Indoor Baseball League Assured

Also Winter Sports Program Well Under Way.

The representatives of the different organizations expecting to enter baseball teams in the Indoor League met at the High School Monday evening, and organized with the following lineups:

The lineups were determined by getting the different players in the city lined up on the teams according to the strength, thereby making all teams about equal in ability. The committee used the very best judgment possible in picking men for the teams in order to keep any one team from dominating the League. It will be noticed that quite a number of the men on the different teams may be members of two or three organizations, but can only play on the teams as they are listed above. It is planned to limit each organization to fifteen men and substitutions must be made from this list, as approved by the committee, thereby making it impossible for any member of one team to play on another when they are not playing, just because they belong to two organizations.

The secret of a good deal of our interest three years ago came from the fact that the games were started on time, so this year it is planned that the manager of each team will see to it that the manager of each team on the floor ready to play at 7:00 o'clock standard.

Everyone interested in Volley Ball will meet at the High School Friday night of this week at 7:00 o'clock standard time, in place of Thursday evening on account of Thanksgiving, and steps will be taken to organize at least four teams so that these games can be gotten under way at the same time as the Baseball schedule.

The Scout program will be organized next Wednesday night at 6:30 standard at the High School, at which all scouts and prospective scouts should meet, and teams will be organized as to age and size in League form, whereby all boys of scout age and older will have an opportunity of playing some Basketball at least once a week during the winter. The program of Basketball for the older boys will be worked out on Thursday nights instead of Wednesday as planned. Further announcements will be made regarding this a little later.

Measure of the Great

Great men are the ambassadors of Providence sent to reveal to their fellow men their unknown selves. There is something about them better than they do or say. If measured at all, they are to be measured in the responsive action of what others do or say. They come and go, in part a mystery, in part the simplest of all experience, the compelling influence of truth. They leave no successor. The heritage of greatness descends to the people.—Calvin Coolidge.

Romance and Gloves

A curious atmosphere of romance has always lingered around gloves. The knight's gauntlet was the gage in battle, poisoned gloves were used by the Medici in disposing of rivals, perfumed gloves were revered by lovers.

H. S. Opening Debate Won By Charlevoix

The opening Debate of the season was held in the High School Auditorium last Thursday night, Nov. 19. The question under debate was—"Resolved That the Proposed Child Labor Amendment to the National Constitution should be adopted by the United States." East Jordan upheld the affirmative side of the question, having for their debaters Miss Dorothy Clark, Miss Margaret Staley, and Miss Dorothy Hager. Charlevoix upheld the negative side, which was well presented by Miss Frances Martin, Leroy Sanders, and Miss Cecil Pollock. The discussion was a lively one and the case presented by each side was very good. Dean C. C. Barnes, debate coach of the Central Michigan Normal School of Mt. Pleasant acted as Judge. Although East Jordan did not win, everyone felt very proud of the girls and felt that they presented a very good case. Charlevoix did not have an easy victory. The splendid showing that East Jordan debaters made was not due to their efforts alone but to the excellent supervision of Miss Beulah Campbell, debate coach.

This is the first of a series of four preliminary debates being carried on throughout the state by all members of the high school debate league. The work this year is being accomplished through a squad from which a team is picked each time to enter in the debate. It is too early to announce just who will be picked for the next debate. Next week's Herald will contain the announcement of the time and place of the next debate.

Mrs. Frances Ranney Dies at Manistique

Mrs. Frances J. Ranney of East Jordan passed away at Manistique, Mich., last Saturday, Nov. 21st, following a short illness from influenza. Mrs. Ranney went to Manistique about 11 weeks ago for an extended visit with her son, Merritt Ranney.

Frances Josephine Smith was born in Hillsdale County, Mich., May 1st, 1858, her parents being Hannah and Sidney Smith.

On March 3rd, 1880 she was united in marriage to Frank Herbert Ranney at Hastings, Mich. Shortly after their marriage they removed to Charlevoix County, locating near East Jordan, where Mrs. Ranney has since made her home.

Deceased is survived by four sons, viz.—Ralph E. Ranney and Harrison S. Ranney of East Jordan; Merritt Ranney of Manistique, and Lucius S. Ranney of Grand Ledge. Also by two sisters and one brother—Miss Emma A. Smith of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Silas Endsley and Norton Smith of Hastings.

The remains were brought to East Jordan last Tuesday. Funeral services were held from her late home in South Arm Township, Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 25th, conducted by Elder Leonard Dudley. Interment at the Jones Cemetery.

Big Junior Indoor Fair

Friday night, Dec. 4th, starting at 6:00 standard the doors of the school house will be thrown open to the public to the biggest and best Fair ever held in East Jordan.

There will be all kinds of shows—Minstral, Musical Comedies, etc. Bowling Alleys, Shooting Gallery, Candy Wheels, anything in the line of eats, can be purchased such as cider and doughnuts, hot dogs, hamburg, Home Run Bundys, etc.

Then there will be the big Basketball game between Alba and East Jordan High School and big dance after the game. The Band will be there, also the elephants and peanuts.

A Fair for the old and young. Come one, come all. Don't forget the date, Friday night, Dec. 4.

Exchange of Statues

The equestrian statue of George III which stood at Bowling Green, N. Y., was dragged from its pedestal July 9, 1776, and laid prostrate in the dust. The statue being composed of lead was afterward melted and run into bullets and in 1802 the first statue of Washington was placed on the pedestal it formerly occupied.

Venus is both cold and slow. Astronomers claim her day is as long as her year, and her daytime temperature just above freezing.

Smashups At Gaylord

Speeding Auto Driven Into Standing Locomotive At Vanderbuilt.

Two autos wrecked on railroad within 14 hours created excitement over around Gaylord way last week. Friday night at Vanderbuilt, was the scene of some real excitement. The night train on Michigan Central going south had made its stop and received its signal to proceed when an automobile occupied by five men came down the street at a speed estimated at about 50 miles an hour, hitting the engine broadside, totally wrecking the car and breaking the eccentric and knocking the pistons from the engine. West Sudman, one of the occupants, had his leg broken and was taken to the hospital at Grayling. Tebe Londo of Atlanta Pete Growoski of Metz and Clyde Hunt of Hillman, received many minor bruises, while the fifth member of the party escaped injury and his name is unknown.

The only doctor in the village was on a hunting trip and two physicians from Gaylord were called; as well as the sheriff. For more than an hour the train crew worked in extricating the auto from the engine and it was necessary to send to Mackinaw City for an engine to complete the run to Detroit, making the train more than three hours late.

Returning to their homes at Johannesburg Saturday afternoon, William Waters and son Bert, living on a farm near that village, and Neil Downing, son of the hotel keeper of that place, were hit by the gasoline car on the B. C. G. and A., two miles east of Gaylord. Mr. Waters had both legs broken, Bert escaped with minor injuries and Neil Downing being hurt internally with little hope given for his recovery. Waters and Neil were taken to the hospital at Grayling. This crossing is one of the most dangerous in the country.

The railroad car was coasting, making little noise as it approached. Young Waters, who was driving the car, could not see the approaching train until on the track and instead of giving more gas to his car as it was on them, he used his emergency, killing his engine. The automobile was totally wrecked, spilling groceries for a distance of about 20 feet. When the motorman was able to stop his train, the men were placed in the train and brought to Gaylord, where first aid was rendered. Young Waters was able to return to his home at Johannesburg within a couple of hours after the accident.

Webster--Trimble

Word comes to us at a late date of the marriage of Vivian L. Webster and Clayton Trimble, both of Charlevoix, who were united in marriage by the Rev. Harry Allburt of Petoskey, June 27, 1926. They were attended by the bride's sister, Ruby M. Webster and Harold Stueck of East Jordan. Mrs. Trimble left on November 10th, to join her husband at Clearwater, Florida, where they will spend the winter months.—Charlevoix Courier.

Health Sunday November 29th

A nation wide observance on the part of the churches and clergy of America will characterize the last Sunday of this month which has been set aside as Health Sunday. In a vast number of churches a portion of the sermon hour will be given over to a discussion of the crusade against tuberculosis, which is being waged by the National, State, and local tuberculosis associations. The long story of the plague, acknowledged to be the most terrible in history because so unremitting, will be told. The scientific aspects of the fight against the disease and its philanthropic aspects will be touched upon. Clergymen will, almost unanimously, from the pulpits of all denominations unite in urging upon their people the importance of giving their support to the hosts arrayed against tuberculosis.

Health Sunday in Michigan has the active endorsement not only of the clergy but of Governor Groesbeck, who says, "In the daily round of our busy lives it sometimes happens that we unintentionally forget our obligations to the afflicted. It, therefore, seems fitting to me that Sunday, November 29th should be set aside in Michigan, as I understand it is throughout the nation as a day for considering in our churches man's great scourge, Tuberculosis."

Basket Ball Team Wins At Alba

Our High School Boys' Basketball team got off to a good start by winning from Alba High School last Friday night at Alba, score 13-16. This being the first game of the season, the boys did very well considering that they only had one worth while practice before the Alba game.

Coach Wells used seventeen men during the game, three complete teams with two extras. This Wednesday night, our boys play Ellsworth at Ellsworth and Friday at Boyne Falls. The first home game is Friday, Dec. 4, the night of the big Junior Indoor Fair. Everyone try to save Friday, Dec. 4, for a big time at the High School, and see the High School team in action.

Below is the lineup and score of the Alba game:

His Wealth of Learning

Willie was just back from the circus. He bounded into the room with a hop, skip and a jump. "It was great!" he cried. "But what did you learn?" asked his grandmother. "What did I learn?" he echoed. "Just let me tell you. I learned to eat peanuts with both hands. That's what I learned!"

Three Women in New Congress

These three women are members of the Sixty-ninth congress which meets in December, but it is not yet known whether they will get together and form a bloc. Left to right, they are: Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California and Mrs. Edith N. Rogers of Massachusetts.

Educational Week Decided Success

East Jordan Public Schools Observe the Week's Program.

The program for educational week was carried out in full to the satisfaction of both patron and faculty.

Monday being Constitutional Day, special stress was laid on the value of our Constitutional government.

Monday evening the Gerhardt Duo, the second number of our lyceum course, entertained to an almost filled auditorium. The evening program was well received and the closing piano-lecture deserves special mention. The entire program fitted well with the educational plan for the week.

Tuesday patriotism was given special attention throughout the entire school.

Wednesday's afternoon session was dispensed with and the regular session held in the evening, beginning at six o'clock standard. Regular work and classes was carried on throughout the grades and high school, both buildings were thronged with interested visitors. No department or class was missed from the kindergarten up and a general air of satisfaction and good fellowship prevailed.

The exhibit, both of finished and unfinished work in the manual training department was a revelation to many who could not realize such fine workmanship and results could be developed in a high school department.

At the close of the regular work the audience assembled in the auditorium for the evenings entertainment. The first number was a short talk by Mr. Jacklin of the Agricultural Dept. He presented the high school with a beautiful silver trophy, won by a team sent from his department to take part in a judging contest at Traverse City.

Next number was a one-act comedy "A Little Fowl Play" presented by a cast chosen from the Sophomore class. Ruth Clark, Betty Kitsman, Vernal Lopeer, Harry McHale and Cuthbert Barnett. The audience enjoyed the play hugely and the skillful way each person portrayed his part reflected much credit on the coach, Miss Gardel.

The High School Band gave a short but exceptionally fine concert in the closing number. East Jordan is more than proud of the High School Band and the progress they have made is due in a great measure to the excellent management of Mr. TerWee. The concerts given through educational week were keenly enjoyed.

During the evening the Domestic Science Dept. with their teacher Miss Bardwell were busy serving lunches. The members of this Dept. are learning in an efficient manner the art of preparing and serving food well.

Taking up again the patriotic phase of the week the grades staged a pageant, "The History of Michigan" in the auditorium Thursday at 1:30. The pageant was written by the grade teachers for this occasion and was exceptionally fine in singing, costume and verse. Michigan's history was given in its seven epochal stages from 1634, when Nicolet, the first white man came, to 1837 when Michigan became a State. Gwendolyn Malpass personified Michigan in a dignified and pleasing manner. The lower grades and kindergarten passing in review each carrying a flag and solving Michigan. The final grouping made a beautiful and inspiring scene.

The same plan was followed on the West Side both with the Thursday afternoon pageant and general educational program of the week.

Thursday evening a debate was held in the high school auditorium, between the Charlevoix and East Jordan High School. The question, resolved the proposed child labor amendment to the national constitution should be adopted by the United States. East Jordan upheld the affirmative and was represented by the following members of the squad, Dorothy Hager, Margaret Staley and Dorothy Clark. C. C. Barnes of Central State Normal, Mt. Pleasant, acted as Judge. The contest was close and although Charlevoix secured the decision, East Jordan has no reason to feel discouraged.

This was our teams first appearance and the able way they handled the subject called forth many favorable comments, both for the team and the coach Miss Campbell. A squad is being drilled and there is every reason to expect East Jordan to do some fine work in debate this season.

During Educational Week the Temple Theatre co-operated with the school by showing the film America during Wednesday.

Poultry Feeding School

Will Be Held at Boyne City on Dec. 2nd and 3rd.

Plans having been made sometime ago for a two-day feeding school, we are glad to announce that it will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 2nd and 3rd, in the basement of the Boyne City Library, beginning at 9:30 slow time each day and lasting until about 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon. At this time Mr. J. A. Hannah, Poultry Specialist of M. S. C. will discuss all problems relating to the feeding of poultry and possibly other poultry problems if time permits.

We believe it will be a wonderful opportunity for poultry raisers to learn all the details concerning, probably the most important of all—how to feed economically and profitably and realizing that one day would not be sufficient to cover the subject fully, we were fortunate in making it a two-day meeting.

Our only desire is to have all those present, promise to spend the two days as hereafter, if they do not at this date take advantage of the two days, in the future, only one day will be devoted to this subject.

Plan to avail yourself of this instruction in feeding poultry and be at the Boyne City Library promptly at 9:30 a. m. slow time, Wednesday, Dec. 2nd, and bring your lunch with you, if hunger is your big feeding problem.

Evergreens Suffer From Worm Attack

Evergreen trees in resort districts of northern Michigan suffered considerable damage last summer when parasites which normally control a certain measuring worm failed temporarily as a check upon the pests, according to Prof. R. H. Pettit, head of the entomology department at the Michigan State College.

The attacks reported by Prof. Pettit occurred in the north-western section of the lower peninsula, and touched eight or ten counties. Antrim, Leelanau, Grand Traverse and Emmet counties showed the most serious infestation.

Hemlocks seemed to be the first choice of the worms for plant-food, although the following were used freely wherever they occurred with hemlocks balsam fir, arbor vitae, white pine, white birch, soft maple and beech. Other trees sometimes accepted as food were: Norway pine, willow, tag elder, and American elm.

Injury was sufficient in heavily infested sections to cause death of many hemlocks and balsams, while the white cedars suffered defoliation in many instances. The loss is said to exceed that of the timber alone, however, as these trees add much to the beauty of the resort country in which the outbreaks occurred.

Proper spraying will control the worms, although such practice would not be practicable on large areas of forest trees. Near cottages and resort property, the spraying is said to be entirely feasible.

"The insect causing all this trouble is a native geometrid which is always with us," says Professor Pettit. "Usually its numbers are small, but for some unexplained reason the parasites which normally keep it in check are for a time failing to control. It is to be confidently expected, however, that in the course of a few years at most the balance between the pests and their parasites will be established again, and that this enemy of our conifers will again become inconspicuous."

MAKE LIFE WORTH LIVING

Don't go around feeling tired, lacking in energy and strength, because your kidneys are not working properly. The use of FOLEY PILLS, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, will flush your kidneys, remove injurious waste matter and bring the kidneys back to a normal, active condition. "Your FOLEY PILLS are the only thing I ever got to do me any good," writes Samuel Brenner, Alexandria, Ind.—Hite's Drug Store. adv.

Miss Nina Weeks of Camp Wanolda, leaves this week for southern points in the interest of the Camp.

Mr. Fred Sweet and wife of Jordan called at the John, Will, and Earl Farrell homes, the first of the week and found nothing stirring. Nobody home.

People here were quite interested Saturday afternoon in the Michigan-Minnesota football game. Tom Edwards, a Central Lake boy who lived five miles northwest of town was one of their greatest stars, so Central Lake radio fans were pretty well satisfied when the score 35 to 0 for Michigan came through the air.

Antiquity of the Olive

The earliest accounts of Egypt and Greece mention the olive. It was first planted in Italy about 502 B. C. Spanish monks introduced it into California and its cultivation there has since become a great industry.

Educational Week Decided Success

East Jordan Public Schools Observe the Week's Program.

nesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon and evening.

Friday evening our boys played the first game of Basket Ball against the Albion team at that place. Score 13 to 16 in favor of East Jordan. Educational week closed with a special church service, Supt. A. J. Duncanson speaking at the Methodist church on Sunday morning. The subject "The Trench of Modern Education."

He stated not only that there was financial gains to be made by higher education, but also quoted the percentage of leaders coming from the more highly educated as compared with leaders from the ranks of men of no education, the former being a much higher percentage. The world needs leaders and these leaders are ever found in educated nations.

Education leads. In the late war England in the fore citing a Lloyd George, Mr. Bolfour, United States; a Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Coolidge as against Lenine and Trosky of Russia, further stating America can easily afford her present educational system and much more, as only 2.8 per cent of the annual income of American labor is spent on education.

Modern trend is to teach the Bible in the school, leading educators are realizing the value of moral and spiritual development of the educated American and are working to this end. Parents catching the vision of true education will allow nothing to interfere with the fullest education for their children.

East Jordan's educational week was, without question, a success. On no previous year was the attendance so great an interest manifested. The bond between home and school is more firmly cemented and this is the purpose of Educational Week.

East Jordan boasts of her schools, she not only boasts, she "boasts." They have reason to be proud of the school and school system. It is progressive, but not above par. Much of our growth and progress can be justly credited to our Supt. A. J. Duncanson and principal Richard Waggoner. Supt. Duncanson is strong for team work with the school, faculty and parents, and it is team work that delivers the goods.

The Box of Candy

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"THERE is a wonderful candy shop in Victoria," Rogers said to me when I was starting West for my vacation two summers ago. "You'll make a mistake if you don't patronize it."

He gave me the address, and I promised to visit the place and to bring him back a box. I hunted up the place when I got to Victoria. It was an attractive little shop situated on the main street of the city, but the door was closed, and a placard on the door announced: "This shop does not open until twelve o'clock."

It seemed rather strange to me that a man doing a good business should confine his hours of trade to a brief period in the afternoon, but I went back after I had had my luncheon and found the door open.

"How does it happen you don't do business in the morning?" I asked the proprietor, a healthy looking New Englander who would never see seventy again. "It's this way," he explained, "I didn't get into the candy business until I was past middle age. In fact I was never much of a success at what I was doing. My wife made the best candy I ever ate, and when we settled down out here, it occurred to me that if her candy pleased me it was not unlikely that it would please other people."

"She began making it and I sold it, and ultimately she taught me how to do it, too. We opened up a little shop, and I found that she could make in the morning just about what I could sell during the day. We got a good deal more than a living out of it, too. She's been sick for the last two years. We tried hard to get someone who would be willing to take the necessary pains and who would have pride in making the best candy in Victoria, but we were not successful. 'Why, should we want to do things better than other people?' They wanted to know.

"So I make the candy in the morning and sell it fresh in the afternoon and still earn a comfortable living."

"How do you have the nerve to ask the price you do?" I inquired.

"Try a little of it," he said, ignoring my question and laying a piece on the counter before me.

It was very toothsome; it went right to the spot, and I was sorry I had asked the question.

"When you make something better than anyone else does," he said finally, "or do something better, whether you are making a piano or a piece of candy, folks aren't going to quarrel with you about the price."

"Put me up a five-pound box," I said. I have been wondering since why more people don't follow the old man's philosophy.

HASKINS NAMED TO FAIR BOARD

Howard City Publisher Important Cog in Reorganized Body—Starts Work.

(By Ed A. Nowack)

Lansing—James B. Haskins, of Howard City, publisher, postmaster, former field director of The Michigan Press Association, an indefatigable worker for betterment of newspaper conditions in Michigan, and one of the most widely known publishers in the state, will be reappointed next April to the five-year term on the Board of Managers of State Fairs. This is the information that is picked up at the capitol. Mr. Haskins on Nov. 12 was appointed to the board to fill the unexpired term of H. H. Halladay. Coincident with the announcement of his appointment came the information he had been named chairman of the public relations committee of the board.

Newspapermen and men in public life in Lansing and elsewhere see in the appointment of Jim Haskins the much desired inauguration of a modern, competent and thoroughly sympathetic relationship between the fair board on the one hand and the public and the press on the other. These latter two have suffered in the past from devious handling and horseplay by the former management of the fair board. Appointment of Haskins will put an end to the practice the former management frequently exercised by infliction of petty penalties upon the press and public where honest differences of opinion prevailed. Gone, also, will be the alleged dictatorial and autocratic methods frequently employed in the past. The press and the public will be treated fairly, Mr. Haskins says.

Those facts are insured by the first piece of work performed by Mr. Haskins and contained in a statement, issued in conjunction with an invitation to 89 Michigan organizations to attend a future meeting of the board of managers. In this connection Mr. Haskins says:

"In order to make it clear at the outset that the Michigan State Fair is a state institution and shall in the future be such in fact as well as name, a special committee of which I was chairman prepared and issued the following statement of policy at the first meeting of the new board held at Lansing, Nov. 18, after such report received the unanimous sanction of the Board of Managers. This report follows:

"Answering the call of its chairman, the Honorable L. Whitney Watkins, the members of the Board of Managers of State Fairs have met for the purpose of placing the affairs of the State Fair in order so that it will truly represent the agricultural, industrial, educational, public health and other major enterprises of this state and after an investigation of conditions at the State Fair, it is the unanimous sense of this board that a thorough and complete reorganization is necessary and that a very drastic change in policy is the paramount duty confronting the Board.

"It is our opinion that an institution such as the State Fair should first of all be made truly representative of the agricultural, industrial and educational interests of the state. The Fair is located in an ideal locality. Every agency of the state has been tendered its management in order that it might attain a success commensurate with its possibilities and the diversified industries of the state. The possibilities that were open to its management have been sadly neglected with the result that the State Fair has wandered far away from the purposes for which it was originally intended. The State Fair should be made an institution that will reflect the highly organized agricultural and commercial development of the state. To accomplish and make effective the purposes for which it was organized, this Board will soon call together the various interested agencies and co-operate with them in establishing its future policies.

"In line with this suggestion and in the knowledge that these various agencies can assist very materially in bringing this important institution to the front rank of all state exhibitions of a similar character, it is the sense of this board that representatives of the following groups be invited to attend a future meeting.

"Agricultural organizations: County Fair Association, Michigan Farmers' Club, State Farm Bureau, Michigan State Grange, Michigan Glaners' Association, Michigan Milk Producers' Association, Michigan Holstein Breeders' Association, Michigan Jersey Cattle Breeders' Association, Michigan Guernsey Association, Sheep Breeders' Association, Swine Breeders' Association, Horse Breeders' Association, Riding Horse Interests, Crop Improvements Association, Potato Growers' Exchange, Certified Seed Potato Growers, Dog and Rabbit Breeders, Poultry Producers' Association, State Horticulture Society, Bean Producers' Association, Bee Keepers' Association, State Department of Agriculture, Michigan State College, Smith-Hughes Agricultural Schools, County Agricultural Agents, Vocational Schools, Michigan Soil Improvements Association, Michigan Muck Growers' Association, Truck and Garden Crop Growers, State Florists' Association, Michigan Allied Dairy Association, Grain Dealers' Association, Elevator Exchange, Hay and Grain Association, Millers' Association, Bean Jobbers Association, Seed Dealers' Association, Beet Sugar Producers, Cannery Association, Implement Dealers' Association, Fertilizer Industries, Creamery Managers and Owners' Association, Ice Cream Manufacturers' Association.

"Commercial and Manufacturing Industries: Transportation Agencies, Michigan Manufacturers' Association, Automobile Manufacturers, Truck and Tractor Manufacturers, Makers of Home Conveniences, Food Products Manufacturers, Furniture Manufacturers, Household and Farm Equipment Manufacturers, Retailers Association, Lumbering, Mining Road Building.

Lonely "Pass" in Football

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Perfume

One of the best methods for extracting the perfume of flowers is to place the flowers upon pure cold lard held upon glass plates mounted in wooden frames. New flowers are added daily until the lard is saturated. Dissolving the lard with alcohol, an evaporation process follows and the flower perfume remains. Violet perfume so produced is worth about $1,400 an ounce. (© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Little Ladies Wear Rich Velvet Hats

Just as soon as little ladies graduate out of babyish bonnets and into hats, nothing is too good for them. Just now they are being indulged in velvet millinery or in fine felt hats combined with velvet. In all cases the hats are simply trimmed, but they are often intricately made on bonnet-like shapes, like those pictured here. Ribbons and small ornaments of metal or rhinestones trim them, and these ornaments are appropriately childish. For instance, three little rhinestone bears go out to walk on a hat of red velvet and a small silver sailboat is set against the front crown of a blue felt with brim-facing of velvet. Favored colors are red, blue, green and brown, and occasionally small, flat feather fancies are used with ribbon on them.

Numerous Kinds of Taxes.

The average man thinks of taxes in terms of the income tax and lets it go at that. Perhaps he would take a greater interest in the subject of taxation if he would bear in mind the fact that all the 57 varieties affect him, and then put on his desk where he can see it every day the following list: Direct taxes, indirect taxes, property taxes, income taxes, sales taxes, internal-revenue taxes, import taxes, luxury taxes, stamp taxes, gasoline taxes, inheritance taxes, normal taxes, surtaxes school taxes, city taxes, county taxes, State taxes, Federal taxes.

Favors Change In Hunting Law

Lansing, Nov. 20.—Amendment of the state "buck law" to provide hunters who shoot doe will not be subject to the penalty provided if they bring the animals into camp and notify a game warden is favored by John Baird, director of conservation, he said today. Baird believes some such provision is needed to make it possible for hunters to "live up to the law." It would not make things easier for the hunter who shoots at a doe thinking it is a buck, Baird pointed out, because it would be necessary to clean the animal and haul it into camp for the game warden. The same system would be applied to other game killed by mistake during a closed season. Wardens would be instructed to turn the animals over to State or County institutions.

Helping the Farmer

News from Washington is that President Coolidge intends to suggest new legislation for the purpose of assisting farmers through co-operative marketing. There is no apparent idea of any subsidy or anything of the sort, but merely the creation of a bureau to assist these associations in an orderly and profitable marketing of the crops of the country. That there would be no opposition to such a scheme is certain but that there would be much discussion and debate as to the plan to be adopted is equally certain. The leaders of both parties will vie with each other in proclaiming the virtues of the humble tiller of the soil and the readiness of his party to provide what is necessary. This would be followed by long discussions upon the question of what is necessary. In the end let us hope that some measure is finally passed and put into operation which will tend to encourage all farmers to cooperate in the marketing of their products and assist them in securing good prices through the development of an accurate, intelligent service and prompt delivery of perishable products to the centers of consumption.

Now Legal Head Of U. S. Unit

An efficient ally to the prohibition cause in Michigan was recognized when the recommendations of the organized dry forces of Michigan were headed and J. Ernest Converse, assistant attorney general of the legal staff of the office of the national prohibition enforcement administrator for Ohio and Michigan. Not only did his appointment meet with the approval of Michigan, but it was considered most favorably by federal department heads. It is to be recalled that Mr. Converse rendered valuable aid to the government in prosecution of the series of prohibition law violation cases, known as the Hamtramck Liquor Ring Conspiracy cases, in which 41 defendants were convicted in the federal court in Detroit three years ago. Roy A. Haynes, former head of the national prohibition department, and now confidential representative of Brigadier General Lincoln C. Andrews, head of the new prohibition regime, is credited with obtaining the services of Converse for the Ohio-Michigan district. He and R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Michigan, recently held a conference with Mr. Converse in Lansing, and obtained the consent of Mr. Converse to serve the government. Mr. Converse's first task, outlined during a recent conference with E. L. Porterfield, of Columbus, federal administrator for Ohio and Michigan, will be to reorganize the prohibition staff of legal advisers, in both states. He was permitted by Mr. Porterfield to maintain his legal staff headquarters in Detroit in the Lafayette building instead of Columbus where the administrator's headquarters are located. Mr. Converse was born in Lapeer and was graduated from the University of Michigan with the law class of 1902. He began the private practice of law in East Jordan, later going to Boyne City and then went to Bay City where he was in the law business for three years. He then removed his office to Lapeer. In 1919, he was appointed a member of the state attorney general's staff at Lansing, by Governor Alex Groesbeck, then state attorney general. He has continued in this position until the appointment to U. S. government service.

With County Agricultural Agent

SEWING AND HANDICRAFT CLUBS ORGANIZED

Several new Boy's and Girl's Clubs are added to this County as a result of Miss Wixon's visit on Nov. 10th and 11th. These clubs are called winter clubs, as the work is of such a nature that it is carried on during the winter and completed before school end in the spring. For the girls, Sewing Clubs were discussed and for the boys, Handicraft Clubs and several teachers are organizing the two clubs in the same school, thereby giving both boys and girls club work.

In all the schools visited, interest was very evident and we are sure of having somewhere near 10 new clubs as a result. The enrollment blanks have not all been returned to the office, so it is impossible to give the membership as yet. The teachers of the rural school are doing this club work in addition to their regular school duties and should be commended for their interest. These teachers all realize that they can be of great benefit to their particular communities by doing this work, as it is very instructive and educational and will be of great benefit, in that these boys and girls will be working on things of a constructive nature outside of school.

In the Sewing Clubs, the girls learn how to sew, to select the proper materials, to use the various kinds of stitches and to make at least three articles of clothing. In the Handicraft Club, the boys learn all about the tools used by carpenters, the various kinds of lumber, and make several articles, such as Bench Hooks, Necktie Racks, Book Racks, Mail Boxes, Bird Houses, Baskets, Crates, etc.

- Miss Wixon, accompanied by the County Agent, visited the following teachers:
- Miss Thelma Crandall, Boyne Falls.
 - Mr. W. C. Palmer, Clarion.
 - Miss Helen Germond, Bay Shore.
 - Miss Mamie Peebles, Bay Shore.
 - Mr. Galo Chew, Maple Grove School, Bay Shore.
 - Mr. Clive Poquette, Karcher School, Boyne City.
 - Miss Margaret Watson, Phelps.
 - Miss Florence Holland, Norwood School.
 - Miss Mildred Wangeman, Three Bells District, East Jordan.
 - Miss Francis Gould, Star District, Boyne City.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN A CALF CLUB

You all know what a success the 1925 Boys and Girls Calf Club proved to be and that a result of their fine work, three boys were given free trips to the Detroit State Fair. I am anxious to start another Club this Fall along the same lines. However, this year I wish to form the Clubs in smaller groups, so that it will be possible to get the members together more often to discuss with them, their problems. The bankers of the County have promised their support and will be glad to lend a helping hand financially to all worthy boys and girls wishing to be proud owners of a calf. This club will be open to all boys and girls over 10 years of age. For my part, I will aid them in securing calves from high production stock. Didn't it look great to see those 16 proud boys and girls at the County Fair with their calves? How would you like to win the blue ribbon? If you are interested talk it over with your boy or girl and then drop a line to your County Agent at Boyne City, he will be glad to explain the objects, benefits and advantages of being a member of a Calf Club.

RHINELANDER BLUSHES AS HIS LOVE IS BARED

Intimate Details of His Relations With Negro Girl Told.

White Plains, N. Y.—Leonard Kip Rhinelander began to wilt visibly under a merciless, steady cross-examination that dragged from his reluctant lips intimate details of his premarital relations with Alice Beatrice Jones, his negro wife, from whom he now seeks freedom.

He had been subjected to a full day of pounding that had resulted in many contradictions. He had been asked questions that reflected on his gentleness and his sense of honor. He had admitted to a secret marriage pact with the daughter of a negro hack driver as far back as 1922, and had confessed to suspicions of her color. Through it all, however, he clung to his contention that he did not believe she was a negress when he married her.

During most of this grilling Rhinelander kept his poise, but when he was asked question after question about the week in December, 1921, when he stayed at the Hotel Marie Antoinette in New York with Alice, he blushed violently and began to show the strain. Alice, herself, spent the day with her face buried in her coat. "Before I start asking about this matter," said Mr. Davis, "I want you to remember that it was your side that dragged filth into this case."

Washington.—Launching into a bitter attack on charges made by Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne that her husband had protested against the Shenandoah on its last disastrous flight, Lieut. C. E. He emphatically asserted that Lieutenant Commander Lansdowne left willingly and without grumbling on the trip that ended in his death.

Capt. Paul Foley, the former judge advocate, who was relieved, following charges that he had attempted to influence Mrs. Lansdowne to "twist" her testimony before the naval court, appeared as a witness in his own defense and not only denied the accusations against him, but asserted he had not been influenced in any of his actions by either Secretary Wilbur or officials of the naval court.

PRESIDENT OUTLINES PROGRAM AT GOTHAM

Calls on Nation to Join World Court—Pledges Aid to Business.

New York.—President Coolidge charted the course he would have our nation pursue at home and abroad while he is at the helm.

He extolled America's part in the rehabilitation of Europe as the greatest world service of the last five years and bade us go on with that great work.

He called on the United States to join the World court in order to promote "the enlightening processes of civilization."

And he proclaimed a new national program of economic development signifying a radical departure from past policies of government interference with the great corporations.

The President was addressing 1,200 of the foremost business men of the East and their guests at the one hundred fifty-seventh annual dinner of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, an ancient organization that had attained its twenty-first year when our federal government was born.

These distinguished captains of industry and commerce did not conceal their approval of the utterances of the Executive which they interpreted as an assurance that they are not to be persecuted under the Coolidge regime. For they heard the President declare a new deal.

The trusts have been busted and big business chastened, in the view of Mr. Coolidge. We now turn our backs on the destructive processes attending the extirpation of special privilege and enter a period of constructive economic development which the President doubts not will greatly increase even the unprecedented prosperity which he finds the country enjoying.

In his address the President said: "In 1920 wages were 100 per cent above the prewar rates and commodities were 120 per cent above. Last year commodities were only 57 per cent above the prewar rate, while wages were 120 per cent above. The wage-earner receives more, while his dollar will buy more. This is solid progress."

The President's program of that constructive national development comprises these items:

1. Development of inland waterways.
2. Consolidation of the railroads into a few great systems.
3. Improved railway terminal distribution of commodities.
4. Reorganization of the government departments in the interest of economy and efficiency.
5. Further extension of electrification.
6. Elimination of waste in industry and commerce.

In the direction indicated by this national program "lies not only increased economic progress," Mr. Coolidge said, "but the maintenance of that progress against foreign competition. There is still plenty of work for business to do."

Dowager Queen Alexandra Has Severe Heart Attack

London.—Dowager Queen Alexandra of England, mother of King George and widow of King Edward VII, is seriously ill. She is eighty years old. The doctors report that the queen mother suffered a severe heart attack and that there is little change in her condition.

King George and Queen Mary are with the queen mother, having taken up residence at York cottage, Sandringham. The prince of Wales, who is a great favorite of his grandmother, has been an anxious inquirer regarding Queen Alexandra's health.

Queen Alexandra was born in 1844, a daughter of the late King Christian XI of Denmark. Her sister is dowager empress of Russia and her brother the late King George I of Greece. She married King Edward, then the prince of Wales, in 1863, and was left a widow when he died in 1910. The queen is immensely popular in England for her beauty and amiability, but she has lived in retirement since her husband's death.

CHAPTER VII

Oliver Is Worried

Three days later, the sheriff of the county served papers on Oliver October. The prosecuting attorney had refused to lay the matter before the grand jury, as requested by Horace Gooch, but had grudgingly acceded to his demand that an official investigation be instituted, and carried to a definite conclusion by the authorities.

"I want you to understand, Oliver," explained the sheriff, "that this is none of my doing. Gooch has obtained an order from the court, calling for a search of the swamp and your premises, basing his affidavit on the suspicion that his brother-in-law came to his death by foul means and—er—so on. He agrees to pay all the costs arising from this investigation in case nothing comes of it. On the other hand, if your father's body is found, and there is any evidence of foul play, the county naturally is to assume all the costs. The old man has hired two detectives to come down here and take active charge of the work. I hope you won't have any hard feelings toward me, Baxter. I am only doing my duty as ordered by the court."

"Not the slightest feeling in the world, sheriff," said Oliver warmly. "I wish you would do me a favor, however. The next time you see my uncle, please remind him that my offer to give $5,000 if he finds my poor father—dead or alive—still holds. You can start digging whenever you are ready, sheriff. If any damage is done to the property, however, I shall be obliged to compel my uncle to pay for it. Don't forget to tell him that, will you?"

The sheriff grinned. "I wonder if this old bird knows how many votes he's going to lose by this sort of thing."

Oliver frowned. "His scheme is to throw suspicion on me, sheriff. That's what he is after. It is possible that a good many people will hesitate about voting for a man who is suspected of killing his own father."

"Don't you worry, Oliver," cried the sheriff, slapping the young man on the back. "Things are coming out all right for you!"

Fully a week passed before a move was made by the authorities. The newspapers devoted considerable first page space to the new angle in the unsolved Baxter mystery, but not one of them took the matter up editorially.

Notwithstanding the reticence of the press, the news spread like wildfire that Horace Gooch was actually charging his nephew with the murder of his father. The town of Rumley went wild with anger and indignation. A few hot-heads talked of tar and feathers for old man Gooch.

And yet deep down in the soul of every one who cried out against Horace Gooch's malevolence lurked a strange uneasiness that could not be shaken off.

The excitement over the return of Mrs. Sage was short-lived on account of the new and startling turn in the Baxter mystery. Acute interest in the pastor's wife dwindled into a mild, almost innocuous form of curiosity.

Ladies of the congregation, after a dignified season of hesitation, called on her—that is to say, after forty-eight hours—and were told by the servant that Miss Judge was not at home. She would be at home only on Thursday from three to six. Some little confusion was caused by the name, but this was satisfactorily straightened out by the servant, who explained that Miss Judge and Mrs. Sage were one and the same person, and that she was married all right and proper except, as you might say, in name. Mrs. Serepta Grimes, being an old friend, was one of the first to call. And this is what she said to Oliver October that same evening:

"You ask me, did I see her? I did. I told the hired girl to say who it was, and in a minute or two she came back and told me the barefacedest lie I ever heard. She said Mrs. Sage wasn't at home. Well, do you know what I did, Oliver? I just said 'Pooh' and walked right up the stairs and into her room. She got right up and kissed me five or six times and—well, that's about all, except I stayed so long I was afraid I'd be late for supper."

"Did you see Jane?" broke in Oliver.

"Certainly. Do you want to hear what Josephine said about you?"

"No, I can't say that I do. By the way, Aunt Serepta, there is something I've been wanting to ask you for quite a while. Do you think Jane is pretty?"

Mrs. Grimes pondered. "Well," she said judiciously, "it depends on what you mean by pretty. Do you mean, a she beautiful?"

"I suppose that's what I mean."

"What do you want to know for?"

"Wh?"

"I mean what's the sense of asking me that question? You wouldn't believe me if I said she wasn't pretty, would you?"

"Well, I'd just like to know whether you agree with me or not."

"Yes, sir," said she, "fixing him with an accusing eye. 'I do agree with you—absolutely.'"

"The strange thing about it," he pursued defensively, "is that I never thought of her as being especially good-looking until recently. Funny, isn't it?"

"There are a lot of things we don't notice," said she, "until some one else pinches us. Then we open our eyes. I guess some one must have pinched you. It hurts more when a man pinches you—especially a big, strong fellow like Doc Lansing."

A pained expression came into Oliver's eyes. "The trouble is, I've always looked upon her as a—well, as a sort of sister or something like that. We grew up just like brother and sister. How was I to know that she was pretty? A fellow never thinks of his sister as being pretty, does he?"

"I suppose not. But, on the other hand, he never loses his appetite and hopes and has the blues if his sister happens to take a fancy to a man who isn't her brother. That's what you've been doing for two or three weeks. If you had the least bit of gumption, you'd up and tell her you can't stand being a brother to her any longer and you'd like to be something else—if it isn't too late."

"Gee!" exclaimed he ruefully. "But suppose she was to say it is too late?"

"That's a nice way for a soldier to talk," said Mrs. Grimes scathingly.

Oliver saw very little of Jane during the days that followed Mrs. Sage's return. Her mother demanded much of her; she was constantly in attendance upon the pampered lady. Oliver chafed. He complained to Jane on one of the rare occasions when they were alone together.

"Why, you're nothing but a lady's maid, Jane. You've been home five days and I haven't had a chance to say ten words to you. Now, don't misunderstand me. I'm fond of Aunt Josephine. She's great fun, but hang it all, she's right smack in the center of the stage all the time. It isn't fair, Jane. You can't go on being a slave to her. She—"

"She has always had some one to wait on her, Oliver," said Jane. "I don't mind. I am really very fond of her. And she is just beginning to care for me. At first, I think she was a little afraid of me. She couldn't believe that I was real. The other day—in Chicago—she suddenly reached out and touched my arm and said: 'It doesn't seem possible that you ever squallied and made the night hideous for me and your poor father. I can't believe that you are the same little baby I used to fondle and spank when I wasn't any older than you are now.' Besides, Oliver, I like doing things for her. It makes father happy."

"But it doesn't make me happy," he grumbled. Then his face brightened. "Wasn't she great last night when she got started on Uncle Horace and—and all this hullabaloo he's stirring up?"

The fourth day after his wife's return to Rumley, Mr. Sage blurted out the question that had lain captive in his mind for weeks.

"If it is a fair question, my dear, would you mind telling me just why you came back to me?"

She leaned back in her chair and studied the ceiling for a few minutes before answering.

"I may as well be honest about it, Herby," she said, changing her position to meet his perplexed gaze with one that was absolutely free from guile. "I came back because they were through with me over there. I was getting passe—in fact, I was quite passe. They were beginning to cast me for old women and character parts. Two or three years ago they started my funeral services by seeing what I could do with Shakespeare. I was through. My musical comedy days were over. The stage was crowded with young women who could dance without wheezing like a horse with the heaves and whose voices didn't crack in the middle register. People didn't want to see me in musical comedy any longer, and they wouldn't see me in anything else. I'm fifty-three, Herbert—between you and me, mind you—and just the right age to be a preacher's wife. So I made up my mind to retire. You notice, Herby, I didn't cable to ask if I could come home—I cabled that I was on the way. Now, you know the secret of my homecoming. By the way, I've put by a little money—quite a sum, in fact—so you mustn't regard me as a charity patient. We'll pool our resources. And when the time comes for you to step down and out of the pulpit for the same reason that I chucked the stage—why, we'll have enough to live on for the rest of our days. You won't have to write sermons and preach 'em, and I shan't have to listen to them. It's an awful thing to say, but we'll both have to mend our ways if we want our grandchildren to love us."

"He laid his arm over her shoulder and gently caressed her cheek.

"You are still pretty much of a pagan, Jo," was all that he said, but he was smiling.

"But you are jolly well pleased to have me back, aren't you?"

"More overjoyed than I can tell you."

"No doubts, no misgivings, no uneasiness over what I may do or say to shock the worshippers."

"I have confidence in your ability as an actress, Josephine," he said. "I am sure you can play the part of a lady as well as anything else."

She flushed. "Score one," she said. Then she sprang to her feet, the old light of mischief in her wonderful eyes. "But, Herby, what's going to happen when I spring all my spangles on the innocent public?"

"I shudder when I think of it," said he, lifting his eyes heavenward.

"I saved every respectable costume I've worn in the last ten years—and some that are shocking. Twelve trunks full of them."

"Never mind, old dear. I shan't disgrace you. I've got a few costumes I will put on in private for you. Bless your heart, Herby, don't look so horrified. I've still got my marriage certificate—though God only knows where it is."

He cleared his throat. "I've got it, my dear. You neglected to take it away with you when you left."

She smiled. "Well, I daresay it was safer with you than it would have been with me."

It was the fourth week in September when the detectives arrived in Rumley. The city editor of the Dispatch interviewed Detective Malone, the chief operative in charge of what the newspaper man was jocosely inclined to classify as the "expedition."

"Where do you intend to begin excavating, Mr. Malone?" inquired the editor, notebook in hand.

Mr. Malone was very frank about it. "In China," said he. "We're going to work from the bottom up. If you'll go out to the swamp tomorrow and put your ear to the ground you'll hear men's voices but you won't understand a word they say. They'll be speakin' Chinese."

The editor eyed him in a cold, imical manner. "Umph!" he grunted, flogging his notebook shut. "It's a good thing you've got your Chinese army, because you won't be able to get anybody to work for you in this town."

"I guess that's up to the authorities," said the detective coolly. "I'm here to boss the job, that's all."

That afternoon the sheriff and the prosecuting attorney stopped electioneering long enough to pay a hasty visit to Oliver.

Half an hour later they left. Detective Malone and his partner, who had joined the county officials at the Baxter house, remained behind. They were smoking Oliver's cigars.

"How long do you figure it will take you, Mr. Malone, to finish up the job?" inquired the young man.

Malone squinted at the tree-tops. "Our instructions are to work slowly and surely. It may take six or eight weeks."

"In other words, you are not expected to be through before election day."

"Unless we find what we are after before that time, Mr. Baxter," said the other. "It's a big job, as you can see for yourself. Like looking for a needle in a haystack, eh, Charley?"

His partner nodded his head in silent assent.

"We'll go out and take a walk around the swamp tomorrow," said Malone. "If you've got the time to spare, Mr. Baxter, you might stroll out with us now to the place where you last saw your father. Then I'll want to question your servants. It seems that he is supposed to have come home to change his clothes after he said good-by to you."

"He did not say good-by to me," corrected Oliver. "We parted in anger."

"Do you know a man named Peter

Hines, Mr. Baxter?" asked Malone abruptly.

"Peter Hines? Certainly. He is a tenant of my father's. Lives in a shack up at the other end of the swamp. He has done odd jobs for us since I can remember. He also does most of the drinking for the estate," he concluded dryly.

"A souser, eh?"

"I've never known him to be completely sober—and I've never heard of him being completely drunk."

"By the way, have you ever seen me before today?"

"No to my knowledge."

"Well," said Malone, with a twinkle in his eye. "I've been hanging around this burg since last Monday—five days, in all. I'm the fellow that sold Mrs. Grimes the beautiful illustrated set of Jane Austen's works day before yesterday. I also sold an unexpurgated set of the Arabian Nights to Mr. Samuel Farr. He tells me your father carried a $15,000 life policy. I tried to sell a set of Dickens to Rev. Mr. Sage, and succeeded in having a long talk with his daughter. I've had dealings with Mr. Sikes and Mr. Link, Banker Lansing, John Phillips and a number of other citizens, male and female." He laughed quietly. "Of course, the books will never be delivered, Mr. Baxter. Shall we stroll down to the swamp, Mr. Baxter, or would you rather wait a day or two? We're in no hurry, you see."

"This is obvious," said Oliver curtly. "I must notify you, Mr. Malone, that if you or any of your workmen slip into one of those pits of mire out there and never come up again, I am not to be held accountable."

"Right-o!" said Malone cheerily. They were well around the corner of the house on their way to the swamp road before Oliver spoke again.

"You are at liberty to go as far out as you please, however, Mr. Malone."

"I shall," said Malone crisply. "I am an old hand at this business. I don't believe such a thing exists as a bottomless pit. Now, just where was it that you and your father parted company that night As I understand it, you and he sat for some time on that log over there. It was a clear night and the road was very dusty. There had been no rain in over three weeks. Am I right?"

Oliver stared at him in amazement.

The other detective had turned down the slope and was striding off toward the nearest ditch.

"You seem to be pretty well posted," said he, his eyes narrowing.

"Well, I am an inquisitive sort of cuss," drawled Malone. "And I'm not what you'd call an idle person."

"Who told you we were sitting on that log? We did sit there for 10 or 15 minutes. That was before we began to quarrel. Then we got up and walked on a little farther down the road. We stood there arguing for nearly half an hour. But who told you we sat on that log?"

"If you don't mind, I'll not answer that question," said Malone.

"You asked me a while ago if I had seen Pete Hines that night. Was it Peter Hines?"

Malone hesitated. "Well, it was Pete Hines who is supposed to have seen you, Mr. Baxter, but it was not he who told me about it."

Velveteen Useful for Remodeling

The return of velveteen into the modes for children as well as grown-ups is a great advantage to thrifty mothers. Velveteen is liked better in combination with other materials than by itself and this makes it particularly useful for remodeling frocks or coats. Little girls have a way of growing lengthwise at the rate of several inches a year and frocks become too short long before they are worn out. In this case a wide velveteen border set on the skirt, and bands added to the sleeves, as shown in the picture, prolong the usefulness of the frock and double its service.

Velveteen skirts with cloth over plouses or velveteen jackets with cloth skirts, are popular combinations for little girls and plaid fabrics are used with plain velveteen in many ways.

RESCUE ALL BUT ONE FROM BURNING SHIP

167 Persons Saved From Liner Lenape—Craft Ablaze From Stem to Stern.

Lewes, Del.—Rescued from the blazing Clyde liner Lenape while the flames from its flaring superstructure lit up the water of the Delaware breakwater, 867 persons, all but one of its passengers and crew, were safely landed here at the end of a frantic 10-mile dash from the sea.

One man, Robert Leverton, sixty years old, of 17 Factory place, Williamst, Mass., lost his life. He leaped from the burning vessel when flames burst through the deck and was drowned. His body, with a life belt about the knees, was found by a fisherman.

The ship is believed to be almost a total loss. In the early morning hours, while passengers and crew leaped from her or slid down lines to the safety of rescue boats, she was swept with flames from stem to stern. She was scuttled inside the breakwater.

More than a dozen persons, most of them passengers, were hurt or suffered from exposure. None was seriously injured. Many of those brought ashore, including a number of women and children, were scantily clad. The Presbyterian church was thrown open to receive them.

SCHOOL DAYS

THE ONLY THING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MAN need not with his mind dispute Nor with his heart debate; The Lord has laid him out his route, And laid it pretty straight. It's oftener rather hard to see Which road the pleasantest will be, But every fellow knows at sight Which road, of all life's roads, is right.

What else need anybody know? And what is there to talk? We know the road we ought to go, The path we ought to walk; And though we hem and though we haw, And wisely talk about "the law," Man needs no lawyer to decide, With his own conscience for his guide.

We may not know which path will pay The largest pay in gold; Not always it's the narrow way, Or so I have been told. But what has that to do with it?— Although we hesitate a bit, In our own hearts, and all along, We know the right road from the wrong.

One road has pleasure all the way, And some are rock and fire, And some a recompense will pay A Midas might desire. But, though we sometimes hesitate, And with our conscience would debate, We know the right, both I and you— And that's the only thing to do. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

YOUR Last Name

IS IT THATCHER?

THERE are several names beginning in Thack and Thatch that recall to mind a trade that was once usual but which today has practically passed out of existence. This is the trade of making thatch roofs or thatching. Thackery and Thackway probably meant thatched-way. Thackwell meant thatch-well and was probably applied to one who was reputed to be a good thatcher. Thake and Thack mean simply thatch, while Thacker, Theaker and Thackster, are variations of Thatch.

The first of the name here was Thomas Thatcher, first minister of Old South church in Boston. His father was Peter Thatcher, who was rector of St. Edmund's parish in Salisbury, England. Thomas came in 1635, went first to Weymouth and then to Boston.

PATER—This is not derived from the word meaning father but is a variant of Peter.

ROSE—There are many possible derivations for this name. In fact there are many different Rose families, which may have gained the name in many different ways. In this country of late years Rose has been taken as a shortened form of many German names beginning with Rosen, such as Rosenberg, Rosenbaum, names usually possessed by Hebrews. However Rose is a good old English name. It is sometimes akin with Row, when it is a descriptive local name. Again it may have been derived from a first name Rose or Rosamond. Often it was a sign name. John at the Rose, for instance, would have been a tradesman who did business in a shop at the sign of the rose. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

WHO SAID

"All Is Lost Save Honor"

THESE words are attributed to Francis I. King of France, when he learned that his armies had been defeated by those of Emperor Charles of Austria, and that he would be forced to forfeit a large part of his dominions.

Francis I was born in 1494 and died in 1547. He ascended the French throne in 1515, having succeeded his uncle, Louis XII. He laid claim to the city of Milan, and in enforcing his claim, defeated the Swiss on the plains of Marignano and forced the reigning duke, Maximilian Stroz, to acknowledge his claims.

In the year 1519, Francis became one of the competitors for the empire of Maximilian but the choice fell on Charles of Austria, the grandson of Maximilian, and from that time on the two monarchs were bitter rivals. Charles assumed the title of Charles V, and his armies and those of Francis I, were continually warring. Both sought the aid of England and the support of the English government was, at different times, with Francis and then with Charles.

It was with the idea of cementing the friendship existing between him and the king of England that Francis I invited the English monarch, Henry VIII, to an interview which took place near Calais. Francis spared no expense to see that this affair was the most magnificent that had been staged and money was spent so lavishly in arranging the details of the meeting that the place where it was held has been referred to as the "Field of the Cloth of Gold."

In the year 1521, war broke out between Francis and Charles and Francis was finally taken prisoner. He was granted his release only on condition that he renounce his claim to some of his greatest possessions. A later war in which England sided with Francis prevented the carrying out of these demands of Charles, but soon after this Francis found himself engaged in another war in which the fickle king of England sided with Charles. Peace was concluded at Crespy, very fortunately for the worn-out armies of the French monarch. (© by George Matthew Adams.)

BELL-EXPANSION MAY REACH TOTAL OF $23,000,000

PRESIDENT KUHN ANNOUNCES HEAVY CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM FOR MICHIGAN.

WIDESPREAD GROWTH OF SERVICE

Toll Lines to Expand $2,400,000, Local Lines, $7,100,000; 40,000 Telephone Gain Expected.

Francis C. Kuhn, president of the Michigan Bell Telephone company, makes the announcement that it is planned to spend approximately $23,000,000 for telephone plant expansion in Michigan during 1926, according to present estimates, and that it is probable that the estimates of total expenditures between now and 1930 will be raised a considerable amount. Michigan is prospering and its industries are expanding which, with the very rapid growth of business and population in the towns and cities of the state, and the growing demands being placed on the long distance circuits, are given by Judge Kuhn as the reasons for the heavy expenditures projected.

Telephone plant expansion during the next five year period will bring the Michigan Bell's book value of plant up to about $180,000,000.

Billions of Feet of Wire. Gross additions to the company's exchange lines next year will approximate $7,100,000, it is expected, with gross additions to the toll and long distance plant of $2,400,000. The company's program of expansion calls for the annual installation of close to two billion conductor feet of wire in cable alone.

Michigan is expected to make a net gain of 40,000 telephones next year. Net gain the next five years will be close to 212,000, it is anticipated. That will mean connecting 701,000 telephones, the difference being accounted for by disconnects and move orders. Judge Kuhn states that an average of more than 58,000 telephones is involved in move orders each year, each move meaning a disconnect as well as an installation. In five years, therefore, there will be a total number of disconnects almost equal to the number of telephones now in service in Michigan.

Large additions of the latest types of central office equipment—both mechanically and manually operated—are included in the Michigan Bell's extensive program for next year. The 1926 program calls for the establishment of Kalamazoo as a machine switching exchange through the installation of complete mechanical central-office equipment, while new manual central office equipment is planned for Allegan, Buchanan, Belding, Grandville, Lapeer, Niles, Plymouth, Ypsilanti, Trenton, Roseville, Redford, Iron Mountain, Wyandotte and elsewhere.

Extension of the Company's public pay station service in many cities and the addition of several large private branch exchange systems for various industries and business houses, additions to still others and the building of more trunk lines between existing central offices are included in the 1926 program, also.

Expand Toll Facilities. Plans for the expansion of the toll and long distance plant call for the expenditure of more during 1926 than in any other one year in the company's history—the $2,400,000 mentioned above. Hundreds of miles of new long distance circuits will be added and much of the mileage of new wire will be in cables. For several years past there has been a rapid and steady growth of the long distance plant and various methods of handling the traffic with speed and high grade of efficiency have been adopted. Special facilities have been added for handling and speeding the growing volume of long distance traffic between Detroit and Toledo, Detroit and New York, Grand Rapids and Chicago, Grand Rapids and Indianapolis, Grand Rapids and Milwaukee and Ann Arbor and Chicago, and from other points through these toll centers. These facilities will be added to during the coming year. Ad-

Army-Navy Trials Clash Over Expert Air Witness

Washington.—The army court-martial trying Col. Major Kennedy was questioned by the Mitchell court-martial as to many technical details of aviation, supporting Colonel Mitchell's theory that the use of calcium chloride in the Shenandoah's motors had a destructive effect on the dirigible's framework.

Admiral William S. Sims, retired, told the court-martial that the trouble with the navy was ignorance on the part of high ranking officers, due to lack of modern special training such as could be given by the naval war college.
