Charlevoix To Celebrate 4th

County Festivities Are To Center There This Year.

The county Fourth of July celebration will be held in Charlevoix this year in accordance with the tri-city agreement that has been followed out of the past few years.

Members of the city council and Association of Commerce are now making preliminary plans to entertaining the large crowds who will be the city's guests on that day, and committees have been appointed for this purpose.

The main features of entertainment will be provided this year by the Western Vaudeville Manager's association. Two outdoor performances of three acts each will be given by aerial performers known as the Aerial Crawfords, and a 58-piece fireworks display, lasting over an hour will feature the evening entertainment. Other stunts and contests as in former years will also be pulled off.

Northern Bankers In Big Meet At Traverse City

Traverse City, May 11.—Two hundred fifty bankers of the Northwestern Michigan Bankers' club talked conservation of northern Michigan lakes, forests and streams in the annual spring meeting here at the Golf and Country club, the largest session in the organization's history.

Rev. Demas Cochlin, pastor of First Congregational church here the past 37 years and an ardent trout fisherman, delivered the principal address.

Those from East Jordan attending the meeting were:—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Suffer, Mr. Suffer who is President of the north-western Michigan Bankers Club, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mikula, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Porter and W. G. Corniel.

Meguzee Meets At Mancelona

Many visitors are usually present, besides the officers, past presidents and seven delegates from each chapter in the association.

Manager Johnston To Traverse City

H. J. Johnston, manager of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. in this district with headquarters at Petoskey has been transferred to a like position with his office in Traverse City, the change to become effective June 1st. He will be succeeded at Petoskey Headquarters by Lester A. Johnson, for some time past at Saginaw as division commercial engineer.

The retiring manager of this division has been in charge at Petoskey for about five years during which period he has built up an extensive acquaintance in his territory and in retiring from the field leaves a host of friends who admire him for able conscientious service rendered, his honorable business methods practiced and the thoroughly efficient manner in which he has managed and conducted affairs for his company.—Boyer Citizen.

Death Summons Mrs. M. Muma

Passes Away Wednesday After a Lingering Illness.

Mrs. Mike Muma passed away at her home on Main St., in this city, Wednesday forenoon, May 12th, after a lingering illness from cancer.

Mary Vivian was born January 27th, 1856 at Port Huron, Mich., her parents being Mr. and Mrs. John Vivian. On Sept. 3, 1876 she was united in marriage to Mike Muma at Dryden, Lapeer County. They located at East Jordan about 37 years ago.

Deceased is survived by the husband, one son and one daughter—Gus Muma and Mrs. Hattie Gay, both of East Jordan. Also one brother—John Vivian of Saginaw, and three sisters—Mrs. Barnes Smafield of Peck, Mrs. Mattie Stevenson of Saginaw and Mrs. Ida Currier of Los Angeles, Calif. Also four grandchildren—Daiton Gay, Richard, Roderick and Marcella Muma, of East Jordan.

No more lovable woman ever lived in this community than Mrs. Muma, and her life was unselfish in the highest sense. She will be greatly missed by her host of friends.

Funeral services will be held from her late home this Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock standard, conducted by Rev. Henry Hiles, pastor of the Methodist Church. Interment at Sunset Hill.

State Soils Shown In Need of Lime

Most Michigan soils are in need of lime in order to correct acid condition in preparation for crop production, if the results of hundreds of tests made during the run of the recent M. S. C. soils fertility train hold good for all of the state.

The train covered many counties in southeastern Michigan and the 'Thumb' districts, and most of the soils tested during the trip were shown to need lime, ranging from one to three tons per acre. Several samples in the Saginaw valley showed no lime need, according to O. B. Price, soils specialist from the college who was with the train. In some of these instances farmers who had planned liming applications were saved considerable money as a result of the tests.

Proper soil treatment, with the soils test as a basis to provide necessary knowledge of exact soil condition, was the gospel of information spread by the special. More than 5,000 farmers attended the meetings held in connection with the train, while 1,470 soils samples were tested.

Lapeer held the record for number of soils brought to the railway laboratory for testing, 130 samples being examined at this stop. The Owosso meeting is reported by the college extension men as turning out the largest attendance.

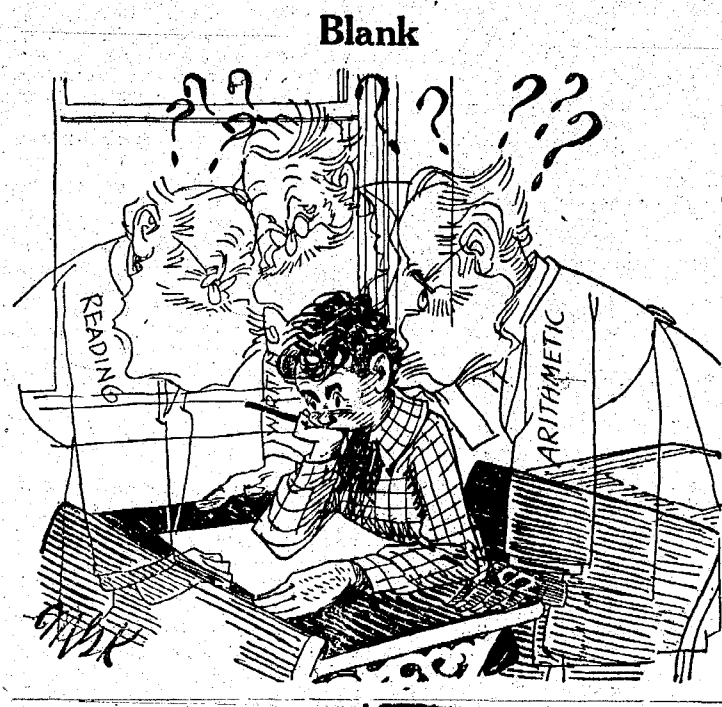

Water Tax Notice

Water Tax will be due May 8th, and payable during month of May.

Office hours—9 to 11 a. m. 1 to 5 p. m. Evenings—Saturday and pay nights.

G. E. BOSWELL, Treasurer.

Chauncey M. Dewey says, "the farmer is a victim of the dislocation of economic life." Thanks Chauncey; we often wondered what was the matter.

Greenville—An attack of hiccoughs, which lasted two weeks, caused the death of Elias Kent, 75 years old, a farmer. The hiccoughing started as he was recovering from influenza.

Saginaw—Saginaw now has an assessed valuation of $91,000,000, according to figures made public by City Assessor Charles Spindler. This is an increase of $2,600,000 over last year. Of the new valuations, $71,000,000 is real and $20,000,000 personal.

Marquette—Because he failed to pay income tax for two years and refused to file a return although ordered to do so by Federal officers, Frank Blazina, of Caspian, was sentenced to serve four months in the Detroit House of Correction by Judge Fred M. Raymond, in Federal Court here.

Monroe—The village of Dundee by a vote of 187 to 86 defeated a proposal to build an addition and make alterations to the high school building in school district No. 5. The building which was erected 40 years ago, has been overcrowded for some time, and it is believed a new proposal will be presented for a vote.

Pontiac—South American editors will visit Pontiac in the party of international journalists now on a tour of the country. They will visit the big automobile plants here, including General Motors Truck, Fisher Body and Oakland Motor companies. An informal reception will be tendered the newspaper men at the Oakland plant.

Monroe—The city attorney has been instructed by the city commission to prepare a petition to the state public utilities commission, requesting action necessary to obtain an equalization of fares on motor bus lines running into Monroe. It is claimed that fares on certain runs are exorbitant as compared with those charged on others.

Mt. Clemens—The Macomb county road commission has let the contract for the delivery of 226,000 barrels of cement, for the season's road construction work. The contract was divided equally between five cement manufacturing concerns at the uniform price of $2.42 per barrel. The commission estimates that a saving of $20,000 has been accomplished through the contracts.

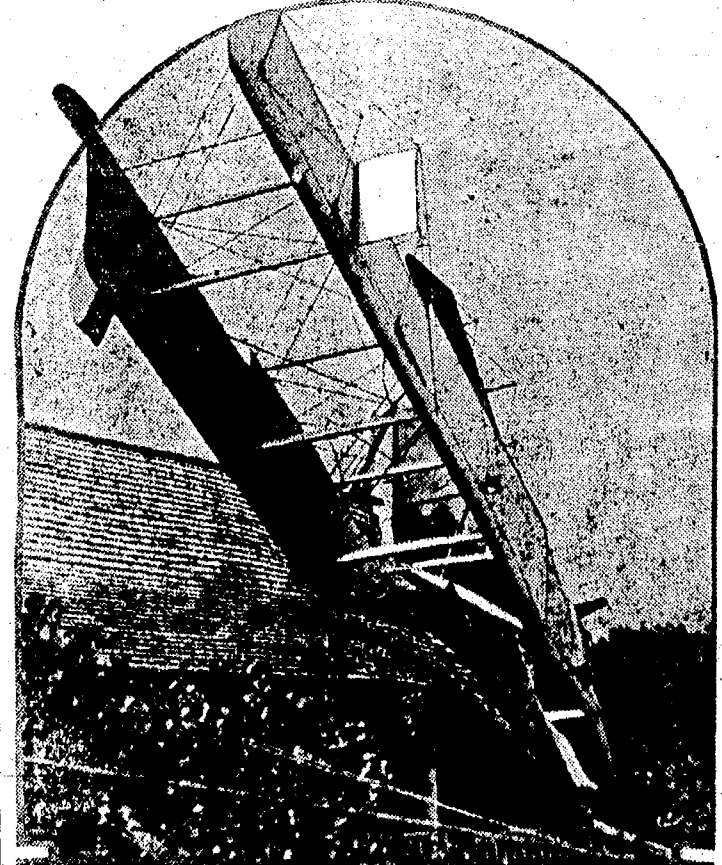

Lansing—Governor Alex J. Groesbeck's action in placing the disbursements from the automobile weight and gasoline tax receipts on a fiscal, instead of calendar year basis, is legal, in the opinion of Andrew Dougherty, attorney general. The attorney-general announced that the change would take place July 1, despite the fact that at that time the counties will have received only half of their annual $6,000,000 appropriation.

Lansing—A highway program comprising 200 miles of new pavement and 140 miles of new gravel road has been prepared by Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, for approval of the administrative board at its next meeting. This program, he estimates, will absorb the $8,000,000 released for new contracts by the action of the road committee members recently, when they agreed to mortgage $6,000,000 of the 1927 highway receipts to continue road building this year.

Style is the most important thing in the world to some people.

Fashion says that thirty ounces of clothing is enough for the summer girl. The low rumble that you hear in the distance is the masculine chorus of "ayes."

Bad Smash, but No One Was Killed

When a seaplane piloted by W. T. Carew crashed into the house of Mrs. Theresa Pine at Coconut Grove, Miami, Fla., fortunately no one was killed. Carew and his mechanic escaped with slight injuries.

Woman Thief Works Hotels

Traverse City, May 10.—Recently a woman who has been making an excellent salary working the hotels in northern Michigan but now, thanks to the efforts of the sheriff's department and the National Secret Service Bureau, she is on her way south.

The woman's game was to register at a hotel and inspect many rooms before she selected one. Then, during the night, she would work the halls and whenever she found the door of an occupied room open would enter and go through the clothes of the occupant. In one local hotel she is suspected of securing $80 from the trousers of a guest.

The woman left here and worked north, going to Charlevoix, Petoskey and Harbor Springs. Previously she had been at Cadillac. She stopped here on her way south and was taken into custody for questioning by the sheriff's department. The officers, however, were unable to fix the blame upon her and during the rest of her stay here she was followed by operatives from the National Secret Service Bureau. In a short time she left for the south.

Hay and Grain Crops Injured

Late Season With Cold and Wet Hinders Growth.

Cold, wet weather, early this spring, has resulted in an unfavorable outlook for Michigan grain and hay crops this season, Vern H. Church, federal agricultural statistician, announced in a report today.

Shortage of hay in Michigan this year has made it necessary to buy outside the state, according to reports, and the condition of meadows this year is only seventy-eight per cent of normal—ten per cent below the five-year average.

Discussing the wheat crop prospect, Church said: "Michigan wheat crop promises to be even less in amount than the light production of 1925. Much of the acreage was sown late and made little growth last fall and has been more or less killed in spots, especially on flat, heavy land in the southern part of the lower peninsula."

In the east central counties and in local areas elsewhere the damage was severe, whole fields being practically destroyed, and the percentage of abandonment increased to twenty per cent, or more, in those sections.

Damage to rye crop was much less than wheat, the report continues, because planting were confined to medium and light soil. The condition of the grain May 1st was eighty-eight per cent, which is only two per cent below the ten-year average. Only eight per cent of last year's hay crop remains on farms, compared to twenty per cent a year ago.

The condition of meadows is placed at seventy-eight per cent, as compared to a ten-year average of eighty-eight per cent, the report said. Some of the new seedlings were destroyed by dry weather last summer and there has been considerable heaving and winter killing of clover and alfalfa.

Courtesy Always Pays

Every year witnesses an increase in automobile traffic. There will be more motor vehicles on the highways of Michigan this summer than ever before. That means that the chances of having an accident will be greater than during the past two years, when forty-two thousand Americans lost their lives in automobile accidents. Under the law of averages we can expect more people will be killed and maimed this year than last, unless we set ourselves to the task of eliminating some of this wholesale and altogether unnecessary slaughter of human beings.

On the road courtesy pays big dividends. Proper regard for the other fellow's rights has prevented many a serious accident. There is many a mound in the village churchyard that covers the remains of that valiant citizen who died while maintaining the right-of-way. It is always better to give the other driver the benefit of the situation than to dash recklessly into a dangerous situation just because you think the law will protect you in case anything happens. Be decent, be courteous—it pays big dividends.

Denies Rumors About Running

Frank D. Scott Says He Hasn't Retired From Race.

According to dispatches from Washington, rumors that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself were denied by Congressman Frank D. Scott of Alpena, last week. "In this matter of retiring I am like 'Uncle Joe Cannon,'" said Scott. "It is always safe to say I will be a candidate until you see a statement under my own name that I will not."

Talk of Scott's retiring is probably due to the influence of the sensational divorce suit he had in Michigan courts two years ago. Recently he sent out about thirty letters to prominent citizens of his district, politicians, editors, ministers, leading women and others asking their frank judgment as to the desirability of his again offering himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination. To date the letters have all encouraged him to remain in Congress.

Congressman Scott is now serving his twelfth year in the house and by reason of his seniority has risen to the chairmanship of the important committee on merchant marine and fisheries. His only opponent so far is State Senator Frank Bohn, of Newberry. The eleventh district, which Scott represents, is composed of sixteen counties, seven of which are in the northern peninsula, while Scott resides below the straits.

Greeting The Tourist

It will be only a short while now until the highways will be dotted with automobiles carrying camping outfits, the vanguard of that big procession of tourists who will sweep through the state this summer in greater numbers than before, because we have been asking them to pay us a visit, having at least reached a realization of what we have to offer as a summer haven and appreciating that wherever the summer tourist tarries for a while he will leave that community a little richer for his having been there.

At the same time we should not be actuated in our treatment of the tourist from the point of how much money he is going to spend with us, but from the point of how much he is going to spend with us, but from the broader viewpoint of the host who would make his guests comfortable and contented. There are many things we can do for the tourist that are not expensive, but will make him feel that we have his welfare at heart. We should see that he is supplied with all necessary information regarding highway travel, where the best streams and lakes abound, where good hotel and camp site accommodations may be had, in short, the little things that go to make up a pleasant trip for the stranger within our gates. Let us make Michigan hospitality something to rank alongside that old-fashioned hospitality that song and story has for so many years attributed to the old South.

Some people stay mad over little things. Considering the size of his 1924 majority there seems to be no reason for Mr. Coolidge's concern about the apathy of the American electorate.

Summer Coats Pursue a Straight Course

The story of summer coats closes with the arrival of midsummer models for sports and for general wear. Practically all the new models adhere to the straight-line silhouette and those for sports, made of flannel usually, are shown in white and light colors, with white promising to be a very popular choice. In coats for general wear, tan, beige, gray and light green are favorites, and many of them have small collars of summer fur—as squirrel, summer ermine or mole skin. Charmeuse and twills lead in fabrics and a handsome model in the former fabric is shown in the picture. Its distinctive feature appears in its exquisite tailoring.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Saginaw—Max P. Heavenshich, prominent Saginaw business man, has been elected president of the retail merchants' division of the board of commerce.

Grand Rapids—Richard Tandler, 27 years old, former vaudeville performer, is recovering from poisoning said to have been caused by wearing shoes which had been dyed. A few hours after he had put on the shoes he became seriously ill and was taken to St. Mary's hospital.

Alma—An increase of $44,058.44 is shown in the proposed city budget submitted by City Manager Reynolds to the commission. The total of the proposed budget for the coming year is $181,416.84. Increases are shown in nearly every fund, being needed to care for expansions as a result of securing a large new industry and the addition of some hundreds of families to the city.

Mt. Clemens—The Detroit conference of the Women's Foreign Missionary society met in the local Methodist church April 29 and 30 with 300 delegates from the district in attendance. The district includes the eastern half of Michigan and the entire upper peninsula. Missionaries from India, China and the Philippine Islands recounted experiences of the work in these countries.

Cadillac—State trunk line M-18 has been adopted by the Michigan board of governors of the James Whitcomb Riley Memorial highway as its route from the Indiana line to Mackinaw. The vote was 8 to 3, the opposing votes being cast by delegates from Traverse City, Elk Rapids and Charlevoix who withdrew after the ballot was announced. They sought to have the highway diverted through their cities.

Alma—Announcement has been made by F. Roy Phillips, for the past six years superintendent of public schools at Crosswell, that he has accepted the position as superintendent of schools in this city, succeeding A. C. Lutelman, who has been connected with the Alma schools for 13 years. Prior to going to Crosswell Phillips was principal and then superintendent of schools at Mariette for five years.

Pontiac—More than 100 citizens of Royal Oak Township have filed petitions asking to have the matter of the incorporation of the village of Hazel Park submitted to the voters for their approval at the September primary election. They would incorporate four square miles of the township west of Ferndale into a village which locality is said to now boast 12,000 residents. The petitions will be brought to the attention of the supervisors in June.

Pontiac—Smoking in Pontiac city schools is taboo. Even when the parent-teachers' associations hold evening gatherings in the future the men will not be permitted to smoke. The board of education has set its foot down hard on the practice, declaring it is not only a bad example to set to the children, but it leaves the rooms smelly and they cannot be aired out even the next day. All the local parent-teachers' associations are to be notified of the new ruling.

Lansing—A series of meetings to perfect plans for arousing interest and assuring active co-operation of Republican women in the coming campaign, have been planned by the executive committee of the Republican Women's Federation. The first meeting will be held in Detroit some time in July. Mrs. Cora Reynolds Anderson, of L'Anse, the only woman member of the State Legislature, announces that she is a candidate for re-election. She urges other women to seek public office.

Lansing—Reports are current in political circles that the banquet which was to have been held April 29 by the Ingham County Women's Republican club had been selected as the scene of Lieutenant-Governor Welsh's formal announcement as a candidate for re-election. This has been denied by Mr. Welsh. Mrs. Hull, president of the club, stated that there was no political significance to the affair. Sickness and spring housecleaning were the chief reasons for the postponement.

Lansing—That the railroads of the state are not opposed to trucks and busses, when there is a certain amount of co-ordination, was the statement made here by Colonel Roy C. Vanderook, manager of the Michigan Railroads association in his address to members of the Merchants' barons. "Changed conditions have made the busses and trucks a necessary part of present day transportation," said Colonel Vanderook, "and the railroads are willing to have this competition on a business basis."

Grand Rapids—Red Cross work was the general topic before the Michigan State Nurses' association and the Michigan League of Nursing at their joint meetings here. Miss Elba L. Morse, chairman of the public health section, allied with the Red Cross in its work against disease, stressed the activities of that organization during peace time. Miss Morse said that the Red Cross, now engaged in public health service, finds its most difficult problems in the rural districts where there are few if any nurses.

PORTO BELLO GOLD

By Arthur D. Howden Smith

Copyright by Arthur D. Howden Smith WNU Service

The James had begun to gather headway; but as the wheel was released from the dead helmsman's grip her head fell off, and she dropped sluggishly into the trough of the seas which surged over the shattered waist, and one green bill of water burst squarely on the poop, hurling us to the deck. Peter recovered his footing before either Murray or I, shoved the Easterling's body aside and gripped the wheel in his own hands. Slowly, the buoyancy all out of her, the Royal James swung around in response to the rudder's thrust and lumbered off before the wind.

The headland Moira had sighted faded into the mist; but my great-uncle shook his head sadly.

"We are making water," he shouted to me; "and the island is to leeward. We can scarce weather it, and if we do—"

A faint hail reached us from the fo'c'sle.

"Land—"

And a rent in the storm-clouds showed a second and lower headland fair over our larboard bow.

Peter started to put the helm down to enable us to bear off as much as possible and have whatever chance there was of clearing it; but Murray caught his arm.

"No, no, Peter!" cried my great-uncle. "Head up! Head up! 'Tis the North Inlet! If we can pass in to starboard of that spit we are safe."

"Ja," squeaked Peter, and his iron muscles forced the rudder over until it neutralized the drive of the wind and sea; and foot by foot the Royal James made her southing, passed the east spit with half a cable's length to spare and opened a narrow, bottle-snapped roundstead, with tree-clad shores that offered protection from any storm that blew.

The rain was still pelting down. The surf was foaming on the outer beaches; the wind whistled shrilly in the rigging. But to us that prospect was the fairest ever seen. Moira sank to her knees in prayer beside the dead pirate. My great-uncle stepped to the rail and bade the survivors of the crew get sufficient sail on the ship to give us stowage-way. And I—I tried to shake Peter. He blinked at me solemnly.

"I tink Gott spoke out loud to der t'eddl today, Bob," he said. "Ja!"

CHAPTER XIV Disaster

Another less self-assured than Andrew Murray must have been dismayed by the series of misfortunes which had beset him. We were safe, but no more. The Royal James was taking in water so rapidly 'twas necessary to beach her on the mud-flats at the south end of the inlet. She leaked like a sieve where the mizzenmast had thumped her side, and her upper works were in splinters. In the fight with the Walrus and the storm we had lost eight odd men, but more serious than this were the deaths of the two mates. Martin's body was found near the stump of the mizzen; he had been struck down by the mast he so distrusted. Nothing was ever seen of Saunders, and we could only suppose that he had been swept overboard.

The crew were apathetic and sullen, inclined to be mutinous and resentful of my great-uncle's authority. For the first time they had reason to question his omnipotence, and it required a full display of his ruthless temper to reduce them to subjection—an accomplishment to which he was aided considerably by Coupeau, and I am free to admit, by Peter and me, who could not afford to risk the brutal license which would certainly follow a successful revolt of the gundeck's polyglot horde. The former galley slave was a redoubtable ally with the nine-tailed cat, and a bruiser whose fists were as deadly sure as the long eightheens he handled so deftly.

The rain and wind ceased with the approach of darkness, and my great-uncle had the men mustered under the poop, many of them still bleeding from the punishment they had received. And of all his feats I deem that the most remarkable: To face, practically unaided, upward of a hundred and fifty men, who had just been curbed in the act of mutiny, without even sufficient light to enable him to exploit the compelling gleam of his tawny eyes. He beat them down—and held them down—by sheer power of will and utter fearlessness.

"You stand upon the deck of a wrecked ship," he said bleakly. "Under batches lies sufficient treasure to make every one of you comfortable for life, to buy you dissipation or place or fortune, whichever you prefer. One man can lead you to repair the ship and conduct you where the treasure will be of use to you.

"I am that man. Without me you are doomed to spend your days chasing the goats on those hills; and if there is any repetition of the disorder exhibited today I shall maroon all of you save a number required to handle the ship.

"Get to work. Before you rest I expect the maindeck to be cleared and staging rigged overside for resheathing and calking."

He drove them until midnight, then sent them reeling to their hammocks. In the morning a systematic plan of occupation was arranged. By Coupeau's advice a handful of the more amenable of the crew—mostly negroes, Portuguese, Italians and Frenchmen of the south—were organized as an afterguard, and the remainder were divided into squads headed by men selected for skill at some special trade. One squad were to overhaul the sails and cut and sew from spare canvas a suit for the new mizzen, which a second squad were to hew on the slopes of Syrglass mountain and transport to the ship. A third squad were to repair all exterior damage to the hull; a fourth were to recalk the started seams; a fifth were to attend to whatever internal repairs were necessary.

Coupen was placed in charge of the work aboardship, and the rest of us carried Colonel O'Donnell's body to the top of a small hill east of the head of the inlet. There, in the midst of a grove of pines, we laid him to rest. 'Twas a noble situation for a wanderer who had never reached his goal, with the clashing boughs and the distant thunder of the surf to sound a requiem until the end of time and a view over green meadows and dwarf woodlands to the white rim of the beach and the blue sea, shining in the sun.

Yesterday seemed years past. I blinked my eyes, looking from the peaceful garb of nature to Moira's slim body huddled in prayer beside the mound of raw earth amongst the pine needles. On the edge of the grove the men who had dug the grave were playing a gambling game with the pine-cones. Peter leaned on a musket, gravely compassionate. My great-uncle, his eyes puckered in thought was staring out to sea. As I watched, he twitched my coat sleeve and drew me to one side.

"I shall leave you to amuse your self as you choose for the remainder of the day," he said. "'Tis for you and Peter to safeguard the maid. I must ascertain, if possible, what hat became of Flint."

"And then?" I asked.

"Then?" His eyebrows arched in surprise. "Why, then, Robert, we shall continue as we have done hitherto."

"You must pursue this insane scheme!"

He was as patient with me as I I were a fractious child.

"'Tis no 'insane scheme,' but a coup of high politics of fascinating import, my boy. I own to disappoinment it doth not appeal to you more readily. What? Shall we cry quits, simply because of shipwreck? And after every move hath turned as we plotted it should!"

I shook my head hopelessly, but decided to try again.

"Bethink you," I argued, "the longboat can speedily be made weather tight. In her we might reach—"

"Put it from your mind," he interrupted with a hint of iron in his voice. "You little know me, Robert, if you reckon me one to turn back from what I have begun—in especial, this matter which consummates the ambition of my life."

"But we—"

This time the iron was uppermost. "Boy, you are essential to my plans. Much as I love you, I— But we'll not talk on that plane. I am none for threats. Let it suffice that you are not to mention the subject again."

He wheeled around and left me, and with his escort of tarry-brecks strung out behind him was soon buried in the undergrowth on the lower flanks of the hill.

The sun was past meridian when Peter and I induced Moira to abandon the unmarked mound, and to divert her mind we led her on a tramp to the shoulders of the Spyglass, where a score of the 'James' men already had felled a giant fir and were lopping the branches from the trunk preparatory to removing the bark. In the forest near-by we killed a mess of birds, and Peter skillfully broiled them over an open fire, and after that, since she professed to enjoy the silence of the mountain side, we pressed on, beyond hearing of the ringing ax-blades, and finally came to the foot of the steep pinnacle of rock which was the lens of the Spyglass.

Here we would have halted, but Moira had heard the story of the watch the pirates maintained from the summit, and she insisted on completing the ascent, despite the lateness of the hour. And we, because we were for doing anything that would please her that day and relieve her grief, consented.

It was more difficult than it looked, and the sun was low in the west when we reached the platform at the top, stained and blackened by the beacon fires that had burned there. But the view was glorious. The island was spread out beneath us like a map on a table; from the Foremast hill on our left all the way southward along the rocky spine of the west coast to Mizzenmast hill and a cape to the west of that which old Martin had called Haulbowline head. Eastward the irregular shore ran north and south to the indentation of Captain Kidd's anchorage, the tree growth matted and thick except for several savannas midway of the island and the silvery loops of two or three small rivers.

We identified the masts of the James, rising above the headwaters of the North Inlet, and the opening in the trees north and east of Captain Kidd's anchorage that was the site of the fort Flint had built. And then Moira cried out:

"Oh, blessed saints, will that be a ship? Do but see, Bob! Peter!"

She pointed eastward; and there, sure enough, was a ship, or rather, the tops'ls of a ship barely lifting over the horizon's rim. If it had not been for the fact that the sun's rays were striking level across the ocean floor, and so were reflected from the sheen of the canvas, we should never have seen it, not even with a glass.

"Aye, 'tis a ship," I said.

"Ja," nodded Peter. "It is Flint."

Moira shivered.

"'Trot, and who would it be else?" she demanded. "There'll be no friends of us come a-calling, I'm thinking."

"It might be a king's ship—" I began.

"No, then," she denied, "if this island is gone all these years without the king's ships finding track of it, 'tis not like they will come upon it sudden in this moment."

"'Tis a ship indeed," I agreed unwillingly. "Aye, a full-rigged ship."

"Ja, a ship like Flint's," said Peter. We were silent for an instant, the three of us, dazed by the suddenness with which our whole outlook on the future had been changed by this unexpected loom of tops'ls leagues away.

"He must have weathered the storm," I said foolishly.

"And now the red fighting will begin all over again," cried Moira. "My soul, will there not have been deaths enough for this treasure? Every piece of it must be speckled with men's blood."

"We better tell Murray," said Peter, moving toward the lip of the rock platform.

"But how could Flint be back so soon?" I protested. "'Tis impossible. Peter. He could not—"

"He could, ja," returned the Dutchman imperturbably. "Der storm was by in two glasses—and der ship is yet maybe ten leagues off, neen?"

Old Myth Exploded

According to recent reports there is no scientific basis for the popular belief that the eldest child has the best chance of obtaining prominence. Examples of brilliant men contradicting this belief are James F. Cooper, who was the eleventh of twelve children, and General Sherman, who came in the middle of a large family.

Early Explorer

Nicolo Zeno, a Venetian explorer, is said to have visited Greenland, Newfoundland and the coast of North America in the Fourteenth century. The story of his discoveries, with a map, was first published in 1558.

Wars for Silesia

Frederick the Great of Prussia waged three wars against Austria to gain possession of Silesia. The first was from 1740 to 1742; the second in 1744 and 1745, and the third from 1756 to 1763.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE
World's Largest Flower
 The largest flower in the world is said to be Arnold's rafflesia. An English botanist, Dr. Joseph Arnold, discovered it on the island of Sumatra in March, 1918. It measures about a yard across and weighs 15 pounds. The center of the flower is a foot wide, each petal a foot long and from one-quarter to three-quarters of an inch thick.

Methodist Church
Destroyed By Fire

Burned To The Ground This Friday Afternoon. Some Contents Saved.

East Jordan's First M. E. Church was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin this Friday afternoon, May 14. The blaze was not discovered until it had gained considerable headway, and seemed to be in the upper part of the structure. When finally our fire department was called, the entire upper portion of the building was a mass of flame.

With the fire in the top of the structure it enabled those first on the scene to remove considerable of the church furniture, including the pews, piano etc.

Fortunately very little wind was blowing and the parsonage and other residences closely adjoining the church escaped injury.

The church building had undergone extensive repairs in the past few years, and, while a nominal insurance was carried, the loss is bound to be heavy.

Sweaters and Plaid Jackets

Mrs. Brown: "Good-morning Mrs. White. When warm weather comes or when winter is over, what are you going to get for the girls to wear to school?"

Mrs. White: "I know what I am going to do. I'm going to get each of the girls either a Sweater or one of those Plaid Jackets. They are warm and easy to get on and too so much less expensive than a regular coat, and I think they look better."

Mrs. Brown: "Well as usual you show good judgement. Now for myself I want a Taffeta dress. Taffeta is so very good now and I don't know of anything more dressy and suitable for every occasion. You know they have the "Belding Silks" and "Milwaukee Sweaters" at the East Jordan Lumber Co. Store and I think they are best lines made. Good-bye see you later."

Ray Kremer, star Pittsburgh pitcher, put in eleven seasons in the minors before getting his major league chance. He was twenty-eight years old when he "came up"—a veteran in a baseball sense.
In his first year with the Pirates, Kremer won 18 games and lost ten. Strangely enough, that was the best bit of pitching he had done in his professional career up to that time.

BRITAIN IN GRIP OF GREAT COAL STRIKE

Walkout of Million Miners May Paralyze Industry of Every Kind.

London.—One million British coal miners have carried out their threat of a strike, and as a result the entire industry is paralyzed. The cessation of coal-mining activity constitutes the greatest labor upheaval and precipitates the greatest labor crisis since the chaotic days of readjustment immediately succeeding the World war. It means that one-fifth of Britain's union workers are idle, with the remaining 4,000,000 subject to orders for a general strike in sympathy with the miners' action.

Recognized as a national catastrophe, a calamity as great as another international conflict, the strike comes as a sequel to weeks of futile negotiations between the mine owners and workers. In these parleys the government latterly took an important part and Premier Stanley Baldwin recently stated that there was hope of an agreement being reached.

The premier, in making the announcement that the strike was on, declared that the government stood ready to act under the emergency powers law. In effect this makes the premier a dictator and enables him to call upon the army, navy and air forces to operate industrial plants or to protect them against the strikers.

Police and municipal authorities in all parts of England received instructions from the government to hold themselves in readiness for service. Censorship of the mails, of telephone and telegraphic communications and even of radio are measures being used in preventing disorders from radical elements concerned in the disturbances.

To England, a compact and essentially industrial country, coal is the very breath and blood of industry. Manufacturers of all classes of goods are solely dependent upon coal for motive power because oil and electricity are facilities existing only in limited degree and in scattered districts. Cessation of coal production carries one certainty, the ultimate stagnation of industry of every kind. The revival of activity in the steel and iron foundries of the nation of recent months makes the situation still more gloomy.

As to the possibility of operating the mines with nonunion labor, there is no such element save the unskilled kind. Though soldiers and sailors have been put to operating the mines and the railroads in times of previous strikes, production has always been limited and unsatisfactory.

One of the most menacing aspects of the strike is the possibility that the transport workers too will be called out. This would occur if the railways were called upon to haul coal mined by the men the government might place in the mines. This, it is admitted by Premier Baldwin and his associates, will be one of the immediate and most pressing issues which the government will be called upon to combat.

The collapse of the negotiations was due to the fact that the miners finally and absolutely refused to accept the owners' revised offer of a reduced wage on the basis of a settlement made in 1921, namely, a 20 per cent increase over the standard of wages which prevailed in 1914.

This was conditional on the adoption of an eight-hour day instead of the present seven-hour day. The miners' attitude was that they would not accept such reduction before reorganization of the industry on the lines of the royal commission's recommendations.

Sheer-Printed Gowns in Popular Fabrics

There was never a time when beautiful and girly fabrics were so universally demanded and so generally within the reach of women as they are now. Present styles in frocks take little material and are simply designed—so that every one may indulge her taste for those that are dainty and luxurious. Besides georgette, crepe and chiffon, there are many lovely silk-and-cotton mixed crepes, made in the same colors and patterns as all-silk fabrics. Any of these materials may be used to develop a gown like the pretty model pictured here.
