eight runs.

This made Johnny Johnson's sixth straight victory. Petoskey only secured four hits off his delivery, while fourteen of their batters were fanned. After the second inning, the locals took it easy and were somewhat loose in fielding.

There is not a man on the team that is batting less than 350.

An unfortunate incident of Sunday's game was when Hill of Petoskey—second man up to bat—attempted to bunt and was hit in the head by one of Johnson's fast breaks. The ball struck him between the cheek bone and ear, knocking him out.

The crowds are becoming larger every Sunday as the interest increases. Over five hundred fans witnessed the contest, some coming from a long distance.

Jack Gunderson, East Jordan's other ace in pitching, is now here and our team is now complete for the season.

With Gunderson in great form, our boys are ready for the game at Pellston next Sunday.

Pellston has a strong team this year, and the coming game will undoubtedly be close.

The ball team will start for Pellston at 10:00 a. m., standard time. If any fans care to drive there who don't know the road, they can follow the ball team.

Building property on Washington consist of five concrete sections on each side of the field, and will cost about $160,000.

Lansing—The State Administrative Board amended its recent motion authorizing the University of Michigan to proceed with the construction of heating tunnels to include the completion of the University Hospital entrance and sufficient work on the building to make it possible to close it up and heat it this winter. No estimate of the cost was given. The work will be paid for from the 1923-24 appropriation.

scopal Church on Wheels," on a larger scale whereby he will be able to give his audiences music by radio

Monroe—Only 14 of the 20 men left of the 1,300 stalwarts who enlisted in the Seventh Michigan Volunteers in 1861 were able to attend the thirty-seventh annual reunion of the regbattles, taking part in the storming of Petersburg during the last days of the war when Col. George Lapointe saved the regiment's flag from capture by wrapping it around the body of a wounded soldier who was supposed to be dead. The flag was proudly exhibited to visitors last week.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

WHY THAT LAME BACK?

That morning lameness — those sharp pains when bending or lifting, make work a burden and rest impossible. Don't be handicapped by a bad back—look to your kidneys. You will make no mistake by following this East Jordan resident's example.

Mrs. Wm. St. Charles says: "I was bothered quite a good deal with my back and after I did my washing my back was so lame and sore I dreaded to move. There was a soreness across my kidneys that hurt me all the time and when I was on my feet a little while my back gave out. I often had headaches and was troubled with dizziness. I was nervous, depressed and irritable. My kidneys were weak and irregular. I saw in the paper how well Doan's Kidney Pills were liked and I decided to try them. I purchased a few boxes at Fite's Drug Store and they cured me."

VACUUM CLEANER AND DUSTLESS MOP ARE CONVENIENCES IN HOME

Some Women Are Still Cleaning House With These Insanitary Tools.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Architecture.)
The feather duster and the broom scatter the dust; the vacuum cleaner and the dustless mop take it up. The carpet is not as easy to clean as the rug; the room also has too many ornaments to catch dust, without mentioning the ruffle on the mantelpiece or the books on the top of the secretary, for which it appears room could be found inside. The presence of the oil lamp and the stove indicates that this home is without some of the conveniences found in the home where the vacuum cleaner is used. A dustless mop, however, is available anywhere, and there are several hand-power carpet sweepers on the market not requiring electricity, any of which collects the dust instead of scattering it.

How Dust May Be Laid.
If a broom must be used, the dust may be laid to some extent by scattering wet shredded newspaper or tea leaves or any of the harmless sweeping compounds offered for sale. The strokes should be even and firm and taken in such a way that the broom or brush is kept on the floor most of the time and not flirited through the air, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The dust cloth should be held in a fairly compact mass, so that the surface to be cleaned is wiped off polished and at the same time the dust is held by the cloth.

Dust From Top Down.
When a room is cleaned small pictures and bric-a-brac should be dusted and removed from the room or placed in a pile and covered. Draperies and portiers should be taken down or pinned up. Furniture, mirrors and large pictures should be dusted and covered with cloths. Both cleaning and dusting should be done from the top down. When a vacuum cleaner is used the process is somewhat different, as fewer articles need to be moved.

Breads Better When Baked.
Breads are much better and sweeter if baked than boiled. They should be put in the oven in a baking pan and turned frequently, then, when tender, served with olive oil and lemon juice.

The real reason for buying Columbias — they last longer

The largest laboratory, devoted to dry cell research, experiments continuously to make them "last longer." Columbia Hot Shot or Columbia Ignitors are "right" for your needs. That's why people have the habit of asking for Columbias.

Columbia Dry Batteries for all purposes are sold by hardware and general stores, electrical and auto supply shops, garages and implement dealers.

How to Read Your Characteristics and Tendencies — the Capabilities or Weaknesses That Make for Success or Failure as Shown in Your Palm

THE HAND OF A SAILOR

THE hand of a successful sailor should be strong, short, firm and broad. A characteristic sign is a well-developed mount of Luna, lying on the outside of the palm near the wrist. It denotes great love of the sea. If there is a star on this mount, it means danger by water to which, naturally, every sailor is exposed.

A line of Mars, paralleling the line of life, on the inside, shows endurance and protection from great dangers. The sailor's hand contains, also, well-marked travel lines; that is, lines extending from the first bracelet and going upward to the mount of the moon, or coming in at the wrist from the side of the hand. If a travel line strongly marked is terminated by a cross appearing on it, this is a sign that a journey will end in misfortune.

The line of life of the sailor should be well separated from the line of the hand, since such separation signifies plenty of self-confidence.

Bank Notes Quickly Retired.
An English bank note has a very short life. In fact, it averages only about two months. As soon as the Bank of England receives a note back from the public, it is not circulated again. It is automatically canceled by having the cashier's signature torn off. Some 350,000 notes are thus canceled every week.

Paper Made From Soap Plant.
Paper of a very fine quality is made from the leaves of the soap plant in Mexico.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP BY THIS SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

Thought for the Day.
One of the colossal blunders of all ages is that ideas can be conquered by force.

Why do Oakland Engines keep running so smoothly?

LISTEN to an Oakland 6-44 engine that has delivered twenty thousand miles of service! Its smooth and silent flow of power amazes you! What is the reason? Sturdy crankshaft and connecting rods of the finest metals! Costly patented bronze-backed bearings! Lightest of moving parts reducing vibration to the minimum! A pressure feed lubrication system constantly bathing moving parts in oil! Cylinders honed to the smoothness of glass! And above all—accuracy and precision in manufacture. Drive a year-old Oakland—and you'll understand why Oakland's "Mileage Basis" gauge is such a true representation of real quality.

he must make fresh demands on him. He washed the wound on the head and poured iodine into it. He did the same with the hole in the leg, cleansing it from the dried blood and hair. It had stopped bleeding. He disinfected it, stitched it, closed it, bound it with adhesive tape and strengthened it with a bandage adjusted as expertly as any surgeon could have done. He pried open the jaws with but little resistance and let the tongue slip back before he poured in a measure of Scotch and water between the canine and incisor teeth. For a moment there was no response, then Grit coughed, choked, swallowed. Sandy repeated the dose with less water. It went down naturally. Almost immediately he felt the heart stroke strengthen. Grit sneezed, opened his eyes and feebly thumped his tail as he licked Sandy's hand.

"Grit, old pardner," said Sandy seriously, the dog's head between his hands, "you're sure mussed up a heap an' I hate to do it, but I got to call on you, son. Mebbe it won't be such a long trick, but I can't git by without your nose, Grit. It's worth more'n all I've got. An' I know you're game." Grit wagged his tail more vigorously and tried to get on his feet, but Sandy prevented him until the third dose was administered. Then he carried the dog outside to save him every foot of unnecessary progress, and set him down. The colts stood up, wabbling on one foot but able to stand, looking eagerly at Sandy, commencing to snuff the air. Sandy let him smell the coin, the strand of hair, the piece of cloth and, with his keenest sense stimulated with the perfume that stood to Grit for love, the dog wrinkled his nose and cast around. But he led direct to Blaze and stood by the horse uncertain while Blaze nosed down at him.

"Carried out of the cabin, son," said Sandy. "We'll guess at Pimmsoll. He's got clear of the locality. Blaze knows but he can't tell. We've got to cast about." He picked up the dog again, puzzled, and looked about him in the gulch, suffused with moonlight. "There sh'd be soft dirt under those asp's, let's give a look-see there." They had not gone five feet into the trees before man and dog made a simultaneous discovery. For Sandy it was a heel-mark left by Pimmsoll, treading heavily under his burden, a slight depression enough, but plain to Sandy. Grit began to struggle in his arms. Molly's hair or body must have brushed against lower boughs at the same height that Sandy carried the wounded Grit and the scent still clung.

"They c'dn't go fur in this direction by the looks of the place, Grit," said Sandy. "See what you can make of it." He put him down by the heel-print. Grit uttered a low growl deep back in his throat, his ruff lifted. He started off, hobbling along, leading truly over rock or sand, into the cove where the split rock lay, its crevice black, the vine curving down into it like a serpent. Where Pimmsoll had laid her down Grit halted and raised his head, his tongue playing in and out of his jaws in his triumphant excitement, his eyes luminous, his tail waving like the plume of a knight. Sandy gently patted him, pressed him down to a crouch.

"Down charge, Grit," he whispered in his ear. "You've got it. You stay here." Sandy had left his rifle at the cabin when he carried Grit out, now he spun the two cylinders of his Colts, lowered himself into the split, holding on to the vine, looking straight into Grit's lambent eyes. "Stay here, son," he said softly, and Grit licked the face now on a level with his own. "I'll be back."

Sandy had adventured more dangerous chances than this. He felt his legs dangle into space and his hands found a curving loop in the vine trunk that sagged slightly under his weight. Extended at full length, his toes touched bottom. Letting go, he dropped lightly and stood in blackness, the crevice above him showing a strip of azure light.

There was only the sound of dripping water. He ventured a match, holding it at arm's length in his left hand, flicking friction with his nail, an old trick. The match caught and began to blaze instantly in the still air. Low down, and to the right, there showed a stab of flame, the roar of an exploding cartridge, the rear of high-powered gun seemed to fill the cavern. The bullet passed through Sandy's coat sleeve. It had held the match in front of him he would have been shot through heart or lungs. His right-hand gun barked from his hip, straight for where the same had showed, then to right of it to left, above, his left-hand gun joining in the merciless probe. No second shot came in answer.

Sandy lit another match. Its flare showed him a sandy floor, slightly sloping, moist in one place, a charred stick almost at his feet. It was a pine knot, half burned, and he lighted it easily, advancing toward the spot where he had flung the shots he knew had silenced whoever had fired at the first match. He found Hahn, crumpled up, shot through the right arm and a thigh, besides the other wound in his shoulder.

Sandy turned him over, brought Kelli's flask into play. Hahn looked up at him and essayed a grin. "You're game all right, Hahn," said Sandy. "You ain't the man I was lookin' fo', but you fired first. I see I wasn't the first to plug you. Mebbe I can fix you up a bit?"

Hahn shook his head. "I wouldn't be a mite of use," he said huskily. "No grudge against you, Sandy. I thought you one of Brandon's gang. They got Butch and me an' they're chasin' Jim Pimmsoll to hell and gone—over Nipple peaks—if he beats 'em to Spur rock he'll fool 'em on the black—I couldn't ride—the left me here—with the girl—but the case is empty and the bank's busted—cashing—in—time and no chips."

He was wandering in his mind, speaking without control, but Sandy's mouth tightened at the mention of Nipple Peaks, relaxed again on the word "girl." He gave Hahn the last few drops of whisky. The dealer coughed violently, collapsed, slundered, writhed a little and was still before he could answer Sandy's eager question about Molly.

He found her without much searching, rolled down a little slope beyond the crevice. Under the light of the torch her eyes looked up at him. Her hair was in disorder, her raiment torn, her slender body wound about by the lariat rope, her mouth and chin hidden by the tightly drawn bandanna, but her gaze, reflecting the flare of the pine knot, held so much of welcome, of faith, of pride and courage, all sourced in something deeper, far more wonderful, moving beneath the surface like a well spring, that Sandy's heart swelled with glad emotion, knowing she was unharmed, knowing that his coming was no surprise, however welcome.

He found himself trembling as he untied her bonds and took away the gag from the mouth that lifted to his. She snuggled into his arms and, as the torch sputtered out, leaving them in the darkness, save for the luminous beams that stole down from where Grit whimpered in joyous impatience, her hair showered down over both of them.

"Sandy, I Knew You'd Come in Time," She Whispered.

"Sandy, I knew you'd come in time!" she whispered.

He held her close and hard for a tense moment that gave all his world to his embrace.

"Molly—girl," he said brokenly, his voice broken with passion.

Her hand crept up and a soft palm cupped about his chin. He kissed the edge of it. He rose easily, still holding her and lifted her high to where she could reach the vine, swinging up after her, Grit dancing a three-legged reel of joy as they came up into the free air and the moonlight.

Blaze greeted them in the corral. Molly mounted, and Sandy set Grit on the saddle in front of her.

"Where's Pronto?" she asked.

He told her.

"I figger Sam an' the boys'll be er-long soon," he said. "They may meet up with Pronto. Anyway, they'll likely bring Goldie fo' me. She's up. An' Pronto'll be too tired fo' what I want him to do tonight."

She sensed the change in his voice, intuitively guessed but, womanlike, asked:

"What do you mean, Sandy? Aren't you coming home with me to Three Star? If it wasn't so far I'd love to go back just like this, without meeting anybody."

able. "He ain't fit to live," he went on. "I w'dn't be fit to go back to Three Star where yore daddy lies an' I know he was there in his grave while I let that coyote go loose. What w'd you think of me if I let him slide?"

"I know," she answered. A horse whinnied from down the ravine. Blaze answered.

"That'll be Sam an' the boys, Molly." He cupped hands and sounded a "Yahoo!"

The answer came back clear through the evening, multiplied by the rocks about them.

"I'm afraid," she said.

"I know. I never was before. But . . ." She broke off, leaped swiftly down from the saddle and kissed him.

"Come back to me soon, Sandy," she said.

CHAPTER XXI

The End of the Rops.

Pronto had chosen his own trail and gait back to the Three Star. It was Goldie that Sandy rode under the stars toward Nipple peaks. He was alone, refusing any company of Sam or the riders. Molly's last kiss had been the key that turned in the lock of his heart and opened up to reality the garden of his dreams where the two of them would walk together, work together all their days. It could have meant nothing else. And she had been afraid—for him. Pimmsoll living was a blot upon the fair page of happiness. Though Molly, thank God, had come through unharmed, to Sandy the touch of Pimmsoll was a defilement that could only be wiped out by his death.

As he rode over the smoky ridge of Elk mountain and saw the Nipple peaks gleaming above the black pines across the valley, with Elk river gleaming in the middle, he realized that he had said nothing to Molly of Kelli, of the shutting down of the mine and his own action in her name. While she had asked nothing of young Donald. For the time it had been as if the rest of the world had been fenced off from them and their own intimate affairs.

He compressed his knees and the mare answered in a lunge that stretched into a gallop, fast and faster as she reached the levels and sped toward Elk river. Sandy was not going to waste time looking for a ford. The mare could swim. He scanned the mountain toward the peaks, passed over the dark impenetrable pines, surveyed the stretch of gently rising ground between the Elk and the trees and shifted his guns in their scabbards. His rifle he had left with Sam. Either Pimmsoll had not passed the peaks, was in the woods, or he had come and gone. Something told Sandy this last had not occurred. Travel beyond the peaks must have been hard and slow and roundabout for Pimmsoll while he had tangented fast for the cut-off.

The mare took the cold river water about her fetlocks with a little shiver, wading in to the girths, sliding to a deep pool where she had to swim a few strokes before she found gravel under her hoofs and scrambled out. Suddenly, while Sandy hesitated how best to arrange his patrol, a horse came floundering out of the pines less than a quarter of a mile away, a black horse, shining with sweat, tired to its limit, staggering in its stride, the rider hunched in the saddle more like a sack of meal than a man.

Before Sandy could turn the mare toward them three riders burst from the trees like bolts from a crossbow, spurring their mounts, the two in the lead swinging lariats. They divided, one to either side of the foundering black stallion, one at the rear, gaining, angling in. The ropes alighted over the loops seemed to hang like suspended rings of wire for a second before they settled down, fair and true, about the neck and shoulders of the black's rider. They tightened, the lariats snubbed to the saddle horns, the horses sliding with fattened pasterns. The black lunging on, pitched forward as it was relieved of a sudden weight, and its rider jerked hideously from the saddle, hands clawing at the ropes that choked his gullet, wrenching, sinking deep, shutting off air and light with a horrid taste of blood and the noise of thundering waters.

The ropes wheeled their mounts and galloped back toward the woods, the limp body of their victim dragging, bounding over the ground. The third rode to meet Sandy. It was Brandon. He hailed Sandy with surprise.

"How'd you happen here this time of night, Bourke? Not looking for me?"

"No. I was looking for the man you've just caught. I was about a minute too late."

Brandon glanced curiously at Sandy, caught by the grim note in his voice. But he made no comment.

"Sorry if I spoiled your private vendetta, Bourke. You can have him, what's left of him, if you want. We were going to swing him from a tree with a card on his chest presenting him to Hereford county, with our compliments. As it is, Bourke, I'd be relieved if you'd keep out of this entirely. Even forgetting you'd met us. We're within our rights, but we've done some cleaning up tonight that we might have to explain if we stayed too long in the state. We got the goods on Pimmsoll; one of his men whose girl Pimmsoll had stolen helped us to pin them on him. We met him at Hereford. I'm going to send the facts and proofs to your authorities. They may not approve of lynch law these days, but they wouldn't act—and we did. I don't fancy they'll bother us any. He wasn't worth the ropes he spooled. Just as well you kept out of the mix-up."

Sandy said nothing. There was no need to mention Molly's adventure.

"Want to be sure it's him?" asked Brandon.

The body of Pimmsoll lay at the foot of a big pine. The loops were still tight about his neck. One of the ropes had been tossed over a bough. The two men had dismounted. They nodded to Sandy as he came up with Brandon. They were horse owners, responsible men, who considered they had administered justice, who felt no more qualms concerning the dead man than if his body had been the carcass of a slaughtered steer.

"Waiting for the rest of the boys to come up," said Brandon. "We'll hit the trail home tonight. Bourke wants to identify the body, boys."

Sandy looked down at the contorted, blackened face, and his disappointment at having been forestalled, settled down. The gambler's features had not been made placid by death; they still held much of the horror of the last moments of that relentless chase, his horse falling under him, foreknowledge of sudden death and then the whistling ropes, the jerk into eternity . . . It was a thing to be forgotten, a nightmare that had nothing to do with the new day ahead.

"It's Pimmsoll," said Sandy shortly. "I'm ridin' back to Three Star. I found him hangin' to a tree. Good night, hembres." He left them standing, about their quarry and turned the willing mare toward home. Peace settled down on him under the stars that were fading, the moon below the hills when he rode into the home corral.

A figure was perched upon the fence, waiting. It was Molly, and she leaped down almost into his arms as he sprang from the mare. In the gray dawn her face seemed drawn and weary. There were the blue shadows under the eyes that he remembered seeing there the time they had ridden over the Pass of the Goats. She came close to him, her hands up against his chest.

"You're safe, Sandy. Safe!" "I was too late," he said. "Brandon's men had been ahead of me."

"I'm so glad, Sandy. Your hands are clean of his blood. They are my hands now, Sandy."

He swept her up to him, kissing her mouth and eyes, the eager pressure of her lips returning all with full measure. A streak of rose glowed in the east behind the amethyst peaks. Her face reflected it like a mirror.

"I don't have to go back East," she said presently. They had left the corral and were under the big cottonwoods by Patrick Casey's grave. "Do I?"

A Figure Was Perched Upon the Fence, Waiting.

"I don't reckon you can, even if you wanted to," answered Sandy. "I forgot to tell you, Molly, that you're busted, so far's the mine is concerned. Listen."

She laughed when he finished speaking.

"Is that all?" She patted the turf on the green mound. "I'm sorry, Daddy, for you, it didn't pan out bigger. But I guess what you wanted most was my happiness—and I've got that." She turned to Sandy. The big bell of the ranch boomed brassily. Molly put her hand in Sandy's. "It may be most unromantic, Sandy dear," she said, "but I'm hungry. Let's go in to breakfast."

CHAPTER XXII

The Very End.

There was a council held later that day, that was almost a council of war. Sandy was in the chair, Mormon and Sam present, Molly the indignant speaker-in-chief.

"I'm very much ashamed of all of you," she said. "An agreement is an agreement, and we were to share as we arranged. We shook hands upon it. I've had three times as much as any one of you, as it is. I haven't spent all of it, Sandy tells me."

"I've got to accept Sandy's share of it, I suppose, because it goes with Sandy. As for you, Sam Manning, you'll need your third when you marry Kate Nicholson."

Soda-Water Sam gasped. "Marry Miss Nicholson?"

"Certainly. She expects you to." "She—Molly, it ain't no jokin' matter with me. She wouldn't look at a rough-hided cuss like me."

"You ask her, Sammy. Mormon, I suppose you'll have to hang fire until you find out about that third wife. I hope the fourth time will be the charm. It will if you marry Miranda Bailey."

"You're sure talkin' like a matrimonial boorow, Molly," said Mormon. "I sure think a sight of Miranda. She's different from my first three. They all married me, fo' me to look out fo' them. If Miranda can be persuaded to take me it's becos she is willin' to look after me. She 'lows I need it," he added, sheepishly.

"Then the meeting is closed," said Molly. "I accept your apologies and you keep your money."

Mormon and Sam rose. With a glance at each other that ended in a wink, they left the room. Molly turned to Sandy.

"You didn't give me back my luck-peace, Sandy." "What does a mascot want with a luck-peace?" "She would like it made into an engagement ring, Sandy."

"Why not a weddin' ring, Molly, Molly mine?" [THE END]

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG
Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; if restored another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

THE STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX TOURING CAR
A Real Achievement in Dollar-for-dollar Value

The thousands of Studebaker Light-Sixes in daily use are the best possible assurance of what may be expected next year—or several years hence—of the Light-Six you buy today.

For after all, the best way to judge a new motor car is by what it has done—how it has stood up in service—the satisfaction it has delivered.

We sincerely believe that the Light-Six Touring Car, with its improved all-steel body, is the sturdiest, handsomest, most comfortable, most dependable and economical low-priced car built.

The machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods, to which is largely due its practical absence of vibration, is a practice used by Studebaker exclusively on cars at this price and is found only on a few other cars whose selling prices are from three to ten times as high as the Light-Six.

The one-piece, rain-proof windshield with parking lights set in the base, is a joy to the driver—nothing to mar his view of the road ahead. Deep, fat cushions are upholstered in genuine leather. Curtains, bound on three sides by steel rods, open with the doors and provide closed car coziness in bad weather.

The most seasoned driver will find a new thrill in the smooth, quiet, steady performance of the Light-Six—and in its ease of handling, and in the way it performs in high gear at low speeds—eliminating constant gear shifting.

The name Studebaker has stood for high grade transportation, quality, value and integrity for 71 years.

780 STUDEBAKERS ARE SHIPPED ON BANNER DAY OF CORPORATION

When the whistles of the mammoth Studebaker plants at South Bend and Detroit sounded on the evening of May 29 and 20,000 Studebaker employees started homeward, a new record for a single day's production and shipments had been made, for on that day 780 Studebaker cars were forwarded to Studebaker dealers throughout the country. Of the total, 189 were driven over land.

This record represents a single day's production and was achieved without permitting cars to accumulate purposefully to establish a new mark. The only extra incentive involved was an effort to more adequately meet the insistent demand from every section of the country for more Studebakers, but this is a daily endeavor because of the thousands of unfilled orders on hand for immediate shipment.

While the production of 780 cars in one day establishes a record for Studebaker, the total is only a little above regular, daily shipments since the additional facilities provided by seven new Studebaker factory units completed and toiled and manned early this Spring, reached capacity production. Although Studebaker's present output is 15,000 cars a month or at the rate of 180,000 cars annually, the demand is far in excess of production and additional factory facilities, begun this Spring and to cost $5,000,000, are being rushed to completion.

Studebaker manufactures six-cylinder cars exclusively, in three models—the Big-Six, Special-Six and the Light-Six—which are offered in twelve body types. 780 cars, in one day, therefore, represents the biggest day's shipment of six-cylinder cars ever made by any manufacturer.

The increasing popularity of Studebaker cars, which is a subject of common conversation even outside of the automobile industry, is attested by the yearly record of production and sales. In 1918 Studebaker sold 23,864 cars. The following year sales increased to a total of 39,356 cars. In 1920 sales mounted to 51,474 cars.

1921, the year of general business depression, was the biggest in Studebaker's history (up to 1922) when sales reached a total of 66,643 cars. Stated otherwise, the sales of Studebaker cars in 1921 were 29 per cent greater than in 1920, notwithstanding the fact that the total number of cars sold of all other makes, except Ford, was 40 per cent less than 1920. Studebaker again established a new record in 1922 with the sale of 110,269 cars. This year will see still another Studebaker record established. Up to July 1 Studebaker will have produced and sold about 80,000 cars, or an increase of 50 per cent over the same period of 1922.

"There are a number of reasons for the universal popularity of Studebaker cars," according to J. W. Lalonde, local Studebaker dealer. "But chiefly: 'Because of their quality, durability and dependable performance in owners' use.

"Because by manufacturing sixes exclusively on a large scale and by building all vital parts in its own plants Studebaker can effect economies and save the middlemen's profits, and thereby provide maximum value and quality at a low price.

"Because, in the three models of Studebaker cars we have a car of the exact size, style and price to suit every buyer.

"Because with $85,000,000 of actual net assets, including $45,000,000 of plant facilities, Studebaker stands unsurpassed in ability and resources to manufacture economically and give the greatest intrinsic value possible for a given price.

"Because of the name Studebaker, which for 71 years has stood for high grade transportation, integrity, quality, value and comfort."

Not the Usual Ending.
 I was ten when one of the "big" boys attending my father's school called at our home. I was very favorably impressed—was desperately in love with him. He was quite friendly and nice to me, while I was so self-conscious and awkward that I fell off my chair. It might have ended there, but I saw him soon afterward at a spelling bee and he invited me to be his partner in the games. Now we are both happily married to someone else.—New York Sun.

Socrates on Envy.
 "An envious man waxeth lean with the fatness of his neighbor," said old Socrates. "Envy is the daughter of pride, the author of murder and revenge, the beginner of secret sedition, and the perpetual tormentor of virtue. Envy is the filthy slime of the soul; a venom, a poison, or quicksilver which consumeth the flesh and drieth up the marrow of the bones."

Neplunite Varnishes

Don't be Fooled by a Varnish Shine

The poorer the varnish, generally the more it shines, and the less it wears. The better the varnish, the richer is its deep satin like glossiness, and the longer it wears. Don't buy a varnish by its shine. Buy it by its power to stand wear and still keep glossy. For everything from floors up, use Neplunite Varnishes. You get wear out of them because wear is put into them. Won't turn white. Dry hard and stay hard.
