Action on Normal Bill Awaited By East Jordan Folks

Town Eager for State to Accept Its Gift Toward Founding Institution.

By D. Gerald Bates
The Grand Rapids Herald of Jan'y 20th

East Jordan, Jan. 19.—Eyes of East Jordan folk are turned to Lansing these days. In fact, all northern Michigan is deeply interested in the fate of a certain bill, already drafted, which will be submitted in the state legislature for action some time during the present session.

The measure referred to provides for the establishment of a State Normal School at East Jordan and cites the willingness, aye, the eagerness of this little city of barely 3000 souls to make a substantial donation toward the founding of such an institution.

East Jordan's standing offer to the State includes the turning over of its entire educational system, which takes in one of the finest and most modern high school buildings in the state; a cash bonus of $50,000; two huge and modern dwelling houses located in the heart of the city's choice residential section and each valued at $25,000, and a tract of 40 acres for building site and campus. The two dwelling houses are for use as dormitories.

Enthusiasm Waxes

Fifty thousand dollars in terms of high finance would not be regarded as a lot of money. But in this town, where few if any of the inhabitants would be rated on Wall Street as wealthy, it portrays the earnest purpose in the hearts of the citizenry to provide higher education close at home for those who are forced to spend much needed money in railroad fares to attend institutions already overcrowded.

We believe there are few who would dispute the contention that Michigan needs another normal school. Each year's enrollment statistics from the present schools alone demonstrates how these institutions are struggling to meet the increased demands placed upon them. The average attendance at Central State Normal, Mt. Pleasant, for example, has increased from 375 in 1919 to 1,028 in 1924. At Western Normal, Kalamazoo, the increase in the demands of its facilities has been even more marked. Western's enrollment for 1919-20 was 724; its estimated average enrollment for the current year is 2,237. We cite figures in an attempt to show that the state's normal schools, at least, have been called upon to hand out training to more students than they were originally calculated to.

Need Is Shown

In all Michigan there are 28 institutions of higher learning, 25 of which are located south of an imaginary line drawn east and west across the state through the northern part of Isabella and Mecosta counties. The other three schools are located in the northern part of the upper peninsula. Figured on a per capita basis, with the population of Michigan estimated at 3,668,000 there is one such institution for every 131,000 inhabitants.

Between Marquette and Mt. Pleasant, however, a distance of 400 miles, there are approximately a quarter million people who are forced to send their young men and young women hundreds of miles if they wish to continue with their education after graduation from high school. This circumstance, it has been cited repeatedly by sponsors of the East Jordan normal movement, results in the loss of potential social, educational, and even business and industrial leaders, for many of those who leave this part of the state to attend institutions elsewhere never return.

To Serve 24 Counties

There are 24 counties whose educational needs could be met, it is believed, by the founding of a Normal here. They are: Manistee, Wexford, Missaukee, Roscommon, Ogemaw, Iosco, Alcona, Oscoda, Crawford, Kalkaska, Grand Traverse, Antrim, Otsego, Montmorency, Alpena, Presque Isle, Cheboygan, Emmet, Mackinaw, Chippewa, Luce and Schoolcraft. The total population of these counties is approximately 247,000.

Endorses Renominations to the Supreme Court

At a recent meeting of the Bar Association of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit, the Committee on Resolutions consisting of John W. Patchin, C. L. Dayton and Farm. C. Gilbert, submitted the following resolution which was adopted:—

"Your Committee is firmly of the opinion that the qualifications and past record of Judges George M. Clark and John S. McDonald render it the high duty of every voter in Michigan to support them for renomination to the Supreme Court of this State, and in furtherance thereof we recommend that the action of this Bar Association be as follows: That we have full faith and highest esteem for the courage, ability and fair decisions rendered by these gentlemen and taken part in by them, and we heartily endorse their record and doings as members of the highest Court of this State and we hereby pledge them our earnest support and commend them to the voters of this District and to the entire State."

This resolution was unanimously adopted.

Dated this 16th day of January, A. D. 1925.

Thomas D. Meggison, Chairman.
J. O. Duncan, Secretary.

Prize Tubers To Be Shown at Farm Week

The pick of Michigan's potato crop, recruited from the state's best growers, will be shown in a special tuber exhibit at M. A. C. during Farmers Week Feb. 2 to 6. The potato samples will take their place along with winners in farm crops classes at the recent International Hay and Grain Show, giving this section of the farm week exhibits a complete entry.

The State Potato Producers Ass'n, a cooperative organization of growers of certified seed stock, will also hold a meeting during the week, featuring a talk by Prof. A. G. Tolass, noted potato specialist from the University of Minnesota, on its program. The potato producers will be one of more 30 associations holding meetings during the Farmers Week conferences.

Another feature of special interest to potato men will be the exhibit from members of Michigan's 300 bushel potato club. Thirty-two growers earned entrance to this club during the past year by producing 300 or more bushels to the acre. Many of them will exhibit at East Lansing.

Hail The Cross Word!

We have been expecting it for some time, knowing that the craze would get to the attention of the efficiency experts.

Mr. Albert M. Johnson, president of the National Life Insurance Company, says that cross-word puzzles have increased the efficiency of his stenographers 25 per cent. He even makes out a good case, as the lawyers would say.

"Idle hours spent over a cross-word puzzle improve spelling, says he, and enlarges the vocabulary, so that the stenogs take dictations faster, recognizing words more readily.

There is something in this. Imagine a man having a stenographer, able to recognize instantly, "a raccoon-like animal," or "favorite breakfast dish," or "alure by artifice," and "superlative prefix" not to mention "a male name," the "unit of electrical resistance."

Every office should supply stenographers with the latest puzzles, and pay them time and a half for increasing their efficiency.

Here's a tip to be used in the collection of your accounts: The average man is honest, and the payment of his debt is a pleasure to him. Of bad accounts in general it may be said that most of them are due to optimistic dreams of future income. Treat your debtor generously and you will get your money—when he has it, which is quick enough.

Sometime ago the army announced that it fed the men on thirty cents a day. The menu given out was far ahead of that limit, and caused many to wonder how it was done. It is explained that this is the average cost of feeding men in large quantities and by buying wholesale. Where a single man is fed, without the regular routine of the army, the cost is about $1.20 a day.

Eclipse of Sun This Saturday

Will Be Total at East Jordan at 8:04 A. M.

On Saturday of this week will occur an eclipse of the sun, which will be total over a section beginning at a point in Minnesota, where the band of darkness will begin. It will race eastward at 150 miles per hour, widening to almost 200 miles in an hour, will pass over East Jordan about 8:00 a. m., central standard time, leaving the mainland at Long Island to be lost in the Atlantic.

The phenomenon will be visible as a partial eclipse as far as Porto Rico, but the day will be blotted out only in the strip described. In this band thousands of scientists, equipped with every invention of the time, will record the details surrounding the most spectacular exhibition of nature while chickens go to roost and superstitious ones turn to prayer.

Children and grown people, living in the path of the moon's shadow, will be thankful that our lunar orb does not stay between us and the sun. They will realize, as the darkness arrives, how important is the sun, and understand more readily that it is the source of life as well as light.

By radio, wireless, telegraph, telephone, telescope and camera the eclipse will be thoroughly reported. New truth may be discovered but man, in the face of all his inventions, will lose this rare opportunity if Saturday is cloudy. Such is man's greatness!

Eclipses are so well understood that it is hard to realize the terror struck in primitive minds by such phenomena. Most of us recall the victory of the ancient general who capitalized his advance knowledge of a coming eclipse—completely hoodooing his suspicious, superstitious enemies. At Rome at one time, it was blasphemy, punished by law, to ascribe an eclipse to natural causes. The ancient Chinese thought that great dragons were trying to eat the sun, and so they beat drums and brass kettles to frighten the monsters from their prey. It is even recorded, that in 200 B. C., the state astronomers were put to death because they were drunk during an eclipse and unable to attend to their duties.

Let us not smile derisively at the people of ancient time—certainly not until superstition and prejudice pass from us. The amazing feats of the ancients, with only crude instruments, are worth recalling once in a while in order for our materialistic age not to become too proud of itself.

If you, Mr. reader, recall that a thousand years before our era the Chinese were recording authentic observations of comets, eclipses, etc., and had determined the obliquity of the ecliptic by 1100 B. C. you will think more of Chinese. If, when inclined to dwell on the greatness of the modern age, you recall that 600 years before Christ the Greek, Thales taught that the stars shone by their own light, but the light of the moon was derived from the sun and that the earth was a sphere, and that a hundred years later Pythagoras suggested that the earth revolves round the sun, you will realize that it is up to modern men to show their stuff to the coming ages.

Senator Pearson Receives Appointments

State Senator William J. Pearson received several appointments on various senate committees, made by Lieutenant Governor Welsh last week. He was appointed chairman of the committee on Conservation composed of nine members. He is also third member of the committee on Executive business; fifth on Finance and Appropriations and fourth on Rules. They are all important committees, each of which requires special and careful attention.

As chairman of the committee on Conservation Senator Pearson draws a strenuous appointment, one upon which a vast amount of time and laborious effect will be revived in order to adjust the differences of opinion on the various phases of the present regulations as well as the several changes under contemplation that will come before the committee, consisting in the main of suggestions from the head of this department of State business and recommendations from individuals throughout the State that are not in harmony with existing conditions and with ideas that are at the extreme

High School Band Organized

Thirty Boys Taking Instruction Under John Ter Wee.

Not for some time has a more welcomed organization made its appearance in the local High School than the Band. Already many of the boys have their instruments, others are buying them. With the help of the organization and one or two prominent citizens and a little aid from the School Board, other instruments will be provided. Most of these have been secured second hand at about 60 per cent of their value, thus making it possible for every boy who really cares to become a member to have an instrument.

John TerWee comes very highly recommended. The local Band men think Mr. TerWee is a band leader of a great deal of ability. The community saw some of the results of Mr. TerWee's work through the Concert Band that contributed music in the local park all last summer. Mr. TerWee has already organized and trained four green bands, so it is not his first venture.

It took some time to find out in detail whether or not a Band could be organized as there are many things to be taken into consideration. The boys at all times have been inquiring from the Superintendent for the past three months if a band was to be organized. Their enthusiasm was displayed further by thirty of them or more appearing at each meeting of the organization. The city High School are to be congratulated on having thirty young gentlemen so anxious to learn music. It is a fine display of youthful enthusiasm along a worthy and profitable line.

Many of the boys will learn music almost from the beginning. Mr. TerWee says that they will be playing good music by the end of June and, without a doubt, be able to take on the Fair job as well as similar jobs toward the end of the season. If this can be accomplished, it will be a great credit to the boys and Mr. TerWee, as well as to the school itself.

A boys band is always popular and there shouldn't be much trouble in securing jobs throughout this section which will make it possible for the boys to finish paying for any unpaid instruments and possibly earn enough to procure uniforms.

Any parents who have not understood the proposition, still can urge their sons to join the band and get an instrument at a reasonable figure. Any encouragement the citizens can give the boys will be appreciated by Mr. TerWee and the boys.

Not many High Schools the size of the local institution can find thirty or more boys who are interested in a Band. Later on this training will be valuable to the boys. Without a doubt many of the boys could foot their way through College, thus making the band valuable in more ways than one. We will all look forward with keen anticipation to the appearance of East Jordan's High School Band.

points of variance with each other.

Senator Pearson's appointment as chairman of the Conservation Committee is a good appointment. He is through years of personal experience thoroughly familiar with the work in this department, both at Lansing and in the field, understands local and State conditions, the wants and desires of the public and the reason that such wants and desires have been created. We believe the appointment the best that possibly could have been made for this important committee.—Charlevoix Sentinel.

Dr. Charles E. Barker, well known lecturer, believes that the violation of the prohibition law by prominent citizens is one of the two main causes of present lawlessness.

Charlevoix County Nears Seal Sale Mark of 1923

Incomplete returns from Michigan counties in which the 1924 sale of Christmas Seals was carried on by mail, indicate an increase over the 1923 Seal Sale, according to Miss Mary Maier, of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, state seal sale director.

"Though totals are yet incomplete, returns so far indicate that Charlevoix county citizens have not yet equalled their contribution of 1923 fight against the 'Great White Plague,' says Miss Maier. "Such contributions are a voluntary tax by people of Charlevoix county on themselves. They show that private citizens are glad to have such a yearly opportunity to fight tuberculosis."

The Leland Trophy, awarded annually to the Michigan county making the greatest increase per capita in the seal sale will not be awarded until all returns are tallied. Mrs. Mautner's annual gift of thirty-five copies of "Health Training in Schools," will likewise be awarded to schools in the county has the highest per capita seal sale.

The Charlevoix school or schoolroom, which in the final accounting has sold the most seals per pupil, will be awarded the grand prize of a set of weighing scales with measuring rod attached. To become permanent property, such a scale must be won three times by the same school.

So far only one school in Charlevoix county has received a copy of "Health Training in Schools" and no local school has received the ball and bat. The school receiving "Health Training in Schools" is St. Joseph's Parochial School, Dominican Sisters, East Jordan.

Schools and schoolrooms in Charlevoix county which have sold more than ten dollars worth of Christmas seals, are being awarded an official playground ball and bat. Those which have sold four dollar's worth, will be mailed a copy of "Health Training in Schools" for the school library. These awards are being mailed out as fast as returns come in.

Your Income Tax

The exemptions under the revenue act of 1924 are $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together, and heads of families. In addition a $400 credit is allowed for each person dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer, if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The normal tax rate under the revenue act of 1924 is 2 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the personal exemptions, credit for dependents, etc., 4 per cent on the next $4,000 and 6 per cent on the balance. Under the preceding act the normal tax rate was 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions and credits, and 8 per cent on the remaining net income.

The revenue act of 1924 contains a special provision for reduced taxes which did not appear in previous laws. All net income up to $5,000 is considered "earned income." On this amount the taxpayer is entitled to a credit of 25 per cent of the amount of the tax.

For example, a taxpayer, single and without dependents, may have received in 1924 a salary of $2,000 and from a real estate transaction a profit of $3,000. His total net income was $5,000. Without the benefit of the 25 per cent reduction his tax would be $80. His actual tax is $60. From his net income of $5,000 he is allowed a personal exemption of $1,000; the tax of 2 per cent on the first $4,000 is $80, one-fourth of which, or $20, may be deducted.

For the purpose of computing this credit, in no case is the earned net income considered to be in excess of $10,000. A taxpayer may have received for the year 1924 a net income from salary of $20,000, but the 25 per cent credit can be applied to only one-half of this amount.

Intelligence, properly acquired, is never harmful, regardless of the subject discussed.

Legion Opens Club Rooms

With Supper and Smoker Last Monday Evening.

On Monday evening of this week the new American Legion Club rooms, were officially opened with a supper and smoker. The new quarters located above the Miles Battery Shop corner of Main and State Sts. have been remodeled and decorated to meet the needs of the Legion and while not elaborate are quite comfortable affording ample accommodations for the Post for some time to come. While the rooms are only partially furnished at present, Commander Murphy predicts that difficulty will soon be overcome.

It is due to the efforts of Past Commander Miles, that the club rooms are possible since he has been almost entirely responsible for the alterations and decoration necessary to make the club rooms comfortable and attractive.

Though the attendance was not extremely large for the opening night. The boys report an enjoyable evening. We understand that Russell teamed up with a radio set and entertained the boys for a time. Then came the excellent oyster supper served at La Mess Hall, followed by coffee and cigars.

At the business meeting, after the supper, plans were drafted for some of the Legions projected activities for the coming year. Among them was the campaign for an increased membership which will begin in the near future. Application blanks may be secured at the Miles Battery Shop, from members of the Post, or of the Post Adjutant.

On Monday evening, February, 2nd another meeting and smoker will be held at the Club Rooms. All ex-service men are urged to attend. Post Commander Murphy promise you a hearty welcome.

Veterans who have so far failed to file their claims for National compensation should file them at once. Blanks may be secured at the Banks, Post office, or of the Post Adjutant.

The Value of Advertising

Local merchants will be interested to learn, if they have never heard before, the story of the syndicate which tried to buy the name "Royal" to be applied to a new banking powder. The proposition of the syndicate was to pay $2,000,000 a letter for the name, and to leave the owners the formula and the plants. This was some twenty years ago but the offer was refused.

Local advertising is the same in value although, of course, on a smaller scale. The merchant who regularly advertises gets his name before the public and eventually, if honest, wins for his business a dependable reputation and a recognized name. It is the biggest asset of his business.

We recall the story of a merchant in a small town who was in the habit of running an advertisement in every issue of every local paper. Sometimes the ads were big and, more often, small, but they were where the subscribers could see them. One time, he says, he was too busy, and forgot to get his copy in the papers for a few weeks. He awoke when an old customer met him and said, "I thought you were out of business; I haven't seen your advertisements lately."

That was some years ago. The merchant has a big business now and is one of the best advertisers in his town. He makes it his personal business to get up his copy on time, every time.

Poultry Men Plan Farm Week School

That members of the Michigan Poultry Producers Association will learn many new kinds of the business during their annual meeting at M. A. C. during Farmers Week the first of February is shown by a review of their program for the three day conference.

Discussion of everything from disease control to the grading of eggs is included in the talks listed, practical poultry producers of the state taking their place along side specialists from the college staff in the lineup.

A special blue ribbon poultry and rabbit show, as well as a new egg show will be features of the exhibits of particular interest to poultry raisers.

This is the time of the year when most people raise their best vegetables—while looking at seed catalogues.

Saginaw—Arthur B. Cornwell, Saginaw World War veteran already holder of the distinguished Service Cross and the French Croix de Guerra, has been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the president of the French Republic, according to word received here.

Ann Arbor—Dr. Arthur G. Hall, registrar of the University of Michigan, died at his home here, following an illness that had kept him confined to his bed since last August. Dr. Hall had held the office of registrar of the University since 1908, and also had been professor of mathematics during the same period.

Detroit—Police Commissioner Frank H. Croul, in the annual budget of the police department filed with the council, has requested an appropriation of $7,527,153 for the coming year, which is an increase of $968,292 over the previous year. The increase provides for 422 more policemen and two new police stations.

Bay City—Patrol Boat No. 1, owned by the Michigan Conservation Commission, and used in enforcing the fishing laws, which sunk off Linwood Beach late last fall, has been raised. The boat went down while en route from Alpena to this city, when ice cut through her bows and an effort to beach her failed.

Battle Creek—One of the largest programs for extension of mains ever carried out in any one year is planned by the Battle Creek Gas company. This program will include four miles of large feeder mains to the north and south ends of the city. Battle Creek already leads the nation in gas main mileage as compared with total length of streets. There are 138 miles of streets in this city. The gas main mileage exceeds the water main mileage and is nearly double the sewer mileage.

Port Huron—Harry W. Hagaman, district state highway engineer, has made the announcement that with Federal aid his department expected to build 22 miles of concrete pavement on M-21, running west from Port Huron to Flint. The stretch of trunk line between the two cities is at present largely gravel. About six miles of concrete extends from Flint to Davison. It is expected that the road will be made concrete as far east as Lapeer in 1928 and extended to Port Huron in 1929, if government aid is forthcoming.

went to the state board of education with their proposition. Yes, the board admitted, another state normal was needed. Shortly a bill proposing the establishment of such an institution at East Jordan found its way into the legislature. The Senate approved it overwhelmingly, the vote being 29 to 1 in its favor. Going to the house, the measure was referred to the educational committee, which body at the eleventh hour declined to report out on the floor for consideration.

Throughout the months that followed leaders of the movement kept up an untiring campaign. Pamphlets and booklets, depicting the need for a school and the reasons why it should be established at East Jordan were printed and distributed. Funds were solicited and subscribed. Members of the legislature were interviewed with regard to the project. And now, those behind the proposal are hopeful it will be acted on favorably by the law-givers when the time comes.

Shakespeare as an Actor
 In the list of the principal actors of Shakespeare's plays, prefixed to the folio, the first collection of his plays, published in 1623, the name of the famous dramatist is placed first. He was an actor by profession, but the extent to which he played in his own productions is not clear. He is said to have impersonated Adam in "As You Like It" and "the ghost" in "Hamlet."

Saves Much Gold
 One American manufacturer of fountain pens turns out on an average 12,000 pens a day and the employees working with the gold points have to wash in special rooms so that the waste water can be held and the gold dust reclaimed. Thousands of dollars worth of gold in a year are reclaimed this way. The wash basins are specially constructed on this account.

BRIEF NEWS OF WORLD EVENTS

Pleasure Loving Girl Kills Mother Who Objected To Wild Parties

San Francisco—One of the most startling murders on record was enacted here when 16-year-old Dorothy Ellingson shot and killed her mother, Mrs. Anna Ellingson, who had objected to her "running around so much late at night." She told the police after her arrest, that she had no deep-seated grievance against her mother, but that she killed her in a moment of anger.

The girl frankly confessed that she was a frequenter of San Francisco's night life cafes and dance halls and stated that the "jazz-mania" was the cause of her act.

Three young men are now in custody, and search is being made for several more who were prominent in the city's night life and who are charged with having contributed to the girl's delinquency.

Election Confirmed

Washington—Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes were elected President and Vice-president, respectively last week.

The electors for whom the American voters directly cast their ballots last November met in the respective states, canvassed the popular vote, and, in accordance with the Constitution cast their ballots for President and Vice-president.

This vote of the electors will be certified to the president of the Senate by each of the 48 state meetings, and will be opened at a joint session of the Senate and House Feb. 18.

Sea Gives Up Treasure

New York—Capt. Benjamin Leavitt, of Philadelphia, has broken all records for deep sea salvage in recovering a $600,000 cargo of copper that had lain since 1869 with the wreck of the British frigate Cape Horn off the coast of Chile, it is reported. Capt. Leavitt and his corps of divers were reported to have worked "as though in daylight at a depth of 318 feet," using high pressure diving suits of the captain's invention and pressure resisting deep sea lights.

Sleep To Quit

Washington—C. Bascom Sleep will retire March 4, as secretary to President Coolidge and be succeeded by Rep. Everett Sanders, of Indiana.

Sanders will retire from the House March 4, not having been a candidate for re-election. He was director of the Republican National Committee's speakers' bureau during the campaign.

Mr. Sleep's decision to retire was due to several factors, including a desire to return to the direction of his extensive business interests.

Houghton To St. James

Washington—Alanson B. Houghton, of New York, now ambassador to Germany, has been definitely selected by President Coolidge to succeed Ambassador Kellogg at London.

This was formally announced at the White House after Ambassador Houghton had advised the president he would accept the new appointment and after the British government had informed the state department that Mr. Houghton would be persona grata in London.

Plan Air Line

Honolulu—Tentative plans for use of the United States dirigible "Los Angeles" for mail, express and passenger service between Hawaii and the mainland have been announced by the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu. The organization announced the sending of a cable to President Coolidge urging that the airship be sent to Hawaii, and calling attention to the feasibility of air traffic over the Pacific Ocean.

Car Tax Invalid

Washington—The United States Supreme court has sustained lower court decisions holding invalid in part a Michigan law regulating motor vehicles on public highways of that state and assessing a privilege tax for use.

The Michigan public utilities commission appealed a suit brought by the Duke Cartage company, which transported freight by motor vehicles between Michigan and Ohio under private contracts.

Czar's Spy Condemned

Moscow—The revolutionary tribunal condemned to be shot, the famous provocateur, Ivan Okladsky, who was chief secret service man under Czar Alexander II. Okladsky's repeated unearthing of secret plots kept the czar alive for several years. Because of the defendant's advanced age, the tribunal decided to commute the death sentence to 10 years in solitary confinement.

Raw Oysters Banned

Chicago—And now the raw oyster has been relegated to the same doom as the cup that cheers. It has been declared illegal in Illinois by the state department of health. The order was issued as a precaution against an epidemic of typhoid.

Makes Longest Ski Jump

Gunnar Michelson of New Hampshire, true son of Thor, made the longest jump in the ski contest of the annual intercollegiate competition for the Marshal Foch trophy, at the Lake Placid club in Essex county, New York. He cleared 80 feet but ranked second on points. Michelson is a student at the University of New Hampshire.

Twenty Years After

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Man, University of Illinois.

FULLER and I were talking about his college course which was soon to be ended, and Fuller is going out within a few days to see what he can do in the world.

"I wonder where I'll be and what I'll be doing twenty years from now," he said. "It seems to me a good deal of a gamble," he continued, "whether one succeeds or simply lives a commonplace existence."

"Well, it does seem so, sometimes," I admitted, "but I don't believe it is. Experience has shown me that you get out of life just about what you have put into it."

"What do you mean?" he asked, and I tried to tell him.

Our minister told the story last Sunday of a preacher who went with his little son to supply a pulpit. There was no collection taken during the church service, but at the door as you entered there was a contribution box into which the parishioners dropped whatever they wished to contribute, and into this box as he was going into the church the minister dropped a half dollar.

After the service, the deacon in charge explained that it was the custom in that church to give the preacher whatever was found in the box, which when he had opened he found to contain a half dollar. The preacher and his little son were silent as they were riding home until finally the boy, looking up into his father's face, said naively, "Father, if you had put more into that box, you'd have gotten more out."

And that's the way with life. What you put in is what you are going to get out in later years. The men who are failures in the affairs of youth are, in general, failures afterwards. I am convinced that whatever Fuller is doing twenty years from now he will be doing in the same general way that he tackled his studies in college, for most of us have settled down to a definite moral and intellectual pace at twenty, which we find it difficult materially to increase or to diminish.

THINK WHAT YOU ARE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THINK what you are! However weary,

Your task how small, your task how great.

However dark the day or dreary,

Think what you are—the world must wait.

Until the thing you have begun

Is bravely dreamed and rightly done.

Think what you are. However lonely,

However much yourself you doubt,

Some task is yours, your problem only,

For you to take, and work it out.

Each day the world's new labors start,

And in that world you have a part.

Think what you are. You were the nearest

To take the task that now is yours,

To work the hardest, see the clearest,

To work so well your work endures.

Your hands today will bless or mar

The world around. Think what you are!

Plan to Protect Trees From Mice

Hungry Rodents Liable to Do Injury Any Time After November 1.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The far-sighted orchardist will make preparations to guard against possible injury to his trees by hungry field mice which gnaw the trunks and roots. Such injury is liable to occur at any time after November 1, although most of it is usually inflicted in midwinter or very early in spring under cover of heavy snow and when the more favored food supply is running low, according to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Menace Made Greater. That serious injury to orchard trees by mice occurs only at irregular intervals makes the menace the greater, for it usually catches the orchardist unprepared and wholly unaware of the damage being done until the melting snow in spring uncovers girdled trunks, or the wilting trees in midsummer betray the hidden work of the mice on the roots.

Preventive measures cost little in comparison with the protection afforded, and although frequently a girdled tree may be saved by timely bridge grafting, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Many progressive fruit growers realize this truth and each fall and several times during the winter examine their orchards carefully for mouse signs. If mice are present they prepare to destroy them or take steps to prevent their attacks upon trees.

Method of Prevention.

Methods of preventing mouse injury vary according to the species of mouse and the cultural practices followed. In much of the eastern United States pine mice are present, and their injury is usually inflicted below the surface of the ground. It is necessary to destroy such mice unless they are driven out by deep and clean cultivation of the whole orchard. Where meadow mice only are concerned, such methods as mechanical protectors and repellent washes are practicable, although the destruction of the mice is preferable.

General information relative to methods of coping with field mice is contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1397, "Mouse Control in Field and Orchard," and more specific information to meet questions not covered by the bulletin will be given to anyone describing details of their problems to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Surplus Vegetables and Fruits Should Be Saved

Fall seems to be the season of surplus fruits and vegetables, and we should make every effort to save them for winter use. Canning, drying, pickles, jams and preserves offer an infinite number of combinations and possibilities for these things. If you make more than the family can use, try and find a private market for them in town—homes, stores and hospitals. Many farm housewives have made quite an income in this way.

Cull fruits can be made into delicious jams, conserves, preserves, butters, spiced whole fruits, pickled fruits, jellies, etc. Underripe fruits make the best spiced and pickled fruits, while overripe ones make the best jams, and conserves.

Unripe vegetables—tomatoes, etc.—make excellent chopped pickles. Cucumbers, which get ripe, may be made into special sweet pickles. Apples are good in mixed pickles. The surplus green tomatoes, cabbage, onions, cauliflower, cucumbers, and even green beans may be used up in mixed pickles. Get some good recipes and try them out.

Soy Beans Are Superior to Alfalfa and Clover

Many people who have worked with soy beans find that the hay will keep for long periods in the cock without spoiling. In this respect it seems to be better than such legumes as alfalfa and clover. Great care must be taken to prevent the loss of leaves, as they are the most valuable part of the hay. A good quality of soy bean hay may be harvested by letting the hay stay in the swath until it is completely cured. It is then raked up while damp with dew and after a few hours of sunshine is ready to take in. Hay made in this way may be just as palatable as that cured in the cock, but does not look so well.

Building Laying Houses

Laying-houses should be finished as early as possible, as they are somewhat damp when first completed. It is safer to keep the pullets out until dry sunny days have taken out a lot of the moisture. When houses are built late in the fall it is difficult to do a good job if the lumber is constantly being soaked by fall rains. If you build with wet lumber many cracks are apt to appear when the hot sun begins to dry the boards.

Clean Houses Essential

Clean poultry houses are essential if the comfort of the fowls and their laying capacity are to be maintained. Now is a good time to clean up. Remove all manure, then scrape the walls and floor clean with a hoe or spade. Finally give the entire interior a coat of whitewash.

Report of the Charlevoix County Co-op C. T. A.

During the months of October, November and December several exceptional cows and herds have come to the front in the Cow-Testing Association of Charlevoix County. One of the most noticeable ones is a Grade Holstein, owned by Dan Swanson of East Jordan. This cow freshened on Sept. 9 and during the following month she produced 70.8 lbs. of butter fat, which was equal to the best, in the three-year-old class of Michigan's Cow Testing Associations, for that month. The other cow in this state having the same butter fat production, was also a grade Holstein owned by the Kalamazoo State Hospital. The high cow for November was also owned by Dan Swanson, and is the dam of "Tiny" (the high cow in October.)

In December a five-year-old Purebred Holstein owned by Loeb Farm was champion butter-fat and milk producer in the county. She has 2,154 lbs. of milk and 73.2 lbs. of butter fat which is the highest record of any one cow for a month yet this year.

The Holsteins of this County are holding down the position of "high herd" in milk and butter fat averages. In October the 26 P. B. Holsteins owned by Orchard Bay Farm of Charlevoix held first place, with an average of 31.0 lbs. of butter fat and 878 lbs. of milk per month. Breezy Point Farm's 17 P. B. Holsteins came first in November with an average of 31.0 lbs. of fat and 977 lbs. of milk. In December the 7 P. B. and Grade Holsteins owned by Arthur Shepard of East Jordan topped off the list of high producing herds, with an average of 1,330 lbs. of milk and 40.5 lbs. of Butter Fat.

Some of the high producing individuals for the past 3 months in their respective age classes are as follows:—

TWO YEAR OLD CLASS
Owner	Name of Cow	Breed	Date Fresh	Milk	B. F.
Breezy Point Farm	No. 7	P. B. Hol.		1638	62.2
Loeb Farm	*Charlevoix Grace Lady	P. B. Hol.	July 13	1230	43.8
Geo. Meggison	June Rose's Mousie	P. B. Jer.	Nov. 25	740	39.2
THREE YEAR OLD CLASS
Dan Swanson	Tiny	Gr. Hol.	Sept. 9	1289	70.8
Art. Shepard	Honeysuckle	Gr. Hol.	Nov. 7	1649	62.8
Orchard Bay Farm	No. 153	P. B. Hol.		1100	40.7
FOUR YEAR OLD CLASS
Loeb Farms	*Charlevoix Z.	P. B. Hol.		1614	54.8
Breezy Point Farm	No. 5	P. B. Hol.	Dec. 7	1784	59.8
Breezy Point Farm	No. 14	P. B. Hol.	Dec. 7	960	53.7
Orchard Bay Farm	No. 129	P. B. Hol.		1370	50.6
FIVE YEARS OLD AND OVER
Loeb Farm	*Oberland	P. B. Hol.	Nov. 30	2,154	73.2
Dan Swanson	*Skeezix	Gr. Hol. & Jer.	Oct. 15	1,200	63.6
Orvie Gunsolus	No. 5	Gr. Hol.		1,612	59.7

*Three times a day milkers. Of these 13 high producing cows not one was sired by a scrub or grade sire, and 9 of the 13 are Pure Bred Cows or a little better than two-thirds leaving one-third of the high producing cows as grade cows. The Testing Association's herd book shows that 32 per cent of all the cows tested are Pure Bred and that 68 per cent are grade cows, which means that the 32 per cent P. B. cows in the Association produced 69 per cent of the High Cows and the 68 per cent Grade Cows produced 31 per cent of the high cows. This leads us to believe that while there are poor producers in both grade and P. B. cattle, the Pure Bred are far in the lead for milk and Butter Fat production.

"People are not overcharitable about here, as you know," he urged. "You may both have acted according to your convictions, and they may have been right; but all the same it was unorthodox, and— They will simply throw mud at you and—especially—him!"

"He came back to her, speaking unusual insistence, 'I can't bear of you facing that! For my as well as your own—and his, all them.'"

"I ought never to have given my consent. I always knew he was an unscrupulous type of man—I never trusted him! But you at least should have known better, after your very careful upbringing. If his ideas were loose—"

"Stop, mother!" Her quick anger mounted. "You don't know what you are saying. He was the soul of honor. And because of it I—yes, I grew to love him with all my heart. I couldn't help it. I shall love him until I die," she cried recklessly, throwing herself into a chair and burying her head.

"You mean to say," asked Mrs. Stockley sarcastically, "that it is the soul of honor to take advantage of a girl's lonely position? To lure her from the man—"

"He did not!" She sprang angrily to her feet; then realized, too late, the wisdom of Hugh's warning.

Her mother laughed incredulously. "Then you gave him your affection unasked? You behaved like a sentimental schoolgirl—threw yourself at his head, in fact?"

been stony. She had wept, enjoyed and upbraided, exasperated by the other's irrevocable demeanor.

"You are throwing away what many would give their eyes to possess!" she cried at last. "What will people say? There has been enough talk already. You confess you still care for Hugh—"

"Oh, yes, yes!" interrupted Barbara impatiently. "But that's not sufficient. It's not a woman's love for a man; that's quite a different thing, I know."

"Don't talk like a novelette!" her mother broke in querulously. Then, suddenly, her eyes narrowed and her thin face sharpened. "How do you know?" she asked meaningly.

Barbara was momentarily off her guard, not realizing her slip. The other woman pursued the advantage.

"Answer me, Barbara! I have not hitherto pressed for the confidence that was my due—in spite of the gossip which has come to my knowledge. You owe it to us all, now, to give an account of your life upon that island. Did anything happen there to cause this step?"

The girl stood looking down into the fire, uncertain of her reply, for a few moments. Her mother gave a little click with her lips.

"Ah!" she said decisively, "we thought so!"

"Thought what?" cried Barbara, turning sharply.

"That there had been some nonsense between you and that man, unchaperoned as you were."

The girl's eyes smoldered ominously, and she set her teeth. Her mother, exasperated by this reticence, continued with increasing anger:

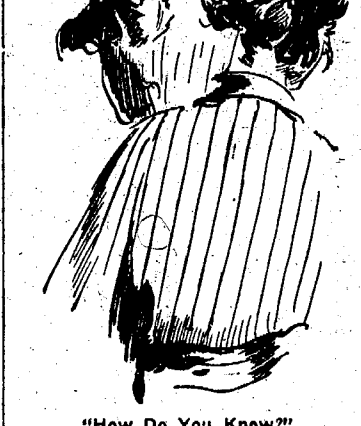

"I ought never to have given my consent. I always knew he was an unscrupulous type of man—I never trusted him! But you at least should have known better, after your very careful upbringing. If his ideas were loose—"

"Stop, mother!" Her quick anger mounted. "You don't know what you are saying. He was the soul of honor. And because of it I—yes, I grew to love him with all my heart. I couldn't help it. I shall love him until I die," she cried recklessly, throwing herself into a chair and burying her head.

"You mean to say," asked Mrs. Stockley sarcastically, "that it is the soul of honor to take advantage of a girl's lonely position? To lure her from the man—"

"He did not!" She sprang angrily to her feet; then realized, too late, the wisdom of Hugh's warning.

Her mother laughed incredulously. "Then you gave him your affection unasked? You behaved like a sentimental schoolgirl—threw yourself at his head, in fact?"

Anything was better than exposing Alan's name to the fate awaiting it if the truth oozed out. She caught at this straw, anxious to end the ordeal.

"If you like to think so. He certainly never—asked me to care for him. But I couldn't help it," she repeated.

Thus it was whispered from one bosom friend to another throughout Darbury that, during her sojourn upon the island, Barbara became the victim of an unrequited passion. This added spice to the mystery, while whetting curiosity. Did her companion never guess? Could any man, in such circumstances, be so blind—or so pliant?

Curious glances followed her; voices were lowered when she appeared; a constraint became obvious in her presence.

Well aware of it all, she threw it off with a shrug, scorn adding to the misery of her heart as she dragged through the days. Occasionally her mother forced the subject open again.

"If Hugh ever wishes to renew the engagement," she said once, "I insist upon your doing so."

"I couldn't possibly, mother!"

"Why not? The other man is dead. You can't ruin your life over an infatuation of that sort. The Rochdales are such old friends," she moaned, another time. "You don't consider how I miss them—how this all affects me!"

"But you can continue your friendship. Why not?" asked the girl, having grown unaccustomed to Darbury habits. This, however, was contrary to all custom; and a certain estrangement between the two families began, as a matter of course.

Barbara tramped the common in all weathers, consumed with a restlessness that would not let her sleep, unable to find peace of mind in any occupation. Coming back from one of these tramps two days before Christmas, she noticed, in the gathering dusk of the short afternoon, a woman's figure standing near the lake, a small child in her arms. With a casual glance, the girl was entering the cottage gate, when she heard her name uttered low, like a faint exclamation. She turned quickly, peering with puzzled brow through the gloom; then recognition dawned in her face.

"Jenny? Jenny Grant!" She remembered she had not seen the girl since her return. "What are you doing, Jenny? Home for Christmas?" she asked kindly, presuming her to be now in service somewhere. There was no reply; and, aware of the shyness of such village maidens, she continued: "Where are you working now?"

"I—I ain't got no work, Miss Barbara."

The voice trembled on a sob. Barbara glanced at her quickly again, and realized the child's presence. A dim memory of one among the many choice morsels recently recounted for her own benefit returned to her mind.

"Oh, Jenny!" she cried involuntarily; then stopped, as the girl, hiding her face on the sleeping child, burst into a passion of tears. Taking her arm, she led her to a seat placed near the lake, saying nothing until the fit of weeping had subsided. There was no need of words. In Barbara's face and heartfelt exclamation Jenny had read the knowledge she had learned to dread—awakening, mingled with a sympathy she had never yet encountered. Of her own accord, at last, she began a stumbling explanation.

"I was a sailor, miss—"

"I was goin' to marry me, but was ordered sudden-olke back to 'is ship; an' then 'e got the 'monia' an' died—"

"But 'e would 'a' married me, all right! 'E would!" She spoke with a defiance which the listening girl understood well. "We was wrong, I know," she went on, "but we was young an'—an'—partin', an'— with sinking voice, 'I loved 'im! Oh, miss! I did, indeed!'"

The hand on her arm tightened its grasp.

"Yes, Jenny. . . . I know—"

Then for a few moments she fell silent, reflecting upon the varied and extraordinary results—the high resolves and sacrifices, the impetuous, hot-headed folly, the loss of all principles—achieved by that "terrific force."

"What has happened since?" She glanced at the child: "My aunt sent you to a 'home,' I think?"

"Yes, miss. Afterward I got work; but the baby was delicate an' I couldn't 'ave 'im with me. An' it's bin the same all along. I've bin out of work now w' 'im fur weeks, an' all me money well-nigh gone. So I cum 'ome to mother, an' she—she's turned me away."

"The sobs broke out afresh. "I—dunno w'er to go nor w'at to do— I wish I was dead! I was wonderin', there by the lake, if—"

"No, no, no! Don't say it, Jenny! We—we'll think of something." Perhaps it was more than natural aversion which forced such horror into her own face and voice. "Have you any friends, anywhere?"

"Only in Edinburgh," Jenny replied hopelessly. "I 'ave an aunt there wot would 'elp me over Christmas if I could afford to—"

She broke off, swaying forward and nearly dropping the child. Barbara took him from her.

"Jenny," she asked, "have you had any food lately?"

"I ain't 'ad none today—miss," came the whisper.

With all Alan's suddenness of purpose, Barbara rose, supporting the girl with one arm and the baby boy with the other.

"Come with me," she said.

Mrs. Stockley, making out a list of necessities for a systematically organized parish tea, presently listened aghast to her daughter's impetuous explanation and extraordinary request.

"That girl! Jenny Grant! To stay in my house? My dear Barbara, I won't hear of such a thing! Whatever would people say? A wicked little—where is she now?"

"Martha is giving her food. She was starving."

Her mother gasped. She rose uncertainly, as if on the point of frustrating this disposal of her goods; then something in the girl's expression caused her to resume her seat.

"Oh, well! She can have some food. But then she is to go, Barbara—"

"Where?"

Mrs. Stockley fidgeted with her writing paper.

"That's no concern of mine. Her mother must look after her. Your aunt will be back tonight. She will do something—"

Barbara waved this idea to a place unmentionable. "Will you lend her money to reach Edinburgh? I haven't got enough loose cash—"

"Certainly not! I might never see it again."

The girl abruptly left the room at this point, with another impulsive resolution.

Half an hour later, after extricating her charges from Martha's distinctly grim ministrations, she rang the bell at the "House of the Moor," and deposited them in the friendly arms of the housekeeper of that harbor, where all were welcome. "Mrs. Field won't mind," she said. "I shall be back soon." She hurried away across the dark paths; then turned along the road leading to the vicarage.

"Surely the vicar will help," she muttered to herself. "If only I had the money handy myself—"

Down the road skirting the wall, a bicycle lamp came flashing. A dark form flew past the girl; then, with a scraping of brakes and rattle of springs, jumped off and hurried back.

"Ah! Miss Stockley! I have wanted to see you."

The vicar's voice sounded unusually subdued.

"I was just coming to see you, Mr. Horne," Barbara replied.

"Really? Ah! I am very glad of that. I hoped you would."

"Why?" she inquired, in genuine surprise.

"Because—well, to be candid, I have felt much troubled about you."

"Indeed?" she said, as he paused. He wheeled his bicycle nearer and spoke somewhat hesitatingly. There was that about Barbara, nowadays, which seemed to check his bland platitudes.

"I have been genuinely pained," he continued in his pedantic manner, "at your continued refusal to take up your old work in the parish, and your absence from church. Both have been a real grief to me, as they have to your mother. I am overjoyed, therefore, if, at last—"

"No!" she interrupted. "You are mistaken. I—can't do—either."

He gave a deep sigh. "But—my dear Miss Stockley—when one's duty lies plain—"

"Mr. Horne!" she interrupted again, a note of suppressed passion in her voice, "if you met a blind man, would you send him as guide to a party of tourists?"

"Er—no," he said, bewildered.

She laid her hand on his bicycle, and the passion rose in her hurried words.

"Suppose your whole life—your thoughts, your motives, tastes, ideals, faith—had been taken and changed; then whirled around and dashed to the ground, so that—so that you were broken, crushed, blind—groping in the dark—could you teach children their creed? Or—train young girls to be 'guides'? Or—kneel in church and worship a God whom—if He exists at all—you hate?—yes, hate!"

"Miss Stockley—"

Poor Mr. Horne was rendered speechless.

Barbara seized the opportunity of forwarding her original purpose.

"I wanted to see you, tonight, about Jenny Grant."

"Jenny Grant?" he echoed, still dazed.

In a few sentences she acquainted him with the facts. He looked at her, by the light of his bicycle lamp, in yet more astonishment; then, with an air of profound melancholy, shook his head and sighed again.

"They are chapel people, Miss Stockley. It is not my business to interfere."

"But surely—I whatever difference does that make? It's only a loan of a few pounds—I will pay you back—"

"You don't understand these matters. If we begin lending money to those who are but suffering the rewards of their sins—if we encourage them to expect—"

Barbara turned away.

"If only Mrs. Field were here!" she muttered involuntarily.

"Mrs. Field? I saw her at the station—"

"Saw her? Then she has come back?"

Good night, Mr. Horne!

Before he could open his lips, he found himself alone, the sound of flying footsteps in his ears. Still feeling distinctly dazed, he took off his pinenez and wiped the glass, before mounting his bicycle. Yes, very wrong! Whatever the trouble, it was being taken in quite the wrong spirit. But one must be broadminded; one must not give up those in sin and darkness. He would send her that little book.

An anchor at last, in a merciless sea!

Thus did it seem to the girl stumbling hurriedly across the dark common. The windows of the house blazed forth a pathway of welcome, long before its refuge was reached. Then a bright-faced maid opened the door; and that subtle sense of radiant warmth—which is only possessed by a house or person when the spirit of it is at the helm—stole out and enveloped her.

With a long-drawn sigh she entered the cheerful hall.

One swift searching glance at the sharpened white features of the girl hurrying up the stairs, and the woman in the fur traveling coat caught the extended hands and drew her close into her arms.

"Oh, Bab darling!" came the cry from her heart's depth.

A convulsive clinging of thin arms; no words were needed. Here was, at last, the blessed peace of Understanding.

When the door of her den was closed behind them the elder woman raised the girl's face and looked long into the sunken eyes, with those deep gray ones which bore such resemblance to another's that Barbara Darbury seethed and bubbled, and consumed endless tea, over the broken engagement of Hugh and Barbara. It is always easier to criticize other people's actions with the aid of this soothing beverage. It seems to enhance one's own sense of respectability in a world of sin.

Nobody was surprised, of course! Nobody ever is on such occasions. Everybody knew that something would happen—which is always a safe conjecture.

But what everybody did not know concerning the latter thrill was the real reason. And herein lay the cause of the emptying tea caddies. Unfortunately, Miss Davies was in London attending Christmas meeting over "fallen girls," so the mystery remained unsolved. But the weed of suspicion grew into a luscious tree. Again, and in louder tones, the question arose: What happened on the island?

It was known that the Rochdales and Mrs. Stockley were deeply upset, the latter exceedingly wroth; but the two most affected kept their own counsel.

The only ray of comfort to Barbara in her wretchedness lay in her aunt's absence. The relations between her mother and herself were of the coldest. Mrs. Stockley never forgot her position as a beacon, nor her Honorable Grandmother's gracious act in establishing her own identity with the county. This marriage between her daughter and Darbury's future squire had been her dearest ambition. Now, for no tangible reason, this ambition—revived with the girl's return—was hurled to the ground. Not easily could Mrs. Stockley view the dashing of her hopes. The scene between them had

Coach Wells' Basket Ballers

Going Top Form.

The locals invaded perhaps the best little Basket Ball town in Michigan Tuesday night and won handily from the Grayling High School 16 to 6. Doing this on a foreign court before an audience of one thousand rabid fans is doing well.

This year's team started in quietly, almost unheeded, yet are proving by every encounter that they are a real Basket Ball team. Coach Wells has a squad out every night of fourteen or fifteen likely looking men and apparently he is handling them in excellent shape.

Grayling is always counted one of the hard teams to beat among the northern Michigan Schools and especially at home but they are not in the same class with the locals, as of course the score would indicate. This makes the seventh straight game that East Jordan has won in a row. Some of the harder teams are ahead but anyone seeing this team in action will get his moneys worth.

Robinson of Grayling starred for the losers, Walker for East Jordan on defense and Benson on the offense. The feature of the game was the teamwork of the locals more particularly on the defense.

Last Friday night the boys won their game from Bellaire quite easily. Bellaire had a fast team but lacked teamwork. The East Jordan boys were going good but still need improvement in a lot of branches of the game.

Johnson was the high point man, with six baskets. Walker and Palmer showed well on defense. We hope to see them prove better this coming Friday night against Central Lake.

Fight Water Steal
 Cleveland—Chicago's brazen scheme for over-riding the supreme court of the United States to perpetuate its notorious lake water piracy, has met stern and determined international opposition here. More than 150 member of the Great Lakes Harbor association, inspired by a spirit of self-preservation, pledged themselves unqualifiedly to a last ditch fight to forestall congressional action designed to nullify the supreme court edict directing the sanitary district of Chicago to stop its present excessive diversion of Lake Michigan water for sewage disposal facilities in that city.

Ship Plans Endorsed
 Washington—Recommendations for the development of the American merchant marine, with an outline of comprehensive policies for maintenance and upbuilding of the fleet, are contained in the report of a special committee of high government officials to the president.
 The report recommends complete separation of the shipping board and Emergency Fleet corporation along lines suggested by the president in his message to congress, with the board controlling questions of policy, and the corporation controlling operation of the fleet.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

Committee Appointments Are Made By Wells For Present Session.

Lansing—Speaker Fred B. Wells has announced his committee appointments for the 1925 session of the House and in so doing has made it plain that although he wants the members of the two factions which supported him to be in a position to control legislation of every sort, he also intends that the groups that did not vote for him, the Wayne County delegation especially, to have a voice on every subject.

For the most part, the important chairmanships went to the men who held them in 1923. Rep. Charles Evans, of Tipton, retained his chairmanship of the taxation committee, Rep. Nelson G. Farrier, of Hillman, retained his chairmanship of the ways and means committee, and Rep. Charles H. Culver, of Detroit, retained his chairmanship of the rules committee.

Rep. Miles S. Curtiss, of Battle Creek, former chairman of the committee on city corporations, was given direction of the important committee on state affairs, and Rep. Ate Dykstra, of Grand Rapids, was elevated to the vacant chairmanship of the city corporations committee.

Senate Hears Welsh
 Reminding members of the senate of their oath to uphold the state's constitution to which they subscribed a few days ago, Lieutenant Governor George W. Welsh called upon them to enact constitutional re-apportionment.

Welsh's plea came in the course of his sessional message to the senate, and it carried out the policy which marked Welsh's service as speaker of the house of representatives in 1923. Lieutenant Governor Welsh also drew the attention of the senate to the grave issues involved in the child labor amendment to the federal constitution, which comes before this session of the legislature for ratification or rejection. Of this he said:

"Among other questions that will be presented, you will be asked to pass judgment upon an amendment to the federal constitution. In the consideration of this you should keep in mind the fundamental relation of the state to the nation. You should consider well whether or not more power should be granted to the federal government, especially over such matters as we are competent to decide for ourselves."

To Fight For Blue Laws
 Virgil A. Fitch, of Ludington, the former prosecutor of Mason County, who leaped into fame back in the summer of 1923 by attempting to enforce the old Sunday blue laws, announced that he would resist any attempt to repeal or weaken those same laws. Questioned regarding his present attitude toward the various amusements and various activities which might be curtailed if the blue laws were enforced, Rep. Fitch stated that he believes that moving picture shows, garages, gasoline stations and hotels should be open on Sunday and that ball games should not be interfered with but that Sunday dances should be stopped.

Bill For Bank Control
 A bill to bring private banks under the control of the state banking commission was introduced in the house by Representative Edward R. Carter, Gladstone, and referred to the banking committee. The bill prohibits banking by other than incorporated companies and gives the private banks one year in which to conform to the law. It requires private banks to incorporate and before a bank charter is given, the capital stock shall not be less than $20,000. Half of the stock must be paid in before the charter is granted.

To Curb Financing
 Representative Milton Palmer, of Detroit, announced he would immediately introduce in the house three bills calculated to put pop into the state's blue sky law and curb crooked financing institutions. The first bill would increase the securities commission from one to three men, working on full time. The second would place all financing companies, except building and loan associations, under the supervision of the state banking department. The third would deal with penalties.

Names Woman Chairman
 Mrs. Cora Reynolds Anderson, first woman member of the House of Representatives, will have the added distinction of being on a committee in her first term. Speaker Fred B. Wells has decided to name her to head the committee on the Industrial Home for Girls at Adrian. Only a favored few first termers are given chairmanships.

Many Bills To Come
 A list of bills probably will make their appearance in the next few days. The Governor, in his message, pointed out that the control of trunk line highway routes and construction should be centralized in the State Highway Department. A measure providing for this change will undoubtedly be offered. Other suggestions will be taken care of in bills to be submitted. The Governor is expected to go over the highway situation with some members of the Legislature.

War Bill Passed
 Washington—Another big appropriation bill carrying $361,000,000 for the war department has been passed by the house by a vote of 193 to 51. The measure as sent to the senate, provides for maintenance of the regular army at its present strength of approximately 13,000 officers and 119,000 enlisted men, exclusive of 1,000 Philippine scouts.
 A lump sum of $40,000,000 is carried for rivers and harbors work, already authorized, which is not connected with the $29,000,000 bill reported last week by the rivers and harbors committee.

Sugar Merger Abandoned
 Washington—Attorney General Stone has been notified that the American Sugar Refining company of New Jersey have abandoned their plan for a merger. This follows the refusal of Stone to agree to a modification of a court decree prohibiting the merger. It was at first the intention of the sugar companies to seek a modification of a court decree prohibiting the merger.

Held in Mexico
 Madison, Wis.—Dr. F. W. Lorenz, chairman of the Wisconsin state board of control, was arrested at Progresso, Mexico, charged with filibustering or some other absurd charge, according to a telegram he sent Dr. A. S. Lovenhart, of the University of Wisconsin. After protests had been made by the state department at Washington, Dr. Lorenz was released and is on his way home.

Trapped In Vault
 Boston—Two men at work in the vault of the Provident Institution for Savings were imprisoned when the vault door swung shut, and for more than an hour bank employees, assisted by safe experts, firemen and police, labored to free them. They were released when they discovered the "trip clock" inside the vault, which released the time lock and opened door.

Order Ibanex to Prison
 Madrid—A district judge has ordered Vicente Ibanex committed to prison unconditionally and has demanded 10,000 pesetas as a cash bond to guarantee his financial obligations. The case against Ibanex for the publication of his booklet against King Alfonso is being pressed in the absence of the author from the country. He is in Paris.
