School Opens Tues. Sept. 2nd

Every Dept. Is Complete And a Fine Faculty has been Secured

School opens first Tuesday after Labor Day. Everything is ready for a good school year. A first-rate faculty has been secured and is ready to go to work. The first Teacher's Meeting will take place Monday, Sept. 1st, at 4:00 o'clock standard time.

It is doubtful if any school in Northern Michigan is better equipped to handle its pupils than the local institution. Every department is complete and in charge of the best teachers to be secured. This should be a consideration to all country pupils. The East Jordan Public Schools are on the University list of Accredited Schools as well as those of the North Central Association and are in the best of standing as already indicated in an official statement from the above mentioned bodies to the Herald some time in June.

Of interest to rural parents and their boys and girls is the fact that the local Agriculture Dept. is perhaps the best in Northern Michigan, if the Federal Inspector, Mr. Gallup's statement counts. He made it more forceful by granting the local school the limit of federal aid. Our Commercial Dept. has also won nearly all the honors in the Northern Michigan Commercial Meet the past two years. This Dept. has not been able to furnish enough good candidates to fill the Commercial positions open. Time and space prevent going into details about the other departments. Suffice it to say that all rural pupils in the County should make an investigation before deciding on their choice of a future high school.

McCoy Accused of Murder

Charged With Killing Woman Found Dead in Apartment

Los Angeles — Norman Selby, known to the prize ring as "Kid McCoy," is accused of the murder of Mrs. Theresa Mors, who was found dead in her apartment here, with a bullet hole through the head.

Almost simultaneously with the discovery of the body, McCoy appeared in the fashionable West Lake residential shopping district armed with a revolver and invaded the Mors Antique shop. There he held up attendants and patrons, shot and wounded W. G. Ross, a chance arrival, then went next door and slightly wounded Sam Schapp and his wife, Ann, who, it is said, had attempted to effect a reconciliation between Mors and his wife.

McCoy was captured a short time later running across West Lake park. He was dazed and incoherent in speech, at first refused to throw any light on the Mors slaying and later said that the woman killed herself in his presence.

Smallest Plane Ends Flight

Covers 1300 Miles Successfully—Wing Spread Only 18 Feet.

Dayton, O.—The world's smallest airplane, the "Alouette," landed at McCook Field here after a flight of 1,300 miles from Kelly Field, Tex. Lieut. Donald Phillips, Kelly Field pilot, now stationed at McCook Field, was pilot of the little ship. He was also the engineer who had charge of its construction.

The plane has a wing spread of 18 feet and weighs 480 pounds with the motor. It has a speed capacity of 105 miles an hour and carries a fuel supply sufficient for four hours flying at 20 miles per hour. It is able to cover 20 miles on a gallon of fuel. The ship is an original model.

The flight to Dayton was made in eight days.

Card of Thanks

We desire to say to our many friends that words cannot express our appreciation for the many kind words and acts to our wife, mother and sister, while she was with us, and to us since her going. Yet as best as we can, we thus thank all, for all the above and for the floral tributes.

MRS. JOHN VRONDRAN OF WILSON TWP. PASSES AWAY

Mrs. John Vrondran passed away at the family home in Wilson township, Wednesday evening, August 13, 1924, after years of patient suffering.

Mary Ann Murphy was born Jan. 31, 1861 at Portland, Indiana. She was united in marriage to John Vrondran Sept. 10, 1889. To this union there were born two children, who with the husband survive and mourn her going.

The children are a daughter—Miss Glenna, and a son, William, both of Wilson township.

Others who feel deeply her going are a sister, Mrs. A. J. Weldy of Wilson township, four brothers—Charles Murphy of Lucerne, Ind., Thomas Murphy of Culver, Ind., John Murphy of Granville, Ohio, and Andrew Murphy of New Madison, Ohio, and two grandchildren, all of whom were at her bedside at the time of her death.

In health she was an energetic companion, in sickness she was a patient sufferer, and always a loving wife and devoted mother, a good neighbor and a true Christian, even to the last she was interested in her loved ones.

The funeral was conducted from the St. Joseph's Catholic Church in East Jordan, Saturday, Aug. 16, 1924 at 9:00 a. m., by the Rev. Fr. D. M. Drinan. Interment in the Catholic Cemetery.

SLOCUM, GLEANER HEAD, IS DEAD

Founder of Farm Organization Passes Away After Long Illness.

Mt. Clemens—Grant Slocum, publisher and farm organizer, founder of the Gleaner organization and president of the Ancient Order of Gleaners, a fraternal insurance society with its main office in Detroit, died of apoplexy after a long illness at his home on Lake Shore Drive, near Mt. Clemens. He was 59 years old.

Mr. Slocum had been an active figure in Michigan newspaper and farm organization work since early manhood.

In 1854, he founded the Gleaners, with a view to promoting co-operative insurance, buying, selling and mutual protection for farmers, and was supreme secretary until 1920, when he was chosen president. The Gleaner Clearing House Association, which formed in 1907, continued until financial stringency due to the war forced it into receivership.

He published the Gleaner until 1907. In 1916, he established Michigan Business Farming in Mt. Clemens and was its editor for three years.

He was an officer in banks at Caro, Middleton, Sheridan and Butternut, and president of the Rural Publishing Co., Mt. Clemens and the Gleaner Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

Narrow Escape of Mountain Climbers

Chamonix, France—Three Italian mountain climbers underwent the terrifying experience of hanging for five hours from a rope over a 300-foot precipice before being rescued. Unaccompanied by guides they had reached the summit of the Aiguille de Grepon, a 11,000-foot peak, without mishap and were on the way back, when one slipped, dragging the others with him down the side of the mountain. One of the trio sustained a broken leg.

Airplane Starters

The air service says that many of the larger types of airplanes have self-starters. The smaller planes have not, because the weight of the starters would decrease the speed of the machine, and speed is the vital element to the small, light plane used for combat purposes.

Free Tickets To County Fair

For Children Who Were Neither Absent nor Tardy The Last Three Months of School.

All school children who were neither absent nor tardy during the last three months of the school year are entitled to free tickets to the county fair. Such has been the ruling in former years and continue so for the coming year.

The Secretary Frank F. Bird, having discussed the matter with several educational leaders in the county, deems it advisable to allow the children tickets on a basis of their standing. As a consequence it has been decided that next year city children must have an average of 85 per cent in all subjects, while children in the rural schools must have an average of 80 per cent in all subjects in order to receive free tickets. A different standing is considered fair because the city child has an advantage over the country child in that he receives a mark at each recitation while the country child usually has an examination at the end of each month, so it is just as difficult for the latter to get an average of 80 per cent as it is for the former to get 85 per cent.

So now Superintendents, teachers, and school patrons please make it your duty to find out who of your school children are entitled to free tickets and mail the list of names to Frank F. Bird, Charlevoix, and he will gladly see that the tickets are mailed in plenty of time. Last year many of the children did not get their tickets simply because the names were not sent in. Do not put this off. You owe it to the children.

LOEB-LEOPOLD TRIAL DRAGGING

Allegations for Prosecution Testify Murderers Are Sane.

Chicago—Following conclusion of testimony of alienists for the defense of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of Robert Franks, evidence of other alienists has been brought by the prosecution in an effort to prove to Judge Caverly that the murderers are sane and should be hanged for their crime.

Prosecutor Crowe's aim has been to discredit the conclusions of defense pathologists that childish phantasies, deficient emotions and functional disorders of the endocrines helped to make the youths mentally sick and consequently they should be imprisoned.

U. S. Will Aid Italian World Flier

Indian Harbor, Labrador—Lieutenant George Onoville, base representative here of the army world flight, received a radio message from the U. S. Cruiser Milwaukee at Greenland, directing the appointment of Lieutenant George G. Jerrett, local fishing factor, agent of the world flight of Lieutenant Locatelli of the Italian air service. Locatelli is now flying around the world over the same route as the American army fliers.

"That's a pretty good joke," exclaimed the radio operator after somebody had sprung a hot one. Then, reaching for his instrument, he added, thoughtfully: "I'll tell the world."

Public Knows Scott's Stand

Congressman Has Always Voted as Republican And in Interest of Public Generally.

If the public wants lower taxes; if the Coolidge plan of TAX REDUCTION is to become effective in the next congress, the voters should surround the President of the United States with tried and true REPUBLICANS, whom they know by past experience will support the Republican party and adhere to the basic principle upon which the entire success of the party has been built.

Such a man is Congressman Frank D. Scott, who during the five whole terms he has represented this district in Washington, has proven conclusively that he IS a REPUBLICAN, not for election purposes, but by conviction. He promises, if re-elected to continue to vote as a republican and not under the direction of any organization, group clique, bloc or individual, but in the interests of ALL the people and not the selective few seeking special privileges.

In the last congress, the Mellon TAX REDUCTION plan and other extremely important administration measures were defeated by men, elected as Republicans, but whose conduct in congress since, has proven that their sole purpose was to disrupt the Republican organization for their own personal, political gain.

The votes of this district KNOW by his record how Congressman Scott stands and votes. They know that he WILL support President Coolidge, if elected and that he WILL ADHERE to the Republican principles at all times, thereby aiding the administration in affecting its TAX REDUCTION and other equally important measures and policies. adv.

Manistee—Merchants of Manistee and farmers of Manistee County held their annual Farmers-Merchants picnic at Orchard Beach, State Park.

Caro—Miss Steda Bixby, Cass City, was badly injured in back and head as a result of a head-on collision when two cars were wrecked near Ellington, six miles from Caro.

Muskegon—The Prince of Wales, who was invited to attend the state convention of the American Legion here in September, sent his regrets to the local committee.

Jackson—According to the will of the late Senator Charles E. Townsend the bulk of his estate, valued at $50,000, will go to his widow, Mrs. Nanette Loomis Townsend.

Grand Rapids—Henry Van Dornery, of Beverly, a suburb of Grand Rapids was killed when the oil truck on which he was riding was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train.

Lake Odessa—Recent clear weather means thousands of dollars to the farmers of this community in saving the wheat crop. A large portion of the oat crop is cut. Corn and potatoes are making rapid progress.

St. Joseph—Emil Zupke, of Benton Harbor, and Florence McKinney, of Bainbridge, his sweetheart, have confessed to the slaying of Cora Raber, of Glendora, whose body was found near here. She was choked to death.

ESTIMATE $37,000 TO REBUILD BELLAIRE LIGHT PLANT

Engineers who have been studying the situation at Bellaire, where the village lighting plant was undermined and swept away July 10, have fixed up on $37,000 as the amount that will be required to rebuild and equip the plant and rebuild the portion of the dam washed out. This is not taking into consideration the salvaging of the water wheel and "umbrella type" generator which are not believed to be damaged.

The plant when rebuilt will be situated some distance north of the site of the old plant, and will be some distance down stream from the dam instead of its foundations forming part of the dam.

A steel penstock will conduct the water to the wheels of an open flume. The wasteway will be built entirely separate from the plant. It was the undermining of the wasteway that caused the wrecking of the plant last month.

It is expected that the new plant, above the cement, will be a temporary structure, for a small town has to think twice before spending $37,000 all at once. Plans for bonding are now before the attorney general's office at Lansing, for his interpretation of recent municipal bonding laws.—Mancelona Herald.

CLYDE D. JUSTICE PASSES AWAY

Clyde D. Justice, aged 34 years, passed away at his home in Jordan township, Antrim County, Sunday, Aug. 17th, following a few days illness from pneumonia. He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife and two children, besides other relatives. Mr Justice had been employed for the past ten years as one of the section men on the E. J. & S. R. R.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 20th, conducted by Leonard Dudley, pastor of the Latter Day Saints Church. Interment at Mt. Bliss Cemetery.

Edmore—Mrs. G. H. O'Brien, wife of the Edmore Times, was injured in an airplane crash at the annual street fair and homecoming here. Mrs. O'Brien, who was a passenger in the plane, and Pilot Kitchen were forced by engine trouble to land. The plane struck a tree on its journey earthward.

Flint—Flint taxpayers authorized a bond issue of $1,219,000 and the transfer of $86,129.91 from previous bond issues to finance a program to construct sewers, pavements and water mains. With a three-fifths vote necessary to carry the issues, the vote stood better than three and one-half to one to carry the proposition.

Pontiac—The laying of the last concrete on the 10-mile stretch of Dixie Highway between Drayton Plains and Potter's Corners, has been completed and the road will be open to traffic early in September, according to announcement by the Oakland county road commission. The stretch will complete the paving between Detroit and Flint on this road.

Ann Arbor—Having studied for eight weeks at the U. of M., the educators are leaving to enjoy a brief vacation ere school opens in the fall. With the going of the teacher-students go the younger students in the hope of jamming a whole summer of play into the short month remaining before the opening of the fall term. September 15 fall registration begins.

Detroit—The panning mill of the Dwight Lumber Co., at the Michigan Central Railroad and River Rouge, was burned to the ground. The damage was estimated by John C. Lodge, acting mayor of Detroit, and vice-president of the lumber company, at about $500,000. The flames started, it is believed, from the fire in the drying kilns. About two years ago a similar fire did a like amount of damage on the same site.

Kalamazoo—The second annual county fair is being held here. Entries in the live stock are 800 per cent more than the 1923 fair. A two-day society horse show with $3,500 plate and ribbon money prizes, has been arranged; a dog show with 200 entries; a farm implement show that covers four acres of ground and plenty of free acts and fireworks day and night feature the fair. The state departments that are exhibiting are M. A. C., health, state industries (prison) conservation, state tax commission and secretary of state.

Fair Week Sept. 8-12

Get Your Exhibits Ready And Make Our Fair the Best Ever.

The Charlevoix County Fair is primarily intended to develop Charlevoix County interests. That means each individual should the products of his farm, factory, and home, attend the Fair as many times as possible, interest his neighbor in its behalf and in every possible way be a live wire in its interests.

The fair officials are this year putting special stress on the matter of exhibits. So many people say, "well, I could take this or I could take that but it would not pay me to go so far with so small an amount of exhibits." No doubt those very things are just what are needed to make our Fair a success and a credit to our county. Now is not there a leader in every community who will take it upon himself to find out what his neighbors have worth exhibiting and see that it reaches the fair. Please do your best. Let us show how we stand in agricultural prosperity, and wealth and so shall our county speak for itself as being a fine place in which to live.

The fair management invites and urges you to begin today to get your exhibits ready and to boost your fair. This is the fortieth annual exhibit. Help us to make it the best ever.

Premium Books are available at all Banks in the county and also at the three Marketing Associations, or write or phone the Secretary, Frank F. Bird Charlevoix, Route 3, and he will mail you one.

WEST MICHIGAN IS SCENE OF TRAGEDY

Benton Harbor, Mich.—Emil Zupke, 22-year old farmer boy of Benton Harbor and Florence McKinney, 19 year old Bainbridge girl, have been charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Cora Raber, 26 years old, of Glendora, whose body was found in shrubbery along a deserted road near the McKinney home.

According to Sheriff George C. Bridgman, Zupke confessed that he had betrayed Cora Raber and choked her to death in his roadster on the night of Aug. 6. He named Florence McKinney, his fiancée, who drove the car while the slaying was being enacted and later helped hide the body, as a partner to the death plot. The killing was done so the Raber girl would not be an obstacle to their marriage.

Zupke is reported to have written Miss Raber that he would marry her if she met him in St. Joseph the evening of August 6. She met him according to arrangement and drove to the McKinney home to call for Florence, who was to act as bridesmaid. The three drove down the road where the Raber girl's body was found several days later.

Both principals visited the scene of the crime after the body had been found and mingled with the crowd. From the scene of the tragedy they went to the McKinney farm, where they talked over the details of the slaying and planned an alibi.

Zupke was arrested at his work in a St. Joseph factory. He had left the farm of his parents a few weeks previously, having been disowned by his father. Following his arrest the McKinney girl was also taken into custody.

BUDGET FOR 1926 ANNOUNCED

Estimated Expense of U. S. Government Placed at $3,200,000,000.

Washington — President Coolidge has received the preliminary draft of the 1926 budget, calling for expenditures of approximately $3,200,000,000, according to Director of the Budget Lord. Contemplated government appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, include $1,800,000,000 for ordinary expenses; $840,000,000 interest on the public debt, and $450,000,000 for retirement of the public debt.

In addition there will be from $600,000,000 to $700,000,000 for the postal service payable from post office receipts. The grand total of governmental operations cost in 1926 will approximate $4,000,000,000, in the opinion of the treasury officials.

The ordinary expenditures will show an increase of $100,000,000 over the 1925 estimate; that for interest on the public debt an approximate $40,000,000 decrease and that for reduction of the public debt practically the same.

Spanish Modes for Fall

Stylists travel to all quarters of the earth in search of inspiration for new modes. This year the costume of ancient and modern Spain caught their fancy and now we see reflections of these Spanish styles in our present-day apparel.

Gorgeous fringed and embroidered scarfs and shawls, lace dresses and the large Spanish combs that distinguish evening modes, show that fashion's eyes lingered long on the romantic apparel of Spain.

GRATITUDE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

WHEN Jack came to Seattle without acquaintances and with very inadequate financial resources, it was Coulter who took him into his office, gave him a job, made friends for him, and set him on his feet.

He made friends easily. His position in Coulter's office made for him a wide circle of acquaintances, and it was not long until he had joined a club, was into society and became one of the well-known men of the town.

Then he gradually drifted away. Money was more plentiful, social pleasures attracted him, he had little to do with his old friend and almost, if not completely, forgot who it was who had given him a start.

"What do you hear from Jack?" I asked Coulter one day when I was in his office.

"I haven't heard from him," he replied.

"What's he doing?" I inquired.

"I'm ashamed to say it, but I really don't know. You see, he never told me, he never even said good-bye to me when he went away, and I haven't had a word from him since he left."

"But he owes almost everything to you," I said. "I should think you'd lose faith and never help a boy again, when you get no gratitude, no appreciation."

"Kindness shown to others, like charity," he replied. "Is its own reward. I learned long ago to do what I could to help young fellows and to be content with the personal satisfaction that comes from knowing that I have done a worthy thing. I never expect gratitude. Sometimes it comes, and this unexpected appreciation that one gets from having helped a man is the sweetest sort of reward, but I am never disappointed if I fail to receive it."

And he was right. Youth is thoughtless, selfish, and often ungrateful. It should be enough reward to any man to realize that he has done what he could in giving every young fellow a chance.

AIR MAIL SERVICE PROVED SUCCESS

CROSS COUNTRY FLYING FIRST MONTH SATISFACTORY, SAYS POSTMASTER GENERAL.

COST HAS EXCEEDED REVENUE

Deficit Not Announced—Average Time of Flight Has Beaten Best Trains By Over Two Days.

Washington—The air mail service from New York to San Francisco, which began operations with night flying last month, was, in the main, successful from every standpoint during the first 31 days.

Despite obstacles, Postmaster General New declared the average time was 39 hours and 49 minutes from New York to San Francisco and 36 hours and 21 minutes from San Francisco to New York. The air mail pilots flew their planes 173,910 miles in 31 days. Gross income was substantially less than the cost of maintenance during the first month.

The poorest time made by the mail planes was 55 hours and 40 minutes westbound, which is 30 hours and 20 minutes better than the best combination of rail schedules. Eastbound, the poorest time was 57 hours and 39 minutes, or 32 hours and 21 minutes better than the best rail time.

Postoffice officials pointed out that the month's record of the air mail pilots—173,910 miles—is almost seven times as far as the army round the world fliers will have flown when they have completed their trip at Seattle. Despite adverse weather conditions during most of the night flying the schedule was maintained without interruption, a plane leaving New York and San Francisco every morning.

The lighting of the ends of the airway is almost completed and this should make the future performance of the planes much better, officials state.

There were no accidents worthy of note in the first month, the nearest approach having been a forced landing by Pilot Yager in Nebraska.

Lack of pronounced distinctiveness of the air mail stamps is causing some letters to find their way on mail trains instead of on planes and steps have been taken to remedy this fault.

An intensive campaign of traffic solicitation is being undertaken through postmasters, commercial clubs and other business organizations.

Kalamazoo—With her transportation paid and about to sail for America, Mrs. Louise Atkinson, 56 years old, of Muskegon, died in Warsaw, Poland, according to a cablegram received here. Mrs. Atkinson went to Europe five years ago as a member of the Russian Relief Mission.

Battle Creek—Details are being wound up here prior to signing a contract by which Fox Field, the aviation field at Camp Custer, will be available to commercial fliers. The chamber of commerce is entering into a contract with the United States government for this purpose.

Owosso—A combination chemical fire truck and pumper purchased by farmers within a radius of nine miles of Owosso has been installed in the Owosso Fire Department. Owosso firemen will man the truck and the city will maintain it. In return, the farmers will permit the city to use it.

Iron Mountain—The City of Iron Mountain is "broke" and notice has been given banks of the city that loans will be necessary to finance the city for the next year. It was stated at the treasurer's office. Failure of the city council to provide sufficient funds by appropriation last year is blamed for the financial straits the city finds itself in.

Holdings of Tobacco Show Increase

Washington—The census bureau recently issued a report showing 1,342,736,850 pounds of leaf tobacco were held July 1, 1924, by manufacturers and dealers, compared with 1,697,844,445 pounds in 1923. The amount held on April 1, 1924, was 1,976,568,989 pounds, while 1,651,930,177 pounds were held on January 1 last. The amount of unstemmed tobacco on July of this year, was 1,684,182,406 pounds and the stemmed 159,604,450 pounds.

Detroit—Cartridges placed by boys on the Grand Trunk tracks near St. Joseph street, recently, are believed responsible for the shot which pierced the right leg of George Rowell, 34 years old, as he was walking near the track while a train passed him. Several exploded shell jackets were found at the side of the track.

Detroit—Acting Mayor Joseph A. Martin has resigned to become a candidate for Mayor at the Sept. 9 primaries, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mayor Frank E. Doremus. Following Martin's resignation, John C. Lodge, president pro tem of the Council, became acting Mayor until the vacancy is filled.

Holland—Thirty-five carloads of cherries were sent in one consignment to Detroit from the local orchards to be made into pies for the people of that city. The cherries were purchased by a Detroit pie company. Every year this company makes 10,500,000 pies for Detroit residents. The 35 carloads of cherries cost $60,000.

Marquette—George Shiras, former justice of the supreme court, who died recently in Pittsburgh, Pa., came to Marquette in 1859. He was born in Pittsburgh in 1832 and was on the supreme court bench from 1892 to 1902. He is survived by two sons, George Shiras, 3rd., of Marquette, former congressman from Pennsylvania, naturalist and writer on constitutional law, and W. K. Shiras, prominent Pittsburgh attorney.

Mr. Ford Owner:

Advertisement for Starline Non-Chatter Motor Oil for Fords only. Has Lizzie turned cranky lately? Bad-tempered, you know, makes an awful fuss when asked to go anywhere; noisy engine, low and reverse kick and grab; you're kind of ashamed when people turn round to see what's coming? Lizzie needs a spring tonic, just like any human. Drain the crank case, fill up with Starline Non-Chatter Motor Oil for Fords only. Just like giving your wife or best girl a present. Picnic at Ridgeway Farm

A very enjoyable affair was the picnic given by Mrs. F. D. Russell on their lawn Sunday, Aug. 17. The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Loomis and daughters, Junita and Bettie Jane of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Leo McCanna of Milwaukee, besides the neighbors there were Mr. and Mrs. Moe Loomis of Charlevoix, Dist., and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weaver and family of Boyne City. About 60 were present. Tables and benches were borrowed from Whiting Park, and Oh! such good things to eat. The writer ate of seven different pies besides scalloped potatoes, salads, macaroni in several ways, tea and coffee, pickles and a lot of other stuff. Believe me I felt like an Ananias that had devoured a goat, and when the ice cream was passed I crawled off in shade and took a nap.

Everybody goes huckleberrying and get a lot of berries.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Hewitt and family of Charlevoix spent Sunday at Maple Lawn.

Lansing—Statistics made public by the State Department of Agriculture recently disclose that the purchasing power of the farm dollar is rapidly increasing in value in Michigan. Taking 1913 as an average year, and reckoning the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar at 100 cents for that year, the department's figures show that it dropped to 67 cents in 1921, was 69 cents in 1922, 72 cents in 1923, and now stands at 79 cents.

Grand Rapids—An authorization for the payment of a final dividend of 10 per cent to creditors of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank has been granted the Michigan Trust Co., assignee, by Circuit Judge Willis B. Perkins. Dividends amounting to 60.5 per cent had previously been paid. The bank's total liabilities, when it closed in March, 1921, were $729,413. Depositors will lose about $215,000. The bank was organized in 1914 with 60 stockholders and William McCrodan was president and Frank J. Cook, cashier.

Grand Rapids—That he was sleepy, and not intoxicated as charged, was the contention of Herbert W. Burke, 24 years old, of Muskegon, in Justice Harry L. Cresswell's court, where he was tried on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He succeeded in convincing a jury when he swore he had been unable to obtain sleep for 48 hours prior to his arrest. Officer Stanley Wallace, who arrested Burke, said he held eight separate charges of traffic violations against his prisoner.

Immortal Marathon. Records of cities show that the average quantity of water used each day per person ranges from seven to eight gallons among the poor, where there is only one faucet in the house, to about 60 gallons in the homes of wealthy persons. The average of an ordinary family in cities is estimated to be about 20 gallons daily for each member. Famous Military Map. In a secluded corner of the national museum at Washington, is hung the wall map used by General Pershing and his staff at American headquarters at Chaumont, France, during the World war. The map indicates the location of the allied and the enemy forces as they stood on November 11, 1918. Healthy Sleep. Often sleeplessness is accompanied by cold feet. The coldness is due to clogging the blood-stream; and this clogging is usually caused by wrong foods and drinks. EAST JORDAN DEFEATED AT PETOSKEY, SUN-DAY BY A 2 TO 1 SCORE

East Jordan was defeated at Potoskey Sunday 2 to 1. Gunderson held Potoskey to seven hits and would have had a shutout but for errors in his support. Gunderson struck out nine men and drove in East Jordans only run with a two base hit. Potoskey scored one run in the eighth and one run in the ninth. The Potoskey lineup included Gurney Dunne and Dugray formerly with the Polish News team, Wenz who played with Harbor Springs and Lennox and Valley who were with Charlevoix earlier in the season. Thomas held East Jordan to five hits and struck out thirteen.

Septuagint

The Septuagint is a Greek translation of the Hebrew Old Testament, so-called because traditionally believed to have been made by 70—or, more strictly, 72—Jews in 72 days, by order of Ptolemy Philadelphus (284-247 B. C.). Critics, however, declare it to be the work, not only of different hands, but also of different times. It probably made its appearance at Alexandria, Egypt, about 260 B. C.

Children Love Music

When Taught New Way

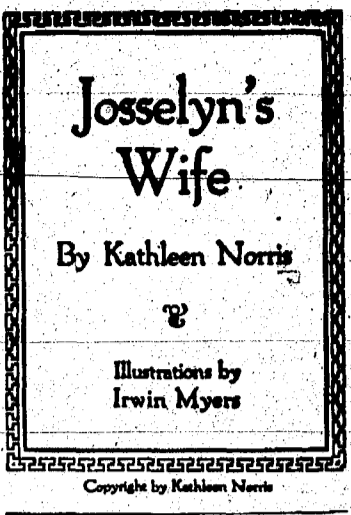

Parents—Do You Know

Why so many children dislike to take their music lessons? Why they protest against practice instead of striving to make progress? Why they fail to learn music as easily as they learn arithmetic?

Do you know that the study of music can be made of fascinating interest to the child? Do you know that the Progressive Series of Piano Lessons is a standardized text work for the study of music—that these lessons are given by class-room method as well as individual instruction—and are taught only by competent and experienced music teachers who have passed rigid examinations?

A great-grandfather's clock in the dimness of the room boomed half-past five. And with a cold and joyous rush, the youngsters came in for their tea.

That was Ellen Latimer's last happy minute in the Rose house. The little velvet dress did not fall from her as the clock struck, but she would have been happier running away from them all into the night, bare of feet and hair, and in her shabbiest kitchen dress, than she was to be here, in all their luxury and warmth.

They were introduced, and they nodded, flinging furs and wraps into the arms of silent, patient, waiting maids. Ellen marveled at their sports-clothes, the soft Swiss coats, the smart, shaggy little caps, the velvet skirts with their big buttons, the silk blouses so immaculately white. Lucia was not pretty, but how smart she was, and how she chattered! Doris was pretty, and everything else that Ellen would have liked to be as well. The five boys were all quite young, fresh-faced, well-groomed, superficially poised in spite of their youthful clumsiness. There were nine of them, altogether. They talked only to each other, in a sort of running fire of growling and tittering and laughing. It was impossible for an outsider to follow their conversation, and even when the older people had drifted away, and Ellen was left with them, they made no concessions for her.

Oh, what a fool she was to come here at all, she thought, undressing late that night. And how she hated them all! They felt her unwelcome, and shabby, and different, and the bitter thing was that Ellen knew that they were right. She could not speak their language, nor understand them when they spoke; her little attempts at merriment fell flat, her best gown was not as smart as their simplest sporting outfit. She had gone downstairs timidly, in the fussy little lace dress, to have them presently follow in their exquisite simplicities of sheer linen and lawn, with girlish touches of pink baby roses or childish wide Roman sashes, plain silk stockings, plainly dressed little satiny heads, with jeweled pins tucked trimly against the coils and plaits. How fresh, how virginal, they were; schoolgirls just on the threshold of womanhood, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen! Ellen's twenty-two years seemed suddenly grimy and gray. A sense of injustice seized her. She had never been as young and sweet and confident as they were!

They were all in love with life, and with each other; it was a pity that they could not spare a little love for Ellen, too. But Dorothy complimented Lucia, and Lucia, Doris, and Doris in turn told Mary that she looked adorable. No one of them gave to Ellen the word for which she hungered, or, better than praise, made the slightest effort to bring her into the group, gave her any reason to believe that with eyes like hers, and cheeks like hers, the lace gown mattered not at all.

The elaborate dinner was served, and the young people began to dance. Then Ellen slipped upstairs, equally unable to review the events of the day, or to anticipate those of tomorrow, with any equanimity. There would be a big dance tomorrow night, and a ride to the "Red Lion" for lunch. Ellen did not ride. Well, she would go with old Mr. Josselyn and Mrs. Rose in the closed car. Unless she had a wire from Aunt Elsie saying that Grandpa was dead—ah, if only she might!

But Grandpa was far from death, and Saturday had to be endured. It was all worse than Ellen's fears. Mrs. Rose was not going on the ride, after all; she and the aunt and the Josselyns were going to play bridge. Lucia unheeded from her indifference long enough to urge Ellen to try to ride. But Ellen, although she was eager to dare it, did not like to risk the danger of making herself absurd on a horse.

There was another choice, but that, too, Ellen did not see until long afterward. She might simply have pleaded indisposition, have begged to be left quietly at home, and so have watched the bridge, which interested her, and have had another pleasant ten-hour.

But instead she let Lucia separate herself from her friends to drive the funny girl from Long Island in a small roadster. The roads were heavy, but Ellen knew nothing of cars, and did not know that really difficult driving was angering the already exasperated Lucia. For perhaps fifteen minutes out of the long two hours the girls talked naturally.

brought out, and Ellen was dragged several cold miles on a sort of combing walk, scrambling, sliding, and skata. The boy called "Red" drove her almost home; he had had a good many cocktails before and after the walk, and drove recklessly.

They got home none too early to dress for the dance, an experience that Ellen never forgot. The young guests in the house had been indifferent to her yesterday; today they actively disliked her, and she afforded them delicious material for laughter. No one asked her to dance; she might have been an invisible witness to the gayety, as she heartily wished herself, for any attention that was offered her. The girls, perturbed, powdered, laughing, pushed by her without a glance, and the boys, gathering eagerly about them, saw her as little. At twenty minutes to one Ellen found herself watching the bridge game. Mrs. Rose was playing with Mr. Josselyn, and it was evident that the luck was running against them.

"There's no bidding hands like these! I declare I never saw anything like it!"

"I suppose we can't start another—we said we would stop at one," young Mrs. Josselyn smiled. Ellen saw Mrs. Rose give her a venomous look as the jeweled hands tumbled the cards idly, and the army man earnestly and quickly added the various scores.

"I'm going upstairs, now," Ellen put in shyly. "I am—a sort of a headache—I think I'd really better! And Mrs. Rose, will you tell me about trains tomorrow—I think I had better—Aunt Elsie expects me—"

She had nerved herself for opposition, but Mrs. Rose made none. "I'm sorry you can't stay," she said. "Better stay and have a little more good time. Auntie will forgive you! Anyway, come down and have some supper now!"

But Ellen murmured of her headache again. She slipped upstairs. And, once in the safety of her own room, she began to undress automatically, with scarlet cheeks and a heaving breast. They had been rude to her, they had been rude to her! She had only wanted to be innocently happy, she had only asked that they be reasonably kind, and they had turned her world upside down, and scarred the old happy confidence forever!

In Mrs. Rose's room, beyond the bathroom, a fire was burning, and Ellen went in to it, and sat down. Huddled in her wrapper, she was dreaming over the coals, when the door was pushed open, and she turned with a smile, expecting to see her hostess.

But it was young Mrs. Josselyn who came in, wrapped in a splendid oriental robe, and with her thick, soft brown hair hanging in a loose coil between her shoulders. "I saw the door open," said she, dropping into the chair opposite Ellen. "I'm tired to death, but I don't feel like going to bed!" She stretched her slippered feet to the blaze, locked her hands behind her head, and yawned, as unselfconscious as a cat. Ellen studied the lovely white arms, the smooth low forehead from which the hair was swept, the dropped bronze eyelashes. She dared not open a conversation, and risk another snub.

The other woman took a framed picture from the table, studied it for a few minutes, and again moved her eyes slowly to Ellen.

"So you've been having a perfectly rotten time!" Ellen laughed nervously. "Why, no, I couldn't say that!" "I suspected it, the way you hung around the card table," said young Mrs. Josselyn, frankly. She extended the picture she held to Ellen. "Know him?" she asked briefly.

Ellen shook her head. She looked at the face of a young man, thin, earnest of mouth and jaw, keen of eye. Even in the picture she could see that the thick crest of hair was gray, and even in the picture the handsome face showed character and power. At one corner, in a small square hand, was written: "To Lucia's Mother, from T. O. J., Jr."

"He's not spoken to his father since our marriage," Mrs. Josselyn said, dispassionately. "I've never met him. He's good looking." She stared silently for several moments at the face of her unknown stepson before replacing the silver frame upon the crowded table behind her. Ellen, whose sense of the romantic had been touched by this situation, looked at her with new interest. Mrs. Josselyn, again stretching her lithe body with luxurious pleasure, apparently dismissed the subject from her mind, for when she spoke, again, it was of Ellen.

"So you've had a nasty time, and they treated you badly?" she said ruminatingly. "Well, that's your fault, my dear. You mustn't try to play their game; they'll have you there. Make them play yours!"

"Easter said that done!" Ellen said, sensitive and girlish. "Tell 'em you hate walks, and you think they're all silly. Tell 'em you won't dance until you feel like it—they'll fall for anything! I'm going to bed—good-night!" she said sleepily, and was gone.

CHAPTER III

The morning came with glorious winter sunlight, and Ellen Latimer, turning luxuriously under her warm soft blankets, stared blankly at a clock that was rapidly moving toward nine o'clock. They must all have had breakfast by this time—evidently no body cared whether she was alive or dead.

Ellen had had a white night, one of the few in her experience. For long hours she had lain awake, thinking soberly about the events of the past two days, and, quite unconsciously, assimilating their bitter lesson.

These girls were not better than she, yet wiser, not really happier. But their circumstances were utterly different, and it was Ellen who, was to blame, not they, for trying to bridge the gulf between their lives. She still had her good home, her own admiring and affectionate group, her books to read by the fire, her garden to dream over in the spring, and the swimming and boating and tennis that absorbed all youthful Fort Washington from June to October. Lucia and Doris were not real, and Ellen's life dealt only with what was practical and sane. One might sigh for the prettiness, the gayety, the irresponsibility, of Lucia's life, one's face might burn because this pretty butterfly could be so triumphant, so rude, and so self-centered, but it was wiser to forget it all, or remembering, remember, too, that the dainty superficialities were a mere accident of income. Ellen Latimer would have something that Lucia Torrey might envy some day, and through no accident of birth.

The breakfast room was deserted. Ellen was the first of all the household to appear. She smiled over her carefully served courses, and presently was hanging absorbed over a jig-saw puzzle that had been scattered upon one of the library tables the day before. Her train went at half-past eleven, it was not yet ten o'clock.

As the young people straggled downstairs she looked up to nod at them composedly. She presently went quietly upstairs to pack, and pinned on the fur-trimmed hat, and fastened a little clump of fresh violets, from a vase, against the sober little suit. It was only goodby now, and the whole experience was over.

"The limousine's coming 'round, dear," Mrs. Rose said. They stepped out to the stone veranda that Ellen had crossed with such high hopes two days ago, and looked down upon a panorama of scattered homes and gardens powdered with the light snow and washed with brilliant sunshine; stone fences, brick fences, clean-swept driveways, everything shining and prosperous in a bath of Sunday peace.

Ellen began her thanks and good-bys. "Don't say one word, dearie," said kindly Mrs. Rose, "I'm only sorry you have to go." Her eyes suddenly were fixed upon the gate, and Ellen, turning, too, saw a low-hung, powerfully built roadster turn in, and come quickly up the drive. "Now, who's that?" wondered the older woman, discontentedly eyeing the two furred men who occupied the car. "I never sit down to a game of why, it's Ward! It's my husband and Gibbs Josselyn!" She turned agitatedly to Ellen. "For heaven's sake, what shall I do?"

Ellen, aware of an emergency, had yet not at all grasped the situation when the two men came laughing up the steps, and greeted her hostess. Mrs. Rose dazedly kissed the small, gray-haired man who was her husband, and dazedly introduced Ellen.

"Ward, this is Nellie Buckley's girl you've heard me talk about, and Miss Latimer—Mr. Josselyn," she said. Ellen would have recognized him instantly from the picture. His head, bare in the sunshine, was sliver, and the lean, clever face she remembered was clear olive in coloring, and brightened now with a most winning and kindly smile. Ellen's first rather awed impression was of poise, reserve, self-confidence. Authority spoke in the pleasant voice, and every inch of the man was stamped to her young vision with a fitness, an aristocracy, a something that marked him superior to others.

In the midst of the first jumble of explanations from the newcomers, as to their reasons for leaving Great Barrington, and their first details of the trip, Mrs. Rose distressfully interrupted.

"Gibbs—Gibbs, my dear boy," stammered she, holding his hand in both her fat ones, and fixing upon him a look all imploring and conciliatory. "You know your father is here, dear—I wouldn't have had it happen for anything in the whole world—but he and Lillian got in on Wednesday, and he telephoned me at once to come down and lunch with them—I really do feel terrible about it—"

Gibbs Josselyn had flushed up to the alvar crest, but he smiled upon her not unkindly. "Dad's here, eh?"

"Yes, Gibbs—and Lillian!" "Goah, that is awkward!" ejaculated Ward Rose, with a sharp, anxious look at his guest.

"Not awkward a bit," Josselyn said quickly. "Of course you had to have them, I'm glad you did—but of course I won't meet her. I'll be getting right along, and see you soon—"

"Listen, Gibbs—she's really quite nice!" Mrs. Rose said eagerly. "Do do be reasonable about it! Your father—your father isn't going to have any more children, Gibbs, and you simply—"

"Gibbs is the best judge of what he wants to do, my dear!" her husband interrupted nervously, with a hint of disapproval in his tone. "I wouldn't—I think I wouldn't try to force matters, Abby. We're awfully sorry, my dear boy, but you understand—of course I had no idea—"

Mrs. Rose looked despair. "But you've not had breakfast, Gibbs; Lucia will be wild if I let you go—coming eighty miles a morning like this—"

"But I can get breakfast!" he said impatiently, as if he found the situation insufferable.

Ellen had been a rather embarrassed witness to this scene, her sympathetic eyes going from one face to another. Now her hostess suddenly noticed her; "My dear child—all this time—where's the limousine?" she exclaimed nervously. "What time have you, Ward—Miss Latimer must catch the eleven-thirty!"

"She has exactly eleven minutes," Gibbs Josselyn said dryly, glancing at his watch, and the older man added, surprisedly: "What on earth's the matter with Maurice? Why is everything topsy-turvy, Abby?"

"Goodby, both of you—see you soon!" Gibbs said suddenly. "Run down and jump into my car, Miss Latimer. I'll run you to the train. We'll make it very nicely. Goodby, Ward! Goodby!"

"Oh, now, I don't like this one bit!" Mrs. Rose continued to protest, but she kissed Ellen goodby none the less, and her husband ran with the two young persons down the steps, tucked Ellen's bag into the back of the car, and forced her to slip into his big fur coat for the two-mile trip.

"Leave it in the office some day, Gibbs," he said. "You can make it, I guess! Goodby, Miss—Awfully sorry, old boy, but such things will occur, Abby's all upset about it, I know." Young-Josselyn put Ellen into the car, and tucked the heavy robe snugly about her. In another ten seconds he had sprung into his own seat, and waved a goodby to the watching Roses. The roaring of the car drowned out all farewells.

A day or two ago Ellen might have felt it her place to keep the conversation moving. But the last forty-eight hours had been full of painful lessons for her; she knew better now than to attempt any friendly overtures. Boys younger than she had snubbed her, girls of seventeen had looked upon her askance. So she kept absolutely silent, her bright eyes moving between the fur of her hat and the fur of her collar like those of a timid but interested bird.

As the car was brought nearest against the station platform, she began to free herself from her wrappings, and said politely:

"I'm a thousand times obliged to you, Mr. Josselyn!"

"I don't know whether you are or not," he said, narrowing his eyes at her quizzically. "I think we've missed it!"

"Missed it! Oh, goodness!" Ellen echoed in dismay.

"Stay where you are," he said, jumping from his seat. "I'll find out."

He crossed the station platform and disappeared, and Ellen sat in a panic, waiting for him. Oh, she couldn't go back to that house, and have the whole thing begin over again—

"Yes, ma'am, we've missed it," said Gibbs Josselyn, coming back, and leaning against the car with sympathetic eyes on her face. "Was it pretty important, or what? The next is at one-twenty-two."

"It's not so important," Ellen said, in a troubled voice. "But I don't like to go back—I'll wait here!"

"What—until after one o'clock?" "Yes, I think so," Ellen answered firmly. "I—I don't know them very well, she went on confusedly. "And—and I think I rather worry Mrs. Rose, not getting on exactly with the others."

She stopped, conscious that this explanation was rather lame, and added finally: "You see, they all know each other so well, and they don't know me!"

"I see perfectly," Gibbs said pleasantly. "You would be safer in a band of Hotterpots!" Ellen laughed. Her white night had only added a touch of mystery, of spirituality, to her Irish beauty, after all, and the drive, after her breakfast, had brought back her wild-rose color. The man looked at her as if he saw her for the first time, looked down at his big fur glove, plunged his hand suddenly into it, and asked carelessly:

"You couldn't make the run with me, I suppose? I'm going straight down to my club. It won't take us more than a couple of hours."

The girl's blue eyes danced. The thought of a refusal never entered her head.

"Oh, I'd love it!" she answered happily. "Good girl!" he said. He walked about his car, eyeing it from all sides, opened the engine-hood and made a few mysterious investigations, got back in his place, and they were off. Her companion, who was wearing dark goggles, turned to Ellen and dropped another pair of glasses in her lap, with the four brief words: "Better put them on." Ellen obediently snatched them against her soft hair. Not another word was spoken for three miles. Ellen was entirely conscious that the man beside her was gradually working off his irritation and anger.

After awhile he glanced at her, smiled a sudden and perfunctory smile, and said:

"I'm pleasant company for you—what? Have you minded my chatter?" Ellen laughed, in some embarrassment. "I didn't mind—not talking!" she said, shyly.

"You—what?" he asked in so loud a voice that she felt rather frightened. "You didn't mind? Well, that's so much gained, anyway." He drove on for a minute or two, and then asked abruptly: "Miss Latimer, how much of that did you get?"

Ellen was not quite sure she understood him.

"You mean—there at the house?" she faltered, as he gave her a shrewd side glance.

"Exactly!"

"I knew that Mr. — that your father was there!" the girl said, timidly. Gibbs wrenched at the wheel with large, strong hands; his brow clouded; they flew along in silence.

"D—n such women!" she heard him say under his breath. Ellen felt her color rise, she looked straight ahead. "I wonder if she arranged that?"

Ellen's quick look met his; she shook her head decidedly.

"Mrs. Rose? Oh, no! She wouldn't do a thing like that! She was frightfully nervous the instant she saw you," she answered confidently. "She's too good-hearted—she wouldn't do a thing like that!"

Again he did not answer, except for a dubious glance and a half-satisfied nod. But after a while he spoke.

"I guess you're right. You probably are. I guess I'm just out of sorts—making too much of the whole thing!"

The car slowed down, Gibbs looked at the fastening on one of his big gloves, shot Ellen a glance.

"Have you got a mother?" "No," Ellen answered. "My mother is dead."

"So is mine," he said soberly. "I loved her very much. I don't—I don't get used to it!"

"I'm sorry!" the girl said, simply, after a moment.

For a few minutes he was silent. Then he suddenly began to speak of his mother.

"I don't know why," he said unexpectedly, "but I wish you had known my mother. She was a most extraordinary person. She was frail always, I think, and when I was a boy about eighteen or nineteen, she had an illness, and she never left her couch after that—for twelve years. I was studying in Paris, she and my father had left me there; she wanted me to be a painter. But on my own responsibility I came home when my father wrote me that she was ill. I've never forgotten her look when I came into the garden. It was summer, and she was lying on the porch—thin, and so white—"

What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to East Jordan Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of an East Jordan resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Albert Turk, East Jordan, says: "Morning my back felt lame and I found it hard to get up. My back got so weak and sore, I couldn't stoop over. I couldn't get rested and always felt tired and worn out. Dizzy spells came over me, too. My kidneys were irregular and I had to get up during the night. I used Doan's Pills and they cured me of the trouble."
Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Turk had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Tuberculosis Is Traced by Marks

"Tattoo" Instrument Devised to Expedite Eradication of Dread Disease.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The marking of hogs with a "tattoo" instrument which has been devised in the United States Department of Agriculture, for use in tuberculosis eradication investigations, has in some instances incriminated the "old hen" on the farm as one of the accomplices in the spread of the infection to swine. The tattoo marks placed on the hogs shipped from an area where tuberculosis is prevalent among cattle and poultry maintains the identity of the hogs even after they have gone through the scalding and scraping processes in the packing plants and makes it possible to trace any infection to its source.

Infection Suppressed.
During the period November 6, 1923, to April 2, 1924, a total of 13,204 hogs were shipped from Hillsdale county, Mich., an area in which the infection among cattle had been suppressed to less than one-half of 1 per cent, qualifying the county as a "modified accredited area." Of this number about one-sixth showed slight evidence of tuberculosis. The lesions were so slight, however, that it was necessary to condemn only one carcass entirely; five others, however, were rather seriously affected. The packers paid the premium of ten cents per hundred-weight on these hogs.

Marks Show Origin.
The tattoo marks on the infected carcasses showed them to have come from 30 farms in Hillsdale county. On 22 of the farms no infection was found among the cattle. On 15 farms bovine infection had not appeared since 1921. On the remaining farms no cattle were kept. Going still further into the investigation, tuberculin tests were applied to 15 lots of chickens containing 75 head. Twelve of the 15 lots contained reactors. Tests were also applied to the swine on those farms with the result that 17 and a fraction per cent of swine infection was indicated. This figure checked rather closely to the percentage, 16.8 per cent, as reported through post-mortem inspection by the inspector at the packing plant. In the absence of bovine tuberculosis on the farms where the hogs originated, the tests incriminated tuberculous fowls as the probable source of infection.

The department cautions live stock owners against needless exposure of swine to tuberculous cattle and poultry and urges the eradication of infection in poultry by disposing of the older fowls especially and cleaning and disinfecting the premises.

Best Time for Cutting Sweet Clover for Seed

Sweet clover should be cut when three-fourths of the seed pods have turned dark brown to black. At this time some flowers and many immature pods will be found on the plants, but the field will have a brownish cast. The seeds shatter badly when mature, and for this reason every precaution must be taken to cut at the proper stage and save as much of the shattered seed as possible. Shattering will be reduced by cutting when the plants are damp from dew or rain. The seed crop is usually cut with a self-rake reaper, grain binder, grain header or corn harvester, the two former being most satisfactory. The crop should be stacked unless it is to be threshed within ten or fourteen days.

Keep a Close Watch for Stinking Smut in Wheat

During harvest, and especially at thrashing time, it is well to keep a close watch for stinking smut in wheat. Seed should be used from fields which show the least amount of smut. Badly smutted wheat, however, can be used if it is treated before being planted. This is sometimes more advisable than buying new seed or exchanging seed. The indications to date are that there is little stinking smut in South Dakota.

Ground Soy Bean Hay

Ground soy-bean hay compares almost identically with ground alfalfa hay, but has only about one-third as much protein as oil meal or cottonseed meal, while soy-bean meal (or cake) is equally as rich in protein as either oil meal or cottonseed meal. Several feeding experiments show conclusively that soy-bean meal or cake, that is, the residue after the oil has been removed, gives equally as good results as either oil meal or cottonseed meal.

Alfalfa After Clover

Although a good crop of sweet clover prepares the way for alfalfa it is often hard to get a stand of alfalfa in the fall after the second year's growth has died down, due to the fact that the sweet clover uses up much of the available moisture and food supply. However, no other crop will provide inoculation for alfalfa like the sweet clover does.

Millet Sown After Rye

Millet is very often sown after rye, and the land may be prepared by double disking, followed by a harrowing, after which the millet may be seeded. Millet is not considered a good hay for horses unless it is cut fairly early, and then it should make up not over half the roughage. Mature millet hay had rous to feed to horses.

HENRY FORD IN SENATE RACE

Nominating Petitions Bear Signature of 34,000 Voters.

Lansing—Henry Ford's name was filed as a last minute entrant as a Republican, in the race for U. S. senator. Nominating petitions bearing approximately 34,000 signatures of voters were presented to the secretary of state, making him a candidate for both the long and short term.

About 80 per cent of the Ford petitions were residents of Detroit and Wyandotte. Petitions with about 3,000 names came from Lansing and vicinity.

Two points about the motor man's candidacy remain the mystery. One is what Mr. Ford himself thinks about the matter and the other is who put up the funds to hire the canvassers who got the 34,000 names within a period of 2 days.

AUTO EXPORT RECORD BROKEN

Nearly 200,000 Motor Vehicles Shipped During Last Fiscal Year.

Washington—A new record was established in exports of automotive vehicles from the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, according to announcement by the department of commerce.

There were 199,135 motor vehicles shipped which included passenger cars, trucks and motorcycles. The figure for 1919-20, the year following the war, was 178,534. The figure for 1913-1914, which ended the period preceding the war, was only 37,198.

Production of passenger cars and trucks in 1923-24 was 3,980,443, and in 1922-23 was 3,464,870.

Beneath the old clothes and papers in the trunk were 108 one-ounce cans of morphine and fifteen one-ounce containers of cocaine.

Alleged Thug Identified By Pistols.

Ionia, Mich.—Through serial numbers on four pistols which Harry Vidler, 22 years old, and a companion, said to be known as "Two Gun" Robinson, are said to have stolen from the Ionia express office 2 months ago, Vidler was arrested in Davenport, Ia., and has been returned here by Sheriff Henry Cook for arraignment. Robinson, it is said, is wanted by Frankfort, Ill., officers for the slaying of a policeman during a holdup after the Ionia robbery.

ALLIED-GERMAN PARLEY SUCCEEDS

DAWES PLAN ON REPARATIONS ADOPTED AT LONDON CONFERENCE.

IN EFFECT ABOUT SEPTEMBER 1

Troops to Be Withdrawn From Ruhr Within Year—Germany Agrees On Yearly Cash Payments.

London—The reparations protocol has been signed by the Allied and German representatives, making possible fulfillment of the programme drawn up in the Dawes report.

Under the agreement reached, ratification of the pact is to be effected by the interested powers within 15 days, if possible, after signing.

At that time too, all the numerous provisions of the Dawes plan go into operation under the terms agreed upon at the conference now closed.

Under the terms of the protocols, which constitute what will be known as the "pact of London," France and Belgium agree to evacuate the Ruhr completely within one year from date.

Germany in turn promises to begin payment of the reparations immediately after the pact is ratified by the several parliaments, the first year's sum to be 1,000,000,000 gold marks.

As a special concession understood to have been agreed on through an interchange of letters during a triangular conference today of the Belgian, French and German representatives, Belgium is expected to order withdrawal of her forces of occupation in German territory outside the Ruhr immediately after ratification of the pact. This would mean that evacuation of now occupied territory would actually begin around Sept. 1.

After the first year, the terms of reparations payments, agreed to by the Germans, are as follows:

Second year, 1,220,000,000 gold marks; third year, 1,200,000,000 gold marks; fourth year, 1,750,000,000 gold marks, and fifth year, 2,500,000,000 gold marks.

The money for reparations payments is to be raised by ordinary budget taxation by changing the German government-owned railways systems into a privately owned company whose profits will be used for reparations payments; by raising a 5 per cent mortgage of five billion gold marks on the security of German industries, and by loans.

By the end of the fiscal year 1928-29, the fifth year of payments, the financial and economic situation of Germany will have returned to normal and an "index of prosperity" based on Germany's real income will determine what additional reparations sums the Germans can pay. This index will be applied by degrees and will become fully operative in 1934-35. There is no indication when Germany will cease paying.

None of the American representatives signed the document, which bears the title, "An agreement between the Reparations Commission and the German Government."

DETROIT FIRST IN CLEARANCES

More Ships Passed Customs Here Than From New York Port.

Detroit, Mich.—More vessel clearances were recorded in the 38 customs districts, in which Detroit is the largest port, for the last fiscal year, than in any other district of the country. The New York district ranked second with 7,578 clearances. The Detroit district numbered 10,372, according to report of Carey D. Ferguson, collector of customs.

The total value of imports and exports passing through the ports of the 38th district in the fiscal year 1923 which ended June 30, 1924, showed an increase over the previous year of $4,478,509. The amount for 1923 totalled $305,950,911.

NEW ARMS PARLEY PLANNED

President to Summon World Nations for Conference in U. S.

Washington—President Coolidge expects to summon the nations of the world to a new disarmament conference the first of the year. Invitations are to go forward in October under present plans. The conference probably will convene in Washington around January 1.

Arrangements are understood to be going forward already and only some unexpected turn in the European situation would cause a change of plans.

Aeroplane Broadcasts Program.

New York—A program from an airplane 4,000 feet above Central Park was successfully broadcasted by Station WJZ. The plane, piloted by Lieut. Connell, carried a new type of signal corps transmitter of five-watt power, and an antenna which trailed 20 feet. On the ground, in the park, was a receiving set and a portable amplifier connected by wire with the radio station. The ground equipment included a microphone, while the plane had also a receiving set.

An Appreciation of Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

THERE'S just one way you can know the vast difference between Red Crown and other gasolines. That is by asking Red Crown to get you out of difficulties. It does it every time.

Here's one man's experience:

"Red Crown had been my engine fuel for many years—long tried, well tested, and entirely satisfactory—

"But, in a foolish moment, YOU KNOW, on the advice of a (so-called high-test) gasoline salesman, I changed my brand, and for several months used other kinds of gasoline with various unsettling results, as: Short mileage, with more frequent filling of my gas tank; hard to start after the lighter elements were used out of my tank; lack of power on a hill, with always in low as I climbed; and, to top my difficulties, one day I ran out of 'gas' on the hill.

"Then I was cured. I had always carried a gallon of Red Crown under the seat, and I put it in the tank and climbed the hill on high gear for the first time in months. Red Crown for me from now on."

Furthermore, Red Crown takes a hint with a haste that will delight you. It has the right attitude toward its job—peppy, active, ready to anticipate your desires, and always dependable.

Foretell trouble. Put Red Crown in your tank now—and laugh at sand, grades and mud!

Artesian Wells

A spouting well bored down to a point, usually at a great depth, where the water pressure, owing to the conformation of the geological strata, is so great as to force the water out at the surface. It is known as an artesian well; the term is often applied, however, to any deep bored well, as for petroleum, and even where pumping is necessary, as in an ordinary driven well.

Rice Paper

Rice paper is made from a tree (Fatsia Aralia papyrifera) grown in Formosa. The pith, from one to one and one-half inches in diameter, is opened out with a sharp knife and then pressed flat. From this, when dried, the best artificial flowers are made; it is also employed, chiefly in China and Japan, for pictorial designs highly colored.

World's Oldest Harp

The most remarkable harp in existence is that known as Brian Boru's harp, which is preserved in the museum of Trinity college, Dublin. Doctor Petrie tells us that "it is not only the most ancient instrument of the kind known to exist in Ireland, but is, in all probability, the oldest harp now remaining in Europe."

HINES TO SUCCEED PERSHING

MAJ.-GEN. JOHN L. HINES
Battle Creek, Mich.—Major General John L. Hines, whose indorsement for the post of chief of staff of the United States army to succeed General John J. Pershing, when the latter retires September 15, will carry out Pershing's policies. This fact was intimated by General Hines who visited Camp Custer on a tour of inspection. He refused further comment.
General Hines was General Pershing's adjutant general during the punitive expedition into Mexico in 1916-17, and accompanied him to France. Later he was transferred to command a regiment and successively promoted to brigade, division and corps commander "on account of efficiency on the field of battle."

Iron River—The Iron district of Michigan has been facing what has proven a difficult task, that of finding a candidate for the state legislature. With only a few days left in which to seek the office held for the past 10 years by P. O'Brien, of this city, who retired. Candidates were being sought from every nook and corner of the district, which embraces Iron, Baraga, Antonagon and Keweenaw counties, but all declined.

Pontiac—Ross Stockwell, of the Probate Court, has approved the finding of three commissioners appointed by him in a condemnation suit brought by Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, against Dr. Leo Breisacher, of Detroit, in which it was found necessary to take about five acres of Dr. Breisacher's land fronting on Woodward avenue, in Bloomfield Township, for widening the highway. The price fixed was $4,864.75.

Lansing—Commissioner of Insurance Leonard T. Hands recently revoked the license of the Associated Employers Reciprocal Insurance exchange, of Chicago, to do business in Michigan. Investigation of the exchange, Commissioner Hands said, revealed the fact that it was impaired to the extent of $1,000,000. A hearing was to have been held here by Hands, but no representative of the concern appeared before him, thus automatically cancelling its license.

Kalamazoo—The 1925 convention of the International Typographical Union will be held in this city, according to a telegram received from Walter A. Landon, delegate from Kalamazoo to the annual meeting of the body being held in Toronto.

Perry—John Proctor, 62 years old, was gored by a bull at his farm here and died from the injuries. His chest was crushed in, causing internal hemorrhage. Mr. Proctor was a noted stock man and one of the prosperous farmers of this section.

Adrian—The county highway department is completing a program of summer oiling and is now working on roads entering Ohio. While the roads are not closed, detour signs are erected to prevent motorists from getting their cars spattered with fresh tar.

Iron Mountain—The continued rains and cool weather which the upper peninsula has experienced the past several weeks, has placed every potato field in Dickinson county in grave danger of late blight, according to A. J. Lonardot, county agriculturalist.

Caro—Mrs. Earl Foster and Mrs. Leo Powers, Detroit, returning from Saginaw in an automobile turned turtle in a deep ditch near Munger. Beth women were seriously injured. Mrs. Powers was thrown through the windshield and Mrs. Foster was pinned under the car.

Mt. Clemens—Vivian Persinger, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Persinger, was burned to death in her bed in the Persinger home.

Albion—A Boy Scout camp lodge at Wolf Lake, south and east of Jackson has been dedicated by Dr. John L. Seaton, new president of Albion college.

Camp Grayling—Under the command of Brigadier General Guy M. Wilson, the biggest state camp in the history of the Michigan National Guard has opened.

Detroit—Peter 'Wiggle, for 24 years in the Detroit postoffice service, was appointed acting postmaster to fill the place of John W. Smith, who resigned to run for mayor.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

ALWAYS SHINING

IN THE hearts of the humble, the sun is always shining. If you will pause a moment to look into the faces of such mortals, you will catch a glimpse of celestial fire whose intensity cannot be measured.

With humility, these souls have patience and faith. They often pass us by unheeded, for they are not given to show or vaunting.

Their eyes are mild, their lips are set in a smile.

They go upon their way as softly as do the stars of night, mindful of their course and keeping steadfastly upon it, in all sorts of weather.

Only rarely do we worldlings know such souls when we meet them; yet we are conscious of their magnetic influence. The light that shines from their faces soothes and encourages us.

It may be the face of a child, but we catch the thrill of a new emotion and go soaring off into another realm, wondering what subtle spirit has touched us and left us so sublimely thrilled.

This feeling of exaltation, when once experienced, is never forgotten. It clings to us through all the seasons and years of our life, cheering us in sorrow, strengthening us when we are weak, and easing our burdens when we feel that we cannot bear them a day longer.

It forms a pleasing background to our existence, a sort of refuge where we may go and find rest when we are unnerved, exhausted and discouraged.

Riches, honor and fame lose their luster when in the presence of the soul that is humble, patient and faithful.

Earthly prizes such as these are but the dress of a precious substance from which such a soul is made—made to endure forever, where the light is always shining and life discovers itself in its true sphere.

And certainly, whatever it may be with regard to the persons who are now skeptical about such matters, the day will come when they, too, shall see the light, and as likely as not find it shining within their own breasts, in a moment when they least suspect its divine presence.

Hidden somewhere within us such a light is always burning, ready at the touch of the right word to flare up into a beneficent blaze!

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

OF COURSE, every married man knows that there are no infallible rules for ruling a woman.

But every bachelor thinks he knows a few, and never hesitates to whisper them confidently into the poor innocent bridegroom's ear.

Here they are—as far as I have been able to gather them:

1. Start right. Guard your independence with your life! Never humor a wife by explaining why you are going out or when you are coming back. After she has spent a few hours trying to keep the dinner hot, and picturing you mangled by a taxicab, think what a thrill it will give her to see you come in well and cheerful, instead of on a stretcher.

2. Don't flatter her. When you are tempted to compliment her on her looks or her cooking, control yourself. Be strong. A little flattery may go to her head, and make her so dizzy that she'll wonder why she wasted herself on you.

3. Assert yourself, from the start. Now, is your appointed hour. Every woman loves a "master." Show her that she is, after all, only your Rib—and that you are IT.

4. When your wife talks, never listen. She will probably not say anything worth hearing. And besides, it is much more important that you should finish reading the sporting sheet, than that you should try to be companionable with one so mentally inferior.

5. Remember that she is an ignorant, unsophisticated little thing, and that you must keep tabs on her and remodel her. Never hesitate to criticize her clothes, to laugh at her ideas, and to disapprove of her friends. This will make her love you like an "uplifter."

6. Don't be too devoted to her in public. Let her catch you looking admiringly at OTHER women, now and then. She will soon learn to appreciate your good taste and broad-mindedness.

7. Always keep an eye on the weekly bills, and make her account to you for the money you dole out to her. Every woman needs a guardian, and loves to feel like an object of charity, and no woman knows the real value of money, even when she has had to earn it.

8. Never forget that marriage is a monarchy—not a democracy—and that there can be only one throne, one scepter, and one set of opinions in the house. Grab 'em, first!

These are a bachelor's rules for ruling a woman. Any bridegroom who will follow them, can make a complete wreck of marriage, without committing a single solitary sin.

C. D. McKean

C. D. McKean has just been appointed chief of the Department of Justice's new division of identification. It will start with a collection of approximately 1,000,000 finger prints gathered from the Department of Justice records at Fort Leavenworth, and from the bureau which has been maintained in Washington for two years by the International Association of Police Chiefs. The organization of this division was provided for by the last session of congress with an appropriation of $50,000.

St. Joseph—Three persons were injured, telephone and electrical service impaired and many trees blown down in a heavy wind storm that swept over the Twin Cities.

Fremont—Excessive heat contributed to the recent death of Theodore Johnson, 40 years old, a farmer residing near Sand Lake, who died while mowing hay. He had been subject to attacks of heart disease.

Albion—A $15,000 fire entirely destroyed the Frank Martin creamery at Deverux, a village six miles north of here. Overheated exhaust pipes of gasoline engines used to run the machinery are held responsible for the fire.

Jackson—John J. Barlow, prominent farmer near here, was found dead in a field where he was cultivating potatoes. He had evidently had some trouble with his horses and had been killed when the cultivator was dragged over his body.

Bay City—Lyle Morrison, 19 years old, of Saginaw, was drowned when the car in which he and three companions were riding, broke through the guard chain and plunged into the Saginaw river through the open draw of Belinda street bridge.

Manistee—Injunction proceedings invoked against a newly organized union by the Filer Fibre Co., whose employes walked out two weeks ago, have barred picketing of the plant. A troop of State police, sent here when mild sabotage followed the importation of a number of strike breakers, restored quiet.

Bay City—Fred Zings, city employe, and Peter Falasz, 15 years old, were burned to death when an interurban car of the Michigan Railway struck a truck in which they were riding. The truck caught fire and the occupants, unable to get out, were burned to death before help could reach them.

Owosso—The fact that bonded indebtedness of the Owosso water works department is $293,000 has made it necessary to increase the minimum rate to $14 per year, to meet interest charges, according to Commissioner John Rosevear. The increase went into effect June 1, but the public was not informed.

Saginaw—The sailboat of Floyd J. Rieder, Saginaw, was capsized a mile off Linwood Beach in Saginaw Bay when it was caught in a sudden squall. Accompanying Rieder were his son, R. C., and Walter and Jack Qualman, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Qualman, of Saginaw, and John Nagel, of Detroit. Rieder's presence of mind in keeping the boys held fast to the overturned boat saved them until motorboats put out from shore and picked the party up.

Muskegon—An assembly plant of the Donelson Walker Roller Manufacturing company, which holds American manufacturing rights to patents owned by the Donelson Manufacturing Company, Ltd., of Edinburgh, Scotland, will be established within a few weeks at Muskegon Heights, it was announced by D. R. Walker, a representative of the company. The company will manufacture parts for a new design of window shade roller which needs no springs, tacks or glue to hold the shade in place.

Three Rivers—Oliver B. Kline, well known farmer residing north of Three Rivers, died from injuries received, when crushed by an automobile, he was repairing. Kline had raised the front of the car, using a rope tied to the branch of an old apple tree in his yard. The front axle and wheels had been removed and Kline was working under the car when the limb broke, letting the car down upon him. Although badly crushed, he retained consciousness, and spoke to his wife and daughter while they released him.
