Legislative Mill At Standstill; Members Junket

From all outward appearances the legislative machinery has been in neutral during the past week. Legislative halls and committee rooms have been semi-deserted and only twice was there a quorum present in the House. In the senate no attempt was made to hold sessions. Two or three Senators were present each day and went through the necessary adjournment proceedings.

The reason for this condition was that practically all of the Senators and a large number of the Representatives were out over the State making their institutional visits to obtain first-hand information as to the urgency of the many appropriation requests contained in the 77 budget bills already introduced.

In the two brief sessions held in the House, practically nothing was accomplished except the introduction of several new bills.

Propose State Pensions

State pensions for the "doubly disabled" would be provided by a bill introduced in the House Wednesday by Representative Wm. R. Farrand of Detroit. By the terms of this bill, inhabitants of this state forty-five years of age and over, not wholly dependent on the public, who are less than 20 per cent normal in sight, hearing or laboring ability, and persons twenty-one to forty-five years old who, in addition to such disability, also have suffered the amputation or loss of an important member of the body or muscular control, or are mentally or nervously disabled, shall be judged persons of double disability on certain conditions specified in the bill and would be paid a monthly stipend by the state. This measure would apply only to persons whose annual income was less than $480, and the monthly rate would be one-sixteenth of the difference between $480 and the yearly income.

The probate judge would have charge of the examination of all applicants for such state aid. He would report his findings and order to the Secretary of State would pass it on to the Auditor General, and the paymaster of the state would issue the monthly warrants accordingly.

Discussion regarding the manner of selecting the county school commissioner came to a focus when Representative Wilbur B. Snow of Kalamazoo County introduced a bill which would provide that all county school commissioners would be appointed by the boards of supervisors at their regular session in October, 1927, and every fourth year thereafter, with the exception of Chippewa and Lake Counties.

"A bill to prevent hunting for game on Sunday in the County of Macomb and authorizing the arrest of persons so offending and to prescribe the penalty therefor," has been introduced by Representative Orvy Hulet of Armada.

An amendment to the constitution by which all moneys from fines paid into the county treasuries would go into the general fund of each county for payment of general expenses, instead of the present system by which such money all goes for library purposes, has been proposed by a joint resolution introduced in the House by Representative Joseph E. Warner of Ypsilanti.

"Many countries now have so much money for the libraries that it cannot all be used and by diverting it into the general county fund it will help some in reducing the general property tax levy of the counties and reduce the present tax burden on property," said Representative Warner in referring to this joint resolution.

"In countries like Wayne, Monroe and others, where the bootleggers are thick and fines come in large amounts, the libraries cannot actually begin to use all the money. The counties could use the fines and thus reduce taxes."

New Trunk Lines Proposed

Bills to authorize the construction of new trunk line mileage continue to make their appearance in the House.

Representative McKibbin of Prudenville proposes a trunk line from Standish west through Gladwin, Harrison and Marion to Tustin.

Representative Fitch of Ludington has introduced a bill to authorize the extension of trunk line M-83 from Peacock west to connect with trunk line M-11.

Representative Strauch of Vernon would discontinue the portion of the existing trunk line between Coruna and Lennon and establish a trunk line from Coruna through Vernon, Curand

Byron, Linden and Fenton to intersect M-65.

Representative Look of Lowell proposes a bill to authorize the extension of trunk line M-66 from Lowell southwest to connect with trunk line M-16 in Lowell township.

Representative Hartzog of Mason proposes a trunk line commencing at the south end of trunk line M-47 on the Ingham-Shiawassee County line, extending south westerly to Williamston and thence through Dansville and Bunker Hill to the city of Jackson.

Representative DeBoer of Grand Rapids proposes a trunk line to commence on M-39 in Bowe Township, Kent County, through Caledonia to Byron Center, thence west to connect with M-51 at Zeeland.

Representative Wm. J. Thomas of Cannonsburg has introduced a bill to authorize a trunk line commencing on M-54 in Alpine Township, Kent county, northeast through the village of Rockford to connect with M-66 at Greenville in Montcalm county.

Music Memory Contest

This is the third week of our contest and still we learn. "Stop, Listen and Remember" is our slogan.

Now read about our compositions for the third week, they are worth it.

THIRD WEEK

1. Oh Rest in the Lord (Elijah) Mendelssohn.

Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy came of a wealthy Jewish family which had adopted Christianity. He was a precocious child with pronounced musical talents and was given every chance for development. He was an incessant worker, and became a man of many interests, affable and kindly. He lived 1809-1847. His two oratorios "St. Paul" and "Elijah" are among the most widely known compositions in that form. "O Rest in the Lord" is a song for contralto voice taken from the "Elijah."

2. The Swan - Saint-Saens.

Camille Saint-Saens, died so recently (1921) that he is still known as one of our modern composers. At the time of his death he was an old man, honored and loved in all countries. In addition to being a great composer he was famous as an organist and pianist. In his shorter works he was fond of making his music tell some story, picture an event or represent a mood. "The Swan" or as it is written in French "LeCygne" is from the suite "The animals' Carnival" in which the composer attempted the difficult task of conveying thru tones pictures of certain birds and animals. The melody of "The Swan" is graceful enough to remind one of that bird and the effect is heightened by the accompaniment which pictures the rippling surface of the lake.

3. Anvil Chorus (II Trovatore) Verdi. Giuseppe Verdi (1813-1901) was an Italian being the founder of what is known as the modern school of Italian opera. The fact that Verdi could combine skilful dramatic situations with beautiful melodies, cleverly arranged for the orchestra, is the reason he is given so prominent a place as a writer of opera.

The "Anvil Chorus" is sung at the opening of the second act of "II Trovatore" the scene showing a gypsy camp in the mountains. The men are beginning their days work and sing as they hammer the red hot iron on their anvils.

4. Humoresque...Dvorak.

Antonin Dvorak (1841-1904) was a Bohemian and the most famous composer among those of his race. He was of the so-called lower class, suffered much poverty in his early life and dwelt among people in humble circumstances. Dvorak studied the people among whom he lived and there is a wistfulness in much of his writings that may have sprung from an aspiration for better things.

"Humoresque" originally written for the piano has been arranged for other solo instruments. It has become so popular thru much hearing as to be almost hackneyed, yet it is universally loved.

Legion Wins From E. Jordan

Shows Accurate Shooting To Down Visitors 42 to 9.

(Petoskey News)

Forty-two to nine tells the score story of the Petoskey American Legion victory over the East Jordan Independent basket ball team last Thursday evening but does not give even a hint of the good playing of the visitors. Their erratic basket shooting on both long and short shots kept their scores to a negative quality while Petoskey counted more often than she missed.

The East Jordan boys were very fast, had good passing and team work and put up a stiff defense. Their one missing quality was an eye for the basket. Time after time the ball refused to roll the right way on well aimed tries.

Neither team could loop in the free throws. Petoskey missed every one of the six tries while the visitors made one out of five. The game was exceptionally clean throughout.

Bailey Scores Well

Bailey was Petoskey's scoring star, the former high school player hooking most of his shots from a third of the way down the court. Everybody on the team was given a chance to try for baskets.

Treloar opened the scoring with a basket on some clever passing from the first tipoff. Hierlihy of East Jordan then caged one for the visitors only counter of the first half. Ten to two was the first quarter's count while at the half it was Petoskey twenty-two, East Jordan two. At the three-quarters mark it was Petoskey 36, East Jordan 5. During most of the last half Neiger played in Bailey's place and Holben replaced Treloar. Both of these players showed up well, being particularly strong on defense.

Your Income Tax

In making out his income tax for the year 1924 the business man, professional man, and farmer is required to use Form 1040, regardless of whether his net income was or was not in excess of $5,000. The smaller form 1040A is used for reporting income of $5,000 or less, derived chiefly from salaries or wages.

Forms have been sent to persons who last year filed returns of income. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve the taxpayer from his obligation to file a return and pay the tax within the time prescribed, on or before March 15, 1925. Copies of the forms may be obtained from offices of collectors or internal revenue and branch offices. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and Dec. 15.

Annual Report Probate Judge

Judge Correll Outlines Work of Year.

Report in brief of the work of the Probate Court of Charlevoix County for the year, A. D. 1924:

There has been admitted to probate eleven wills, seventeen estates probated where the deceased died without will, and twelve proceedings for the determination of heirs.

Three guardians appointed for mentally incompetent persons, twelve guardians appointed for minors, nine insane persons committed to Traverse City State Hospital, two of whom were not residents of Charlevoix County.

Twelve adult persons and four children committed to Ann Arbor for treatment. Eight minors have been adopted by residents of the county, two proceedings have been had to admit persons to the Michigan Farm Colony for epileptics, at Wahjamega, Michigan, and their names placed on the waiting list; owing to the crowded condition of the institution neither have been received. Inheritance tax determined and collected, - $1,576.08.

The Juvenile Division of the Court

Twenty-nine children in eleven different homes petitioned the court for assistance, and it was granted, in what is commonly called the Mother's Pension Law. Several other petitions filed in the same matter, but were dismissed. On the first day of Jan'y 1925, sixty-nine children were receiving aid under the so-called "Mother's Pension Law," and the amount paid each week was $148.50 or $7,722.00 in a year.

Twelve children have been brought before the court on charges of delinquency. No commitments to either of the State Institutions during the year, 1924, which speaks well for the behavior of the children of the county. The offences charged were minor offences which the court had no trouble in correcting and adjusting.

In 1923 there were 101 proceedings in the probate court exclusive of the juvenile division as against 90 proceedings in the year 1924. You naturally want to know why, and where the decrease was. In 1923 there were 14 testate estates and 31 intestate estates probated. In 1924 there were eleven testate estates and seventeen intestates. Forty-five estates in all in 1923, twenty-eight in 1924. That accounts for the discrepancy.

The general health of the communities in this county was much better in 1924 than in 1923 and fewer fatalities. One thing worthy of mention, is, that thus far this school year there are no complaints for truancy. From that I infer that our schools are being successfully conducted. If the child is interested in making progress, and the school is moving on harmoniously, it likes to go to school.

Hoping that the general health of our communities, and the behavior of the children continue to be good, I submit this for your consideration.

Advertisers & Failures

T. K. Kelly, Minneapolis banker and business man, says that in the failures of retail business men in the past three years he has never heard of one concerning failing which "advertised religiously." The public said he has "unbounded confidence in newspaper advertising."

That, we think is generally true.

Many merchants slip an advertisement in the local paper once or twice a year, or bite on every freak advertising scheme that makes the rounds, and consider they have advertised. They should hear the story of the large advertiser, who made millions out of spending millions on printer's ink. He was once asked to stop his advertising on the ground that his wares were well enough known to sell themselves. He replied, "you might as well expect the railroad train to keep going with the engine detached."

Advertising is a great factor to merchants who have made a study of it. Very often the occasional advertiser, the careless copy-writer, and the untruthful advertiser thinks the contrary but they have not yet fooled the thinking business man. We will be glad to assist any local advertiser who wants help in planning his campaign, or in preparing his copy. We are always anxious for a man to try out the pulling power of our advertisements.

Good Weather Marks Farm Week Meeting

The weather man chose to deal leniently with visitors at M. A. C.'s annual Farmers Week this year, serving up bright, sunny days most of the week. As a result, what is estimated as the largest crowd in the history of the big winter conference at East Lansing gathered for the various meetings from Feb. 2 to 6.

From Monday noon, when the first of the associations began group meetings, until Friday, when the Farm Bureau and the Michigan Press Association lingered over for the final chapter, the week was full of events of interest.

With more than 30 association meetings, a half dozen special exhibits buildings, daily afternoon and evening programs of general interest to the whole list of guests, and various special entertainment features sandwiched in between, the Farmers Week list of events proved too complex to permit of complete recounting.

No one visitor could take in more than a small percentage of the activities scheduled. It was a case of "pick and choose," with plenty of variety on the bill of fare.

Among the many prominent speakers who addressed the general meetings were: Dr. Wm. Evans, health editor, Chicago Tribune; Hon. John C. Ketchum; Bishop Francis J. McConnell; S. Parkes Cadman, of New York; Huston Thompson, Chairman Federal Trade Commission; President Kenyon L. Butterfield, of M. A. C.; L. Whitney Watkins and Mrs. Dora Stockman, state board of agriculture, and many others. Community development proved a central theme for many of the addresses, the idea of family life betterment in the rural districts standing out through most of the general meetings.

Getting Out a Paper

Getting out a paper is no joke. If we print jokes folks say we are silly.

If we don't, they say we are too serious.

If we publish original matter they say we lack variety.

If we publish things from other papers, we are too lazy to write.

If we stay on the job, we ought to be out rustling news.

If we are rustling news, we are not attending to our own department.

If we don't print contributions, we don't show proper appreciation.

If we don't print them, the paper is filled with junk.

Like as not some fellow will say we swiped this from an exchange.

That's just what we did.

The End of the World

Friday, of last week, was the day for the end of the world, according to a prophetic of the western section of the United States. Quite a commotion was created among the circle of her following, which calmly awaited the demise of the earth and the resulting consequences to its inhabitants.

Up to the time of going to press we have had no news of the expected disaster. Besides it is too early for the world to end. There are too many problems awaiting solution by the denizens of this swirling experimental laboratory. Humanity must continue to work in its sweatshop until it produces a greater race, made up of better individuals.

Well, here's February, and the year one-twelfth gone. What has become of your plans for 1925?

Educational Forces Back Thos. E. Johnson

Lansing, Michigan, Feb. 11, 1925.—In support of the candidacy of Thomas E. Johnson, state superintendent of public instruction, for renomination for that state office at the republican convention to be held in Detroit on February 25, educational forces throughout Michigan have collected the facts relating to the progress which they maintain has been made in educational work in this state during the six years of his administration.

There appears to be no avowed candidacy against Mr. Johnson for his renomination, so they state, and in view of that situation announce their support for him, together with the educational record of Michigan during the past several years.

Only a comparatively few years ago Michigan ranked among the 20's in education in the list of 48 states, while today it is recognized as one of the first five," says the statement issued by his supporters. "That fact marks one of most remarkable growths of the union in educational advancement. The record accomplishments during the six years conclusively shows how this high standard has been attained, and we give them here in brief for the information of the people of this state."

General Educational Improvements.

The increase of annual state aid for consolidated schools from $10,000 to $223,977.78.

The provision for a minimum school year of nine months.

The provision that the state shall pay $200 to each school district for each one room school maintained if the cost to the people of the district exceeds twelve dollars per thousand valuation.

The provision for the free education of all neglected and abandoned children.

The passage of a law giving school boards authority to make school buildings safe and sanitary.

The requirement that teachers shall have one year of professional training after September 1, 1925.

The provision to give school districts authority to provide and maintain homes for teachers.

The provision for state supervision of private, parochial and denominational schools.

The construction of 230 grades and high school buildings and 385 one and two-room rural school buildings, and to provide better school facilities and sanitary conditions for about 100,000 boys and girls.

The increase of the primary school interest fund from $7,064,071 to $15,055,175 or an increase of $6.30 per capita.

Rehabilitated persons are now earning eleven times more than it cost to provide this help and training.

Household arts made practical as well as educational.

Vocational Agricultural Education classes increased from 43 to 222 with an increased enrollment of 3,600 and the net income from home projects of vocational schools last year $36,565.78 more than the federal and state funds spent for these schools.

High School Education

Over two hundred high schools have been approved each year as tuition schools besides those that have been approved as schools accredited by the University of Michigan.

The high school enrollment has increased from 68,905 to 125,746 or an increase of from 9 to 18 per cent.

Facilities for Teacher Training

Western State Normal School has been given the greatest practice school facilities of any normal school in the country.

Rural Education

Rural Education has been benefited by additional state aid for the support and maintenance of county normal training schools.

By special provision for the teaching of music in rural schools; and by provision for a department of co-operative community service for rural schools.

High class bulletins touching all phases of education have been placed at the disposal of all teachers and administrators.

Forcing Vegetables by Use of Hotbeds

Frame Should Be Six Feet Wide and Any Length.

For forcing early vegetables such as tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, etc., the hotbed is indispensable. To construct a hotbed, an eastern or southern exposure should be selected. The frame should be six feet wide and any desired length. The hotbed sashes are always three feet wide and six feet long. As a rule for the family garden, a hotbed six by six feet will be sufficient. It would be much better, however, to have a frame six by twelve feet. This will afford ample space for transplanting the plants and give them more room to develop properly, says A. E. Schilleter, extension horticulturist at Clemson college.

The soil is excavated to a depth of eighteen inches and the frame built six feet wide and desired length and fitted over the trench. The frame should slope toward the east in order to admit sunlight.

The bottom of the frame is filled with fermenting stable manure. This should be mixed thoroughly before being placed in the frame, and packed firmly and watered freely immediately afterwards. In the South twelve inches of manure will furnish sufficient heat for hotbeds. On top of manure is placed six inches of garden soil, which has been well sifted and is free from all roots and trash. This should be slightly packed in order to make it perfectly level. It is well to cover this with one inch of finely sifted woods-earth, since this is always free from grass and weed seeds, which are frequently very troublesome when the garden soil is used.

After the bed has been completed the sashes are put in place and the frame allowed to stand for three or four days before planting the seed. This is done in order to permit the bed to become thoroughly warm before planting.

KING TOMMY

By George A. Birmingham

Highly recommended for amusement purposes. Plenty of action and quite a number of thrills in this story, but more laughs than either; also a collection of charming characters not the least of whom is Tommy, an innocent young Irish curate, who goes to Berlin to spend the German marks in which he had injudiciously invested and steps into the very center of a royalist plot. He becomes involved in more adventures than even his Irish imagination ever pictured.

Breeding Stock Is of Big Importance

Fowls Must Be Given Room and Exercise.

One of the greatest causes for poor hatches is the condition of the breeding stock during the hatching season. If the hens or rooster are inherently weak or have been put in unhealthy condition by lack of care combined with inclement weather, the germ in the egg will be weak at the time it is laid and will not hatch out well.

It is always advisable to pick out a pen of breeders rather than breed from everything in the average farm flock. No late maturing or underdeveloped pullets or males should be included in this pen, nor should any hens or roosters which are very old, overfat, or show signs of sickness or weakness.

The breeders should be given plenty of room in the house and be allowed to run out as soon as the weather and ground will permit. Their quarters should be kept clean and well ventilated. They should be fed a properly balanced ration. Dry mash should be kept in a trough where the hens can help themselves to it, but wet mash should not be fed, as it has a tendency to be weakening. The birds should be induced to take all the exercise possible through a light morning feeding of grain in a deep, dry, clean litter. At night they should be fed all the grain they will clean up. O. C. Krum, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Garden Fence Useful in Carrying Various Crops

Plan to use the fences that surround your vegetable garden this year. They will carry good crops and utilize space often wasted. If you have board fences, tomatoes may be trained against them with loops of cloth and tacks, particularly the south exposure of the premises. Strings or chicken wire may be nailed to board fences upon which tomatoes, cucumbers, pole or string lima beans may climb. If you have wire fences, the tall peas and beans may be planted along them.

A 25-foot fence will support eight tomato plants three feet apart and with the warmth of boards reflecting the heat of the sun behind them fruits will ripen more quickly than those trained to stakes in the open or allowed to ramble over the ground.

Cucumbers used as climbing vines instead of being allowed to ramble over the ground, are something of a novelty with most gardeners; yet an observation of the vine fitted with tendrils shows that it is naturally a climber and it will attach itself to any support that happens to be handy. Greenhouse-grown cucumbers are always trained to string or wire, reaching from the earth to the roof of the house.

If vegetables are not desired, gourds to furnish playthings for the children are admirable decorations for the garden fences. They come in great variety and various shapes, sizes and colors.

Corn Plowing in Spring of Not Much Advantage

Little if any difference in yields of corn between that grown on land plowed in the spring are shown in the results obtained in tests made by the Ohio experiment station. As an average of six years fall plowing gave 70.74 bushels per acre and spring plowing, 70.81 bushels. Director Williams in commenting on the results of the test says:

"While there has been some variation in yield due to different seasonal conditions, it cannot be said that either time of plowing has an advantage over the other for this soil and climate."

Catalpas for Posts

Catalpa makes very good posts and is noted for the durable quality of the wood. Catalpas were formerly used for posts and rails and when their value became known, there were many of them planted to be used as telephone poles, posts and cross-ties. Because of the ravages of the catalpa sphinx, however, it has become a hazardous proposition and large plantings are not recommended in Indiana.

Farm Hints

In 1925 co-operative marketing will help solve many farm problems, but it will be no substitute for old-fashioned industry.

The new year is a good time to remember Emerson's true saying, "Nothing great was ever accomplished without enthusiasm."

One of the chief causes of failure with alfalfa and clover is lack of lime in the soil. It is useless to seed alfalfa and clover on these soils without first applying lime.

Sudan grass stubble has been found to harbor many chinch bugs and other insects during the winter. The plowing of such fields is, therefore, to be recommended as a means of destroying these overwintering insects.

Disease in many poultry flocks emphasizes the need of keeping the poultry house clean and well disinfected at all times. The farm flog functions best in healthful surroundings. Give the birds a fighting chance to do their best.

Sound Potatoes Are Profitable

Climate Is One of Most Important Factors in Growing Good Crop.

Climate is one of the most important factors in growing a good crop of potatoes. This vegetable demands a fairly cool moist growing season for its best development. Nearly every year droughts in one or more sections of the country are of common occurrence and the potato crop suffers. According to the Michigan Farmer, from which this article is taken, these dry periods followed by heavy rainfall were largely responsible for the high percentage of hollow-hearted potatoes that were produced last season.

It was declared, however, that even in those sections where weather conditions were the most unfavorable last season, that those growers who were following the best cultural practices were producing potatoes of good quality and relatively free from hollow heart. The grower has no control over climate, but he does have control over such factors as soil, seed, planting and spraying, all of which can be used to good advantage in overcoming the effects of adverse weather conditions.

Growers on Right Road. No one factor alone will solve the quality problem, but a combination of all the good cultural practices will put the grower on the right road to quality production.

The soil furnishes food and water to the plants. If it is lacking at any time during the growing season in available plant food and moisture the development of the plants is checked and the quality of the tubers is injured. It is, therefore, very important to prepare the soil so there will be an abundance of plant food and moisture in it. One of the most economical ways of doing this is to plant the potatoes on alfalfa, sweet clover or clover sod that has been top-dressed the summer or fall previous to planting with ten or more loads of stable manure to the acre. The sods and manure when plowed under decompose and furnish plant food, and the humus that is formed increases the moisture-holding capacity of the soil. Such soil is able to produce good quality crops even in dry seasons. Potato growers should pay more attention to the growing of leguminous crops that will better prepare their soils for potatoes. In some cases, fresh stable manure applied shortly before planting favors the development of potato scab.

Use of Fertilizers. Commercial fertilizers are becoming more generally used by the potato growers. On good loam soils that are well supplied with organic matter 16 per cent acid phosphate used at the rate of 400 to 600 pounds per acre is usually beneficial. Generally on the lighter loam soils that are not so well supplied with organic matter a complete fertilizer analysis of approximately 8 per cent nitrogen, 12 per cent phosphoric acid and 4 per cent potash gives excellent results when used at the rate of 400 to 600 pounds to the acre. Plant potatoes on soils that are of a loamy type and well drained. Light sands and heavy clays are not suitable for potato production. Sandy loam, gravelly loam and silt loams are excellent types.

On fertile, well prepared soil the yield of good quality potatoes can generally be increased by closer plantings. Some varieties of potatoes have a tendency to set but few tubers to the hill and when the hills are far apart the tubers may grow too large and rough. The practice of planting the hills 36 by 36 inches apart is not generally recommended. Planting distance tests that have been conducted and observations that have been made in the field show that the best results are usually secured where the rows are approximately 36 inches apart and the hills from 15 to 24 inches apart in the rows.

Roup Quite Contagious Disease Among Chickens

Swollen and running eyes indicate roup, which is a contagious disease, easily spreading through the chicken flock. The sick birds should be removed and kept by themselves until recovered. Their eyes may be washed out several times daily with a solution of boric acid, one ounce to the quart, and a 15 per cent solution of argyrol, to be obtained from the druggist, may be placed in each eye, two or three drops sufficing, once daily after they have been cleaned out with the boric acid. Roup is a difficult disease to cure and may easily be carried over from season to season, making itself evident when the weather becomes cold and wet.

Plan Garden First

It is important to plan the 1926 garden before ordering seed. Make a drawing of the shape of the garden on paper, preferably to scale. Lay out the different rows, indicating the crop to be planted. Plan for succession planting in long straight rows, instead of in small patches or beds. This will allow the use of the hand-wheel hoe and other convenient tools.

Attend to Incubator

The efficient poultryman inspects his incubating and brooding equipment long before he intends to use it. If broken parts need replacing it is well to order them before the manufacturers become enveloped in the spring rush. Be sure that your equipment is functioning properly.

Production of Tobacco Small

Reduction Is Attributed to Decreased Plantings in All Growing Sections.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Production of all types of tobacco grown in the United States was smaller last year than in 1925, reports the United States Department of Agriculture. The total crop was 1,248,000,000 pounds as compared with 1,515,000,000 pounds in 1925. The cigar types show a cut of 24,000,000 pounds, and the types used for chewing, smoking, snuff, and export show a reduction of 248,000,000 pounds.

Decrease in Planting.

The reduced production is attributed to decreased plantings in practically all the important tobacco growing sections, and by decreased yields in many areas. The biggest decrease was in the Bright or flue-cured tobacco portions of Virginia and the Carolinas, where production of what are known as the Old Belt and New Belt type was 441,000,000 pounds or 152,000,000 pounds less than last year.

Of these two flue-cured types, the New Belt type showed the heaviest decline, production being placed at about 220,000,000 pounds as compared with 320,000,000 pounds last year. The department points out, however, that sales data in South Carolina are as yet incomplete and the production figures in that state may be raised several million pounds.

Burley Production.

Production of Burley, which is the most important single type of tobacco, was 811,000,000 pounds or 15,778,000 pounds less than last year. Production of One-Sucker, air-cured type was under 81,000,000 pounds as compared with 51,000,000 last year. Decreased acreage of Glarksville and Hopkinsville types was partially offset by a somewhat better yield, production being placed at 108,000,000 pounds as compared with 98,000,000 pounds in 1925. Production of Henderson type shows a cut of 25 per cent, and of the Paducah type a reduction of 31 per cent. Total production of types used for cigars was 169,641,000 pounds as compared with 194,124,000 pounds in 1925. Production in the Connecticut valley was 4,332,000 pounds less than last year. Pennsylvania shows an increase of approximately 1,000,000 pounds, and Wisconsin a decrease of 11,432,000 pounds.

Church's Solid Foundation

The foundation of St. John the Divine church in New York is laid on solid pre-Cambrian rock, among the oldest in creation, so that it is likely to endure longer than many of the old-world cathedrals that are in danger of collapse because of sandy or swampy bases.

Point of Resemblance

Lightning bugs are not so different from certain men. A lightning bug can see where he has been but not where he is going.—Charlotte Observer.

Management of Wood Lot Is Better in the East

Eastern farmers are ahead of their western brethren in the management of the farm wood lot. There the wood lot is preserved from fire and insects, and furnishes the owner with his fuel, fence posts, rails and even building timber for repairs. Many could improve and the average western farmer should do much better than is customary by making a study of the science of forestry as it applies to his own small tract. National Bulletin No. 42, issued by the forest service of the Department of Agriculture, gives much valuable information in the care of trees and how such a useful adjunct to the farm may be made to yield proper returns. The supply of timber in the United States is decreasing rapidly and an investment in growing trees is about as safe as government bonds and much more fun. The present annual consumption of lumber in this country is 50,000,000,000 feet. It will not last forty years at this rate. Better set out some trees.

Barium Carbonate Kills Harmful Rats and Mice

According to Kansas State college authorities, rats and mice in the United States destroy $200,000,000 worth of food and property every year. Rats are a menace to grain, poultry, household property, human safety, and human life. They ruin all kinds of food, clothing, and other property. Fires are started by matches gnawed by rats. They carry disease.

Barium carbonate is a cheap and effective control. It has no taste or odor, and it acts slowly on the rats. Rodents poisoned by it wander outside of buildings to die. One bushel of corn will buy enough barium carbonate to rid a farm of rats, and no time and money is better spent than that used in killing off these destructive and filthy pests.

Age for Caponizing

Fowls hatched any time of the year make fine capons, but the best age for the cockerels to be operated upon is when they are from two to three months old (not over six months) and weigh not less than a pound to a pound and a half. The size is equally as important as the age. June, July, August and September are the months generally taken for caponizing, for the reason that spring chickens arrive at proper age and weight during these months.

Male Is Half the Flock

Each male bird that is retained as a breeder in your poultry flock will contribute half the characteristics possessed by the chicks hatched this spring. Round up your males and see that all of them possess the traits you want to have transmitted to your next season's chicks. In case you buy baby chicks from a hatchery, it is an advantage to buy them where some attention is paid to getting eggs from well-bred flocks.

Many Sought Growsome Post

THE SANDMAN STORY

THE KING'S FAVORITE

SOMETIMES the things we think would make us happy we find, when we get them, give us more discomfort than happiness, and that was the way it was with Otto.

Otto was a poor peasant boy who worked for small pay all day in the fields, and one day when he was resting at noon under a tree he stretched himself and said: "It must be a fine thing to live in a palace."

Otto's wish was scarcely off his lips when a cloud of dust appeared down the road, and the next minute a horse came dashing along with the rider hanging helpless from the saddle.

Otto jumped to his feet and ran down the road and, as the horse dashed by him, he caught at the bridle and brought him to a standstill.

"My good man, you have saved my life. You shall be well rewarded."

He Overheard One of the Attendants Telling the King.

said the man, who was handsome and dressed in a velvet suit trimmed with gold braid.

Just then several horsemen dashed up to them and asked: "Are you injured, Your Majesty?"

"I am uninjured, thanks to this brave man," replied the man, who Otto was sure must be the King from the manner in which the attendants addressed him, and when the King asked Otto what he could do for him to repay his bravery, Otto said he would like to serve him at his palace.

"That you shall," said the King. "There is always room for a man such as you are."

And so Otto got his wish, and for a while he felt he must be dreaming, everything was so beautiful and grand.

One day Otto, who always had his eyes and ears open now to all that was going on, overheard one of the attendants telling the King that a rival King and his army were reported on the way to the palace to take him prisoner and take his crown, and he was quite sure it was Otto who had betrayed the King by telling his rival of the secret passage under the forest which led to the palace.

That night Otto watched and saw the attendant he had overheard talking to the King leave the palace. Cautiously Otto followed him into the forest, where he entered a cave and went along a passage which led to the sea.

Otto could see many ships filled with soldiers, and now he knew that all he had heard the attendant tell the King was his own treacherous plan.

Otto heard all the plans the attendant made with the rival King.

He waited until the false servant was well inside the secret passage and then he sprang upon him and bound him with his girdle and, pushing him well out of the path, Otto went back to the end of the passage where the rival King and his ships were waiting.

Because all the servants of the King were dressed alike and it was dark, the rival King thought Otto was the one he had spoken with before, and he followed him into the secret passage without the least suspicion.

"You must come with me to make sure you have the right path," whispered Otto, and the King followed straight up to the palace garden, where Otto closed the gate behind them and aroused the guards inside and outside the palace.

It took but a few minutes to bind the rival King and carry him before Otto's King, when Otto told his story and where the false servant could be found bound and gagged in the secret passage.

The King's soldiers, led by Otto, soon put to flight the rival King's ships full of soldiers, but the rival King was kept a prisoner for many years.

Otto's King became ruler over the kingdom where the rival King had ruled, and he wished to make Otto a great lord and have him rule over part of it, but Otto told the King he did not wish to live in a palace; all he asked was a little house and a garden far away from all the pomp and grandeur of court life.

This the King granted, because Otto had twice saved his life, and when he visited Otto, as he sometimes did, he knew that Otto was far happier in his humble cottage than he was in a palace.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

JOHN BALL

JOHN BALL crept out of the doctor's office more dazed than alive. "A year's rest and a dry climate as long as you live," had been the verdict. It meant that he was shelved—definitely shelved—at thirty-five. What could a man do with his free will reduced to that extent? John Ball had come across several poor devils handicapped in one way or another, and he knew what disqualifications meant in the modern race. One acquaintance of his he had always thought of as the man with a plucky wife; John Ball had seen business thrown his way as one throws scraps to an animal. Another—a friend—had tried to substitute social gifts for brains, and Ball had watched him gradually slipping, slipping, slipping behind. Then there was the plucky soul who always lost several months a year through illness, and who, when he was working, slaved twice as hard as other men just to keep abreast of the last. It was to the ranks of these, drudging hopelessly with worn-out tools, that John Ball knew he had been relegated.

In the station on his way to his home in the suburbs to break the news to his family, he stopped, through sheer custom, to buy a newspaper. Before the stand, which was as big as any in the station, stood a stocky chap of thirty. The paper man knew Ball's voice and at the familiar "Evening Daily, please," he sang out, "Yes, sir," as pleasantly and instantaneously as ever. When he turned with the right sheet in his hand Ball read, with fresh vision, that "I am blind" sign across his coat. There had been no hesitating, no fumbling, and, on the other hand, a kind of professional pride that was good to see.

In spite of his preoccupation Ball paused for a minute and watched. Someone asked for a paper of the day before and the blind man had to stoop and search with his sensitive fingers through piles done up ready to return to the dealer. But he found unerringly the right one; and then, with the accented motion that avoided mistake, he counted out the correct change. Suddenly John Ball knew that such technique had been learned; that it had taken time and pluck; and that it had met with a success, not relative and in consideration of the circumstances, but absolute and competitive. Like another good soldier, this man must have asked "Shall I perform day labor, light denied," and have found his answer in the affirmative. As John Ball turned away he knew that he, too, must acquire the habit of all good workmen of using, and not complaining of, their tools.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRDING KING

A BURNED HOUSE

THERE is undoubtedly a relic of fire-worship in a superstition found in some sections of the country—that it is bad luck to build a house on the site of one destroyed by fire. The new house is likely to be destroyed in the same manner. The main idea would appear to be that the fire which destroyed the first house had rendered sacred the spot where it was burned and, therefore, taboo for ordinary purposes. Another house built on the spot would be like placing an offering upon an altar for the fire to consume.

This is one of the very few popular superstitions which it is safe to regard as a survival of fire-worship, which was an Eastern cult, never obtaining any strong hold upon Western minds. The great majority of superstitions into which the element of fire enters are regarded by the best authorities as being derived from sun-worship—the fire being an imitative sun—or from the ancient custom of human sacrifice. Our barbarian ancestors, if it is true, had their fire festivals, but Professor Frazer says of them, "The presumption is that the essential features of the primitive fire festivals was the burning of a man who represented the tree-spirit."

A study of historic superstitions shows, however, that to a certain limited extent pure fire-worship existed in early times even in western Europe, the section of the world from which, or through which we inherit our superstitions of today.

Approved Styles for Little Girls

The new wash fabrics for spring are in the shops and so are pretty and sturdy frocks made of them, for little girls. Neither the materials nor the dresses reveal anything startlingly new in design, but there are details of finish and adornment that put the signature of this spring on the new arrivals, and they wear the colors of the season.

Plain linen in high colors, chambray checked gingham, voile and other dependable cotton goods, with crepe de chine and other crepes in silk, afford a sufficient choice for any sort of wear. Outline embroidery in cotton floss is the outstanding decoration on play frocks while patterns like that shown in the picture, appear on dressier models.

RESULTS THAT LAST!

Thousands of kidney sufferers have tried remedy after remedy with only temporary benefit. That's mighty discouraging! But one kidney remedy has earned a reputation for lasting results and there's plenty of proof right here in East Jordan.

Read the experience of one who used Doan's Pills years ago and now makes her endorsement even stronger.

Mrs. Henry Ribble, Bridge St., East Jordan, says: "I had a lameness in my back and when I stooped, knife-like pains took me across my kidneys. I felt nervous and depressed and headaches and dizzy spells were frequent, too. I saw Doan's Pills advertised and I used a few boxes from Gidley & Mac's Drug Store. They cured me." (Statement given April 23, 1920.)

On Oct. 11, 1924, Mrs. Ribble said: "The cure Doan's Pills made for me has stood the test of years. It is a pleasure to recommend them." $6c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

ENID

PERHAPS the sole example of a name which maintains its original beauty and dignity and is without derivatives or diminutives is Enid, signifying soul. The first and immortal Enid was made so by Tennyson, who rescued from oblivion the charming idyll of Geraint and Enid and placed them among the chivalry of the Round Table. This story was found in the "Maburgen," and a "Triad" mentioned Enid as one of the three ladies of King Arthur's court.

The name Enid is a Celtic form of animus, meaning soul. It is not difficult to perceive how the successive changes came about, through differing pronunciations. And is probably a connecting link in the transition and, for euphony, the word became Enid. All this must remain supposititious, however, as there is no accurate history concerning the name, so she is accepted as a poetic fact.

She appears as Enide in the French verse of Christian de Troyes, but she is better known as the wife of the Prince of Devon of romance, whom Tennyson describes in his "Enid and Elaine."

The brave Geraint, a knight of Arthur's court,
A tributary prince of Devon, one
Of that great order of the Table Round,
Had married Enid, Yniol's only child,
And loved her, as he loved the light
Of heaven.

And as the light of heaven varies, now
At sunrise, now at sunset, now
With moon and trembling stars, so
Loved Geraint,
To make her beauty vary day by day,
In crimson and in purple and in
Gems,
And Enid, but to please her husband's eye,
Who first had found and loved her in a state
Of broken fortunes, daily fronted him
In some fresh splendor; and the Queen Grateful to Prince Geraint, for the service done,
Loved her, and often with her own
white hands
Attired and decked her, as the loveliest,
Next after her own self, in all the court.

Enid's jewel is the beryl, which has the power to reawaken love in married people. It likewise makes the wearer amiable and unconquerable. To dream of it signifies happiness in store. Monday is said to be Enid's lucky day and three her mythic number.

KING TOMMY

By George A. Birmingham

Highly recommended for amusement purposes. Plenty of action and quite a number of thrills in this story, but more laughs than either; also a collection of charming characters not the least of whom is Tommy, an innocent young Irish curate, who goes to Berlin to spend the German marks in which he had injudiciously invested and steps into the very center of a royalist plot. He becomes involved in more adventures than even his Irish imagination ever pictured.

Central Lake vs. East Jordan

Last Friday the boys' basket ball team journeyed to Central Lake. The game between the girls was too one sided to be interesting but the Central Lake boys threw a scare into East Jordan.

The gym at Central Lake is nothing more than a corner of a garage floor. The floor was cement and black with grease, so our boys were completely lost. The lights were very poor and as our boys are coached on a short fast pass game they couldn't see the ball and the game was rather close.

Central Lake showed a lot of improvement since they played here last and they are a fast scrappy bunch on their own small floor. This coming Friday night our boys meet the fast Mancelona high school team at the High School gym and it is going to be a real game.

Our boys are still smarting from the poor game last week and they promise a real come back against Mancelona, so a real treat is in store for you at the High School gym, Friday night, 7:30.

Sutton	Central Lake forward was put out of the game on four personals the first half of the game.

The girls game started, Kitsman getting the tipoff and Richardson conveying the ball into the forwards territory.

It was only a matter of seconds before Holstad scored 2 points. From then on the game was played in East Jordan's forward area. Two or three times the attempt was made to get the ball into the Central Lake's forward area only to be defeated by Touseh and Murry's snappy guarding. Malpass and Holstad missed only a few shots getting accustomed to the baskets.

DeYoung and Mohrmann played a very snappy game for Central Lake team. DeYoung playing side center and Mohrmann guard. The only score for Central Lake was made by Bowers in a free throw.

The game was played at top speed, but very one-sided.

Charlevoix County Herald, East Jordan, Mich.

Greeting:—
As an old friend and neighbor, I wish to write a few facts to my old neighbors regarding this wonderful land of sunshine and flowers, by the aid of your well circulated newspaper, if you will publish my communication.

To commence, I wish to state I have no wonderful Orange, Lemon or Walnut grove to sell; no stock, fruit or chicken ranch to dispose of. Just am writing as an old neighbor, the true facts about California, the southern part.

I have traveled and lived in many of the United States, and know by this time where it is best to end one's days. We have no bitter cold winters, no blizzards, deep snow, no frosts or freeze-ups, freshets or mud like Michigan is noted for, in fact its hard to tell the difference between winter and summer, and garden truck grows the year round.

Its just the place for a young man to come and grow up with the country, when he gets through, will have something to leave to his best girl. The same as Perry Whiting has done, who used to be your neighbor over at Advance, his folk's homestead, couldn't be sold because it was in Michigan, Whiting returns and makes a present of it to Charlevoix County for a Park, that's the way I look at it, as I have had some such experience myself.

And for the old folks it surely is the best place to end their last days, even if unfortunate, on account of sickness, and are down and out, here they will be cared for. Come all who can.

Mr. G. A. Lisk, East Jordan, Mich.

Dear Friend:—
Enclosed find $1.50 from a subscriber. We have not lost appreciation for the Herald but contrari-wise it is our only medium of information when friends forget to write.

Our winter this year has reminded us of Michigan more than any heretofore, as our snow and cold weather which came before the holidays continued with us until last week. Just now however the frost is nearly out of the ground and now it is mud, mud, mud.

We would appreciate at any time having our friends from the "old home town" stroll in upon us. We frequently think of them all and still appreciate the favors shown us while in your midst.

Sincerely yours,
J. W. RUEHLE.

Even a young female worker of less than average percentage can astonish a man by saying yes to an almost unasked question.

Our extra slice of pie this week, uncommonly large piece, is awarded to the visitor who never forgets to shut a door during the cold weather.

To basket ball fans who have been watching the work of the smaller schools thus far this season it looks like another state championship in the Class C division for the crack Reed City team. Reed City has won 19 straight victories her last being a defeat for Manistee on the latter school's home court 25 to 16. Holowinski, Manistee star, was injured in the third quarter and forced from the game. He was about the only Manistee player able to break through the Reed City defense for scores.

East Jordan Debaters Represent Kalamazoo Normal

East Jordan's two debaters, Arthur Secord and Paul Franseth will participate in their first contests of the year this week and then their Kalamazoo Normal team meets Olivet college and Hope college.

Secord will go to Olivet Friday night as third speaker on the Normal's negative team and Franseth will be first speaker on the Normal's affirmative team when Hope college comes to Kalamazoo Monday.

The question being debated by the Michigan colleges is: "Resolved, that Congress should be empowered to override by a two-thirds vote decisions of the supreme court declaring acts of Congress unconstitutional."

Both Secord and Franseth made the Western Normal debating team readily in their Freshman year last season and established something of a reputation for East Jordan among college debaters of the state.

Plan Now for Next Year's Potato Crop

Every Grower Should Arrange to Get Best Seed.

Because of the bumper potato crop just harvested, 454,000,000 bushels (a record for the United States) and the relatively low price obtained, many farmers will be inclined to delay consideration of next year's planting, says Prof. E. V. Hardenburg of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. This is poor procedure, he declares. He cites an old and fairly safe axiom—"plant potatoes when seed is cheap." Good seed is available in abundance and at relatively low cost. Therefore, says Professor Hardenburg, every grower of potatoes who has any doubt about the quality of his seed stock should arrange at once to get the best strain of his particular type as close to home and as cheaply as possible, even if it is his near neighbor who has it. Successful potato marketing begins with successful potato production; high yielding and high quality potatoes cannot be produced without good seed.

A very ordinary hill of potatoes producing only two average sized tubers (eight ounces each) when spaced 3 feet by 18 inches in the row will yield at the rate of 161 bushels an acre. Yet, he points out, this is 50 per cent above the average yield of New York state. The reason? Too many missing, weak and diseased hills in our potato fields. Yet figures and common sense show that it costs as much to plant, cultivate and spray a poor stand as it does a good stand.

The potato is one of the most expensive field crops grown, principally because of the high labor and fertilizer cost of production. Better yields from a smaller acreage is one of the best ways to lower cost of production, and this means better stands of healthy, high-yielding plants. Well selected seed potatoes will outyield average seed stock by 50 per cent, demonstrators all over the country have shown. During the past season the department of vegetable gardening of the state college of agriculture tested 47 strains of the best Green Mountain, Rural, and Irish Cobbler seed stocks available in order that the relative yield and disease content of even these might be determined. Several of these seed strains showed no disease whatever. The average yields of all strains of Rurals, Green Mountains, and Cobblers, were 380, 342, and 245 bushels per acre respectively, and growers interested in obtaining new and better seed potatoes for next year's planting should inquire early either from their county farm bureau agent or from the department of vegetable gardening of the state college of agriculture.

Timothy Hay Is Losing Caste Among Dairymen

It is too bad. This old friend of farmers, timothy hay, is moving to the rear benches. Competition is becoming too strong for him. Even now, he is back almost in line with good oat straw. Most discouraging, indeed.

At the Michigan Agricultural college, tests were carried on to determine the relative value of roughages in the cows' ration. On the basis of a cow weighing 1,200 pounds it took just one pound more of the concentrated feed to make up the difference between the feeding values of timothy hay and oat straw.

The cows receiving an allowance of 12 pounds of timothy hay also had 36 pounds of silage and 11 pounds of a grain mixture containing 4 pounds of cornmeal, 4 pounds of ground oats, 2 pounds of cottonseed meal and 1 pound of oil meal.

The other group of cows had a quantity of oat straw equal to the timothy hay fed the first group, and one more pound of the same mixture of grain, plus the quantity of silage.

If clover hay is substituted for the timothy, then only 9 pounds of the grain mixture is needed. With mixed hay the grain requirement is 10 pounds; while with alfalfa hay the quantity of grain is cut to 8 pounds.

FARM FACTS

In 1925 higher yields will mean lower unit costs.

Crop rotation not only helps the soil; it discourages insects.

Business must do for farm marketing what science is doing for farm production.

Sweet clover will produce more pasture to the acre than any other legume.

The farmer who says, "I don't know where my money has gone," should keep records in 1926.

Alfalfa pasture is the very first green thing on the farm in the spring, and remains green all summer.

The soy bean crop will fit in any standard rotation of crops. A full season's growth can be harvested in time to seed wheat on the same land.

Many farmers have an excellent opportunity to increase their income from butter, raise better calves and adjust their labor problems more satisfactorily by breeding a few more cows for fall freshening and less for spring.

King Tommy
By GEORGE A. BIRMINGHAM
TROUBLED political conditions, especially in the smaller countries of Europe since the great war, have given novelists an opportunity to return to those charming romantic subjects in which someone who never expected the honor is made a king; because a princess falls in love with him, or a set of revolutionists must have a monarch at once to stick upon a throne and seize the first available man. Some of the most delightful stories ever written have had such themes.
The author of "King Tommy" is a great story-teller and a master of humor. He has produced a refreshing blend of romance, adventure and fun. The mythical kingdom of Lystria in which the plot is laid might be any one of half a dozen small but actively disturbed countries in eastern Europe.

IS IT NOYES?

A RECENT authority on surnames tells us that Noyes is one of the names derived from the Old Testament, and that no less a character, than Noah is sponsor of this name. The popular form of the name was Noy, from which it is easy to derive Noyes and Noyes.

Some members of the Noyes family, however, have a different theory as to the origin of their name. They trace it to Noyers, a place in France, saying that old forms of the name were Nollers, de Nollers and de Nollers.

The first of the name in this country were two brothers, Rev. James Noyes, who was born in England in 1602 and his brother Nicholas. They came to this country in 1684 in the Mary and John and the next year settled in Newbury, Mass. Rev. James Noyes was minister there for 20 years. He enjoyed quite a reputation for learning, being something of a Greek scholar, and he wrote a catechism that was widely used in his days.

He is spoken of in old records as "one of the greatest worthies of his age." The house in which Rev. James Noyes lived has often been spoken of as the oldest house in Massachusetts.

Among the descendants of Rev. James Noyes are a goodly number of clergymen and scholars, but it is for its able bankers that the Noyes family is chiefly distinguished.

Rev. James Noyes and his brother, Nicholas, were sons of Rev. William Noyes, rector in Wiltshire, England. It is said that he traced his descent to Normandy and that his name was originally Noye.

Angel—This is probably one of the numerous surnames derived from a shop sign. In medieval times every shop had its sign by which it and its keeper came to be called. Thus, if a cobbler named Thomas hung out a painted sign representing a lamb, he became known as Tom Lamb. Many of the signs were taken from church imagery and the angel was one of these.

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lysander John Appleton
Mrs. Lysander John Appleton
Miss Daysey Mayme Appleton
Master Chauncey Devere Appleton

IT OFTEN happens on a morning when there is extra work at home that Daysey Mayme Appleton is overcome with a desire to Go Forth Into the World, and Do Good, and she usually yields to this noble impulse by hunting up some one who is afflicted with poverty and sickness. Sometimes she takes a tract, and other times she goes empty-handed to cheer the afflicted with her optimism. "She recently visited a woman who had suffered the misfortune to fall and break both her arms. Daysey Mayme gazed at the poor creature with both arms in splints, and the tears came to her eyes. But there is no situation too dark for Daysey Mayme to cheer. "You have much to be thankful for," she said to the woman. "You have two good, strong legs left to run to fire."

When Mrs. Lysander John Appleton cleans house, she does the work so thoroughly that articles are lost which are not found in three months. She claims the proud record of once having cleaned the parlor so thoroughly that a glass case of stuffed birds was not found in ten years.

There is a bond of sympathy between Lysander John and his son, Chauncey Devere, born of a desire to satisfy the women-folks, and the failure to do so, which they hardly know exists. They have never in so many words found fault with the women-folks being timid in their presence, and loyal in their absence. But Mrs. Appleton and Daysey Mayme don't know of this loyalty. "What," they will ask when they see son and father together, "are they conspiring now?"

Daysey Mayme Appleton was recently traveling that she is an experienced traveler, though the neighbors say she was never in a sleeping car but once in her life. "I am so used to travel," said Daysey Mayme, "that I can go into a pullman dressing room and hold possession of it with nineteen women pounding on the door."

Not a "movie" star, but a director who is famous in the production end of the game, is Allan Dwan. He was born in Toronto, Canada. He was educated in the public schools of Chicago and at Notre Dame university. He had brief experience as an actor in college plays and failed at play writing. Later he produced scenarios, and following a brief career in writing picture plays he was given an opportunity to direct, in which he has proved highly successful.

HIS AWKWARD WAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HE WAS rather awkward, he wasn't so polite; He was wrong in company Oftener than right. His intentions, though, were good, People used to say, And he did the best he could, In his awkward way.

Many things he didn't know, Things you learn in school; People said he wasn't, though, Anybody's fool. He just used his common sense— He could even pray For the help of Providence, In his awkward way.

Though he wasn't very smart, Ev'rybody said, Still he had an honest heart, Had a level head. Never reckless, never rash, Saving day by day, That is how he got his cash, In his awkward way.

Certain people used to smile, Thought him rather rough; But the children all the while Liked him well enough. Babies always went to him— He knew how to play, Understood each little whim, In his awkward way.

When the station agent died, Leaving not a thing, To the widow people tried Sympathy to bring. He could think of nothing then, Not a thing to say, But he made her take a ten, In his awkward way.

I don't know just what was his creed, But I often heard 'Twas religion of the deed Rather than the word. Heaven isn't for the sharp— I expect today He is playing on a harp, In his awkward way.

IS IT BEAN?

ONE of the earliest of Bean families in this country has the distinction of having been of Jersey origin. That is, the progenitor of the family was a native of the Isle of Jersey in the English channel. He settled in Boston, Mass., in 1670. There he died, leaving a widow and three sons, Lewis, Ebeneser and Joseph. The widow Bean removed from Boston to Maine, settling in York. Ebeneser was killed by the Indians and Joseph was captured and kept captive for six years. Lewis became the progenitor of all of his family in the New world. One of his descendants was Eli Bean, a general in the Civil war.

One branch of the Bean family in this country was founded by John Bean, a native of Scotland, who settled in Exeter, N. H., in 1680. His descendants lived in Maine. Among them is to be found the name Joshua, which seemingly does not appear in the other Bean family.

William Bean, a companion of Daniel Boone, was the first white settler west of the Alleghenies. He explored with Boone, returning to Kentucky with his family in 1788 to make his permanent home in the wilderness.

There are several suggestions as to the origin of this name. The probability is that with this name, as with many others, there were several independent origins in different localities where families of the name sprang up. It is said that in most cases Bean is derived from the Scottish "ban," meaning white. It has been thought that in certain sections the bean is and was to an even greater extent a crop of immense importance. When the name is found to have originated in Cornwall, England, it is undoubtedly derived from the worn "bean," meaning in Cornish small. Then it is an adjectival nickname.

Waters.—Quite clearly this is a surname derived from Walter and not from water in the present sense. It has been pointed out that two or three hundred years ago Walter was always pronounced as if spelled water, and the dropping of the silent "t" in the surname would have been a natural development.

A LINE O'CHEER

By John Kendrick Bangs.

WHEN February comes along And hums her melancholy song A little voice within me sings, "Be patient with her mummings." 'Tis not her fault that she draws near This sad and solemn time of year, And there be places on this earth Where she's a time of joy and mirth, And gladness brings, with flowers gay To decorate the cheery way; And if she seems to you to be A thing of winter, blustery, 'Tis but because with your own eyes You chance to view her in that guise, And do not seek her elsewhere In climes more genial and fair."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wesley's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE OLD CIRCLE

THE natural inclination in man, when he is lost in the woods, or is floundering around in business for which he is not qualified, is to move in a circle.

The carrier pigeon flies straight to his destination; the horse goes unguided through the darkest night to his stable.

A man may have genius or merely ordinary talent, but if he cannot move straight ahead, think clearly and keep his mind upon his work, he is plodding round and round, arriving at the end of the year at about the same spot from which he started, befuddled a little more and decidedly less courageous.

Such a man, and there are thousands of them, is not built for success. He is apt to take no reckoning of his progress until someone beside him who has been thinking effectively in straight lines moves up to where opportunity is greater and reward is richer.

This rude awakening causes but a temporary shock to his numb sensibilities, lasting, perhaps a day or two, but producing in him no material change for the better.

If any serious doubt as to his ability should come to him at such a time as this, it is instantly banished as too burdensome, and he continues his aimless trot in the old circle.

He doesn't ask himself whether he is dependable, whether he thinks constructively or whether he thinks at all.

He doesn't ask whether he is given to watching the clock and stealing away frequently from his work to inhale the aroma of his favorite cigarette.

He doesn't ask whether he in all his time in his present position has made a single suggestion of value to his employer.

Ah, no! he has the faculty of avoiding dutiful obligations, especially those that would be likely to impose upon him an additional stroke of work, or interfere with his plans for pleasure among his night associates.

Such a man is not qualified for straight thinking or straight going. He is not capable of handling things with intelligence and in the depths of his heart he knows it.

He is a failure, and for no other reason in the world than his own perverseness in moving in the old circle—wandering about the best part of his life in the wilderness.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

Prison Graft Inquiry Not Likely Unless More Proof Develops

Lansing—There will be no legislative investigation of the State industries at Jackson Prison unless some fragment of proof is found to indicate that there have been irregularities in the management of the industries. This became apparent here when House leaders refused to be stampeded into movement for an investigation. The regular committee on Jackson Prison will make its customary junket to Jackson in the near future, there to go over the books in the usual manner and determine what appropriation should be granted to the prison for the next two years. Rumors of graft, based on the supposed discrepancy between the four-year-old records of the auditor general's department and the recently compiled statements of the State accounting division, were given no credence by Speaker Fred B. Wells, Rep. Charles Evans, chairman of the House Taxation Committee, or the members of the Prison Committee.

Main Highways to Get Cash

Six years ago the Legislature enacted a law authorizing the State Highway Department to make extensions from year to year to the State trunk line system up to a maximum of 500 miles. The maximum was reached in 1924, and so there can be no more extensions of the system until the present session enacts new legislation on the subject.

To provide for future extensions of the trunk lines is the next important matter pertaining to highways that Gov. Grosbeck will take up with the Legislature. He is in accord with Eugene J. Kirby, chairman of the House committee on roads and bridges, the committee to which is sent all highway bills, as well as with other leaders for road legislation, who believe that the present method of having the highway department lay out extensions of the trunk lines should be continued. In the meantime fully a dozen bills have been introduced in both Houses, each designating a specified extension to be made to the trunk lines, the State Highway Department to have nothing to say about it.

Seek to Curb Reckless Driving

More stringent laws to punish dangerous drivers and prohibit incompetents from operating motor vehicles were recommended by chiefs of police and other local enforcement officers who were here for a safety conference. The police heads of several cities suggested to Charles J. # Winning a Race With Death

Nome, Alaska, with an epidemic of diphtheria and no anti-toxin, owes much to the hardy dogs and brave men who last week delivered 300,000 units of the precious stuff. People in this country will find it hard to realize the grave risks undertaken in an effort to rush succor to the helpless people. The last sixty miles was engineered by Gunnar Kasson, in the face of a storm so severe that a message was sent him to wait. He missed the message because the storm was so bad that he missed the town where it awaited him.

The weather was far under zero, and the snow so heavy that Gunnar Kasson, experienced musher, lost the trail, finding himself beaten. Here his lead dog, hero of many journeys, given a free hand, followed the trail, bringing master and load safely to the goal. Others beside Gunnar Kasson played brave parts. There was Leonard Sepala, who covered eighty miles with his dogs, most of it over frozen Norton Bay where the authorities warned him not to go on account of the broken ice. Preferring speed to safety he cut across the dangerous trail, and got there. Others, too, all brave, helped in that spectacular race.

Here's a situation in which Mr. Birmingham reveals, in which he can give scope to his fondness for framing love and adventure stories and in which his whimsical fancies abound. The reader chuckles with joy.

Found Reading His Bible

The earth is afflicted with a number of freshes. One came to light the other day in Pennsylvania when policemen broke into a farm house, finding Walter Bingham, "calmly reading his Bible." He had strangled his ten month-old daughter and beaten his 5-year-old son to death. "I did right," he said, "a spirit told me to kill them." Bingham's father, more than three score and ten, was also dead from heart failure suffered while "battling with his son for the children's lives." In another room a 6-year-old son was hiding, unharmed. In a neighbor's house was his wife, where she spent the previous night after fleeing from her home. Her husband, she said, whipped her in order that she might be purged of sin. Bingham was a religious fanatic. This does not mean that he had too much religion but that he was an intolerant, bigoted zealot. It is easy for such a one to be persuaded that he did right when the others affected are already certainly condemned to perdition. Many people, in their excessive zeal, are unwilling to permit others to worship as they please.

Why Cancel War Debts

Senator Borah recently discussed war debts, making the telling point that the United States received no territory, no natural resources, no rights of exploitation and no indemnity. Great Britain came out the struggle with 1,807,052 square miles of territory, with 35,000,000 inhabitants and valuable natural resources. France, in the wind-up of "the struggle to save civilization" saved 402,332 square miles of territory inhabited by 4,000,000 people, the coal beds of the Saar Valley, Alsace-Lorraine and petroleum reserves. Why talk of debt cancellation? The radio offers new opportunity for punishment. Imagine an ultimatum to a foe that unless such and such was done in so many hours we would turn loose waves of amateur theatricals. No nation could survive.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking quart of water each day, also occasionally, says a noted authority, tells us that too much rich food and acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from blood. They become sluggish; weaken; then you may suffer with dull misery in the kidney region, pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue coated, and when the weather is cold you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Most people can stop their bad habits if they can only make themselves "want to."

Church goers are divided, like Gaul, into three parts, those who go to escape perdition, those who go to get into eternal bliss and those who go.
