Firemen Lose To Methodists

And The Presbyterians To K. P.'s Last Monday Night.

The strong Firemen team slipped a cog last Monday night at the High School gym and took a bad beating from the Methodist Fellowship by a score of 17 to 10. Jack McKinnon did not seem to be working as good as usual with poor support behind him and poor hitting at the plate they could not overcome the lead that the Methodists had accumulated in the first couple innings. Bun Whiteford pitched his best game of the season and seemed to have the Firemen at his mercy. The Methodists battery seemed to be hitting everything that was delivered up to them with Swafford and Snyder being on the heavy ends. Shepard played a good game on second nabbing everything that Chirp Swafford pegged to him, thereby catching three or four men on second. This makes seven games won and three games lost for the Firemen with a percentage of 700. This is their final standing as they have no more games to play. Next week the Holy Name play the Masons at 7:00 and if they win, they will be tied with the Firemen for first place but if they lose to the Masons it will leave the Firemen in first place, Holy Name in second, and Methodists and Masons tie for third.

The Presbyterians sprung a big surprise on the K. P. team in the second game of the evening by battling them neck and neck up to the final half ninth, when the Presbyterians came back with the score tied 9 to 9. A wild pitch by Kowalske let in Malpass with the winning run, thereby giving the Presbyterians the game by a score of 10 to 9. The game was a hard fought affair from start to finish with both teams playing good ball. Duncanson and Kowalske both pitched good ball, but Duncanson had a little better support behind him. This takes the Presbyterians out of a cellar position where they are replaced by the K. P.'s. Below are the standings of the teams up to March 15th.

Team	Won	Lost	Percentage
Firemen	7	3	706 Final
Holy Name	6	3	666
Methodists	5	5	500 Final
Masons	4	5	444
Presbyterians	4	6	500 Final
K. P.'s	3	7	300 Final

Next week the final game will be played, with the Masons playing the Holy Name at 7:00 o'clock, and if the Firemen are still in first place, they will play an All-Stars team at 8:15. It looks now as though the Presbyterians, K. P.'s, and either the Masons or Methodists will have to put on the feed for the three winners above. The games will continue every Monday night for the rest of March with a series between the K. P.'s, and Masonic teams.

Amateur Gardeners To Study Problems

Michigan's amateur gardeners, a class said to include a great majority of all the home owners in the state, will have an opportunity to study the particular problems of their "home" plantings during a special gardening short course which is to be given at the Michigan State College from March 22 to 27.

The program for the week's course includes everything from the proper laying out of the small grounds from the landscape point of view, to detailed cultural study on vegetables, flowers, and shrubs. House plants, window boxes, and even the control of insect pests will also be taken up in the "school."

That many women-folks, as well as the men gardeners of the family, will be interested in the gardening short course is the opinion of Prof. V. R. Gardner, head of the M. S. C. Horticultural Department, which is sponsoring the course. Emphasis on flowers and on the small home vegetable garden should appeal to the housewives.

This year will mark the first time that the school for "amateur" gardeners has been offered at the college.

China may be old-fashioned but she manages to keep a war going.

Well, since Lady Cathart has been admitted into the country we suppose the United States is safe for nobility.

When the roll is finally called there will be plenty of people ready to disrupt the proceedings in order to have an argument.

Ladies Clubs Favor High School With Assembly Program

Following their custom of favoring the High School with assembly programs at least once a year. The Improvement Club and Study Club have each, respectively, presented their programs for this year.

The Study Club program was rendered as usual on Lincoln's birthday. It consisted of Music by the Study Club Chorus; a paper by Miss Ethel Crowel, Pres., on a Chinese Essay on Lincoln; Music by the High School Orchestra; Reading of the 2nd and 3rd prize winning essays by Marjorie Somerville and Carl Weaver; a duet by Mrs. Duncanson and Mrs. Waggoner; Reading of the prize essay by Helen Hammond; and the presentation of the Medal and prizes by Mrs. Palmiter. This program is put on each year as a fitting conclusion to the Lincoln Essay contest conducted by the Study Club.

The Improvement Club program which was to have been put on some ago, was postponed until this week because of the inability of some of the members to be present at that time. The program consisted of a piano trio, by Mrs. A. J. Suffer, Mrs. Geo. Bechtold, and Miss Drusilla Shaw; a piano solo by Mrs. A. J. Suffer; a paper by Miss Agnes Porter, History and worth of our two greatest magazines, The Ladies' Home Journal and The American. As a fitting conclusion to such a program, Miss Shaw sang a solo to which the students demanded two encores.

The schools exceedingly grateful to these clubs for their entertaining and worthwhile while program and hopes that the practice may be continued in the future.

Joseph M. LaLonde Passes Away

Joseph Moses LaLonde passed away last Saturday, March 6th, at the home of his niece, Mrs. Arthur Farmer, of this city, after a lingering illness from cancer.

He was born at County Grey, Canada June 20, 1857, his parents being Moses and Mary Delena LaLonde. When six years of age he came with his parents to Detroit, residing there a year, then removed to Northport, and in 1867 they came to East Jordan.

In 1882 he was united in marriage to Miss Josephine Moblo of Atwood. To this union one son was born, Ira E. LaLonde. Mr. and Mrs. LaLonde located in Bellingham, Wash., where Mrs. LaLonde passed away in 1909. Mr. LaLonde returned to East Jordan for a year, then removed to Clarksville, Arkansas, where he was united in marriage to Mrs. Sarah Steveson on June 9, 1911. Mrs. LaLonde passed away in East Jordan in 1923.

Deceased is survived by the son, Ira E. LaLonde of Washington, D. C., and three grandchildren. Also three brothers and three sisters:—Moses LaLonde of East Jordan; Gus LaLonde of Pentwater; Thomas LaLonde of Detroit Mrs. Eliza Roberts of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Hattie Bush of Detroit and Mrs. Nancy Burnett of Boyne City, besides many other relatives.

Funeral services were held from St. Joseph's Catholic Church, of which he was a member, last Monday, March 8th, conducted by Fr. D. M. Drisan. Interment at the Catholic Cemetery.

Brighton—Fire originating in the barber shop in the Brighton Inn, a large frame structure, completely destroyed the building. The loss is estimated at $15,000. Equipment in the building used as a waiting room for bus passengers was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy, and consisted principally of material from the original Brighton Inn, which was gutted by fire last New Year's day. The loss included lunch counter equipment valued at approximately $7,000.

Detroit—Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris, addressing the Detroit Open Forum recently, said that "Standardization is the real calamity of education. The isolation of the individual has destroyed the character building value of the school. There is not enough intimate contact between pupils and teachers, especially in the higher institutions of learning. Dr. Little is to be commended for his attempt to break down the aloofness between students and professors at the University of Michigan."

The losing side never thinks much of arbitration.

Opera Season Opens Up on the Farm

High School Play Proves Very Successful

On Wednesday night, March 3rd, the Athletic Association Play was presented in the High School Auditorium. Due to the same enthusiastic efforts of the Sophomores, who sold tickets, a capacity crowd was on hand to witness the dramatic efforts. The Sophomores had been divided into two teams and the losing team was to give a party and as neither side was particular about giving the party, each sold plenty of tickets.

The play was directed by Miss Grace D. Gardei, Foreign Language Instructor. Miss Gardei deserves much credit for the success of the play and is to be congratulated on her cast selection and complete stage settings, and the stage technique shown by the players. Only those who have coached a play realize how much time and patience are necessary.

From first to last the characters seemed to be well chosen. Carl Wright leading man, was perfect in all respects but one, he was not dramatic enough in his love scenes. Ardith Richardson, leading lady, displayed marked ability. Lucille Bartlett, the fixer in the play, was extra fine. Edd Carr was a brother and lover of all and he looked and acted the part. Isabel Lintner as the grand little old woman of the play was her energetic, jerky and soothing self. The orphans were just too pathetic and dear for words, except Bob Pray and he was a real boy, freckles and all.

The full cast is as follows: Carl Wright, Ardith Richardson, Lucille Bartlett, Dorothy Joyn, Delvin Best, Richard Hipp, Edward Carr, Marjorie Mackey, Glyde VanDeventer, Ruth Chadsey, Isabel Lintner, Earl Jackson, Howard Snyder, Reva Williams, Dorothy Clark, Fredrica Shaw, Isabel Kitzman, Evelyn Webster and Robert Pray.

Port Huron—Annabell Jereau has obtained a divorce from Leo Jereau who is in Marquette prison, charging cruelty. Judge Eugene F. Law at one time placed him on probation charged with larceny, after his wife had pleaded for him, saying that he had stolen to procure food for their month-old baby. A month later Jereau was before Judge Law again. This time he was sent to Marquette. Annabell says she does not want to be linked up with Leo anymore, and doesn't care to wait until he gets out.

Lansing—Separate suit against the State of Illinois and the sanitary district of Chicago has been filed by the State of Michigan in the United States Supreme Court. The action was taken by Andrew B. Dougherty, Attorney-General, who was one of the first to characterize the Chicago drainage canal plan a "steal." The bill of complaint to the Supreme Court concludes with a plea for an injunction by that court "restraining Chicago from taking any water whatsoever from Lake Michigan and its natural tributaries."

Ypsilanti—The Michigan Central Railroad is to pay $10,000 to Judge D. Z. Curtiss, administrator of the estates of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dingman, according to the terms of an agreement signed here. The money is to constitute a trust fund for the three orphaned Dingman children, Marie, 4 years old, Iva, 2 years old, and Dona May, 3 months old. Dingman was taking his wife and eight day-old baby home from a hospital when his auto was hit by a train. Dingman died the next day and his wife a week later.

Drive Them Out

With the coming of the spring season the countryside will again be overrun with bands of Gypsies, who infest particularly the rural districts and smaller country villages. Having no visible means of support, they wander about the country exacting a toll of thievery wherever they go, a general practice being to carry along with them a bevy of dark-hued handmaidens whose particular job is to separate the susceptible citizen from a portion of his bank roll under the guise of fortune telling and other mystic practices. Hardly ever, when a complaint is made are they made to do more than return the amount of their pilferings and a command from the officials to continue right on their way into the next county. A good way to deal with this gentry would be to demand jail sentence when they are apprehended in their nefarious practices. A little of this kind of treatment would rid the state of their presence, a thing to be desired in view of the tourist business which is becoming an important part of Michigan summer, and who do not want to be compelled to camp along our highways at the mercy of these wandering hordes.

Don't Cash Checks

"Never cash a check for a stranger," is the timely warning that is being broadcast by the Retail Credit Men's Association throughout Michigan and Ohio, two states that have been literally sown with spurious paper during the past two years. The crooks engaged in the trade of passing forged checks are clever, to say the least. Outfitted with safety paper, check writing machines and rubber stamps of prominent firms, they are able to produce checks so close in resemblance to the genuine that not even bankers are able to detect them until they have received advice from the firms on which the checks are supposedly drawn. Local merchants are warned to look out for this clever tribe. No sooner is one method of entrapping the unwary uncovered before they come forth with an entirely new scheme to gain the confidence of their victims. Far better to lose a small sale occasionally by refusing to cash checks for strangers, than to wake up some morning and discover you have been added to their long list of victims.

Detroit—Clubwomen who "run to the jail with a bouquet and a box of oranges" and "pester" jail authorities by asking for the release of hardened criminals were called no torlety seekers by J. H. Russell, professor of economics at the College of the City of Detroit, in an address to members of the Detroit Federation of Women's Clubs at a recent meeting of the legislative group at the federation club house.

Grand Rapids—"I just did this for a bluff, to see if I could get away with it," Ray Perkins, 30 years old, a boxer, is said to have told police following his arrest for investigation of how he came into possession of two checks for 3,500 each. Police say he forged the checks and that he attempted to deposit them in the Grand Rapids National bank, proposing to withdraw $1,500 in cash. The checks were made out to J. V. Wicklund, of Traverse City, a bond salesman.

The chorus girl who was placed in a bathtub of wine probably that she'd wandered into a plumber's convention by mistake.

What About Fertilizers

Points To Consider In Buying For Different Needs.

At this particular time of the season it is very important to think about what kind of fertilizers are necessary for the farm, what kinds to buy for different crop needs, and what the benefits will be. For the purpose of assistance in knowing what to buy and the various points to be considered, the following discussion of fertilizers is submitted.

Fertilizers are used to supply available and necessary plant food to the soil for growth and maturity of crops. Of the ten essential plant elements in crop production, only three are important considerations in Michigan, because the supply of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash, in an available form are apt to be deficient in Michigan soils. Sometimes only one is the limiting factor. Sometimes all three are limiting.

In addition to the above mentioned three elements, the calcium or lime content is often deficient, especially in the carbonate form or limestone, as shown by acid soils. In many cases the correction of the lime content will be all that is necessary to harvest larger yields. All grain crops, truck and vegetable crops and especially leguminous crops are particularly benefited by any farmer. Get in touch with your neighbors and get orders for a carload, or see your co-op Manager about lime.

The three different plant foods can be returned in the form of leguminous green manures, which adds nitrogen; in the form of barnyard manure, which adds all three; or in commercial fertilizer, which adds from one to three of these elements.

In buying fertilizer, the first consideration should be the crop to be fertilized; the next should be the soil with the addition of limestone. Fortunately this County can get limestone from Petoskey at $1.00 per ton F. O. B. in carload lots in bulk, which is surely very reasonable. By all means test your soil for acidity, if acid the best fertilizer you can buy is this limestone and from one to two tons per acre will increase your yield from an almost failure to profitable production. A Soiltest Outfit can be purchased for only 25c from the County Agricultural Agent and can be used in testing for acidity its supply of available nutrients; a third should be the soil management practices, including the use of lime, farm manures, green manures and crop rotations; and the fourth consideration, the analyses of the fertilizers. The latter means the ratio between nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

Nearly all the soils can use a high percentage of phosphoric acid, but the response to nitrogen and potash varies. The heavier soils certain larger amounts of nitrogen and potash than the lighter sandy soils. If a good system of soil management is followed, including the use of both barnyard and green manure the nitrogen and potash are pretty well taken care of. Phosphoric acid is about all that will need to be added. On sandy lands very often all three ingredients are needed, particularly for potatoes, sugar beets, beans and truck crops. In nearly all cases however, the percentage of phosphoric acid should be highest.

Sufficient manure is not produced today to meet the plant food requirements. In one year, manure only returns 50 per cent of the nitrogen removed by the crop, 35 per cent of the phosphoric acid, and around 50 per cent of the potash. It is true that good crop rotations, including the turning under of leguminous crops will take care of the nitrogen, but the other two will have to be returned in commercial fertilizer.

Nitrogen is called a one year fertilizer as usually succeeding crops do not gain much from its application, for it leaches very easily and is quickly used up. Nitrogen shows good results when soil is sweet, but not so much with acid soil conditions. Potash is not very important where plenty of manure is available. However, it is very often advisable to use fertilizers carrying as high as 6 per cent potash on potatoes, sugar beets, truck crops, beans, alfalfa, sweet clover and some of the other clovers.

Phosphoric acid is very important and should contain a higher percentage than potash, or of nitrogen for that matter. Phosphorus and potash are retained in the soil and furnish food for many succeeding crops, hence are reasonable to buy. Of the three elements, phosphorus in the form of acid phosphate will make the best dividend when only one element is used in the fertilizer.

When considering the analyses of fertilizer you must take into consideration the units of plant food present, the ratio of these units and the cost of each unit, remembering that one unit means one per cent per ton. For instance a 1-8-3 contains twelve units of plant food, a 3-12-4 contains 19 units and 16 per cent acid phosphate contains 16 units. The prices of these units remain about the same each year, or at least have for the last three years and are as follows: Nitrogen per unit as expressed in ammonia is $3.65; phosphoric acid 85c per unit and potash 80c per unit. This is on the mixed goods basis. So if you bought a 3-12-4 fertilizer the three units of nitrogen would be (3 x $3.65) the 12 units of phosphorus (12 x 85c) and the 4 units of potash (4 x 80c). If nitrogen can be furnished in any other way than commercial fertilizer, that is the way to get it, as it is by far the highest of the three elements.

The high analyses fertilizers are the cheapest per pound of plant food and should always be purchased in preference to fertilizers containing less than 14 total units. Last year, fertilizers that contained only 10 units of plant food cost the farmer on an average of $29.50 per ton or 14.7c per pound of plant food, 15 units of plant food cost $32.90 per ton or 10.9c per pound of plant food, 20 units goods $39.95 per ton or 9.9c per pound of plant food. As the price per ton goes up the prices per pound of plant food went down, so be sure that you get high analyses fertilizers, as they are cheaper than the cheap fertilizers. A high analyses fertilizer is one that contains at least 14 units. The buyer of commercial goods should learn to buy by analyses and use only high grade goods. There are more different kinds of fertilizers than one can imagine in Michigan today, but there are only 14 standard analyses which are: 2-12-2, 2-16-2, 3-12-6, 4-12-0, 4-8-6, 2-8-16, 0-12-12, 0-8-24, 3-12-4 and phosphate, nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia and muriate of potash. These will meet the requirements of any system of farming in Michigan.

Almost every farm presents an individual problem, but in general the 2-12-2 and 2-16-2 are used for all grain crops and sometime beans and beets. The 2-12-6 or 0-12-6 are used on grain when alfalfa or sweet clover is seeded with it, as these two legumes thrive on a higher potash content. The 3-12-4, 2-12-6, 4-8-6, or 0-16-0 are good for potatoes, beets, beans, etc. The 4-8-6 is chiefly used on truck crops. The 2-8-16, 0-12-12, and 0-8-24 are used on muck soils. Many times acid phosphate is used alone with fine results. No certain rules can be laid down, but in general using these analyses, you cannot go wrong.

Your agent has several copies of a fertilizer bulletin, which gives the fertilizer recommendations for all soils and crops and other information that will help you with your problems. Merely send your name and address and one will be forwarded to you.

- As a summary of points:
1. Buy fertilizer by analysis and not by Brand name.
  2. Buy only high analysis goods, they are cheaper per unit plant food.
  3. Insist on high percentage of phosphorus.
  4. Buy nitrogen only when it cannot be supplied by manures and legumes.
  5. High potash is not essential. See that phosphoric acid is higher than potash.
  6. Buy only fertilizers that are mixed properly for the particular crop or crops.

Co. Agr'l Agent.

Lansing—The Department of Conservation warns all fishermen in the Lake St. Clair district that spearing fish through the ice became illegal March 1. This covers all of the connecting waters between Lake Huron and Erie. It still is permissible to use five ice lines in taking fish but this method of fishing must stop April 1.

Owosso—Osmer Arnold, 59 years old, Middlebury Township farmer, pleaded guilty to a charge to cruelty to animals and was given 30 days in the county jail. Steps also were taken to have his five children taken from him. They range from three months to eight years in age. Arnold drove one horse to death, and starved two others, officers say.

Gobles—Barking of a German shepherd dog led John Gilbert, a passerby, to discover the body of Peter Bramble, 70 years old, who died of apoplexy, while sitting before the fire in his home near this village. Gilbert's timely arrival is believed to have saved the life of Mrs. Bramble, a helpless paralytic, who has been bedfast for years and was dependent on her husband for food.

Pontiac—Archibald McGill, Pontiac chiropractor, is defendant in a $10,000 damage suit in which Mrs. Clare Whittaker, of Auburn Heights, charges malpractice. Mrs. Whittaker says McGill burned one of her legs with a diathermic electrical treatment machine Oct. 16, 1925, causing an injury which has made her lame. She testified the burn is on the under side of her right leg at the knee and caused a contraction of the muscles.

Owosso—The State Health Department soon will announce a prophylaxis for scarlet fever, Dr. C. C. Young, of the department, told members of the Shiawassee County Medical Society. He said that as soon as the antitoxin is perfected, it will be distributed free to the physicians. Dr. Young declared that the research work in perfecting prophylaxis had been slow because tests had to be made on human beings, as animals, ordinarily used for such tests, did not respond. Ann Arbor—Dr. Arthur Robertson Cushman, former professor of materia medica and therapeutics at the University of Michigan, died recently at his home in Edinburgh, Scotland, according to word received here by members of the university faculty. Dr. Cushman was instructor in Michigan from 1883 to 1905, going from there to the University of London, England, and then to a faculty position at the University of Edinburgh. He was the author of many books on medicine.

Grand Rapids—A telegram has been received by Charles Holden, collector of internal revenue, instructing him to defer action regarding collection of income tax from domestics. The telegram, according to Mr. Holden, said a letter would follow giving more explicit instructions as to subsequent steps by the collector's office. The telegram was the result of a protest against action of Deputy Collector W. J. Mickel requiring domestics to file returns, counting their board and room as equivalent to $10 a week.

Lansing—Mrs. Lucile Burgess, 83 years old, died in a hospital of burns received when a newspaper that lay on her lap became ignited from a stove near which she was sleeping in her chair. Neighbors who saw the flames rushed into the house and smothered the blaze with rugs taken from the floor, but Mrs. Burgess died within a few hours. The woman was alone in the house at the time, as her son and daughter with whom she lived were at work. She had been an invalid nearly 50 years.

Flint—A quarrel which had its inception in an upbraiding he received for failure to deliver a load of coal as promised and its culmination in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Nina Evans, resulted in the conviction on a charge of manslaughter of William Ely. Ely said that when he called at Mrs. Evans' home she "went into a tantrum" over his failure to deliver coal and that when he laid a gun which he carried on a table, she made a movement toward it and he seized the weapon which he said was discharged accidentally in the struggle.

Pastel-Colored Wool Jersey for Tots' Bloomer Frocks

If grownups have a flare to their frocks, why not those of little folks as well? That is exactly what the designer of the little bloomer dress in the picture must have been thinking, too. For, sure enough, here it is, a circular flare cut, and isn't it just as cunning as a cunning can be? Such a simple little bloomer frock it is, for the mother who sews a bit, to make for her child.

What this wee spring dress lacks in ornamentation it makes up for in color, for it is fashioned of wool jersey in oh! such a bright carrot shade. Rose-blush, carrot, peppermint, nile, pencil, and Italian blue, flamingo, peach, oatmeal, maize and phantom red,—and yet the list is not all told of colorings in which wool jersey is making its spring appearance. Those who create the mode are all enthralled over this fabric for coats and dresses for little folks.

DON'T OVERLOOK A GOOD THING

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala. comes this letter containing a valuable suggestion. "I feel like a new man since taking FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. Can sleep all night, soreness in my chest is gone, so is the bad cough. My whole family use it for colds and colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling in throat, nervous hacking, and puts a soothing healing coating on a raw inflamed throat. Don't overlook FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR.—Hite's Drug Store. adv.

Masons Nosed Out K. P.'s

And The Firemen Beat Presbyterians, Monday, March 1st.

[This article was received Thursday noon, March 4th—too late for publication in current week's issue.—Ed.]

The strong Firemen team with their old reliable battery of Jack McKinnon and Hank Kamradt on the firing line blitting on all six cylinders easily defeated the Presbyterians in the first game of the evening at the High School gym. Jack seemed to be going exceptionally well, getting more than his usual number of strikeouts and seemed to have the Presbyterian batteries at his mercy at all times. The game was not very interesting from the spectator's standpoint but did show that the Firemen will make a bold stand for copying first place at the end of the season. Capt. John Seiler of the Presbyterians went in as pitcher in the fifth inning but due to the fact that he did not get all the syrup off of his hands from his days labor he did not seem to have much on the ball. In fact, the Firemen seemed to have no trouble in hitting all of the Presbyterian twirlers.

In the second game of the evening, the Masons staged an uphill battle against the strong K. P. team and finally merged out with a victory. They were one run behind at the last half of the seventh but Balch and Cook delivered two singles and got on bases and with the heavy end up they were brought in thereby winning the game. Watson started pitching for the Masons but gave way to Sedgman in the third who finished the game for the Masons. There was heavy hitting by both teams with Bechtold on the heavy end for the Masons and Whiteford for the K. P.'s.

The season is drawing to a close fast now and there are only two more weeks left and both of these will see some hard fighting on the part of all teams left in the running, as the three losers have to put on a feed for the three winning teams. It looks as though the Firemen and Holy Name will battle it out for the first and second places, with the probability of a dark horse for third place, and a tie for the remaining places. Next Monday night, March 8, the Methodists vs. Firemen at 7:00

Presbyterians vs. K. P.'s, at 8:15.
Below are the standings up to March 8th.

	Won	Lost	Percentage
Firemen	7	2	777
Holy Name	6	3	686
Methodists	4	5	444
Masons	4	5	444
K. P.'s.	3	6	333
Presbyterians	3	6	333

Chicago Dry And Wet

Dr. Edward Holt Hughes, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church for the Chicago area, in an address before the Detroit Pastors' Union, in session February 9, said:

"I have lived in Chicago for nineteen months and have traveled all over the city, both at night and daytime, and I have seen only three intoxicated men in the streets in all that time. This record could never be reached in the days of the saloon."

Time To Beware

The opening of the tourist season will soon be here and with it the enthusiasm that is always evident among the business men of the summer season for fear they are not doing all in their power to bring in the visitors. Hard on the heels of this enthusiasm will come a horde of solicitors urging the expenditure of money for worthless advertising schemes. If a hard and fast rule is adopted by all business men not to invest in any of these fly-by-night propositions until approved by the business associations of the community, or with a committee appointed to investigate the matter, they will save themselves considerable money.

Poor Seed Corn

Farm organizations throughout the state are sounding a warning against the peddlers of poor seed corn, who are said to be plying their trade among the farmers of Michigan. It is claimed the corn being offered for sale was grown outside the state and will not ripen in time to be harvested. It is a good plan to buy your seed corn at home from a reliable dealer—it will save you probable loss of your crop next fall.

All that the twelve apostles seemed to have lacked is the magnificent look of the fellow that comes along and tries to tell us what is the matter with the universe.

A Great Organization

The more we see of the work of the boy scout organization the more we think of it.

The set ideals of cleanliness, courtesy, service before the boys of today is to establish these things in the men of tomorrow.

Every boy has within him a strong strain of native decency. If he is wrong it is because there is some particular force or circumstance working to make him that way. A boy responds to good influence ten times more readily than to bad influences.

The boy scout organization gives predominance to the clean, strong, the healthful, the inspiring.

The Benefit Of Lower Taxes

The stupendous growth of taxation in recent years is seen in the statement that the cost of government up until three years ago was just twice what it was a little over a decade ago. For every dollar raised by taxation Uncle Sam gets a little over thirty-nine cents, and the problem now confronting Congress is to lower this cost to the taxpayer, the work being undertaken without regards to party lines. So far splendid progress is being made, our taxes now taking about three days per month and not the one day per week as it was three years ago. The example being set by the Federal government should be followed by the state, municipal and county officials, who have to deal with the remaining sixty cents of the taxpayer's dollar. Rigid economy in national, state and local government will result in releasing millions of dollars for industrial enterprises which will bring about tremendous public benefits. The road to lower taxation is the great highway to increased wealth and prosperity for the nation.

$500 Buys a Closed Car

If you plan to spend over $500 F. O. B. Factory for an automobile, you can get the year-round comfort and convenience of a Ford closed car.

The price advantage which the public enjoys in purchasing Ford cars is the result of volume production. In 1920, when the Ford Motor Company was producing approximately only a million cars a year, the Ford Touring Car sold for $575. Today, with production on the basis of nearly two million cars a year, the Tudor Sedan, a high quality all-steel closed car, can be purchased for $520—$55 less than the Touring Car sold for six years ago. Open car prices are correspondingly low.

While this program of price reduction has been carried on, important refinements and improvements have been made in Ford cars. The latest improvements include new and attractive body lines—a lower center of gravity, closed cars in color, all-steel bodies, new brakes and new style fenders.

However, the basic features of Ford design have not been changed. Three point motor suspension, planetary transmission, dual ignition system, torque tube drive, multiple disc-in-oil clutch, splash lubrication, thermo-siphon cooling system—outstanding features of automobile design—have all been retained, regardless of cost.

warmly. "And you spoke to her?

Prithee, Robert, what manner of maid is she? A lady?"

"Yes."

"She should be an exquisite chit,

Robert. She has good blood in her.

Her mother was a younger sister of the duke of Leitrim, and her father's father was a younger son of Lord

Donegal. She will be much to the fore when King James returns to Whitehall."

"If he does!" I jeered. "I marvel that you should use so hardly a maid of such birth."

"Hardly? Why do you say that?"

"Oh, an end to your shabby deceits and subterfuge!" I shouted. "I ha' told you already I know she is to be dragged aboard your ship when you take the Santissima Trinidad. I could stomach your treatment of me, Murray. But to expose a slip of a girl, scarce more than a child, to life on this floating hell and the attentions of Flint and his lambs!"

My great-uncle pursed his lips.

"What a vehement youth! As to the maid's inclusion in our scheme,

'twas manifestly of the chiefest importance that Colonel O'Donnell's connection with me be not suspected.

And the best way to cloak that was to have his daughter accompany him."

"But why?" I persisted. "Why all this devious deceit? Why mix a young maid in an unsavory intrigue? Why make her father disloyal to his master?"

Murray flushed crimson.

"He is not disloyal to his master," he replied with his first show of anger. "Colonel O'Donnell's master, my master—are, your master—"

King James! What doth O'Donnell care for the paitry Spaniard who sits in the palace at Madrid? What do any of us care for the Spaniards, who have not been men enough to live up to their declarations of support of the Stuarts? Boy, are you a fool!"

There was that about his rage which beamed my own and awakened again the reluctant admiration which puzzled and embarrassed me. What was it my father had said of him?

"He is sincere in a queer, twisted way."

Fast doubt, he was. I sensed a warped nobility of mind which stirred me to sympathy and pity. I felt of a sudden as if our places had been reversed, as if his white hairs were mine, and his my unlined face.

"Perhaps I am a fool," I said. "Yet if I know nothing of your plan and so am inclined to misconstrue it, whose fault is that?"

He dropped knife and fork and fixed me with his eyes, so marvelously alive and bright in their setting of crow's feet and wrinkles, so luminous with youth.

"Those are the first words you have spoken which have had any tinge of kindness to them," he answered. "This my fault you are so far ignorant, Robert, and I will endeavor to repair the error. I did not seek to delude you when I told you I carried you from New York because I needed your assistance, and that is so far true that I admit without hesitation I must have your help before I can achieve aught of my future plans for bettering your station in life. In fine, Robert, I need you at this time being more than you can need me; and your hostageship with Flint is but the least of the services I hope for you."

"That is frank," I replied. "And I will match it. I have told you I'll not help in piracy; nor will I. The taking of this treasure ship is—"

"Bide, bide," he interrupted. "Before you commit yourself further let me tell my story."

He left the table and took from a cupboard in the wall a rolled map which he spread upon the table between us, shoving aside the plates and glasses to make room for it. I saw at a glance 'twas a chart of the Caribbean sea and the Spanish main and the islands which stretched from the top of the Floridas to the Brazils.

"This is for reference," he remarked. "My story begins in Europe, and we require no map for that. Your father, Robert, was a stout Jacobite at your age. He has since changed his convictions; but well say nothing on that score. I, on the contrary, was born a Jacobite and am one still, heart and soul. I shall never rest until the Hanoverian usurper has been displaced."

"I was on the other side of Africa when I first had word Prince Charles had raised the White Cockade in Scotland in the '45. I sailed for home, as you have heard, and was many months too late to be of service. But I established touch with friends in France who work for the cause, and so learned that the good work was going merrily on. All that is wanted for another rising is money—gold!"

He paused, and a slow, strange smile shadowed his face and he drew a finger across the map on the table.

"I said I would tell you a story," he went on. "But after all 'tis only a dream—a wicked old man's dream, Robert. 'Tis so you think of me, I know—and your father—and Peter there—and I wonder what the little maid you spoke of would think! Or the poor, throneless old king who huddles over his brazier for warmth in the dreary palace in Rome that is all he has left of his majesty! Or Prince Charles, who flits back and forth from France to the Low countries, scheming and plotting and always curbed for lack of—gold!"

"Gold! We stumble for lack of it in every enterprise. With sufficient of it you may upset kingdoms, buy pardons, obtain patents and honors and place. 'Tis a definite substance, mark you, hard and shining and heavy in the hand—not such thistle-down as dreams are made of."

"When was the thought born? I cannot say. Flint and I had often sought the yearly treasure ship, but never had sight of her. Then one day the idea came to me to utilize my Jacobite friends in France and Spain. A bribe, which I supplied, procured for O'Donnell, already an officer on the regular establishment of the Spanish forces, appointment as an inspector of fortifications on the ports on the Main."

His forefinger explored the chart before us and came to rest upon a dot on the flank of the narrow neck of land which joins the two Americas.

"There is Porto Bello, which was the port of the old treasure galleons and discarded as such by the Spaniards after Morgan sacked it. But later they restored and strengthened the fortifications, although in the late war our Admiral Vernon carried it by surprise. At that time Cartagena was the treasure center, and when Vernon attempted it he was repulsed with loss. Two years since the council of the Indies decided to resume sailings from Porto Bello, which is the most advantageously situated of all ports on the Main for the collection of the treasure."

"See! 'Tis about midway betwixt Mexico and Peru, and the mines of Veragua are at its back door. The treasures are fetched south from La Vera Cruz by a ship under escort of the Guarda Costas and transferred at Porto Bello to the ship for Spain, which puts forth about the beginning or middle of September."

"This is a strong ship and well manned, but the Spaniards have been taught by centuries of experience to accept no risk for her. Her identity is never known in advance, even to her captain. He sails from Cadix for the Main under sealed orders which he doth not open until mid-Atlantic is passed, and these orders do but carry him to Porto Bello."

"Then how shall you have word of her sailing?" I broke in, swept off my feet by the rush of this amazing narrative.

"That is O'Donnell's task. He will reach Porto Bello during the summer and be so concerned for the state of the fortifications that he'll refuse to leave until he has put them in defensible condition. Whilst he is there he will receive dispatches from Spain summoning him home on urgent affairs. He will elect to embark upon the treasure ship because she is large and commodious and likewise safe. And thanks to his position, he will have accurate knowledge some days in advance of her sailing date. When he has obtained this fact he will convey it secretly to one Diego Salvez, an agent I maintain in that port. Diego, by O'Donnell's help, will get out of town and put to sea in a fast sloop he hath in a little river near where was the ancient town of Nombre de Dios, so that we shall have sure tidings of the Santissima Trinidad's coming—and be prepared for her."

"But what of her course?" I scrutinized the map. "There are three separate exits from the Caribbean into the Atlantic."

"You have clapped on to the nub of our problem," said Murray. "'Twas the piece of information I was at most pains to obtain. The Santissima Trinidad will head for the Mona passage. I will show you why. The first aim of the Spaniards is to conceal her voyage; she sails a course which keeps her as much as possible in open seas. And the best exit for that purpose is the opening between Hispaniola and Porto Rico."

"My intent is that the Royal James shall ply off the westerly mouth of the passage from about the end of August, avoiding all intercourse with shipping and keeping as far out to sea as is practicable. When Diego appears we will restrict the space of our beat, and 'twill be impossible for the treasure ship to escape us. If she runs we can catch her, and at fighting I can take any don under a ship-o'-the-line."

"So much I heard you declare to Colonel O'Donnell aboard the brig," I said. "But what comes next? You take the Santissima Trinidad—and then?"

He moved his forefinger over the surface of the map and brought it to rest in front of a tiny outline sketched in ink on the expanse of sea east of Cuba and somewhat to the north of Hispaniola. Northward of this spot stretched the far-flung myriads of the Bahamas.

"That is what you have heard Flint and me refer to as the Rendezvous, and Spigglass island," he answered. "It has other names, I believe. Some have called it Treasure Island, although I know of no treasure upon it. 'Tis said that Kidd discovered it, and certes, others of the old-time buccaners were wont to maintain themselves there. We are bound thither now to reef and careen, and when we have the treasure safe under hatches we will return to the island to divide it and concert arrangements for delivering their share to Colonel O'Donnell's friends."

"What will Flint say to your fetching in strangers to your hiding place?" I asked.

A furrow deepened betwixt my great-uncle's lambent eyes.

"He'll not like it, Robert," he admitted. "I have O'Donnell's word to betray none of our secrets, and indeed 'tis to his own interest to keep hidden his part in this affair; but Flint may well make trouble. 'Tis a determined dog, and a greedy. Look you, boy, will you stand by me in the affair? For the girl's sake, if for no other reason?"

"Why not leave her aboard the treasure ship?"

He regarded me askance.

"It may be we must sink—"

"I started up."

"Now, that I'll ha' naught to do with! I ha' told you I'd fight if you butchered the defenseless."

He waved me back.

"Peace, peace! We cannot carry off all the Spaniards in any case, and—"

He hesitated.

"O'Donnell must be protected," he concluded.

"Against what?"

"Wagging tongues. I tell you his part must never be known. The Santissima Trinidad disappears, and with her the treasure and all her company. There's no other way."

"Take the treasure, if you must," I retorted; "but do not stain your hands with the blood of men who have not harmed you."

"I must slay some of them, in all probability," returned my great-uncle. "What difference between that and slaying all?"

I remembered the thrill of reprobation with which even the most devoted adherents of King George had heard of the butchery of the Scots wounded after Culloden.

"There's but one thing to do," I said. "You must make pretense of bearing off the daughter, and you can imprison the father, too, in order to silence his objections."

"A fit role for a pirate captain," mused my great-uncle. "El Captain Rrip-Rrip and how he devoured the virgin! I can hear the stories that will be told in the Havana wine-shops. But I must have my price, Robert. If I spare such Spaniards as escape our great guns and the boarding-cutlasses, will you agree to stand back of me in the division of the spoils with Flint?"

"I'll not become lieutenant in your piracies, if that be your meaning," I returned.

"No; my meaning is plain, boy. I wish you and Peter to help me to get clear of Flint with the O'Donnells and their portion of the treasure."

"But why return to the Rendezvous at all? Bear off with the O'Donnells and land them and their treasure before you deliver Flint his share."

"'Tis not so simple as all that. The action with the Santissima Trinidad will require cannonading, and that will be heard. Probably we shall be seen sailing away. We may be pursued. The surviving Spaniards, whom you will have me spare, will speedily have their frigates after us. We must remain under cover for a period."

"Very well," I said. "I will do what you ask for the maid's sake—if Peter is willing."

"Ja," assented Peter.

Murray caught my hand in a quick, firm clasp.

"Good!" he cried. "'Twill be the first of many times we stand shoulder to shoulder. Ah, Robert, I ha' dreamed a splendid dream, and any man who helps in its achievement will not have lived in vain. We'll take this gold and build an avenue of victories for the king's ride to Whitehall. What will you not do? We'll rouse the claymores from the hills! We'll carry the Irish brigade to London town! We'll fetch home the Wild Geese from their haunts of exile! We'll ha' the beacon fires ablaze from end to end of the Three Kingdoms! And the White Cockade over all!"

"There'll be no talk of pirates then! 'Twill be my lord duke of Jedburgh, marquis of Cobblelaw and Earl and Baron Broomfield; aye, and an English peerage to boot. We'll ride high, Robert—aye, with the highest!"

He broke off short, and the glow in his eyes charred out.

"'Tis not a bad vision for a wicked old man to dream; eh, boy? Remember it when you hear the crowds a-cheering us in the Strand."

CHAPTER VIII

The Island

One day was like another aboard the Royal James, although to a landsman the routine of duties, work and varying weather was charged with unending interest. My great-uncle held his pack of wolves on a short leash and exacted from them all the efficiency of a man-o-war's company.

Each morning he inspected the ship from stem to stern, accompanied by his officers, and he was not slow to administer rebukes for shortcomings or oversights. Later in the forenoon the men were exercised at the great guns, and in the afternoon there was pike and cutlass drill. The watch was rigorously maintained.

My great-uncle was particular that I should be well garbed, and forced upon me several suits of his abundant wardrobe which were given the necessary alterations by a former journeyman tailor who had escaped from Newgate on the eve of execution for the murder of a scolding wife. He would have done as much for Peter also; but the Dutchman refused to be parted from his salt-stained buckskin shirt and leggings; and an odd figure Corlaer made, in all conscience, striding the decks of the Royal James in the costume of a forest-runner, even to the knife and hatchet hung on either thigh.

To the west of the Bermoothes—within sight of which we never came—we encountered the Walrus again, Flint having had substantially the same experience as ourselves, and thenceforth we continued in company. We were eleven weeks out of New York when a cluster of rocky peaks soared above the heat-haze dead ahead.

My great-uncle, after a single squint through his object-glass, handed the instrument to me.

"'Tis the island," he said. "I'd know those peaks anywhere."

The double lens etched distinctly a rugged spread of land, shelving up out of the sea from a succession of yellow beaches on the east to a series of small hills which culminated in a range of considerable height along the westward side, running almost due north and south. The interior seemed to be heavily forested;

the trees climbed the mountains within the last few hundred feet of their summits, which were bare rock, precipitous in the case of the midmost and highest, a cloud-hung glut which dominated the island.

Nearing its shores, I descried the tangled masses of trees which clothed most of its surface. A few conifers shot up to goodly stature, but the greater part of the forest growth was gnarled, wind-tortured dwarfs, misshapen abortions of trees. The whole effect of the place seen from offshore was sinister and forbidding, repulsive as the silent ferocity which emanated from the blind man Pew.

My great-uncle turned over the conduct of the ship to Martin and crossed to where Peter and I stood, staring about us.

"Starboard, Master Martin!" called my great-uncle, as he joined Peter and me. "Starboard your helm, if you please. Aye, on to this shoal here. We shall have three fathoms and less to careen in. Bid them drop the anchor."

Martin bawled an order. A whistle piped, and there was a great clatter and rustling of rope running logs, a mighty splash that drove the birds in tumult into the air; and the Royal James swung to her cable close under the lesser island's shore. My great-uncle waved one hand over the bulwark.

"Skeleton Island this is called, Robert," he said. "I tell you because you demonstrate so grewsome an interest in the more horrifying episodes of our past. But I regret I must confess that I know of no authentic detail to account for the nomenclature. Pirates have a way of naming a spot to suit themselves, without rhyme or reason, if the fancy once moves them."

"May we land?" I answered, ignoring his gibe.

"Suit yourselves," he returned with a shrug. "I must have all my men busy aboard here, however, and can spare none to guide you."

"Ja, ja," urged Peter. "We shoold some goats, eh?"

"If you please," agreed Murray. "Ben Gunn will find you a brace of light muskets preferable to our rack-blunderbusses. I'll have the gig put overside, and you may row yourselves, if you will. I desire above all things, Robert, to deal gently with you. Therefore I ask you to believe I am considering your own safety when I require your promise to be aboard again not later than an hour after sundown."

"Why, what harm—" The Walrus slatted past us, her canvas in a slovenly mess aloft and a dozen men howling orders and counter-orders from poop, waist and fore'side. Flint in his red coat strutting the poop and adding his own bellow to the din whenever the confusion showed signs of dissolving.

My great-uncle's eyes strayed across the narrow gap of water betwixt the two vessels.

"Well, damme, it's been a — of a voyage, Murray!" shouted Flint.

"We are here," returned my great-uncle urbanely.

"Aye, and what to do wi' ourselves?" Flint called back. "Blast me for a — if I can see what five hundred — are to do wi' months on their hands, and naught but rum-drinking' and quarrellin' for diversion."

"There's your ship to clean, man," replied Murray. "She needs it."

Flint answered with a curse.

My great-uncle indulged in one of his essentially Gallic shrugs and dusted a pinch of snuff into his nostrils.

"Captain Flint doth not agree with me, it seems. But to return to your question. You were about to ask me what harm could befall you ashore. I answer you that I do not know, but that in all candid truth we are here, to quote my associate, some 'five hundred —', and accidents may happen. Therefore, I suggest that you be aboard not later than an hour after sunset. On second thoughts, Robert, I regret that I shall be unable to permit you to leave the ship save upon your parole on those terms."

"You have it," I answered shortly, and followed Peter down the side-cleats into the gig.

We rowed up the estuary for the mouth of the little river which we had seen from the James' deck, and our course took us under the yellow hull of the Walrus. A shrill voice hailed from a gunport, and Darby McGraw's red head was thrust out beside the frowning black muzzle.

"Glory be, Master Bob, and do they let ye go free wherever ye will? Sure it's yourself must be one of the grand favorites over you. Are ye an officer yet?"

I was about to answer him when Flint gloomed down at us from the towering poop.

"Come aboard here, my hearty," Flint hailed me.

"We are going ashore," I answered; "and I have reason to hasten."

Flint scowled.

"Well, ye'll come soon enough. And when I get ye I'll learn ye a thing or two! There's too much politics and favoritism aboard the James to suit me, and ye can tell your great-uncle or granddaddy or whatever be may be, blast him for a — — — that John Flint says so!"

Darby bobbed up on the poop beside him very much out of breath.

"Troth, he's no more'n the old master's son that I worked for in New York, captain darlin', and him that good to me always I had a main likin' for him, indeed and indeed I did! And I'm fair crazy to be ashore after the weeks and months we'll ha'—"

Flint clapped him on the shoulder abruptly jovial.

"Ah, if it's ashore ye'd be that's a different matter," says he. "I'm for goin' ashore myself. Bill, call all hands away for the boats, and we'll have a grand goat-hunt up Spy-glass. John Silver shall barbecue 'em for us. And break out a couple o' caiks o' rum. Lively now, my lads! We'll enjoy ourselves like the honest pirates we are!"

A frenzy of cheering answered him, and I backed water with my oars.

"You heard, Peter?" I said over my shoulder.

"Ja; dot's bad!"

"We can't go where they do."

"Neeen."

"We ran our boat aground on a sandy bank on the far side of a point which concealed us from the Walrus. Then we took our guns and walked inland through the trees up a graduated sandy slope to the top of a little hillock."

"This would be a good place for a fort," I mused.

"Ja," said Peter. "You got water, too?"

He pointed to a streak of green vegetation along the sandy slope of the knoll which we traced to a spring issuing from the summit.

"Now we got water, we better eat," he added.

"But what about the goats?" I cried. "We were to—"

"No," he insisted stubbornly; "we don't shoot. If we shoot, der pirates hear us and come. We wait until they are all ashore. Then we go back to Murray."

"I'll not be driven from the first pleasure we have had in months," I protested childishly.

"We do it again," replied Peter placidly. "Next time Murray he come wit' us, himself, ja."

"Yes, but—"

"Now you be sensible, Bob. Der Injuns is good friends beside them fellers, ja. We go back to der James. Soon all o' them be ashore and drunk. Drunk, they like to kill us, but they can't row—neen."

And we rowed back to the James ingloriously in the dusk, the shouts of the Walrus' carousers echoing to us from the shore.

RESULTS THAT LAST!

Proven by East Jordan People.

Thousands of kidney sufferers have tried remedy after remedy with only temporary benefit. That's mighty discouraging! But one kidney remedy has earned a reputation for lasting results and there's plenty of proof right here in East Jordan.

Read the experience of one who used Doan's Pills years ago and now makes her endorsement even stronger.

Mrs. Henry Ribble, Bridge St., East Jordan, says: "I had a lameness in my back and when I stooped, knife-like pains took me across my kidneys. I felt nervous and depressed and headaches and dizzy spells were frequent, too. I saw Doan's Pills advertised and I used a few boxes from Gidley & Mac's Drug Store. They cured me." (Statement given April 23, 1920.)

On Oct. 11, 1924, Mrs. Ribble said: "The cure Doan's Pills made for me has stood the test of years. It is a pleasure to recommend them."

New York state is voting a similar law that will either force the vote or compel the voter to pay ten dollars for each failure.

East Jordans Masonic Indoor base ball team and the Independent team from the same city invaded the Gym one evening last week and won 16 to 5 and 17 to 2 from our teams. We are not peeved at all. We will soon have a team eating raw meat for conditioning purposes then we'll see.—Boyne Citizen, March 9th.

A special team has been selected from the varsity Debating Squad of Western State Normal to tour the middle west. #### What America Cost

A Chicago authority offers facts to show that the first voyage of Columbus cost only $7,000 in terms of our present currency. Queen Isabella did not bear the whole cost, for two brothers, Martin and Vincente Pinzon, donated two vessels and considerable money to the expedition. Columbus drew a salary of 1600 pesetas, or $300 a year.

Preserving Pewter
Many persons who are acquiring now and then a few pieces of old pewter will find that it is wise to wash this ware in warm, soapy water after using it, then to dry it off with a little wheat bran and a soft cloth. If it is very dirty, a paste made of whiting and alcohol will clean the pewter if rubbed in well. Rub the pewter afterward with a soft polishing cloth.

MAY RAISE PRICES ON FARM PRODUCTS

Leaders Offer New Plan; Ask Government for Loan of $250,000,000

Washington—Legislative action to meet the demands of agriculture by providing means of raising the prices of farm products in the domestic markets of the United States, has taken definite form. At a hearing by the house committee on agriculture, corn belt delegates and representatives of leading farm organizations agreed on the terms of a bill to control surplus farm products and effect price stabilization. The bill, drawn up by the Des Moines corn belt committee of twenty-two, was submitted to the house committee for the consideration of congress.

Although in the main the provisions of the bill are along the lines laid down in the Dickinson measure, it goes much further. It provides that the government shall advance $250,000,000, or as much more as may be required for a "revolving fund" to operate the price-raising machinery. Reimbursement of the government is provided for in money to be contributed by the producers.

The plan of operation proposes that a farm board appointed by the President shall cause the price of farm products to be bid up to levels which will mean reasonable profits for the producers. Provision is made that any losses resulting from the purchase of surpluses in the home market at the bid-up prices, and sale abroad at lower world prices, be met from funds provided by the collection of "equalization fees" from the producers.

In the case of live stock prices, congress may be asked to make the packing concerns public utilities, or to stipulate that the charges for the services they perform shall be regulated by the board so as to give a reasonable profit only. This provision is similar to the power of the Interstate Commerce commission, which allows railroads to make rates yielding average profits of 5% per cent.

The bill calls for the formation of a federal farm advisory council of five representatives in each of the twelve federal land bank districts, the representatives to be elected by farm service organizations. The body, which is to serve without remuneration, is empowered to nominate three persons from each land bank district, from which the President is to choose one each to form the federal farm board of twelve members. The board's responsibility is to operate the price-raising machinery through farmers' co-operative organizations or other agencies.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS

The year 1925 was the most prosperous the Philippine government has experienced since the slump that followed the ending of the World war. It is semi-officially stated that when the books are balanced the revenues will show a surplus over expenditures of approximately $3,500,000.

The condition of Gen. John J. Pershing, after two weeks' treatment by medical and dental specialists in Walter Reed hospital, has returned to normal.

The Navajo Indians of Arizona must pay half the cost of a $200,000 bridge across the Colorado river near Lee Ferry, the senate decided in finally approving the conference report on the $425,000,000 deficiency bill.

Granting of honorable discharges to soldiers who enlisted during the World war and who were dismissed because of misrepresentation of age, is provided in a bill passed by the house.

President Coolidge feels that it is up to congress to determine whether the "lame duck" session immediately after each congressional election should be abolished, and if a resolution-proposing a constitutional amendment to this effect is passed by both houses he will approve it.

COOLIDGE'S FIRST YEAR IN OWN RIGHT

President Is Now Enjoying Excellent Health.

Washington—President Coolidge has rounded out his first year as occupant of the White House in his own right. In all he has served more than two and one-half years as chief executive, his elevation to that office upon the death of Warren G. Harding preceding by nineteen months his inauguration last March 4 as a President elected by the people.

Reviewing the last year, President Coolidge has the satisfaction of realizing that two of his major recommendations for congress—adherence to the world court and tax reduction—had been acted upon.

He was hopeful that a number of other legislative proposals he has sponsored will be enacted into law before the close of the present session.

A loser in his fight last spring to have Charles B. Warren of Michigan confirmed as attorney general, Mr. Coolidge faces a possible rejection by the senate of three other nominations, those of Wallace McCamant of Oregon, who nominated him for vice president at the 1920 Republican convention, to be a federal circuit judge; Thomas F. Woodcock of New York, to be a member of the Interstate Commerce commission, and Charles W. Hunt of Iowa, to be a member of the federal trade commission.

The White House grind which has worn down more than one President apparently has had no ill effect on Mr. Coolidge. He is enjoying excellent health, having recovered from the cold which sent him to bed recently for two days. He weighs as much, if not more than he did on entering the White House, although he takes no outdoor exercise except evening strolls through the business section of the capital, and goes through a daily ordeal of shaking hands with dozens to hundreds of visitors, apparently enjoying it.

Oma'ha Sniper Pleads Insanity; Killed Two

Omaha, Neb.—Insanity, the plea which is so popular among killers in Chicago, is to be the defense of Frank Carter, the sniper who terrorized Omaha with his little .22 rifle equipped with a silencer. He has already pleaded "not guilty."

Carter is under the observation of state alienists who say he is exceptionally cunning. He will be prosecuted for first degree murder and the state will ask the extreme penalty, which is death in the electric chair.

Among Carter's victims were Dr. Austin D. Searles, a wealthy Omaha physician, and William McDevitt, both of whom were shot to death through the brain while peacefully at their business. Walter Peterson, a young man, was shot at and missed so narrowly that the bullet clipped his lip. His subsequent speed in getting out of the vicinity doubtless saved his life.

Coolidge Sees Prosperity

Washington.—President Coolidge sees no menace to the continued prosperity of the country in the drastic slump in the stock market. On the contrary, he believes that the fall in the price of securities had a wholesome and stabilizing influence which left the market on a more sound foundation.

Chicago Highwaymen Busy

Chicago.—Three daring raids by Chicago criminals in one day netted $80,000 in cash and $85,000 in merchandise. Nine men in flesh-colored masks held 50 employees of the paymaster's office of the International Harvester company helpless and escaped with the pay roll of $80,000.
