Wins Typewriting Contests

E. J. H. S. Students Secure Full Share of Honors.

In the typewriting contest, held at Petoskey last Saturday, East Jordan High School students secured their full share of honors. In first year typewriting, Miss Bessie Kling secured first place, while Miss Anita Kile took third place. Miss Christine VanDeventer was able to secure second place in second year typewriting. Miss Josephine Ekstrom, who is considered one of the best typists in the school, was unfortunate in that her machine was broken and, using a strange machine, she was unable to write at her usual speed.

East Jordan won the team typewriting, with an average of 43 words per minute. The team was composed of Miss Josephine Ekstrom, Miss Christine VanDeventer, and Miss Sarah Sherman. During the entire year they have been working under the handicap of being short of time. The Commercial Department this year is full to overflowing and the advanced shorthand class has been forced to meet before school in the morning from 8:30 until 9:00. Miss Filkins, head of the Commercial Department, should receive much of the credit for the showing made by the team. She has expended a great deal of effort in their behalf and has taken more than the usual interest.

The team is planning to attend the state contest, held at Kalamazoo. A little more coaching between now and then, we have every hopes of capturing some of the honors.

Port Huron—More than 120 miles of state road of all types are now under construction in St. Clair, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties. The total cost of all the projects, exclusive of cement, will be $2,200,000.

Detroit—Parking on downtown streets and main arteries, as far out as Grand boulevard is now prohibited during the afternoon rush hours, every day, from 4:30 to 6:15 p. m., excepting Sundays and legal holidays.

Pontiac—Five persons were injured when a bus running from Detroit to Pontiac was hit by a southbound interurban south of Pontiac. The big bus was thrown off the pavement and overturned pinning its passengers inside.

Saginaw—Saginaw business men will raise a fund to attract tourists through Saginaw to west Michigan resorts. The Saginaw automobile club and board of commerce will unite with other organizations in the drive for funds.

Owosso—Mrs. Wilhelmina Ortwine, 75 years old, widow of Peter Ortwine and a pioneer of Shiawassee County was buried the same day with Herbert Stewart, a grandson with whom Mrs. Ortwine made the journey from Germany to this country.

Lapeer—Forty suits of clothes, valued at more than $700, were stolen from two local clothing stores. Indications are the thief hid in the store and opened the back door when confederates arrived. Auto tracks showed where a car backed up to load goods.

Grand Rapids—Attorney Charles H. Lillie, of Grand Rapids, representing sportsmen here and along the Muskegon river, has been assured by the Consumers Power company it will take steps at once to preserve the river between Croton and Newaygo as one of the best stocked fishing streams in western Michigan.

Iron Mountain—To meet the greatly increased travel to Iron Mountain, the Ann Arbor railroad will construct a new car ferry to be operated at Menominee according to announcements made here. The estimated cost of the ferry is $1,000,000. By placing it in service, the port of Menominee will be kept open all winter in the future.

Nobody has as great scorn for the "practical politician" as the impractical one.

The funniest sight is a two-horse brain power trying to run a fifty-horse-power job.

When a man has a big paunch, no brains and a silent tongue, he can always "get by" on his dignity.

A "good book" in the opinion of many, is any bad book.

One who succeeds wholly in his life ambition is ready for the junk heap.

Happiness is not a matter of wealth but don't let anybody fool you into thinking that it is a matter of poverty.

Opening of Base Ball

Fast Grayling Team Here Next Sunday, May 4th.

The 1924 Base Ball season will start next Sunday, May 4th at the Fair Grounds with a game between East Jordan and the fast Grayling team, who have asked to join the Northern League. The boys are working out evenings this week to be in good shape for the game. DeLoof will be in the box for East Jordan. Game called at 2:30 p. m.

HIGH SCHOOL CHORUS TO PRESENT "WINDMILLS OF HOLLAND"

Don't forget the Operetta given by the High School Chorus, at the Auditorium Friday, May 9th. An evening's entertainment of song, humor and romance, by a chorus of 110 voices—Real Dutch Costumes, Wooden Shoes and "Herzigensbosch of the Town Band." Make it your business to see "The Windmills of Holland."

SELECT EGGS NOW FOR WINTER HOME SUPPLY

This is the time of year to select eggs to be preserved for next winter's supply, according to E. C. Foreman, head of the poultry department at the Michigan Agricultural College.

Water Glass (sodium silicate) is recommended as a preservative, the old and well-known method of "putting down" eggs for the winter being considered the most practical and effective.

Prices naturally reach their lowest mark in the Spring when production is greatest, thus affording the most apparent reason for laying away the winter supply at this time.

Another advantage of spring selection which is brought out by Professor Foreman concerns the quality of the eggs. It seems that the so-called grain-produced eggs, those of March, April and early May, keep better than those produced later in the season.

Michigan eggs are improving in quality, it is said. High standards are being set by the commercial egg farmer, and the individual farm producer of eggs is falling in line. The old days of a few "bad" eggs in every dozen are said to be gone.

As a result of this higher standard, the consumption of eggs is steadily increasing. With greater confidence in the product, the consuming public is steadily increasing its demand for eggs.

Traveler City—Gifts from practically every merchant in the city, besides the one offered by friends of the household, were showered on the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Prater, Traveler City first 1924 Easter baby. Prizes had been offered by business men for the first infant born on Easter Sunday. Three other children were born during the day.

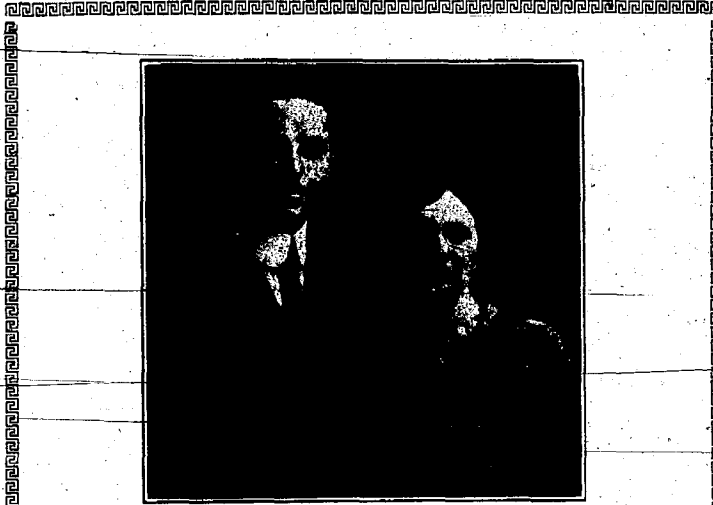

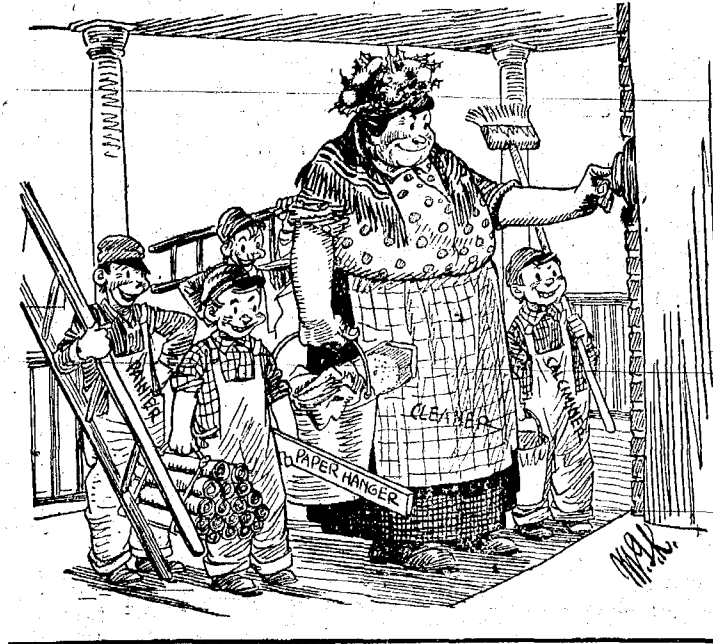

All six—Six persons were hurt when an interurban car on the Allegan-Monticue division of the Michigan Railways plunged off a bridge into the Kalamazoo river near Mentith. There were nine passengers in the car at the time. Five doctors were rushed to the scene. The passengers were rescued through doors and windows. The car was traveling at moderate speed, just having left the station.

Lansing—A year-old baby, Richard Stazik, was killed and its parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stazik, of Lansing, injured seriously near Leslie, when the automobile in which they were riding swerved from the road, hit and broke a telephone pole and landed wheels up in a ditch. The driver, Peter Menez, of Lansing, turned to speak to Mr. Stazik in the rear seat and lost control of the car. It was said, Mr. Menez escaped injury.

East Lansing—"Each year the forest fires in the United States destroy or damage enough lumber to build five-foot houses for the entire city of San Francisco or Washington," according to Prof. Chittenden of Lansing. The end of forest fires in Michigan will come only by the exercise of the greatest care by all persons traveling in the timber zones, and actual work of reforestation can be gin only when fires are ended. Camp fires, cigars, cigarettes and carelessly dropped matches are the principal sources of forest ruin, he said.

SOUR GRAPES

"Sour grapes" is the expression which is applied to someone whose unfavorable comment is based on envy. The reference is to Aesop's fable of the fox who vainly tried to reach some grapes which were just out of his reach. At last, giving up, he consoled himself by saying that the grapes were sour. Knocking is usually the old story of "sour grapes."

Father Sage Says:

"The man who believes that he is entitled to his old-time freedom after he gets married is the one most likely to be terribly strict with his wife."

A "friendly enemy" is any enemy that makes you work.

High Herd To Art Shepard

Frank Behling Runner-Up For March Tests.

The Charlevoix County Cow Testing Association reports that the high herd for March belongs to Art Shepard. His pure bred and grade Holsteins averaged 46.12 pounds of butterfat for the month. This is the third month in succession that they have been high herd.

The runners-up for high herd for March are the seven pure bred Holsteins owned by Frank A. Behling of Boyne City. His herd averaged 45.5 pounds of butterfat, in spite of the fact that they were out of condition and not at their best flow of milk.

The honor of owning the two highest cows in the association for this month goes to George Meggison, as his two grade Jerseys made 66 pounds of butterfat each. These two Jerseys are making quite a record for themselves, as no other Jerseys in the association have been able to reach their mark as yet.

The average production of butterfat for the 264 cows in the association, of which 22 are dry, is 25 pounds and 638 pounds of milk. The two highest cows for the last eight months in each of the age classes are all pure bred or grade Holsteins. They are as follows: 2-year-old class—Elm Grove Pride De Kol, pure bred Holstein, 305.46 pounds of butterfat and 8,655 pounds of milk, owned by Ed. Jensen; Lady Gypsy Belle De Kol, pure bred Holstein, 234.35 pounds of butterfat and 6,713 pounds of milk, owned by Breezy Point Farm. Three-year-old class—Moonshine, grade Holstein, 201 pounds of butterfat and 5,761 pounds of milk, owned by Art Shepard; Spotty, grade Holstein, 261.83 pounds of butterfat and 7,258 pounds of milk, owned by D. Harvey. Four-year-old class—Lady Pieterje Tritornia, pure bred Holstein, 317.97 pounds of butterfat and 10,177 pounds of milk, owned by Art Shepard; Siloam, Marie De Kol, 2nd, pure bred Holstein, 276.64 pounds of butterfat and 6,760 pounds of milk, owned by Orchard Bay Farm. Five-year-old class—Empress Josephine Tyson, pure bred Holstein, 309.43 pounds of butterfat and 10,221 pounds of milk, owned by Breezy Point Farm; No. 5, grade Holstein, 252.5 pounds of butterfat and 5,384 pounds of milk, owned by Frank Shepard. Mature Cow class—Cauary Veeman De Kol, pure bred Holstein, 325.29 pounds of butterfat and 9,593 pounds of milk; Snope, grade Holstein, 305.42 pounds of butterfat and 7,992 pounds of milk, owned by Art Shepard.

The association herd book shows that 56 per cent of the cows tested are Holstein and 15 per cent are Jerseys; 9 per cent shorthorn, 7 per cent Guernseys and the rest are badly mixed. Of all the cows tested 29 per cent are pure bred cows, of which 23 per cent are Holsteins, leaving 6 per cent of the pure bred cows among the Jerseys and shorthorns.

Lansing—Twelve city trucks were put in commission during the annual clean-up activities. The entire city was combed for the winter's accumulation of rubbish.

Harrie—Fire threatening the village for an hour, destroyed three stores on Main street with a loss of nearly $20,000. A bucket brigade of citizens saved adjoining property.

Detroit—Herbert White, 14 years old, was found dead in the bathroom of his home. Investigation revealed that he had been overcome by fumes from a gas water heater while taking a bath.

Iron Mountain—The village of Kingsford will vote upon the question of a $200,000 bond issue for a waterworks system May 17 according to an announcement by the village council.

Manistee—Oil mixed with water, has been pumped up at one of the oil test wells here. It is believed now, that the well, only 1,180 feet down, will produce oil in paying quantities.

Detroit—Sandor Farago, speaker of 13 languages and for 28 years an interpreter in Detroit courts, is dead. Mr. Farago was born at Budapest, Hungary, 84 years ago and lived in Detroit for 40 years.

Owosso—Russell Moore, 6-year-old son of Roy Moore living near Lennon, suffered a fractured skull when a horse he was leading to water whirled and let his heels fly, one of his hoofs striking the boy in the forehead.

Mothers' Day Proclamation

Sunday, May 11th To Be Observed Throughout Country.

Custom has decreed that once each year a day shall be set apart from all others especially for observance as Mothers' Day. The plan was brought forth so that every person might give more than ordinary attention to Mother so that we might show to her our deepest appreciation of her sacrifice, devotion, guidance and loving care.

In the rush and swirl of present day affairs and business one is inclined to forget for the moment the determination of Mother that we should have the blessings of life that she did not enjoy, and that to bring about the realization of her ambition she deprived her of the very happiness she sought to bestow upon us. It has been this motherhood ideal that has raised the standard of American citizenship to its present exalted place.

In every home, no matter how elegant or humble, that same mother devotion and sacrifice has always existed and always will. If mother love ruled the world there would be no conflicts, no destruction of human life because of greed, no sorrow because of unrighteous designs.

Every day should be Mothers' Day, with possibly a little greater manifestation upon Mothers' Day of our appreciation because of her sacrifice and devotion.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Michigan, I do hereby designate and proclaim Sunday, May eleventh, 1924, as Mothers' Day, and I call upon our people, both old and young to gather in their several places of worship and take part in services appropriate to the day.

And let absent sons and daughters take this occasion to visit the mother in the old home, or, where such a visit is impossible, let them send a message of cheer and greeting.

In accordance with a resolution of the Congress of the United States, I further request the people of Michigan on the day aforesaid to display the United States flag in their homes and in other suitable places, as a fitting expression of their desire to pay homage to American motherhood.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this nineteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and of the Commonwealth the eighty-eighth.

ALEX. J. GROESBECK, Governor.

Windmills of Holland

For the first time in East Jordan School history the High School students are making their appearance as "opera stars." This opportunity comes in the form of "Windmills of Holland" a typical dutch operetta; music song and dialogue woven into a unique story of Holland village life.

First scene opens with a Chorus of Villagers singing the famous "Windmill Song." Mynheer Hertogenbosch then appears and the play is on. If you would know the stir that Bob Yankee, the salesman from America makes when he enters the Dutch town with his "scheme" to electrify the mill—if you would know Hans the aspiring young Dutch composer and Franz, his pal—yes and the good Vrou Hertogenbosch, who is ever busy, with an extra watchful eye on her two daughters, Wilhelmina and Hilda. Come to the Auditorium Friday, May 9th and the High School Chorus will tell you all about it.

"There are ten Dutch lassies to dance for you
And many good songsters tried and true
The principals seven add the needed eleven
And the "Windmills of Holland" go round."

"Are we going to have luncheon?" she asked.

"Of course," he answered. "Did you think I meant to starve you?"

He picked up the long envelope which she had dropped upon the carpet, and threw it onto the sofa. Then he drew up two chairs to the table, and opened a small bottle of champagne.

"I hope you won't mind a picnic," he said. "Really, Brooks hasn't done so badly—pate de foie gras, hot toast and Devonshire butter. Let me spread some for you. A cold chicken afterward, and some strawberries. Please be hungry, Margaret."

She laughed at him. It occurred to him suddenly, with a little pang, that he had never heard her laugh before. It was like music.

"I'm too happy," she murmured.

"Believe me," he assured her, as he buttered a piece of toast, "happiness and hunger might well be twins. They go so well together. Misery can take away one's appetite. Happiness, when one gets over the guilts of it, is the best tonic in the world. And I never saw anyone, dear, with whom happiness agreed so well."

He added, pausing in his task to bend over and kiss her. "Do you know you are the most beautiful thing on earth? It is a lucky thing we are going to live in England, and that these are sober, matter-of-fact days, or I should find myself committed to fighting duels all the time."

She had a momentary relapse. A look of terror suddenly altered her face. She caught at his wrist.

"Don't!" she cried. "Don't talk about such things!"

He was a little bewildered. The moment passed. She laughed almost apologetically.

"Forgive me," she begged, "but I hate the thought of fighting of any sort. Some day I'll explain."

"Clumsy as I was!" he declared, completing his task and setting the result before her. "Now how's that for a first course? Drink a little of your wine."

He leaned his glass against hers.

"My love," he whispered, "my love now, dear, and always, and you'll find it quite strong enough," he went on, "to keep you from all the ugly things. And now away with sentiment. I had a very excellent but solitary breakfast this morning, and it seems a long time ago."

"It seems amazing to think that you spent last night at the Sanctuary," she reflected.

"And that you and I were in a punt," he reminded her, "in the pool of darkness where the trees met, and the lilies leaned over to us."

"And you nearly upset the punt?"

"Nothing of the sort! As a simple matter of fact, I was very careful. But," he proceeded, with a sudden wave of memory, "I don't think my heart will ever beat normally again. It seemed as though it would tear its way out of my side when I leaned toward you, and you knew, and you lay still."

She laughed. "You surely didn't expect I was going to get up? It was quite encouragement enough to remain passive. As a matter of fact," she went on, "I couldn't have moved. I couldn't have uttered a sound. I suppose I must have been like one of those poor birds you read about, when some devouring animal crouches for its last spring." "Congratulations already!" he remarked. "You won't forget that my name is Francis, will you? Try and practice. It while I carve the chicken." "You carve very badly, Francis," she told him demurely.

"My dear," he said, "thank heavens we shall be able to afford a butler! By-the-by, I told your father this morning that I was going to marry you, and he didn't seem to think it possible because he had two million pounds."

"Braggart!" she murmured. "When did you see my father?"

"He came to my rooms in the Temple soon after I arrived this morning. He seemed to think I might know where you were. I dare say he won't like me for a son-in-law," Francis continued with a smile. "I can't help that. He shouldn't have let me go out with you in a punt."

There was a discreet knock at the door. Brooks made his apologetic and somewhat troubled entrance.

"Sir Timothy Braut is here to see you, sir," he announced. "I ventured to say that you were not at home."

"But I happened to know otherwise," a still voice remarked from outside. "May I come in, Mr. Ledsam?"

Sir Timothy stepped past the servant, who at a sign from Francis disappeared, closing the door behind him.

CHAPTER XIII

Sir Timothy laid his hat upon the sideboard and slowly removed his gloves.

"I trust," he said, "that this pint bottle does not represent your cellar. I will drink a glass of wine with you, and with your permission make myself a pate sandwich. I was just sitting down to luncheon when I received the information which brought me here."

Francis produced another bottle of wine from the sideboard and filled his visitor's glass.

"You will drink, I hope, to our happiness," he said.

"I shall do nothing of the sort," Sir Timothy declared, helping himself with care to the pate. "I have no superstitions about breaking bread with an enemy, or I should not have asked you to visit me at the Sanctuary, Mr. Ledsam. I object to your marriage with my daughter, and I shall take what steps I can to prevent it."

"Why?"

Sir Timothy did not at once reply. He seemed to be enjoying his sandwich; he also appreciated the flavor of his wine.

"Your question," he said, "strikes me as being a little ingenuous. You are at the present moment suspecting me of crimes beyond number. You encourage Scotland Yard detectives to make asses of themselves in my stream. Your Myrmidons scramble onto the top of my walls and try to bribe my servants to disclose the mysteries of my household. You have accepted to the fullest extent my volunteered statement that I am a patron of crime. You are, in short—forgive me if I help myself to a little more of this pate—engaged in a strenuous attempt to bring me to justice."

"None of these things affects your daughter," Francis pointed out.

"Pardon me," Sir Timothy objected.

"You are a great and shining light of the English law. People speak of you as a future chancellor. How can you contemplate an alliance with the widow of one criminal and the daughter of another?"

"As to Margaret being Oliver Hilditch's widow," Francis replied, "you were responsible for that, and no one else. He was your protegee; you gave your consent to the marriage. As to your being her father, that again is not Margaret's fault. I should marry her if Oliver Hilditch had been three times the villain he was, and if you were the devil himself."

"I am getting quite to like you, Mr. Ledsam," Sir Timothy declared, helping himself to another piece of toast and commencing to butter it. "Margaret, what have you to say about all this?"

"I have nothing to say," she answered. "Francis is speaking for me. I never dreamed that after what I have gone through I should be able to care for any one again in this world. I do care, and I am very happy about it. All last night I lay awake, making up my mind to run away, and this morning I actually booked my passage to Buenos Aires. Then we met—just outside the steamship office—and I knew at once that I was making a mistake. I shall marry Francis exactly when he wants me to."

Sir Timothy passed his glass towards his proposed son-in-law.

"Might one suggest," he began—"thank you very much. This is of course, very upsetting to me. I seem to be set completely at defiance. It is a very excellent wine, this, and a wonderful vintage."

Francis bent over Margaret.

"Please finish your lunch, dear," he begged. "It is perhaps just as well that your father came. We shall know exactly where we are."

"Just so," Sir Timothy agreed.

There was a queer constrained silence for several moments. Then Sir Timothy leaned back in his chair and, with a word of apology, lit a cigarette.

"Let us," he said, "consider the situation. Margaret is my daughter. You wish to marry her. Margaret is of age and has been married before. She is at liberty, therefore, to make her own choice. You agree with me so far?"

"Entirely," Francis assented.

"It happens," Sir Timothy went on, "that I disapprove of her choice. She desires to marry a young man who belongs to a profession which I detest, and whose efforts in life are directed towards the extermination of a class for whom I have every sympathy. To me he represents the anus as against the head, the eternally moving an against the freemason. He is also my personal enemy. I am therefore naturally desirous that my daughter should not marry this young man."

"We will let it go at that," Francis commented, "but I should like to point out to you that the antagonism between us is in no way personal. You have declared yourself for forces with which I am at enmity, like any other decent-living citizen. Your declaration might at any time be amended."

Sir Timothy bowed.

"The situation is stated," he said. "I will ask you this question as a matter of form. Do you recognize my right to forbid your marriage with my daughter, Mr. Ledsam?"

"I most certainly do not," was the forcible reply.

"Have I any rights at all?" Sir Timothy asked. "Margaret has lived under my roof whenever it has suited her to do so. Since she has taken up her residence at Curson street she has been her own mistress, her banking account has no limit whatsoever. I may be a person of evil disposition, but I have shown no unkindness to her."

"It is quite true," Margaret admitted, turning a little pale. "Since I have been alone, you have been kindness itself."

"Then let me repeat my question," Sir Timothy went on, "have I the right to any consideration at all?"

"Yes," Francis replied. "Short of keeping us apart, you have the ordinary rights of a parent."

"Then I ask you to delay the announcement of your engagement, or taking any further steps concerning it, for fourteen days," Sir Timothy said. "I place no restrictions on your movements during that time. Such hospitality as you, Mr. Ledsam, care to accept at my hands, is at your disposal. I am bohemian enough, indeed, to find nothing to complain of in such little celebrations as you are at present indulging in—most excellent pate, that. But I request that no announcement of your engagement be made, or any further arrangements made concerning it, for fourteen days."

"I am quite willing, father," Margaret acquiesced.

"And I, sir," Francis echoed.

"In which case," Sir Timothy concluded, rising to his feet, lighting a cigarette and taking up his hat and gloves, "I shall go peaceably away. You will admit, I trust," he added, with that peculiar smile at the corner of his lips, "that I have not in any way tried to come the heavy father? I can even command a certain amount of respect. Margaret, for a young man who is able to inaugurate his engagement by an impromptu meal of such perfection. I wish you both good morning. Any invitation which Margaret extends, Ledsam, please consider as confirmed by me."

He closed the door softly. They heard his footsteps descending the stairs. Francis leaned once more over Margaret. She seemed still dazed, confused with new thoughts. She responded, however, readily to his touch, yielded to his caress with an almost pathetic eagerness.

"Francis," she murmured, as his arms closed around her, "I want to forget."

There followed a brief period of time, the most wonderful of his life, the happiest of hers. They took advantage of Sir Timothy's absolute license, and spent long days at the Sanctuary, ideal lovers' days, with their punt moored at night amongst the lilies, where her kisses seemed to come to him with an aroma and wonder born on the spot. Then there came a morning when he found a cloud on her face. She was looking at the great wall, and away at the minaret beyond. They had heard from the butler that Sir Timothy had spent the night at the villa, and that preparations were on hand for another of his wonderful parties. Francis, who was swift to read her thoughts, led her away into the rose garden where once she had fallen him.

"You have been looking over the wall, Margaret," he said reproachfully.

She looked at him with a little twitch at the corners of her lips.

"Francis, dear," she confessed, "I am afraid you are right. I cannot even look towards The Walled House without wondering why it was built—or catch a glimpse of that dome without stupid guesses as to what may go on underneath."

"I think very likely," he said soothingly, "we have both exaggerated the seriousness of your father's hobbies. We know that he has a wonderful gymnasium there, but the only definite rumor I have ever heard about the place is that men fight there who have a grudge against one another, and that they are not too particular about the weight of the gloves. That doesn't appeal to us, you know, Margaret, but it isn't criminal."

"If that were all!" she murmured.

"I dare say it is," he declared. "London, as you know, is a hot-bed of gossip. Everything that goes on is ridiculously exaggerated, and I think that it rather appeals to your father's curious sense of humor to pose as the lawbreaker."

She pressed his arm a little. The day was overcast, a slight rain was beginning to fall.

"Francis," she whispered, "we had a perfect day here yesterday. Now the sun has gone and I am shivery."

He understood in a moment.

"We'll lunch at Ranelagh," he suggested. "It is almost on the way up. Then we can see what the weather is like. If it is bad, we can dine in town tonight and do a theater."

"You are a dear," she told him fervently. "I am going in to get ready."

Francis went round to the garage for his car, and brought it to the front.

While it was sitting there, Sir Timothy came through the door in the wall. He was smoking a cigar and he was holding an umbrella to protect his white flannel suit. He was an usual wonderfully groomed and turned out, but he walked as though he were tired, and his smile, as he greeted Francis, lacked a little of its usual light-hearted mockery.

In the distance they could hear the sound of hammering on the other side of the wall. Francis moved his head in that direction.

"I hear that they are preparing for another of your wonderful entertainments over there," he remarked.

"On Thursday," Sir Timothy assented. "I shall have something to say to you about it later on."

"Am I to take it that I am likely to receive an invitation?" Francis asked.

"I should think it possible," was the calm reply.

"What about Margaret?"

"My entertainment would not appeal to her," Sir Timothy declared. "The women whom I have been in the habit of asking are not women of Margaret's type."

"And Lady Cynthia?"

Sir Timothy frowned slightly.

"I find myself in some difficulty as regards Lady Cynthia," he admitted.

"I am the guardian of nobody's morals, nor am I the censor of their tastes, but my entertainments are for men. The women whom I have hitherto asked have been women in whom I have taken no personal interest. They are necessary to form a picturesque background for my rooms, in the same way that I look to the gardeners to supply the floral decorations. Lady Cynthia's instincts, however, are somewhat adventurous. She would scarcely be content to remain a spectator."

"The issuing of your invitations," Francis remarked, "is of course a matter which concerns nobody else except yourself. If you do decide to favor me with one, I shall be delighted to come, provided Margaret has no objection."

"Such a reservation promises well for the future," Sir Timothy observed, with gentle sarcasm. "Here comes Margaret, looking very well, I am glad to see."

92 New Threats Against Service

It may surprise you to know that the present Congress of the United States has already before it for consideration no less than ninety-two bills, each proposing to further restrict Railroad activities.

So wide is the scope of this proposed legislation, and so serious are many of its threats, that the Railroads have been forced to shape their affairs accordingly, as mariners take in sail when storm clouds the horizon.

Michigan's 24 steam railroads are today holding in suspense plans for the expenditure of large sums of money, pending legislative action on these ninety-two bills.

These expenditures, if released, would go into labor and materials—into Prosperity and Better Service.

Is it wise or just to thus threaten and impede the efforts of any honest business?

How would you welcome ninety-two additional threats against your independence of action in the pursuit in which you are yourself engaged?

We invite any thought on this matter which you care to express.

CHILD LABOR BILL PASSES IN HOUSE

WOULD PROHIBIT EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN UNDER 18 YEARS OF AGE.

COURT KILLED PREVIOUS LAW

New Measure Directed At Southern States Which Have No Child Labor Laws in Effect.

Washington—The proposed constitutional amendment to prohibit child labor in the United States was approved by the house of representatives. The vote was 297 to 69.

The resolution carrying the amendment was sent to the senate where its fate is uncertain.

The amendment, made necessary according to its advocates, by the decision of the United States supreme court holding the federal child labor laws unconstitutional, gives congress power to enact legislation to limit, regulate or prohibit the employment of children under 18 years of age.

If the amendment gets through congress, the affirmative action of 36 states will be required before the prohibitive legislation could be enacted.

The amendment could not be ratified for at least two years because less than one-third of the state legislatures will meet this year.

The legislation is directed at eleven states, southern and western, which have no effective child labor laws.

Women's organizations were at the forefront in the fight for the amendment, and it was urged strongly by the American Federation of Labor.

Opposition came largely from manufacturers who employ child labor extensively.

HOUSE OF DAVID ASSETS TIED UP

INJUNCTION PREVENTS HEADS OF CULT FROM DISPOSING OF PROPERTY

RECEIVERSHIP IS NOW PENDING

Aim of State Suit is to Return to Cult Members Property Deeded To "King Ben."

St. Joseph, Mich.—An injunction restraining any officials of the Israelite House of David at Benton Harbor from disposing of, encumbering or concealing any of the colony's resources pending the outcome of a suit in which the state asks that a receivership be ordered has been granted by Circuit Court Judge Charles E. White.

Concurrently with the petition for an injunction, Assistant State Attorney General O. L. Smith filed in circuit court here a petition for a receivership for the colony, which has been under fire more than a year as a haven for immoral practices.

By this action it is the aim of the state that "the funds, money, property and effects of the corporation, after payment of creditors' claims and expenses of the receivership, may be decreed to be a resulting trust in favor of all of the members of the corporation in proportion to the amount of moneys, funds, credits, property, labor and effects which the members may have contributed."

Fraud and evasion of the law in its property transactions are specified as the grounds for the request for a receivership. No mention is made of the alleged immoralities and perverted practices that have been said to be part of the daily life of the colony except in a paragraph in which Benjamin Purnell, leader of the cult, is referred to as a fugitive from justice facing serious criminal charges, and it is described that his wife, Mary, and other officers of the colony "are threatening to dispose of and conceal the assets of the colony."

Recently a report was in circulation that the colony was seeking to exchange its Michigan property for a home in California.

The state's offensive against the House of David began more than a year ago following an expose of alleged mistreatment of young girls wards by Purnell. A grand jury investigation was held and warrants against Purnell were issued.

He has never been found. The property involved in the dissolution petition has variously been estimated from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

The colony was formed in 1903. Under its by-laws no member could hold any property, everything he or she might own at the time of becoming a member being signed over to the colony prior to 1907 and to Benjamin and Mary Purnell personally since then.

S. S. KRESGE MARRIES DIVORCEE

Chain Store King, Recently Divorced, Takes New Bride.

Detroit—Sebastian S. Kresge, Detroit chain store magnate, churchman and reformer, has been married to Doris Mercer, a divorcee, at New York. Kresge is 56 years old, his bride is 31.

Kresge was defendant in a suit for divorce brought by his first wife, Anna, which was decided in favor of the plaintiff last February. In her bill of complaint the mother of Kresge's four children charged the 5-and-10-cent store king with cruelty, stating that he was porose and "pouted" and refrained from speaking to her for long intervals.

The Kresges tried to keep the divorce action a secret, but the facts became public soon after the filing of a bill of complaint by Mrs. Kresge.

May 15 was fixed as the date for launching the drive and it will be brought to an end with a huge parade in Detroit on Sunday, June 15.

What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to East Jordan Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of an East Jordan resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Albert Turk, East Jordan, says: "Morning my back felt lame and I found it hard to get up. My back got so weak and sore, I couldn't stoop over. I couldn't get rested and always felt tired and worn out. Dizzy spells came over me, too. My kidneys were irregular and I had to get up during the night. I used Doan's Pills and they cured me of the trouble."

Grave Gives Up Fingerprints.
Elizabeth, N. J.—Seeking evidence to run down the slayer of Mrs. Maude Bauer, detectives from New York entered a vault in a cemetery here, opened Mrs. Bauer's coffin and took fingerprints of her hand. The fingerprints will be compared with marks found on the automobile of Harry Hoffman, in jail on Staten Island, New York, in connection with the woman's death.

Canada to Return Stolen U. S. Autos.
Washington—The United States and Canada have made effective a new arrangement by which stolen property of residents of one country seized by the custom authorities of the other, may be returned to its legal owner. One immediate effect of the arrangement will be to release a large number of automobiles stolen from American citizens and smuggled across the border.

Truck's Roar Cures Child.
Schenectady, N. Y.—Richard Herman, three years old, is able to walk and talk for the first time in two years. Two years ago he fell down a flight of steps, and when found was paralyzed and unable to speak. Specialists, unable to effect a cure, decided to send him to the country. When placed in the rear of a truck to make the trip, the driver suddenly started the motor. The fright cured Richard of his paralysis and dumbness.

Freight Goes Into Ditch, Kills 3.
Bluefield, W. Va.—Three persons were killed and two others seriously injured when a Norfolk & Western freight train left the rails on the North Fork branch of the road. The train of thirteen cars of coal, drawn by two engines, was rounding a curve on a sharp grade when both engines suddenly left the rails and rolled into the ditch. The coal cars were entirely wrecked and piled upon one another in a narrow hollow along the tracks.

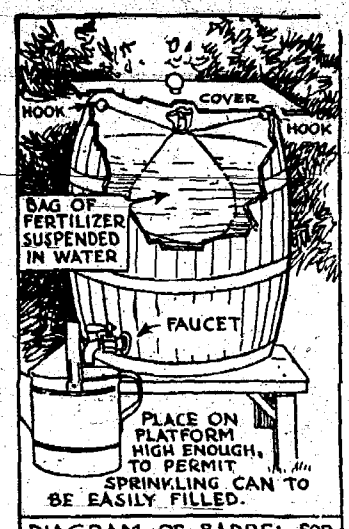

Izzy Einstein Is Robbed On Train.
New York—Izzy Einstein, famous prohibition enforcement sleuth, returning from a series of dry raids in Detroit, was robbed while asleep in his Pullman berth. One pair of tortoise shell glasses and a fountain pen constitute his loss. Einstein went to bed with his clothes on, he said, and was awakened several times during the night from what he thought was the joggling of the train, but when he awoke he found his pen and glasses gone.

Plant Foods Must Be Kept on Hand

Fertilizers Are Just as Essential in Small Home Garden as Seeds.

Plant foods, or the elements that make plants grow, are just as essential in the home garden as seeds. Nature has been very kind in that she has supplied the most of these elements in abundance in our soils, but there are a few of them which have not been supplied in sufficient quantities to produce good crops. These are mainly nitrogen, phosphoric acid, potash and lime. It is nitrogen that gives the plants their vigorous growth and healthy green color. Phosphorus aids the growth and especially helps in the formation of the seeds. Without potash all garden crops would be a failure, but some crops, such as potatoes, beets, carrots, radishes, etc., require more potash than others.

Garden soils may be acid or alkaline, that is, they may be sour or they may be sweet, the United States Department of Agriculture explains. A few of our garden crops may be grown on a sour soil, but these are very few indeed and most of them must be planted on a sweet alkaline soil. Lime will sweeten an acid or sour soil, the amount of lime required depending upon the sourness or acidity of the soil.

Liquid manure is the finest stimulant your flowers can have. It is also fine to make the head lettuce hurry up their heads. This illustration shows a practical way for providing a supply readily accessible. Either sheep manure, poultry manure, or commercial fertilizer may be used in the bag which is suspended in the water. The device does away with odor. If the barrel can be hidden in the shrubs, near the flower border, the task of supplying stimulant when needed will be simplified.—National Garden Bureau.

Most of our garden lands need nitrogen, phosphoric acid or potash. These can be supplied in the form of a mixed fertilizer containing about 4 or 5 per cent nitrogen, 8 or 10 per cent phosphoric acid and 4 to 6 per cent potash. Truck gardeners usually figure on about one ton of this fertilizer to the acre each year. This would mean about 200 pounds on a tenth-acre plot of ground or 100 pounds on the average backyard garden which is, as a rule, about 30 to 40 feet wide and 60 or 70 feet in length. The fertilizer is best applied just after the ground has been spaded and well raked or forked into the top four inches of soil. If lime is used it should be put on either several days after the fertilizer or a week or so before the fertilizer is applied and never at the same time as the fertilizer. Weeds chopped fine, strawy manure, or, in fact, any manure that does not contain oil from the streets, will help enrich the garden and give the soil new life, but with the present scarcity of manure, home gardeners are practically compelled to depend upon commercial fertilizers for adding plant food to their garden soils. A good plan is for several gardeners in a neighborhood to pool their order for fertilizer, buy it in considerable quantities, and then divide according to the needs of each.

Many gardeners prefer to broadcast about one-half of the fertilizer before planting the crops, then use the remainder for scattering along the rows during the growing period of the crops. This means a little more work but gives the best results. Crops must be fed just the same as animals.

FOR THE DRY CORNERS
Sedums, including love-tangle or goldmoss, hen-and-chickens, and live-for-ever, are small plants that thrive in dry corners or on rocky banks.

CHICKEN LETTUCE
If you keep chickens or rabbits, plant a row of chicken lettuce. It grows four or five feet tall, and makes leaves as fast as you pull them.

TRIFLING IRRITATIONS

By THOMAS A. CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

MOST men could have a leg cut off or receive a refusal of marriage from the girl they love with fortitude and resignation; it is the trifling irritations of life that try our courage and wreck our nervous systems. We can meet death without winking an eyelash, but cold pancakes for breakfast or a lost collar button on us for business for the day. Our friends and our reputations are often made or lost by the way in which we meet the seemingly insignificant situations of life.

I knew a man once who lived with his wife twenty years. They stood by each other through all sorts of sorrows and disasters, but he finally applied for a divorce. She had a persistent habit of taking his soiled handkerchief out of his pocket each evening and substituting a fresh one. It was a violation of his rights, which could not be brooked, and which had fair to sour his whole disposition; he tried in vain to break her of the practice, and, falling in this, sought release from the annoyance through the divorce courts. Yet they had met with heroism and fortitude the serious things of life.

It is seldom the vital or important occurrences which try our tempers or upset us, or make home heaven or hell for us; it is the trifling thing, the unexpected annoyance or omission.

Many of these things are largely matters of personal temperament to which we yield without a struggle. We even become elated or take pride in the fact, at times, that there are certain things which we do not like or which we cannot stand. Some men boast of their little foibles or irritations as if they were an asset rather than a liability.

I heard a man admit the other day that a corroded pen, or a dry inkwell, or a waste-paper basket put thoughtfully out of reach by the janitor did more to disturb his equanimity than a dozen difficult customers would have done.

In my college days I saw an otherwise well-balanced instructor—an experienced middle-aged gentleman—thrown into a frenzy because his hat dropped twice from the hook on which he was trying to hang it. He would have met a crisis in life with composure and complete placidity.

Perhaps when we learn to estimate men's characters justly it will not be wholly from the great crises which they meet, but by the trifling irritations as well which they are able to overlook or to control.

If you never weary in well-doing you will find plenty of folks willing to allow you to keep on never getting weary.

We can't all be geniuses, which is why the world continues to go 'round. You may be a "go-getter," and still not amount to much. It's owing to where you go and what you get.

Many Have Appendicitis Don't Know It

Much so-called stomach trouble is really chronic appendicitis. This can often be relieved by simple glycerine, buckthorn bark, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. Most medicines act only on lower bowel but Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, and removes all gasses and poisons. Brings out matter you never thought was in your system. Excellent for obstinate constipation.—GIDLEY & MAC, Druggists.

KEEP IN TUNE!

HEALTH TALK NO. 12

People are built with care, but how many are careful to keep the body adjusted to the wear and tear of time? A piano will produce clear notes if its parts are in proper adjustment. Accordant sound waves travel wires tuned to carry them.

The difference between a piano and the human body, in respect of being machines, is that one is inanimate, the other a living, thinking and acting creation.

In all ages people have sounded praise to a Deity that could produce a glorious thing like man to sing the music of his own soul to the world. His superior life is the sweet notes in the life of the world. It is expressed through a mechanical arrangement of structures in everything that lives and partakes of it. That arrangement basically involves the nervous system as a carrier of it. It is the most logical thing in the world to believe that the nervous system must be attuned to the despatch of life through it, if its dependent parts are to express that life.

Chiropractors do not go beyond Nature or reason to establish their law of health as a result of freedom of the nerves.

Try to tune your own piano and the results will not please you. It requires skilled help to do the adjusting.

Do your doctoring for your nerves through a Chiropractor. He is skilled in that kind of work. Get rid of the bony-pressure on your nerves at the spine and your feelings will soon inform you that it is possible to have good health and look it by giving Nature the first chance to induce it.
