Tri-County Track Meet

Schools from Antrim, Charlevoix, and Emmet to Compete at East Jordan

For a number of years a preliminary Track Meet to the northern Michigan Meet held at Cadillac has taken place at Petoskey. This year it has been transferred to East Jordan for May 9th and the following schools will compete: Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Boyne City, Mancelona, and East Jordan. Since East Jordan has the prospects of a good Track team and the only cinder in northern Michigan, they thought it was a good place to hold the Meet. In case of rain, a clay track could be used. All of the schools mentioned have strong Track teams and should make very keen competition for Coach Wel's men.

Among the boys showing up best for the locals to date are: Shaw, Walker, Wright, Alfred Smith, Shedina, Amos Jackson, and others. Some of the boys are doing very good work and should push some of the other schools for their honors. It is generally agreed that Petoskey who has had track for years and with material in great numbers will win the meet. As an added incentive, to the boys in the lower grades, there will be a relay between the seventh and eighth grades of the above schools. Also a relay for the Freshman boys of each of the competing teams. This will be an event well worth seeing and East Jordan feels highly honored in being able to entertain such a Meet. The boys are now busy putting the cinder track in first class condition.

Argentine Alfalfa Falls In Michigan

That Argentine Alfalfa seed, millions of pounds of which are imported into the United States annually, is virtually a complete failure when planted under Michigan conditions, is shown by results of tests at the Michigan Agriculture College, just announced by the college drops department.

The rapidly increasing acreage of alfalfa in Michigan has created a heavy demand for seed, and farmers who contemplate seeding alfalfa this spring are warned of the fact that not all alfalfa seed offered on the market is adapted to northern conditions.

"The lack of adaptation of certain strains for Michigan conditions has been very clearly demonstrated on the farm crops experimental plots at M. A. C. this year," says C. R. Megee, of the college crops staff. "Four different lots of Argentine Seed were compared with adapted Grimm and Northern grown Common strains. All lots entered the winter in excellent shape. This spring, each of the Argentine lots showed stands of less than one per cent, while the Grimm and hardy northern grown common strains showed a one hundred per cent stand and gave every indication of producing an excellent crop of hay. Owing to the winter-killing of ninety-nine per cent of the plants of the Argentine lots, the stand is a failure and no crop will be secured."

"Of the twelve million pounds of alfalfa seed shipped into the United States last year, approximately eight million pounds came from Argentine. From this it is safe to assume that the greater part of the alfalfa seed imported into the United States is worthless, insofar as Michigan conditions are concerned.

"Tests conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that Argentine seed has given poor results in practically all parts of the United States where it has been tested."

High School Operetta Next Monday Night

Dear Friends: Senor Dictorio wishes to tell you that his estate is now ready for the celebration Monday, May 4th. His twin daughters Benita and Juanita will help entertain you, being ably assisted by their chums Marie and Dolores. Of course a trip to Spain would be in vain, if the Toreadors were not in evidence so you'll find them there and also in spite of the apparent disapproval of Senor Dictorio, Juan and Pablo the food admirers of the twins.

The other friends who will assemble for the festivities wish to send their greetings too and hope to give you a good time. They are quite excited at the prospect of meeting so many Americans so don't disappoint them. Get your reservation now and be one of those who take the trip to Spain, Monday, May 4th.

Senate Passes Normal Bill

Unanimous Vote For School In Northern Michigan

The State Senate last Friday suspended the rules and passed the Bryan normal school bill on third reading. The bill now goes to the House for concurrence in a minor amendment and it will then be presented to the Governor.

The bill appropriated $350,000 for the establishment of a fifth normal school in the state with the specification that it is to be in the northern part of the lower peninsula. Its hectic passage through the legislature came to a sudden climax last Friday after the bill had been amended on general orders.

Senator Wm. Pearson, Boyne Falls, proposed an amendment which would make the question of a site subject to the approval of the Governor. After its immediate passage. The vote was unanimous.

The House of Representatives on Tuesday of this week concurred on the Senate amendments to the Bryan fifth normal school bill making selection of the site for the proposed institution subject to the approval of the Governor. The measure now goes to the Governor for his signature.

Under terms of the bill, $250,000 is appropriated for construction of the school building in a city north of Muskegon, to be chosen by the State Board of Education subject to the Governor's approval.

An appropriation of $100,000 for maintenance for one year is made. The campus of the school must be given to the State. Governor Groesbeck has indicated he will sign the bill within the next few days.

Future of Pheasant

A few years ago the State started the propagation of ring-neck pheasants at a great expense, and at the present time they are protected under the game laws. In some sections they are getting numerous and there have been complaints of their disturbing the farmer's barnyard flock of chickens, besides damaging and destroying crops. Just what the future of these imported birds will be, is hard to determine at the present time. Up in Minnesota they have become so thick in certain sections the game department is offering one dollar each for every live bird delivered to the wardens. As fast as they are brought in they are shipped to other sections of the state, where they are not so numerous. It will be interesting to watch the future of these imported members of the bird family in Michigan.

Sled Pullers

Mention of the ring-neck pheasant recalls that just a few years ago the state game department imported a shipment of reindeers from one of the north countries in Europe for the purpose of putting them on the cut-over lands in Northern Michigan. So much was said at the time of their arrival in this country, one began to visualize the time when we wouldn't have to fool the kids at Christmas, but could produce a Santa Claus with a real reindeer hauling his pack. Nobody seems to know what became of the pack, but there has been reports that they died off from a strange malady. Experiments in transplanting animals are hardly ever successful, one enthusiastic lover of wild

Music Memory Contest Awards

Presentation of Prizes Will Be Made, May 8th.

Some time ago a Music Memory Contest was held in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the school. The announcement of the winners has been delayed until the time of formal presentation of the prizes. These prizes have been furnished by the Women's Study Club of East Jordan and will be awarded at a special Assembly Friday, May 8th, at 12:15 standard. At this time the Study Club will give a program which should be of interest to outsiders as well as those within the school. You are invited to attend.

The Prize Awards for the Contest are as follows:

Fifth Grade—Hildegard Ellson
Sixth Grade—Mable Hudkins
Seventh Grade—Bea Boswell

The prize for the grade doing the best work in the Contest goes to the sixth.

Newcomb Game Last Friday

First Game of the Season at St. Joseph School.

Last Friday afternoon at 1:45 the two Newcomb teams of St. Joseph School played the first game of the season. The players were very enthusiastic and therefore played an interesting game. The first half resulted in a tie of 16 to 16. The second half was equally thrilling but resulted in favor of the team under Captain Marie Kenny. The next game has not been scheduled as yet.

Form New Control of Potato Inspections

Formation of a central committee, to have general supervision of all potato inspection work for seed certification, was announced at the Michigan Agricultural College this week. The new committee will serve to unify and standardize the inspection work for different growers associations in the state, it is said.

H. C. Rather, secretary of the Mich. Crop Improvement Ass'n, and senior crops extension man at M. A. C., is chairman of the potato inspection committee. Serving with him are R. J. Baldwin director of extension work at the college; J. F. Cox, Professor of farm crops; J. W. Weston, corresponding secretary of the Michigan Certified Seed Growers Association; and H. C. Moore, corresponding secretary of the Michigan Certified Seed Growers Ass'n and H. C. Moore, corresponding Sec'y of the Michigan Potato Producers Association.

The two cooperative associations of which Mr. Weston and Mr. Moore are secretary handle the increase work with certified seed stocks, certifying the tubers after inspection service supervised by the college. The new committee is intended to place all potato certification on a standard, state-wide basis. Rather, the chairman, is in charge of inspection work for certification of general crops under the Crop Improvement Ass'n.

Lyceum Bureau For East Jordan

Junior Class of High School Assure Its Success the Coming Year.

It is well known that the Lyceum Courses have been unsuccessful in East Jordan for a number of years. Different organizations have taken the proposition over at various times but nearly always financial failure resulted. Why this should be is largely a secret. Notwithstanding the above facts, the Junior Class of the High School have signed a very strong course for the coming school year, buying the course from the Interstate Lyceum Bureau. Although other organizations have failed in backing of the Lyceum for this proposition seems to assure success for the Juniors are one of the best organizations in the city, including the High School, and we are confident that these young people can sell more tickets than anyone else in the city.

Knowing the amount of money commencing responsibility on their own initiative for there isn't a city in Michigan that should not have a Lyceum course of at least five numbers. Since the boys and girls of the High School are asking for such an institution for East Jordan it would seem only reasonable to expect all citizens interested in good music and high class entertainment to support them in their efforts along this line.

There are to be complimented on their fine community spirit and progressive attitude. Sometime in the early fall they will call on us to buy a ticket to give first class wholesome Lyceum numbers. Let's keep it in mind and make it easy for them to sell out the house. A hundred and fifty season tickets would put them financially on easy street. It perhaps would be almost impossible for them to make a success of such an undertaking if it was not for their large numbers and energetic members including their class officers who signed the contract, along with a couple of the school men who have a great deal of confidence in the Junior Class. The officers are: President, Eva McBride; Secretary, Elizabeth Sidebotham; Treasurer, Ardith Richardson.

Following the business work of the evening, a most excellent banquet was enjoyed by the many members present. A novel feature of the menu was the serving of liver as the meats for the event, and the chairman of the banquet was congratulated on his idea of departing from the conventional menu.

Work in the Third Rank was conferred upon three candidates, the degree team being composed of members from the various towns. At the business meeting six applications were presented for membership.

competition with the schools mentioned it's quite a feather in the cap of East Jordan High School, Miss Filkins and her pupils. It has been practically decided to send the Misses Kile and Sidebotham to the State Contest at Kalamazoo, along with their teacher, Miss Filkins. They may not win first honors in competition with older pupils down the State but they surely will be somewhere near the top of the list for the two girls mentioned not only won their event but showed so much superiority that the school takes pride in having them contest against the best in the State.

East Jordan has sent their representatives the past number of years and this no doubt has something to do with the enthusiastic work done in this department, for it gives the pupils an incentive and aim to work for each year. The score of the district commercial meet follows:

Reapportionment Giving Wayne 21 Seats is Passed

House Approves by 68-29 Vote Bill Allowing Wayne 7 New House Seats.

HUGE APPROPRIATIONS GRANTED

House Slaps Lieut-Governor, Refuses to Grant New Title, More Pay

Wayne county won its two-year fight for increased representation in the Legislature when the House, by a vote of 68 to 29, passed Senator Howarth's bill allowing Wayne 21 representatives, an increase of 7 over their present number.

Passage of this bill ends one of the bitterest legislative battles which has raged in the Michigan Legislature for many sessions. Bitterness engendered between the legislative and executive branches of the state government in the gas tax conflicts of 1923, was still in evidence. Veiled and open charges in the form of intimidation, brow-beating, vote-swapping and log-rolling were made in final debates on the floor of the House.

It was repeatedly declared that many House members were whipped into line by the threat that unless they voted for reapportionment their pet bills would be killed in the Senate or vetoed. Representatives from thirty up-state counties that are desirous of securing a new state normal school for their part of the state, are said to have feared that the Senate would not approve the Bryant bill providing for this school until the House passed the reapportionment bill. On the morning following passage of the reapportionment bill by the House, the Senate unanimously passed the bill for the new normal.

Whatever may have gone on behind the scenes and under the surface, the reapportionment bill is now passed and sent to the Governor for his approval, which will be promptly given.

The bill to give Wayne increased representation in the Senate is still in the House Committee on Apportionment and very likely will remain there.

Session Ends Looms

With the reapportionment issue settled, the legislative atmosphere is considerably clarified and the tension which has characterized the legislative sessions during the last week has noticeably abated. There now seems to be no reason why the Legislature cannot wind up the business of the session and adjourn in a few days. No definite date for final adjournment has been set as yet, but May 2 is being favored by many members.

As usual during the last days of the session, appropriation bills are coming in for a large amount of attention. Bills passed by the House with decided cuts below the budget requests, have in many cases been increased by the Senate and many House members are loath to agree to the Senate increases. However, thus far a majority of the representatives have in each instance, voted to approve the more liberal action of the Senate.

From a study of the appropriation bills already passed and still pending, it appears probable that the general property tax for the next two years will be about $5,000,000 per year more than it was during the past year. It is pointed out that the state administration has practically depleted the state's surplus and whatever appropriations are granted will have to be met through taxes, fees, licenses, etc.

Farmers' Request Granted

In view of the heavy tax burden which will face the farmers of the state during the next two years, it will no doubt be of some small satisfaction to them to know that among these requests which are being allowed by the tens of millions, the few rural appropriation bills have been passed at the desired levels. Among such measures that have received final approval during the past week are Representative Espie's bill providing an emergency appropriation of $100,000 to allow for the carrying on of bovine tuberculosis eradication campaigns for the balance of the fiscal year; Representative Brake's bill setting aside $50,000 of state funds for the State Department of Agriculture for inspection service and for enforcing grades and standards of Michigan fruit and other farm produce; and Representative Warner's bill allowing $25,000 for combatting and suppressing the European corn borer.

Fiscal action has not yet been taken on the appropriation bill for new buildings, maintenance and agricultural extension work of the M. A. C., but there is every indication that the Senate will pass these bills at somewhat higher

Levels than those allowed by the House

Lieut-Gov. Meets Rebuff
Measomy and other reasons led the House to defeat by a vote of 68 to 29 the bill which would have made the Lieut-Governor a member of the State Administrative Board at a salary of $4,000 per year. It is declared that Governor Groesbeck opposed this bill and it was indicated in the debate on the floor of the House that many members were unfriendly to it because Lieut-Governor Welsh, who two years ago was speaker of the House, had criticized the members most vigorously and even harshly because of their failure to pass the reapportionment bill at the 1923 session.

The House Committee on Agriculture has been besieged by a host of manufacturers of the dealers in live stock tonics who are strenuously protesting the passage of Senator Young's bill for the regulation and sale of such tonics, by a licensing system. Extended hearings have been held on this bill and there is every indication that it will be reported favorably, although perhaps with some minor amendments. The bill is aimed to prevent the sale of cheap drugs and chemicals at exorbitant prices by mixing them with fillers, giving them some fancy trade name, and recommending the concoction for a long list of ailments.

From the standpoint of rural education, the House of Rep. took an important step when they passed by a vote of 73 to 8 Rep. Snow's bill providing for the election of a County Board of Education which would among other duties be charged with that of selecting and hiring the County Superintendent of Schools. This official would replace the present County School Commissioner who is an elective official.

In the debates for the Snow bill, it was pointed out that in counties having large cities the County Commissioner of Schools often retains his position through playing city politics rather than because of his particular fitness for the important position of supervising the rural education in the county. Rep. Snow declared that his bill would take this office out of politics. A last-minute amendment adopted by a narrow vote provides that not more than one member of the County Board of Education could come from any township or city. As the board would be composed of five members, it is evident that this provision insures a board which would be primarily rural in view point.

Not even the courtesy which the House members naturally felt toward their lady colleague, Mrs. Cora Anderson of L'Anse, could influence them to pass her bill for the licensing and regulating of hair dressers and cosmeticians. This bill went down to defeat 42 to 43 and all subsequent efforts to reconsider this fatal vote and to revive the issue proved futile.

Of Interest To Farmers

Last Tuesday night a big meeting was held at Boyne Falls in the nature of a community gathering in co-operation with the consolidated schools and it proved to be highly interesting. At least 250 people were in attendance to listen to the talks by Mr. A. C. Baltzer, Dairy Specialist of our College, and Mr. B. O. Hagerman, formerly Co. Agent and now connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad. Also the present Co. Agent gave a few details concerning the nature of the work to be carried on this summer. Mr. Kitson, Agr'l Instructor and Supt. of the Boyne Falls school acted as chairman and handled the meeting in a very capable manner. Also County Agr'l Agent, Mellenkamp, used the Moving Picture Machine in showing two films which were very enthusiastically received. Meetings of this kind are worth while from the standpoint of the community as well as being very instructional. Mr. Baltzer emphasized the necessity of feeding properly, breeding intelligently, and weeding out the undesirable. Mr. Hagerman discussed Crops and in particular the comparison of freight rates on different crops. If a bushel of potatoes was shipped to Cincinnati the freight rate cost would be 82 per cent of the value of the bushel when sold. If a bushel of alfalfa seed was shipped to the same place the freight cost would be only 2 1/2 per cent of the value of the bushel.

During the day Mr. Baltzer spent some time in looking over our County Cow-testing Ass'n and found it to be one of the most efficiently managed in the State, due to the exceptionally fine work of the tester, Clarence Mullett. Wednesday the 22nd, Mr. J. A. Hannah, Poultry Specialist was in the County working on Poultry Demonstration Farms. As a result three of our leading poultry raisers are having demonstration farms. In the past all orders for baby chicks are sent outside of the County which will not be necessary in the future as these farms will have a source of high producing hatching eggs and in all probability also of baby chicks. These farms will be under the direct supervision of the College and accurate records will be kept for both the eggs and cost of feed.

The purpose and justification of our criminal law is the protection of the public. The purpose of prison and punishment is to deter others from crime or in other words, protect the public. The police officials, under which term we include all engaged in enforcing the law and punishing offenders, seldom receive from the society they serve the commendation that is due them.

The following farms are carrying on this work:

Wm. Sanderson, Leeton, Barred Rocks.
Arthur Orild, Charlevoix, W. Wyndolter and W. Leghorn.
Mrs. Roy, East Jordan, W. Leghorn.
During the past winter Mrs. Roy has had exceptionally fine production. Her flock of 120 hens averaging 85 eggs per bird for the five months period from Nov. 1, 1924 to April 1st, 1925. Who can beat that in the County.

During the past week two more members have been enrolled in the Boy's and Girl's Calf Club, which makes at the present time 16 members. Having seen several of the calves of late, it is very gratifying to note how well they have been cared for and the interest that their young owners are taking. Be sure and plan on seeing them at the County Fair this fall.

Also a bean growing club is gradually being brought into existence and at the present time have 8 members enrolled. These boys and girls are buying sufficient Certified Robust Seed to put in from 1/2 to 1 acre. They will buy their own seed and do all the work possible and get the proceeds of the crop. The main reason for the Club is to introduce these beans in the County. They outyield the other beans and are decidedly more resistant to Slight and Anthracnose.

Also a Canning Club for girls will be organized near Boyne Falls next week.

Report of the Charlevoix County Cow Testing Ass'n.

The 9 grade holsteins owned by Arthur Shepard, of East Jordan have again proven their worth by repeating last winter's record and going it one better for the last four months. The month of March makes the 4th month that this herd has had the butter fat average per cow, in this Cow-Testing Ass'n. in Dec. the cows in Shepard's herd averaged 40.5 lbs. of butter fat; in January they averaged 46.7 lbs. of butter fat; in February 42.5 lbs. of butter fat, and in March 48 lbs. of butter fat.

This being the longest any one herd in the Ass'n has held the highest B. F. average, having as high production good breeding, good feeding, and good care, are the main features of the Cow-Testing Ass'n record.

One of the high individuals of the Cow-Testing Ass'n for the past three months, is a Gr. Guernsey, which was bought (upon the recommendation of the local Cow-Tester) by Elmer Murray of East Jordan. On January 1, 1925 this Guernsey freshened for the first time and during the next three months she produced 133 lbs. of B. F. and 3,200 lbs. of Milk. She has made a net profit during the three months which comes within $10.00 of the price paid for her in September. The mother of this 2 yr. old in a Gr. Jersey and has the highest Jersey Cow-Testing Ass'n record in this county, for both milk and B. F. The Sire is a pure-bred Guernsey. This record shows why dairymen like to buy their breeding stock from herds with good Cow-Testing Ass'n records.

Orchard Bay Farm also produced a couple good pure-bred Holsteins in the heifer class, both were fresh in February, and had 46.8 lbs. of B. F. in March. A senior 2 yr. old Jersey owned by Clint Blanchard of Phelps was second in her class in January.

In the 3 yr. old class, Gr. Holsteins owned by Dan Swanson and Arthur Shepard have been holding down the larger share of the high records in this class for the last 5 or 6 months. Others are owned by Orchard Bay Farm and B. E. Waterman. Mr. Waterman has the first short horn cow in this Ass'n which has been able to get among the three highest B. F. producers of her class.

The four yr. old winners are divided up among the pure-bred Holsteins owned by Breezy Point farm and Frank A. W. Behling.

In the 5 yr. old class the good cows for the past 3 months have been found at Art Shepards; Dan Swanson; Breezy Point and Loeb farm's. The highest monthly record in this group was made by a pure-bred Holstein owned by Loeb Farm. On three milkings a day she made 73.9 lbs. of B. F. during the month of March.

During the first three months of 1925 20 cows have been culled out and sold to the butcher, where they neither continue to produce scrub off springs or lose their owner any money. This culling out system explains why the cows in the Ass'n this year are averaging more B. F. per month than those of last year's Ass'n did.

Our Police Officials

The purpose and justification of our criminal law is the protection of the public. The purpose of prison and punishment is to deter others from crime or in other words, protect the public. The police officials, under which term we include all engaged in enforcing the law and punishing offenders, seldom receive from the society they serve the commendation that is due them.

We know that there are hard and unscrupulous fellows, that there are dishonest and inefficient servants of the law, and that brutality at times and serious works under the guise of authority. The outstanding fact is that law enforcement officials take their lives in their hands, facing death always in handling the cases they deal with.

Last week we read of a fellow badly beaten by two prisoners, of a policeman shot to death, of a sheriff wounded, and there were other instances which scaped our attention. These men, after such experiences, are widely praised but the thousands who do their daily task, facing the same constant danger, are not praised—they are hardly thought of.

The public can do much to help the officers of this section. The public condemnation of lawlessness will do more to protect the lives of police officers than all the clubs and pistols they carry. As a member of society, with your life protected and your goods secured by law, you should stand for the enforcement of the law. If you haven't appreciated this fact, and the service of the men and women of the police branch of the government, this is a good time to begin to give them the credit that is their due.

Discarding The Primary

Colorado seriously considers discarding the direct primary and returning to the old party convention system of nominations. A bill to that effect is now in the hands of the governor who is to decide the fate of the primary system, which went into effect in 1910.

The old convention system had its faults and the advent of the primary was welcomed as a new evidence of the power of the people. The action of the Colorado lawmakers is, we believe, something of a novelty. Whether it is best to use conventions instead of primaries is to open to argument and we take no side in the argument for the present. Suffice us to say that the friends of the primary system will do well to consider the warning from Colorado; a warning that should be effective whether the governor of that state approves the present bill or vetoes it.

Muskegon—Miss Jennie Norlin Blue Lake Township business woman is Muskegon County's first elected woman supervisor. A ballot recount gave her a one-vote majority over August Krubasok, incumbent, who was declared the winner over Miss Norlin in the first count.

Detroit—William G. Smith, a student flier of a local flying company, accompanied by a pilot of the same company, has been bootlegging via airplane from Detroit to Howell to Lansing, it was stated by probation officers. Smith, arrested on a non-support charge, made the foregoing admission to the officers.

Pontiac—Pontiac's school budget for the coming year will be above $1,000,000. As the board of education is not empowered to raise more than $716,000 and the revenues are about $205,000, it has been found necessary to put before the voters of the district an additional appropriation by direct tax of $116,000.

Mason—Sunday dancing will be prohibited at resorts in four counties this summer, Sheriff Hough Silby has declared here. Dancing pavilions in Eaton, Ingham, Shiawassee and Clifton counties will be closed during the summer on Sundays and plans are being made for the law enforcing officers of the four counties to exert all their authority in an attempt to enforce their ruling.

Detroit—The police, who have been battling hordes of armed thugs and bandits engaged in killing and pillaging in branch banks about the city, were given another case to run down when two men held up three employees of the Strathmore branch of the Northwestern State bank at Grand River and Freeland and escaped with $7,000. The robbery took place just at closing time.

Flat Rock—Scores of families in the valley of the Huron River between Flat Rock and Lake Erie were driven from their homes when the dam at the power plant of the Ford Motor Co., here, burst and released millions of gallons of water into the valley. More than 5,000 acres was reported under water. The water was reported more than 12 feet deep in some places by the State Police.

Pontiac—Dr. E. A. Christian, superintendent of the Pontiac State hospital, has accepted the chairmanship of a general committee in charge of arrangements to raise $150,000 in Pontiac to pay half the cost of building a new general hospital. The site has been donated by a local citizen and the Sisters of Mercy, of Dubuque, Ia., are willing to finance the balance of a $300,000 institution.

In Time of Trouble

Children and maids are frequently at a loss in an emergency, and a directory hung over the telephone with the names, addresses and telephone numbers of the family physician and a substitute, the nearest fire box, the police station, the family pastor and the business places of all employed members of the family will sometimes avert a tragedy.

Chimney Waste Is Checked

Most of the old-fashioned furnaces and many of the later designs turn a large percentage of their heat through the chimney. Electrical engineers are now beginning to check the waste with new devices. To date they have succeeded in converting into energy 93 per cent of the heat units of the fuel used.

No Chance to Reach a Limit

"How many pancakes do you suppose you could eat at a sitting?" inquired Uncle George as he watched Tommy, his little nephew, stowing them away. "I don't know," said the boy. "The most I ever had a chance to eat was 21; ma won't let me try for a record."—Stray Stories.

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

Seeley Co's truss expert from Chicago will personally be at the Park Hotel, and will remain in Traverse City Saturday and Sunday only May 8-10. Mr. Seeley says: "The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being a vast advancement over all former methods—exemplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions." Warning—All cases should be cautioned against the use of any elastic or web truss with under- straps, as same where the lump is and not where the opening is, producing complications necessitating surgical operation. Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington D. C., for inspection. Our representative will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired. Business demand prevent stopping at any other place in this section.

P. S.—Every statement in this notice has been verified before the Federal and State Courts.—F. H. Seeley. Home Office: 117 No. Dearborn St., Chicago.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

Reapportionment Finally Wins Ending Long and Bitter Fight

Lansing—Reapportionment of representative seats in the legislature was agreed to by the house of representatives by a vote of 48 to 29.
Under the Howarth Bill Wayne county will be entitled to 31 seats in the next legislature, instead of just 14 as at present.
The vote ended a bitter legislative battle that has been unremitting in its intensity for two years. Harsh personal recriminations have been passed. Other legislation has been sacrificed by one side or the other as they pressed for victory.
And even as the anti-apportionists conceded defeat, they lashed at the governor, the lieutenant governor and members of the legislature who have persistently fought for reapportionment with verbal invective that stung.

The Wood Bill, to reapportion the Senate, is still in the House Apportionment Committee. Gov. Groesbeck, who made a personal issue of Wayne county's demand for Constitutional representation and brought about the passage of the Howarth Bill, is already working for the enactment of the Wood Bill. If it passes, all of the Constitution's demands will have been met.

Transit Bill Passed
With the Callender Rapid Transit Bill passed by both houses of the Legislature and the Darin Super-Highway Bill passed by the House and apparently sure of passage in the Senate, Detroit is in a position to go ahead with the plans of the Rapid Transit commission if the voters so desire.

Erroneous reports from Lansing that the Callender Bill contained limitations which would prohibit Detroit spending more than $50,000,000 for a rapid transit system, or approximately 12 miles of subways, disturbed the Rapid Transit Commission. The Wayne delegation agreed after talks by leading manufacturers and businessmen, to support the Callender Bill without any limitations on special assessments, which meant an act permitting Detroit to build a 40-mile system costing $200,000,000, if the voters wanted it.

Previously members of the Wayne delegation had written into the new draft of the bill, as prepared for the Governor after the commission's original bill was found unsatisfactory by him, a provision limiting special assessments. The Governor's draft contained no such limitation.

City Bond Issues Limited
The House passed the Evans Bill designed to curb extravagance in municipal improvements and to regulate municipal bond issues. The measure was part of the administration tax program. It has gone to the senate. The important features of the bill are those which insist that municipalities must provide adequate funds for the retirement of bonds. Bonds must either be issued serially or a sinking fund must be built up, periodically and consistently. The state treasurer would be required to approve all bond issues.

Railway Bus Lines Approved
The second of the trio of railroad bus bills introduced by Senator Horatio H. Karcher, of Rose City, was passed by the Senate by a vote of 30 to 7. The bill gives steam or electric railroads permission to establish motor bus or truck lines in conjunction with or supplanting their rail lines. It was originally provided that they could be established in extension of the rail lines, but that provision was killed in committee.

School Bill Passes House
The Snow Bill, which is expected to take the rural schools out of petty county politics and place them under the supervision of men of constructive vision passed the House by a vote of 73 to 8. It would do away with the elective office of county school commissioner and substitute a county board of education of five members with power to employ a superintendent of schools.

Defeat For 'Beauty Parlor' Bill
Representative Cora Reynolds Anderson's "Beauty Parlor" bill went down to defeat in the general landslide accompanying the dethronement of Charles Culver, of Detroit, as chairman of the Wayne delegation in anything save name. Culver's connection with the bill was credited with causing the defeat, which was by a vote of 44 to 42.

Chiropractor Bill Fails
A bill to license chiropractors met defeat in a senate committee. It was introduced by Senator David Butler.
Disability Pay Beaten
Michigan Federation of Labor workers' compensation bill has been killed. The committee on labor, by secret ballot voted against reporting the bill out on the floor for consideration of the house as a whole. The vote was nine to three. The committee split on the issue of amending the measure before placing it before the house.

Lepers Cured in Philippines
Manila—Amazingly successful results in the cure of leprosy by use of chaulmoogra oil have been made at Cullion, leprosy asylum in the Philippine Islands, according to Governor Leonard Wood. He stated that more than 500 cures had been made in the last four years.

Mexican Duelists Slain
Mexico City—Carlos Carrillo and Professor Jose Izquierdo, aldermen and members of the board of public works, are dead as the result of a duel which they fought on the outskirts of the city. The two men quarreled and decided to settle their differences with revolvers at once. As both were deadly marksmen their shots were fatal.

Painleve Gets Confidence Vote
Paris—Nine hours of debate, featured by bitter personal attacks, on Joseph Caillaux, lately returned from exile and now minister of finance, preceded the vote in the Chamber of Deputies on the declaration of policy of the new cabinet. At the conclusion of the verbal fireworks, Premier Paul Painleve and his colleagues were voted the confidence of the chamber, 304 to 215.

World Harmony Foreseen
Washington—World peace can be ultimately effected only through the clarification and codification of international law, and this is to be accomplished only through a great conference of representatives of all the nations of the earth, former Secretary of State Hughes, as president of the American Society of International Law, told members of that association at their annual meeting.

Sims Can't See 'Yellow Peril'
Milwaukee, Wis.—Admiral William Snowden Sims, retired commander of the American fleet in European waters during the World War, told members of the American Legion post here that there is not even a slight chance that America will be attacked from the Pacific or that the "yellow peril" will become a reality until China is developed to the level of Japan. The latter instance is even still more remote than the first, the admiral said.

"No longer is the height of style to be found only in the larger cities, for the girl in the small town today is as fashionably clad as her sister in the metropolitan centers," says this charming player.

Have You This Habit?
By Margaret Morison

WALT WIGGIN.

WALT WIGGIN'S chop house was famous; no one knew whether more famous for its planked steak or for Walt Wiggin himself. It was an inconvenient little hole to reach, inconvenient, that is, for the conventional and conservative; but, unlike other restaurants, it did not move when its boom began.

The chop house was in a basement which one reached by descending a flight of uneven stone steps. The floor was spread with clean sawdust, and there were perhaps two dozen small round tables under the central arc light that hung round and bright-white from the ceiling. At a corner of the red brick fireplace was Wiggin's table and this the old-timers in the room would watch with interest as the chop house became increasingly the rendezvous for fashion, being safely adventurous and Bohemian. For the flavor of the occasion was to sit at Wiggin's table. When Treat 'Em Rough blustered that the coffee was bad, Wiggin quite calmly and patiently would explain why that was impossible. And when Treat 'Em Down condescended that the oysters were better than anything else in the city, Wiggin would name the one place that he knew excelled him. Meanwhile the room, delighted, took it all in.

One night a stranger alone was ushered with more air than usual to the seat beside Wiggin, who was quite oblivious to the stir that the new arrival had occasioned. Wiggin took to his guest as he had taken to no one for many moons. Gradually he found himself breaking through his reserve and talking, freely of himself to the man at his right. Wiggin finally began telling the story of his life. He had been born in a packing box on the wharves—"like a mongrel pup," he said. Now he was a married man with a business bringing a fair income. This supported his wife and three children and also a never-do-well brother-in-law. Yet Wiggin allowed himself some luxuries; he had a fondness for poetry, and he subscribed to the Atlantic Monthly, and went to the theater whenever there was a Shakespeare play. "Now, you," he interrupted himself surveying the other, "you must have got on better in the world than I."

"I had a head start, that's all," said the stranger. Then he drew a card from his pocket, after a moment's hesitation, and presented it to Wiggin; and Wiggin, glancing at it, realized that he was entertaining the governor. "Governor," said Wiggin, "we've had an interesting conversation. There will always be a place at my table for you."

And the chop house breathed again, for Wiggin had remained true to form and his habit of, under any circumstances, "treating 'em equal."

Many women of prominence have urged Miss Martha Van Rensselaer of the college of home economics in Cornell university to seek the nomination for United States senator from New York.

VON HINDENBURG ELECTED PRESIDENT OF GERMANY

FIELD MARCHAL von HINDENBURG
 Berlin—The people of Germany have elected General von Hindenburg, former leader of the German armies, as president of the republic with a plurality of about 845,000 votes. This has stunned the republican elements, who consider the old war chief a hair warmer for the Hohenzollerns, a representative of the imperialistic ideals which ruled Germany before the World war.
 General Von Hindenburg is the first president of Germany to be elected by popular ballot. He was nominated by the nationalist-conservative bloc, to replace Dr. Karl Jarres, who failed of election in the first balloting on March 29. His opponent was Dr. Wilhelm Marx, candidate of the republican bloc, adherents of the Weimar coalition, composed of centrists, socialists, and democrats. The third candidate was Ernst Thaelmann, communist.

Engineer Would Harness Tides

Fredericton, N. B.—Dexter P. Cooper, hydraulic engineer, who has spent many years working on a super-power plan by which the tides in the Bay of Fundy would be harnessed, said here that he would present his proposals to the Dominion and provincial governments. He came here to consult Premier Venoit regarding the plan. The project would involve an estimated expenditure of $100,000,000 and result in the development of 600,000 horsepower of electrical energy.

Ford Aid Welcomed

Washington—The postoffice department will welcome any effort by Henry Ford and his associates to improve aerial transportation, Postmaster General Harry S. New has announced. New said that he would "give them all the business" possible in the transportation of mail, but that no definite proposal has as yet been received from the American Airway, Inc., the Ford organization.

Report Unfavorable To Britain

London—The League of Nations commission which has been investigating the question of future possession of the rich oil district of Mosul in Mesopotamia has completed its report which is not entirely favorable to Great Britain. The commission is a purely advisory body, and decision now rests with the league council.

Germany Builds Highest Towers

Berlin—Two broadcasting towers are now under construction in Germany that will exceed in height all others in the country. Both will be provided with elevators, and will be used as observatories as well. One, to be located in a suburb of Berlin, will be 1,049 feet high, topping the Eiffel tower at Paris.

Will Direct Ford Airline

Chicago—Maj. R. W. Schroeder, former holder of the world's altitude record, has been appointed director of the Ford Airplane Service, with headquarters at the Ford Airport, at Dearborn. He will be in charge of all flying operations for the Stout company, including the service between the Ford factories.

Associated Press Honors Founder

New York—In recognition of his 25 years' service as president of The Associated Press, or since the organization was founded in its present form, Frank B. Noyes, of the Washington Star, was honored signally at the annual meeting.

If the woman legislator, who introduced a bill to compel the landlords to provide 99-inch sheets for their guests had come out in favor of two oysters to every bowl of soup, maybe she'd have got a whole lot farther than she did.

Donald Knable, said to be from Evert Michigan, was arrested Monday on a warrant charging him with the theft of merchandise from the Welling Department store. The young man, who is about 21 years old, came here about four weeks ago and after furnishing apparently satisfactory references was given a position by Mr. Wellings. Last Monday he left town, after the loss of several items had been noted in the store. When he reappeared Sunday, an investigation of his trunk, at the boarding house where he had been staying, disclosed a considerable quantity of new wearing apparel from which the price tags had been removed.—Petoskey News.

When Charlevoix, several years ago, put its watermains across the channel, they were allowed by the government to run them 17 feet below the surface of the water. The Depletion of the water by the Chicago Drainage Canal has changed the situation considerably. In 1924 the pipes were 75 feet, 6 inches beneath the surface, but in 1925 it measures only 14 feet, 4 inches. The Iron Co., advised Charlevoix that the ore boat would have a draught of greater depth and it would require lowering the pipes. But Charlevoix stated that the government qualifications still held good and would be in effect for some time yet, so the boat was loaded to clear the pipes. Although not obliged to do so, it was stated that the pipes would be lowered shortly for their own safety.—Boysie Citizen.

Jackson—Having successfully dodged the long arm of the law for six years, Sylvester Thornburg, who escaped after being sentenced to life in Jackson prison, walked into the warden's office the other day and gave himself up. Thornburg says he has been wandering through western United States since he escaped in 1918. He recently spent a long time in Colorado, where he began to brood over the fact that he was a "hunted man." Thornburg was convicted of murder in Cass county in 1918.

Alpena—Frank Jermin, meteorologist at the local United States Weather Bureau station, is sending to Washington photographs to illustrate the spectacular drop in lake levels here during the last few days. The water has fallen to a new low level of three feet, two and one-half inches below the lowest previous mark. The photographs were taken with the view of revealing the effects of the withdrawal of lake water by the city of Chicago for sanitary purposes. Jermin has warned captains of lake vessels that sharp fluctuations in the lake levels and pronounced currents may be expected.

Scottville—Two unmasked young men staged a bold daylight robbery when they entered the Bank of Custer, three miles east of Scottville and escaped with $1,600 in cash. The teller, Edward Doe, a brother of the cashier, John O. Doe was alone in the bank when the bandits entered. One asked for change and when Doe turned the men shoved pistols through the wicket and demanded all the cash in the vault. In scooping up the cash the bandits overlooked $5,000 in Liberty bonds and securities.

Calypso started the Lystrian national anthem, a wild tune, as exciting as the Marseillaise, with something in it of the grandeur of the old Russian czarist national air. The chauffeur joined in with a kind of fierce enthusiasm. They sang the tune through to gether three or four times. Then Calypso leaned forward and laid her hand on Tommy's shoulder.

"Join in," she said. "You sing, too. Let's all sing."

She shook up Janet, who was dozing, and told her to sing.

Janet has no more ear for music than a crow has. Hymns are the only things she ever attempts to sing, and I am told that when she does the rest of the congregation suffers acutely.

It was her attempt at the Lystrian national anthem which put a stop to the singing in the end. Janet, who is quite unconscious of her infirmity, sang loud when she began to enjoy herself. She has a very powerful voice. The chauffeur must have been actually musical, more musical than either Tommy or the princess. His face twitched when Janet's high notes reached him. His steering became very erratic and once or twice he ran the car dangerously near the edge of the road. He tried to assuage his misery by sounding his horn fiercely when he knew a high note was coming in the song. I suppose this only made the discord more intolerable. At last he stopped the car, turned round, and quacked out an angry speech to the princess.

Calypso understood what he said well enough. She would probably have understood his feelings even if he had not spoken, for she was sitting beside Janet. But she was very tactful.

"Sandor says that he had better stop singing. The mountain air is bad for the voice and we shall have sore throats tomorrow if we go on."

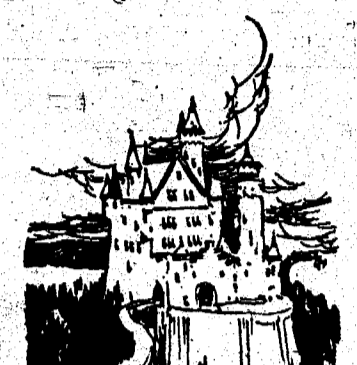

What Sandor really said was that unless the English housemaid stopped squalling he would be forced by uncontrollable emotion to stab her and throw her out of the car.

They drove on without singing for the rest of the afternoon, steadily climbing into the mountains by twisting and sometimes perilous roads. At about six o'clock they reached the highest point of a lofty pass. On each side the mountains rose to snow-capped peaks. In front the road dipped steeply into a narrow valley. Beyond the valley stood, steep and frowning, another mountain. On its side, perched on a plateau—Sandor gripped Tommy's arm and pointed forward—there, a gray pile of masonry, stood the schloss, oldest, most impressive and least comfortable of the palaces of the Lystrian kings.

The car plunged into the valley, out of the sunshine into deep shadow. Above them the schloss, with the light still bright on it, looked like a fairy palace. They crawled over a narrow bridge which crossed a foaming torrent. They began a winding ascent along a singularly stony road.

Casimir's preparations for the reception of the princess were complete. The greater part of the Lystrian army was there to greet her, drawn up on each side of the road. As the car passed the men fired their rifles into the air, each one shooting off round after round, refilling his magazine when it was exhausted. There was plenty of ammunition, which showed that some of Cable's money was wisely spent. No doubt it was his money, too, which had provided new uniforms for the whole army, not dingy khaki tunics and breeches like those worn by unimaginative soldiers of western lands, but fine blue cloaks and crimson tunics and great boots with fur tops to them and wide black trousers or short pleated petticoats like Highland Scottish kilts. Some of the men wore caps with tall green feathers in them. Some had shiny metal helmets.

ly spent. No doubt it was his money, too, which had provided new uniforms for the whole army, not dingy khaki tunics and breeches like those worn by unimaginative soldiers of western lands, but fine blue cloaks and crimson tunics and great boots with fur tops to them and wide black trousers or short pleated petticoats like Highland Scottish kilts. Some of the men wore caps with tall green feathers in them. Some had shiny metal helmets.

At the gate of the palace stood a group of the magnates of Lystria, the very least of them a count by right of four or five hundred years' descent from other counts. Perhaps half of them were Casimirs, members of one branch or other of the family of which Count Istvan was the head. They, like the soldiers, were splendidly clad. Some of Cable's money had gone in providing gold-laced coats, fur-lined cloaks and green breeches. But their jewels were their own. Blue turquoise, red garnets and green stones like emeralds shone on the gilt metal belts which held their swords, on the broad collars round their necks, on multitudinous buttons of their clothes, on tall cap badges, even on their spurs.

In the middle of the group of nobles stood the patriarch, perhaps the tallest, certainly the broadest man there. He wore a long purple cassock and a purple cape lined with white fur. Round his neck, or a heavy gold chain hung a double-armed Greek cross, thickly studded with jewels. On his head was a shiny mitre. Behind him stood four priests, white-robed, with long black silky beards. One of them held the patriarch's immense pastoral staff. Another carried a tall ebony pole with a gold star on it, a very large and splendid star with sharp pointed rays sticking out of it in all directions. The other two held aloft a kind of canopy made of embroidered silk, not unlike a huge two-handled umbrella. If they had held it, as they should, over the patriarch's head, it might have kept the dew from settling on his mitre. Held crooked, a little behind him, it served no useful purpose. But it was highly striking and ornamental.

Calypso, now at last a veritable princess, stepped from the car, paced slowly forward to where the patriarch stood while the magnates cheered wildly and the army fired its guns. The patriarch raised a plump, pudgy hand in benediction. The four priests behind him wailed a loud "Amen." The nobles shouted and the guns fired. Calypso stood erect. The patriarch, a heavy man, afflicted with rheumatism in his legs, knelt slowly and stiffly. He gravely kissed Calypso's hand.

Then one by one the nobles stepped forward, headed by Count Albert Casimir. They bent until their foreheads touched the ground and then kissed the toe of one of Calypso's boots. The patriarch was, I gathered, the only man entitled by his rank to kiss her hand. Cheers and more firing of guns greeted each act of homage. When the last was accomplished a band, set on the battlements above the gate of the schloss, began to play the national anthem, the same tune which Calypso and the chauffeur had sung in the car earlier in the afternoon. The whole mass of men, the patriarch and his priests, the nobles and the army, down to the remotest of them, shouted the song wholeheartedly. Tommy, excited by all he had seen, joined in and sang as bravely as the best. Janet Church would no doubt have sung, too, but Sandor, the chauffeur, stood beside her with the most murderous looking of his knives in his hand. He made it clear to Janet—indeed she could scarcely have mistaken his meaning—that if she attempted to sing she would immediately be killed.

When the whole ceremony was over the princess and Janet Church were led away together to the state apartments in the schloss. Count Albert Casimir conducted Tommy to the suite of rooms which had been prepared for him. Albert's English was not nearly so good as Istvan's. Indeed, he seemed to be able to say very little except "Please." He said that every time he said anything, and he always smiled in a friendly way. But language, for the simpler affairs of life, is not really necessary. Tommy understood without difficulty that the rooms were entirely for his use, that a bearded savage, who bowed to the ground every time any one looked at him, was his servant, that there was hot water for the bath, and that as soon as he was ready he could descend to—There he would have been thankful for a few intelligible words. He had to descend somewhere and supper would be waiting for him when he did, but where the place was Tommy could not make out.

Half an hour later, washed, brushed and very hungry, Tommy was led by his servant to a large stone-paved hall.

Tommy Was Led by His Servant to a Large Stone-Paved Hall.

It was an immense room with a vaulted roof, high-placed tiny windows, and a raised dais at one end. On this dais a small table was spread. Four servants stood stiffly behind the chair set for a solitary dinner. They wore dark green liveries decked with silver buttons nearly as big as half-crowns, and had silver epaulettes on their shoulders. The whole scene was strikingly medieval, and Tommy, who was fond of Scott's novels, appreciated it. There was just one jarring note. A stone-flagged vaulted hall in a medieval schloss ought to be lit with torches stuck into iron brackets on the walls, or—and even this would have been a concession to modernity—with tall wax candles in silver sconces. But King Wladislaws, who used to come to the schloss occasionally, had conceived the idea of making use of the water power supplied by the torrent in the valley. The whole castle, from turret to dungeon, was lit by electric light. Bright groups of bulbs hung from the vaulted roof of the hall. On Tommy's table stood a silk-shaded lamp, like those in use on the table in the Mascotte.

After supper, just as Tommy had lit his first cigarette, the patriarch entered the room. He came in some state, clad in his purple cassock, accompanied by Count Albert Casimir and two of the Lystrian clergy.

Tommy, rather uncertain how he ought to receive such company, laid down his cigarette, stood up and bowed. The patriarch bowed, a little stiffly. He was a portly man and had no doubt supped somewhere else. The grille of his cassock seemed a little tight for him. One of the four servants set a chair for him and he sat down. The two clergymen bowed, muttering softly as they did so. What they said may have been the Lystrian equivalent of the American "Vurry vurry glad to meet you," or they may have felt it their duty to offer a short prayer. They sat down. Count Albert clicked his heels together, bowed and saluted. Tommy failed to click his heels together, though he tried; but he managed a fair imitation of a military salute. He and Count Albert sat down. The patriarch gave an order and a servant brought a fresh bottle of wine. One of the priests drew a box of cigarettes from some pocket among the folds of his cassock and handed it round.

The business of the meeting began. Count Albert acted as interpreter. "Sprechen Sie Deutsch, please," he said.

Tommy understood that and replied emphatically that he did not.

"Francoishe?"

Tommy with an effort recognized Franzoishe as the German for French.

"Nein," he said. "That is to say Non, at least nothing worth mentioning, though of course I know a few words like petit-dejeuner, and bonjour, and l'etat c'est moi."

"Italianisch," said Count Albert, but not very hopefully.

"No," said Tommy. "I don't. Nor Spanish, Portuguese, Swedish, Russian, nor modern Greek. In fact, I may as well own up at once, that it's English or nothing with me."

It was evidently very difficult to communicate with Tommy. There was consultation in the course of which one of the priests made a suggestion which was regarded as hopeful. Count Albert turned to Tommy.

"Patriarch," he said, pointing to him. "L'ateinisch."

"All right," said Tommy. "I try. I've learned Latin of course and I need to know it quite well, but not conversationally."

The patriarch was not so fluent with his Latin as he might have been. It is the ecclesiastical language of the world, but—Well, I once knew a priest who asked whether temere in the title of the famous Ne Temere Bull was a second or a third conjugation verb. Yet that man read his breviary faithfully. There was more excuse for the patriarch than for him. The services of the Lystrian church are not said in Latin.

But even if the patriarch's Latin had been much better than it was, there would have been difficulties. Our English schools have, of late years, altered their way of pronouncing Latin. No doubt the new sounds are better than the English a's, i's, and soft c's, to which I was brought up, but we have not yet achieved the true Italian ecclesiastical whine. Tommy did not understand the patriarch, nor could he make the patriarch understand him.

"Es ist trauerlich," said Count Albert at last. "A pity, not so?"

Every one, especially the stout patriarch, was extremely good-humored, but no one knew how to say what had to be said to Tommy.

"If—Count Albert's English came very slowly. "If—here—were—Casimir Istvan Graf—Ach!"

"I say," said Tommy. "What about getting the princess to come and interpret? She knows all the languages there are."

He must have pronounced the word "princess" very badly, for no one knew what he meant.

"Calypso," he tried.

This time the patriarch understood; but he shook his head decisively. For some reason the presence of the princess was not desirable.

"Well, then, try Miss Church," said Tommy. "She knows German though she can't talk Lystrian."

"Mees Zurz?" said Count Albert doubtfully.

"Yes," said Tommy. "Miss Church; Fraulein Kirche. That is to say, if you really speak French—Mademoiselle Eglise, or—here he turned to the patriarch and spoke very clearly—"Ecclesia—Virgo Jabetta Ecclesia."

The party of Lystrians was entirely bewildered; but Tommy was not beaten yet. He took a pencil and a piece of paper from his pocket and made a rapid sketch of Janet. Tommy was no artist, and any resemblance his picture bore to Janet must have been that of a caricature. But it was instantly recognized and greeted with applauding laughter.

"Ach so," said Count Albert. And the patriarch made sounds, which are the Lystrian equivalent of "Ach so."

One of the priests was sent to fetch Janet. The patriarch ordered a fresh bottle of wine. The cigarettes were handed round and the party settled down very comfortably to wait. There was no conversation, for the Lystrians were much too well bred to talk to one another in a language which their guest did not understand. But everybody smiled amiably at everybody else.

Janet had gone to bed; but the priest who was sent to fetch her was a determined man. A quarter of an hour later he led her into the hall. She was clad in the pink dressing gown and the slippers, which she had worn when Tommy first saw her in the corridor of the Adlon hotel.

Janet was not in the least embarrassed by her costume, or by the company in which she found herself; but she was very much annoyed at being roused out of her first sleep.

"I wish to goodness," she said to Tommy, "that you'd learn enough German to be able to get on without perpetually appealing to me."

The patriarch unfortunately shared the view of Sandor, the chauffeur, that Janet was the princess' maid. He neither stood up to greet her nor invited her to sit down. This, very naturally, increased her feeling of irritation. If Tommy had not rushed off to get a chair for her, the chances of the reunion of the other Christian churches with that of Lystria would have been compromised.

The patriarch spoke to her. Janet listened for a while and then cut the poor man short in the middle of a sentence.

"He says," she told Tommy, "that he marriage is fixed for tomorrow morning."

"Marriage! The princess and I?"

"I suppose so," said Janet. "It's certainly not you and I."

"But he can't do that," said Tommy. "Marriages can't be rushed in that way. It takes a fortnight to get a license. If he calls the banns it'll take three weeks."

Janet said something to the patriarch and he replied:

"He's surprised," she said to Tommy, "to hear that you are unwilling to marry the princess."

"I'm not in the least unwilling," said Tommy. "Tell him there's nothing in the world I'd like better. Make that clear to him, will you? It's a most important point, and I don't want any misunderstanding about it."

Janet translated; but Tommy did not altogether trust her. He tried an explanation of his own in Latin.

"Jucundus et laetus ero," he said. "regiam in matrimonium ducere, any time you like."

Either Janet had translated faithfully, or the patriarch understood this Latin. He smiled benignantly.

"But," said Tommy, "or rather sedulo—Oh, look here, Miss Church, tell him that I won't have Calypso driven into marrying me, if she doesn't want to. She said in Berlin that she wouldn't marry me, and if she holds the same way still, she mustn't be bullied into it."

The patriarch explained at some length that the princess' feelings did not matter in the least. He had brought her up himself and taught her the duties of a princess. She would marry the man she was told to marry. This did not satisfy Tommy.

"Tell the patriarch," he said to Janet, "that unless the princess agrees of her own free will, I won't stir a foot in the matter."

But Janet thought the conference had lasted long enough and she was getting chilly about the legs. A stone-floored hall is apt to be draughty at night and she had no stockings on. She said good night to the patriarch and walked off to bed. Tommy was left to his own resources.

He got out his notebook and pencil again. He could not draw a picture of himself refusing the hand of an unwilling princess in the Lystrian Chapel Royal; so he wrote down a Latin sentence.—The patriarch did not understand the language as Tommy spoke it, but he must surely be able to read it.

"Nisi regina ne amat," he wrote, "nihil faciam in re."

That, if not in Ciceronian style, was a plain statement of his meaning. The patriarch understood it, smiled, and waved his pudgy hand. Then he patted Tommy on the shoulder in a most friendly and confidential manner. Count Albert attempted an explanation in English.

"That is good," he said. "Sehr gut, right. Not true? Please?"

The patriarch ordered more wine. There was much drinking of healths. Tommy's health, the patriarch's, Count Albert's, the health of each attendant priest, Calypso's (all standing), and finally Janet's. The patriarch held up Tommy's sketch of her while he drank.

The party broke up, all sober, but as Tommy said afterward, "Another bottle would have finished us."

The Patriarch Menelaus would not be happy in America. His strict views about marriage might get him into trouble with the people who appreciate the advantages of divorce.

CHAPTER XVII

Tommy slept soundly.

At six o'clock in the morning he was half wakened by the sound of a motorcycle passing close under the window of his room. He felt slightly surprised that there should be such things as motor-bicycles in Lystria. But the subject was not interesting enough to rouse him thoroughly. He slept again.

At half past eight he was wakened again, this time thoroughly, and saw Count Albert standing at his bedside. Tommy looked up and bade him a cheerful good morning. The count bowed stiffly. He held two large, leather-covered books, one under each arm. It would have been difficult for him to bow otherwise than stiffly. Behind the count, standing rigidly at attention at the door of the room, were two soldiers with long rifles on which the bayonets were fixed. This surprised Tommy a little, but he bade the soldiers a friendly good morning. He supposed that it must be the custom in Lystria to send part of the army to waken an honored guest in the morning.

Count Albert laid one of his books on Tommy's bed and began turning over the pages of the other. It was a Lystrian-English dictionary. It's compilation had been the life work of the tutor who had taught Count Istvan to read Shakespeare. It had been printed at the expense of King Wladislaws, and was that monarch's solitary contribution to the cause of literature. Ten copies in all had been published. Six of them were lost. One lay on a shelf in the palace of Count Istvan. One was in the cathedral library under the charge of the patriarch. One was kept by the head clerk of the Lystrian house of lords. The remaining one, which Count Albert was using, was in the royal schloss.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffing, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.

SULPHUR CLEARS ROUGH, RED SKIN

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, even bery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowley's Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; it can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustrous and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

PAINLEVE AGAIN PREMIER,
ORGANIZES NEW CABINET

PAUL PAINLEVE

Paris—After much urging President Doumergue obtained the consent of Paul Painleve to head a new ministry to succeed that of Edouard Herriot. This is the second time that M. Painleve has held that stormy office.

Negotiations have proceeded rapidly for the formation of the new cabinet and its completion has just been announced. Only one member of M. Herriot's cabinet remains. He is Anatole de Manzie, former finance minister.

M. Painleve himself takes the post of minister of war, as well as president of the council, while M. Briand assumed the portfolio of foreign affairs, and Joseph Caillaux, whose political career was thought to have ended when in 1920 he was sentenced to imprisonment and ordered expatriated, will have the guiding hand over France's finances.

Taxi-Plane Service Planned

San Francisco—Distances between San Francisco and other California cities are to be reduced to a minimum, insofar as time is concerned, by the establishment of the first airplane taxi service in the United States. This service has been provided for through a consolidation of the Checker Taxicab Co., of San Francisco and the airplane interests of Walter T. Varney.

Each plane will carry two passengers, a pilot and hand baggage. With two passengers flying for the same destination, the mile rate will be 20 cents, as against the 25c rate for long distance taxi service.

Bulgarian King Attacked

Sofia—Bulgarian troops were in pursuit of the bandit band, believed made up of communists, who attacked King Boris's automobile and killed two of his party as the Bulgarian ruler was returning from Orkhanie to Sofia, recently.

The attack came almost at the same time that General Kymon Gheorgid, leading government party member, was slain by two young men as he left a church in Sofia. The assassins, believed also to be communists, escaped through the crowd.

Coolidge Prunes Payroll

Washington—President Coolidge's governmental economy program, which includes weeding out unnecessary clerks in the executive departments, is going forward rapidly. More than 2,800 clerks in Washington have been dropped from the payroll. This breaks all records for discharges in a single month, with the exception of wholesale discharges immediately after the war.

Guests Routed By Flames

Washington—More than 300 guests fled to the street when fire broke out in the St. James hotel, Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Among them was a party of New York school girls visiting the capitol on an Easter holiday trip. The blaze did little damage, but produced a heavy smoke which gave it the aspect of a serious fire.

Zbyszko Regains Title

Philadelphia—Stanislaus Zbyszko, 55 years old, won the world's heavy-weight wrestling championship here when he pinned Wayne (Big) Munn, former Nebraska football star, to the mat in two straight falls. The two falls were obtained in a little over 18 minutes. This is the second time that Zbyszko has held the title.

Will Study Tax Relief

Washington—Suggestions which may be of service in removing complexities in procedure under the present income tax law will be sought by Representative Green, Republican, Iowa, chairman of the house ways and means committee, during a European tour, he announced before leaving for New York to sail for Paris.

Ship Sale is Protested

Washington—Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, has protested to the war department against the sale by the United Shipping board of the five ships of the trans-Pacific fleet to the Dollar steamship company.

Filipino Staff to Be Cut

Manila—In pursuance with a drastic policy of economy, Gov. General Leonard Wood intends weeding out all unnecessary government employees.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

KNOW YOUR TALENT

The first requisite in the life of the youthful, is to know his or her natural talent, so that it may be intelligently developed and turned to profitable account.

Find the hole in which your peg fits without wabbling and keep it there. Do not move from pillar to post in quest of another, and you will enjoy more of what makes life valuable, glad as the years swing by that you have held firmly to your original intention.

Most of the failures in this work-a-day world are due to inefficiency, caused generally by shifting from one station to another and the woeful lack of fixed effort in the pursuit of a definite course.

You never can find the port you hope to reach if you persist in sailing your ship without compass and rudder. The tides and the winds will toss your precious craft into the open jaws of destruction or hurl it high and dry on the scowling rocks from which there is no likelihood of escape.

If you have a talent for painting, see that you produce pictures of beautiful themes and attractive colors; if your hand is left in the use of tools, clasp the saw and the hammer and resolve that no one shall excel you.

You cannot overcome difficulties nor rise above the common level by lounging around in idleness, bemoaning your lot and envying the prosperous men and women climbing towards the hills.

Whether you have one talent or five talents, there is but one medium through which you can achieve work, holding steadfastly to your course and refusing to yield to discouragement.

There is in every person's life the crucial moment of choosing a permanent vocation, and when that is overcome, there remains nothing else to do but to drive straight ahead, determined to win an honorable destination.

To the men and women who are predisposed to loafing, given to stopping by the wayside to gather wild flowers when they should be tramping resolutely upon the highway, this scarcely forms an agreeable subject for meditation.

But these, as you may have already guessed, are they who have hidden their talent in a napkin and been crowded from the ranks of the successful, because of their own fickleness.

The Mode Indulges in Gay Embroidery

In regard to that all-important theme, the ensemble costume, a touch of embroidery here and there makes coat and frock akin. The handsome composite cloth model in the picture demonstrates the idea.

The designer of this charming ensemble relies on embroidery to confirm the relationship of the modish (topcoat to the frock over which it is posed).

Stylists have chosen to consider fanciful pockets as a field of special exploitation this season. Therefore the embroidered pocket which so enhances this coat expresses the last word from fashion's headquarters.

The same colorful stitchery which so distinguishes this pocket, borders the hemline of the coat, repeating its cunning colorfulness at the neckline and at every possible vantage point on the frock.

Cultivation of Soy Bean Shown

Motion Picture Gives Every Phase of Culture as Well as Utility.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A motion picture illustrating the cultivation and utilization of the soy bean has just been completed by the United States Department of Agriculture, in which the bureau of plant industry worked in co-operation with Ohio State university. This picture, entitled, "Four Men and the Soy," was at Columbus, Ohio, last September while the annual "Soy Bean day" activities of the Ohio State College of Agriculture were in progress. It is in two reels.

Four Worried Farmers.

The story of "Four Men and the Soy" concerns the troubles of four farmers who "were worried," each after his own fashion, and who found in the Soy-Bean-day demonstrations the solution of their several troubles with varieties of soy beans, early or late. The university farm at Columbus had provided soy beans in all stages, so that it was possible to demonstrate every phase of cultivation in one day. Hence the picture presents a very detailed exemplification of the stages in soy-bean culture, as well as scenes showing the utilization of soys as hay for cattle, sheep and horses, and of the seed of the soy bean oil cake as a concentrate for hogs, cattle and poultry.

Future is Bright.

The conclusion of the whole matter (to quote from the "soy-bean speech" which closes the exercises of Soy Bean day as portrayed in the film) is that the soy bean is "a crop of vast possibilities to the American farmer," and that "its growing popularity and increasing acreage justify the belief that it is destined to become one of the leading farm crops of the United States."

Control Lice and Mites

During Summer Weather

With the coming of warm weather lice and mites become a problem to the poultry flock owner because the warmer weather provides conditions more favorable for their increase. As prevention is better than a cure, the flock owner must be ever watchful for these pests.

Lice remain on the body of the bird while mites live on the underside of the roosts and in cracks and crevices about the house and their presence may be readily detected. Salt and pepper patches on the underside of the roosts or a characteristic "buggy" odor indicates mites. If taken in time and by keeping conditions about the house or coop "clean" these parasites can do but little harm.

Because of their different habits of life, mites require different treatment than lice. Cleaning the house thoroughly, spraying it, and painting the roosts and nests with a good preservative or creosote will "get" the mites. Nothing more effective or more economical than sodium fluoride could be used to rid the birds of lice. For a spray that is available, effective and economical a solution made from refuse tractor or auto crank case oil diluted with kerosene is very satisfactory.

Gauge Value of Seed by Germination and Purity

Alfalfa seed is regularly advertised in various papers which reach farm homes, at $7 to $9 a bushel. We have each year examined such seed and find that the cheapness is an illusion. By way of illustration the following details may be of interest: A sample just tested is quoted at $7 a bushel, the price actually paid for a six-pound lot was $1.25. The purity analysis on this test was 74.5 per cent, the germination test 49 per cent, hard seed 12 per cent, that is, live seed 61 per cent. The per-cent-of-pure live seed in that sample is 45.4.

A good sample of alfalfa seed should have a purity of 99 per cent or over and a live seed per cent of 95 or over, that is, a pure live seed per cent of 94. At 21 cents per pound for 61 per cent of live seed the cost of good seed is 32.30 cents per lb. Besides this we received 20,000 weed seeds with each pound, 575 of which were dodder.—Anna M. Lute, Analyst, Colorado State Seed Laboratory, Fort Collins.

Diet of Baby Chicks Is Started With Sour Milk

After delaying feeding till the chicks are at least 48 hours old, offer them a drink of sour milk. Keep them in a pen provided with scratching litter of clean alfalfa leaves. After milk has been before them two hours, feed sparingly of scratch grain consisting of six parts cracked yellow corn, two parts cracked wheat, and two parts cracked rye.

When the chicks are a week or ten days old, a mash feed should be provided in addition to the milk and scratch grain, using 30 pounds bran, 30 pounds shorts, 25 pounds yellow cornmeal, ten pounds meat meal, and five pounds bone meal. Mash may be before the chicks at all times after they are past two weeks old. Grain may also be kept before them at all times after they are three weeks old. Keep a close lookout for lice and mites. Feed carefully, provide fresh air and sunshine.

How to Get Most Value From a Good Male Bird

The male is more than half the poultry flock. An inferior hen will produce poor chicks from only her own eggs, but an inferior male will produce inferior chicks from all eggs laid by every hen in the pen, says D. J. Taylor, poultry specialist, Kansas State Agricultural college.

The selection of a male to head a flock of pullets requires a knowledge of what his ancestors did in egg production. He should be a good standard-bred male from a high-producing family. It is preferable to select a male whose mother, grandmother, great-grandmothers and older ancestors have been trap-nested and have shown a high percentage of yearly egg production records of over 200 eggs. A male having consistently high records in all ancestors with high-producing sisters is better than a male with a much higher record mother, but records of sisters and others poorer, according to Taylor.

Look to the male bird to furnish a higher degree of excellence than the females. Any improvement is largely the result of his superior qualities. Only one male need be kept to each ten or fifteen hens.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Fred Crowell and Frances Crowell, who joins both as wife and in her own right, of East Jordan, Charlevoix County, Michigan, to Amelia A. U. S. and Canada Order Survey Of St. Lawrence River Waterway Project

Washington—After negotiations of more than a year, the way has been cleared for active undertaking of the engineering survey of the St. Lawrence River deep waterway project through final agreement between the United States and Canadian governments on instructions to govern the joint engineering board's duty of the project.

The final draft of instructions to the board, made public simultaneously in Washington and Ottawa with the complete correspondence in the negotiations, showed a compromise finally was reached in the matter of water diversions to be considered in studying the power possibilities of the project.

By this the joint board is directed to consider in its study the effect of natural water levels in the St. Lawrence River of water diversions from the Great Lakes or the river made under license of either government.

Secretary Hoover, chairman of the St. Lawrence commission appointed by President Coolidge, declared the completion of the negotiations marked a decided step forward in the progress toward determination of the feasibility of the St. Lawrence project and a final solution of the problem of finding the best route from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.

Battle Lines All Ready
Honolulu—The island of Oahu, far flung western outpost of the United States and key to the nation's web of defense in the Pacific has been transformed by the Black forces, defending the islands from an attacking fleet, into a veritable armed camp, in preparation for the greatest war maneuvers ever staged.

Just as the Blue fleet, which is steaming toward the islands from the east in an attempt to recapture the island from the land forces, was traveling under war conditions as far as possible, the army shore defenses have been arranged along lines which would be drawn in defending the island against actual instead of theoretical attack.

Senator Wheeler Acquitted
Great Falls, Mont.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, was acquitted of a charge of unlawfully using his influence as a senator before the department of the interior by a jury in federal court here.

Exactly two hours and thirteen minutes elapsed between the time the jury retired to deliberate and the time the verdict was returned. Out of this time the jury took one hour to dine. The actual time for deliberation was but a few minutes, according to court attaches.

The accused received two pieces of good news simultaneously—his acquittal and the birth to Mrs. Wheeler of a daughter in Washington.

Steamer Sinks With Crew
New York—Thirty-eight Japanese seamen, the entire crew of the Japanese steel freighter Ralfuku Maru, were drowned in the raging north Atlantic seas when their ship sank as the Cunarder Tuscania and the Homeric, of the White Star line, stood by, unable to help because of the heavy seas.

British Sovereigns Return
London—King George and Queen Mary have returned from their Mediterranean cruise where they have been for the king's health. His majesty appeared bronzed and vigorous. Thousands of loyal subjects lined the streets and cheered as the king was driven from Victoria station to Buckingham palace.

THE SANDMAN STORY

THE QUARRELING BIRDS

CHIPPY and Brownie were two sparrows, and they were always looking for a chance to pick a quarrel with some other bird. It did not matter at all if it was one of their own family or a robin, Chippy and Brownie were ready to bristle their feathers and fight.

"Look over on the lower limb," said Chippy one frosty morning. "There are Mr. and Mrs. Robin. They came up too early. Old Mr. Sun fooled them when he shone so warm for a few days. Looks to me as if they were pretty cold, and I should not care at all if they got their toes frost-bitten."

It did not matter at all to Chippy Sparrow that Mr. and Mrs. Robin were hard workers and looked with sharper eyes than he did for their food. He just wanted to think of some reason for quarreling with them. So he flew nearer to the shivering pair and chirped saucily, "I guess you wish you were back in the South, don't you? We are likely to get snow, I think."

"Oh, no," answered Mrs. Robin. "I don't think we will have snow, and I am sure the sun will shine warm again in a few days."

"No it won't," said saucy Chippy; "and I don't care if it doesn't, because you will be too cold to hunt for worms. Why don't you stay down South instead of coming up here every year and eating up all of our worms?"

"Yes," chirped Brownie, who had flown beside Chippy, thinking there would be a quarrel and wishing to be in it, "why do you come up in our country and take all the worms and steal the best places for nests?"

"I am sure you do not mean what you have said," replied Mr. Robin.

"For our folks never steal nests, and as for the places to build, you sparrows like a snug place behind a blind best, I thought."

In spite of all they could say, Mr. and Mrs. Robin refused to quarrel with them. "Come down here on the ground," said Brownie, flying under the tree, "and I'll show you who is the best scrapper."

"I am sure you are," replied Mr. Robin, and he and his little mate flew away.

"Haven't got a bit of spunk," said Brownie, bristling his feathers. "I guess I could whip any robin that comes from the South."

Later, one day in summer, the sparrows were picking up crumbs under a tree in a yard where behind a bush a puss with greedy green eyes was watching her chance to spring upon them.

Up in that tree Mrs. Robin sat on her nest, and beside her son the limb sat her loving little mate.

Brownie or Chippy had no idea that puss was around, and neither had the robins until Mr. Robin saw puss creep shyly out from her hiding place. It would be of no use to chirp to the birds on the ground, so Mr. Robin, who was eating a cherry, dropped the stone, which fell right on puss's nose and made her run.

Brownie and Chippy flew up in the tree with frightened chirps, and then they saw Mr. Robin. "What made her run?" asked Chippy when he could chirp.

"I dropped a cherry stone to scare her," said Mr. Robin. "I knew there was no time to warn you. She was ready to spring."

Chippy and Brownie looked at each other, and then Brownie asked, "Did you do it to save us, Mr. Robin?"

"Of course," replied Mr. Robin. "We birds must help each other, you know. We all belong to the same family, though our feathers are different."

Brownie and Chippy sat very still for a minute, and then Chippy very meekly chirped: "I am sorry we said such saucy things to you and Mrs. Robin the other day. Your kindness today makes me very much ashamed."

Brownie chirped that he felt the same way and he hoped Mr. Robin and Mrs. Robin would forgive them.

When they had flown away Mrs. Robin said: "That was a splendid thing you did, my dear; better than quarreling with them, though I am sure you could have given both of those saucy birds a good whipping."

"They both feel worse than if I had," chirped Mr. Robin. "The one who wins in a quarrel is the one who keeps his temper, my dear." And Mrs. Robin chirped that he was right.

Natural Advantage
Medical scientists say that red-haired women suffer less from serious diseases than darker women. This is put down to the fact that the skin of red-haired people is usually quicker to function than that of other folk. In other words, it sheds poison more rapidly than a dark skin.

Dyes From Insects
Tons of dried flies, used in the packing of paints, are imported from Cuba and Mexico. They are really cochineal insects and yield scarlet and crimson-like dyes.

Inequality in Color
In the government of their East Indian possessions the Dutch have a law which provides that the testimony of one white man shall be equal to that of seven natives.

Little Change in Nature
Skeletal remains from the sand pits at Oberassel, on the north bank of the Rhine, dating about 10,000 years ago, were found to be practically modern in their formation.

Seems a Little Unfair
At the base of objection to jury service is the perhaps selfish feeling that one doesn't want to give up his time because two other persons didn't choose to behave.

Much Football Literature
Football is represented in Great Britain's periodical literature by about fifty publications, some of which are issued the year round and others during the season only.

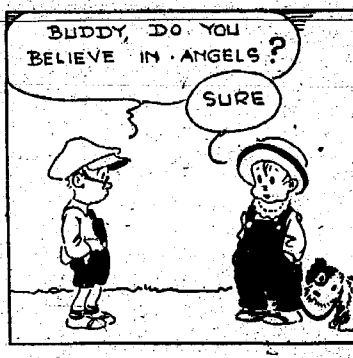

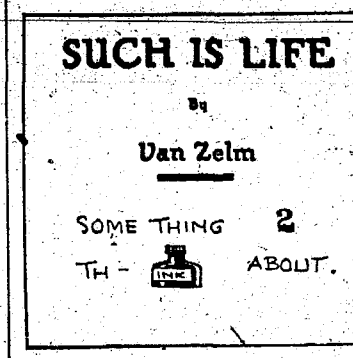

"Restoring" Made Fine Art
Professional book restorers, as a rule, are most ingenious artists, and they can produce an imitation of a page of a rare book which will deceive hundreds of collectors.

But They Never Do
A literary critic may frequently spend considerable time writing on a new book, when he might better say, "It won't be worth while to read this."—Exchange.

Tired After Eating?
Try This Simple Mixture
If you feel tired after eating, it is often a sign of gas and undigested matter in your stomach or bowels. Simple buckthorn bark, magnesium sulphate, c. p., glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, helps any case gas on the stomach, unless due to deep-seated causes. The QUICK action will surprise you. Adlerika is wonderful for constipation—it often works in one hour and never gripes.—GIDLEY & MAC, Druggists.

Red Pepper For Colds in Chest
Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.
Red Pepper Rub is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.
Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.
The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known.

The Why of Superstitions
By H. IRVING KING

CAT'S EYES AND THE TIDE
A COMMON superstition along the seacoast is that when the pupils of a cat's eyes are nearly closed it shows that it is low tide, while their widely opened condition signifies that it is high water. The Journal of the American Folk-lore Society in mentioning this superstition says: "In a case in which the pupils of a cat in a Boston barber shop were nearly closed at high water the barber, who owned the cat, explained the discrepancy by saying, 'Oh, well, she's only a kitten anyhow and couldn't be expected to know the tide like an old cat.'"

The connection between the moon-goddess, Isis, and the cat has been explained before in the course of this series and the connection between Isis and the sea has also been referred to. This inter-relationship easily explains why the waxing and waning of the pupils of a cat's eyes typifies the rising and the falling of the tides.

The connection of Isis with the sea and her special protection of mariners is not a little curious as the Egyptians were not a seafaring people. It may be, however, that the solution is to be found in the fact that the moon was considered as the source of moisture, the celestial fountain-head of all earthly waters. Was a knowledge of the influence of the moon upon the tides a part of the esoteric knowledge which the Egyptian priests possessed and gave to the people only in a mythological form? It has long been suspected that the Egyptian myths veiled real scientific knowledge.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

MARY
PARADOXICAL as it is, the sweet name of Mary means bitter. Mary is perhaps the most prevalent name of all languages, due in large degree to religious devotion to the Blessed Virgin. Indeed there are so many Marys and so many derivatives and diminutives of the name, that each one requires separate treatment and this article will be limited to the simple M-a-r-y and its English and French spellings, Maria and Marie.

The first well-known bearer of the name was the sister of Moses and Aaron, who led the sons of the Israelites when they saw their enemies dead upon the seashore. Though the most honored name among women, it is one which has caused a great deal of contention regarding its source. Some say it comes from meri—(stubbornness), others say that it is from marah (bitterness). The most poetical explanation of all is that it comes from the Latin and Teutonic, mar, meaning sea, and hence Mary is "Star of the Sea."

The first Maria was a Spanish maiden martyred by the Moors in 851. However, the Spanish Urraca was identified with Maria and this name flourishes in Spanish name history and ballad literature. The Infanta Dena Urraca, or Maria, was prevented from becoming Queen of France because of the uncouth sound of her name Urraca, whereas, if she had lived a century later, she might have been called Queen Marie. Other famous Marias were Maria of Antioch, wife of Emperor Manuel; Maria, wife of the Marquis of Montferat; Marie, daughter of Louis VII; Marie, translator of Breton legends for Henry III, and Marie, daughter of Edward I. The actual name of Mary comes through the French and is from the Blessed Virgin.

Mary's jewel is the moonstone, whose mystic qualities are most appropriate, as well as its close association with Heaven, reflecting as it does, the waxing of the moon. Mary's lucky day is most fittingly the seventh day, Sunday, and 8 is her lucky number.

AS TO WORK
HARD work however hard, won't kill a man. If he shall mix some play with it, and plan with effort true to keep all dulling rust out. And with good hearty laughter shake the dust out.
