Railroad Prosperity Needed

The time has not yet come when we may sidestep our obligations to maintain our railroads in satisfactory operating condition. "Old Dobbin" has all but passed out, motor vehicles have their specific fields of utility, but upon the "Iron Horse" still rests the burden of the nation's greater transportation problems.

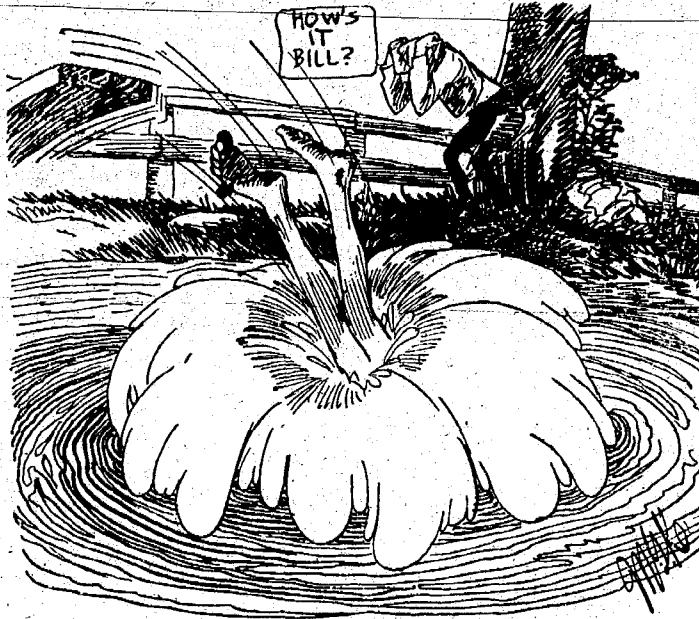

Railroads are entitled to earn enough to pay a reasonable return on the money supplied by their stockholders. Last year, the movement of railroad freight traffic passed a new high water mark, and we trust that the days of reconstruction are over for American railroads and that they will enter into a new prosperity which they deserve, a prosperity which shall be shared in by each and every one of us, for we are all, directly or indirectly, dependent upon the railroads of this country for our assurance of continued progress, prosperity and happiness.

Newspaper Advertising Best

W. A. Johnson, of Galveston, Texas, President of the National Laundry Owners' Association, speaking in their annual convention, said:
"Newspapers probably afford better results in advertising the laundry business than any other medium."
While calling this to your attention, let us commend also the action of the same association in firing its press agent and deciding no longer to bother publishers with laundry bunk in the guise of "news."

The average father has a hard time keeping the folks in clothes while keeping the tank full of gas.
It is about time for the rest of us to enjoy reading about the expositors getting free ice around the north pole.

GENERAL STRIKE TO AID POLISH REVOLT

Labor Gives Aid to Pilsudski Insurrection; Government Troops Deserting.

Warsaw.—Labor has declared a general strike in support of Gen. Joseph Pilsudski's insurrection. This new development was followed by reports from many sections of the country, notably Lodz, that military units are deserting their loyal national officers and are flocking to his banner. Pilsudski, now in complete control of Warsaw, is stated to have two-thirds of the country's artillery and munitions of war and almost the entire commercial and military air service at his disposal.

The situation in the capital is that President Stanislaw Wojciechowski and several government officials are still occupying the President's official residence, Belyedere palace. This point, which marked the last stand of the government troops in the capital, was captured by Pilsudski's men a few days ago after Premier Witos and members of his cabinet had fled to Posen. The President and his companions are allowed to remain with General Pilsudski's guarantee of safety providing they remain neutral in the conflict.

At Posen, Witos issued a proclamation declaring Pilsudski an outlaw and calling upon all loyal Poles to rally to the side of the government. The toll of dead in Warsaw during the last few days is estimated at about 400 and 1,500 have been admitted to hospitals suffering from wounds.

Pilsudski made no changes in the administrative offices when he found officials were willing to continue their duties under his rule. Foreign Minister Knoll is carrying on at Warsaw and at Lodz Governor Darowski is still administering affairs in the municipal area.

Labor's support of Pilsudski's cause is counted as immensely important. Organized civilian groups are operating trains and other transport services, facilitating the movement of troops and supplies to Pilsudski's army bases along the Vistula near Warsaw.

Pilsudski issued a manifesto, published in newspapers favorable to his cause. The statement of policy contains the following points:

1. Establishment of a government for restoration of the state's authority.
2. Surrender by the sejm—the Polish house of representatives—of complete powers, including legislative powers, to the government.
3. Dissolution of the sejm.
4. An immediate general election.
5. Administrative reforms including a fight against corruption in public office.
6. Continuance of the present Polish foreign policy.

DRY BILL HAS BEEN OFFERED TO SENATE

Committee, Disregarding Andrews, O. K.'s Measure.

Washington.—Having drawn some of its teeth, in spite of the warning of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews, that he was depending on them to strengthen liquor-law enforcement, the senate judiciary committee voted to recommend passage of the Goff bill, embodying amendments to the national prohibition act.

The bill goes to the senate floor without the provisions which, as originally drafted by Senator Goff (Rep., W. Va.), in accord with General Andrews' program, would have authorized District of Columbia police to extend their prohibition operations into neighboring states. It also would have permitted them to use search warrants issued in the District of Columbia to make captures in the nearby states.

The judiciary committee also modified that portion of the bill authorizing the seizure of vessels on which liquor is found to require evidence that the master of the vessel was aware that passengers or members of his crew were violating the law.

Another amendment limits the issuance of search warrants for private dwellings to cases where evidence indicates that a still is in use for manufacturing liquor for sale or exchange. The clause "or other disposition," which might have been interpreted to include personal consumption, was eliminated.

Representative La Guardia (Sec., N. Y.) made public a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the eve of Mellon's departure to attend a meeting in Pittsburgh. It is known in Pittsburgh, according to La Guardia's letter, that the Hazelwood Brewing company is "running full blast and that real beer is flowing from the vats as fast as mature brewing and the law of gravitation will permit."

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

Dean of Men, University of Illinois.
By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK

DAUGHERTY was always looking into the future, or trying to do so. "I wish I knew what was going to happen to me next year," you could hear him saying when he was announcing his plans for the future.

If there was a palmist doing business in a side show when Daugherty went to the circus, he always paid his dollar to have his hand read, and he was most credulous in believing what the fakir told him. If there was ever a clairvoyant or a spiritualistic seance in the village Daugherty was sure to have a front seat at the opening night, eager to get, if possible, the advance dope on what was going to happen to him.

Being credulous, as I have said, he wasted a good deal of time in thinking about the fortunes which were said to be coming his way, the long journeys he was going to take, or the dark-eyed beauties who were destined to cross his path. He made plans for the future based upon what he had been advised by some shrewd fakir was going to come to pass, and then lost out because nothing happened. He grew weary after a while of being so often disappointed, and decided that it was just as well, possibly, to let the future manage itself and to take things when they came. It is the wise point of view.

It is just as well, I think, much as we often feel otherwise, that we are ignorant of what is going to happen to us tomorrow or next month or ten years from now. Few of us plan our lives as we should do if we knew they were to end tomorrow. We shall live to eighty or ninety, we tell ourselves, and there is plenty of time before us to do the things that should be done.

Morrow lived a wonderfully happy life. He was ambitious, he worked hard, he had begun to accomplish unusual things with the prospect before him of being one of the most distinguished men in his profession throughout the country. Then the end came: he was dead at thirty-five, but even in these few years he had done much.

Had he known ten or fifteen years before he died that he should go at thirty-five, would he have accomplished what he did? Would his heart have failed him when he looked forward to the end? Would he have lost courage, and have waited stolidly and inactively for the end? Possibly.

We would faint by the roadside, often, if we knew of the sorrow and the misfortune and the sacrifice that await us on the road ahead, but which, when it comes, we meet with fortitude. Men would be so elated, perhaps, if they could realize years before it comes to them the success and the prosperity that are to be theirs, that it would be impossible to live with them, so conceited would they be.

No; it is a wise provision of Providence that we cannot look into the future.

Johnny Appleseed

We are celebrating this year the 15th anniversary of many stirring scenes and accidents of American history. One hundred and fifty years ago free government was being established in the Western world and many notable characters were walking across the pages of history, whose daring deeds we are commemorating today. And so this year, while we are engaged in paying tribute to the heroes of 1776, it is also well to remember that it was this same year that marked the birth of an eccentric character who became known to the first settlers of the northwest territory as Johnny Appleseed, pioneer orchardist of America. For every forty years this man devoted his time in wandering through the wilderness planting apple seeds for the benefit of future settlers and their descendants. To this man was due the splendid orchards that blossomed so full during the early part of the nineteenth century, when states like Michigan were in the making. Johnny Appleseed was not a war hero, his real name has been forgotten, but the service he rendered for mankind has survived the years and will not be overlooked by those who shared in the work that he gave to the nation. Trees are being planted this year in his honor, for we have learned that he who plants a tree leaves a monument behind.

Swat, Brother, Swat!

Now is the appointed time to start an active warfare against the fly. For every fly killed we will save ourselves the trouble of battling with its progeny later on. Let us make this a flyless community. There is no excuse for carelessness or laziness on our part. We know that the fly is a breeder and carrier of disease that should be eradicated, just as surely and certain as the mosquito has been eliminated as a national pest. Breeding places for flies should be wiped out, premises should be kept clean and an active warfare maintained from now until cold weather returns in the fall. It is a good citizen who encourages and helps in this battle against a deadly enemy of health.

Rescue Mission

Not Needed

Madison Square church house is in one of the old slum districts of New York City. It is affiliated with the First Presbyterian Church. For twenty-three years Dr. Lee Battie has been in charge of the rescue mission. Dr. Battie says it is no longer a rescue mission, but a social center, and that the change is due to prohibition. He says:

"In pre-prohibition days the settlement would spend from $75 to $300 a month for rent to prevent families from being dispossessed, to supply food for the hungry, clothes for the needy—especially the children, so they could attend school—and this only met the most pressing needs. Since prohibition I cannot give away $15 a month and some months pass when I do not need to spend $5 for relief.

"In pre-prohibition days my staff of visitors to tenement homes were constantly running across what were called drunkard's homes. Groups of women—sometimes with men present—were sitting about the table, one of the women having invited her neighbors in. One of the children would be sent to the corner to 'rush the can'. These groups were more or less under the influence of drink, though the wets tell us now that beer does not intoxicate. Since the Eighteenth Amendment has become a law we have never seen even one of these 'parties'.

"In pre-prohibition days it was a common thing to see children coming from the side door of the saloon with a can of beer, and before delivering it to their mothers and fathers, being surrounded by other children, and they all took a sip before taking it home.

"For years we owned and carried on a fresh-air farm in Connecticut, where we sent free or for a small charge entire families for a two weeks' summer vacation. We could accommodate fifty-five in each party and the demand was always far beyond our capacity. We ran this farm one year after prohibition came, but with great difficulty we could muster parties of only twenty-seven.

"Wishing to fill up the quota we called one week upon the mother of a family of six children, who had been among the first applicants the previous years and been unable to pay anything. Their reply was: 'Oh, we have rented a bungalow for ourselves down at the beach.' It developed that my husband had stopped drinking and had a raise in his pay and brought home the whole sum every week instead of a few dollars, as he used to when the saloons were open and he got his beer. So we had to sell our fresh-air farm."

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

We descended the Spyglass in silence. Twilight overtook us in the forest at its base, and we were obliged to retrace our course with extreme caution, so that eight bells rang from the Royal James—so exact was the restored discipline on that stranded hulk—as we stepped from the trees on to the shore of the North inlet and halted for a boat.

My great-uncle met us at the gangway, immaculate in plum satin coat and blue plush breeches, white silk stockings and black pumps, silver-buckled, his hair neatly tied with a black silk ribbon.

"Well, well," he greeted us, "you have made a long day of it. I trust you are not overtired, sweet?"

This to Molra.

"I have delayed sitting to dinner in hopes that you would be here. You can see—" he waved an all-inclusive hand—"that we have not been idle aboard the James. We begin to look like a ship again, eh? Did you by chance see the new mizzen?"

"You better come to der cabin," said Peter abruptly.

"I beg your pardon?" answered Murray.

"We have something to tell you,"

I said. "It cannot wait."

His eyes plumbed mine, and I think he knew in that instant what our news

was. He clicked open his snuff-box and dusted a pinch delicately into his nostrils.

"So?" he murmured. "Sets the wind

in that quarter?"

And he offered Molra his arm with the fine, stately dignity he achieved to perfection, and led the way aft to the main cabin.

"You may place the vials upon the table, Gunn," he said to the steward when we were seated. "We will serve ourselves."

He turned to Molra.

"I recommend this fish. 'Tis fresh-caught, and Scpio—" the remaining blackamoor—"is a master at such dishes; he hath stuffed it, you see,

with greens he procured from the woods."

"We have scant time to eat, let alone to admire our food," I interposed roughly. "From the peak of the Spyglass at sunset we sighted the tops of a ship in the east."

"I presume that you believe her to be the Walrus?" he returned.

"Ja," said Peter. "It is Flint."

"My faith, and who else would it be?" asked Molra.

"Doubtless you are right," he asserted. "Indeed, I do not question it.

Our examination of the northern and eastern beaches today failed to disclose a trace of evidence to indicate what had become of the Walrus, and had she sunk some wreckage must have washed ashore. Yes, yes, my friends, our ill-luck is still with us.

Flint rode out the storm. But that,

Robert, is no reason why we should not secure the maximum of satisfaction from this tasty meal—all the more particularly so when we consider 'tis like to be the last for some days we shall eat in such comfortable surroundings."

"You take it coolly!" I exclaimed.

"And why not? 'Tis a disaster, I grant you, yet irritation will not aid me to redress it."

"You don't stay here, neen?" said

Peter.

"Quite right, friend Peter. The Royal James in her present plight would be a death-trap. I shall abandon her tonight and shift to the fort

Flint was so obliging as to construct

for us by the anchorage."

"And the treasure?" I asked.

He held up his wineglass to the light and studied it reflectively.

"Obviously, we must be where the treasure is," he returned at length.

"Or, if you please, put it the other way round: The treasure must be where we are. I foresee a busy night for our people."

Molra thrust out appealing hands toward him.

"Oh, sir, why won't ye just be after calling out to this ship when she comes and bid them take what they will and go? Sure, that would be better than—"

"Tut, tut," he rebuked her. "A part of this treasure is to supplement

the eight hundred thousand pounds

intended for your father's friends—and they, my lass, are King James' friends. You are a good Jacobite, I trust, and would not see our Cause deprived of a single doubloon that might buy muskets in Lyons or sword-blades in Breda?"

"Ah, 'tis little enough I feel for King James or any of them that will have sent the padre to his doom!"

she cried. "And what is a Jacobite

or a Hanoverian, or what worth King

George or King James, that you must be murdering and slaying and be that was a good man and kind—when he wasn't in liquor—should lie in health-

en ground?"

She leaped up, quivering with passion lashed afame.

"Jacobite! The toe of my boot to the word and them that use it! Little enough hath it meant to me but poverty and exile and the death of her that bore me and now—and now

—the padre—and now—"

She fled from the cabin in tears,

and her stateroom door slammed after her.

"Poor lass! Poor lass!" sighed my great-uncle. "It hath been a trying day for her. We must be lenient."

"You should be down on your knees, beseeching her forgiveness, you who wantonly dragged her into this danger!" I snarled at him.

"Wantonly, Robert?" he objected

mildly. "Certain, you should know better by now. My reasons were of the best, my motives of the highest."

He rang the silver bell in front of him, and when Gunn appeared said—

"Send Coupeau to me."

"Send Coupeau to me again—"

Then he turned to me again—

"You, of all persons, Robert, have least cause to censure me for Mistress O'Donnell's presence."

"I have most!" I retorted hotly. "I am so unfortunate as to be related to you, and therefore must be in some measure a sharer of the obloquy attached to your deeds."

He wagged his head sadly.

"Words! What rash, unreasoning words! Will not youth sponsor in its blind prejudices! Peter, I appeal to you: Doth not my grandnephew lie

in my debt for my conduct in arranging for him the opportunity to acquire our little Irish maid?"

Peter drained a glass of brandy.

"You better not say any more, Murray," he grunted. "Neen! Maybe you say too much."

"I had supposed myself the model of diplomacy," protested my great-uncle.

Peter's little eyes twinkled behind their protective rolls of fat.

"Ja, you been pretty smart, Murray.

But der smart feller, he jas to look out or he gets too smart. Ja! And when he gets too smart he is in trouble."

Coupeau's hideous mask of a face shined in the companionway entrance.

"Ouh, m'sieu?" he growled.

"Ah, Coupeau," answered Murray.

"A strange sail approaches the island, perhaps Flint, perhaps another. To us it matters not. We must entrench ourselves ashore. The treasure and sufficient stores for two weeks' sojourn will be shifted to the stockaded

fort on the hill north of Captain Kidd's anchorage. The men must work all night again if necessary. Do you understand?"

"Ouh, m'sieu," replied the gunner.

And Coupeau clumped off down the companionway. A moment later his hoarse voice split the quiet of the ship as he commenced to bark orders.

"A stout fellow, Coupeau," commended my great-uncle. "I have never regretted the salvaging of him. But perhaps it would be as well if we went on deck and lent him moral support."

As a matter of fact, there was less disposition than we anticipated on the part of the crew to object to this new labor. And the reason was not far to seek. The transfer of the treasure to the fort by the Anchorage furnished them an opportunity to establish an intimacy of contact with it they had not known previously, an intimacy alluring, stimulating, dis-composing. True, they already had transferred the entire cargo of the Santissima Trinidad once, had removed the half of it from the Royal

James to the Dead Man's Chest, and only two days since had broken out the remainder for division with the Walrus.

Peter and I, with Molra and Ben

Gunn and Scpio, followed the main column of the evacuation about midnight. Coupeau had led the first contingent, some of whom we met returning to the ship, to fetch a second load of stores. My great-uncle was to come after us with these and the remainder of the crew, leaving behind on the Royal James only some twenty-odd men who had not yet recovered sufficiently from wounds received in the two actions with the Santissima Trinidad and the Walrus to permit of their removal, and who were made as comfortable as possible

on the gundeck.

I noted uneasily that the groups who passed us were talking eagerly amongst themselves, with no appear-

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

"TIZ" GLADDENS SORE, TIRED FEET

"Tiz" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, calluses, blisters and bunions.

"Tiz" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work, how long you dance, how far you walk, or how long you remain on your feet, "Tiz" brings restful foot comfort. "Tiz" is wonderful for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet. Your feet just tingle for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get a box of "Tiz" now from any drug or department store. End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy.

Muskegon—A lake frontage and tourists conference is being arranged here by the Michigan Real Estate association for May 20 and 21. The conference will bring to Muskegon a number of authorities on subjects allied with the tourist business, including W. S. Gillbreath, of the Detroit Automobile club. The state realtors body, East Michigan Tourist association, Michigan Tourist and Resort association and Upper Peninsula Development bureau are sponsoring the conference, the first that has ever been held in the state.

Lansing—Members of the Michigan Independent Oil Men's association, meeting in Lansing recently, failed to reach any decision on future action in the campaign to have kerosene inspection costs reduced. The matter was left open until the next meeting of the association, which is to be held July 15 and 16, at Mackinaw Island. "We are satisfied with the two-cent gasoline tax," said James A. Gilmore, of Grand Rapids, secretary-treasurer of the association, "but any increase will be vigorously opposed by the independent oil men."

Judge Wilkerson signed a foreclosure order after hearing creditors' claims against the road.

CHICAGO IS ALARMED OVER LAWLESSNESS

Justice Body Is Formed to Investigate All Crime.

Chicago.—A decision to organize immediately "the Chicago Association for Criminal Justice" was reached at a meeting of representatives of 24 civic, educational and business groups as a result of the lawless situation prevailing in Chicago and Cook county.

The decision came at a conference held under the auspices of the president's council of the Association of Commerce, at which representatives of the following organizations were present:

Chicago Board of Trade, Commercial club, Chicago Athletic club, Chicago Association of Credit Men, Employers' association, Hamilton club, Illinois Athletic club, Chicago Bar association, Illinois Manufacturers' association, Chicago Church federation, Chicago Clearing House association, Kiwanis club, Chicago Real Estate board, Northwestern university, University of Chicago, Citizens' association, Rotary club, Civic federation, City club, Traffic club, Union League club, Cook County Real Estate board and the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The action followed the appointment of a few months ago of a committee to conduct an inquiry into city and county crime conditions. At that time the committee advocated the appointment of a permanent body to investigate crime and it was decided to carry through the plan.

State's Attorney Crowe also prevailed upon Judge William V. Brothers, acting chief justice of the Criminal court, to summon a special grand jury to investigate crime conditions in Cook county. The jury is now in session. Mr. Crowe appealed to Attorney General Carlstrom to cooperate in the inquiry.

The recent murder of one of the principal assistants to the state's attorney, in addition to almost nightly murders, countless holdups and other kinds of crime, has aroused the city to extreme measures.

In calling for a special grand jury State's Attorney Crowe advised that he had received a warning that his home would be bombed and that his children would be kidnaped.

Iowa Women Will Seek Office; May Change Law

Des Moines, Iowa.—Undaunted by the fact that the Iowa state constitution must first be modified before they can hold office as state representatives, two Iowa women have ventured into the primary election campaign. They have confidence that the voters will approve of a change in the constitution in the November election, which will make possible the seating of other woman candidates who may be elected on the same date.

Two Iowa legislatures have adopted a resolution striking out the word "male" in the constitutional provision in regard to qualification of persons for legislative positions. This paved the way for approval by vote.

Women are not barred from any other state office, although candidates have filed only for secretary of state and state superintendent of public instruction—the latter now held by a woman.

BRITISH STRIKERS RECEIVING SUPPORT

General Tieup Is Being Augmented by Friendly Labor Organizations.

Washington.—Officials of the American Federation of Labor declined to make any statement concerning an appeal for financial assistance received from British trade unions now staging the general strike.

London.—Threat by the Trades Union congress to call out another 2,000,000 men; intervention of troops to prevent destruction of property and danger to life at the East India docks on the Thames; a prospective visit by labor leaders to Belgium for the purpose of enlisting the support of the Miners' International federation there and widespread rowdiness throughout Scotland by elements not connected with organized labor, are the outstanding features of the British general strike.

Another important incident is the news that British unions have made an appeal for funds to organized workers in the United States.

In Wales wholesale and retail grocers issued a proclamation that beyond strictly normal amounts, credit could not be extended to people in the strike areas. These two factors, when considered together, are taken as indicative of the weak financial position of the strikers.

In the meantime reports have trickled into London from various parts of the world showing that support is being given by other labor to the strikers.

From Copenhagen came a report that Danish labor unions had decided to declare a general strike and had sent preliminary notices to their employers. Great Britain gets the major part of its butter and eggs from Denmark.

Approximately 2,000,000 rubles, the second installment of a fund voted for their relief, has been transferred to the British Trades Union congress by Soviet labor unions.

In France the administrative committee of the general labor federation announced that it had approved steps taken by unions there to hinder the exportation of material to England.

Dock workers in Antwerp have decided to quit handling coal shipments for Great Britain. The crew of the Canadian Pacific steamer Melita held up its departure for several hours, awaiting authorization from the British Seamen's union.

In Mexico City it is announced that British steamers will be refused coal at Mexican ports. One thousand dollars has been wired from Mexico City for the strikers.

If the strike lasts another week unions in Canada will send out an appeal for funds to aid the British, it was announced in Ottawa.

Formal declaration of war on rioters is declared in a message published by the government in the British Gazette and broadcast by radio. It states:

"All ranks of the armed forces of the British crown are hereby informed that any action they may find necessary to take in an honest endeavor to aid civil authorities will receive both now and afterwards the full support of his majesty's government."

The effect of the government's ukase is that unless disorders in England, Scotland and Wales cease immediately, might will be invoked. It is the first time in the history of the world that such a challenge has been broadcast by radio—and to 5,000,000 or more men, strikers and strike sympathizers.

The government further announced that London's special police force will be increased if need be to 50,000 in addition to the Metropolitan force of 20,000.

O. K.'s $75,000,000 for New U. S. War Planes

Washington.—Development of an army air corps in accordance with the five-year program, recommended by its military affairs committee, was approved by the house, without serious opposition.

The expenditure of $75,000,000 for new airplanes, two 6,000,000 cubic foot capacity dirigibles, and a number of training balloons, is expected to make available 1,728 airplanes for active flying units of the regular army and 371 for allocation to National Guard and organized reserve flying units.

TO AID U. S. IN WAR ON RUM SMUGGLING

Great Britain Offers to Help Stop Illicit Traffic

Washington.—British aid in stamping out the illicit rum traffic between England and the United States is offered in official memoranda made public by the State department.

The department announced that in response to an invitation from Great Britain Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, chief prohibition enforcement officer, and other American officials, will go to England May 22 for a conference with British officials.

It is understood that General Andrews hopes to strengthen the rum treaty between Great Britain and this government so as to effectually stop all liquor smuggling from that source into the United States. In making its offer, the British government asserted it would render the United States "such assistance as lies in its power" in the fight to stop smuggling.

In their memoranda the British government announced it would grant United States coast guard cutters right to enter islands in the Bahamas and obtain information there concerning rum ships. It was also announced that the British government was prepared to remove liquor smuggling ships from British registry upon production of reasonably good evidence that the vessel concerned is really owned or controlled in America.

The British government has also called upon registrars of shipping in the West Indies to take especial care to prevent transfers to the British flag of vessels intended for the smuggling trade.

All co-operative actions taken by the British government are not blinding arrangements and will run for only one year.

Daugherty Indicted in Metal Case Plot

New York.—A federal grand jury indicted Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, for conspiracy in connection with the American Metal company case now before the courts. Thomas W. Miller, former custodian of alien property, and John T. King, former Republican national committeeman, were indicted on the same charge.

In the indictment, the three defendants are accused of having conspired to prevent the government from receiving "honest and unbiased judgment" from Miller and Daugherty as to the turning over of the metal corporation's assets and securities. Both were acting in an official capacity for the federal administration.

In the indictment the three defendants and the late Jesse W. Smith, one-time aid to Mr. Daugherty, were to share $991,000 in Liberty bonds for arranging the deal. King is charged with receiving that sum in the specified bonds October 1, 1925; also, with accepting a $50,000 check in July, 1925, in connection with the same deal.

It is stated in the indictment that the three defendants and Smith entered into the conspiracy at least two months before Colonel Miller or Daugherty took office in 1921; and that these four men "conspired to defraud the government continuously throughout that period of time beginning January 1, 1921, and ending December 1, 1921."

Explore Your Own Middle West

Pleasure places, wonderful scenery and unusual sights are within a short distance of your home—wherever you may happen to live in the Middle West. This great, rich section of our country has been unexploited, but no part of the world offers more to see and do.

Leave dull care behind and start out tomorrow in your car to explore your own country. Time? It doesn't matter. A day, a week, or a whole summer—it will be packed with pleasure. Money? It's not important. Camp beneath the stars, stop at rustic lodges, put up at smart hotels—as you wish.

Look over this short list. Check the things you've seen, and those you'd like to:

- 1—Wyandotte Cave, Crawford County, Indiana, the second largest cavern in the country. Eleven levels and a passage-way thirteen miles long. Near Corydon on State Highway No. 16.
- 2—Redwood Falls, a magnificent spectacle, in Ramsey State Park, Minnesota. Itasca Park Highway and State Highway No. 14.
- 3—Starved Rock, visited by Marquette and Joliet in 1673, the scene of the last stand of the Illinois Indians. A few miles from Ottawa, Illinois. State Highway No. 7.
- 4—Gorge of the Mississippi in Wisconsin with castellated heights of weathered limestone bearing a fantastic resemblance to fortresses of old. State Highway No. 35.
- 5—Mark Twain State Park in Monroe County, Missouri, on beautiful bluffs overlooking Salt River, where Samuel Clemens was born. Near Paris, State Highways No. 10 and 15.
- 6—Hutchinson, Kansas—a center of the salt industry and an extensive strata of pure rock salt which is probably the largest in the world. Highways No. 59 and No. 32.
- 7—The Kildeer Mountains, the most beautiful of the scenic spots of North Dakota. Near the town of Kildeer on the Mandan-Kildeer and Denver-Esteven Highways.
- 8—Miles of shaded shoreline along the Lake in Michigan. State Highways No. 11 and No. 22.
- 9—Spearfish Canyon, with its sheer walls and tumbling waters, forty miles of exquisite beauty in South Dakota. Custer Battlefield Highway from Rapid City.
- 10—Effigy Indian mounds—built in the shape of various animals. Several bird mounds that measure 150 feet from tip to tip of wing North of McGregor, Iowa, on State Highways No. 13 and No. 19.

These are mere suggestions. Isn't the list an incentive to find out what is near you?

Motoring in the Middle West is an unalloyed pleasure. There are fine roads wherever you go—and Red Crown Gasoline all along the way.

Fill your tank with Red Crown Gasoline, get a good road map, and start out tomorrow. Re-discover your own Middle West.

Primitive Telegraph

The word telegraph was first used in France to describe a device invented by Chappe in 1792, consisting of an upright post with movable arms, the signals being made by various positions of the arms according to a prearranged code. The word was later translated into English and used for our present telegraphic communication.

DON'T OVERLOOK THIS

Foley & Co., 2835 Sheffield Ave., Chicago, value so highly the medicinal qualities of FOLEY PILLS, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, that they guarantee them to give satisfaction or money refunded. Anybody seeking relief from kidney and bladder disorders will be helped by Foley Pills." Constantly used over 25 years. Good for men and women alike. Ask for Foley Pills.—Hite's Drug Store.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowley Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.
