The Big Annual Event for Northern Michigan is staged for the coming week at East Jordan, when the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society will hold its Fortieth Annual Exhibit.

Every effort is being put forth to make this the better fair event and, barring bad weather, the Association will have the largest attendance in its history.

A page adv. will be found in this issue setting forth briefly, some of the many attractions offered.

Make your plans to attend Northern Michigan's Greatest Fair next week at East Jordan.

NEW CROPS PEST IS FOUND IN MICHIGAN

The Japanese beetle, a crop pest introduced to this country from the Orient about a dozen years ago and confined so far to restricted areas along the eastern coast, has been found in Washtenaw and Lenawee counties by Mr. M. E. Lockwood, of Tecumseh.

One of the insects was identified last week by Prof. R. H. Pettit, head of the Michigan Agricultural College entomology department, as a "true" Japanese beetle, and as a result state and federal authorities are starting a careful investigation to determine whether or not the dangerous crop pest has really been established in the state.

The Japanese beetle "works" on many different crops, being capable of inflicting severe losses. Fruits, vegetables and field crops are included in the list of plants upon which it feeds. For several years the beetle was confined in this country to sections of New Jersey. It has also been reported in Pennsylvania, while the recent Michigan report is the first from a western state.

Authorities of the U. S. department of agriculture who are working on the Japanese beetle problem have been notified by Professor Pettit of the Michigan occurrence, and one of the beetles has been sent east for positive identification. An investigation by federal authorities will undoubtedly follow, it is said, with prompt steps to prevent the spread of the beetle, if it is found to be established here.

HOWLETT'S CLOWNS COMING.

A rare treat is in store for lovers of baseball, as Howlett's Detroit Clown baseball team will play here September 13-14. The players are all professionals who play in bright-colored special Clown suits and the fans, besides seeing a fast game of ball, are promised a laugh a minute, so caused by the funny antics of these funny men. Miller, the Clown catcher who has wrung laughs from thousands, is with the Clowns again this season. Carrying a bunch dressed in Clown suits and not pulling off funny stunts would be like mince pie without raisins, so acting upon this theory the manager has secured some very capable entertainers for this big Novelty team. If you want to witness a sight such as you have never seen on any ball field or are troubled with the blues, turn out to this game.

LEAGUE of WOMEN VOTERS

Mrs. Helen Brooks Davis of Saginaw, met some of the women voters of East Jordan, at the High School Auditorium Wednesday afternoon for a brief school of instruction on voting, so many votes are thrown out each year because they are not marked right. It is to be hoped that in the near future we have in East Jordan, a League of Women Voters that women who have the right to vote may do so intelligently.

The following committee we appointed.

Mrs. Fannie Whittington, chairman of the organization committee.

Mrs. Ida Price, chairman of 3rd ward.

Mrs. Clara Kitsman, chairman of 2nd ward.

Sam Kamradt hit a grounder to Kippert, Deitrick scored when he reached the plate ahead of the throw. Milligan was out on a grounder to Rigley, scoring DeLoof. Hank and Sam Kamradt crossed the plate on Covey's single.

Singles by Deitrick, DeLoof and H. Kamradt put two runs across the plate in the fifth.

Charlevoix's only run was made in the sixth on Valley's single and Christy's double.

Makes Quick Change

The Cecropia moth comes into the world a sorry looking object, its wings wet and crumpled and its body furry and disheveled, says Nature Magazine. In a few minutes, however, a wonderful transformation takes place. The wings soon spread and dry, the antennae stretch out, the body becomes fluffy, and a beautiful creature stands poised ready for flight.

East Jordan Shut Out Traverse City

Gunderson's excellent pitching shut out the fast Traverse City team at Traverse City, Wednesday, Aug. 27th, East Jordan winning 8 to 0. This game made three victories for East Jordan out of five games against Traverse City this season.

Gunderson held the hard hitting Traverse City team to one hit and struck out ten men. Only three balls were batted out of the infield. Only one Traverse City player reached third base, Moran who tripped in the sixth, and but one other base runner was as far as second.

East Jordan knocked "Lefty" Gaines Traverse City's star left handed pitcher out of the box in the seventh inning when Hank Kamradt hit a home run with Deitrick and DeLoof on the bases. East Jordan made two fast double plays.

East Jordan crossed the plate twice in the first inning. Deitrick was passed, H. Kamradt reached first on Burges's error, Deitrick going to third. H. Kamradt stole second. Deitrick and H. Kamradt scored on Sam Kamradt's single.

Covey opened the second inning with a single, went to second on Ward's sacrifice and scored on Deitrick's triple. In the seventh Deitrick was safe on Moore's error. DeLoof singled, Deitrick going to third, DeLoof stole second. Hank Kamradt hit a home run scoring Deitrick and DeLoof ahead of him. Gains left the box and Atwater took on the twirling job. Sam Kamradt hit a double but was left on second as the next three batters could not advance him.

Hank Kamradt drove out a two base hit to start the ninth. Gunderson waited out a base on balls. H. Kamradt and Gunderson scored on Milligan's double.

With one out in the first inning, Bugai was passed, Moran hit into a double play Gunderson to Covey to Ward. Gains went to first on four balls after one was out in the second. Williams hit into a double play, Deitrick to Covey to Ward.

BAY VIEW WINS FROM EAST JORDAN IN CLOSE CONTEST

Bay View defeated East Jordan at the Fair grounds last Friday, 2 to 1. The Bay View lineup included five players from Harbor Springs and two from Pellston. Tolles kept Bay View hits well scattered except in the first and seventh innings.

Bay View's first run was scored in the first inning on Day's single, Miller's sacrifice and Starkhoff's single.

"Home Coming Week"

Now that the Tourists Park is practically assured for next year's use, it is understood that plans are under way for a Home Coming week for East Jordan next summer, either the last week in July or last week in August. This can be made a big event for the town, and committees should be selected soon, as some preparatory work could be done this Fall.

If the Board of Trade will take this on and push it, or if there is any other representative organization willing, right now is the time to start.

East Jordan tied the score in the fifth on Gunderson's double, Milligan's sacrifice, a base on balls to Morgan and LaLonde's single.

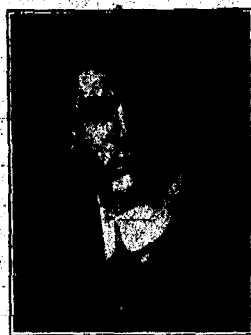

Tabbotts double and Day's single scored the second run for Bay View in the seventh.

PRIMARY SCHOOL FUND APPORTIONED

RATE IS $14 FOR EVERY CHILD BETWEEN AGES OF FIVE AND TWENTY.

HIGHEST IN HISTORY OF STATE

In Proportion to Number of Children, Money Goes to All Counties to Help Maintain Schools.

Lansing—Wayne county will get $4,522,446 from the state primary school fund, according to an apportionment by counties completed by O. B. Fuller, auditor-general.

The fund, which is raised from taxes on public utilities, will be distributed at a rate of $14 for every child between the ages of 5 and 20. It goes to all counties, in proportion of the number of children, to help maintain the schools. In some instances counties will get more from the fund than they pay in state taxes.

Kent is next to Wayne with $773,695. Genesee will get $467,530. Other counties, getting the larger amounts, will be paid the following: Alpena, $92,078; Bay, $315,266; Berrien, $269,125; Calhoun, $249,662; Chippewa, $113,834; Delta, $165,535; Dickinson, $105,112; Gogebic, $156,814; Hillsdale, $110,684; Houghton, $316,652; Iron, $112,602; Ionia, $122,724; Jackson, $254,604; Kalamazoo, $255,626; Keweenaw, $176,308; Lapeer, $98,112; Grand Traverse, $70,480; Macomb, $210,236; Marquette, $207,144; Mason, $86,058; Menominee, $124,292; Monroe, $161,294; Muskegon, $270,564; Oakland, $403,802; Saginaw, $434,529; Sanilac, $13,290; Shiawassee, $149,282; St. Clair, $250,560; Tuscola, $152,690; Washtenaw, $187,740; Huron, $161,784.

The rate of $14 per school child is the highest in the history of the state, and the total of the fund is greater than the state tax will be this year.

STATE TAX VALUATION ADOPTED

Increase in Wayne County Figures Approximately $500,000,000.

Lansing, Mich.—The state board of equalization has adopted the figures of the state tax commission. As a result of this action Wayne's valuation is boosted from $2,664,740,000 to $3,163,333,000, and its percentage of the state tax from 46.74 to 45.139. Jackson's valuation drops from $131,700,000 to $139,163,000 and percentage from 2.01 to 1.85; Kent increased from $329,975,000 to $349,931,000, but percentage reduced from 5.04 to 4.99; Washtenaw, from $117,672,000 to $117,000,000, with percentage from 1.79 to 1.66.

Spokesmen for Wayne county, supported by a mass of documentary evidence, protested in vain against "taxation without representation," protested against the dark and devious ways in which the supervisors of other counties met and connived to "soak Wayne," submitted as an exhibit a letter circulated among supervisors of other counties of the state—all except Wayne—soliciting funds to collect data to "fight Wayne" and entered comparative data to show that Wayne is being imposed upon in having its percentage of the state tax boosted appreciably while other counties are reduced.

MARS HAS BEEN VISITOR HERE

Planet Nearer to Earth Than It Has Been in 120 Years.

New York—Mars and the earth, speeding round the sun in the same relative direction on August 22 came nearer together than they have been in over a century. The planets came within 34,630,000 miles of each other, closer than they have been for 120 years or will be again for as many years more.

The estimated speed of the earth traveling through space is 66,600 miles an hour as against 53,928 miles for Mars.

Because of its extreme closeness to both earth and sun, Mars has recently been one of the most conspicuous objects in the heavens, shining with a brightness four and a half times as great as that displayed during an aphelion opposition, and more than fifty fold its brilliancy at remoter parts of its orbit.

James G. Steese, president of the commission. The commission has jurisdiction over 9,626 miles of thoroughfares. "FLIERS" REACH GREENLAND

LIEUT. LOWELL M. SMITH

The two American planes were accompanied by the Italian, Lieut. Locatelli who is attempting a flight from Italy to New York. Locatelli was lost in their flight from Reykjavik to Frederiksdal.

The planes are understood each to have taken 400 gallons of fuel on board at Reykjavik. Past performances have indicated a consumption of 25 gallons an hour, which would insure 16 hours continuous flight with

His first victory came when the chamber defeated, 320 votes to 209, a motion to refer the London accord on the Dawes plan to a commission, with the understanding that the premier sign the agreement before parliament debated the question of ratification, on the theory that the accord constituted a new treaty outside the Versailles pact.

Marquette, Mich.—In a pistol duel, Martin Ford, chief of police, Thomas Thornton, a patrolman, and Oscar Lampl, a robber, were killed and Lloyd Ford, a patrolman was fatally wounded.

Thornton discovered Lampl trying to open a window to get into Beucher's drug store. Upon being ordered to throw up his hands Lampl fled, opening fire while he ran and fatally wounded Thornton.

Chief Ford, with patrolman Walter Tippet and Lloyd Ford took up the chase which led to the banks of the Choccolay river where Lampl again opened fire killing Chief Ford and fatally wounding Lloyd Ford, after which he jumped into the river to escape but was killed by patrolman Tippet while swimming away.

DAWES AND DAVIS RAKE KLAN

Say Racial and Religious Prejudice Has No Place in Campaign.

Augusta, Me.—General Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice-president, at the rally here of Maine Republicans, said appeals to racial, religious or class prejudice by minority organizations are opposed to the welfare of all peaceful and civilized communities.

Speaking to a gathering of Republicans at Island Park, Mr. Dawes departed from his prepared address to make the first formal reply to the challenge issued by John W. Davis that the Republican standard bearer also condemn the Klan.

But, like Mr. Davis, the Republican vice-presidential candidate expressed the very firm belief that the Klan issue "has no proper part in this or any other campaign."

Makes 10¢ Swell with Pride

BEECH-NUT chewers don't switch. The next batch of BEECH-NUT Chewing Tobacco will be like the last—the same quality and quantity of pure, sweet, waxy tobacco—the same bully flavor—the same super money's worth.

Lorillard's have been making chewing tobacco for over a century—upholding standards and following blending recipes that still give their products the widest sale in the world.

No pipe scrap and factory hash in BEECH-NUT. Never cheapened and bulked by rancid, bitter ground leaves, disguised with heavy flavorings.

The same quality and the same weight in 1924 as in 1915, despite increased taxes, overhead, wages and tobacco prices.

10c swells its chest every time it buys a package.

Is it any wonder that over 250 million packages are sold in a single year?

Opponents Fail To Advance Single Reason Why The Voters Should Not Return Frank D. Scott To Congress

Ambitious Politicians Oppose Congressman Scott for Renomination Without Advancing Reason Why Change Would Prove Practical or Advantageous.

Although there are three aspirants to the office of Congressman from this district, all seeking the republican nomination in opposition to Frank D. Scott, the incumbent, so far not one of them has submitted to the voters of this district a single reason why he should be sent to Congress. On the other hand, not one of these aspirants to the office has submitted to the public, any reason why Congressman Scott should not be returned to the office.

From this situation it is apparent then, that those in opposition to Congressman Scott are aspiring to the office, not because of the fact that he has not taken care of the office properly or that he has not voted in accordance with the interests of his district and the public as a whole, but because those who oppose him in the republican primary are ambitious for advancement in the political procession.

There are at this time, as there always will be, those few in various localities who are against the existing order of things and seek to change from the known to the unknown without thought of what it might mean in the future.

At a time like this however, when taxes are the most important issue before the Congress of United States, would a change in Congressmen in this district prove practical?

On one hand you have Congressman Frank D. Scott who has proven by his staunch support of President Coolidge and his tax reduction measure, that he has at heart, the interest of the entire district and the general welfare of the public, rather than the interest of organizations and groups seeking special privileges.

On the other hand are three ambitious politicians, who have failed to advance a single reason why the public should select any of them for Congress. They have also failed to advance a single reason why Congressman Scott should not be returned to office.

Would it therefore be wise to make a change in representatives at a time like this when the election of unknown politicians might work to the detriment of this district? It is only natural that aspirants seeking political advancement, will vote in the interest of his own future rather than in the interest of the public as a whole.

In such a case, the tax reduction measures which last year failed to pass Congress, because men elected as Republicans voted otherwise, and it is only natural to assume that politicians opposed to Frank D. Scott are naturally opposed to his vote for lower taxes and as a result would be expected to vote differently.

If the Coolidge plan of tax reduction and other republican measures which are of paramount importance to the general welfare of the district, are to be passed in the next Congress. It will be necessary to surround the President with proven Republicans like Frank D. Scott who is known as a staunch supporter of the administration.

On next Tuesday, Sept. 9 you will be given an opportunity to express your desires for Congressman, a vote for Frank D. Scott your Congressman, is a vote for lower taxes. Don't fail to go to the polls next Tuesday.

Silk and Lace Unite in Fall's Varied Blouses

When one wants to dress up a bit for afternoon or evening, there is nothing quite so convenient as a pretty blouse. New ones for fall in cheerful colors, are all made in the overblouse style, with sleeves more or less short, and decorated with lace or embroidery of beads, or other adornments. The styles are greatly varied, but most of them slip over the head and fasten with a snap fastener—and that is all there is to a change of toilette.

The blouse pictured is of dark red crepe de chine with emplacements of wide flat lace at the front, and narrow val lace used for edgings and insertions. It has ties of narrow ribbon.

Wonderful Human Eye

Eyes are bold as lions, roving, running, leaping, here and there, far and near. They speak all languages; wait for no introduction; ask no leave of age or rank; respect neither poverty nor riches, neither learning nor power, nor virtue, nor sex, but intrude, and come again, and go through and through you in a moment of time. For Gibbs had laid down his fork and was staring at him strangely.

"Great Lord!" he said in a horrified undertone. "But that couldn't be!"

And as they all looked at him in surprise, he turned toward his host. "You remember when my car was in a smash-up, last November, George?" he said. "It just occurred to me—it just occurred to me that that little girl was with me! I don't suppose there's one chance in a thousand that that was where she got hurt—I don't suppose there's one chance in a million—"

He got up and walked to the cabin window. The sunset gun had fired, the banners were lowered, Port Washington was dotted with lights in the early darkness, other lights mirrored themselves in the quiet bay.

"I guess you and I will have to go over and have a look at that dance, George," he said.

It was a night made for youth, and beauty, and the innocent, radiant egotism of beauty and youth. Ellen knew, when the girls told her she looked perfectly adorable, that they spoke no more than the truth. To her happy eyes they all looked adorable, and she truthfully returned their compliments.

Gibbs, his host, and both the children came ashore in the rowboat at the Eaglet at eight o'clock. Lathrop, Senior, had friends among the club members, and was quickly taken to the heart of Port Washington's younger set. He was a democratic man, and he liked to see his daughter's blonde locks bobbing over the shoulder of the boy who had rowed the boat that afternoon. Gibbs had declined to enter the ballroom at once, and had remained on the porch to finish his cigarette.

From the darkness here he watched the dancers, and he had no difficulty in finding Ellen, in her pale pink ruffles, with her exquisite, radiant face. She was not dancing, although the blue eyes and the pink slippers evidently longed to dance, and when Gibbs first saw her, was talking prettily to some older woman with great gravity and attention. A youth came up and she transferred her earnest gaze to him, and presently Gibbs felt a quick sensation of almost pain near his heart as her face brightened into an actual laugh.

So sweet, so young, so innocently fresh and good! Gibbs wondered whether summer and moonlight had gotten into his blood, as he felt it run warmer at the sight of her. Too dignified to write him what a day of pleasure had cost her, too honest to make capital out of the fortuitous chance, she could adjust her little affairs with courage and character, and, having chosen her path, pursue it to the end.

The man who won Ellen Lathrop would be a lucky man, he thought, with a curious wistfulness.

And suddenly, with an unaccustomed flush of color in his face, the question sprang into his heart full formed. Suppose such a girl could come to care for a man like him? Where could he find anything better, or sweeter, or more rich in promise for the years to come? He was tired of the old life, he had never really cared for the false standards, the superficial women, the intriguing, shallow girls, the show and glitter and cost. To put his arm about that lovely young body, to feel her close to him as she raised her flowerlike face for his kiss, to see Ellen in the sort of gown he could design for her, crouched beside a studio fire—crossing an old garden in spring—Nothing in months had so stirred his old delight in living as the thought of pleasing her, spilling her, finding the untouched deeps of her joy always fresh.

Suddenly the plan was born. Paris! They would go to Paris, and there they could both work, and could make for themselves a life nothing short of the ideal. A dim old studio, one of those clever maids who delight in the cooking art, summers idling in Brittany or Holland. And the lovely young Mrs. Josselyn, a picture in gipsy hats and summer smocks, or velvet, childish winter gowns, would fill his life with sweetness, and inspiration, and everything that was clean and good and honest.

He crossed the porch to the door of the ballroom as the dance ended, and met her, in the group of girls and boys who were coming out for a breath of cooler air. She was talking to another girl, but she saw the strange man, and turned her bright eyes curiously toward him. Then she stopped speaking, and one hand went with quick gesture to her heart, and in the dimness he saw her white breast rise suddenly, and her lips part a little.

He got her hand, and held it, and still she did not speak, merely stood breathing high, and looking steadily at him.

Gibbs found his own voice curiously unmanageable. He cleared his throat.

"Ellen," he said.

Another dance began, and another, and yet another. And through them all Ellen and Gibbs sat on the dark porch, over the softly moving water, and talked with that desperate deep relief that pilgrims know who find fresh, icy springs after the parching desert, or mothers know who weep beside the bedside of the child that will live.

It seemed to Ellen that all her life had been only a preparation for that talk. Sometimes he made her laugh, and she would flash him a look from averted blue eyes, and bring all her dimples into sudden play, and often she made him laugh, and would regard him with delicious childish seriousness until his mirth was explained. But for the most part they were serious, there was much to explain, much that was sad and poignantly sweet to remember, and with eloquent looks and monosyllables they relived it all, and found it inexhaustibly wonderful and strange.

And at midnight Ellen was driven away, by Leonard Henshaw, her hand still warm from the touch of Gibbs' big hand, her shoulder still feeling the pressure of his protective arm, her heart and mind and soul in a whirl of starshine. She undressed, wrapped in a sort of love for the gown and the hair and the eyes Gibbs had praised, and lay down on her small white bed and extinguished her light so promptly that her restless hunt, in the next room, felt a sensation of gratitude.

But Ellen had no time to waste with sleep tonight.

Nor did Gibbs sleep. He sat out side his stateroom far into the morning, smoking, thinking, smoking again. At about four o'clock, when a faint hint of dawn was glimmering into the darkness, George, Senior, looked yawning out.

"For the Lord's sake—old man!"

"I know—I'm coming now," Gibbs arose, cold, yawning and stretching. "I know," he apologized, smiling. And coming near to the tumbled and pajama-clad form of his friend he said with a certain boyish appeal in his voice: "I'm awfully happy about something, George, and awfully—sort of scared. Wish me luck, old man!"

CHAPTER V

"Tommy, dear," the little mother in the big blue coat said presently, lifting the child from her lap, and setting him upon his own sturdy legs on the deck, "run and tell dad that mother wants to see him! Tell him we're almost—almost in!"

Her voice rose almost to song on the last phrase, and although the child was already out of hearing, her nearest neighbor, an elderly woman also comfortably stretched in a deck chair, heard her and smiled.

"You sound glad to be back, Mrs. Josselyn," said she.

"I didn't know how glad I was going to be," admitted Ellen Josselyn, her happy eyes leaving the prospect of the dark waters of the harbor mouth, and the unmistakable approach of the solid blue shadows that mean land. "Mr. Josselyn and I went abroad the very day after our marriage, and that was six years ago last October. We've lived in France all this time. Tommy was born there, and when we decided to come back to America I felt a sort of terror, actually! It seemed much, much harder than the original uprooting, strangely enough! I never have been homesick for America, but I'm homesick already for France! And yet, now that we're almost in, I'm beginning to be terribly thrilled!"

Ellen let her eyes rest on the tumbling water again, and the nearing land. America again! Thirty-fourth street again, Central park again; after all, it was home. She had curiously, vaguely dreaded it, she had had her times of hoping never to return, and yet now she felt a sudden thrill and a rush of something like rapture in her heart.

She was an older Ellen, at twenty-nine, and an astonishingly developed Ellen. The six years had made a woman of intelligence and charm. Travel and study had done their share. Joy had had its part in the change, and sorrow, too. Wifehood had brought her generous nature only what was fine and good, motherhood had brought her the boy that was the core of her heart. And motherhood had brought sorrow as well, for little Tom had had a sister for a few happy months, three years ago, and the baby grave, in a strange cemetery, was never long out of Ellen's thoughts.

But that was the only shadow. Otherwise, it was all gain. The radiant girl that had sailed with Gibbs from this same harbor more than six years ago had not been an exacting wife. There was no background of spoiling and selfishness to make Ellen Josselyn a difficult woman to live with. Her joyous: "Oh, Gibbs, won't that be fun!" had charmed him, and perhaps a little touched him a thousand times in those first days. Everything was delight to her, the ship, the new friends, the new gowns. Her eyes and heart were never tired of new impressions.

Paris was all she had ever dreamed for her life, much, much more than her brightest dream. And before Tommy came, and afterward, and always, how wonderful life was for Ellen! Exploring the magic city, with her hand in Gibbs' arm, watching content and ambition mark new lines in his face, hearing him say, a dozen times a day, that she had given him back his life; her happy, grateful heart was only too full. He began to work at once, and for awhile she worked, too. But swiftly she saw that her earnest and clever beginning was as that of a promising child. There were ten thousand girls in Paris who could do what Ellen could do.

Gibbs was a genius, she never doubted it, and it was only a year or two after they came to Paris that his world began to see it, too. He went straight at his portrait work, and he lived only for that, and for her. And Ellen, watching other women struggle and despair, in loneliness and poverty, wondered, with her old, sweet, childish surprise, why God had been so good to her.

And presently she had Tommy, and they were playing at housekeeping in the tiniest of little lost villages in Brittany. These were days of sunshine, while Gibbs, wonderful in knickerbockers and a paint-smeared smock, painted, and Yvonne walked bareheaded to market, and Ellen played under twisted old trees with Tommy. Tommy had no nurse but his picturesque little mother now, for Ellen was thrifty, even in Paris, and Ellen had spent more than one evening on the arm of Gibbs' chair, working out the financial end of their problem. Their money must last until this time—or that time—they must think of the future.

When Tommy was two years old, and before the second child was born, Gibbs painted his wife. They were in Brittany again, and Ellen, with white sewing in the lap of a checked blue gown, and figure and face already caught in the first rising tide of motherhood, was set against a background of gnarled old grapevines.

The picture was hung in the Salon des Independents, and Ellen, when her delicate little girl was a few weeks old, went to see it. There was a crowd about it; there was always a crowd about it. It was the discussed picture of the year, but she always looked at it with a little pang at her heart. She had been so happy in those sleepy July days in the grape-arbor; she had thought that the new baby would be like Tommy, strong and gay and hungry. And the tiny new thing, who had been named Rose for Gibbs' mother, was so frail. Even while she was looking at Gibbs' picture, his first success, Ellen's heart was in the little nursery on Mont Saint Etienne, hanging agonized above the little bed where Rose Josselyn lay quiet, apathetic, half asleep.

The picture, during the winter, caused a widening circle of comment and admiration, and presently Gibbs had his first commission, and was to paint a boy of ten, in the trim gray uniform of a military school, and receive two thousand francs for the picture.

So fame was coming, and fortune would come close on her heels. Ellen, sitting by the studio window in the winter afternoons, and looking out at the fluttering snow into which Yvonne had taken the dancing Tommy, mused upon the dream that had become the fact. She had Paris, Gibbs, and Tommy—so much more than she had asked. But the silent, apathetic little Rose was gone from the nursery now, never to lie against her mother's heart again.

Was that the cost of success—she wondered. Success was new, but ah, this constant hunger at her heart was new, too. How gladly—how gladly she would let the glad go, if she might lose the other!

Gibbs painted three more portraits the next winter, which made them feel rich; but he was working hard and enthusiastically in the atelier six mornings a week, and neither he nor Ellen were inclined to extravagance, so that there was no particular incentive to seek commissions.

And so the exquisite years went by, and Tommy was three and then four, and still the Josselyns lived in their own happiness, shut away from the world, and glad to forget it. Ellen's whole heart was wrapped about her husband her girlish idealism had never been disturbed. True, she knew now that Gibbs was human. She knew now that he could be unreasonable, that he had moods in which she and Tommy and Yvonne must keep even a crumpled roseleaf from his path.

But he loved her, she amused him and pleased his pride, and her happy ways with him, that sometimes were those of a daughter and a pupil, sometimes wide-eyed admiration, sometimes all motherly, were dear to him. He did not have to ask her if she loved him; he was all her world.

Suddenly, in the seventh year, a new note came into their conversations. Without any premonition they began to say: "If we go back to America." Ellen was as innocent as Gibbs of any prearranged planning to that effect. They simply felt the possibility in the air.

Presently Gibbs' mind had seized strongly upon the idea. He would go to New York, and find a studio, and see what the prospect was of painting portraits there. After Tommy's birth, at Ellen's request, he had written his father, enclosing a little photograph of the small, bald-headed lump of baby hood that was Thomas Gibbs, Third, and the grandfather had eagerly responded to the overture. A magnificent gold-lined cup had come from Tiffany's for the baby, and presents on all formal occasions.

Now Gibbs began to think he would like to show his father the stalwart Tommy, who spoke two languages at five, and played his little violin so nicely.

RESULTS THAT LAST! Proven by East Jordan People.

Thousands of kidney sufferers have tried remedy after remedy with only temporary benefit. That's mighty discouraging! But one kidney remedy has earned a reputation for lasting results and there's plenty of proof right here in East Jordan. Read the experience of one who used Doan's Pills years ago and now makes his endorsement even stronger: H. H. Cummings, prop. feed and grain business, Main St., East Jordan, says: "My kidneys were not acting right and I had a dull ache in the small of my back just over my kidneys. Doan's Pills corrected my kidneys and rid me of the backache and pains." ABOUT TEN YEARS LATER, Mr. Cummings added: "I haven't needed a kidney medicine since Doan's rid me of the trouble." at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills the same that Mr. Cummings had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Renaissance in France There is something dark and wintry about the atmosphere of the later Middle Ages. The poems of Villon produce the impression of some bleak, desolate landscape of snow-covered roofs and frozen streets. . . . No Mystery Here Rain from a clear sky is an uncommon phenomenon, but there is no mystery about it, says Nature Magazine. Small raindrops fall very slowly. They may require several hours to reach the ground, and in the meantime the cloud from which they came may have dissolved or passed beyond the horizon. Crow Eats Insects Birds are chiefly valuable to us because they kill insects, says Nature Magazine. The crow is no exception to this rule. About a fifth of the adult crow's annual food is taken from the insect world, its share of insects being made up largely of species found on or near the ground. Many Have Appendicitis Don't Know It. Much so-called stomach trouble is really chronic appendicitis. This can often be relieved by simple glycerine, buckthorn bark, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. Most medicines act only on lower bowel but Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, and removes all gasses and poisons. Brings out matter you never thought was in your system. Excellent for obstinate constipation.—GIDLEY & MAC, Druggists.

Goodyear Balloons Make Motoring Cheaper It's actually a fact. They do. Because—they really absorb the shocks and jolts that loosen bolts, run up repair bills, and generally rack your car to pieces. They save you time on the road because they smooth out the bumps. And Goodyear Balloons wear better and longer because they are built of a new Goodyear invention—Supertwist—a special cord material that stretches under impact, yields and absorbs the blow without breaking. It makes the tires last longer, and protects them against injury. Cost is very low. In fact, Goodyear Balloons today cost less than you have been paying for regular tires. Drive around today and get our proposition. Strehl's Garage GOODYEAR

Serious Drawback

An animal trainer explained that it is easy to tell when a lion is in a bad humor and likely to spring. The beast's eyes are dilated and the pupils show green. The only trouble about it is that if you are near enough to see the signs of danger it is too late to do anything about it.—Pathfinder Magazine.

DALE SOUTER FOR GOVERNOR

Confident that the people will not elect any of the seven Republican candidates for Governor, active Democrats are placing Dale Souter in nomination on the Democratic ticket. Unless he is nominated the Democratic party fails to seize its opportunity.

Born in Shelby, Michigan, educated in the public school and University of Michigan (1912) a Methodist and Mason, he is practicing law in Grand Rapids. He was a judge-advocate in the United States army and was special United States District attorney appointed by President Wilson.

Many Democrats will write his name on the ballot. Others are writing Souter for Governor Club, 802 Hilldale, Royal Oak, Mich., for stickers.

ANNOUNCEMENT

There is a report being circulated in East Jordan to the effect that the election of Herb Baker for Governor would cost East Jordan the State Normal School she desires.

A letter to Mr. Baker brought this reply:—"If the legislature decides to locate a Normal School at East Jordan, I will attach my signature to the bill in letters like those with which John Hancock signed the Declaration of Independence. No one at Cheboygan expects or even talks about a Normal School at that point.

This is a sample of the Groesbeck-Welsh propaganda of deception.

I trust my friends at East Jordan will not permit themselves to be misled by last-minute lying propaganda.

Paid by county for assistance to Prosecuting Attorney Fitch, for years of 1923-1924.....NONE

Total fines and costs imposed and collected in Circuit Court 1919 to 1922, inclusive (Ruegsegger term).....$ 149.50
Total fines and costs imposed and collected in Circuit Court 1923 to August 1924, (Fitch term).....$2,125.00
Amount collected.....1,025.00

In process of collection.....$1,100.00
Total costs taxed, Circuit Court, same period.....$1,645.48
Amount collected.....895.48

In process of collection.....$ 75.00
Note: (Fines and costs are either secured by bond or otherwise assured of collection. A small amount may not be collectible.)

All of the above is of record and easily verified. Mr. Fitch claims the above improvement to be the result of the use of methods. Fines are paid into the library fund with no reduction of taxation. Costs go into the general fund and help to pay the running expenses of the county, and relieve the taxpayers to that extent. All this has been accomplished in a period of 17 months. Taxpayers are invited to examine these figures and come to their own conclusions.

Publication of this article is provoked by the announcement of the motto of Mr. Fitch's opponent which reads, "Prompt and efficient service at the least expense to the taxpayers."

Statement from Mr. Ruegsegger Read It.

Some statements have been recently made and published that are so misleading and evasive in the way of comparisons of my former service as Prosecutor with that of the present incumbent, that I feel it my duty to make a statement of my position in the matter.

In the first place it is truthfully stated that I was induced at the last moment to become a candidate for the office of Prosecutor by 'certain persons,' and I am glad to add that included in those persons were a number of the good people of Charlevoix, where a petition was gotten up and circulated for me without solicitation on my part.

The statement is evasive in giving no hint that Mr. Fitch is drawing from the County $2,000 a year in salary as compared with $1,200.00 a year I drew during my first term and $1,350.00 a year the second term, a difference and extra expense to the County of $1,600.00 in his first term as compared with my first term.

The published statement does not show how many cases Mr. Fitch won or lost during his first year before Judge Mayne; nor how promptly he responded to complaints around the County; nor how carefully and punctually he keeps appointments with the other officers and complainants of the County; nor how harmoniously he keeps things going.

It makes much over a statement that during four years while I was Prosecutor $693.00 (about $175.00 a year or $15.00 a month) was paid for assistance, but forgets to state that the County is paying Mr. Fitch during his first term $800.00 a year, or $66.66 each month, more than I drew during my first term.

During my term as Prosecutor I had two important murder cases. Both defendants were convicted and one has already ended his life in prison and the other is serving a life sentence. I also had the notorious Gregg (Earl of Dunblane) case in which the trial alone lasted 18 days; and had I not at the time insisted that the State should stand the principal part of the expense because Gregg had been operating under a State license, it would have cost our County from $8,000 to $10,000. As it was it cost our County less than $2,000—a saving of $6,000 to $8,000. I have not boasted (and do not now) about this, as I consider that it was only an incident of my duties to protect the taxpayers.

Comparison has also been made of my expenses as Prosecutor with that of Mr. Fitch. All I care to say about that is that all of my expense bills were sworn to and were audited and approved by the Audit Committee. My motto then was and will be again if elected:—"Prompt and Efficient Service at least expense and a square deal." When as Prosecutor I was called from anywhere in the County to attend to business of the County or on account of Crime, I responded immediately. I worked always in harmony with the Sheriff's forces. I made careful investigation before acting and at as small expense as possible with proper attention to the matter. I kept no courts, officers or witnesses waiting at expense because of neglect on my part. All appointments with Justices, County Officers, and all other persons, concerning the business of the County were kept punctually. I never asked the County to furnish me an office or with office help. If the business of the County is to be neglected to save expense, then I am not the man for the office.

I hear that Mr. Fitch claims sole credit for fines that Judge Gilbert has been imposing this year. Sheriff Novak has not even credit for his work. Everyone knows that the Prosecutor does not impose fines and is not entitled to credit for the amount of fines imposed. Judge Mayne scarcely ever imposed a fine as he believed in the Probation system. Judge Gilbert on the other hand is imposing heavy fines, and there is no reason to assume that they will be any more or less whether Mr. Fitch is Prosecutor or I am.

The records show that while I was Prosecutor under Judge Mayne 513 criminal cases were disposed of, and that 431 were convicted and only 9 were acquitted. The balance were cases where satisfactory settlements were made or dismissed for good reason and to save further expense. The only fair comparison to make is the record of Mr. Fitch before Judge Mayne with my record for an equal length of time.

If again elected to the office of Prosecuting Attorney I believe with my former experience and under present conditions that I could give still better service than before. I leave the matter entirely in the hands of the electors.

Respectfully,
E. A. RUEGSEGGER.

James C. Wood For Congress

Former Senator James C. Wood of Manistique, candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, is receiving encouraging and enthusiastic support from all parts of the district. The generally admitted fact that Mr. Wood has a wide acquaintance in the state is proof that he is in touch with every part of the Eleventh Congressional District, and will add considerable strength to his candidacy. A recognized leader in the state senate for three terms, he made an enviable record, and the loyalty of his colleagues throughout the district testifies to his popularity among them. Mr. Wood is a gentleman of unquestioned integrity, a hard worker, a forceful public speaker and a close student of government affairs. He was born in Michigan and has spent his entire lifetime in this state. Mr. Wood's work at Lansing was of the highest order and he justly earned the distinction of being the hardest worker in the Michigan Senate. He has never been afraid to stand up and be counted and welcomes a fight for a good cause. Prominently identified with the most important legislation, the result of his painstaking efforts will be found in many of the best bills passed. No man worked more systematically or more conscientiously than he. He studied every bill that came before him, found its weakness and knew its strength.

Mr. Wood comes before the voters upon his merits alone. His ability fits him to meet the task, and with such a man as he in Congress we would be as ably represented as any district in the state.

Unlike the other candidates for Congress, Mr. Wood announces his stand upon matters of of taxation and briefly outlines his platform as follows:

Tax reduction and economy in government expenditures. Will vote for and support legislation for improvement of Agricultural conditions. Favors adequate child labor laws. Protection for American labor and square deal in legislation affecting labor. Full measures of care and protection for wounded and disabled war veterans.

He asks the support and vote of every voter in the district who desires faithful service and who appreciates a representative in Congress who is unafraid to take a definite position on important matters.

If the voters desire a man who will give them a square deal, and who will work for their interest rather than play politics, then nominate and elect James C. Wood as your congressman—adv.
