Bad Fire at Russell House

Basement and Kitchen Partially Destroyed In Blaze.

Fire originating in the basement of the Russell House, caused considerable damage at a late hour last Thursday night. Smoke from the fire was discovered about 11:00 p. m., an alarm turned in, and prompt and efficient work on the part of the East Jordan Fire Dept. saved the two-story frame building from destruction. The main blaze seemed to center around under the floor of the kitchen and broke through that part of the building.

Both the basement and the kitchen are in pretty bad shape. Adjustment of insurance has not as yet been made and the proprietor, John Shier, is undecided as to what the loss will amount. Owing to the intense smoke everyone in the hotel was compelled to leave, but after the fire was put under control several travelling men returned to their rooms.

The hotel is again taking care of their patrons, but are not yet serving meals.

Death Removes An Old Pioneer

(Traverse City Record-Eagle)

Vencil Brezina, pioneer of East Jordan, seventy years of age, died Wednesday afternoon, April 14th, at four o'clock at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Chase, 306 West Ninth street, Traverse City. Mr. Brezina had been suffering a decline in health for some time, and three months ago came to this city to receive medical treatment.

Born in Bohemia in 1856, the deceased came to Traverse City 44 years ago. He was united in marriage to Antonia Kubicek forty years ago, thence moving to East Jordan where he had since resided on a farm. To this union were born six children, four of whom, Mrs. Raymond Chase, this city, Miss Mary Brezina of East Jordan, Mrs. Jane Scheid and Joseph Brezina of Detroit, besides the widow, one step-son, Louis Gas of Chicago, two brothers, John Brezina of Lowell, Frank of East Jordan and six grandchildren are left to mourn their loss. John and Barbara Brezina preceded their father in death. Mr. Brezina was a beloved resident of the community in which he had lived for so many years, and hosts of friends at East Jordan and in this region join the family in its deep bereavement.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9:30 from St. Francis church here, with burial in the Catholic cemetery at Oakwood.

Port Huron—Recent attempts by the Wheaton Fish company's tug, Roberts, to break through the ice bridge which has formed at the foot of Lake Huron, were without success. The captain reports the ice is 10 feet deep, with no possibility of breaking up without a heavy south wind. The St. Clair river is blocked with heavy ice to a point north of Marine City.

Lansing—Improvements costing nearly a million dollars are planned by the Lansing Light and water works department this season, it has been announced. The first step in the expansion planned will be an addition to the present power plant to house a new unit, to increase the plant's output. It is unlikely that construction will be started before July, it is declared by local officials.

Owosso—Only one-seventh of the population of seven counties including and surrounding Shiawassee county are enrolled in any church, according to statistics obtained in a survey by Rev. E. E. Robinson, of Owosso. The population is 606,919 and the church membership is 84,343, he said. The pastor said that 800 young people faced the courts in Shiawassee county in the past year, and added that only 10 per cent of the parents of these children had ever belonged to any church.

Mt. Clemens—Possible deepening of the Clinton river or at least the removal of a bar at the mouth, may result from plans to be formulated April 27, at a meeting of Macomb, Oakland, St. Clair and Lapeer county drain commissioners. The principal idea of the meeting is to arrange the establishment of a drain from the mouth of the Clinton river to the Twelve-Mile and Campbell roads in Oakland county. Navigation in the river has been hampered for several years by the bar across the entrance.

Choir Presents Easter Cantata

"The Living Christ," Auspices Charlevoix Congregational Choir

To say that a large audience enjoyed a musical treat last Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church is putting it mildly, for the Easter Cantata, "The Living Christ," put on by the Charlevoix Congregational Choir was one of the finest musical productions given to an East Jordan audience in some time. The Charlevoix Chorus and Choir covered themselves with glory in this production.

The theme itself is quite wonderful in its increasing interest and beautiful climax and final. The story and theme is one of which we never tire, and the East Jordan people appreciated it immensely. It would be impossible in the short time and space at our command to mention every individual, so we will confine ourselves to special mention of those who took the more prominent parts. It would be taking nothing from the rest of the organization to say that the work of Mrs. A. J. Steller was of a high order, for it is no small task to direct a chorus, orchestra, and organ. The combination, however, was very pleasing. The work of Mrs. Steller was largely responsible for the success of the whole performance.

Perhaps second in its effect was the work of the very strong chorus. The principal parts in the Cantata were taken by Mrs. Matson, who sang a solo "Let Thy Will Be Done" in a very pleasing contralto voice. Mrs. Livingston was a favorite with the large audience in her two solos, and a duet with Miss Shaw of East Jordan; and Mrs. Adams with a beautiful lyric soprano voice, in a duet with Dr. Wilkinson rendered "Lo, I Am With You Always" especially well. Mr. Poole was unable to be present, and his place was ably filled by John Seiler.

The Women's Chorus, singing "He Knows His Own" was very effective, the voices blending beautifully. The number "Love Is the Greatest of All," sung by Mesdames Waggoner, Block, Adams, and Chorus was one of the most effective numbers on the program due largely to the song itself, as well as the manner in which the unusual rhythm was handled.

The next to the last number, a trio sung by Mrs. Livingston, Mr. Saltonstall, and Mr. Ogden, was greatly enjoyed, as was also the final Chorus, in "Hear Us, O Father." The orchestra strongly supported the Chorus.

The evening was an inspiration and leaves nothing but pleasant memories. We are grateful to the Charlevoix Congregational Choir, and hope that efforts along similar lines will be repeated, as it is good for the spirit of the neighboring communities. The program follows:

"Under the Laurels" Temple Theatre April 29th

The production of "Under the Laurels," by Charlevoix County Normal, directed by A. C. Belding, which enjoyed a success in Charlevoix last week, has been brought to East Jordan at reduced prices, enabling all East Jordan people to take advantage of it. The cast includes Mr. Jolliffe, the "funniest man in Michigan" who never makes a move without a laugh. Mr. Russell Duffey, as Frank Colewood, the hero, is also a star.

A special feature of the evening will be "Louis Royal Canadian Orchestra," "eight pieces."

No effort has been spared to make this an evening of high entertainment.

Kalamazoo—Mark V. Busternbrook, a magnificent police dog owned by Dr. J. R. Bolansy, of Detroit was awarded first honors as the best dog among 200 entries at South Western Michigan Kennel club show, held here recently. Chinee Chong, of China, owned by Mrs. E. J. Dowser, of Detroit, was judged first in the Pekingeses.

Marine City—To save the wheels and tires on the local fire truck, the city council has ordered that the truck shall not travel at a speed greater than 25 miles an hour on paved streets and at a speed of more than 20 miles an hour on unpaved streets. By decreasing the speed of the truck the city will save at least $300 a year, city officials estimate.

Birmingham—Birmingham's business offices will move into new quarters early next month, when alterations now being made on the building at Pierce and Martin streets will be completed. The new offices will be only temporary, for the erection of civic buildings will be started as soon as the village can acquire the rest of the property on the same block.

Must Have Permission To Start Fires In Open

Following is an extract from the Michigan Forest Fire Law pertaining to starting fires, when ground is not covered with snow.

Sec. 7. It shall be unlawful when the ground is not snow covered to start or have any open fire except for domestic purposes and to protect persons or property in case of fire, without the written permission of the Conservation Commission or other authorized conservation officer or supervisor of a township or some other elective officer designated by said supervisor, unless a fire break sufficient to check the spread of such fire shall have been freshly made or plowed around the area wherein said fire is set. Permission to set fire any woods, grass lands, brush or slash for the purpose of clearing and improving lands or for preventing other fires shall be given whenever the same may be safely burned upon such reasonable conditions and restrictions as the Conservation Commission may prescribe to prevent spreading and getting beyond control. Such permission shall be in the form of a written permit on blanks to be furnished by the Department of Conservation and such permit may be revoked in the discretion of the said Conservation Commission in cases of extreme danger when such act is clearly necessary for the safety of life and property; Provided, That railroad companies and road contractors when burning large areas under such permit shall have some competent person constantly in charge of such fires, so as to prevent the spreading thereof. Any person or corporations violating any provision of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than ninety days, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

On and after May 1st the various supervisors will have on hand a supply of these permits.

St. Joseph—William G. Moore, a Chicago millionaire and president of the American Bond and Mortgage company, has purchased the Grand Beach resort, New Buffalo township, a golf club and summer hotel. The property was sold at auction by Circuit Court Commissioner Arthur E. Leckner at the courthouse to satisfy a mortgage. Moore was the only bidder. He paid $13,500.

Lansing—New rate schedules for the State's ferry service across the Straits of Mackinac have been approved by the State Administrative Board. Cars will be charged according to overall length rather than wheel base and the new rates constitute a reduction all along the line. Passengers in cars will ride free. The schedule will return an estimated revenue of $200,000 this year.

Kent City—Fire destroyed the Kent City bakery, with a total loss estimated at more than $6,500. Adjacent buildings, one owned by Harry Sauter and another by A. L. Power, also were damaged from fire and water. The bakery stock, the property of W. H. Jordan & Son, was damaged to the extent of $4,000, while the building, owned by Mrs. Maud Fowler, suffered $2,500 damage.

Pioneer Of Echo Passes Suddenly

William J. Bennett passed away suddenly at his home on State St., East Jordan, Tuesday morning, April 20th. Mr. Bennett had been suffering from hardening of the arteries for some time, but was about as usual the previous day.

William J. Bennett was born in Steuben County, New York, Dec. 24th, 1860, his parents being Calvin and Sally Bennett. When eight years of age he came to this region with his parents, locating in Echo township, Autrim County. He continued to make that township his home up until recently when he removed to this city.

During his years of residence in Echo he served his township in several offices, and was supervisor for many years.

On July 4th, 1882, he was united in marriage to Gertrude E. Barnes at East Jordan. The wife, together with the following sons, survive the deceased: Delbert, Calvin, Henry, Frank, Bryon and John, all of Detroit; Daniel and Louis of East Jordan; and Samuel of Echo township. Also by a sister and two brothers—Mrs. Dette Bolser of East Jordan; James Bennett, present residence unknown; Coswell Bennett of Echo township.

Funeral services will be held this Friday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock from the M. E. Church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Henry Hiles. Interment will be made at the Moorehouse cemetery.

Sewage Law Called Illegal

Dougherty Declares Act of Special Session Is Unconstitutional

An act passed by the recent special session of the legislature designed to amend the home rule act to authorize cities of 70,000 population or more to bond in excess of their bonded limit to establish sewage disposal plants is unconstitutional in the opinion of Andrew B. Dougherty, attorney general.

The attorney general made his ruling at the request of James Farber of Flint. He decided that because the act prescribed only cities at present having 70,000 or more population it constituted an attempt by the legislature to enact local legislation. As adopted the law would not affect cities hereafter attaining the described population.

The attorney general cited decisions of the state supreme court to uphold his contention that local legislation is unconstitutional and concluded his opinion by stating he sees no reason why a general act could not be passed, as there are many cities under 70,000 that need legislation of this sort.

The act in question, which was No. 2 of the special legislative session, would permit excess bonding on a court order. It was drafted particularly to apply to Flint, according to its sponsors. In the regular session of 1925 a similar law was passed but it was held invalid because of a technicality.

Insect Lantern Trap Called Not So Good

That more harm than good will follow the use of "lantern traps" to capture noxious insects is the word given out here this week by Prof. R. H. Pettit, head of the entomology department at Michigan State College.

The lantern trap has been recommended recently by some agencies in the state, but Prof. Pettit draws on the experience of more than a quarter century to warn against the use of the "trap." This manner of killing insects is said actually to work in a way, but the joker is that parasitic and other forms which are distinctly beneficial are also destroyed by the lantern trap.

"As far back as 1890," says Prof. Pettit, experiments at Cornell University showed that while some few noxious insects were captured in this way, many more times the number of beneficial kinds were destroyed at the same time.

"Trap lanterns were advertised and sold years ago in the hope that they would do some good. However, long experience and careful counts have shown that the practice, if generally adopted, would do more harm than good."

The trouble with most of these one man governments is they all want the usual 62 years in which to pay.

Blasting Demonstrations

To Be Held April 29th and 30th, In Charlevoix County.

Plans have been completed to have Mr. N. A. Kessler, Specialist in Agricultural Engineering to conduct two blasting demonstrations using the latest Government Explosive Pyrotol, which is identical with Sodatal sold several years ago.

The first demonstration will be held at the farm of Steve Jermaine, residing first farm East of Cemetery, one mile from Boyne Falls, at 2:00 o'clock p. m. slow time on Thursday the 29th of April.

The second to be held at the farm of Bert Elliott, about 4 miles south of Charlevoix at 9:30 o'clock a. m. slow time on Friday the 30th of April.

While we do not think it is necessary to clear more land, we do think it is worth dollars to take out a few stumps or stones that make life miserable in the fields you are attempting to cultivate efficiently. It is not worth from 5 to 10 cents to blow out some of those pesky stumps.

This Pyrotol can be purchased for less than 10 cents per pound while dynamite will cost from 2 to 3 times as much, and Mr. Kessler will prove to you it is just as effective as higher priced material for many purposes. Plan to attend.

Name Good Crops For Coming Year

Michigan crops which seem destined to find a good market demand in 1926, and are therefore most likely to prove financially successful this year, are named by Prof. J. F. Cox, head of the farm crops department at M. S. C.

Professor Cox points out the need for farmers to study the probable market demands in selecting their "cash" crops. Crops in which surpluses now exist, or are likely to exist, are most likely to meet with low prices.

Alfalfa heads the list as the most dependable crop to be grown in Michigan," says Cox. "It is exceedingly unlikely that surpluses of alfalfa hay will exist for the next ten years. There are few cash crops which will pay as much as alfalfa, but of course, most farmers can make more out of feeding this cheap supply of protein hay.

"Sweet clover and clover from domestic grown red clover seed are in the same class. With sweet clover seed cheap and plentiful, much is being planted in Michigan.

"Sugar beets are a certain crop for Michigan farmers this year, since the sugar factories are offering the same contracts as prevailed last year, and growers can be assured of a minimum of seven dollars per ton. Sugar beet growers who prepare land carefully and use fertilizer to give the crop a good start and increase its yield are the ones who make the most money. A big tonnage pays.

"Red kidney beans still bring about twice as much as white pea beans. There was a large acreage of white pea beans last year; hence, it would not be advisable to increase the bean acreage beyond the average. Red kidneys, on the other hand, are still in strong demand. Care should be taken to get seed which is free of the troublesome 'sport' which is bothering red kidney bean canners. This is a red kidney bean which turns light colored in the canning process."

Scout Orders

Orders for April 28th.
Troop and Cubs will meet sharp at 6:30.
6:30-6:50 Roll call. Drill and Setting-ups.

The balance of the evening will probably be given to laying plans for outdoor sports.

MARKETING BILL IS OFFERED IN HOUSE

Billion-Dollar Measure Provides for Commission and Loan Fund.

Washington.—A billion dollar plan to finance the marketing of farm products under government direction, so as to increase the profits of farmers, was presented to the house in a bill by Representative Tincher (Rep., Kan.) designed to embody the views of the Coolidge administration on farm relief.

The bill proposes an appropriation from the federal treasury of $100,000,000 for loans to co-operative associations marketing farm products and the issuance of debentures to the amount of $1,000,000,000 to finance marketing operations on a vast scale under the direction of a farmers' marketing commission appointed by the President.

In accord with the views of the President and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine the bill avoids the devices of the Dickinson and the corn belt bills for taking the surplus off the domestic market and raising the price of the remainder to the American consumer. Those devices the administration regards as a species of price fixing.

The aim of the Tincher bill is to bring about higher prices on farm products through regulation of production and marketing so that the market never will be glutted and farmers never compelled to sell their products for an inadequate return.

The bill provides for the establishment in the treasury of a farmers' marketing commission loan fund, in which repayments of loans made by the commission shall be replaced and reserved until 1930, "for the use of the commission in making such loans as provided for in this act."

For the expenses of the commission an appropriation of $500,000 is authorized.

The bill provides for the creation of a federal farm advisory council in the manner proposed by the committee of twenty-two representing the Des Moines conference of corn belt states. The advisory council is to consist of three members from each of the twelve federal land bank districts elected by the farm organizations.

One of the principal functions of the advisory council is to nominate to the President 18 persons for appointment to the farmers' marketing commission, which corresponds to the federal farm board of the Dickinson and corn belt bills.

The marketing commission is to consist of the secretary of agriculture and six members appointed by the President from the eighteen nominated by the advisory council. These appointments are to be confirmed by the senate. Each member is to be an expert in his line—one on live stock, another on grain, another on dairy and poultry products, and others on cotton, tobacco, fruit and vegetables.

The commission is authorized "to determine by survey made, upon petition by any co-operative marketing association, whether there exists or may exist during the ensuing twelve months a surplus in excess of normal domestic requirements of any agricultural commodity handled by such association and report its findings."

Senator McKinley Is Defeated in Illinois

Chicago.—Senator W. B. McKinley, who for twenty years has represented this state in Washington, at the recent primary election was defeated by more than 105,000 plurality by Col. Frank L. Smith, the latter winning on an anti-world court platform.

The anti-world court leaders believe that the sentiment in Illinois on the question is indicative of the sentiment of the West, if not of the entire country, and that it presages the defeat of numerous other candidates for reelection to the senate who voted for the world court measure.

The wets believe that the paramount issue in Illinois and elsewhere in November will be the modification of the Volstead act and for that reason manifested greatest interest in the nomination of George E. Brennan for senator by the Democrats on a modification platform. As Colonel Smith voted dry while in congress, it is assumed that he will take the dry end of the argument in the contest with Brennan.

Senator Bruce (Dem., Md.) and Senator Edge (Rep., N. J.) said they considered the large Illinois vote in favor of boxing as clear indication of the reaction against sumptuary legislation.

Passes $82,500,000 Road Bill

Washington.—The house passed a bill authorizing an appropriation of $82,500,000 for federal road aid to states in 1928-29.

Aged Slayer Sentenced

HAWAIIAN TOWN IS WIPED OUT BY LAVA

Kona, Territory of Hawaii.—The village of Hoopuloa, on the southwest shore of the island of Hawaii, was completely wiped out by an avalanche of lava that burst forth from the volcano Mauna Loa. Ten to fifteen homes were engulfed. The inhabitants are believed to have perished.

A flood of molten rock pouring out from the crater struck the sea, starting the ocean boiling several hundred feet out at sea.

Plunging into the water just south of Hoopuloa, the lava turned in the direction of Kona, filling the bay and completely burying the landing and from ten to fifteen homes located in the vicinity.

All houses and the wharf at Hoopuloa were engulfed under fifty feet of lava, the post office being the last building to burn.

As the streams of lava, which flowed from an 8,000-foot level in approximately four days, approached the ocean it split into two branches. Eight hundred feet from the water one stream turned toward Hoopuloa and the other started in the direction of Miloli.

Army airplanes arrived a few hours after the village was wiped out, but were unable to locate the flow definitely because of the dense steam and smoke. The aviators reported the heat was intense at an elevation of 3,000 feet. Huge clouds of steam hung over the ocean, rising to a height of several hundred feet. As the lava struck the water, tremendous rockets of steam shot into the air showering the entire region about the bay.

Aboard Steamer Haleakala, Island of Hawaii.—Several hundred passengers gazed awestricken while the great volcano, Mauna Loa, rising into the clouds from the island of Hawaii, belched forth a fiery river of lava. As the vessel cruised along the south coast the flow coming down from the slopes of the mountain presented a most gorgeous picture.

Honolulu, T. H.—Hoopuloa was one of the few typically Hawaiian villages remaining in the islands. It comprised a cluster of from ten to fifteen homes of the old Hawaiian style, numbering a population of approximately 100 persons.

Mauna Loa had been an awe-inspiring sight since it began disgorging flaming masses a week ago after a period of five years of inactivity. The mountain reaches 14,678 feet into the air and is perpetually capped with snow. It is the highest active volcano in the world.

May Ask U. S. for Aid

Los Angeles, Cal.—Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, characterized the smallpox epidemic here as the "biggest and most malignant epidemic that has attacked any city in recent years." He declared it might be necessary to ask federal aid if his office is handicapped by local interference.

Winning Fight Against Fog

Washington.—The navy bureau of aeronautics, in a report recently states that rapid progress is being made in the development of devices to dispel heavy fogs over airplane landing fields.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS

President Coolidge sent to the senate nominations reappointing Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the railroad labor board, and Samuel Higgins, whose terms have expired.

Reporting favorably a bill to abolish capital punishment in Washington, the house District of Columbia committee said states without the death penalty "have not only been satisfied that the crime wave has decreased, but have long since condemned as barbarous this procedure."

Our Own Michigan

The season of the year approaches when we shall begin hear less and less of states like Florida and California and more and more wealths like Michigan, where the weary can rest awhile from their labors and indulge in scenic beauties that have no rivals anywhere else in the world. We to talk about Michigan as the "playground of a nation," and to call attention to the thousands of inland lakes where rest and recreation can be had at a minimum of travel and expense. That we boost our summer facilities is only natural, but sometimes we wonder if we do not over do it to that point where the outsider is apt to look upon this state as a place mostly water entirely surrounded by shooting galleries, dance halls and ex-bar tenders?

Wouldn't it be a good plan while we are so enthusiastically pointing out these hot weather advantages to call attention to last year's potato crop that was worth more than all the California orange, peach, pear, strawberry, lettuce and cantalope crop combined; that our mines and our factories are providing more opportunities for honest toil at high wages than any other state in the union? We are indeed thankful for the thousands of lakes that turn this state into a summer paradise, but we are also thankful for so many fine farms, so many beautiful farm homes, so many "contented cows," so many bulging cream checks, so many thousand acres of corn, wheat and alfalfa, billions of bees, and soil upon which clover flourishes like weeds. It is true that we are proud of Michigan as a summer haven, but it is truer still that we are proud of this state where agriculture and industry, opportunity and happiness are so indelibly linked.

The Churches Grow

According to the Christian Herald there are nearly 47,000,000 members of the various organized churches in the United States, and the gain last year was more than 800,000, the largest in many years. This gain is considered an ample "harvest of sheaves," indicating a religious revival in spite of the bitter controversies between the fundamentalists and modernists, so-called.

Dividing these members between the churches the figures are: Catholics 16,047,914; Methodists, 8,920,190; Baptists, 3,397,914; Presbyterians, 2,561,986; Lutherans, 2,546,127; Discip. of Christ, 1,750,399; Protestant Episcopal, 1,164,911. No other organizations are given as many as a million members. Looking into the gains by churches the figures of the Herald show that the highest gain was made by the Methodist church, with 220,182 new members. Then comes the Catholic church, with 203,990 new members.

The Cross-Roads Store

One does not have to delve far into the history of this state to recall the time when nearly every rural community boasted of a crossroads store, many of them so elaborate that practically everything needed on the farm, from a pin to a threshing outfit, could be bought on the premises. Now they seem to be passing. When the automobile came to nearly every farm as a part of its daily life the farmer began transferring his purchases to the larger trading centers and the end of the old country merchant was in sight.

Once the open forum and debating center of the community, it provided a channel for the discussion of political, religious and social questions of the day. Lounging around the sawdust box and the over-heated stove, the "wise heads" of the neighborhood determined who ought to go to congress and to the state capitol, and there they waited for the final outcome of election.

Modern improvements in transportation and communication have sent the farmer to town for his many wants. It requires a lot less time to travel over paved roads with a car to town than to make the trip with Dobbin through the mud.

So the country store is passing. But in return for the dollars which the farmer now spends in town, it is claimed the town itself renders greater service, affords better and fresher foods, a greater variety in amusements. The cross roads seems to be going. Is it a step forward or backward in the life of our rural communities?

We see where religion has impelled a man in New Jersey to send a railroad company $2.50, covering a train ride he stole twenty-five years ago. Delinquent subscribers seem to be immune. China is rapidly surpassing civilization as it is now practiced. A recent airplane bombing expedition over the ancient city of Peking, lists of casualty, "A Chinese girl, riding in a bridal chair, on her way to be wed."

Pyrotol Again Will Serve State Farmers

Pyrotol, war-salvage explosive, will again prove a valuable servant for Michigan farmers this spring and summer. More than 150,000 pounds has already been ordered for spring delivery in the state, according to N. A. Kessler, M. S. C. extension specialist.

Orders for the cheap explosive, which is particularly valuable as an aid in clearing stumps and boulders from farm land, are pooled by the county agricultural agents of the state. Pyrotol is delivered at cost, through government and state corporation.

While it is now known just how long the supply will last, Mr. Kessler says that orders can be accepted safely until about July 1.

The One Best Seller

Camping

We bespeak your co-operation in prevention of forest fires and water pollution, and make the following suggestions for your assistance:

1. Matches. Be sure your match is out. Break it in two before throwing it away.
2. Tobacco. Be certain that pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stubs are dead before throwing them away. Never throw them into brush, leaver or needles.
3. Making camp. Before building a fire scrape all inflammable material from a spot five feet in diameter. Dig a hole in the center and in it build your camp fire. Keep it small. Never build a fire against trees, logs, or near brush.
4. Breaking camp. Never break camp until your fire is out—dead out.
5. Refuse. Burn or bury all garbage, papers, tin cans, old clothes and other refuse.
6. How to put out a camp fire—Stir the coals while drowning with water. Turn small sticks and drench both sides wet ground around the fire. If water cannot be had, stir in dirt instead and tread down until packed tight over and around the fire. Be sure the first spark is dead.

"But Here Come John and the Cap'n Now. I'd Better Be Skipplin'."

in the world? But here come John and the cap'n now. I'd better be skipplin'."

He slid down the ladder as he spoke, and I rejoined the group about my great-uncle. Flint strode across the deck, his face like a thunder-cloud. Silver, at his elbow, exhibited a countenance wreathed in smiles.

"We'll divide what's below," said Flint abruptly.

"I rejoice that you have come to your senses," replied Murray.

Silver spoke up.

"He's a main jealous cap'n, Cap'n Flint is, sir. Allus has a lookout for the interests of his crew. A kind of garden for us, ye might say. But we're all mighty beholden to yourself for counting in the Walrus same as the James; and speaking of behalf of the Walrus, I make bold to say as we won't forget it, Cap'n Murray, sir."

"I thank you, Silver," he acknowledged blandly. "I was confident you would appreciate the situation. Will you divide at once, Flint?"

Flint growled in his throat, then mastered his temper by a substantial effort.

"We'll appoint the usual committee of six to check over with your men, Murray," he rasped. "I'll send my boats to shift our portion."

And he turned on his heel. John Silver stumped off to the ladder and hopped lightly down to the maindeck after his commander.

CHAPTER XIII

Treachery

The candles burned with a steady spear-shaped flame, undeviating, motionless, so that the shadows were cast upon the paneling of the cabin walls in solid blocks like streaks of a darker coloring in the polished woodwork. The air was so still that we could hear the sea-birds calling down the inlet, the seethe and sock of water about the rudder, the splash of a fish, the patter of the feet of the watch.

My great-uncle, for want of other diversion, had undertaken to teach Peter to play chess, with some satirical advice and comment from the Irishman; and to my amusement—as likewise to Murray's, I must admit—Peter proved himself a most redoubtable tyro, and once he had been coached in the rudiments presented a shrewd defensive gambit.

The old-fashioned citizen who insisted on having a home of his own now has an offspring whose sole ambition seems to be a garage in which to park the installment flivver.

In making your preparations to entertain the summer tourists, it is well to remember that hospitality does not include the use of holdup tactics on the visitor.

"Check at last!" exclaimed my relative, slinking back in his chair—of the four of us, he alone wore coat and stock and still contrived to maintain an air of cool well-being in that humid atmosphere. "You pushed me, Peter. Stap me, but you did! I'd not like to match my game with yours six months from now. Had you developed your queen's knight eight moves back—But 'tis futile to argue concerning what might have been. As well seek to prognosticate the future of our own lives."

Peter giggled and muttered that he was "no good, neen."

"I would we might say, 'Check!' in this weary coil we are caught in," grumbled O'Donnell. "I see not that we are any farther forward with your confederates yonder."

He waved his hand out of the stern window.

"They carried away their four hundred thousand pounds, but every man of them was as glum in the face as though 'twas so many bodeens instead of a prince's ransom. St. Patrick! When I think of what four hundred thousand pounds would do with the English parliamentmen that will be selling their souls to whoever bids them the highest!"

"We have paid a price, chevalier," returned my great-uncle. "If we receive what we purchased, well and good. If not—"

He spread out his hands in deprecation.

"I am bound to concede, however, that I do not augur the best from what little information we have to go upon. Have you noted, gentlemen, that still as is the night, we hear no sounds of carousing aboard the Walrus?"

"'Twas true, and had been true since the last boatload of treasure was transferred to Flint's ship shortly after dusk."

"You think he will fight then?" I asked from my seat under the stern windows, whence I could see the lights of the Walrus, dimly yellow in the thick, velvety, tropic darkness.

"I hope he will fight, my dear nephew," my great-uncle corrected me. "I fear Captain Flint has outlived his usefulness to me, and if my fears are well founded the sooner we can smash him the better I shall be pleased. But I make it a rule never to think on the possibilities of the future. Rather I prepare for whatever eventualities may arise and let it go at that."

"And are ye prepared tonight for treachery if this fellow Flint will be turning upon ye?" demanded O'Donnell.

Murray indulged himself with a pinch of snuff.

"Within reason, chevalier, yes. We have a strict watch, and the battery hath been cast loose and provided. More I cannot do. The one advantage which Flint possesses is that I must wait upon whatever line of conduct he devises or his crew dictate to him."

"Bah!" he cried. "'Tis easy enough for you to be talking the like of that. But I am thinking we'd maybe better choose the now whether we'll push the fighting to Flint or pass out to sea."

My great-uncle shook his head.

"That would be poor tactics, either way. A fight means loss of life and ship damage, and if it can be avoided without loss we are by so much the gainer. Also, the seas are dangerous for us, as you should know, chevalier—and for another reason, Martin agrees with me the weather is working up for a violent storm."

"St. Patrick aid us!" protested O'Donnell. "I'm not able at all to make out how ye stand, Murray, and that's the naked truth. One moment you're crying for a fight with Flint, and the next you say to avoid it, if that can be managed."

"Quite true, chevalier," assented my great-uncle calmly. "And I fall to see that my position is a false one. I prefer not to force the issue. My policy is summed up in that."

"But you don't know what der Walrus will do, dat's der trouble," said Peter, looking up from the chessmen with which he had been toying on the table-top.

"And that I have admitted, friend Peter," answered Murray.

"One night Bob and me swam in der water from der Walrus to der James," pursued Peter as if my great-uncle had not spoken. "Maybe we could do dot again, ja."

But my great-uncle sat unmoved.

"It could be done!" I exclaimed. "And none besides ourselves have knowledge of it."

Murray's wonderful, tawny eyes settled upon my face.

"Aye, it could be done," he agreed.

"But there is danger, lad. 'Tis a still night. You can hear the fish leap."

"And Flint's people keep a slovenly watch," I replied. "But Peter and I are good swimmers. We'll not make a sound."

Peter commenced to blow out the candles.

"Ja," he said. "Me, I don't like der water when it makes waves, but quiet it is nice."

My great-uncle smiled in the dwindling light.

"I should be a hypocrite as well as a fool, did I refuse your offer, gentlemen," he said. "'Tis not only our own lives are at stake, but Mistress Moira's too."

A groan came from O'Donnell.

"Ah, didn't I tell ye the way we would be left to the mercy of your cutthroats and litch-drawers, Murray? And now 'tis yourself must admit it! A sorry business it is, and I wish to God I'd never heard your name or gone forth of Spain."

Murray himself blew out the last candle.

"Well, well, chevalier," he answered a little tartly, "forth of Spain you went, and aboard the Royal James you are, and the one hope of life you have is that you stay aboard the Royal James—and this is saying naught of the obligations we owe to your friends on the other side."

Peter's great bulk glided by us. "I go get a rope," he squeaked.

"A rope!" muttered O'Donnell. "And if we don't end in the noose of a rope, we'll likely be walking the plank. I care little for myself. I'll have seen my life and had my fling. But it was an ill day, Murray, you prevailed on me to fetch Moira along. I can't think what was in your mind—a young maid in a pirate hold! 'Tis wicked past belief."

"Tut, tut," remonstrated my great-uncle. "My reasons were of the best, and have been vindicated by events. But here is Peter. You found the rope?"

"Ja," answered Peter, and knotted an end around a leg of the table as I had done the night of our surreptitious entry.

O'Donnell sought solace in a glass of brandy. Murray assisted Peter and me to undress, and accompanied us to the stern windows.

"No needless risks, remember," he whispered as I crawled over the sill. "And above all, avoid discovery. Better learn nothing than be found out."

I had wrapped my ankles around the pendent rope and was prepared for a cautious slide into the water when a faint chuckle escaped him.

"What is it?" I asked.

"I was but thinking what a sturdy pirate you are become."

He withdrew his head before I could answer, and I dropped into the tepid water, with care that there should be no splash. An instant later Peter was beside me, and we began to swim with long, slow strokes in the direction of the Walrus, so impalpable was the texture of that breathless night. There was not even a star in the sky—and the sky itself was invisible.

The hull of the pirate ship did not take shape until we were under the sheer of the stern. A single, guttering lantern seemed to burn in the main cabin, which was tenantless. And we paralleled the starboard side, attracted by a hum of voices for'ard.

Peter's hand on my shoulder detained me as we swam beneath the heel of the bowsprit.

"Here you climb oop," he breathed in my ear. "They are all on der deck. I tink dey smoke der pipe in council, ja!"

I trod water, and explored with both arms above my head.

"There's no rope within reach," I told him.

"Dot's all right. I lift you."

He was clutching the cutwater with both hands and bracing his feet against the swell of the bow.

"Come on," he urged. "Oop on to my shoulders. I hold you, ja."

"But if we splash?"

"We don't splash. You go oop; I go under der water. Dot's all."

I forged alongside of him and gingerly climbed his immense shoulders, using a grip on his hair for haulage. Then I reached overhead again, and this time got my hands upon a stay of the bowsprit which ran from midway of the spar to a turnbuckle on the bow.

"Steady," I whispered. "I'm got to jump."

"Ja!"

I threw my legs upward and twined them around the stay, hanging like a monkey from it, and Peter went under with a gurgling ripple which might have been made by a fish. Presently he came to the surface and swam beneath me.

"Can you climb, Bob?"

"I think so."

"Good! I wald."

The stay was fortunately dry—had it been slippery-wet I could never have swarmed it—and I was able, after much effort, to secure a grip on the bowsprit and lift myself astraddle of it. I worked down the bowsprit to the lift of the bows; but still I could see nothing, even on the fo'c'sle. 'Twas plain, however, that here was no watch to fear, and I dropped to the deck and crawled aft on my hands and knees toward the hum of talk, which I made certain now came from the waist.

The fo'c'sle was littered with spare cables, water-casks and other sailor's truck, which I had to avoid displacing; but I had my reward, for as I advanced the hum of voices dissolved into words and phrases.

"—a foxy 'un, Murray is," said a seaman's voice.

"And the James fellers'll fight us, whatever 'ee say," added a second.

"O' course they will!"

"This was Silver's unmistakable oily speech."

"Who wouldn't fight for the grandest fortune as any gentlemen-adventurers ever had a chance at?"

I wriggled behind a chase-gun, and peered over its breach into the waist. Two battle-lanterns were suspended from the mainyard, and their yellow glare revealed the Walrus' crew squatting in serried ranks around the butt of the mainmast, where Flint, Bones, Silver and several others sat on up-turned rum-barrels.

Flint leaned forward, wrathfully insistent, as I propped myself against a trunnion.

"Gut me if I thought to find such skinkers in my crew!" he snarled. "Dye thipk to take any prize without loss!"

"Aye," said a third seaman doggedly, "but we ha' never yet fought w' Murray. Them as does don't ha' luck."

A murmur of assent answered him.

"Ah," struck in Silver, "but there's a first time always, mates. Murray's like the rest o' us. A ball or a cut-lance-edge will finish him. And I say again, who wouldn't risk death for mere'n a million and a half o' pounds in good gold and hard silver as'll buy every man jack o' us such pleasures as few men ever comes by, mates?"

"But there's only as much aboard the James as we ha' here," objected one of the first speakers.

"True for you Tom Allardyce," said Flint. "But the rest's safe enough, ain't it?"

"There's only them few knows o' it," returned the man. "They said on the James there was but the three men and the girl was landed to bury it."

Flint's answering laugh was horrible.

"And d'ye think that out o' four people, not countin' Murray—and one o' the four a girl—we can't make one talk? I tell ye, Tom, the stuff is as good as divided."

"Ye ha' first to catch Murray," retorted Allardyce.

"And why won't we?" demanded Silver. "Didn't we take what he was ready to give us and thank him for it like blessed lambs? And if he does suspect, what good'll it do him? On a night like this he'll never know where we are until we're on him. Two good broadsides, and then we'll sweep his decks."

Nobody spoke for a time.

"When does the ebb make?" asked Flint with a stretch and a yawn.

"Another two glasses yet," said Bones.

"I must ha' a bit of sleep," growled the pirates' captain. "Come to a vote, lads, and be done w' it. Will ye go or won't ye? Ye all know what mercy Murray'll give ye, if he ever hears o' this council—and there's them as would like to blab, be sure o' that."

"Quartermaster speaks for the crew," he said. "And my view is as how the crew is for fightin' for their just rights. The Walrus has played second fiddle long enough, and here's a chance as isn't likely to come again."

There was a second brief interval of silence.

"Nobody contrary," announced the one-legged man cheerfully. "Council's over! Keep quiet, mates. No drinkin', no fightin'. There'll be plenty o' both later."

The squatting ranks broke up into groups, and a number of men strolled for'ard toward my hiding-place. But I did not await them. From the shelter of the chase-gun I hunched myself back behind a water-cask, and so regained the bows, slipped overside and slid down the anchor-cable to the water.

IS EVERY DAY A BACKACHE DAY?

East Jordan Folks Have Found the Cause and Corrected It.

Is your back lame and achy? Are you tortured with sharp, rheumatic pains; miserable with headaches, dizzy spells and kidney irregularities? No wonder, then, you feel worn-out and discouraged. But have you given any thought to your kidneys? You should! Weak kidneys cause just such troubles. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Here's an East Jordan case:

Harry Carpenter, stationary fireman, says: "I had a severe lameness across my back and when I first got up in the morning I could hardly straighten. My kidneys acted irregularly and I felt all out of sorts. One box of Doan's Pills from Gidley & Mac's Drug Store was all that was needed to cure me."

Many a chicken expert, so-called, does not know much about poultry. The little fellow that you knock to-day may be able to kick you down stairs later on.

Some reformers seem to think that the way to reform mankind is to pick out the goat.

This is the time of year when everybody feels like stopping work and many obey the impulse.

We see where an official of a large news agency spoke over the radio on "What is News." Don't the newspapers peddle it any more?

Nearly every third person has the "Flu" or a bad cold.

The home of Mrs. Cranx, south of town, burned to the ground early Sunday morning, with nearly all the contents. Mrs. Cranx carried a small insurance.

"TAFFETA WEEK"

Mrs. Brown: "Good morning Mrs. White. Well I think $ Day must have been a success at the East Jordan Lumber Co. Store. It surely brought out a lot of people."

Mrs. White: "No wonder, for there were just as many bargains as there were items in the list."

Mrs. Brown: "And the next thing is "Taffeta Week." You know Taffeta is very popular now for Ladies' Dresses, Children's Coats and lots of other things. And they are making special prices, so I have been told, on yard goods and dresses."

Mrs. White: "Well, I don't think there is anything more dressy than a silk dress. Mother used to say that every women's wardrobe should have at least one silk dress and at that time of course it had to be either Taffeta or Satin, there were no Crepes."

CHEMIST GETS MEDAL

Dr. William Blum, chief of the electro-chemistry division of the United States bureau of standards, will be presented with the medal of the American Institute of Chemists for excellence in the government's service, at the annual meeting of the institute in New York on May 8.

UNCLE SAM-FRANCE REACH COMPROMISE

"Safety Clause" as to Conditional Payments Cut Out.

Washington.—Compromise between France and the United States, covering debt funding payments on the $4,000,000,000 French obligation, has been reached tentatively between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Henry Berenger, French ambassador. It was learned on high official authority here.

The compromise would make French annual payments during the first five years between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000, instead of the $40,000,000 originally asked by the United States or the $25,000,000 tendered by France.

The French government has abandoned all hope of inserting the so-called "safety clause," making payments conditional on German payments to France.

Instead, it will rely on the good will of the United States to tide it over any emergency.

Knowledge of the compromise, which is still subject to the approval of the American debt commission, followed formal announcement by the French embassy that M. Berenger "has received from the French government full powers to negotiate with the American government on the question of the French debt."

The embassy flatly denied reports from Paris that Finance Minister Raoul Peret would come to Washington to handle the final phases of the negotiations, saying it had been "duly authorized to deny the Paris dispatches relating to M. Peret's alleged plans."

While there have been no informal meetings of the American debt commission, pending final action by the senate on the Italian agreement, members have been kept in close touch with the results of meetings between Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Berenger, and the exchanges of data between the French and American experts.

$154,534,366 to Allies

From Germany's Payments
Berlin.—Seymour Parker Gilbert, American agent general for the reparations commission, reports officially that $154,534,366 has been transferred to the allies from the reparations paid by Germany during the last six months. This period represents the first half of the second annuity under the provisions of the Dawes plan.

The figure includes payments of cash and deliveries in kind, the latter amounting to $91,000,000. France received $75,449,000 of the total and England received $29,558,000. The balance was divided between Belgium, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Japan, Portugal, Greece and Poland.

More than 10 1/2 per cent of the total amount paid was spent for the army of occupation and administration expenses.

Adds $450,000 to Pay for Condemned Cattle

Madison, Wis.—The state legislature came to the aid of Wisconsin farmers by unanimously authorizing an additional appropriation of $450,000 toward paying indemnities on cattle condemned in bovine tuberculosis tests.

The bill immediately was signed by Governor Blaine, who called the special one-day session to meet the emergency which he declared had arisen through the action of the board of health of Chicago in barring milk from untested herds.

Probes Plumbing "Trust"

Washington.—The Department of Justice is investigating the business methods of manufacturers of plumbing equipment with a view of bringing about "anti-trust" suits in the Supreme court of Virginia.

Leave for Geneva April 30

Washington.—Announcement was made at the State department that the American delegation to the League of Nations preliminary arms conference would leave for Geneva on April 30.

Smart Printed Silks Used in Bandings

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

How Many Stars?

The naked eye can see stars of the first six magnitudes, numbering about 7,000. With excellent sight 8,000 may be seen. The average sight will see about 5,700. The powerful telescopes make visible stars up to and including the fifteenth magnitude, or a total of 100,500,190. The fifteenth magnitude includes 56,000,000 of this total.
