EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1926.

NUMBER 42

Second Victory in Football

East Jordan Wins 24 to 6 Score at Gaylord Last Friday.

East Jordan's gridiron men made their second dash to victory last Friday afternoon at Gaylord by a score of 24 to 6. The crowd, composed more than half of East Jordan fans with their fighting spirit, witnessed the triumph of the locals in a fast, exciting game. Until the last quarter the game's outcome looked uncertain, for each side seemed to have an equal chance of winning. The day was ideal for football watching, there being no wind and a good deal of warmth.

There were many out-standing plays witnessed. Among those which seemed to be the most thrilling in nature was the scoring of our four touchdowns, two of which were sensational passes made by Taylor to Shepard at distances of about twenty yards. The others were end runs of similar nature by Taylor and Gleason.

After East Jordan's kick off to Gaylord the ball remained in the center of the field for the first few plays, until Gleason started things by a left end run of ten yards. Small gains followed until he again dashed around left end for six yards—placing the ball only six yards from the goal. Taylor then made a right end run and with the splendid interference succeeded in scoring the first touchdown of the game. The one point was blocked. East Jordan kicked again but Gleason was unsuccessful—kicking up a good deal of dirt and the ball only going twelve yards. Gaylord failed to make gains so Rolinski punted. Pray received far down the field with little return. After Pray made three yards they fumbled the ball on our twenty yard line. Gaylord failed to move the ball a foot in three downs before the end of the quarter.

They then tried to cover the twenty yards by a pass but failed in the attempt. Gleason punted the ball back forty-five yards and in the first down Barnette threw them for a loss of three yards. For the remainder of the quarter the ball went through many punts and passes with little result to either team. Half ended 6 to 0.

Gaylord, with final instruction during the half, was in store for a touchdown. Kicking off, the ball was returned ten yards but our fellows were forced to punt. Gaylord made a short, good return of ten yards and in the first down gained five, repeated by four in second and the completion of the ten in the fourth down. With this opportunity at hand a good fifteen yard pass was staged, followed by a cross-buck fake of Rolinski's which gave them their only touchdown of the game. Their pass for the point was incomplete. Jordan then duplicated Gaylord's wonderful scoring by making an impressive touchdown in three downs from the kick off. As it happened Gaylord kicked short and the ball was returned to the thirty-five yard line. At the failure of a pass Taylor showed how hard he was to down when he straight armed almost every fellow on the Gaylord team in a fifteen yard right end run. Gleason covered the remaining twenty yards in an end run for a touchdown. Gaylord fumbled on the first down but recovered with no gains, next they were penalized fifteen yards for holding. They were tackled for a loss of ten yards and when forged to punt, the ball went out-of-bounds near the line of scrimmage. But with this advantage of the ball East Jordan failed to make gains. Gaylord again punted sideways for a loss of two yards and the locals' chance was renewed on the ten yard line. Taylor lost four on the first down and an incomplete pass was the result of the second.

East Jordan began the last quarter by a pass of fourteen yards. Taylor's pass to Shepard was perfect and the touchdown was secured. The boys again failed in the point-making, the out-come being 18 to 6. Jordan's team kicked off and forced their opponents to punt back after three downs. Gleason made a sensational comeback of thirty yards and in the first down Taylor made ten around right end. These gains were topped off by a second pass by our fullback to Shepard for eighteen yards and a touchdown. The game ended with the ball in the center of the field.

Farm Short Course To Open at M. S. C.

A general short course in agriculture, running for 16 weeks in each of two winters, will open at the Michigan State College on Oct. 25, according to announcement made here.

This will be the first of the more than a dozen special short courses in agriculture and home economics which will be offered at M. S. C. during the coming winter, most of the others starting in January.

Forty different subjects are offered in the "Sixteen Weeks" general course, according to R. H. Tenny, director of the short course work. This course is said to be very practical, taking up nearly all important phases of Michigan agriculture and giving the student a fund of everyday-workable knowledge.

Lansing—The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. was authorized to put substantial rate increases into effect in 17 out-state cities and towns in orders issued by the Michigan Public Utilities Commission. The cities affected are Port Huron, Marysville, Benton Harbor, Monroe, Iron Mountain, St. Joseph, Birmingham, Dearborn, Redford, Mt. Clemens, Niles, Wyandotte, Ypsilanti, Potoskey, Plymouth, Roseville and Mackinac Island.

Detroit—One hundred thousand dollars in a check was paid completing a deal by which the Victoria Cougar Hockey Club became the property of the Detroit Hockey Club, franchise holder in the National Hockey League. Before the Club's plans are complete, however, the investment will surpass a million dollars as a large arena to cost $1,000,000 is now under construction.

Saginaw—Sale of the Wilcox Motor Parts & Manufacturing Co. to a new corporation organized largely by Detroit capitalists and prominent automobile manufacturers, has been announced at the offices of the plant. The new corporation will be capitalized at $1,000,000. It will bear the name of the Wilcox Products company, and will manufacture valves, tappets and piston rings for automobile makers.

Lansing—Michigan is first, not second among the states of the Union in the number of automobiles put into service in the first six months of 1926. The increase in the number of registered automobiles in Michigan on July 1 over the same date last year was 193,718. Counting in commercial vehicles and tax-exempt automobiles of Federal, state and local authorities, which are numbered separately, the state now has approximately 1,245,000 automobiles registered.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Niles—Mrs. Katherine Malecka, 103, oldest woman in Michigan, is dead. Mrs. Malecka was born in Poland in 1828.

Marine City—Public dedicatory services were held for the new municipal gymnasium which has just been completed at a cost of $20,900. The gymnasium will seat 800, and is to be used also as a community building.

Lansing—Amendments to new schedules recently fixed for Port Huron, Benton Harbor, and St. Joseph, providing material reductions from the originally ordered telephone rate increases, were announced by the state public utilities commission.

Birmingham—The Birmingham Hunting Club recently has purchased 3,000 acres near Alpena, in Alcona county, which it proposes to reforest in the interest of conservation while it is restocking the place as a game preserve and using it for the pleasure of its members.

Ironwood—Because football practice would be taboo here due to an epidemic of infantile paralysis, the Ironwood high school football squad is in training at Lake Gogebic, 35 miles east of here. The squad will fish, hunt, study and practice football until the quarantine is removed.

Detroit—Detroit ranks third in the number of automobile fatalities in American cities so far this year, the department of commerce announced. During the first three-quarters of the year, 203 persons were killed in Detroit streets. New York and Chicago fatalities number more, the former with 663 and the latter with 485.

Jackson—Eitch E. Willard, 63-year-old laborer, in the city water works plant here, has come into possession of a $75,000 estate through a Supreme Court decision. Willard's $75,000 is his reward for 46 years of devotion to Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell, of Jackson, whose employ he entered as a boy of 14 on the death of the Campbells. The probate court had awarded the estate to 17 distant relatives. This decision has now been reversed by the Supreme Court.

Detroit—The latest statistical reports show the population of Detroit is a million and a half, increasing 100 per cent in population every 10 years for the last quarter of a century. Savings deposits for 1926 were nearly $600,000,000, an increase of 40 per cent over 1924. Bank clearings are approaching $10,000,000. Detroit has 185 different kinds of industries, and 3,500 manufacturing plants with invested capital of $600,000,000 with an output of nearly $2,000,000,000.

Clarkston—Daisy Aggie Ormsby, 3d, a Holstein cow from Lakefield Farms, near Clarkston, has just broken the world's record for all breeds for butter production during a 30-day period. She produced 178.66 pounds of butter, exceeding the former record of 178.4 pounds. Previously she had set a new seven-day record for Michigan with 45.85 pounds of butter, as compared with 41 pounds, the old mark. She was purchased in 1924 for $4,800, now is valued at $10,000.

Saginaw—Delegates representing sportsmen's organizations throughout the entire state at a recent meeting here recommended the establishment of a $1.00 resident hunting and fishing license, the proceedings to be used in the purchase of state owned game and fish refuges. It was also proposed to recommend to the legislature that the partridge season be closed for the entire state for 1927 and 1928 and members were asked to refrain from shooting any partridges during the present year.

Lansing—Virtually every corporation in the state is in default of the corporate laws, according to an interpretation of a supreme court opinion handed down by the attorney general. The legislature in 1921 adopted act 84, a general corporation code, and followed with act 85, the tax law. Both acts required reports, but inasmuch as the tax law required a detailed report it was thought unnecessary for corporations to file twice. The court stipulates a report must be filed under each act.

Ann Arbor—Starting toward the completion of a task of many years, Prof. William J. Hussey of the University of Michigan set sail from New York for South Africa. Accompanying him are Mrs. Hussey and Prof. and Mrs. Richard A. Rossiter. Egg Race Close As Hens Enter Stretch

All Records Being Broken in Annual Laying Contest at M. S. C.

With only 42 eggs separating the four highest pens in the annual International Egg Laying Contest at the Michigan State College, and with less than a month to go before the end of the test, the closest and most thrilling finish in the famous "egg marathon" is being predicted by officials in charge.

All records for the Michigan contest are being broken by the birds entered this year. An average of 186 eggs per bird for the 1,000 hens in the contest was noted at the end of the 48th week, as compared with last year's record average of 168 eggs at the same period in the contest, which ends on November 1.

The high ranking pens, of ten birds each, on October second were as follows: Hanson's White Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Oregon, 2,384 eggs; J. Pater and Son, Hudsonville, Michigan, 2,360; Marshall Farms, Mobile, Alabama, 2,359; Geo. S. Sutton, Aurora, Ind., 2,342; Geo. B. Ferris, Grand Rapids, Mich., 2,327.

HE KNOWS JAPAN

When questions concerning Japan or the Japanese come before Secretary of State Kellogg and other officials of the State department the man they naturally turn to for accurate information is John K. Caldwell of the division of far eastern affairs. Mr. Caldwell spent twenty years in the consular and diplomatic service in Japan and speaks Japanese fluently.

Holland—The close of the season for Lakewood farm owned by George Getz, one of the largest private zoos in the country, is near at hand and the animals will soon be placed in winter quarters. Rough figures tabulated at the farm show that there were more than 200,000 visitors this summer. The Sunday crowds ranged from 10,000 to 20,000, and the average week day crowd was about 1,000.

Detroit—Nine men from Michigan were selected to receive the thirty-third degree, highest in Scottish Rite Masonry and the highest honor that can be given by the order to a brother Mason, at the annual meeting of the supreme council, held in Buffalo. They are: Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, and William P. Airheart, Detroit; George A. Donaldson, Leonard J. Hill and Glenn P. Thayer of Grand Rapids; Rev. William H. Gallagher, Allegan; William A. McBratwe, Saginaw; Sherman Gregg, Kalamazoo, and George A. Prescott, Tawas City.

Pay your subscription to this journal of progress this month and be thankful next month that you won't have to repeat the act for 11 months.

School Notes

Three new students have entered High School since the time of enrollment. They are Leonard Antoine and Erving Antoine of the seventh grade, and Mary Hufton of the tenth grade.

The eighth grade held a party, consisting of a pot-luck supper and games, at the high school Friday night. It was chaperoned by Miss Bryant, Miss Poole, and Miss Campbell.

ANNUAL MEETING OF M. E. A. The fifth district of the Michigan Education Association, formerly the Michigan State Teachers' Association, will meet at Potoskey, Sept. 21-22. In order that the teachers of East Jordan may attend this meeting, school will be dismissed for those two days.

ATHLETIC ASS'N BENEFIT

The Athletic Association is putting on the movie this Wednesday, Thursday and Friday called "Hold That Lion" with Douglas MacLean starring. The tickets are to be sold by the high school students. Mr. Thomas, Manager of the Temple Theatre, is giving the association a good share of the profits.

A contest similar to the one which was used in selling football tickets is being carried on for this ticket sale. The two classes which sell the least tickets will have to entertain the other two at a big, old-fashioned Halloween party where spooks and witches will reign supreme.

HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLY

The weekly High School Assembly last Wednesday was opened by a Scripture reading by Mr. Duncanson, after which Mr. Snellenberger took charge.

Mr. Snellenberger in co-operation with a national movement, proposed to the students that they observe a "Walter Camp Day." The purpose of this is to raise funds for the memorial to be erected at Yale University in honor of Walter Camp, the father of real American football. East Jordan High School wishes to do its part in paying tribute to him, so, at the next home game a certain percent of all the money taken in is to be sent to the committee as its contribution. Schools all over the country are raising funds to show their appreciation of the founder of the all-American game. Assembly was dismissed after the students had voted upon and accepted the proposition.

FAMO FLOUR GIFT

The Harris Milling Company of Mount Pleasant, Michigan, makers of Famo Flours, donated to the Domestic Science Department one bale of Famo Cake and Pastry Flour, Famo Pancake Flour, Famo Graham Flour, and Famo Corn Meal. It was sent with all express charges prepaid and in no way did it cost the school anything. This is certainly to be appreciated because it is a very high grade of flour.

Later in the year, when the domestic science classes are studying pastry, we invite you to visit the department and see the baked articles made from Famo Flour.

Serious Accident

Stephen McCumber, aged 83, was knocked down on M-57 Friday by an auto and had two bones of his left leg broken and a bad cut on the side of the head. He was taken to the Potoskey hospital for treatment. The unfortunate man lived with his nephew, Alfred Woerful, two miles east of the city and was crossing the highway on the way to the barn when the automobile-owned and driven by O. Bovee the well known citizen struck him and carried him a distance of six rods before coming to a stop. The advanced age of the injured man may prevent his early recovery.—Boyie Citizen.

WONDERFUL HEALTH REPAYS WISE FORETHOUGHT.

Mrs. Wm. C. Fischer, 2009 Woodbourne Ave., Louisville, Ky., occasionally takes Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, which helped her over a quite severe ailment. "Yes," she says, "I still take Foley Pills, diuretic, at times, when ever I feel I need them, and as a result my health is wonderful." Not surprising, for Foley Pills, diuretic, are a reliable, valuable, tonic medicine, constantly in use over 25 years, promoting that satisfactory cleansing flow so necessary to good health. Try them.—Hite's Drug Store. adv.

Are You "Toxic?"

It is Well, Then, to Learn the Importance of Good Elimination.

FUNCTIONAL inactivity of the kidneys permits a retention of waste poisons in the blood. Symptoms of this toxic condition are a dull, languid feeling, drowsy headaches and, sometimes, toxic backache and dizziness. That the kidneys are not functioning as they should is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many readers have learned the value of Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic to the kidneys, in this condition. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then be at ease.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

The Girl in the Mirror

By Elizabeth Jordan

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Barbara Devon's wedding and departure on her honeymoon leaves her brother "Laurie," successful playwright but somewhat inclined to wildness, without her restraining influence. His theatrical associates, Rodney Bangs and Jacob Epstein, promise to "keep an eye on him."

CHAPTER II—Laurie, who is wealthy, refuses to settle down to work, announcing his intention of resting and seeking "adventure." From his window in New York he sees the reflection of a beautiful girl in a mirror in the house opposite.

Laurie turned and walked away. Even yet the experience did not seem real. It was probably all based on some foolish notion of the youth's; and yet he dared not assume that it was a foolish notion. He had the dramatist's distaste for drama anywhere except in its legitimate place, on the stage; but he admitted that sometimes it did occur in life. This might be one of those rare occasions.

Whatever it was, it haunted him. He lunched with Bangs that day, and was so silent that Bangs was moved to comment.

"If you were any one else," he remarked, "I'd almost think you were thinking!"

Laurie disclaimed the charge, but his abstraction did not lift. By this time his imagination was hard at work. He pictured the girl in the mirror as stretched on her virginity-cot in the final exhaustion of starvation; and the successful effort to keep away from the studio building till four o'clock called for all his will power. Suppose the boy blundered, or wasn't in time. Suppose the girl really had not eaten anything since last Tuesday! These thoughts, and similar ones, obsessed him.

At four he strolled into the studio hall, wearing what he hoped was a detached and casual air. When the elevator appeared, he entered it with the others who were waiting. He looked slooily past the elevator boy as he did so, and that young person showed himself equal to the situation by presenting to this newcomer a stolid ebony profile. But when the lift had reached the top floor and discharged its passengers, the two conspirators lent themselves to the drama of their roles.

"Well," asked Laurie eagerly, "did you get it?"

"Yas, sah."

"What happened?"

The boy stopped his descending car midway between two floors. He had no intention of having his scene spoiled. He bulged visibly under the news he had to impart. "I got de stuff you said, and I let it at dat young lady's do," he began impressively.

"Yes."

"When I looked de nex' time, it was gone."

"Good! She had taken it in," Laurie drew a breath of relief.

"No, sah. Dat ain't all." The boy's tone dripped evil tidings. "She brung it back!"

"What!" His passenger was staring at him in concern.

"Yas, sah. De bell rung fun her flo, and when I got up de young lady was standin' dere wid dat basket in her hand."

He paused to give Laurie the effect of the tale, and saw by his visitor's expression that he had got it fully.

"Yest, Go on!"

"She look at me mighty sharp. She got brown eyes dat look right (thoo you)," he interpolated briskly. "Den she say, 'Sam, who done ter dat basket at my do?' I say, 'I done it, miss. It was ter in de hall, an' de cad' got 'yo' name on it. Ain't you order it?' I say,

"No, she say, 'dis yere basket ain't fo' me. Take it, an' if you can't find out who belong to it, eat dis yere lunch yo'self.' He paused. "I at it," he ended, solemnly.

Laurie's lips twitched under conflicting emotions, but he closed the interview with a fair imitation of indifference.

"Oh, well," he said carelessly, "you must have been mistaken about the whole thing. Evidently Miss Mayo, if that's her name, wasn't as hungry as you were."

The boy nodded and started the car on its downward journey. As his passenger got off on the ground floor, he gave him a few thoughts to carry away with him.

"She'd bin cryin', fough," he muttered. "Her eyes was all red."

The boy agreed, hurriedly. "No, sah," he assured him. "You can't. I can't, neither. None of us can't," he added as an afterthought.

Laurie slowly walked away. His thoughts scampered around and around, like squirrels in a cage. The return of the basket, of course, might mean either of two conditions—that the girl was too proud to accept help, or that she was really in no need of it. Laurie had met a few art students; he knew that, hungry or not, almost any one of them would cheerfully have taken in that basket and consumed its contents. He had built on that knowledge in providing it. If the girl had taken it in, the fact would have proved nothing. Her refusal to touch it was suspicious. It swung the weight of evidence toward the elevator boy's starvation theory.

Laurie's thoughts returned to that imaginative youth. He saw him consuming the girl's luncheon, and a new suspicion crossed his mind. Perhaps the whole business was a bit of graft. But his intelligence rejected that suggestion. If this had been the explanation, the boy would not have concluded the episode so briskly. He had got the strange young man where he might have "kept him going" for days and made a good income in the process. As it was, there seemed nothing more to do. And yet—and yet—how the dence could one let the thing drop like that? If the girl was really in straits—

Thus the subconscious argument went on and on. It worried Laurie. He was not used to such violent mental exercise. He dined alone that night and it was well he did so. His lack of appetite would certainly have attracted the attention of Bangs or any other fellow diner, and Bangs would as certainly have commented upon it. Also, he passed a restless night, troubled by vaguely depressing dreams. The girl was in them, but everything was as hopelessly confused as his daytime mental processes had been.

The next morning he deliberately kept away from the mirror until he was fully dressed, but he dressed with a feeling of tenseness and urgency he would have found it difficult to explain. He only knew that today he meant to do something definite, something that would settle once for all the question that filled his mind. But what could he do? That little point was still unsettled. Knock at the girl's door, pretend that it was a blunder, and trust to inspiration to discover in the brief encounter if anything was wrong? Or put money in an envelop and push it under her door? If he did that, she would probably give the money to Sam, as she had given him the food.

What to do? Laurie proceeded with his toilet, using the dressing-case and carefully avoiding the long mirror. He experienced an odd unwillingness to look into that mirror this morning, based partly on delicacy—he remembered the nightdress—but more on the fear of disappointment. If he saw her, it would be an immense relief. If he didn't, he'd fancy all sorts of things, for now his imagination was running away with him.

When he was fully dressed he crossed the room in three strides and stopped before the mirror with a suddenness that checked him halfway in the fourth.

Miss Mayo's window was open. He could see that. He could see more than that, and what he saw sent him rushing through the study and out into hall of the big apartment building, where he furiously rang the elevator bell. He had not stopped for his hat and coat, but he had caught a vision of Bangs' astonished face and half of his startled exclamation, "What the dev—"

The elevator came and Laurie leaped into it.

"Down," he said briefly.

The operator was on his way up to the twelfth floor, but something in the expression of his passenger made him change his plans. Also it accelerated his movements. The car descended briskly to the ground floor, from which point the operator was privileged to watch the progress of the temperamental Mr. Devon, who had plunged through the main entrance of the building and across the square without a word to the hall attendants, or a backward glance.

As he reached the studio building Laurie recalled himself to a memory of the conventions. He entered without undue haste, and sought the door of the waiting lift. It was noon, and an operator he had not seen before was on duty.

"Top floor," directed Laurie, and stepped into the car. The operator hesitated. He did not remember this tenant, but he must belong to the house, as he wore no hat or coat. Probably he was a newcomer, and had run downstairs to mail an important letter, as the old building held no mail chute. While these reflections passed slowly through his mind, his car rose as slowly. To the mentally turning young man at his side its progress was intolerably deliberate. He held himself in however, and even went through the pantomime of pausing in the top-floor hall to search a pocket as if for a latchkey.

Satisfied, the attendant started the elevator on its descent, and as it sank from sight Laurie looked around him for Number Twenty-nine. He discovered it in an eye-flash, on the door at the right. The next instant he had reached this door and was softly turning the knob.

The door did not yield. He had not expected it to give, and he knew exactly what he meant to do. He stepped back a few feet, then with a rush hurled his shoulder against the wood with the full force of his football trailing in the effort. The lock yielded, and under the force of his own momentum the visitor shot into the room. Then, recovering his equilibrium, he pushed the door into place and stood with his back against it, breathing heavily and feeling rather foolish.

He was staring at the girl before him, who had risen at his entrance. Her expression was so full of astonished resentment, and so lacking in any other emotion, that for a sickening moment he believed he had made an idiot of himself, that he had not really seen what he thought he had seen in the glass. A small table separated him from the girl. Still staring at her, in the long seconds that elapsed before either spoke, he saw that she had swept her right hand behind her back, in a swift, instinctive effort to hide what it held. His self-possession returned. He had not been mistaken. He smiled at her apologetically.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I'm afraid I frightened you."

"You did," she spoke tensely, the effect of overstrained nerves revealing itself in her low voice. "What do you mean by it? What are you doing here?"

Laurie's brilliant eyes were on hers as she spoke, and held them steadily. Under his expression, one that few had seen on his face, her look of antagonism softened a little. He advanced slowly to the table between them.

"It will take a few minutes to explain," he said. "Then, as she waited, he suddenly formed his plan, and followed the good old Devon principle of going straight to the point.

"I live diagonally across the square," he said quietly, "and I can see into your window from one of mine. So it happened that just now I saw what you were going to do."

For an instant she stood very still, looking at him, as if not quite taking in the meaning of his words. In the next her face and even her neck crimsoned darkly as if under the rush of a wave of angry humiliation. When she spoke her voice shook.

"You forget," she said, "that you have no right either to look into my room or to interfere with what you see there."

"I know," he told her, humbly, "and I beg your pardon again. The looking in was an accident, the merest chance, which I will explain to you later. The interference—well, I won't apologize for that. Surely you realize that it's friendly."

For the first time her eyes left his. She looked around the room as if uncertain what to do or say.

"Perhaps you mean it so," she muttered at last. "But I consider it impertinent."

A change was taking place in her. The fire that had flamed up at his entrance was dying out, leaving her with the look of one who is cowed and almost beaten. Even her last words lacked assurance. Watching her in puzzled sympathy, Laurie for the first time wished himself older and wiser than he was. How could he handle a situation like this? Neither then or later did he ask himself how he would have handled it on the stage.

For a moment the two young things gazed at each other, in helplessness and irresolution on his side, in resentful questioning on hers. Even in the high tension of the moment Laurie subconsciously took in the picture she made as she stood there, defying him, with her back to the wall of life.

She was very lovely, more lovely than in the mirror; for now he was getting the full effect of her splendid coloring, set off by the gown she wore, a thing of rich-but-somber shades, lit up by a semi-barbaric necklace of amber and gold, that hung almost to her knees.

Yes, the girl was a picture against the unforgettable background of that tragic situation. But what he admired most of all was the dignity that shone through her panic and her despair. She was up in arms against him. And yet, if he had not come, if that vision had not flashed into his mirror five minutes ago, she might now have been lying a huddled, lifeless thing on the very spot where she stood so proudly. At the thought his heart shook. The right words came to him at last.

"I've had impulses like yours," he said. "I've had them twice. Fortunately, both times there was some one around to talk me out of them." He had caught her attention. She showed that by the way she looked at him. "The argument that impressed me most," he went on, "was that it's quitting the game. You don't look as if you were a quitter," he ended, thoughtfully.

The girl's eyes blazed. He had aroused her once more, and he was glad of it. He didn't know at all what to do or say, but he dimly felt that almost any emotion in her would be better than the lethargy she had just revealed.

"I'm not a quitter!" she cried. "But I've got dignity enough to leave a place where I'm not wanted, even if that place happens to be the world. Go away!" she added fiercely. "Go away and leave me alone!"

Raising one hand on the table between them, he held out the other.

"Come, let me have that," he suggested, imperturbably. "Then we'll talk things over. I'll try to make you realize what I was made to realize myself—that we were both on the wrong track. I'll tell you what others think who are wiser than we are."

As she did not move, he added, more lightly: "You see, what we were going to do isn't done much nowadays. It's all out of date. Come," he repeated, gently, "let me have it."

With a movement of irritation the

"Come, Let Me Have That," He Suggested, Imperturbably.

girl swept her hand forward and tossed on the table between them the small revolver she had been holding. "Take it," she said, almost indifferently. And she added, "Another time will do as well."

He picked up the little weapon and put it into his pocket.

"There isn't going to be any other time," he predicted buoyantly. "Now, slip into a coat while I run across the street and get my hat and coat and order a taxicab. We're going out to luncheon, and to tell each other the stories of our lives, with all the grim and gory details."

"I don't know you," muttered the girl. She had dropped into a chair beside the table, and was sitting with her chin in her hand, in what seemed a characteristic attitude, watching him with an expression he could not analyze.

Laurie seemed surprised. "Why, so you don't!" he agreed. "But you're going to, now. We're going to know each other awfully well before we get through. In the meantime, you can see by the merest glance at me how young and harmless I am. Where's the coat?"

He turned and began a vague, masculine search for it. The girl waved. His rising spirits were contagious, and it was clear that she dreaded being left alone.

"I warn you," she said at last, "that if you have anything to do with me you will be sorry for it."

Laurie stopped his search, and, turning, gave her one of his straight looks.

"Why?" he demanded.

"Because I'm in a net," she said. "And every one who tries to help me gets caught in it too. Oh, don't smile! You won't smile afterward."

He picked up a coat he discovered in a corner, and held it for her to slip into.

"I like nets," he remarked lightly, "especially if they're bright-colored, large, roomy, comfortable nets. We'll have some great times in ours. Come along."

TO DARKEN HAIR
APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not what we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles' Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.

It is about time for the "shop early" slogan to begin to work.

Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, are a reliable valuable medicine, constantly in use over 25 years. Try them for backaches, rheumatic pains and swellings; for dull headaches, nervousness, "tired-out" feeling, and disturbed sleep. Satisfaction guaranteed.—Hite's Drug Store. adv.

TRADE CONDITIONS ARE ENCOURAGING

Survey Assures Continuation of Business Activity.

New York.—A continuation of the nation's present commercial activity into the beginning of next year is indicated in a trade survey by the National Association of Manufacturers presented to the association at its convention here.

The survey was made by a questionnaire covering sixteen basic groups of manufacturers. A summary of the answers shows a favorable view of current and winter trade prospects, a higher level of employment and wage conditions, an increase in production sales quantities and values and a prevailing industrial peace.

The consensus of present trade is 10 per cent excellent, 75 per cent good to fair, and only 8 per cent poor. On winter prospects 10 per cent report excellent, 58 per cent good to fair and 1 per cent poor. Fifty per cent predict better business than in 1925, 25 per cent unchanged and 25 per cent poorer.

Reported increases in production average 17 per cent and decreases 10 per cent. Reported increases in sales quantities average 16 per cent and decreases the same. Sixty-eight per cent report an increase in employment since last fall and 80 per cent report higher wages.

A suggestion for maintaining and improving the nation's business is by solution of farmer's problems through affording him a market direct to the consumer and by elimination of political interference from consideration of agricultural questions.

Other measures proposed are: Economy in state and national administration with a view to a reduction of taxes; maintenance of a proper protective tariff; an increase in health conservation activities; establishment of a national commission for study and prevention of crime; extension of foreign trade, and "encouragement, wherever possible, of the building and growing in this country of everything built or grown in any other country."

Beardstown, Illinois,
Surrounded by Water

Beardstown, Ill.—A new rise in the Illinois river deepened the water which has made Beardstown a bedraggled Venice, but citizens spurned aid of relief agencies and told the world, from a city hall surrounded by the flood, that they would pay the cost of rehabilitation out of their own pockets. Representatives of the city vetoed proposals for an appeal for aid which the Red Cross offered to sponsor.

Washington.—The American Red Cross authorized an appropriation for relief work in the flood area of Illinois. Action of the organization came after receipt of a report from William M. Baxter, Jr., assistant vice chairman, that 1,500 families were in need of assistance.

Tulsa, Okla.—One hundred and fifty families were made homeless, 4,000 acres of corn and cotton crops ruined, and nearly 65 square miles flooded when a levee broke on Verdigris river.

Sunday Sports Barred
by Law at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The Pennsylvania "blue laws" were invoked by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark against all Sunday sports in Pittsburgh, including football, baseball, golf, tennis, and quoits. A short time after the law was issued Mayor Charles H. Kline, a Sunday golf enthusiast, said he knew nothing of it, but "will obey it the same as any other citizen."

Clark had previously issued a police order prohibiting Sunday football within the city limits, but extended the ruling to include all forms of athletic contests on the advice of the city solicitor that such games were illegal under the Sunday laws of 1794.

The municipal golf course, the only public links in the city, and the tennis courts at various public parks, will be closed on Sunday under the order. Many of the private golf courses, however, are outside the city limits.

Columbus, Ohio—Probably the most forward step in Ohio toward arresting crime was taken by Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall of the Ohio Supreme court when he issued a proclamation to the judges of the Common Pleas courts directing them to bring to speedy trial all persons accused of felonies. Criminal cases must be given preference over civil cases on the judge's docket, the chief justice declares.

Pershing Asserts There Is No
Justification for Alleged Saving.

Philadelphia.—John J. Pershing broke the silence he had maintained for over a year to publicly sound warning that the army has been reduced to a point "below which we cannot go without much serious results."

Speaking before the Military Order of the World War, the commander of the American expeditionary force told his one-time soldiers that the world "is not yet free from jealousy and cov-etousness" and "that the situation at home now and in the future demands the maintenance of a highly developed nucleus" for national defense.

Only a "woolens minority" is opposed to such a program, he asserted, adding:

"There can be no earthly justification for saving a few million dollars a year on the army during peace, if, as a consequence, we must spend many billions in an emergency in an attempt to make up deficiencies."

"The difference between an adequate and inadequate system is not sufficient to warrant the risk. There is a point below which we cannot go without the most serious results, and we have reached that point."

The general, departing from a discussion of the army, referred to what he described as an "unusual condition of lawlessness" throughout the country.

The general also appealed to his audience not to forget that "the basis of our government is the community," and the citizens "are directly responsible for the manner in which law and order are preserved."

Jail and Shot to Death

Aiken, S. C.—Mob violence flared up in Aiken, leaving the bullet-riddled bodies of three negroes as its victims.

Overpowering the sheriff and a jailer, a band of unidentified men stormed the county jail, seized the negroes, one a woman, on trial for murder of a former sheriff, and took them to a wooded section, outside the city, where their bodies were found.

The negroes, Clarence, Demmond and Bertha Lowman, were being tried a second time for slaying Sheriff H. H. Howard during a raid on their home in April, 1925. At their first trial all were convicted, the men being sentenced to death and the woman to life imprisonment. The state Supreme court granted a new hearing, which was in progress.

A directed verdict of not guilty rendered by Judge Lanham in the case of Demmond Lowman, aroused the community, officers, said, and apparently led to mob action. The acquitted prisoner was being held in jail with the other two on a charge of assault with intent to kill, upon which he was arrested.

33 Miners Trapped in Tennessee Coal Mine

Rockwood, Tenn.—Nearly all of the bodies of the 33 miners trapped a few days ago in the Roane Iron company's coal mine near here have been recovered, several more being sought in the deep workings of the mine.

The blast in the Rodgers entry, about three miles under ground, occurred in almost the identical spot where a gas explosion killed 10 men in July, 1925. It was at this point that 25 of the miners were working, and veterans said that concussion probably snuffed out their lives before after-damp gas had time to do its work.

The recovered bodies were found near the Tongue entry, a branch leading off from the Rodgers entry, about three-quarters of a mile from the scene of the explosion. Several of the miners were brought out injured.

May Deduct Farm Loss

Washington.—The board of tax appeals reversed the ruling of the internal revenue commissioner and held that Thomas F. Sheridan, retired Chicago lawyer, may deduct losses sustained by him in 1921 of $11,128 in operating his farm.

Ask Mrs. Ferguson to Resign

Austin, Texas.—By a vote of 56 to 47, the Texas house of representatives demanded the resignation of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

While Mr. and Mrs. Osear Kidder with son, Louis, and Miss Rebecca Painter, of East Jordan, were driving to visit Mrs. Kidder's parents at Norwood, Wednesday evening, an auto accident happened on the Dett Evans hill, between East Jordan and Ellsworth. As Mr. Kidder was driving down the hill, a Ford roadster, driven by O. E. Hicks, a Salesman, was coming up the hill, and it is claimed, failed to dim his lights and the cars collided. Mrs. Kidder's head was thrown through the windshield, but, luckily she did not receive a scratch. The other occupants of the Kidder car were not injured. Mr. Hicks received cuts on his right hand. The Ford car was turned completely over and rested on its top, and badly damaged. The "Gray" car of Mr. Kidder's received a broken windshield, the left front wheel was torn off and other damages. It is remarkable that both parties were not seriously injured.
