

CELEBRATE FOURTH OF JULY AT EAST JORDAN Charlevoix County Herald.

Vol. 29

EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1925.

No. 27

To Speak At St. Joseph's

Fr. Peter A. Crumbly, O. F. M.
To Be Here For Week.

Commencing Sunday, July 5th and continuing each evening until Sunday, July 12th, inclusive, Rev. Fr. A. Crumbly of St. Augustine's Church, Chicago, will deliver a series of lectures at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, East Jordan. Fr. Crumbly is an ex-chaplain of the Joliet Penitentiary, and later on served overseas as Chaplain.

Services will commence each evening at 8:30 last time and a cordial invitation to attend these lectures is extended to any and all who wish to do so.

Fr. Crumbly is also scheduled for an address at East Jordan Fourth of July Celebration this Saturday, the address to commence at 11:30 a. m.

Taxes Make Up Big Portion Of Telephone Expenses

Lansing, June 30.—Taxes paid the state and federal government make up a big portion of the cost of conducting Michigan's Telephone business, it was revealed today when A. J. Peckham, southern Michigan commercial superintendent for the Michigan Bell Telephone Co., handed the State Treasurer Frank D. McKay a check for $1,436,550.28 for the 1924 taxes of that company.

Government records show that the telephone company this year paid the federal government $531,449.78 for income and capital stock taxes, making a total tax bill of $1,968,000.06 this year. That amounts to $4.47 for each telephone of the Michigan Bell company served in this state.

The increase in taxes paid for the telephone company has been considerable.

In 1919 the company paid $535,833.72 or $1.19 per telephone, in taxes.

In 1914, $315,646.44 or $1.61 per telephone, was paid.

Radio Hard Hit

Like every other boom the radio craze has been caught by over supply and the result is that for the past several months makers of radio receiving sets have been slashing prices in an effort to get rid of the over-supply. In the process there has occurred a few fatalities chiefly among the smaller manufacturing concerns.

Speaking of radio reminds us of the news dispatch from Europe, which tells us that the Bavarian government is erecting the most powerful broadcasting station in the world. It is said to be twenty times as powerful as KDKA, our pioneer broadcasting station. The antennae are stretched between two mountain peaks. This is almost enough to call for a French protest; as a matter of fact think of the atmosphere illuminated with "hochs" and you will have a fellow feeling with the French.

The powers may write notes to the Chinese governments but where can they locate the governments.

The old-fashioned gent who used to daub a little stove polish on his brogans on a Sunday morn, now has a son who thinks it's a mere trifle to shoot fourteen shekels for a pair of golf shoes.

When we get so we can remember that a home in the country, a cow, a couple pigs, a flock of chickens and an old-fashioned garden don't need either a spare tire or a quart of cylinder oil, we can feel we are at last making some normalcy.

Big Crowd at Opening Game

Illinois Colored Giants Win By a 3 to 0 Score.

Before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans the East Jordan Base Ball team were defeated by the fast Illinois Giants in the opening game of the season on the local grounds last Sunday afternoon.

The score was 3 to 0 which in itself shows that the East Jordan ball tossers were in mid-season form in spite of the fact that this was their first 1925 game. Tolles had the visitors guessing most of the time, only eight scattering hits being made from his delivery. An error by his team-mates was responsible for one of the tallies.

Sensational left-hand catches by Giant fielders Gibson and Hicks of line drives from S. Kamradt and Gunderson prevented East Jordan from tallying.

That East Jordan has the reputation of having a fast ball team was evidenced by the number of visitors present. Roscommon, Gaylord, Grayling, Bellaire, Mancelana, Central Lake, Boyne City, Charlevoix, Pellston, Harbor Springs as well as other places were represented.

Struck out—By Smith 4, by Tolles 2.

Three fast games are scheduled at the fair grounds, East Jordan, commencing this Friday. On Friday the Illinois Giants of Chicago and the Royal Giants of New York contest. Saturday (4th), East Jordan vs. Boyne City. Sunday, Harbor Springs vs. East Jordan. All games start at 3:00 p. m.

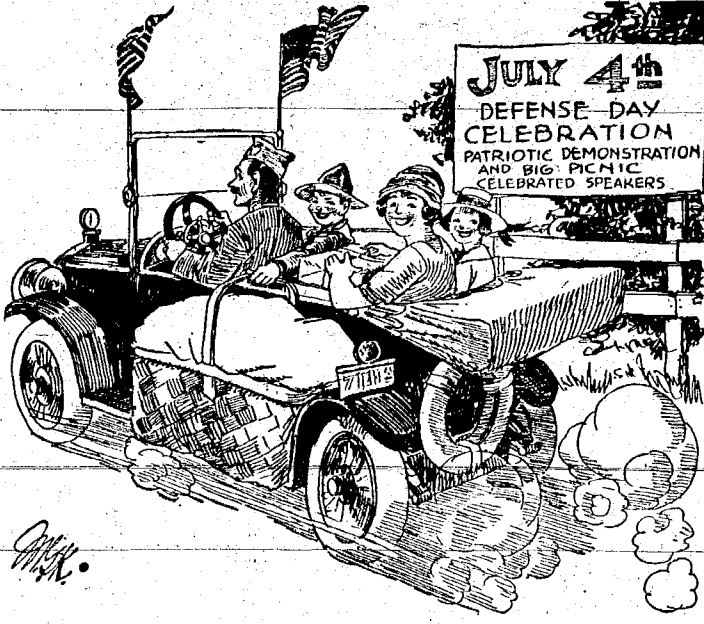

Monroe—Sheriff Joseph Kinsey and Coroner Fred C. Nadeau, while at Ida, discovered additional charred bones at the spot where a straw stack was set afire by two young men. The coroner believes the bones are those of a dismembered human body which were carried to the top of the stack in a gunny sack saturated with kerosene and then set fire. Two young fellows were seen running from the stack.

Mt. Clemens—Maj. Gen. Henry C. Hale, commander of the Sixth Corps Area, has presented to the First Pursuit Group at Selfridge Field the only standards ever awarded an aerial unit of the Army. The event was the observance of the group's eighth anniversary. The presentation was made following review of the field personnel of 450 men and was followed by the air review in which 20 officers participated. As commander of the group, Maj. Thomas G. Lanphier received the standards.

East Lansing—When 293 graduates of Michigan State college received their diplomas here the event was historic because the class was the largest that has ever graduated from the school and because it was the first time that the diplomas have borne the new name of the college. Former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, delivered the commencement address, taking as his subject "The Need of Agricultural Education." He was introduced by President Kenyon L. Butterfield of the college.

Detroit—Two aviators, one a World war ace and the other a student friend, fell 200 feet to instant death when the airplane in which they were taking a pleasure spin caught fire, went into a nose dive and finally crashed to the earth. The dead are Frank Goddell, pilot of the fated machine, who has been a commercial aviation instructor at Detroit and nearby fields for the last eight years, and Charles Boffey, a novice at the air game, said to be a close friend of Goddell, who was to receive a plane of his own within a few weeks.

Independence Day

See Chance To Take Clover Seed Harvest

While dry weather has been very unfavorable for clover hay production on the first crop in Michigan this year, a chance for many farmers to utilize the first crop for a seed harvest has been pointed out by Prof. J. F. Cox, head of the crops department at the Michigan State College.

Inspection of fields has shown an unusually high percentage of seed developing in the first crop, and it is thought that it may pay in many cases to handle the first rather than the second crop for seed, where fields are clean and seed is apparently setting well. That native grown seed will probably be in great demand during the coming year is also predicted.

Wonder if anybody thought to suggest to Mr. Ford that he put in a bid for the capitol building at Washington?

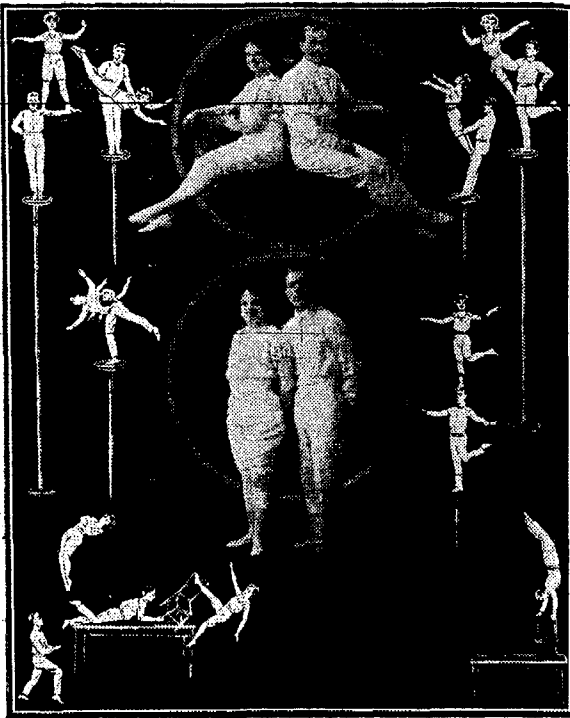

"This Is Terrible"

When a police officer makes a mistake and kills somebody it is a serious matter. If the officer happens to be a prohibition officer, engaged in enforcing that particular law, his mistake becomes a matter of "grave national concern." Newspapers and individuals demand the repeal of a law that is so enforced, etc., and abuse the officer.

There is another side to the question, the officer's. The bootleggers and moonshiners, also shoot to kill. When the officers die, the same newspapers and individuals look on silently, explaining that the incident shows that prohibition will never be enforced.

One large add is worth two good news stories.

If the prohibition enforcement officers could only connect with a bootlegger as quick as the average citizen along the street the rum business would shortly be classed as one of the hazardous occupations.

Big Free Attraction For the Fourth of July

FLORENIS

Big Free Attraction at East Jordan's "Fourth" Celebration.

Perched on the top of a slowly revolving pedestal twelve feet high the celebrated globe trotting Florenis will give a remarkable exhibition of equilibrium poses at East Jordan's Fourth of July celebration, tomorrow.

Their act is entirely new and above the ordinary, artistic, graceful and at all times daring. The dainty poses and delicate balance combine to rivet the attention of the most blasé, for the more they have seen and the more they know regarding acrobatic feats the better this distinct novel stands out and appeals to the thrill seekers.

This work is done high in the air, the distance from the head of the lady poser to the platform measuring 25 ft.

They have played at all the leading theatres in the United States, including the Orpheum and Keith. Circuits, have made an Australian Tour and visited many European countries, having just returned from Europe after another long tour of thirty-five weeks.

The second act of the Florenis is not a mere fill-in but a hard and difficult routine of tricks and stunts with no comedy to help out; all solid entertaining, new acrobatics that delight audiences.

Variety had the following to say during their engagement at the Palace Theatre, Chicago.

"The Florenis presenting a beautiful act, the closing one, succeed in holding every member of the audience until the final curtain. Some of the most daring work of the vaudeville stage is shown."

During their recent trip the London, England Times, commented as follows:

"The Florenis have a sensational act, their work-being done on a high pedestal. Their poses are of an acrobatic nature, most difficult but none with quiet ease."

While appearing at the Teatro Regina Margherita, Rome, Italy, the Nuovo Giornale, comments:

"The Florenis head a class of their own, standing on a small pinnacle elevated high in the air, they perform stunts which fairly make the audience hold their breath."

"Ted" Woodard Badly Injured

Caught Between "Cages" at the Chemical Plant.

Dennis Woodard, known as "Ted," was badly injured in an accident at the East Jordan Chemical plant last Sunday afternoon.

The crew was re-charging the retorts. Mr. Woodard was coupling some of the cages when he was caught between them. He received some bad scalp wounds, one of his ears being nearly severed, and his skull injured. One rib was smashed in, penetrating one of his lungs.

Medical aid was summoned and he was removed to his "home" in Orchard Hill. At present he seems to be on the gain and will recover unless complications set in.

Big Gospel Car Coming to Ellsworth

The village of Ellsworth will be favored with an old fashioned Gospel Meeting, under the auspices of the Pilgrim Holiness Church, in a tent located in the empty lot south of the corner garage, to begin July 15th and continuing over the 19th.

Rev. Chas. Slater the engaged evangelist is a man of wide experience and deep spirituality. Five years he labored in South Africa as a Missionary, a greater part of which time among the raw heathen. (A recent note from Africa states that a certain run-down work there could be easily built up if they could get Mr. Slater.) Three times he toured parts of South America, remaining one time as pastor of a native Church for two years. God willing, Mr. Slater expects to return to Africa next December or January. Besides his missionary work in these different parts, he has labored in a number of the States as a very successful evangelist.

By his side has stood Mrs. Slater in all the trying experiences of a missionary and evangelist's career, and we are glad to announce that she will be with him in this battle, as a worker.

Also their daughter Florabelle will add to the meeting by song and testimony.

A treat indeed awaits the village of Ellsworth and surrounding community, and I trust that we may not only be able to make them feel that they are appreciated, but as christians put our hearts and hands to the work of soul saving while they are with us.—Contributed.

The reason most successful politicians have flat ears is because they are on the ground so much.

Monroe—At a meeting of the board of education it was decided to hold an annual school election on July 13 for the purpose of selecting two members of the board. C. T. Southworth, president and John Eber are the outgoing members. The former has served 25 years on the board, a number of years as president and secretary.

Pontiac—The city of Pontiac has adopted an agreement with the Detroit United Railway giving a day-to-day right to operate lines within the city, on which franchises have expired. This includes about half the trackage in the city, on both local and interurban lines. The agreement calls for a 5-cent fare and universal transfers.

Alpena—The first motor driven passenger railway car to be seen in Alpena arrived at the B. C. G. and A. railway terminal station recently, with executives and guests aboard. The road has just completed plans for the purchase of the car which will be used on their railway west of Alpena to Boyne City. The new car will be placed in operation immediately.

Ypsilanti—Robert L. Barbour, of Highland Park, was elected president of the State Normal College Alumni Association at the annual meeting here attended by about 150 former students of the college. The association endorsed the present movement to raise $150,000 for the erection of the first unit of a $300,000 alumni memorial building on the local campus.

Grand Haven—Low water in the Grand river from the mouth of the harbor to the docks here, is making navigation of lake freighters difficult this summer, according to harbor officials. Fishermen report many shoal spots along the edge of the channel. The condition is blamed to lack of precipitation last spring. Many small tributaries to the Grand river are practically dry this year.

Ball Game This P. M.

Illinois Giants of Chicago vs.
Royal Giants of New York.

Base Ball Fans of East Jordan and vicinity will be given a rare treat today when the Illinois Giants of Chicago and the Royal Giants of New York, two fast colored teams will clash at the Fair Grounds, starting at 3:00 p. m.

The Illinois Giants defeated the local team last Sunday 3 to 0 and are well-known for their prowess throughout Michigan. Up to Sunday they had won 14 and lost 4 on their present trip thru the State. They have played around here for several seasons and are popular with the fans and recognized as one of the fastest teams ever seen in this section. The Royal Giants, colored travelling team champions of the east have never appeared around here, but have played in former seasons in the northern peninsula and are said to be a good match for the Illinois Giants. The two teams will go from here to Manistique where they are matched to meet in two games, July 4 and 5 as the feature of the big celebration there.

The colored teams are rivals for the colored travelling team championship of the country and extend themselves to the limit whenever they meet each other. The game here should furnish one of the hottest diamond contests ever witnessed in this vicinity. The game will be started promptly at time advertised to enable the teams to catch the night boat at Mackinaw after the game to go to Manistique.

Army Worms Put In Annual Appearance

Army worms, destructive crop pests which visit the state nearly every year, have put in appearance two weeks earlier than usual this year. Reports received by Prof. R. H. Pettit, head of the entomology department at the Michigan State College, indicate that the worms showed up in Calhoun county on June 22.

Usual method of stopping the Army Worms where they are discovered at work is by plowing furrows around the infested area to prevent spread of the pests. It is a race between the worms and the farmers, the former trying to spread over larger areas and the latter to prevent this.

Where the furrow method of control is not practical, as in lawns and gardens, a poison bait is recommended. Information on control work may be had from the Entomology Dept. M. S. C., E. Lansing, Michigan.

"They Never Will Be Missed"

Every community has in its midst certain citizens, who intelligent and wealthy, are able to do many great things for themselves and their section. And, there is always some who do nothing to build up the town where they made their money, or where their ancestors made it for them, and they pass to a ripe old age and die, never being missed by the places in which they lived.

It is pathetic to think about the man who has given over his life to the acquisition of fortune, who has made few contributions to the betterment of any cause or thing, who has niggardly watched the expenditure of a rich return. It is pitiable because the man has never learned to live. He has bound his soul by his greed for money, and he has given his life to something that avails him little when the gaunt spectre beckons him across the river.

If such men believe in a future life they must seldom think. Mark Twain told of the man, who dying, went to the pearly gates, and upon being asked from whence he came, replied, "the world." The guardian at the portal astonished him by saying, "which one?" The rich and selfish who die will very probably assail the pearly gates and be asked why they expect to enter into the kingdom. Their only chance of entry will depend upon how their answer will look, "I made a good sum of money and took care of myself." The surprise will come when the guardian asks them, "what kind of money did you make?"

If they really intend to revise the calendar we suggest that they swap June and January.

FOR INACTIVE KIDNEYS

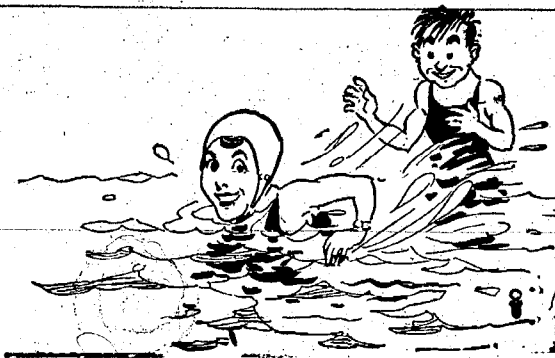

When the kidneys are in need of a good flushing take FOLEY PILLS, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys.

Are You Interested In Learning The Culling Of Poultry

The poultry work in Charlevoix county this year will be conducted under a different plan than the one used previously. Last year we had a series of eight demonstrations in the county which were so arranged that they were within reach of everyone and yet the total attendance was only 129 people, notwithstanding the fact that every farm has a flock of poultry. Is that enough?

Elsewhere in the columns of this paper you have noted the results obtained by the local leadership plan in the clothing project. Can we not accomplish more in poultry culling by using the same plan. Your Agent thinks so and is going to give it a trial this year.

Briefly the plan is this:

1. Select or choose a leader for every community in the county.
2. The culling demonstration will be given on three different days by a specialist from M. S. C. who will only meet with this group of leaders.
3. Instead of having 2 hr. meetings, these will last all day and the work will be given in detail, not only culling but the entire field of feeding, breeding, and management will be discussed.
4. After first demonstration the leader culls out his or her own flock, keeping production records. After second instruction cull out a neighbors flock in same way. After third instruction held a public demonstration to which the entire community will be invited.

In this way more direct benefit can be gotten out of it and we will have a group of persons in the county who your Agent can recommend to cull poultry.

The first demonstration for the leaders will be on July 14th, second on July 25th, and third on Aug. 18th. Remember we want the leaders to agree to spend at least four days on this work and put forth your best efforts.

If you are interested in poultry can you imagine a way where you can get more information on feeding, breeding and managing or better instruction in culling than by attending these schools?

If interested please drop a line to the County Agr'l. Agent, Boyne City.

Charlevoix Goes Over The Top In Clothing Project

Mrs. D. B. Shutt, Clothing Specialist from our college, reports that Charlevoix county has made the best record of the four counties co-operating in this work having reached 295 different families with suggestions regarding clothing, sewing, and other details along these lines. The last two instructions given in this county were held at Charlevoix and Boyne City on the 25th and 26th respectively and in the afternoons of both days all the leaders were given permission to bring several of their friends in to have a close-up as to how the work was carried on.

It was a pleasant surprise to find that 65 leaders were in attendance at the Boyne City meeting who were deeply interested in what they have had the opportunity of receiving free of charge. This work has been conducted by the Home Demonstration Dept. of M. S. C. and organized in the several counties by the local County Agents and is open to all ladies who wish to receive instruction in sewing.

The County Agent wishes to thank all the leaders who have made this work possible and who have been so sincere in their co-operation and have given their assistance so freely in order that the work could be carried back to their own communities.

Charlevoix county has several honors credited her as a result of the successful meetings in the county. In the first place we have reached 295 families thus far with two more meetings yet to be conducted by the local leaders, while Otsego county reached 89, Emmett 217, and Antrim 227 families. Secondly the Boyne City group has made the best record of any one group in the four counties having reached 242 families with instruction, which is more than the total of any two groups in the other three counties. Thirdly they have had a hundred percent attendance of leaders at the four meetings and all leaders have had their classes. High individual honors go to Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Everts of Charlevoix, who had 25 ladies in attendance at their meeting.

Mrs. Shutt also reports that in Charlevoix county as a result of this work 76 sewing machines were cleaned and oiled properly, 71 used the binder attachment for the first time, 72 used the hemmer, and 75 garments were made using suggestions given at these various meetings.

Mr. Weisner, Poultry Specialist, Visits Demonstration Farms In County.

In co-operation with our Agricultural College these men are endeavoring to use the most approved methods of feeding, breeding and culling of their flocks. The primary object of these farms is to have several places in the County where persons wishing to secure baby chicks can get them and be assured they are getting the right kind of stock or in purchasing hatching eggs.

These Poultry flocks will be visited by a member of the Poultry Dept. at least twice yearly so the public can be assured they are buying good clean healthy stock. Mr. Weisner reported the flocks all in good shape and being well cared for and having few birds that will need to be culled out on the next visit. He particularly approved of the manner in which Mr. Guild of Charlevoix was managing his flock.

Next year the County Agent expects to have several other poultrymen conducting the same kind of work and feels in a year or two there will be no need of sending outside the County for foundation stock in any breed. In the papers they all advertise as having the best stock in the State and how under the sun can the poultryman know which is the best place to send.

The Second Annual Poultry Judging School to be Held at Mich. State College, July 6-11

Professor W. R. Graham, Head of the Poultry Department of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont.; Prof. L. E. Card, of the Poultry Dept., University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.; J. B. Hayes, Poultry Extension Specialist and Associate Professor of Poultry Husbandry, Madison, Wis.; Prof. James E. Rice, Head of the Poultry Dept. of Cornell, or one of his assistants, and Dector O. R. Kent, formerly of Cornell University, and now with the Quaker Oat Co., Chicago, will be speakers during the school as well as all the members of the Poultry Dept. M. S. C.

It is planned to make this year's school greater than that of last year, by including more poultry management problems. Dr. Kent will give several talks on feeding; Mr. Hayes will talk on the Wisconsin Ration; Prof. Card of Illinois on the Problems of the Corn Belt Poultryman, and a member of the State College Staff will talk on housing. Dr. Starseth will lecture on diseases, Bacillary White Diarrhea, in particular, and its effect on production and the livability of the chick.

A well arranged program has been worked out for this school and every step and method of culling for production will be demonstrated. The school will be a regular short course, with lecture periods and laboratory hours which those enrolled must attend. Saturday forenoon, July 11th, will be given over to a written examination, that must be passed before a certificate will be issued. Those successfully completing the work, and passing the examination, will be given a certificate entitling them to do commercial culling work and to cull for hatcheries under the new plan of certification as adopted by the Michigan State Poultry Improvement Ass'n, under the auspices of the State Dept. of Agriculture.

The College is offering you, as a Michigan Poultryman, an unusual opportunity to hear some of the best authorities in North America talk on current poultry problems. They believe you will regret it if you do not attend.

A program of sports has been arranged for every evening, and a banquet for Thursday evening in the College gymnasium.

There is a registration fee of one dollar per person charged for this course, and no other expense attached excepting room and board. For those desiring it they shall be pleased to reserve rooms if notified as to the number desired. Write to Poultry Dept., M. S. C.

Negligees Combine Two Kinds of Silk

This is the day of colorful printed fabrics. They appear in all kinds of goods, from sturdy cottons to filmy chiffons, and are used for all kinds of apparel, from house dresses to evening gowns. Pretty as they are, they are at their best when made up with plain fabrics—and thereby hangs a tale of thrift and pleasure. For resourceful home dressmakers are managing to combine two discarded garments into one, that proves constantly useful. Instead of hanging in a dark closet, to blush unseen, the gay flowers that deck a printed frock, that is passe, see the light once more. Combined with a plain material, the two are converted into a charming negligee, or even perhaps into a combination frock.

Printed silk and plain crepe make the graceful negligee pictured, in which a flounce of the crepe is bordered with bands of the printed silk and set on to a three-quarter-length kimona. Crepe borders the sleeves and provides the back of the collar, and the ties that fasten the side closing. Simple, graceful, easy to make and very useful, this negligee has everything to recommend it, so why not make one negligee grow where two old frocks did nothing before!

Delightful Comedy for Chautauqua

SCENE FROM "IN WALKED JIMMY"

JIMMY walked in—into a bankrupt shoe factory; into a community of suspicion and hate; almost into jail; into many situations that were not pleasant—but Jimmy smiled.

Jimmy walked in—into the esteem of his employer; into the confidence of a community; into the heart of a girl.

A clean wholesome comedy with a laugh in every line is "In Walked Jimmy," which is to be presented on the second day of our Community Chautauqua. This is the second year that this play has been used on Community Chautauqua Circuits. In 1924, it was the most popular feature of the circuit on which it appeared and the tent was always filled. The story contains every element that goes to make up the successful play. Humor, pathos, excitement, mystery and romance are blended in a production of genuine humanness that has a universal appeal. With such a play and a cast of characters, each of whom was carefully selected to portray the particular characteristics desired, the production is a tremendous success. Arthur Holden, who, as "Jimmy" plays the leading part, is a graduate of the University of Michigan. For two years he was one of the leads in the Michigan Mimes nationally famous production of that University. He has been connected with the Detroit Motion Picture Corporation, and has been leading man with MacMurray Players, Community Players and other companies in notable productions. He is capably supported by Miss Ethel Clark, Miss Pearl White, Paul Halladay and Ralph Boyd, who play other important parts. Do not fail to see "Jimmy."

A SURE CURE FOR THE BLUES

Scene From "In Walked Jimmy" IF you have a neighbor who hasn't smiled since the war broke out in Europe, bring him with you to the Chautauqua tent to see the play "In Walked Jimmy." If he goes through the first ten minutes without expanding the muscles of his face into a broad smile, you may safely assume that facial paralysis has set in. Of course your long faced neighbor may emit a few groans before he smiles, but it will be merely because his smile muscles are getting an unaccustomed exercise. These groans will not disturb you, however, because you will have surrendered to the thorough enjoyment of this splendid comedy.

Put "Pep" Into Workers

A freak story from the Franco-American excavations at ancient Carthage brings also an interesting lesson in the psychology of labor. The workmen, like all Africans and most other people, were lazy and shirked the job. So the excavators put in moving pictures of the work in progress. Every digger worked like mad, and there was a rush of unpaid volunteers, all digging to get into the pictures.—Tit Bits.

Buy Tubes as Carefully as you buy Tires

THERE are two ways a car owner can buy tubes. He can go out looking for price—and get it.

Or he can buy tubes that will give his casings a chance to deliver the mileage that is built into them. U. S. Royal and Grey Tubes are built to give mileage and get mileage.

They resist heat, hold their shape and retain their elasticity.

To get all the mileage out of a new casing or to make an old casing last—put a U. S. Royal or Grey Tube inside it.

The Black Gang

By CYRIL McNEILE
RAPPER

GEORGE M. DORAN CO.
1925 N. Y. Service

"I've read your report," he said, still smiling, "and frankly, McIver, if it had been anyone but you, I should have been annoyed. But I know you far too well for that. Look here"—he pushed a box of cigarettes across the table—"take a cigarette and let's hear about it."

"Well, sir," began McIver, "this is briefly what took place. At ten o'clock last night as we had arranged, we completely surrounded the suspected house on the outskirts of Barking. I had had a couple of good men on duty there lying concealed the whole day, and when I arrived at about nine-thirty with Sergeant Andrews and half-a-dozen others, they reported to me that at least eight men were inside, and that Zaboloff was one of them. He had been shadowed the whole way down from Limehouse with another man, and both the watchers were positive that he had not left the house. So I posted my men and crept forward to investigate myself. There was a little chink in the wooden shutters of one of the downstairs rooms through which the light was streaming. I took a glimpse through, and found that everything was just as had been reported to me. There were eight of them there, and an unpleasant-looking bunch they were, too. Zaboloff I saw at the head of the table, and standing next to him was that man Waldo who runs two or three of the worst of the Red papers. There was also Flash Jim, and I began to wish I'd brought a few more men."

McIver smiled ruefully. "It was about the last coherent wish I remember. And," he went on seriously, "what I'm going to tell you now, sir, may seem extraordinary and what one would expect in detective fiction, but as sure as I am sitting in this chair, it is what actually took place. Somewhere from close to, there came the sound of an owl hooting. At the same moment I distinctly heard the noise of what seemed like a scuffle, and a stifled curse. And then, and this is what beats me, sir," McIver pounded a huge fist into an equally huge palm. "I was picked up from behind as if I was a baby. Yes, sir, a baby."

Involuntarily Sir Bryan smiled. "You make a good substantial infant, McIver."

"Exactly, sir," grunted the inspector. "If a man had suggested such a thing to me yesterday, I'd have laughed in his face. But the fact remains that I was picked up just like a child in arms, and doped, sir, doped. Me—at my time of life. They chloroformed me, and that was the last I saw of Zaboloff or the rest of the gang."

The inspector leaned forward and stared at his chief. "You've heard the rumors, sir," he went on after a moment, "the same as I have."

"Perhaps," said Sir Bryan quietly. "But go on, McIver. I'd like to hear what's on your mind."

"It's the Black Gang, sir," said the inspector, leaning forward impressively. "There have been rumors going round, rumors which our men have heard here and there for the past two months. I've heard 'em myself; and once or twice I've wondered. Now I'm sure—especially after what Flash Jim said. That gang is no rumor, it's solid fact."

"Have you any information as to what their activities have been, assuming for a moment it is the truth?" asked Sir Bryan.

"None for certain, sir; until this moment I wasn't certain of its existence. But now—looking back—there have been quite a number of sudden disappearances. We haven't troubled officially, we haven't been asked to. Hardly likely when one realizes who the people are who have disappeared."

"All conjecture, McIver," said Sir Bryan. "They may be lying dogs, or they'll turn up elsewhere."

"They may be, sir," answered McIver doggedly. "But take the complete disappearance of Granger a fortnight ago. He's one of the worst of the Red men, and we know he hasn't left the country. Where is he? His wife, I happen to know, is crazy with anxiety, so it don't look like a put-up job. Take that extraordinary case of the Pole who was found lashed to the railings in Whitehall with one-half of his beard and hair shaved off and the motto 'Portrait of a Bolshevik' painted on his forehead. Well, I don't need to tell you, sir, that that particular Pole, Strambowski, was undoubtedly a messenger between—well, we know who between and what the message was. And then take last night."

"Well, what about last night?"

"For the first time this gang has come into direct contact with us."

"Always assuming the fact of its existence."

"Exactly, sir," answered McIver.

"Well, they've got Zaboloff and they've got Waldo, and they laid eight of us out to cool. I guess they're not to be sneezed at."

With a thoughtful look on his face Sir Bryan rose and strolled over to the window. Though not prepared to go quite as far as McIver, there were certainly some peculiar elements in the situation—elements which he, as head of a big public department, could not officially allow for an instant, however much it might amuse him as a private individual.

"We must find Zaboloff and Waldo," he said curtly, without turning round. "Waldo, at any rate, has friends who will make a noise unless he's forthcoming. And . . ."

But his further remarks were interrupted by the entrance of his secretary with a note.

"For the inspector, Sir Bryan," she said, and McIver after a glance at his chief, opened the envelope. For a while he studied the letter in silence, then with an enigmatic smile he rose and handed it to the man by the window.

"No answer, thank you, Miss Forbes," he said, and when they were once more alone, he began rubbing his hands together softly—a sure sign of being excited. "Curtis and Samuel Bauer, both fogged nearly to death and found in a slum off Whitechapel. The note said two of 'em had been fogged."

"So," said Sir Bryan quietly. "These two were at Barking last night?"

"They were, sir," answered the inspector.

"And their line?" queried the chief. "White slave traffic of the worst type," said McIver. "They generally drug the girls with cocaine or some dope first. What do you say to my theory now, sir?"

"It's another point in its favor, McIver," conceded Sir Bryan cautiously; "but it still wants a lot more proof. And, anyway, whether you're right or not, we can't allow it to continue. We shall be having questions asked in parliament."

McIver nodded portentously. "If I can't lay my hands on a man who can lift me up like a baby and dope me, may I never have another case. Like a baby, sir. Me—"

He opened his hands out helplessly, and this time Sir Bryan laughed outright, only to turn with a quick frown as the door leading to the secretary's office was flung open to admit a man. He caught a vague glimpse of the scandalized Miss Forbes hovering like a canny eating bird-seed in the background; then he turned to the newcomer.

"Confound it, Hugh," he cried. "I'm busy."

Hugh Drummond grinned all over his face, and lifting a hand like a leg of mutton he snote Sir Bryan in the back, to the outraged amazement of Inspector McIver.

"You priceless old bean," boomed Hugh affably. "I gathered from the female bird punching the what-not outside that the great brain was heaving—but my dear old lad, I have come to report a crime. A crime which I positively saw committed with my own eyes; an outrage: a blot upon this fair land of ours."

He sank heavily into a chair and selected a cigarette. He was a vast individual with one of those phenomenally ugly faces which is rendered utterly pleasant by the extraordinary charm of its owner's expression. No human being had ever been known to be angry with Hugh for long. He was either moved to laughter by the perennial twinkle in the big man's blue eyes, or he was stunned by a playful blow on the chest from a fist which apparently possessed a minimum of muscle he possessed about five ordinary men's share.

And yet unlike so many powerful men his quickness on his feet was astounding—as many a good heavy-weight boxer had found to his cost. In the days of his youth Hugh Drummond—known more familiarly to his intimates as Bulldog—had been able to do the hundred in a shade over ten seconds. And though the mere thought of such a performance now would have caused him to break out into a cold sweat, he was still quite capable of a turn of speed, which many a lighter-built man would have envied.

Between him and Sir Bryan Johnstone existed one of those friendships which are founded on totally dissimilar tastes. At school, for some inscrutable reason, the quiet scholarship of the elder boy had appealed to the kid of fourteen who was even then a mass of brawn. Their friendship started then, and it never died, though their ways lay many poles apart. To Johnstone a well-deserved knighthood and a high position in the land; to Drummond as much money as he wanted and a life of sport.

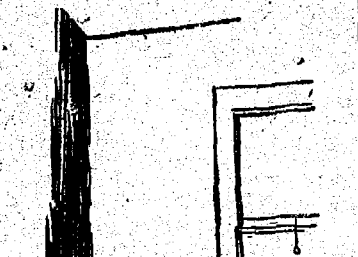

"Has someone stolen the goldfish?" queried Sir Bryan with mild sarcasm. "Great Scott! I hope not," cried Hugh in alarm. "Phyllis gave me complete instructions about the brutes before she toddled off. I make a noise, like an ant's egg, and drop them in the sink every morning. No, old lad of the village, it is something of vast import: a stain upon the escutcheon of your force. Last night—let us whisper it in Gath—I dined and further supped not wisely but too well. In fact I deeply regret to admit that I became a trifle blotto—not to say tanked. Of course it wouldn't have happened if Phyllis had been popping up the jolly old home, don't you know; but she's away in the country with the nightingales and slugs and things. Well, as I say, in the young hours of the morning I thought I'd totter along home. I'd been with some birds, male birds, Tumkins—he stared sternly at Sir Bryan, while Mc-

Iver stiffened into a rigid horror at such an incredible nickname—"and when I left it was about 2 a. m. Well, I wandered along through Leicester square, and stopped just outside Scott's to let one of those watering carts water my head for me. While I was lying in the road, steaming at the brow, a motor car went past, and it stopped in Piccadilly circus."

McIver's air of irritation vanished suddenly, and a quick glance passed between him and Sir Bryan.

"Nothing much you observe in that, Tumkins," he burbled on, quite unconscious of the sudden attention of his hearers. "But wait, old lad—I haven't got to the motto yet. From this car there stepped large numbers of men: at least, so it seemed to me, and you must remember I'd recently had a shampoo. And just as I got abreast of them they lifted out another warrior, who appeared to me to be unconscious. They put him on the pavement and got back into the car again just as I tottered alongside."

"What ho! souls," I murmured, "what is this and that, so to speak?"

"Has Someone Stolen the Gold Fish?" Queried Sir Bryan with mild sarcasm.

"Binged, old bean, badly binged," said the driver of the car. "We're leaving him there to cool."

"And with that the car drove off. There was I, Tumkins, in a partially binged condition alone in Piccadilly circus with a bird in a completely binged condition."

"How now," I said to myself, "shall I go and induce yon water merchant to return—as a matter of fact I was beginning to feel I could do with another whack myself—or shall I leave you here—as your pals observed—to cool?"

"I bent over him as I pondered this knotty point, and as I did so, Tumkins, I became aware of a strange smell."

Hugh paused dramatically and selected another cigarette, while Sir Bryan flashed a quick glance of warning at McIver, who was obviously bursting with suppressed excitement.

"A peculiar and sickly odor, Tumkins," resumed the speaker with maddening deliberation. "A strange and elusive perfume. For a long while it eluded me—that smell: I just couldn't place it. And then suddenly I got it: right in the middle, old boy—plumb in the center of the windpipe. It was chloroform: the bird wasn't drunk—he was doped."

Completely exhausted Hugh lay back in his chair, and once again Sir Bryan flashed a warning glance at his exasperated subordinate.

"Would you be able to recognize any of the men in the car if you saw them again?" he asked quietly.

"I should know the driver," answered Hugh after profound thought. "And the bird beside him. But not the others."

"What did you do then?" asked Sir Bryan.

"Well, I brought the brain to bear," answered Hugh, "and decided there was nothing to do. He was doped, and I was bottled—so by a unanimous casting vote of one—I toddled off home. But Tumkins, while I was feeding the goldfish this morning—or rather after lunch—conscience was gnawing at my vitals. And after profound meditation, and consulting with my fellow Denny, I decided that the call of duty was clear. I came to you, Tumkins, as a child flies to its mother. Who better, I thought, than old Tum-tum to listen to my maidenly secrets? And so . . ."

"One moment, Hugh," Sir Bryan held up his hand. "Do you mind if I speak to Inspector McIver for a moment?"

"Anything you like, old lad," murmured Drummond. "But be merciful, remember my innocent wife in the country."

strength is absolutely phenomenal."

"I know, sir," said McIver doubtfully, "but would he consent to take on such a job—and do exactly as he was told?"

They were both looking out of the window, while in the room behind them the heavy breathing of the sleeper rose and fell monotonously. And when the whole audience is asleep it ceases to be necessary to talk in undertones. Which was why Sir Bryan and the inspector during the next ten minutes discussed certain matters of import which they would not have discussed through megaphones at the Savoy. They concerned Hugh and other things, and the other things particularly were of interest. And they continued discussing these other things, until, with a dreadful noise like a racing motor back-firing, the sleeper sat up in his chair—and stretched himself.

"Tumkins," he cried. "I have committed sacrilege. I have slept in the Holy of Holies. Have you decided on my fate? Am I to be shot at dawn?"

Sir Bryan left the window and sat down at his desk. For a moment or two he rubbed his chin thoughtfully with his left hand, as if trying to make up his mind.

"Would you like to do a job of work, old man?"

Hugh started as if he had been stung by a wasp, and Sir Bryan smiled.

"Not real work," he said reassuringly. "But by mere luck last night you saw something which Inspector McIver would have given a good deal to see. Or to be more accurate; you saw some men whom McIver particularly wants to meet."

"Those blokes in the car you mean?" cried Hugh brightly.

"Those blokes in the car," agreed the other. "Incidentally, I may say there was a good deal more in that little episode than you think: and after consultation with McIver I have decided to tell you a certain amount about it, because you can help us, Hugh. You see you're one up on McIver: you have at any rate seen those men and he hasn't. Moreover, you say you could recognize two of them again."

"Good heavens! Tumkins," murmured Hugh aghast, "don't say you want me to tramp the streets of London looking for them."

Sir Bryan smiled. "We'll spare you that," he answered. "But I'd like you to pay attention to what I'm going to tell you. Last night a very peculiar thing happened to McIver. He and some of his men in the normal course of duty surrounded a certain house in which were some people we wanted to lay our hands on. To be more accurate, there was one man there whom we wanted. He'd been shadowed ever since he'd landed in England that morning, shadowed the whole way from docks to the house. And sure enough when McIver and his men surrounded the house, there was our friend and all his pals in one of the downstairs rooms. It was then that this peculiar thing happened. I gather from McIver that he heard the noise of an owl hooting, also a faint scuffle and a curse. And after that he heard nothing more. He was chloroformed from behind, and went straight out of the picture."

"Great Scott!" murmured Hugh, staring incredulously at McIver. "What an amazing thing!"

"And this is where you come in, Hugh," continued Sir Bryan. "Me!" Hugh sat up abruptly. "Why me?"

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy, and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts—Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean. A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Metayer System

Under the Metayer system of farming land the cultivator or tenant pays his rent in kind—generally a fixed proportion of the product, not a fixed amount. At one time it was common in France and Italy, but it has declined during the past 20 years. The product of the farm is sometimes divided equally between owner and occupier, sometimes in the ratio of two to one. The proportion is a matter of contract.

Owosso—The death of hundreds of fish in the Shiawassee River June 17, was caused by a lack of oxygen, resulting from pollution by industrial and domestic sewage, according to a report received from the State Department of Health, which sent an engineer here to investigate.

Clarksville—Plans were announced by the Community club here for a grand celebration on July 30, when the golden jubilee and an ox roast will take place. It will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the settlement and the pride of being incorporated, which occurred only a few weeks ago.

Lansing—A 200-foot superhighway between Lansing and East Lansing, has been agreed to by Gov. Groesbeck, Highway Commissioner Frank E. Rogers and the mayors of the two cities. The distance is only about two miles. Plans for the project have been under consideration for some time.

Port Huron—The petition to incorporate Fair Haven as a village, which has come before the board of supervisors, is expected to develop a lively tilt between citizens. The law and order element believes that with Fair Haven incorporated as a village it can enact its own laws to better advantage than by relying upon outside law enforcement.

Detroit—The Chrysler corporation has acquired all of the business and properties of the Maxwell Motor corporation. The sale, pursuant to the plan of April 15, 1925, was authorized at a meeting of the Maxwell stockholders held in Detroit. Walter P. Chrysler stated that the new company was beginning its career under most auspicious circumstances.

Pontiac—A Michigan supreme court decision of far-reaching importance in connection with wider Woodward avenue condemnation proceedings was made known when the Leo Breisacher appeal was decided, holding that all of the condemnation proceedings had been regularly handled. The improvement was found a necessity and the procedure regular but the amount of damages allowed was questioned. It was sent back for a reassessment of damages.

Kalamazoo—A poison gas warfare intended to exterminate woodchucks, skunks, coyotes, wolves and other crop-destroying pests in Michigan has been started in this section of the state by county farm agents and W. R. Baldwin, representative of a large chemical company. The campaign opened in Berrien County this month and continued in Kalamazoo county; and will be carried into every important agricultural county of the state before Sept. 1, it is announced.

Lansing—An order authorizing a rate of three cents a mile on the Detroit United railways interurban system probably will be issued shortly, according to members of the state public utilities commission. A hearing on the petition of the receivers for the D. U. R. for permission to raise rates was held, in which witnesses for the interurbans testified passenger carrying traffic is at its lowest ebb. None of the cities nor communities affected, appeared to protest.

Alma—Announcement of a gift of $45,000 to Alma college, by Mrs. John F. Dodge, of Detroit, for a memorial to John F. Dodge, by President H. M. Crooks, was a prominent feature of the commencement exercises, as the largest class in the history of Alma college completed its college work. President Harry M. Gage, of Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia., gave the address. "The Responsibilities of Leadership," to the graduates, calling attention to those factors, intelligence, morality, great purpose, profound convictions, patience and personality, he said were needed.

Lansing—The preliminary hearing on the recommendations for a shift in telephone rates, which would give Detroit subscribers a five and two-tenths per cent decrease and invoke an average increase of 17.4 per cent in the out-state cities and communities, ended abruptly after Manfred K. Toepfen, engineer for the State Public Utilities Commission, had stated the salient points of his recommendations. Attorneys for Detroit and the out-state cities agreed on September 8 as the date of the next hearing.

NEW ANTI-BOLSHEVICK MOVEMENT LAUNCHED

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS

Paris—Grand Duke Nicholas has become chief of the new anti-Bolshevik movement—not as a Romanoff, it is declared by leaders in the new movement—but as commander-in-chief of the former Russian army.

Many members of the former general staff recently have come to Paris, including General Denikine. These are organized with Grand Duke Nicholas as head of the general staff.

The grand duke disavows any intention to become czar, but says it is an attempt to establish a provisional government.

More significance seems to attach to the movement than to any previous efforts in the same direction during the last few years, because of the interest shown by England and other conservative governments, due to Soviet activities in Asia.

Nova Scotia Liberals Lose

Halifax, N. S.—The provincial elections resulted in a complete landslide for the Conservative party and the end of 43 years' reign of the Liberals in Nova Scotia. Indications point to a new assembly of 41 Conservatives and two Liberals. Premier Armstrong, who headed the Liberal government since 1923, was defeated in his own constituency of Shelburne. The only member of the last government to be returned was Hon. William Chisholm, minister of works and mines, elected in Antigonish.

Speedy Justice for Slayer

Bay City, Mich.—Exactly 24 hours after he had slain Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cady with an ax, Isaac Crevin was sentenced to double life imprisonment by Judge Samuel G. Houghton. Bloodless Revolution Deposes
Greek Cabinet By a Military Coup

Athens—The Greek government, under the premiership of Michalakopoulos, has been deposed and a new government, under military control, is installed at Athens. The revolutionary movement started simultaneously in Athens and Saloniki, when anti-government forces, after a brief and harmless fusillade, seized the telegraph offices and cut communications.

The military movement had been foreseen for several days, but up to the last minute, the government had declared itself confident of the situation and was absolutely convinced of the loyalty of the troops.

General Pangalos and his staff took up quarters at the war ministry, where he assumed the attitude of leader of the revolution and issued orders accordingly. In the meantime the government resigned.

Admiral Hadjikiroakes assumed command of the fleet and is expected to become minister of marine. It is understood that Admiral Coundouriotis intended to resign the presidency, but was dissuaded.

The populace seems strangely unmoved by the event and is evidently becoming accustomed to such coups, which have been increasingly frequent in recent years.

All the leaders of the military movement are strong republicans and are anxious to set up a more democratic government.
