Annual Meeting Of Presbytery

Pleasant and Profitable Gathering Here Last Week.

The annual meeting of the Presbytery of Petoskey which takes in churches from Mackinaw City on the north and as far south as McBain which met in East Jordan last week Wednesday and Thursday was a pleasant and profitable gathering. Rev. H. M. Allburt of Petoskey was elected Moderator and Rev. C. W. Sidebotham of East Jordan was elected Stated Clerk and Treasurer for a term of three years.

Wednesday evening a popular meeting was held at which Dr. A. W. Johnson of Cadillac, veteran platform orator of Northern Michigan gave an inspiring address. Rev. C. W. Sidebotham was elected Commissioner to the General Assembly which convenes at Columbus, Ohio May 21-27, and O. C. Gregory of Petoskey was elected lay commissioner. The Presbyterian work at the University of Michigan was endorsed and commended to the Churches for support. W. P. Porter is a trustee of the Board that directs this work.

The question of Young People's work was given careful consideration. It was decided to hold a Conference in this region for young people June 15-20, the exact place to be determined in a few days. This will be similar to the Conference held at Walloon Lake two years ago.

'Make-up' of 700 Movie Men Some Job

Selection of types for a big motion picture play is a difficult task, but "making them up" is an artist. In the production of Frank Lloyd's big First National spectacle, "The Sea Hawk," the transformation of hundred of supernumeraries from modern civilians to ancient Moors and English gentlemen of the court was accomplished with remarkable skill. Under the direction of George and Ernest Westmore, twenty expert hair-dressers, wig-makers and cosmetic specialists prepared more than 700 men for the penetrating scrutiny of the camera each morning in two hours while costumes, seamstresses and quarter-masters supplied helmets, berneuses, chain mail, spears, bows, sabers, scimitars and guns, for the day's work. More than 2,700 gallons of reddish brown "make-up," known as "bollemania," were used in the cosmetic treatment of faces and bodies of the Moorish supernumeraries during the filming of the production. The "Sea Hawk" is to be shown at the Temple Theatre next week, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Postal Efficiency Requested

Washington—Postal workers were appealed to by Postmaster-General Harry S. New, to increase their efficiency at least 5 per cent and at the same time were given warning that incompetent men would be dropped from the service. Now that employees have received an increase in salary, the Postmaster-General believes they should make their work a little more effectual. Increased efficiency would in the aggregate amount to a large sum of money, officials declare. Postmasters were told that each clerk on the average now represents about $7,000 and each carrier $12,000 in revenue.

It is about time for the fish stories to come into use again.

High School Chorus To Present "The Toreadors"

Those who remember "The Windmills of Holland," presented by the High School Chorus last year will be interested to know that they are now preparing a Spanish Operetta "The Toreadors." As before over one hundred will take part in Solo, Dialogue and Chorus. Seldom does East Jordan have an opportunity to hear as large a group of singers as this and when they are also the sons and daughters of your own town, we know you will want to hear them. Monday, May 4th, is the date. We're telling you now so that you'll save that night for a trip to Spain. There you will meet Señor Dictorio and his twin daughters, Benita and Juanita who provide plenty of excitement for Juan and Paolo two sons of Spain. Toreadors and a happy crowd of Spanish lads and lassies greet you yes, even the beggars are there but that's the story so come and hear the rest.

MISS BLANCHE KAKE UNITED IN MARRIAGE TO ROY KALEY

Miss Blanche Kake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kake, and Roy Kaley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kaley, of this city, were united in marriage last Thursday evening, April 16th, at 7 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. D. M. Drinan at the St. Joseph's Rectory. They were attended by the groom's sister, Miss Ida Kaley, and his nephew, Arthur Kaley.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kake, and was attended by the immediate relatives of the young couple. They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, and are now located in their home on the West Side, across from the L. D. S. Church.

The young couple have a host of friends who extend congratulations.

Hundreds Executed In Attempt To Crush Uprising In Bulgaria.

Belgrade—In spite of the rigid censorship that prevails throughout Bulgaria, authentic reports have reached here of the terror that reigns in Sofia. The courts martial are in permanent session, thousands are in jail, and more than 400 have been executed.

Secret headquarters of the communist peasants and communists were discovered by the police in Sofia. They show that the communists were certain of obtaining control after bombing the cathedral recently and that even a list of new ministers was ready.

Police and troops are continuing their efforts to run down suspected persons. There have been several sharp clashes between authorities and revolutionaries, both in the capital and in the provinces. Several persons are said to have been killed or wounded.

A detachment of troops dispatched in pursuit of the band which attacked the automobile of the king has captured an accomplice of the band, whose arrest it is hoped will lead to the discovery of all the participants. A quantity of pyroxylin, a high explosive, was found in the home of a French woman. Many women are said to be involved in the communist plot, either having acted as intermediaries or concealed fugitives in their houses.

Inventor of Automobile Dies

Kokomo, Ind.—Elwood Haynes, inventor of America's first automobile and internationally known as a scientist and metallurgist, died at his home here following an illness of a few days. In July, 1894, Elwood Haynes, then a young field superintendent for a natural gas company with headquarters at Kokomo, had a queer buggy, without tongue or shafts, towed out onto a country road. He drove it triumphantly back into Kokomo, at the remarkable speed of eight miles an hour, under power generated by a gasoline engine. That, it is claimed, was the first trip of a gasoline driven vehicle in America.

This company carries a number of vaudeville attractions including the Maple Leaf Orchestra, Miss Helen DeLand who is billed as the Personality Girl, Teddy Robinson, The Physical Culture Girl, Harry Freeman The Silver Tone Singer and among the professional models is Miss Lenna Clutter who was the prize-winner of the Valentino Beauty Contest at Madison Square Garden in 1923, also Miss Margaret Tompson late of Christie comedies and Miss Mary Chapman who was the prize winner in the Marion, Ohio contest.

Prominent Attorney Passes, Death Sudden Due to Paralysis

Stephan H. Clink, seventy-five years of age, of Muskegon, suffered a stroke of paralysis about ten days ago from which he did not regain consciousness passing away last Tuesday at his home.

For the past forty years Mr. Clink was a prominent and leading attorney in Michigan and at one time Judge in the 14th Judicial Circuit, composed of Muskegon and Oceana counties.

He was a brother of Attorney E. N. Clink, of East Jordan, and for a long period of years has been a frequent Charlevoix county visitor.—Charlevoix Sentinel.

Arbor Day Friday, May 1st

Gov. Groesbeck Asks People To Plant Trees.

In view of the especial effort of Michigan's conservation department and other agencies to create new forests where they once flourished, additional emphasis is this year given to Arbor Day. The one purpose of the observance is to create as much interest as possible in the extreme necessity of tree planting. Human existence to a very great extent depends upon our wood covered land. We should never overlook an opportunity to plant trees of all kinds and restore as far as possible the forests of a generation ago.

Therefore I, Alex. J. Groesbeck, as Governor of Michigan, designate Friday May 1, 1926 as Arbor Day and strongly urge that every community in the State take some part in fulfilling the intent for which the day has been set aside.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this 13th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five and of the Commonwealth the eighty-ninth.

ALEX. J. GROESBECK, Governor.

Standish Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Saturday

Standish, Mich., April 15.—About 75 guests attended the golden wedding anniversary celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Kitzman, of Standish Saturday evening, April 11. Mr. and Mrs. Kitzman have lived in Standish 30 years, coming here from East Tawas.

Bouquets of spring flowers in yellow and white, decorated the home and some of the articles used were the original gifts presented the bride of 50 years ago. The couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. At the beginning of the celebration the bride was presented with a wreath of gold ribbon and green foliage and the bridegroom with a boutonniere of gold flowers.

The guests from out-of-town were: Gus and Fred Kitzman, Mrs. Frank Shepard, the Misses Dorothy and Isabelle Kitzman, Ardith Richardson, all of East Jordan, and Miss Martha Kitzman of Marquette.—Bay City Tribune.

Michigan Plants To Meet Crop Demands

Michigan farmers are showing an increasing tendency to study crop and market conditions in planning their farm programs, in the opinion of those who are studying crops of the state. As evidence, is cited the interest taken in government reports on the outlook of the national wheat crop, and the inclination to sow considerable acreages of spring wheat.

H. C. Rather, extension specialist at M. A. C., comments briefly on the general crop prospects and conditions, and gives interesting pointers for the grain grower, as follows:

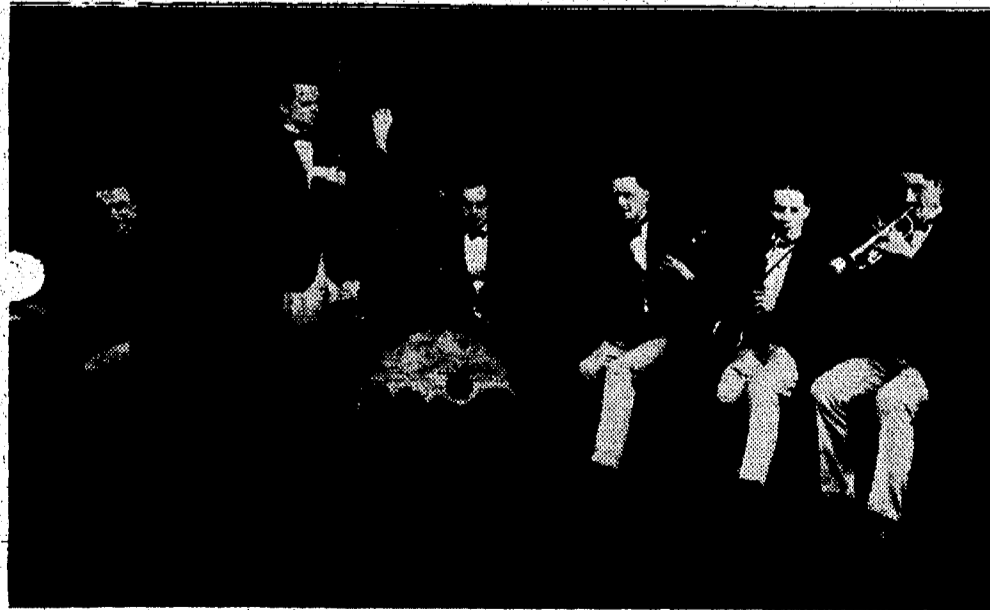

It looks as though a reasonable increase in the spring grains might be justified. At any rate, much of the large acreage of alfalfa being seeded on Michigan's better soil might be accompanied by plantings of a bushel of oats or barley per acre up to early May, with reasonable assurance of a fair demand for the grains.

"Michigan farmers can wisely plan to put in a normal corn acreage, as practically the entire crop is used in the State. Higher corn prices usually prevail here than in the corn belt proper.

"The bean acreage of Michigan has been about right for the past two or three years. There has always been a good demand for red kidneys, and growers on well drained heavier soil, will doubtless find this type of bean a profitable one.

"Michigan bean dealers report difficulty in moving the Brown Swedes. This Brown Swedish Bean has been on the increase in Michigan in recent years, but most growers would probably do better with red kidneys, which yield fully as well and find a much better market.

"Michigan grew about 75 per cent of the White navy beans crops of 1924 and it has been marketed at fairly good prices. About the same acreage as last year should be well warranted for 1925."

Gardening.

There is much interest to be found in gardening if you do not undertake too strenuous a campaign. There is a touch with nature that you can acquire through the friendly manipulation of the products of her soil, and a feeling that well, at least, you can produce good vegetables.

It is a poor type of a man who does not take pride in putting on his table something to eat raised in his own yard. True, enough, the vegetables may cost you more than if you bought them but think of the satisfaction that will come to you when the family smacks its lips and says, "these are the best beans I have ever tasted!"

Undeveloped Power

The value of the water power of the world harnessed is staggering to the imagination. A recent survey discloses that while twenty-nine million horse power have been developed, there remains undeveloped four hundred and fifty million horse power.

The United States, with ten million developed horse power is far ahead of other countries, but the continent of Europe when compared to the continent of North America, runs a close second. With the exception of Belgium and French Congo, the U. S. has the greatest undeveloped horse power in the world.

There was a time when writers and speakers dwelt on the enormous loss to the world through undeveloped water power. While there is considerable loss, the cost of developing power sites is very great and the developed water power is by no means a free gift of nature. Just as it costs money to burn coal in steam plants, it involves expense to develop running water into electric energy.

Stealing Brick Bldgs.

We are not surprised to learn that a thief, in this day of efficiency, attempted to steal a three-story brick building in Detroit, Mich. This thief was no white-collar job in stock manipulations. It was an attempt to actually steal the physical building.

The owner of the brick building, which had been unoccupied for some time, happened to pass it and was amazed to observe men at work razing the building. The roof had been removed and one wall torn down when he stopped them. The men said they had been employed by a wrecking company, which denied all knowledge of them.

It is interesting to observe the charges lodged against the three men arrested by the police. Two of them were charged with grand larceny, but the third was charged with receiving stolen property, as he was carrying the bricks away as the others took them from the building. We realized that the nation was in the midst of a crime wave but hitherto our impression was that brick buildings were safe.

Working for Industries

Almost every little town and hamlet in the United States is trying to persuade itself that the future will see many smokestacks in its midst and that they will automatically bring prosperity and happiness to all.

The people in these cities do not develop the latest resources of their communities but dream of a great future as a manufacturing center, as if there is no other salvation for a civic center except through the narrow gate of manufacturing industrial trinkets.

The first thing for us to do is to see that we have a decent town in which to live, a center for the production of children who have a chance to live right and enjoy normal activities. Most of the towns that have these things, and there are few of them, find that their attractiveness brings residents to the place. A friendly attitude to newcomers, a policy of live and let live, the cultivation of natural beauty and the development of a wholesome community social life will be of great help in holding young people at home and in bringing other young men and women into our midst. The growth of a community depends upon its attractiveness to your people. The town that lets its youngsters seek more congenial living elsewhere is the town that will dry up.

Senate Approves Reapportionment; Now Up To House

Senator Howarth's Bill to Allow Wayne 21 Reps. Passes Senate 26-5.

CHANGE NAME OF M. A. C.

Senate More Liberal With Rural Appropriation Requests Than House

Overshadowing all other issues, the question of reapportionment of Representative and Senatorial districts is monopolizing the center of the stage under the Capitol dome at Lansing. When the House a few weeks ago voted to indefinitely postpone further consideration of the reapportionment bill, it was commonly supposed that the subject of reapportionment was dead in so far as the present session was concerned.

However, the champions of legislative redistricting saw another opportunity to revive the issue. Senator Elijah S. Howarth, Jr., of Royal Oak, introduced a bill in Senate providing for 21 Wayne county Representatives, an addition of 7 seats over Wayne's present allotment. The Howarth bill was speeded through the Senate and adopted by a vote of 26 to 5, being opposed by Senator Butler, B. L. Case, Cummings, Herrick and Horton. It has now been transferred to the House where, it is prophesied that it will be considered favorably.

One important leverage which is being used to good advantage in winning the votes of many up-state members for reapportionment, is their desire for the passage of the Bryant bill for a fifth state normal school to be located somewhere in one of thirty northern counties. This bill is the particular pet of many up-state members and the fact that it is being held up by the Senate is said to be a most effective club in gaining House votes for redistricting.

County Road Aid

Representative Kirby's bill to amend the Michigan grape standards has been passed by the Senate unanimously.

The State of Michigan has definitely abandoned its policy of paying state awards on county roads. The Senate approved unanimously Rep. Kirby's bill which permanently repeals those sections of the old general highway law which provided for the payment of such awards. Passage of the Kirby bill will not affect in any way the approximately $6,000,000 of delinquent awards now due to the counties and townships.

The Senate has passed unanimously Senator Young's bill to place dealers in livestock remedies under strict regulation and a stringent license system. This measure is intended to prevent fraud and deception in the sale of so-called tonics, condition powders, etc. which are actually only compounds of common and cheap ingredients, which have little medicinal value and are actually worth but a small fraction of the price asked.

In the midst of contention as to which appropriation bills to allow and which to defer and disagreement as to the size of the requests to be granted, the Senate has passed Senator Brower's bill appropriating $500,000 for the construction of an entirely new state tuberculosis sanatorium upon a site to be selected by a joint legislative committee provided for in a bill. It is contended that the institution at Howell is antiquated and outgrown and that for the proper care of the tuberculosis sick in Michigan, four additional sanatoriums the size of that at Howell would be required. It is said that Michigan is short 900 beds of being adequately equipped to give sanatorium treatment to those requiring it.

Another very important bill relative to human tuberculosis is Senator Greene's proposal for the construction of county tuberculosis sanatoriums and for allowing $1.00 per day of state aid for patients confined therein. After weathering a storm of hostile motions and amendments, this bill was finally passed by the House 80 to 7, and has been sent to the Governor for his approval.

Song Describes Dress of Ages In Style Show

"Evolution of Dress" is Subject Of Feature Sketch For The Revue De Vogue, East Jordan Style Revue

Down through the ages she has come dressed as the trend of Fashion dictates until today she stands as the modern girl—The Flapper—The girl of today.

In Displaying the trend of fashion from yesterday until the present age, T. Dwight Pepple who is staging the Revue De Vogue East Jordan's Spring Fashion Show which opens at the Temple Theatre Friday, April 24th, has designed what he is pleased to term "The Evolution of Dress."

It is the feature number of the fashion parade on the board walk which has been built out over the seats and holds a conspicuous place on the program, "My Lady Fashion" is the song number which describes each age and will be sung by Mr. Harry Freeman who is said to have a very pleasing voice.

While the "Evolution of Dress" is the feature number of the program, there are doubtless others which will attract the most favorable attention. "Peacock Alley" sung by Miss Helen DeLand will usher in the models in the latest styles in dresses and coats, and will strut as might a peacock arrayed in finery.

One of the feature models who was prize winner of the "Valentino Beauty contest at Madison Square Garden in New York in 1923 will offer one of the unusual numbers on the program with a jewelry display at which time a very beautiful song number "My Lady Diamonds" will be sung by Mr. Freeman.

The above will be presented in conjunction with the regular picture program. Temple Theatre, Friday and Saturday, April 24-25. Matinee Saturday.

HOLDING IN

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

ISAIAH TITUS was one of the most tratable, explosive children I knew when I was a boy. The least opposition or contradiction or teasing would ordinarily set him off into a frenzy of angry words, which left him beside himself. Occasionally, however, he would exhibit the most phenomenal and surprising self-control, at which times we were wont to remark that Isaiah was "holding in."

This holding-in process is not uncommon even in adult and everyday life, and by no means unnecessary. The conventionalities of society require that we lead a life of constant repression and self-restraint. We would not be able to do business if we gave regular expression to the things we actually think and feel. We cannot safely tell every stupid man that he is a bonehead. We smile and utter pleasant drivel when we should like to shout unathemas or call people names. We endure bores and bullies and speak complimentary sentences, and keep quiet when we are bursting for expression. Just because it is diplomatic to do so. It is stronger and wiser and safer.

I have held in a good deal in my time. I have argued that while it might relieve the strain on my feelings considerably to tell Smith that I understood his fawning manner, that I saw through his flatteries and his subtleties, it would do no good to Smith, and it would stir up discord generally, so I listened quietly to his chatter.

Did you ever think what fun it would be, if only for a brief time, to be freed from the conventional restraints under which we all do the regular business of our daily lives and have a chance to tell people our real thoughts, to say what we actually think? I waked up the other night laughing at the expression on the face of Professor Blank whose blustering and boasting I have listened to for a good many years, and in whom in my dreams I had had the courage to tell just how his brain storm affected me. He was amazed, as he might well have been, for I had always before taken his talk very placidly.

I know it is a good practice to hold in when one's feelings are stirred and one's patience tried; it is more restful to smile than to weep, or to burst into a fit of anger. I have had some of the discipline, and I have reaped not a few of the benefits that come from self-restraint. It is true that the worm occasionally turns, that once in a while the best of us is taken off his guard, but my general theory is to endure, to be calm, to show no anger, to say pleasant, agreeable things, or to keep quiet. I know full well that the pleasantest and more controlled one is, the greater strength he reveals. (© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Fashion Smiles on Trimmed Millinery

Fashion has fallen in love with trimmings, in spring and summer millinery — so much so that even the tailored hat refuses to do without adornments. All the flowers that bloom in the spring, summer and autumn contribute their joyous colors and delicacy to all sorts of hats, but flowers never come into the world of fashion unattended, ribbons and laces always accompany them.

A little study of the three hats shown here—typical of the mode—will reveal that headwear, like all other apparel, is growing more dainty and more elaborate. Except for the plain felt sports hat, in high colors, or white, about everything in millinery is trimmed one way or another and even on these felts, clusters of flowers or flat rosettes of ribbon are used in the dressier types of sports hats.

There is a pretty fad for wearing a button-hole bouquet of flowers to match those on the hat, or at least including a flower like those in the hat trimming. Sometimes this small nosegay is attached to the hat by a length of very narrow ribbon, one end sewed in the head size and the other tied to the boutonniere. Or a cluster of flowers is worn on the cuff or lapel of the coat.

'PAVILION'
The summer dance "pavilion" is as much a part of vacation time as the mosquitoes themselves. The term "pavilion" comes to us from the Latin "papilio," or butterfly. The original pavilions were tents which spread out butterfly-like wings. A structure which is roofed and otherwise protected, but of temporary character, is a pavilion.

Choosing One's Work

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

YEARS ago, when Mr. W. E. Curtis was writing his remarkable and interesting series of articles for the Chicago Record-Herald, our hired man whose training in the gentle art of composition consisted of six months in the country school and whose travels had taken him at one time as far ahead as Veederburg, Ind., came to father and announced that he was going to give up agricultural pursuits.

"What are you intending to do?" father asked.
"I think I'll take up newspaper writing," he answered, "like this man Curtis. It looks easy, it's good pay, I guess, and I'd give a fellow a chance to see the world."

"No doubt," was my father's reply. A boy should begin early to think about how he is to earn his living, even if the chances are that he may never have to.

Every one ought to do the work he likes. Every profession and occupation involves about so many unpleasant and distasteful duties, and if one cannot go at his work with eagerness and enthusiasm, if he must drag himself to it with regret and reluctance, if he were always wishing that he were through with it, these unpleasant things are magnified a hundred-fold. If a man likes his work it is half done; if he does it because he must or simply to earn a living he has a sad outlook.

Whatever a young fellow takes up, it should be his own choice. Fathers and mothers and teachers may advise and suggest, but they should not dominate the choice. It is natural that the proud father, trundling his young heir ahead of him in a perambulator, should plan a definite and successful future for him, but it is the boy himself who must live the life, and do the work, and in the end succeed or fail, and it is he who should make the choice.

Every one should choose the work for which he is best fitted. The accurate and honest analysis of one's own talents is not an easy matter, but it should at least be attempted.

Lowell, in one of his essays, says: "We are designed in the cradle, perhaps earlier, and it is in finding out this design and shaping ourselves to it that our years are spent wisely. It is the vain endeavor to make ourselves what we are not that has strewn history with so many broken purposes and lives left in the rough." If possible, before we begin to build, we should study the design.

No young person should take up any life work for purely commercial reasons. It is justifiable to look after one's self, but every one who enters upon a life work, no matter how humble or how distinguished, should do so with some idea, at least, to be of service to the community or commonwealth in which he lives. Only that profession is honorable which contributes to the betterment of the individual and to the advancement of the state.

Ionia—An inventory taken of the loss caused by a fire which swept through four buildings on the Westbrook Bros. farm, near here, brought the loss, first estimated at $25,000, to $35,000. Friends rallied to a subscription fund to aid the stricken families. Twelve children were made homeless by the flames.

Grand Rapids—Attorney Edward B. Strom, World War veteran and former state representative, was convicted by a jury in U. S. district court of having aided and abetted Carl W. Himmler, manager of the Division avenue branch of the Commercial Savings bank, in misapplication and abstraction of the bank's funds.

Menominee—With the announcement of the purchase of land for the enlargement of docks and the construction of additional tracks here, P. S. Bradley, traffic manager of the Ann Arbor system, asserted that these improvements, together with the five car ferries, will make the Menominee port a distributing point second to none on the Great Lakes.

Normal School Bill On Way

Senate Finance Committee Reported Measure Out, Tuesday.

The senate Finance committee at Lansing, Tuesday, reported out the northern Michigan normal school bill appropriating $350,000 for construction and maintenance of a school north of Bay City in the lower peninsula.

The bill is understood to have been voted out over objection of Senator Burney Brower, Jackson, committee chairman. Brower announced he would oppose the bill some time ago but it was later reported that the measure would be allowed to reach the floor. Brower's announcement occasioned a meeting of representatives of northern cities interested here last week.

Action of the Senate committee practically measures passage of the bill. It has been passed by the house with little opposition and is not expected to meet difficulty on the floor of the Senate.

The bill will be signed by Governor Geoesbeck, also, according to sponsors of the bill. Appropriation of $250,000 for buildings and equipment and $100,000 for the first year's maintenance are provided.

The city awarded the school must provide a site under the bill and the location of the normal will be chosen by the state board of education.

Typewriting and Shorthand Contest

Saturday at 1:00 o'clock the Northern District Shorthand and Typewriting Contest will be held at Boyne City. The following counties are included in this district: Emmet, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Oshtemo, Crawford and Roscommon.

The past two years East Jordan won the lion's share of the honors. This year's team has been greatly handicapped by the illness and forced quarantine of their teacher, Miss Annabelle Filkins. Allowing for a disorganized course of two weeks at the most vital time of preparation makes us more hopeful of winning honors than confident, still East Jordan students have arisen to admirable heights in the past and it may be that they will surprise us at the contest, in competition with such schools as Cheboygan, Petoskey, Boyne City, Charlevoix, Gaylord and Harbor Springs.

The following people will go to the contest this Saturday.

First Year Typewriting: Eva McBride Elizabeth Sidebotham

Second Year Typewriting: Vivian Kaiser Alice Zitka

Team Typewriting: Alice Zitka, Vivian Kaiser, Elizabeth Sidebotham.

First Year Shorthand: Petrina Hegerberg Sylvia Tousch

Second Year Shorthand: Anita Kile Mildred Keat

Alma College Girls' Glee Club In Fine Program

The best program ever given in East Jordan, was put on in the High School Auditorium Wednesday evening by the Alma College Girls' Glee Club.

The program was divided into two parts of which the first was devoted entirely to musical numbers by the Club and Sextette with Miss Ethel West carrying the solo parts. The second part was given in costume. The songs were illustrated by the dress. Miss Marian Grover as Little Annie Rooney won the biggest round of applause and was certainly an exceptional character. Miss Esther Oldt came in for her share and was very genuinely appreciated. The three S group were real comedians.

The audience was more than enthusiastic. They demanded encore after encore. They had only one regret, and that was that the program must come to an end. From the time the Club gave the opening number until they sang "Alma Mater" the whole audience was alert and eager.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church are to be congratulated on securing such an excellent group of entertainers. They have set an example in entertainment that will be difficult to surpass. Alma College is certainly to be congratulated on putting out such a splendid organization and the Glee Club certainly succeeded in doing a fine piece of advertising for the College.

Man On Bicycle Plunged Into Ditch On Steep Hill

A near fatal accident occurred last Saturday morning on the Shepard hill two miles north of East Jordan, when VanDorn Riffenburg lost control of a bicycle while coasting down the hill.

He was going at considerable speed at the time the brake failing to work, the bicycle skidded on the loose gravel and the rider plunged headlong into the ditch and landed against a fence post. The accident was witnessed by Heston Shepard who happened to be working nearby. He ran to the assistance of the injured man and administered first aid as the victim was unconscious.

Mr. Riffenburg was badly cut about the face and hands due to the quick plunge on the sharp stones on the road. He also sustained internal injuries, and it is feared one of his hips was fractured. If it had not been for the timely arrival of help, Mr. Riffenburg's misfortune might have been more serious.

Lansing—George McManus, of 1421 Jerome street, is held in Lansing jail and his mother-in-law is in the Eaton county jail, waiting transportation to Oscoda county to face a charge of kidnaping. Police and sheriff's departments of Michigan are seeking Mrs. McManus and her 11-year-old daughter, Evelyn Buchanan, whom, it is alleged, the trio spirited away from a country school near Mio.

Flint—After compelling him to open the safe in his shoe store on North Saginaw street, two armed bandits forced J. N. Barton into the basement at the point of pistols where one of them tied Barton's hands and feet with shoe strings while the second returned to the store, took $62 from the cash register and $2-1/2 pennies from the safe. Pedestrians said a third man stood guard in front of the store. The three are believed to have escaped in an automobile. Barton was held up about four months ago.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

Reapportionment Measure Wins Approval of Senate by Big Majority

Lansing—The Howarth Bill, reapportioning the House of Representatives so as to give Wayne County 21 members, was passed by the Senate, 26 to 5.

Senator Horton's county, Lenawee, would lose one of its two representatives under the new bill. Mecosta County forms part of Senator Case's district. It now has a representative of its own. Under the Howarth Bill, it would have to share its representative with Lake County.

The bill, after its passage by the Senate, was received in the House without comment. It was referred by Speaker Fred E. Wells to the Committee on Apportionment. No attempt was made to raise the expected point of order on the right of the House to consider the bill.

The next obstacle the bill must clear is the opposition majority in committee. That majority, since the session began, has had a margin of only one vote.

No Clemency For Drunk Drivers

The Drunk Motorist bill which passed the Senate some weeks ago was bolstered up by a House amendment and then passed, 99 to 0. As it now reads the drunken driver will automatically lose his operator's license at the moment of conviction and will be unable to drive again until he has been either a passenger or a pedestrian for 90 days.

The members of the House Judiciary Committee stood out for a 30-day suspension period on the grounds that many a drunken driver who now pleads guilty in hope of being placed on probation and sent out to drink and drive again, will plead not guilty and call loudly for jury trials and such. The house made it 90 days, regardless.

Rep. John Holland, of Bessemer, announced that he was not greatly impressed by the measure. He could see no logic, he said, in recognizing the fact that a man might drive while drunk as long as the existing law prohibits the process of getting drunk.

Condemnation Bill Shunted

The Atwood highway condemnation bill, the last item on the governor's program of highway legislation, was torn off the house calendar and dumped back into the judiciary committee. It is expected to die there. Several representatives attacked it on the grounds that it was too radical in its proposed departure from established condemnation practices. The belief that the bill will not emerge from the committee is based upon the fact that the offensive against it was led by wo members of that committee.

Big Deficit Looms

This year's legislature does not propose to be common-place. Not as the "do nothing legislature," the self-conjured appellation of the last body, will it be known, but as the prodigal among Michigan legislatures it promises to go down in history. It has proceeded with a spending program that has no precedent. If all of the appropriation measures pending are passed, Michigan will be spending through its various agencies upward of $50,000,000 in each of the next two years.

Senate For Sanatorium

The Administration Tuberculosis Sanatorium Bill was passed by the Senate by a vote of 23 to 6. The bill provides for an appropriation of $500,000 to be spent in two years in acquiring a site and building a new sanatorium to replace the state institution now at Howell. The bill was introduced by Senator Burney E. Brower, of Jackson, Administration spokesman. It has gone to the House.

Court Reform Starts

The Senate passed the Darin Justice Court Bill providing for the taking of appeals from Justice Court to Circuit Court on transcript of testimony. The bill, introduced by Rep. Frank P. Darin, former River Rouge Justice of the peace, has already passed the House and has gone to the Governor for signature.

Felony To Carry Pistols

The senate passed the Condon firearms bill which makes it a felony to carry pistols, blackjack and major weapons used by thugs. Carrying of lesser weapons is a misdemeanor under the bill.

Gambling Bill Passed

The Bahorski Anti-Gambling Bill has been passed unanimously by both the House and Senate and will become the law of Michigan as soon as it is signed by the Governor.

Watson Sworn In

The Senate attained its full membership of 32 for the first time since the session opened when Senator Joseph E. Watson, representing the ninth district, was sworn in. The ninth district consists of Calhoun and Branch Counties. Mr. Watson was elected two weeks ago to fill out the unexpired term of Senator James Henry, of Battle Creek, who died after the session opened. Mr. Henry was never well enough to assume his post.

Junior Play Well Received

Class Makes Good In "Aaron Boggs, Freshman."

Escorted by his father, Epenetus Boggs, Aaron Boggs, second in the class of three at the Splinterville High School, makes his debut as a Freshman in College. Very eager to get on well, Aaron is marked as a butt for the jokes of several upper classmen, headed by Beau Carter. Although he does pay a dollar for a free catalogue, he is saved from an unceremonious ducking by the skill of Elyzabeth Maudelia Feny (also from Splinterville) who arranges to let Beau try to pond himself. Aaron, in spite of his abbreviated coat-sleeves and trousers, becomes the popular candidate for the presidency of his class after the arrival of a telegram announcing him to be the nephew of Mr. Boggs the multi-millionaire. After being feted at numerous parties he discovers the reason for his popularity with the co-eds and fraternity "rushers," only to be relieved of all popularity when he announces himself as no relative of the prominent Mr. Stephan J. Boggs. All of this has been arranged by his own Elyzabeth Maudelia who serves at the boarding-house of Mrs. Chubb. Aaron and "Liz" decide on the picture show and each other for happiness, while Happy Jimmie Jamieson forgets his Gladys and Cherry Carruthers her Harold for the same happiness. Mrs. Pickens goes on with her hunting and Mr. Chubb goes to bring home a "load" while Second-Hand Abey "does his friends good."

Good acting was featured in both major and minor roles, and special praise should be given the coaches, Mrs. Ed. Latham and Miss Annabelle Filkins for training an unusually large cast to such perfection.

The class honors are figured on the three and one half year basis.

All students who have attended this high school for four years and have received an average of ninety two or better are placed on the honor roll. Students having an average of ninety two, but who have not taken all four years here, are given honorable mention.

CHAPTER XVI

The chauffeur, who was a Lystrian, looked like a brigand and no doubt was far from being completely civilized. But he was a good driver and competent mechanic. The car threaded its way through the traffic of the Breslau streets smoothly and evenly.

Shortly after five o'clock, the car turned off the broad main road on which it had been traveling. The chauffeur, who seemed to know exactly where he was, drove confidently along a number of byroads which were often little better than muddy lanes. At about seven o'clock they entered a thickly wooded district. The last glimmerings of daylight faded away among the trees. The car's headlights were switched on and for a while they traveled along a moving patch of white light between two walls of impenetrable darkness. Soon after eight o'clock they reached a little village. At one end of the street stood an inn with brightly lighted windows. The party was received by a fat and obsequious innkeeper, who treated them as guests whom he had been expecting. Whether it was Count Casimir or the Lystrian chauffeur who made the arrangements for the journey, the thing was well done. An excellent warm supper was ready. On the table were set jugs of hot Tisich Wein pleasantly spiced. Tommy, at least, probably the princess, slept soundly in marvelous soft feather beds. Perhaps Janet Church slept well, too; but she ought to have lain awake tormented by her conscience. For the third time since she came to Germany she had been false to her temperance principles. But hot spiced Tisich Wein is a sleeping drink. It may have overpowered even Janet's conscience.

Next morning the party started early and drove along roads which were even worse than those of the evening before, roads with vile surfaces, sharp corners and sudden steep gradients. The chauffeur was forced to drive cautiously, but he kept up at a

ALL OUT OF SORTS?

So Was This Easy Jordan Woman Who Tells Her Experience.

All too often women accept their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fail to realize that weak kidneys are often to blame for that backache, those headaches, dizzy spells and that tired, depressed feeling. Thousands have found new health and strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. This Easy Jordan case is one of many:

Mrs. Walter F. Woodcock, Merritt St., says: "I had a dull, nagging ache through the small of my back and when I stooped to do any housework knife-like pains darted across my kidneys. Constant headaches wore me out and I often had dizzy spells, when black specks came before my eyes, blurring my sight. My kidneys were sluggish and failed to act often enough. Doan's Pills from the Hite Drug Co. soon gave me a complete cure."

SAYS RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS PAIN IN FEW MINUTES

Rheumatism, lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, strains, sprains, aching joints. When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into pain and congestion relief comes at once.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the sore spot is warmed through and through and the torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on every package.

good pace. After a while they emerged from the woodland and Tommy saw that they were among the foothills of a range of mountains.

Straggled trees grew on the hill slopes. Now and then there were glimpses of tall mountains in front. Streams gurgled and splashed over stony courses. Houses and cottages were few and far between. The cattle which grazed in the open spaces were small and lean. At rare intervals the car slowed down to allow a peasant to coax a frightened mule past it. This plainly was a country in which motor cars were few.

Shortly after one o'clock the car stopped and the chauffeur got out. He said something to the princess and held open the door of the car.

"He wants us to get out and have lunch," said Calypso.

"Good," said Tommy. "I feel nearly starved. This sort of driving makes one furiously hungry and the Germans, though they have an excellent idea of dinner, simply don't understand breakfast at all."

"I always make it a point," said Janet, "of carrying some malted milk lozenges in my pocket."

"That is the sort of thing I should expect of Janet. I have never to my knowledge seen a malted milk lozenge. I have certainly never tasted one. But I have a feeling they are insipid and slightly sickening."

The chauffeur took the rugs and cushions from the car and spread them on the wiry grass which grew upon the rocks beside the road. He made a kind of throne for Calypso, much, I suppose, as the Israelitish captives did for Jehu with their garments. Then, when she sat down, he bowed before her three times, so low that his forehead touched the ground. After that he kissed the toes of each of her shoes. Calypso received the homage with dignity.

Tommy was invited to sit down on an inferior throne and was only given one bow. Janet was left to settle herself as best she could on a single rug laid flat on the ground. The chauffeur did not bow to her at all, and though her feet stuck out when she sat down, he made no attempt to kiss them.

The chauffeur brought luncheon baskets from the car. The meal was excellent. The wine, there were two bottles of a red wine new to Tommy, was very good. There were knives, silver forks beautifully polished, fine china plates and napkins. At last came coffee, hot from a large thermos flask. The chauffeur was evidently by no means such a savage as he looked. Tommy enjoyed his luncheon thoroughly, all the more because Calypso talked to him amiably and pleasantly while they were eating it. She was by that time exceedingly tired of Janet, who had been discussing the plans of the society for establishing world peace ever since they left Breslau. Tommy might be—she only half believed, he was—an unscrupulous betrayer of innocent maidens, like Miss Temple and herself. But even a Lorraine is a pleasant change after hours of Janet Church.

After luncheon the chauffeur made a long speech to the princess. He spoke earnestly and pointed forward along the road with outstretched hand.

"He tells me," said Calypso, "that we are quite near the German frontier post. We'll reach it in another twenty minutes and of course there'll be an examination of our passports."

"I hope it'll be all right," said Tommy. "We passed the man at Breslau, thanks to Allen. I dare say these people won't stop us."

"A few yards beyond the German post," said the princess, "we'll come to the Megallian frontier guards. They'll want our passports, too."

"Well," said Tommy, "the passports are all right in themselves, properly fixed up with diplomatic visas and all that. No one ought to object to them."

"Let me look at them," said Janet. Tommy took them from his pocket and Janet examined them carefully.

"We don't any of us look much like the photos," she said. "You," she looked at Tommy, "ought to have a mustache."

"A man might shave off his mustache," said Tommy. "Lots of fellows do, quite suddenly, without telling the Foreign office or asking for new passports."

"And Miss—looks a great many years younger than I am," said Janet.

"Let me look," said Calypso. She studied the photographs of the two ladies.

"It seems to me," she said at last, "that I'd better be Miss Oshorne."

"But then," said Janet, "I should have to be Mrs. Heard. That is to say," she looked severely at Tommy as she spoke, "your wife."

"Only quite temporarily," said Calypso.

"Well, I won't," said Janet. "One of you has got to be," said Tommy, "and we'd better decide which before we get there, in case we're asked, and very likely we shall be asked."

"I can't possibly say I'm his wife," said Calypso to Janet.

"Why not?" said Janet. "He's going to marry you, isn't he?"

"He's going to marry Miss Temple," said Calypso.

"No, I'm not," said Tommy. "I don't only allow me to explain."

But Calypso having remembered Miss Temple's pathetic appeal to her, was not going to listen to anything Tommy had to say.

"You must," she said to Janet. "No, I won't," said Janet. "One of you will have to," said Tommy, "or else we'll certainly be stopped and probably be arrested."

"I won't," said Janet doggedly. "I promise faithfully," said Tommy, "that I won't take any advantage of the position."

Calypso, I am sorry to say, giggled. It was a vulgar thing to do and she checked herself immediately. Janet became very angry. Tommy got red and stumbled on.

"I mean, that I won't hold your hand or—kiss you, or anything like that."

The princess went beyond giggling. She laughed aloud.

"You appear to forget," said Janet, "that I am a Scotswoman."

"I don't see how that can make any difference," said Tommy.

"According to the Scotch law," said Janet, "if I say that you're my husband, and you say that I am your wife in the presence of witnesses, then we are married."

"Is that really the law?" said Calypso. "How dreadful it must be for actors and actresses on the stage with lots and lots of witnesses listening."

"It's Scotch law," said Janet. "But we're not in Scotland," said Tommy.

"Wherever a Scot happens to be," said Janet, "is Scotland."

"The law can't really be exactly like that," said the princess. "It would be too inconvenient."

"That is the law," said Janet. "If I say that I'm married to him, I shall be, and there'll be no getting out of it. That would be intolerable."

"It wouldn't be particularly pleasant for me, either," said Tommy.

He ought not to have said that; but he was getting angry with Janet. A woman has a perfect right to refuse to marry any man who asks her; but she ought not to tell him to his face that he is intolerable. No man can be expected to submit tamely to that, particularly when he has not really offered himself as a husband.

"Besides," said Calypso, "if he married you, what would happen to poor Miss Temple?"

"I wish to goodness Miss Temple was here," said Tommy; "you won't listen to me. But if she were here she wouldn't want to marry me any more than either of you does. But anyhow, if we're to go on at all, one of you must own up to being my wife. 'I'll leave you settle it between yourselves.'"

He walked off, walked to the car and looked at it, walked a little way along the road and back again, finally sat down on a stone and looked at the river, which ran, turbid and yellow, under a little bridge.

But Tommy's ill temper never lasts long, and he is a man of active and resourceful mind. In a quarter of an hour he was back with a proposal to meet the difficulty.

"According to that Scotch law of yours," he said to Janet, "would you be married to a man if you said you were his wife, but he didn't say he was your husband?"

"Of course not," said Janet. "Even if there were witnesses present?"

"That wouldn't matter," said Janet. "Unless we both said we were married we wouldn't be married."

"And supposing while you were saying you were his wife another man said he was your husband—quite a different man whom you didn't claim at all—which of them would you be married to?"

"I shouldn't be married to either," said Janet.

"Even according to the Scotch law?" "Of course I shouldn't."

"Very well," said Tommy, "when we get to that frontier post you say that Colonel Heard is your husband. He can't say that you're his wife because he won't be there. Therefore you won't be married to him. I shall say that you're my wife, but if you don't claim me as a husband, which you won't, having already claimed Colonel Heard, then you won't be married to me and I shan't be married to you. In fact, we shan't either of us be married to any one, even by Scotch law. That will be all right, won't it?"

"Besides," said Calypso, "Colonel Heard seems to be married already, and nothing you could say would make any difference to that, would it?"

"Exactly," said Tommy. "That's another point. Even Scotch law can't let a man in for bigamy, in that casual way, especially against his will, and I don't suppose Heard particularly wants to marry you."

"So that's settled," said Calypso.

Janet did not seem satisfied, and I can scarcely wonder. A woman as intimately connected as she is with the movement for reuniting the Christian churches of the world has to be very careful of her reputation. It would be a terrible thing for her if it were to become generally known that she claimed a married man as her husband. That is the sort of thing a woman never quite succeeds in living down, and the world is censorious.

The men at the German frontier post turned out to be peaceful and quiet. They looked at the passports but made no comment on them. They inquired whether the travelers were taking any new clothes, gramophones, photographic apparatus, surgical instruments, telescopes or eyes out of Germany. The princess said that their dresses were years old, that they all hated gramophones and never took photographs. Janet added solemnly that the party did not possess a single lancet or a telescope. Tommy, when he understood what was happening, said "Nein" four or five times emphatically. Then there were some inquiries about the chauffeur to produce his papers. In getting at an inside pocket he displayed his pistols and knives to great advantage. The Germans asked no more questions about the car, did not look at the papers and permitted the travelers to go on. Very likely, like Dogberry's watch, they thanked God they were well rid of a knave.

The Megallians, when the car reached their post, turned out to be men of quite a different kind. They looked as savage and were quite as well armed as the chauffeur. They spoke a tongue which was neither German nor the quacking language of the Lystrians. Tommy and Janet did not understand a word of it. Even the princess seemed puzzled.

"As well as I can make out," she said, "they're saying that the photographs on the passports are not in the least like us."

"Tell them," said Tommy, "that that's a matter of opinion, and that if they know anything about the recent Cubist and Vortical developments they'll see at once that these photographs represent our subconscious selves and are exactly like them."

"I don't believe I could say all that even in German," said Calypso, "and I don't know two hundred words of Megallian, which is what they're talking."

The chauffeur, seeing that something had gone wrong, left his car and approached the Megallians with his overcoat flying wide open. They were less impressed than the Germans by his display of weapons. In fact they were not impressed at all. All they did was unbuckled their own coats and show that they possessed weapons of similar kinds.

"This," said Tommy, "is getting quite like Ireland."

The chauffeur quacked at the Megallians in Lystrian. They replied in Megallian, a language which consists principally of sounds like hisses. He quacked again, but mingled a few hisses with his quacks. They hissed in reply, but uttered a few quacks too. Gradually the speakers drew together until the Megallians were quacking nearly as much as they hissed and the chauffeur was hissing frequently. The princess understood about half of what each party said.

"They've just asked him," she said, "which of us is your wife."

"Tell him," said Janet, "to say I'm not."

But it was too late to tell him anything. He was making a long speech in mingled hisses and quacks.

The princess giggled again.

"He's just told them," she said, "that I'm Mrs. Heard, and that we're all French subjects."

"I won't be called French," said Janet.

"I hope he'll be careful," said Tommy. "I can't talk French any more than I can German. Why didn't he say we were English?"

"It's no use saying that to the Megallians," said the princess. "They think the English never send armies anywhere or do anything except pay other people's debts for them. But they're desperately frightened of the French."

The chauffeur quacked and hissed a little more.

"I'm awfully sorry," said Calypso to Janet, "but he's just told them that you're my maid."

The man had been treating Janet as if she were a servant ever since she partly left Breslau. She refused to assert herself.

leave the Megallians under a false impression.

"Please tell him at once," she said, "to say that I'm the European representative of the League for Establishing World Peace, Through the Union of Christian Churches."

She spoke so fiercely that Calypso dared do nothing but obey her. She did her best to explain to the chauffeur Janet Church's position in the religious world. I do not know what the chauffeur thought or how much he understood of what was said to him. Nor is there any way of finding out what he told the Megallian soldiers, or how much they understood. But the effect on them was excellent.

They all took off their hats, knelt down and crossed themselves piously.

They must somehow have gathered that Janet was an ecclesiastic of an unusual kind. They continued to kneel for several minutes in hope of a benediction which Janet did not give them.

Troyte tells me that Megallians have the reputation of being the most religious people in Europe. They take the greatest delight in Passion Plays, which they continually perform, keep rows of spittoons in their churches (a sign of real reverence), and have several well authenticated miracles every year.

As soon as they realized that Janet was a priestess, deaconess or abbess, they made no difficulties about allowing the party to go on.

Calypso's spirits rose after passing the frontier posts. That corner of the Megallian territory consisted of the old kingdom of Lystria, so that the princess was at last back in her own land. The few peasants who were herding cattle on the hillside were Lystrians and no doubt talked to one another in the quacking language which the chauffeur used. The cattle were Lystrian cattle, long-horned, active little beasts, which looked as if they afforded little milk when alive and not much meat when dead. The cottages were Lystrian, the roads, the heather, the mountains themselves, all were Lystrian. Calypso drew deep breaths of Lystrian air with keen delight, pointed out one thing after another to Janet, who was not deeply interested. Now and then she clapped her hands with joy.

The spirits of the brigand chauffeur rose too. He still drove carefully. Any other kind of driving would have brought swift disaster on the Lystrian roads. But he blew his horn whenever he saw a man, woman or child, however distant. He threw off his cap and let the mountain air blow freely through his thick curly hair. Once, for a short while, he quickened the car's pace and pursued a hare which was foolish enough to run straight along the road. After a while he began to sing, mere snatches of song at first, in the end whole verses. This was highly unconventional behavior in a chauffeur driving a royal car. But Calypso did not resent it. She seemed actually pleased. Soon she joined him in singing. When the man heard her high treble ring out he dropped naturally into a bass part. The Lystrians, like most half-civilized people, are very musical, and every kind of singing is a delight to them.

AUTO PILGRIMAGE TO CAPITAL IS PLANNED

Detroit—The organization of a national Automobile Caravan "seeing America" Trip to Washington in which thousands of members will drive to that city, during July, from every section of the country is the plan adopted by the Macabees, well known fraternal benefit society, as its Americanization program for 1925 and a Caravan Jubilee will be held in Washington in connection with the Order's regular quadrennial convention, according to A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the order.

During the period of pilgrimage the general field staff will be moved from the national headquarters in Detroit to Washington.

Cheyenne—The Teapot Dome trial has ended here in United States District Court, Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy will await the filing of the briefs by the government and the defense before he decides whether Harry F. Sinclair shall retain the Teapot Dome lease or the United States shall regain the big Wyoming naval oil reserve.

The government was given 15 days in which to submit its brief of the case and the defense was allowed another 15, so 30 days will elapse before Judge Kennedy has the complete record before him.

Washington—Gen. John J. Pershing has been handed a man's stead job that may keep him sitting up nights almost as much as he did in France. Within a few days of his appointment by President Coolidge as head of the commission to supervise the plebiscite in Tacna and Arica that will decide the sovereignty of territory in dispute between Chile and Peru for 40 years, he has discovered that he has been picked out for the most difficult, delicate and important diplomatic assignment on the American continent.

Visible for 80 Miles

The most powerful electric searchlight in the world, with a normal range of more than 80 miles, is in operation on Staten Island, New York. It is part of the equipment of the United States lighthouse service. On a clear night the beacon has been reported as visible in Philadelphia, more than 80 miles away.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Ouch! Aching Joints, Rub Rheumatic Pain

Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right into your sore, stiff, aching joints, and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness and stiffness. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. "St. Jacobs Oil" is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Milliners Announce a Flower Season

To attend a spring and summer millinery opening display is an inspirational as going to a flower show. Surely, it is a flower season for chapeaux. Joyous colors, as only flowers can express it, flashes its loveliness o'er little hat, or big, most impartially, this season.

There are two direct flower-trimming tendencies, one uses large flowers in natural mass effects, especially roses; the other exploits tiny flowers worked with painstaking precision into conventional flat effects and arresting motifs.

Breathing the freshness of spring are the violet-covered crowns which feature many a picturesque cloche. As the picture here shows, a single large rose is the "crowning glory" to this violet symphony. Many flower-trimmings aspire to reach the peak of the crown, these days. A charming realization of this tendency is illustrated in the other little hat, where a bouquet of large rose buds surmount a silk-and-milum-straw novelty-designed crown.

Our idea of harmony is chills in summer and high fever in winter.
