K. P. Convention At East Jordan

District League Accepts Local Lodge Invitation.

The annual meet of the Northern Michigan Pythian League was held at Manistee, Tuesday of this week. Over 150 delegates were in attendance. Those who represented South Lake Lodge No. 180, Knights of Pythias were as follows:—C. H. Whittington, C. A. Hudson, Ervan Hiatt, Walter Davis, Clarence Bowman, H. Rosenthal, Ole Hegerberg, Barney Millstein, Robert Atkinson, Orrin Bartlett and Glenn Bulow.

Charlevoix Lodge Third Degree Team won the cup in presenting Third Rank work.

Upon invitation of South Lake Lodge No. 180 of this city, the Convention voted to make East Jordan their next meeting place—in May 1926.

Glenn Bulow of East Jordan was elected President of the District League.

High Honors In State Contest

Local Commercial Department Compares With Best at Kalamazoo.

The local Commercial teacher, Miss Filkins, and two of her students, the Misses Sidebotham and Kile, were sent to the annual State Typewriting and Shorthand Contest held at Kalamazoo, where they won a high place for the East Jordan High School, the highest place in typewriting and shorthand that ever has been won for the school, Miss Sidebotham taking second place and a fine medal in first year typewriting and Miss Kile with one error in her shorthand notes followed three people who went through without an error, so that without doubt Miss Kile is somewhere in the first six or seven places.

Considering a second and a high place for the other girl East Jordan was one of the State's strongest contenders for such schools as Traverse City and other schools even larger like Lansing, got either no place at all or but one in the first seven or eight with one contestant, so the local school, Miss Filkins, and the girls are to be congratulated on their magnificent showing at the State Contest. Miss Sidebotham in typewriting lost first place by but .5 of a point so that we certainly came near the top and we hope next year to be even more active in the running. It is a distinct honor that comes to the High School at a very appropriate time.

We are sorry to lose Miss Filkins whose record as a Commercial teacher has been an enviable one. We also wish that the two girls in this year's State Contest were back with us another year.

Holland—At the request of the Holland Game and Fish Protective Association, two State chemists have arrived here to examine the water of Black Lake. The association charges that certain factories dump chemical waste and other refuse into the lake making it an uninhabitable place for fish.

Wyandotte—The new charter which will be presented to the city of Wyandotte by its charter commission will provide for government by a mayor and six commissioners and mayor as at present. A proposal to return to the old aldermanic form of government and another to inaugurate a form of the city manager plan of government have been defeated.

Port Huron—Those Detroiters who have been making merry in past seasons during the week end at Fair Haven and other county resorts, will miss their Sunday dancing this year. Sheriff D. Turbin announced that Sunday dancing in St. Clair county is under the ban. Proprietors of dance halls who attempt to operate on Sunday will be arrested, the official stated.

Paw Paw—Charles Langdon, 16-year-old schoolboy, who, according to Sheriff Glenn Weaver, admits shooting in Mat Edgottch, a farmer near Decatur, with the object of robbery, was bound over to Circuit Court by Justice W. A. Prater, following his arraignment on a charge of intent to commit homicide. Edgottch is suffering from the effects of a .22-caliber bullet in his skull.

Memorial Sunday at the M. E. Church

The annual Memorial Sunday observance will be held at the M. E. Church, Sunday morning, May 24th, commencing at 10:00 a. m. standard. Rev. Henry Hiles, the pastor, who served over-seas in the Canadian Army, will deliver the address. This is a union service among our churches.

Members of the American Legion and other late war ex-service men will meet at the Legion rooms, corner Main and State Streets, at 9:30 a. m. They will march to the G. A. R. Hall on State Street, where they will be joined by the remaining Civil War veterans, the W. R. C. and the Boy Scout Bugle Corps. From there they will march to the M. E. Church.

H. S. Band to Make Debut

Have Been Asked To Appear In Memorial Day Parade.

East Jordan's embryo High School Concert Band will make its debut Decoration Day when it leads the High School parade on that occasion. You understand that Band Master, John Ter Wee, can do a good deal with a band, but he has had the boys about three months and bands are not made in that time. In fact, it would be fairer to say that three years are required to make a band rather than a matter of months. However, the boys are anxious to do what they can so they are asked to lead the parade Decoration Day, notwithstanding they are hardly prepared to do what is expected, of them a little later on. At the same time, knowing the boys and Mr. Ter Wee as we do, we know they will come up to expectations for so short a training.

Hence, the public we are sure will be generous in their attitude toward the coming High School musicians.

Meguzee at Harbor Springs

East Jordan Sends Large Delegation To Annual Event.

Nearly three hundred delegates were present at the annual convention of the Meguzee Association, Order Eastern Star, held at Harbor Springs last Wednesday and Thursday. Some forty delegates from East Jordan, headed by Grand Warden, Mrs. Violet Parks; and Meguzee Association President, Mrs. Gladys Bechtold, were in attendance.

A most excellent two-days' meet was held. A number of the State grand officers were present. The Convention voted to meet with the Mancelona Chapter in 1926.

At the Thursday morning session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President—Mrs. Nettie Grayson of Pellston.
First Vice President—Mrs. Glendora Williams of Mancelona.
Second Vice President—Herbert Sullivan of Mancelona.
Secretary—Mrs. Gertrude Ellis of Petoskey.
Treasurer—Mrs. Stella Voorheis, Harbor Springs.
Member of the executive committee for three years—Mrs. Gladys Bechtold of East Jordan.

Somebody said the other day that you cannot fight the devil with cream-puffs. Well, we have seen some that would have given him a good time.

Annual Junior Dance Was Brilliant Affair

The premier event of the East Jordan High School social year took place last Friday evening, when the Junior Class gave their annual dinner dance. The J-Hop is always looked forward to with a great deal of interest, for the elaborate and entertaining scale on which it is produced, has become a tradition. The banquet this year was even better than other years, if such a thing is possible.

At six-thirty the grand march began from the north hall, through the auditorium to the gymnasium. It was led by Eva McBride, President of the Junior Class, and her guest Lemuel Rogers. Under the skilled direction of Ardith Richardson the banquet hall was elaborately festooned in rose and grey. The colored streamers were arranged to form a booth for each table. Dinner was served at tables of four. The cleverly concocted rose-bud favors added a finishing touch to each table. The menu could not have been improved upon. Who could wish for or have thought up any better course than this?

Fruit Cocktail
Parker House Rolls
Pressed Chicken
Creamed Peas in Timbrels
Creamed Potatoes
Angel Food Cake
Coffee

The banquet was efficiently served by girls from the Domestic Arts Dept. There were no bitches or waits and the mothers who planned and prepared the meal under the direction of Miss Helen Bardwell, Domestic Arts teacher, certainly succeeded in their endeavor.

The dinner was served in three course and between courses the guests engaged in dancing. When all had finished eating, the tables were dissembled and the dancing began in earnest.

MUSIC

Music was furnished by Schram's Ramblers. They were in fine fettle, for everyone commented on the excellent music. And what else could there be but satisfaction in gliding along with your best girl to the strains of Where's My Sweetie Hiding? At 11:30 that old familiar tune of Home Sweet Home were heard, and never had a party seem so short.

SPECIAL MENTION

Special mention should be made of the efforts of Miss Margery Mackey, chairman of the Banquet Committee, Miss Annabel Filkins, class advisor and Mrs. Roscoe Mackey, who directed the preparation of the dinner. All members of the Junior Class are to be congratulated on the excellent results of their united efforts.

Forest Fires Near Springvale

Blaze Breaks Out There Friday and Does Damage.

Forest fires threatened Springvale Friday afternoon but hard work at back firing by a large crew of men and by the wood cutters halted the fire about a half mile from the stores and village.

It was first broke out last Tuesday but was believed to have been checked. It broke out again Friday morning, however, and burned fiercely. Several small homes for the wood cutters were burned as was one barn. The woods crew were forced to flee to the burned over area from Tuesday's fire.

Back firing operations were opened Friday along the main highway and the advance of the flames was finally halted within a short distance of the village.

In addition to the small homes there was destroyed about seven hundred cords of wood belonging to the Michigan Iron and Chemical company, of East Jordan.

Iron Mountain—Aldermen who play hockey from council meetings will have to report armed with a good excuse for their absence or else suffer the loss of their seats, according to the terms of an ordinance passed by the council. Under the terms of the new measure, aldermen who miss two meetings in succession must account for their absence or be removed from office. The ordinance requires that the city clerk notify any councilman who has been absent two consecutive meetings by registered mail.

Old, decrepit Ty Cobb knocked five home runs in two days last week. Poor old Ty! He's going back too fast!

Memorial Day Proclamation

Governor Groesbeck Urge Citizens To Observe The Day.

The march of the Grand Army of the Republic is nearly over. The vast and sturdy ranks of a generation ago have dwindled to a hazy line of aged but exalted veterans. Time was when men from their own ranks decorated the graves of their fallen comrades and glorified the deeds of living warriors. This duty has now fallen upon the citizens of a grateful republic. Once each year as long as this, the happiest, mightiest and most righteous of all nations endures, we will be called upon to honor not only the valor of veterans of the Civil War, but to pay homage to soldiers of all other conflicts of the nation. In peace with all the world, our tribute to the honored dead and the surviving veterans who made our happiness possible should this year be more impressive than ever before.

Therefore, I, Alex. J. Groesbeck, as Governor of Michigan, proclaim and urge a proper observance of Saturday, May 30, 1925 as Memorial Day.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this thirteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five, and of the Commonwealth the eighty-ninth.

ALEX. J. GROESBECK
Governor.

New Auto Law Now In Effect

Dimming Is Now Demanded Of All Drivers. Severe Penalties Provided.

A number of very important changes in the Michigan laws governing the operation of automobiles, trucks, tractors etc., have now become effective and the state department announces that immediate steps to enforce them are to be taken.

For the first time a positive dimming law is on the statute books. It stipulates that drivers shall dim not more than 600 feet away from an approaching car, unless their lights are of a non-glaring variety.

Cut-outs and exhaust whistles hereafter are banned. The law specifically states that cut-outs are not permitted.

The general passenger car law relative to lights—two headlights in front and one tail light—in unchanged, but a new clause was added making it mandatory for drivers to have the required number of lights functioning. Failure to have a vehicle properly lighted now can be termed reckless driving and a driver's license may be suspended for violation.

A radical change in the lighting system for busses and trucks is prescribed. Trucks weighing more than two tons and passenger busses must have in addition to the regular lighting equipment three green lights in front, at the top of the windshield, and three green lights at the point of greatest visibility in the rear. The idea of this section is to give passenger car drivers warning when approaching a large commercial vehicle. Owners, as well as operators, of commercial vehicles, are held liable.

The new law provides distinctive license plates for commercial vehicles. Inasmuch as plates already have been issued for 1925 this section will not be enforced until 1926.

Commercial vehicles, including passenger carriers, must be equipped with speedometers, so that state inspectors can more readily check their speed.

Dealers no longer are required to transfer license plates when a car is taken in. The transfer now will be direct to the purchaser of the car.

Severe penalties for violations of any section of the acts are prescribed. First offenders are subject to a $25 fine and 10 days imprisonment, second offense, $50 and 30 days, third offense $100 and 60 days.

According to the secretary of state immediate steps to enforce the new statute are to be taken.

Wonder if in a hundred and fifty years from now they will be celebrating the ride of Mr. Dawes?

What has become of the old-fashioned family who counted it the height of luxury to take in a traveling tent show a couple times during summer season.

Memorial Day

Another Memorial Day approaches and with it will be revived the sense of gratitude we owe the heroic defenders of this nation, who in every crisis have been willing to offer themselves upon the altar of liberty. Every surviving member of that titanic conflict between the states has now passed the allotted three score years and ten and it will be with feeble and tottering steps that they hear the bugle call and fall once more into marching line. It is a sight we will not witness many more times, so while they are still with us let us turn reverently aside and assist in paying them the honor, love and fidelity that is theirs. This year let us take the burden of observing Memorial Day from their shoulder and as true children of the Republic kneel to kiss the hem of their garments for the glory that they wrote eternal in the stars.

Programs From Bay View On Air

Programs from the Bay View summer assembly are to be broadcast by Petoskey radio station WBBP, according to arrangements now underway between the Petoskey broadcasting committee and the committee from the Bay View board of trustees. The matter was presented to the board by Karl S. Bowman, Petoskey committee member and announcer. A committee consisting of C. W. Fallas and F. O. Durfee was named from the board to work with the Petoskey radio committee in arranging for the broadcasting throughout the summer. A member of the board said that he believed such broadcasting of the programs would prove of great value in advertising Bay View and would afford much pleasure and entertainment for northern radio fans.—Petoskey News.

It Should Pay Three Men

One merchant said the other day that "advertising pays—the newspaper man." He spoke the truth as far as he went. He should have considered the matter further. Advertising to pay should pay three people, the advertiser the publisher and the public. If it fails to do this there is something wrong besides the medium used for publicity. There are merchants who believe that advertising is a magic scheme to work off out of season merchandise or shoddy goods at cheap prices. That kind of advertising may pay the publisher but it will not pay in the long run because it does not pay the public that buys. When a real advertiser uses printer's ink the first thing for him to do is to show a profit to the reader, the purchaser. The chances are about ten to one that if you have something to sell at a price that will pay the buyer the money that you spend with this newspaper will prove a handsome investment. Conversely, the same ratio holds in the event that you are using this modern selling force as a lever to palm off on the buyer something that you can't otherwise dispose of. The chances are ten to one that you will lose your money, and the publisher will be hounded by an irate merchant, a man who has no faith in advertising. It is remarkable that the man who succeeds in advertising is the man who takes care of the buying public, and tells them about it. If you don't believe this try it.

Modern Girl Is All Right

The stress of war hastened the growing freedom of women and girls. In the day of national necessity, when men were fighting and women did men's work, there was little talk about its effects upon them. Truth is the modern girl is franker, bolder, more reckless and less shackled by what people say. Naturally, there are individuals who have been badly damaged by their inability to stand the strain. But, at heart, they would be evil at all times; they would only lack opportunity to express themselves. By giving women an opportunity to do what they wish society runs a risk which will certainly cause many to fall. Many men have fallen before them. But, at the same time, society affords to most of them an opportunity to build characters that are stronger, resolutions that are more enduring and a purity that is real. The silly talk about nose-powdering, face painting and cigarette smoking is bunk. If a girl wishes to do these things it is her privilege, and for one we are willing for her to suit her fancy. To say that either, or all of them are evidences of a depraved femininity is as senseless as to accuse a man of burglary because he smokes a pipe, matches for milk-shakes or speculates in land.

Billboards Must Go, Federation of Arts Vows at Convention

Cleveland, May 15—In its battle to "beautify America" the American Federation of Arts in annual convention here Thursday declared war on billboards and made it clear it would not be content until every billboard had been wiped out. Its first attack will be in the rural districts. Samuel N. Holliday, representative of the Poster Advertising Ass'n, in defending billboards, ran into stiff opposition from other speakers. A. W. Crawford of Philadelphia denied poster advertising was not even commercially profitable, declaring only 1 per cent of all advertising gets onto billboards.

Mob Wrong as Usual

Several weeks ago the news dispatches told us of armed men searching for an alleged kidnapper of a young girl. The posses were armed for the purpose of shooting to kill if they ran across the kidnapper. Now, the news is that the kidnapper "was doing what he thought was best for the child," who swears that her father's threat to kill her caused her to beg the man to take her away. Physicians corroborated the fact that the man had not harmed the girl while in his company. Feeling in the Vermont community has changed. There is no resentment to give birth to mob law and lynching. The story merely illustrates again the importance of permitting the law to punish offenders against the law. It is the age-old argument against mobs and lynch law.

Come Back to Erin

You remember the old song? Somehow it always struck a responsive chord, did it not, as you visualized the homesick wanderer longing to return to the land of his nativity. The same song is being sung today, only it is "Come Back to the Farm," where thousands of empty homes await the wanderer's return. All over Michigan, along almost every country lane, stands the home that once sheltered the boys and girls who were lured away by the city's bid of gold and lights. The hey-days of the crowded centers have passed for the present; instead of easy money, at an easy job, life has become a tragedy to eke out a bare existence. Why don't you boys and girls come back? It is the springtime of the year and the old familiar places are beckoning to you. There is plenty of work in almost every neighborhood and instead of being forever haunted by the gaunt spectre of poverty, you will find plenty and enough for all. Come back and repair the old church of your forefathers; help build up the district school where your children will have the same opportunity that you did to learn the re-values of life, and where they can have the sunshine and flowers that God intended should be their heritage. You will have the church, the school, the radio, the telephone and the rucarrier for your comfort. "Come Back to Erin, my Mavourneen, my Mavourneen."

Disease Hits Clover From Imported Seed

Further evidence of the superiority of home grown clover seed over stocks imported from southern European countries is shown this spring in the extensive experimental plots of the farm crops department at the Michigan State College. Disease is causing heavy loss in the plots shown to seed from Italy and other southern European countries, while the native seed stocks have produced crops which are coming through relatively clean. These plots were sown during the spring of 1924, during which season more than 24 million lbs. of clover seed were imported into the United States, approximately three-fourths of which came from Italy and France, according to Prof. C. R. Megee, associate professor of the farm crops at M. A. C. "The cold, dry weather experienced so far this spring is not particularly favorable to the spread of such diseases as anthracnose," says professor Megee. "Nevertheless, the seed imported from Italy and other southern European countries, due to its very high susceptibility, has been greatly injured by this disease of our trial plots. "In order to insure healthy, vigorous stand of red clover, only home-grown seed should be sown."

Memorial Day Approaches

Local American Legion Post To Help Observance.

Memorial Day—it is nearly here, and it's one of the finest and noblest of all holidays in any nation. Yet, how many know its origin and its meaning? Commander William Murphy of the Rebec-Sweet Post of the American Legion here, today just gave a brief outline of the day's history and its present significance. The Post is planning to co-operate with other organizations for a proper observance of the day. "Memorial Day," said the Legion leader, "was originally instituted by Gen. John A. Logan, the first national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. By a general order he set aside May 30, 1868 as a day for decorating the graves of the men who had fought in the Armies and the Navies of the nation in the Civil War. "The day has been faithfully carried on by the boys of '61 from that day to this. It is a legal holiday of all. Its observance in a manner to honor and respect the dead is something which the American Legion pledges itself to 'carry on' as the natural heir of the G. A. R. "The G. A. R. and the Legion are alike in the fundamental rule that every veteran who fought with other colors—regardless of rank or type or the location of his service—is entitled to equal comradeship with every other man who served with the colors. There are no restrictions which would limit the membership or influence. It is thus that President Coolidge in his inaugural address to Congress specifically referred to the Legion as the most representative veteran organization growing out of the Great War. The Legion is the largest veterans' organization in all history. "We shall be glad to take up the burden where the G. A. R. left off. This day of patriotism must be forever maintained at our meeting, which takes place Monday evening, May 25th, above Miles Battery Shop, we invite all veterans of the World War to gather with us and plan for the proper and respectful observance of this day."

Business Prospects

Following a survey made of ten thousand of the leading industrial institutions of the country, the statement is made that business prospects for the summer are healthier and on a more stable basis than they have been since the close of the war. The survey, which covered practically every industry, revealed that production is at a healthy glow, wages are on the gain, with gradually reducing prices. Price variations are less severe than a year ago and the country is entering a period of purchasing, not of boom proportions, but of that steady persistence that gives basis for unusual confidence.

Boys Invited To Attend Training Camp

Superintendent of Schools A. J. Duncanson has received an invitation from William McAndrew, Chicago's Superintendent of Schools, for boys from East Jordan to attend the educational training camp which will be held under government supervision on the Fort Sheridan Military reservation this summer. Major F. L. Beals, U. S. A., who will again command Camp Roosevelt, has announced that Secretary of War, Weeks, has authorized the use of the Fort Sheridan military reservation as a campsite and summer school for boys 12 to 16 years of age. "We have now reached the point where we can operate on a basis of a little more than $1.00 a day," said Major Beals in his office today, "and because of this low cost, we hope to interest as many boys as possible, in order that they may derive the full benefits of a stay at the camp." The Chicago Board of Education assumes the responsibility, under government supervision, for the conduct of the camp. The splendid facilities which the army post at Fort Sheridan affords will be placed at the disposal of students attending camp. The program includes, in addition to the summer school course, a well prepared schedule of drills, athletics, swimming, horsemanship, target practice and long range firing, in fact, all of the wholesome outdoor sports which boys love. The camp will open June 29 and close on August 15, and applications will be accepted in the Headquarters office at the Chicago Board of Education, 480 South State Street, until the quota has been filled. Any fool can yell "fire," but it takes water to put out the blaze. Police in Detroit raided a factory where thousands of labels for rare old whiskies and wines were being printed. Scientists engaged in increasing the longevity quit when they hear that piece of news.

Rube Marquard Well Seasoned

Rube Marquard, now pitching for the Boston Braves, has been long in the game, at times with the Glants, Cincinnati Reds and the Brooklyn. In fact, he has been in 18 seasons in the National league, and no other pitcher in the league saw him come in, though many have come in and gone out since then.

"AMBITION" is a word which we have inherited from the old Roman custom of a candidate who was seeking office. It comes from the word "ambio," which means "to go around." The correct pronunciation is "am-bish-un" with accent on the second syllable.

THE PRIZE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IF YOU will conquer life, if you will live it as you long to do, Depends not only on the man But on the purpose, on the plan, The dream with which your life began.

For I have seen that those who fail, Whose hearts are empty, lives are stale, Failed not because life never brought The thing they wished for, thing they sought— They found it was not what they thought.

They won—but when they seized the prize It faded there before their eyes It was a tinsel thing, not worth The brotherhood, the love, the mirth, That they had paid for it on earth.

The worthless things, I found, were these: Mere opulence, mere empty ease. For, when that opulence had come, It was not worth one-half the sum That they had paid for every crumb.

But they who this their pray'r had made: The chance to labor at their trade, To fashion things they loved to make, Who labored for the labor's sake, Not merely ease to overtake—

These were the happy, these content, Whatever way their fortunes went; Because they did not wait until Senility, the final hill, To find their joy—for no one will.

Our joy is all around us, now; The bird is singing o'er the plow, The busy spindle hums a song— Oh, he who waits for joy is wrong. For there is laughter all along!

A well done task, a well made thing, These are the joys to make us sing. The laurel wreath is often late, And fortune fickle as our fate— But for our joy we need not wait.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

VICTORIA

THE regal name Victoria has a fitting origin since it comes from the Latin vinco, meaning to conquer.

Vincentus was an early masculine name borne by two characters of the Tenth Persecution, and later by one of the great ecclesiastical authors at Lerius in Provence. Vincente de St. Paul added honors to the name, but it was victor, the past participle, which gave rise to Vittore in Italy.

The first Victoria was a Roman virgin martyred in the Mexican persecution, from whose name came the Italian Vittoria, borne by the admirable daughter of the colonel from whom France and Germany seem to have learned it, since after her time, "Victoire and Victorine became common in France.

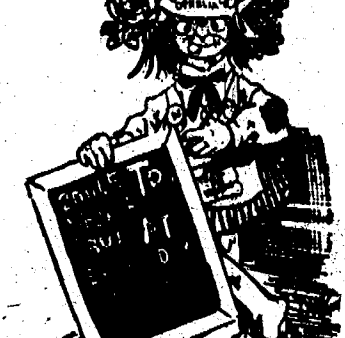

It is fitting that the ruby, king of precious stones, should be the jewel assigned as Victoria's own. Its inextinguishable flame, as suggested by its color, asserts that its inner fire cannot be quenched. It is said to preserve the mental and bodily health of its wearer, remove evil thoughts, control high temper, reconcile disputes and dispel pestilential infection. To dream of rubies signifies unexpected guests.

Friday is Victoria's lucky day, and three her lucky number.

Wordsworth translated from the Italian of Michaelangelo a charming poem to Vittoria:

Yes, hope may with my strong desire keep pace, And I be undaunted, unbetrayed; For if of our affections none find grace In sight of Heaven, then wherefore hath God made The world which we inhabit? Better dies Love cannot have, than that in loving thee Glory to that Eternal Peace is laid, Who such divinity to these imparts As halloos and makes pure all gentle hearts.

Fewer Hogs—Prices Going Up

EXPERIENCED hog breeders and buyers believe the period of excessive shipments and low prices for hogs will be followed by a period of a lowered production and higher prices, according to reports received by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute.

For every ten hogs grown in 1923 only eight were grown in 1924. A careful survey over the hog belt further shows a 15 to 20 per cent reduction in the coming spring pig crop as compared with last year's short pig crop. This actual shortage on farms will naturally result in a lowering of shipments to markets and higher prices.

Exactly when this lowered pork supply will be felt is not certain, but it is expected during the early part of the year. Recently prices have averaged from $2.00 to $2.50 per 100 pounds higher to the producer than last winter. When the 1923 pig crop was marketed the average price of hogs at Chicago was $7.05. The corn situation and short hog supply is expected to drive prices up to more profitable levels for the producer.

No signs are visible for a falling off in the demand for hogs during 1925. If pork consumption holds up and if there follows a normal corn crop in 1925, hog feeding this year promises to be far more profitable than it has been for some time.

These are the days when the suburban gardener wonders why his three inch plants are not loaded with vegetables.

WORLD WAR GENERAL CLAIMED BY DEATH

Paris—Gen. Charles Mangin, who commanded the combined French-American army in the battle of the Somme, died here from a sudden attack of uremia and acute appendicitis.

GEN. CHARLES MANGIN

General Mangin was one of the famous generals of the World War. He was decorated by the American government for distinguished service. He commanded the Tenth French Army, including the American First Division at Cantigny and the First and Second Divisions at Soissons during the famous July 18th drive.

President Appoints Judge

Washington, D. C.—President Coolidge has announced that he had appointed Fred M. Raymond of Grand Rapids, Mich., to be United States district judge for the western district of Michigan. The announcement brought to an end an uncertainty that has existed for several months. Congress in its last session passed an act authorizing the appointment of a second judge in the western district and making provision that whenever Judge Sessions should resign or die no one should be appointed in his place.

Fort Huron—A receiver cartridge, which had been thrown into the road, was accidentally exploded here by the wheel of a truck. The bullet crashed through a window of the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ashpole. No one was injured.

Lansing—Arbor Day was observed more generally in Michigan this year than ever before, thanks to the gospel spread by the conservationists. Thousands of trees were planted on the premises of school and along highways, in all parts of the state.

Reed City—Reed City definitely has entered the race for the northwestern normal school. Committees have been appointed, options of desirable locations have been secured and every means will be taken to gain the attention of the authorities to get the location here.

Ypsilanti—One thousand more teachers are being graduated from the various normals and colleges of Michigan than can be placed in positions in the state, said Dimon H. Roberts, superintendent of the training school at the Michigan State Normal College here, in an address to the students of the college.

Saginaw—Michigan Council of the Parent-Teacher Association, in annual convention here, if on record for the high school fraternity bill passed by the last legislature and which awaits the governor's signature. The bill provides students may be barred from classes if they join fraternities. About 1,500 persons are attending the convention.

Grand Rapids—The Michigan Retail Jewellers Association, which at the closing session of its annual convention here, became affiliated with the Michigan Retailers Council, elect J. H. Garlick, Detroit, as president. Detroit pressed an invitation for the 1926 convention, but the city will not be selected by the board of directors until early next year.

Kalamazoo—Armed with picks, axes and shovels, 70 of Kalamazoo's leading clubmen, invaded the Bow District along the river front to help clear away rubbish and undergrowth. The "bee" was the first step toward conversion of the unsightly "jungles district" into a city park, the 100-acre tract having been purchased a year ago by the city commission for $50,000.

Detroit—Harry S. Cole, clerk of the Wayne Circuit Court, who was suspended by the judges of the court for insubordination, in refusing to carry out orders for assignment of cases, was asked to hand in his resignation, Judge Adolph F. Marschner, presiding judge, said. If he fails to resign, Cole's dismissal will be asked of Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck, Judge Marschner said.

Owosso—Owosso policemen, before long, expect to win the reputation for having the neatest appearance of any guardians of the law in Michigan. Police Chief Earl Whitehorse, who took over that office a few days ago, issued his first written order to members of the force. It reads: "Hereafter every police officer in Owosso will at all times have his uniform pressed, his shoes shined, and be cleanly shaved."

Lansing—Marie Theresa Corby, child heir-apparent to the estate of Thomas W. Corby, won the first round of her fight to keep Corby's nephews and nieces from appropriating the estate when the Supreme Court ruled that she was entitled to name her own administrator. The case was brought here when Corby's nephews and nieces appealed from a Wayne Circuit Court decision whereby the Security Trust Co. was named administrator.

Mt. Clemens—William Watkins, inspector of State Police in Macomb and St. Clair counties, and one of the State's principal witnesses in the grand jury investigation of charges of graft in Mt. Clemens police court circles, was waylaid and shot at by six unidentified men. He was driving to his home in New Baltimore, when he was attacked. Three shots were fired. One went wild and the others penetrated his automobile. One lodged in the car's frame on a level with his head.

Benton Harbor—Berrien County uplashed color all over the map of Michigan when it staged its Blossom Festival. More than 50 floats, many of them buried in blossoms, symbolized the fertility of the Michigan county which is beaten in output only by three states in the Union. The trio which must marshal a whole commonwealth's resources to pass Berrien are Florida and California, with their enormous yield of citrus fruits, and New York, famous for apples and grapes. Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, twin cities, joined hands in staging the spectacle.

Cadillac—The village of Sherman, the first county seat of Wexford county, may soon lose its postoffice unless some one is willing to take the job of postmaster. The present incumbent is a woman, Mrs. S. B. Niswander, who has resigned, as there is not enough money in the office. Sherman, at one time, was a thriving lumber village, but with the passing of that industry the town began to retrograde, this being hastened by the removal of the county seat to Manton and later to Cadillac.

A report to John Baird, director of the department of conservation, declares that the "mysterious disease" reported to be ravaging partridge last fall is a myth. "FRENCH LEAVE"
Eighteenth century books of French etiquette warned the social struggler against taking formal leave of his host or hostess. The guest who enjoyed the party wasn't supposed to stick around for the final handshaking. Only those who wished to register complaints remained. Consequently, taking "French leave" came to mean a hurried departure. "French leave" today is usually taken by cooks, second-story men and unwary politicians.

Classic Wedding Gown of Ivory Satin

Whatever the pretty vagaries of the season may develop in wedding gowns, for June brides, nothing will ever outclass the dignified gown of ivory or white satin. The bride may wear it with the same assurance that she feels when she puts on the veil that served her mother or her grandmother or may have descended upon the brides of a family for generations. The gown shown here is nearly straight in lines, showing just a vague following of the figure, and is finished at the bottom with a band of lace bordered by rows of pearl beads. A lace bordered veil accompanies it. Fashion leans toward georgette in gowns for brides and their maids and reveals a preference for lace in combination with georgette or satin. Pearl beads in trimmings and in headresses are an approved style feature of the season.

The Department of Agriculture says the most reliable way to determine the age of deer is by the teeth. They get their permanent teeth around the age of three and these gradually wear off with age. ## HOW YOUR BANK SERVES YOU

Checks

WHEN you have a check on a bank in another state your bank cashes it or allows you to draw against it in your account.

But this check is not cash. It is only a promise to pay and from one to two weeks must elapse before the bank can collect the money. In the meantime your bank loses the interest on the money you get for the check.

This is a banking cost that runs into many dollars annually. And it is a type of service that is deserving of your support.

CHAPTER XIX

I did not enjoy the first part of the journey to Lystria, for I was left almost entirely alone. That is always disagreeable to me, for I am a man of sociable disposition with a very strongly formed habit of conversation. I could not blame Norheys and his wife for deserting us. They were on a honeymoon and it was natural enough that they should shut themselves up together in their own compartment. I did not see them, except at meals in the restaurant car. Troyte and Cable ignored me. Cable resented my being with the party at all and kept Troyte to himself in another compartment on pretense of talking business. They could not talk business in any useful way because they did not know what had happened in Lystria. All they could do was to speculate, and I might have been useful to them there. In fact, my guess about Emily's curate was the only good guess any of them made.

Casimir, Count Istvan, who lives somewhere in that neighborhood, got into the train at Charlottenberg station, just outside Berlin. King Wladislaws joined us at the Friedrichstrasse station farther on. There is not enough room for four people to be comfortable in a wagon-lit's compartment, so Cable, who does not care what he spends, engaged an ordinary first-class compartment farther down the train. There the four, Troyte, Cable, Casimir and the king, settled down. I was not invited to join the party. Neither the king nor Casimir could cross the frontier into Megalia, but they were willing to go as far as Breslau and tell all they knew about what had happened. Unfortunately, they did not know very much. Casimir explained that he had all along believed Tommy to be the Lord Norheys. He had regarded the "Reverend Thomas A. Norreys" passport as a clever trick intended to deceive Von Steingveidt and the Germans while conveying to him the news that Lord Norheys had arrived in Berlin. That would have been an ingenious plan, much more ingenious than anything Troyte or Cable had thought of. It did make Casimir certain that Lord Norheys had arrived. It would, apparently, have deceived Von Steingveidt and his police if their suspicions had not been awakened by what happened in the Mascotte the night after Tommy's arrival. Von Steingveidt heard all about that from one of his spy waiters.

The king also believed that Tommy was Lord Norheys; but he understood the passport differently. His view was that Norheys pretended to be a curate in order to clear himself of the charge of being entangled with Miss Temple. Here he expressed the greatest desire to see Viola, and it was with the utmost difficulty that Troyte kept him from wandering along the train to look for Norheys' compartment. He said that he had particularly admired the way in which Lord Norheys had kept up his pretense, even acting the part of a curate when there was no real need for it.

Then came the question of who Rev. Thomas A. Norreys really was. The king did not know. Nor did Casimir. Casimir could tell exactly what was on the passport, and the king repeated all that Tommy had said about himself. But that got them no further. They had to send for me. Cable was unwilling to do so; but Troyte insisted. Cable remembered that I had said something about a curate.

When I heard the story told by the king and Casimir, I saw at once that my guess was very likely to be right. "My sister Emily lost a curate early last week," I said. "He was last heard of at the Adlon hotel in Berlin, where he stayed two nights and then disappeared. The dates—"

We discussed the dates and they fitted in with each other very well. I could not help looking at Cable with an expression of satisfaction. The man had been abominably rude to me since we left London and had snubbed me pitilessly. I did not actually say "I told you so." But I looked as if I thought it.

"Anyhow," said Cable, "no curate would dare to marry the princess." Like many successful business men, Cable underestimates the courage and ability of the clergy. In all probability he never speaks to a clergyman at all and only sees one once in two years or so clad in a surplice, at some wedding or funeral which he's obliged to attend. A curate in a surplice looks innocent and mild, not at all the kind of a man who would seize a vacant European throne. The same curate on the golf links is a very different person. Besides, Tommy was an exceptional curate. I told them what Emily and Canon Pyke had said about him.

"And I think," I said, "that you scarcely do justice to the courage which our younger clergy undoubtedly possess. A man who would face a Mothers' union two days in a week and would take charge of a Girls' Friendly society for an outing in the country, must be daring enough for any adventure.

"No curate," said Cable sullenly, "would venture to marry a princess." "Do you happen to know our patriarch?" said the king. "No, I thought not. You wouldn't talk that way about curates if you did. I assure you, Mr. Cable, that our patriarch would do anything. Wouldn't he, Casimir?"

"He dares do all that may become a man," said Casimir. "Approach thou like the rugged Russian bear, the armed rhinoceros, or—"

"Your patriarch," said Cable, "isn't a curate."

"But he was once," said the king. "He must have been, though before my time, of course. They all begin by being curates. And I assure you he wouldn't have hesitated—except for moral reasons, of course—to marry two or three princesses, and their mothers, who would be queens, if he'd wanted to. When I tell you that our patriarch has often gone for me without a sign of nervousness, and used language you'd scarcely believe over some trumpery little affair about a girl—and that was when I was a king, an absolute monarch, remember, with an army and all that sort of thing. No, there's no use saying 'that the clergy aren't do things.'

The discussion was degenerating into a wrangle of purely academic interest. It was Troyte who brought us all back to the business on hand.

"The real question," he said, "is not what a curate or a bishop might do, but what has actually happened since the—or—the fugitives reached Lystria. I sent a telegram to the patriarch saying that the man was an impostor. He surely wouldn't go on with the marriage after that."

"Curate or no," said Cable, "I hope the patriarch has shot him."

"He lies," said Casimir, "in durance ville. This very morning I received from the patriarch a telegram—"

He produced it from his pocket. The king translated it for us. It told us that Tommy had been put under arrest.

"That is perhaps the best thing which could have happened," said Troyte.

But it was, even on his showing, a very bad best. The situation in Lystria was extremely critical. A revolution, carefully planned and organized, had actually taken place. The patriarch and the nobles, the only people who counted in Lystria, were perfectly determined to have a king of their own seated on the historic throne of Wladislaws the Hunter, the founder of the Lystrian dynasty, famous a thousand years ago for his skill in killing boars. They wanted to place on somebody's head the silver-gilt fillet which that monarch had bequeathed to his successors. But if they did anything of the sort every Balkan state would mobilize at once and nothing could avert a war unless England recognized the new king and declared herself ready to support him. That, and the benevolent neutrality of France, might save the situation. But how could England recognize a revolution which had either put no king on the throne or set up some impossible person like Emily's curate?

"He Lies," said Casimir, "in Durance Ville. This Very Morning I Received From the Patriarch a Telegram."

Troyte explained all that to us, slowly and carefully.

"But I thought," said Cable, "that you'd squared the League of Nations and all that lot."

Troyte objected to the word "squared." I dare say the League of Nations would have objected to it too. What he had done, so he said, was to create an atmosphere favorable to the consideration of the claims of an English king to the Lystrian throne.

"Meaning Lord Norheys?" said Cable.

Troyte nodded. He certainly had not meant his "atmosphere" to envelop Emily's curate.

"In my opinion," said the king, "the best thing for us to do is to leave things as they are."

"Surely," I said, "not exactly as they are. That curate belongs more or less to my sister Emily and she's bent on finding him. There'll be a frightful row if she discovers him lying in a dungeon in Lystria."

"Nobody need ever know," said Cable.

"The English lady who accompanied them," said the king, "must be aware of the facts, and if I judge her character correctly, she will certainly tell what she knows."

"What English lady?" said Cable.

"Her name," said the king, "is Janet Church, Miss Church, and unless I'm mistaken about her—"

"If Janet Church is there," I said, "she's certain to have telegraphed to every ambassador in Europe and also to the prime minister and the leader of the Labor party and all the different Liberal parties there are, demanding the instant release of Emily's curate."

"What I want to know," said Cable, "is what's going to happen about my oil concession?"

Nobody could give him any information about that. It had not been granted by the Megalian government. Indeed, it had not been granted by anybody. All Cable really had in writing was a promise that it would be granted by the king of Lystria when he was safe on the throne.

"That," said King Wladislaws, "is why I say that things had better be left as they are."

"But they can't," I said. "Emily's curate can't be left in prison. You don't know my sister Emily or you wouldn't suggest it. Besides, there's Janet Church to be reckoned with."

"I think," said the king, "that by this time the young man has probably been released, perhaps married, possibly even crowned."

"Good G—d!" said Troyte. "You don't mean to say you actually think—"

The king waved his hand cheerfully. "The patriarch," he said, "is a man of unbounded patriotism, devoted to the cause of Lystrian independence. And he dislikes, intensely dislikes, the archmandrite of Megalia. The Lystrian nobility wish for a king, an English king, a sportsman."

"Emily's curate seems to be that," I said.

"My daughter," said the king, "I am now speaking very confidentially—my daughter rather liked that young man. I liked him myself. Casimir liked him. Everyone liked him. My daughter's only objection to marrying him was the existence of a certain Miss Temple. Now it appears that in his case there is no Miss Temple. It is likely—I do not say certain, but very likely—that Calypso will insist on the patriarch releasing him. She may even suggest that the marriage should take place at once."

Then Norheys slid back the door which divided the compartment from the corridor.

"Thought I'd look in," he said, "just to see how you're getting on. Viola has dropped off into a dose, and I was feeling a bit lipped with me one to talk to."

He looked around with an amiable smile, as if he were sure of a warm welcome. He got nothing of the sort. Troyte and Cable scowled at him. The king regarded him as an inconvenient outsider. I looked the other way. Casimir was the only one who spoke. He quoted Shakespeare in allusion to Lady Norheys' dose:

Sleep that knits up the ravel'd sleeve of care.

"Hit it in one," said Norheys, settling down between Cable and the king.

"Well, Uncle Ned, settled up the affairs of eastern Europe?"

"No," said Troyte.

"Well," said Norheys, "I don't want to chip in, don't you know. I hate fellows who shove their oars in when not asked. Still, what I always say is this: An ordinary sort of fellow with no particular brains and that kind of thing often gets there, though you don't expect him to. That's why I'm offering to help. It seems to me the position is this—you'll pick me up if I'm wrong about facts, won't you, Uncle Ned? I'm often a bit weak on facts."

"Facts in this case," I said, "are much more like fancies."

"That's just where I come in," said Norheys. "A fact might have knocked me out, but when it comes to fancies, I'm there all the time. Well now, these Lystrian johnnies seem to want a king. Don't see why they do myself; but there it is. They've got a princess, but that doesn't satisfy them."

"It doesn't satisfy the League of Nations," said the king, "or the Entente powers. That's where the trouble is. The Lystrians would be quite satisfied with Calypso. In fact, they'd be very glad to have me back again, all of them except the patriarch. But the Entente powers simply won't stand me."

"That comes to exactly the same thing as what I said," said Norheys.

"Well, along comes some fellow we don't know, dropping like what-I-you-call-him from the thing-a-me-bob. What?"

"A deus ex machina," I suggested.

"That's not what I meant," said Norheys. "I meant a jolly old holt from the blue. But whatever we call him, thunderbolt or little 'tin god, there he is, quite ready to take on the job, princess and all. That's the way things stand, isn't it, Uncle Ned?"

Troyte was looking out of the window. Casimir murmured something about a Daniel coming to judgment. Norheys went on:

"Well, then, why not let him? That's what I always say: If there's a fellow who'll buck in where wanted, then let him buck in; so long as he doesn't interfere with us."

"Unfortunately," said Troyte coldly, "you've left out of consideration the League of Nations and the treaty of Versailles, and the policy of the Allied Powers."

"What I say about all that," said Norheys, "is this: What did we fight the war for? I don't know, of course, not so to speak out of my own inside. I just fought because all the other fellows I knew did too. But I do know what you said at the time, Uncle Ned, and it's no use your saying you didn't, for you did. What we fought for was the self-determination of small nationalities. Well, there you are, and you can't go back on it now. Lystria is a small nationality, isn't it?"

"Two and a half millions before the war," said the king. "Probably about two millions now."

"Couldn't possibly have a smaller nationality," said Norheys, "and what I always say is this, Uncle Ned: If you've said a thing, you've jolly well got to stick to it, even if you wish you'd said something else, which of course everybody generally does."

I felt quite sorry for Troyte. He really did talk about small nationalities and self-determination several times during the later years of the war. I dare say he deserved to be twitted with it. But I felt I must speak a word for him.

"You forget," I said to Norheys, "that you also fought to make the world safe for democracy. Setting up an absolute monarch in Lystria is not democracy."

"When I talk about democracy," said Norheys, "or rather when other fellows like you, Uncle Bill, talk about democracy—for it's a thing I never mention myself either in a club or anywhere else—I, always say that the first thing is to settle: What is democracy?"

We all felt, I think, that Norheys had better be left to answer his own question. Troyte, I know, distrusts the American formula—"By, with, for, to, at, in, the people." None of the rest of us had a formula at all.

"Democracy," said Norheys, "simply means being able to say, 'You go to h—' to any fellow who tries to come it over on you. That's my idea of democracy, and you may say what you like, Uncle Bill, that's what most of us jolly well fought for. Though what I always say is this: We were rather let down in the end. Still there is, isn't you know, a sacred principle and all that, the sort of thing no decent fellow ever goes back on."

"The Lystrians," I said, "are evidently out-and-out democrats. 'You go to h—' seems exactly to describe their attitude toward the rest of Europe."

"Well, then, there you are," said Norheys. "And if you're there, what's the use of worrying?"

The attendant—from the restaurant car came along and told us that luncheon was served. Norheys rushed off to waken Viola. The rest of us staggered along the awaying corridor. Troyte's forehead was lined with a deep frown, always a sign that he was engaged in serious thought. I remembered exactly the same wrinkles when he was bothered over the writing of Greek lambics at school, which were considered in our day a necessary part of the education of an English gentleman.

CHAPTER XX

The king and Casimir left us at Breslau. There was no help for that. Neither one nor other of them would have been allowed to cross the frontier. The Megalian government was determined not to have Wladislaws on the throne of Lystria again. And they knew Casimir for a persistent plotter.

They said good-by to us with regret which was quite unfeigned. It must have been intensely annoying to Casimir to miss the last scene of the drama he had planned. It was not working out exactly as he planned it, which made the end all the more exciting for him. What should we find at the Schloss Amberg when we got there? What would Casimir have found if he could have been with us? A wedding and a coronation? The public execution of a pretender to the throne? A counter-revolution, with the Megalian troops in possession of the schloss? A patriarch prime minister under a new monarchy, or—such things have happened in Russia, which is not very far away—a martyred archbishop?

For King Wladislaws the turn of events was even more thrilling. He had developed a personal liking for Tommy, and, in his own way, he was really fond of Calypso. For all he knew when he said good-by to us at Breslau, she might be a queen, a prisoner of state, a fugitive among the mountains, a widow, a bride, or an exceedingly indignant young woman anxious for vengeance on everyone concerned in the trick which had been played on her.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Cure Little and Swarzen Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the oozing, itches up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Morgan Horses Are in Demand

Light Animals in No Danger of Being Relegated to "Dodo" Class.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That light horses are in no danger of being relegated to the "dodo" class is indicated by the active demand for breeding animals from the U. S. Morgan farm, Middlebury, Vt., during the year 1924.

Six stallions sold. During the year six young Morgan stallions were sold. The two-year-old Pluto went to the largest pure-bred Morgan breeding ranch in the United States, situated in Texas. A yearling was purchased by a Morgan breeder in California. Two two-year-olds went to Massachusetts, and two were exported. Nodaway was bought by a resident of Central America, who wrote: "The colt Nodaway arrived here in first-class condition, without a single scratch on him, and more than fills our expectations. If he had been made to order he couldn't have better filled my ideal of a horse for a broken, rough country. His size, build, color, feet and mode of handling himself are perfect. He has been greatly admired by everyone that has seen him, and several men consider him not only the handsomest stallion brought into the country, but also of the most appropriate type for the small native mares." Quartermaster followed in the footsteps of his "uncle" as the head of a stud on a large plantation in Porto Rico.

Government Horses Win. At the Eastern States exposition, Springfield, Mass., Morgan horses shown by the United States Department of Agriculture won seven of the nine classes and took second place in the other two classes during the year. Bennington was again champion Morgan stallion, with his son Quartermaster first in his class. Dewdrop again won the class for Morgans in single harness, and Josephine, now privately owned but bred and trained at the U. S. Morgan Horse farm, won the combination and saddle classes, as well as other classes open to all breeds. Josephine's half-sister Quantico won the yearling mare class. Seven Morgans were sold at Springfield, and attractive offers were received for others not for sale. The demand for Morgans was not confined to Springfield, as a total of 37 Morgans have been distributed to new owners by the U. S. Morgan Horse farm alone. Among these were included a good per cent of Morgans trained to saddle, one being obtained by the governor of Vermont and another going to Washington, D. C., to be used by the secretary of agriculture.

Because of lack of funds the department did not make entries in the 1924 endurance ride, held in Virginia. However, the horses that won second and fifth places were both bred by the U. S. Morgan Horse farm. Donwell, placed second, is sired by Donlyn, a stallion owned at the farm for several years and later exported to Japan. The horse receiving fifth place was Major S., sired by Castor, the latter successfully completing three official endurance rides. Major S. also won fifth in the ride last year.

Secure Early Potatoes by Applying Fertilizer. To have earlier potatoes than your neighbors, apply four to six pounds of a 2-10-8 or similar fertilizer to the square rod on a light, rich soil and plant sun-sprouted seed of an early variety, in the direction given by horticulturists of the Ohio experiment station.

Bilas Triumph and Norton Beauty are good varieties that have a very short growing period. Such names as "Extra Early Six Weeks" and "Eureka Extra Early" are somewhat misleading, as they are but slightly, if at all, different from the Early Ohio and Irish Cobbler, and require from ten to twelve weeks from planting to mature a crop, while the first mentioned varieties mature in eight to ten weeks.

Tubers placed in the sunlight and protected from frost will start short green sprouts, which will go right on growing when planted, thus gaining many days over those which are permitted to grow slender white sprouts in storage.

About one-third of the fertilizer may be applied in the furrow, the large portion having been previously worked into the soil. Weeds are kept down and moisture conserved by frequent shallow cultivation.

Lime-Sulphur Spray to Control San Jose Scale. The lime-sulphur spray for the control of San Jose scale should be applied to all infested orchards and plants. Apples and peaches are the two kinds of fruits which should have special attention.

Three things are necessary in order that spraying for San Jose scale may be effective. The correct spray material, lime-sulphur, one gallon to seven gallons of water, should be used. An efficient spray machine which will enable the operator to reach all parts of the trees must be available, and, last, every tip of the tree, and every portion of the bark, and every bud of the tree must be hit with the spray. If these precautions are followed, the San Jose scale can be kept under control, especially if sanitary measures, such as the removal of infested hedges, are practiced at the same time.

Prevent "Whiskers" on the Strawberry

Film Designed to Help in War on Black Mold.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Why Strawberries Grow Whiskers" is the title of a new United States Department of Agriculture film on the handling of strawberries, just completed by the office of motion pictures for the bureau of plant industry.

The fact that strawberries do grow whiskers may be new to many consumers, but it is old stuff to the strawberry trader; indeed one of the prime objects in the life of the strawberry shipper is to prevent the growth of "whiskers" on the strawberries he handles. Hence this new film—which is designed to help the strawberry grower and shipper in their war against black mold, the fungus which is responsible for strawberry "leak" and for the "whiskers" which signalize the final stage of this disease.

The lesson taught by the film may be boiled down into three very brief admonitions to the grower:

1. Handle strawberries carefully.
2. Pick early in the day, while the berries are cool.
3. Refrigerate promptly after picking.

The photograph emphasizes the fact that infection from black mold is due largely to bruises and cuts on the berry, and that subsequent growth of the mold is much more rapid in warm air than in cold air.

An interesting feature of this film is a long-time motion picture showing the growth of black mold, covering a period of twenty-four hours or more in a few seconds of projection on the screen.

"Why Strawberries Grow Whiskers" is in one reel and will be circulated through the educational film service of the department, and the co-operating state institutions. Copies may be borrowed for short periods, or may be purchased at the laboratory charge. A complete list of the department's films, with information on the method of distributing them, is given in Miscellaneous Circular 27, which may be obtained on application to the department at Washington.

Acid Phosphate Checks Many Losses in Manure. What is the best preservative to prevent plant food losses in manure? Many recommendations have been made, but the latest investigations on this subject show acid phosphate to be the most efficient and most practicable material to use. Acid phosphate proved to be more efficient in preventing nitrogen losses than did straw, peat, rock phosphate, or gypsum.

Not only does acid phosphate check the loss of nitrogen, but it materially increases the fertilizing value of manure, supplying the element of plant food in which manure is lacking. The use of acid phosphate with manure is one of the soundest of fertilizer practices.

The spreading of one or two handfuls of acid phosphate in each stall each day is a very practical method. Tramping of the stock mixes it with the manure. Even when manure is hauled out and spread immediately, there is some loss of nitrogen which is avoided if the manure is phosphated.

Grape Vines Pruned in Early Spring Is Best. Grapevines should be pruned before the buds begin to swell in order to avoid the great loss of sap which follows late pruning. Best results usually follow heavy pruning.

"As much old wood as is possible to remove should be taken away," says W. H. Alderman, head of the division of horticulture, University of Minnesota, "leaving only a few short canes of last year's growth to carry the crop for the coming season. The sooner this pruning is done the better, but if for some reason it is not done until early spring, one should still prune vines vigorously."

"Even though heavy bleeding results from belated pruning, the slight loss in vigor caused by the loss in sap will not be as serious as would be the failure to prune at all."

FARM FACTS

Insect life is made miserable by crop rotation.

Dairy cattle may be improved by the use of a good herd sire.

When farms are selling cheaply is a good time for the young man to buy.

Dairymen, beware! Scrub stock can "multiply" as rapidly as pure breeds, but they never get the "right answer."

Stop hens from eating eggs by feeding oyster shell and scattering the grain feed in deep litter to keep them busy.

Direct sunlight is important in preventing leg weakness in chickens. Be sure your chickens get a large share of this great health-giver.

A survey of nearly four thousand farms in four states shows that three-fourths of the farmers have adopted improved agricultural practices as a result of agricultural extension work, according to figures recently released by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Cultivation in Gardens to Keep the Weeds Down

A large part of the labor in gardening is involved in the cultivation to keep down weeds, weeding, thinning, etc. Weeds are objectionable in a vegetable garden because they crowd upon the vegetables, require close cultivation to get rid of them, which may be actually harmful to tender vegetables, and if the gardener lags in enthusiasm the weeds finally triumph and by fall the garden plot is a jungle of tall weeds. The gardener can do a great deal to bring his garden to the weedless condition, where labor and cultivation are reduced to a minimum. The first step is to cultivate closely in the early part of the season, when most of the weed seed germinate. The little weeds are easily killed. But weeds keep on coming up all through the season, and these must be carefully removed also, for a single weed may produce enough seed to infest the whole garden next season. So it is important that no weeds become large enough to produce and ripen seed. If this is done year after year, the number of weeds and grasses will decrease rapidly. The use of stable manure is a source of fresh infection, as this usually contains many weed seeds. This danger may be avoided by using only well rotted manure on the garden, keeping fresh manure in a compost heap for at least six months. The seeds will be sprouted or killed by the heating of the manure. Some of the plant food is lost by composting, but it is made up by the better physical condition of the manure.

Sweet Clover for Hay. Sweet clover sown in the spring will give a good hay crop by the middle of September if a good stand is obtained and the soil is in good fertility. The yellow variety is usually considered the best for hay. It is still a question whether it is best to sow oats with sweet clover and the season is the prime factor in the matter. If the season is extremely dry the oats may do more harm than good. If oats are sown only about two-thirds of the usual amount should be used.

THE OTHER MAN'S JOB
By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"I SUPPOSE you'll have nothing to do now until September," Smith said to me at commencement time. "Absolutely nothing," I replied, for it is less exhausting to agree with a man like that than it is to try to give him an idea of the endless list of things waiting to be done whenever the days of apparent leisure shall come.

Smith is a retired farmer who lives near me and whose regular work is accomplished when he has fed the chickens and mowed the lawn. Like many another man he is possessed of the illogical idea that a college instructor during the summer and regular vacations is as free from mental and physical work as a spring lamb. When his class is dismissed his work is done.

It has always been interesting to me that most people are likely to consider the other man's job easier than their own, and not infrequently to express the conviction that if they were holding his job they would do it better than he is doing it.

I listened a few weeks ago to Gail Curci's incomparable singing. The perfection of her art was to me marvellous. Behind me in the auditorium were two men apparently with some amateurish knowledge of music and musical terms.

"There's nothing remarkable about her singing," one of the men remarked. "She just does it naturally."

"There is no reason why anybody should not learn to sing that way, if he would but give himself over to it," the other assented. Before the end of the evening they were both convinced that they could do as well as this woman. Strange it is how confident we are of our ability to handle the other man's job.

Most men advise their sons to avoid the business or the profession which they themselves have followed. If asked why, their invariable reply is, "There is nothing in it but trouble and hard work. I don't want my son to go through what I've gone through."

And so the farmer trains his son to be a merchant, and the physician sends his boy to an engineering school, and the engineer advises his young hopeful to study law, each with the idea that he is making it possible for the boy to get the maximum return for the minimum expenditure of time and effort, and in the belief that the other man's job is far easier than his own.

The real facts are that no job is easy if it is done well. Every business or profession has its exactions, its annoyances, its disagreeable features, its difficulties and its failures. There are few snags in the world; even the teaching profession, if one is to be successful, demands that one have energy, a little brains at least, some training, and a willingness to work at least twelve months in the year. The same thing is true of almost any other job.

Harrison—This city is trying to get possession of a small island in Budd Lake for development as a park. It consists of 1.4 acres. One of the last acts of President Harding was to sign an executive order withdrawing the island from public entry. It is as yet in that status. Representative Woodruff will introduce a bill next Congress to provide that it may be sold to Harrison or the state of Michigan.

This is the time of the year to wonder if last winter was really unpleasant. By August the matter will settle itself.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water
Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
