EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1926.

NUMBER 43

No More Pine Lake

It's Now Officially Known As Lake Charlevoix.

During the June session of our County Board of Supervisors a resolution was adopted whereby the name of Pine Lake was changed to that of "Lake Charlevoix" and the County Clerk was at that time directed to inform the War Department of this action.

It was found upon investigation that some 25 lakes within the boundaries of Michigan were known as "Pine Lakes," and the name of Pine Lake being used so generally it became confusing to tourists and other summer guests and hampered the development of resort properties along the Lake Shores. The word "Pine" is generally assumed to mean that the soil is sandy thereabouts and that the vegetation is limited almost entirely to Pine trees, this not being true with "Lake Charlevoix" shores as this Lake is surrounded by a fine growth of Maple, Beech, White Birch, Evergreens, Cedars as well as Pines.

A copy of the resolution adopted by our Board of Supervisors was forwarded to the War Department at Washington and they in turn referred the matter to the U. S. Geographic Board who did on Oct. 6th, 1926 adopt the name of "Charlevoix" which replaces the name of "Pine Lake" in Charlevoix County. A letter from the U. S. Geographic Board to Senator James Couzens is as follows:

October 14th, 1926
Hon. James Couzens,
U. S. Senate.
My Dear Senator Couzens:—
I am pleased to inform you that the U. S. Geographic Board, at the meeting October 6th, 1926, adopted the name "Lake Charlevoix" for the lake in Charlevoix County, Michigan, hitherto called Pine Lake.
I have informed the Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, respecting this. Yours very truly,
JAMES McCORMICK, Secretary,
U. S. Geographic Board, Washington, D. C.

The crime wave in the United States seems to be a permanent wave.

The end of the world will catch many people building castles in the air.

He came to Michigan and located on a farm in Echo township, Antrim County in 1870, and since then made that place his home, except for the past two months when he made his home at Boyne City.

Fine Attractions Coming Here

Interstate Bureau of Chicago Presents Talent.

Some very strong dramatic, concert, and entertainment attractions have been secured for local enjoyment during the coming fall and winter season from the Interstate Bureau of Chicago.

The Senior Class is sponsoring the Lyceum Course and wish to point out that there are five big numbers. Everything is high class and absolutely clean, nothing is "high-brow," but on the contrary each and every program is full of snap and go, and up-to-date in every particular.

State Grange Meeting To Be Held at East Lansing

The fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Michigan State Grange will be held at East Lansing Oct. 26 to 29 with the East Lansing People's Church as headquarters for the Convention. About 350 delegates are expected with a total attendance of 500.

WKAR, the M. S. C. radio station will broadcast the programs of the meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday afternoon, and Wednesday evening.

An old fashioned hay ride will be a feature of the program when the college will conduct an inspection tour for its visitors with teams and wagons taking in the points of interest about the campus. The college committee is composed of Ralph Tenny, Thomas Gunson, J. B. Haselman, and A. H. Lavers.

M. E. Ladies Aid Elected Officers

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church met with Mrs. W. S. Carr, Wednesday, Oct. 13th, and elected officers for the ensuing year:

1st Vice—Mrs. Blair,
2nd Vice—Mrs. Conway,
3rd Vice—Mrs. Earl Clark,
Secretary—Mrs. M. B. Palmiter,
Treasurer—Mrs. Bader.

After the election, Mrs. Palmiter made a laudatory speech in honor of Mrs. Barrie, the retiring President, who has held this office for twenty-three years, probably a state record. Rev. V. J. Hufon, the new pastor, attended with Mrs. Hufon, who entertained with a solo, "The Song of the Soul." Mrs. Fuller gave a humorous reading on Commencement. Mrs. Carr served a very nice seasonal luncheon.

Previous charges held by Rev. Hufon—Bolton, Mackinaw City, Vanderbilt, Grayling, Deford, Heacock, St. Charles, St. Ignace, Republic and Wakefield in the Detroit Conference, and was ordained in 1909.

The youth of the land no longer tell their flames "good night." It is always, "good morning."

Few men suffer from broken hearts; financial paralysis, however, remains a thorn in the flesh.

East Jordan Plans a Rotary Club

Upon invitation from a number of our business and professional men, about twenty members of the Boyne City Rotary Club were here Tuesday night, guests at an informal banquet held at the High School building.

About thirty from our city were present. Following the menu, the advisability of having a similar organization in East Jordan was discussed. It was the consensus of opinion that it was a desirable move, and a committee of five were appointed to make preliminary arrangements.

Realtors Meet At Petoskey

HAVE DINNER AND TALK BUSINESS AT CUSHMAN FRIDAY EVENING.

Organization Expected to Bring Many Benefits to Members and Public.

A meeting of the Real Estate Agents of the three counties of Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet was held at the Cushman House Friday evening to continue the work of organization. Men were present from Central Lake, Bellaire, Charlevoix, Boyne City, Harbor Springs, Elk Rapids and Petoskey, about thirty in all.

The officers are:—T. B. McCutcheon, of Bellaire, President; Chas. Emrey, of Charlevoix, Secretary; and S. C. Smith Petoskey, Treasurer.

Talks were given showing the benefits of the organization. Eight more men joined.

Points brought out were:—
1.—That being allied with the National and State Board of Realtors gave the business a prestige over the old plan of each man going it alone.

2.—Property owners benefit in that listing their holdings with one of the real estate boards, invites the services of all the members and his chance of sale multiplied many times. Each man is free to show the listings of any member of the board.

3.—Fake sales of worthless lots are squelched by the board and only the best business methods are allowed.

4.—Private judges and banks can use the services of the appraisal committees of the different counties, three from each county.

5.—The real estate business is put on a high, dignified plane, and sales increased. A much better state of affairs in the business is sure to result from the organization.

Meetings are held monthly, the next one to be at Elk Rapids.—Petoskey Neys.

MICHIGAN EDUCATION ASS'N.

At the meeting of the Fifth District of the Michigan Education Association at Petoskey Thursday and Friday of this week, three members of our faculty and one of our Pastors take part. Superintendent Duncanson presides at the Elementary Division Meeting; Mr. C. F. Snelenberger, High School Principal is chairman of the High School Section Meeting; Miss Marjorie Bryant, Commercial Instructor, talks on "Typewriting" at the Commercial Section Meeting. Rev. Sidebatham speaks at the High School Section Meeting on "Bible Study in the High School."

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Club, which now has a total enrollment of thirty members, held its regular monthly meeting Thursday night, October 14, after school. The motto that was chosen for the club is, "Work for the good of others." The colors are blue and gold. Melvina Gorman, Greta Ensign, and Dorothy Hager took part in the program which consisted of reading from a book of etiquette that was of interest to the club members. Light refreshments were served.

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM

Members of the Seventh Grade, directed by their class advisor, Miss Bryant, entertained exceedingly well at her assembly last week. The program was opened by a recitation entitled "Ain't He Cute?" given by Martha Turk. Following this Marie Flannery and Henry Alexander sang two very pleasing duets, "Trippola" and "How Can I Leave Thee?" A play, "The Unseen," was then cleverly presented by Vera Montroy, Alice Somerville, and Roy Busselet. High honor is due them for their fine presentation of the characters of this play which contained both humor and a moral.

ATHLETIC ASS'N BENEFIT SHOW PROVES BIG SUCCESS:

Last Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights Mr. Thomas, Manager of the Temple Theatre, was kind enough to turn over to the Athletic Association a certain per cent of the receipts from the picture "Hold That Lion."

A contest for the sale of the tickets was held between classes. The freshmen led to an easy victory over the other classes, with the Sophomores coming in second, seventh grade third, Juniors fourth, eighth grade fifth, and the Seniors sixth. Friday night after the victory over Frankfort school body, led by the High School Band, staged a snake dance through the streets down town. Songs were sung and yells were given in front of the Theatre and then they all marched into the show. We take this opportunity to thank Mr. Thomas for his kindness in letting us have the Theatre and thereby enriching the Athletic Association fund.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP BY THIS SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good drug-gist and use it like a cold cream.

18,000-MILE FLIGHT FOR ARMY PLANES

Washington.—The War department has mapped out a course of 18,524 miles which five planes will cover in a flight around South America, beginning about December 15.

The trip will take the aviators to the capitals and practically all of the ports in Latin America. Stops of considerable length will be made in each place to give the people an opportunity to inspect the planes.

Starting from San Antonio, Texas, the planes will follow the east coast of Mexico to Puerto, Mexico, across the Isthmus of Salina Cruz and thence to the air station at Colon, Canal Zone.

From Colon the route follows the west coast to Valdivia, Chile. Here the flyers will turn due east and cross the continent to Bahia Blanca on the Atlantic coast of Argentina. From Buenos Aires a 700-mile flight will be made up the Parana river to Assuncion, capital of Paraguay.

The planes will double back over the same route to the coast and visit in turn Brazil, the Gulanas and Venezuela. At Trinidad the route leaves the mainland of South America and calls for a series of, inter-island hops through the lesser Antilles, Porto Rico, the Dominican Republic, Haiti and Cuba.

From Havana they will fly to Miami. From there to Jacksonville, Savannah, Wilmington, Langley field, and then to Washington, where the flight ends.

No attempt will be made to lower records and the flyers have orders to use the greatest care. They will fly only during fair weather and when conditions are good.

GREEN ASSERTS AUTO PLANT RUINS LABOR

A. F. of L. Chief Says Mass Production Sends Men to Human Junk Pile.

Detroit.—Some indication of the stand which organized labor will take in the proposed campaign to unionize the Detroit automotive industry was before American Federation of Labor delegates in the form of a statement condemning working conditions in one of the world's largest plants.

The statement was issued by A. J.
Berris, secretary-treasurer of the metal trade department of the federation, following a tour of inspection through the plant in question by President William Green, Secretary Frank Morrison, member of the executive board, and most of the 400 delegates.

The plant's mass production system was criticized as being inimical to physical welfare of workers, Berris said.

"The constant monotony which men in the plant are subject to, added to the tremendous pressure under which they labor, means that within a few

William Green.

years these men become another addition to the human junk heap, and their places are taken by new arrivals.

"So long as a plant can constantly be added, such a plant can run, but no longer. Instead of tending towards helping these men and making better Americans, this system produces men who cannot help being good material for the radical and the demagogue to work on."

President Green and his forces went through the plant as ordinary visitors.
They met no officials of the company.

The minority group of the federation has spread reports that President Green will encounter serious opposition for re-election. One report had it that Matthew Woll, vice president of the federation, would be a candidate. Woll squelched it by announcing he would support Green and believed Green's re-election would be unanimous.

It was also rumored that James Lynch, retiring president of the International Typographical union, would try to unseat Secretary Morrison. This, likewise was denied.

Detroit.—Measures to combat child labor are recommended to the American Federation of Labor in the report of the executive council. They are based upon a recent survey of children in the various industries. Among the remedies proposed are:

"The education of public opinion, especially parents, teachers, employers and legislators.

The ratification of the child-labor amendment.

The passage of state child labor laws with a minimum age of sixteen in all gainful occupations, the eight-hour day, forty-four-hour week; no work between 7 p. m. and 8 a. m.;
eighth grade school requirement; work in dangerous or unhealthy occupations prohibited.

THE OLD TREE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

THE old tree stands on the hillside facing the house in which Nancy was born. It is a huge elm which spreads its branches over a wide expanse and rears its head far above the other surrounding trees. Those who seem to know something about trees say that it is more than two hundred years old, and measuring the circumference of its great trunk I can well imagine that this may be true.

When, like children, Nancy and I talk over the things we should like to do, such as going around the world, for instance, or starting a peony farm, or studying medicine, we dwell on the satisfaction we should get from building a little cabin under the old elm and spending our summers there. A road winds at the foot of the hill; Sandy creek is just beyond, and the valley along the creek is fertile and would furnish opportunity for the garden I have always planned to have. The old tree stimulates the imagination; there is a romance about it which I cannot resist.

Great changes have come to the country since the young elm first took root and began to grow. Nancy and I have found Indian arrowheads near it, and no doubt, a hundred years ago or so, Indians camped in its shadow, wild deer lay under its shade, or slaked their thirst from the stream that trickled at its foot, wild things were sheltered in its branches, and birds made their nests amid its foliage.

It was fifty years, old or more before the Declaration of Independence was conceived; it was a hundred years old before a white man ever stood under its branches. Half the United States had scarcely been discovered when the elm tree began its existence.
We knew nothing then of gold in California, or copper in Minnesota, or oil in Texas. There were no railroads, no telegraph, no telephones, no radio.

If anyone had ever suggested the possibility of flying across the hills and the valley where the tree was nourishing, he would have been considered a joker or a man whose mind was unbalanced. Two hundred years ago men in America were harvesting their grain by hand. The sickle and the scythe, and the more efficient cradle were the instruments used to cut their wheat and oats and barley.
They were driving ox teams in those days. Instead of automobiles, over rough and unbeaten trails. Railroads had not been dreamed of. The ways of living were very different then from what they are now. Customs were different. Educational systems hardly existed.

What a story the old tree could tell if it could relate the events which have happened within view of the hill upon which it stands. Two hundred years! It is a brief time in the history of the world, but think what it has meant in the development of science and civilization in this country.

A trial is the only way to convince yourself

She shrugged her shoulders, and in the gesture slipped into the garment. "I'll go," she said, in a low voice. "But don't forget that I warned you!"

CHAPTER IV

A Pair of Gray Eyes

On their way to the restaurant Laurie had selected he chatted to his companion in his buoyant, irresponsible fashion, but he had put through the details of the episode with tact and delicacy. He knew that in front of a club two doors away from the studio building a short line of taxicabs was always waiting, with the vast patience of their kind. A gesture brought one of these to the door, and when it had squawked its way around the corner, the girl remained in its shelter until Laurie had briefly re-entered his own building and emerged again, wearing his coat and hat.

They drove to a quiet place where the food and service were excellent, while the prices were an effective barrier against a crowd. When he and his companion were seated on opposite sides of a table in an isolated corner, Laurie confided his order to the waiter, urged that willing individual to special haste, and smiled apologetically at the lady.

"I'm hungry," he said briskly. "I haven't had any breakfast this morning. Don't be surprised if I seem to absorb most of the nourishment in the place."

He studied her as he spoke. It was easy to do so, for she seemed almost to have forgotten him and her surroundings. She sat drooping forward a little in her pet attitude, with her elbows on the table, and her chin in her hand, staring through the window with the look he had seen in the mirror. The lethargy he dreaded again enveloped her like a garment.

His heart sank. Here was something more than the victim of a mad but temporary impulse. Here was a victim of a sick soul, or of a burden greater than she could bear, or perhaps of both. He decided that whatever her trouble might be, it was no new or passing thing. Every curve in her despondent figure, every line in her worn, lovely face, suggested a vast weariness of flesh and spirit.

In this moment of realization he almost forgot the girl's beauty, though, indeed, it was not easy to forget. It seemed enhanced rather than dimmed by the haze of melancholy that hung over it, and certainly there was nothing dim in the superb red-gold coloring of her hair. Her eyes seemed red-gold, too, for they were reddish-brown with flecks of yellow light in them, quite wonderful eyes. He told himself that he had never seen any just like them. Certainly he had rarely seen anything to equal the somber misery of their expression. There was a remoteness in them which repelled sympathy, and which was intensified by the haughty curve of the girl's short upper lip. She was proud, proud as the devil, Laurie told himself. Again, and very humbly, he wondered how he was to handle a situation—and a personality so outside his own experience. In truth, he was afraid.

When the food came, her expression changed. She shot a quick look at him, a glance at once furtive and suspicious, which he saw but ignored. He had dismissed the waiter and was serving her himself. In the simple boyish friendliness of his manner she evidently found reassurance, for she suddenly sat up and began her breakfast.

Laurie exhaled the breath he had been holding. Up till the last moment he had feared that she might see through his subterfuge in taking her there, and even now refuse the food he offered. But if in that fleeting instant she felt doubt, it had died as it was born. She drank her coffee slowly and ate her eggs and toast as deliberately, but her characteristic air of intense preoccupation had departed. She looked at her companion as if she really saw him. Also, she apparently felt the stirring of some sense of obligation and need of response to this friendly stranger. She was answering him now, and once at least she almost smiled.

Watching the little twitch of her proud and perfect upper lip, Laurie felt his heart-beats quicken. She was a wonder, this girl; and with his delight in her beauty and her pride came another feeling, almost as new as his humility—an overwhelming sympathy for and a desire to help another.

These sentiments served as needed balance to his spirits, which, as always, mounted dangerously when he was interested. He held himself down with difficulty.

This was no time for the nonsense that he loved to talk. One doesn't rescue a lady from suicide and then try to divert her mind with innocent prattle. One gives her a decent time to pull herself together, and then, with tact and sympathy, one gets to the roots of her trouble, if one can, and helps to destroy them. Despite his limited experience with drama of the stage, Laurie knew this. Because he was very young and very much in earnest, and was talking to a young thing like himself, though in that hour she seemed so much older, he instinctively found the right way to approach the roots.

They had finished breakfast, and he had asked and received permission to smoke. When he had lighted his cigarette and exhaled his first, satisfying puff of smoke, not in rings this time, he took the cigarette from his mouth, and with his eyes on its blazing end expressed his thought with stark simplicity.

"What was your name in your studio," he asked, "and how many times in my life I had tried to—make away with myself. Only two other persons in the world know that, but I'd like to tell you about it, if you don't mind."

She looked at him. There were strange things in the look, things that thrilled him, and other things he subconsciously resented, without understanding why. When she spoke there was a more personal note in her voice than it had yet held.

"You?" she asked; and she added almost lightly, "That seems absurd."

"I know," she said. "I'm going to finish the act you interrupted."

"Oh, no, you're not!" Her lips set.

"Do you imagine you can prevent me?"

"I know I can." His quiet assurance impressed her.

"How?" she asked, half mockingly. "Very easily. I can take you from this restaurant to the nearest police station, and have you locked up for attempted suicide. You know, it's a crime here."

The word they had both avoided was out at last. Although he had spoken it very softly, its echoes seemed to fill the big room. She shrank back and stared at him, her hands clutching the sides of her chair.

"You wouldn't dare!"

"Wouldn't I? I'll do it in exactly fifteen minutes, unless you give me your word that you will never make another attempt of the kind." He took his watch out of his pocket and laid it on the table between them. "It's exactly quarter past twelve," he said. "At half past—"

"Oh—and I thought you were kind!" There was horror in the brown eyes now and an antagonism that hurt him.

"Would it be kinder to let you go back to that studio and—"

"How dare you interfere in my affairs! Who gave you the right?"

"Fate gave me the right. I'm its chosen specialist on the job, and you may take my word for it, my dear girl, the job's going to be done, and done up brown."

He lit a fresh cigarette.

"It will be mighty unpleasant for you," he went on, thoughtfully.

It was a pathetic little smile, but both lips and eyes took part in it. He waited, but she said no more. He began to fear that his confidence had been given to no purpose. Evidently she had no intention of making a confession in return. He resumed his attack from a new angle.

"You've been disappointed in something or some one," he said. "Oh," as she made a gesture, "don't think I'm belittling it! I know it was something big. But the finish you chose, wasn't meant to be, or it would have some other. You see that don't you? The very sun in its course took pains to show you to me in time to stop it. That means something, Miss Mayo."

She seemed slightly startled. "It is Miss Mayo, isn't it? That's the name the elevator boy gave me, yesterday."

"It will do," she spoke absently, already on the trail of another thought. Suddenly she caught it. "Then you brought the basket, or sent it?" she cried. "It was you! How dared you!"

She had half risen from her chair. Bending across the table, he gently pushed her back into it.

"Sit down," he said, imperiously. She hesitated, and he repeated the command, this time almost curtly. Under the new tone she obeyed.

"I'm going to tell you something," he went on. "I've exhausted my slender resources of experience and tact. I don't know what anyone else would do in this situation; but I do know what I'm going to do myself. And what is a lot more important, I know what you're going to do."

She laughed, and he winced at the sound.

"That's easy," she said. "I'm going to finish the act you interrupted."

"Oh, no, you're not!" Her lips set.

"Do you imagine you can prevent me?"

"I know I can." His quiet assurance impressed her.

The word they had both avoided was out at last. Although he had spoken it very softly, its echoes seemed to fill the big room. She shrank back and stared at him, her hands clutching the sides of her chair.

"You wouldn't dare!"

"Wouldn't I? I'll do it in exactly fifteen minutes, unless you give me your word that you will never make another attempt of the kind." He took his watch out of his pocket and laid it on the table between them. "It's exactly quarter past twelve," he said. "At half past—"

"Oh—and I thought you were kind!" There was horror in the brown eyes now and an antagonism that hurt him.

"Would it be kinder to let you go back to that studio and—"

"How dare you interfere in my affairs! Who gave you the right?"

"Fate gave me the right. I'm its chosen specialist on the job, and you may take my word for it, my dear girl, the job's going to be done, and done up brown."

He lit a fresh cigarette.

"It will be mighty unpleasant for you," he went on, thoughtfully.

"There's the publicity, you know. Of course, all the newspapers will have your pictures—"

"Oh!"

"And a lot of romantic stories—"

"Oh—you—"

"But of course you can avoid all that," he reminded her, "by giving me your promise."

She choked back her rising fury, and made an obvious effort at self-control.

"If I agree to these terms of yours," she asked, between her teeth, "may I be sure that you will leave me in peace and that I shall not see you again?"

He looked at her reproachfully. "Dear me, no! Why, you'll have to see me every day. I've got to look after you for a while." At her expression his tone changed. "You see," he said, with smiling seriousness, "you have shown that just for the present you can't be trusted to guide your own actions. So I'm going to 'steak around,' and guide them for a few days, until I am sure you are yourself again!"

"This—" again she choked on the words—"this is intolerable!"

"Oh, I don't think so. You can see for yourself that I mean well, and that I'm going to be a harmless sort of watchdog. Also, you can depend on me to go off duty as soon as it's safe. But for the present you're going to have a guardian; and it's up to you to decide whether that guardian shall be Laurence Devon, very much at your service, or the police force of the city of New York."

She had her chin in her hands now, in her characteristic pose, and was

"I warn you again, it may be a matter of life or death."

regarding him without resentment. When she finally spoke, it was without resentment, too, but coldly, as one states an unpalatable fact.

"You," she said, "are a fool."

Laurie flushed, then smiled. "That is not a new theory," he admitted.

"Two hours ago," she said, "I warned you that it would be dangerous for you to interfere in my affairs. Did I not?"

"You did."

"I warn you again. It may be a matter of life or death. Put your watch in your pocket, pay your bill, and take me home. Then go away and forget me."

Laurie glanced at the watch. "We have used up eight minutes since I gave you your choice," he reminded her.

"You are like a child," she muttered, "spinning his top over a powder magazine."

Laurie frowned a little. "Too melodramatic," he murmured. "I tell you," she said fiercely, "you are acting like a fool! If you interfere with me you will be drawn into all sorts of trouble, perhaps into tragedy, perhaps even into disgrace."

"You're forgetting the net," he reminded her, "the nice net you mentioned this morning, with room for two. Also—" again he looked at the watch—"you're overlooking the value of time. See how fast these little hands are moving. The nearest police station is only two blocks away. Unless you give me that promise, you will be in it in—" he made a calculation—"in just about four minutes."

She seemed to come to a decision. "Listen to me," she said, rapidly. "I cannot be frank with you—"

"I've noticed that," Laurie interposed, "with regret."

She ignored the interruption. "But I can tell you this much. I am not alone in my trouble. Others are involved. They are desperate. It is because of them that I—"

"I understand," he said.

Loos and Flattery

Almost any woman can marry any man if she only flatters him enough. In four cases out of five the woman who does this tactfully is sure to get the man she wants. George Elliot wrote: "That's what a man wants in a wife mostly. He wants to make sure of one fool to tell him he's wise."

We have never been able to understand how some mazzazines get thru the mails. Some folks ride in automobiles so much that they have about forgotten how to walk.

Made Himself Unpopular

A Belgian chemist, Van Helmont, coined the word "gas" in the first half of the seventeenth century. The Dutch word "geest," signifying "ghost," suggested the term to him, and his superstitious neighbors hounded him into obscurity for talking of gnosts.

Cooks are important things—when you haven't got one. The cause of crime worries many people but the cooks take it easy. A good motto for living pleasantly with your fellow citizens is to let them alone.

YOU can save MONEY Talking

For instance, you can telephone from East Jordan to Muskegon during the day; for less after 7 p.m. and still less between 8:30 p.m. and 4:30 a.m., if you place an "Any-one" call.

Just give the operator the telephone number in the distant city or details that will enable her to determine that number and then you wish to make an "Any-one" call.

It costs more if the operator must locate a particular person for you.

Minutes of the two previous meetings were read and approved.

Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. The eliminative organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

NOTICE.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

Notice is hereby given to the Qualified Electors that at the time and places of holding the next General Election in each of the several voting precincts of said County, on TUESDAY, NOV. 2, A. D. 1926

There will be submitted at said election five proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Michigan as follows:

Compensation of members of the Legislature of Michigan.

Amendment to Section 9 of Article V of the Constitution relative to the compensation of members of the legislature.

Sec. 9. The compensation of the members of the Legislature shall be twelve hundred dollars for the regular session. When convened in extra session their compensation shall be ten dollars per day for the first twenty days and nothing thereafter. Members shall be entitled to ten cents per mile and no more for one round trip to each regular and special session of the Legislature by the usually traveled route. Each member shall be entitled to one copy of the laws, journals and documents of the Legislature of which he is a member, but shall not receive, at the expense of the State, books or newspapers not expressly authorized by this Constitution.

Term of office of County Sheriffs.

Amendment to Section 5 of Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the term of office of county sheriffs.

Sec. 5. The sheriff shall hold no other office. He shall be elected at the general election for the term of two years. He may be required by law to renew his security from time to time and in default of giving such security, his office shall be deemed vacant. The county shall never be responsible for his acts.

Creation of Metropolitan Districts. Amendment to Article VIII of the Constitution relative to the creation of metropolitan districts by cities, villages or townships.

Sec. 81. The Legislature shall by general law provide for the incorporation by any two or more cities, villages or townships, or any combination or parts of same, of metropolitan districts comprising territory within their limits, for the purpose of acquiring, owning and operating either within or without their limits as may be prescribed by law, parks or public utilities for supplying sewage disposal, drainage, water, light, power or transportation, or any combination thereof, and any such district may sell or purchase, either within or without its limits as may be prescribed by law, sewage disposal or drainage rights, water, light, power or transportation facilities. Any such districts shall have power to acquire and succeed to any or all of the rights, obligations and property of such cities, villages and with such functions or public utilities; Provided, That no city, village or township shall surrender any such rights, obligations or property without the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors thereof voting on such question. Such general law shall limit the rate of taxation of such districts for their municipal purposes and restrict their powers of borrowing money and contracting debts. Under such general law, the electors of each district shall have power and authority to frame, adopt and amend its charter upon the approval thereof by a majority vote of the electors of each city, village or township, voting on such question, and, through its regularly constituted authority, to pass all laws and ordinances relating to its municipal concerns, subject to the constitution and general laws of this State.

Condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc. Amendment to Article XIII of the Constitution relative to condemnation of excess land and property for boulevards, streets, etc.

Sec. 5. Subject to this Constitution the Legislature may authorize municipalities, subject to reasonable limitations, to condemn and to take the fee to more land and property than is needed in the acquiring, opening and widening of boulevards, streets and alleys, or for any public use, and after so much of the land and property has been appropriated for any such needed public purpose, the remainder may be sold or leased with or without such restrictions as may be appropriate to the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds to pay in whole or in part for the excess property so appropriated, but such bonds shall be a lien only on the property so acquired and they shall not be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality.

Revision of the Constitution. Shall the constitution of this State be revised and a convention called therefor?

NOTICE is further hereby given that the place for voting upon the above Amendments to the Constitution in each of the several wards and precincts of the City will be the same as for the General November Election, and the hours for voting upon said Amendments will be the same as for voting upon all other matters at said election.

Good taste and good health demand sound teeth and sweet breath.

The use of Wrigley's chewing gum after every meal takes care of this important item of personal hygiene in a delightful, refreshing way—by clearing the teeth of food particles and by helping the digestion.

The result is a sweet breath that shows care for one's self and consideration for others—both marks of refinement.

Good Health demands sound kidneys

Kidney trouble is real trouble and the root of other serious disorders: backache, dull headaches, weary, "too tired" feeling, rheumatic pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and irregular bladder action.

Foley's Kidney Pills, a diuretic stimulant, have already brought relief to thousands of suffering men and women. Constantly in use, they give action, low blood pressure, and relief where they try them.

DAUGHERTY-MILLER JURY IS DISMISSED

Unable to Agree; Stood 7 to 5 for Conviction of Ex-Attorney General.

New York.—The federal jury in the conspiracy case against former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty and former Allen Property Custodian Thomas W. Miller was discharged by Federal Judge Julian W. Mack after it had again reported a disagreement. The jury was out 85 hours and 40 minutes.

The final vote was 7 to 5 for conviction of Daugherty and 10 to 2 for conviction of Miller. It was reported that the two holdouts in the Miller case refused to vote for conviction of Miller unless there was an agreement on conviction of Daugherty. The first ballot was 8 to 4 for conviction of Daugherty and 10 to 2 for conviction of Miller. At no time was the balloting ever worse than 6 to 6 for Daugherty.

The disagreement of the jury brought joy to the defense and gloom to the prosecution. United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner, who prosecuted the case, pointed out that the indictment still stands against Daugherty and Miller, but he refused to commit himself as to a new trial. Daugherty, at the office of his counsel, Max D. Steuer, had only this to say:

"I am disappointed that there was not a verdict of acquittal, which I expected and deserved. However, I have no complaints to make.

The former government officials were charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of their honest and best services by authorizing the release of $7,000,000 in assets of the American Metal company, impounded during the war. Richard Merton, German claimant of the $7,000,000, was the principal government witness in the trial. He testified he had paid the late John T. King $441,000 to get his claim put through. Part of this, the government claimed, found its way into the hands of Daugherty and Miller.

Hog Cholera Epidemic Is Serious in Midwest

Chicago, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska hogs are widely affected with cholera, and the epidemic has thrown the corn markets in Chicago into a chaotic state, according to reports.

Swine are dying by the hundreds as the disease spreads and serum is not available in sufficient quantities to combat the epidemic, officials say.

F. A. Laird, Illinois state veterinarian, said the epizootic is the "most devastating the Midwest has ever known." He attributes its rapid spread to the prevalence of flood conditions, to mosquitoes and germ-carrying birds.

Dr. T. P. White, cholera specialist of the United States bureau of animal husbandry, who has completed a tour of Iowa, said an immediate and adequate supply of vaccinating serum is required or the loss to hog farmers and corn growers may be a crippling one.

Son of Man Who Fought in Revolution Dies at 95

Downey, Cal.—Judge L. P. Phillips, ninety-five, the last known person living whose father fought in the Revolutionary war, is dead here. His father, John Phillips, enlisted at seventeen. Judge Phillips was born in South Carolina when his father was seventy-two. Death came as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. His widow and thirteen sons and daughters survive the patriarch, who came to California forty-three years ago.

Proclaims "Roosevelt Day"

Albany, N. Y.—In a proclamation Gov. Al Smith has called on all residents of the state to celebrate "Roosevelt day" October 27.

$20,000,000 Estate; No Will

London.—It was announced that William M. Coats, director of J. & P. Coats, Ltd., the great Scottish thread firm, left an estate valued at £4,000,000 ($20,000,000) but no will. The estate will pay £1,750,000 ($8,750,000) death duties.

Bismarck (N. D.) Bank Closes

Bismarck, N. D.—The City National Bank of Bismarck has suspended payment. Deposits in the institution are reported to approximate $800,000.

This Railroad Plant of Ours and What it Means to You

AMERICAN railroads are hauling more freight than at any time in their history.

They have averaged over a million loaded cars per week during the current year.

This service consists in moving commodities from the point of production to the one of consumption.

It is a tremendous work that has been done and it establishes a new high transportation record for the world.

That service has been performed with regularity, uniformity and dispatch. Through these, the business of the country has been given added impetus.

It has been estimated that through the improved service a saving of one and a half billions of dollars per annum has accrued to the people of the United States over the service that obtained in 1920.

This sum represents the advantages gained through the orderly manner in which our railroads are now functioning.

Our railroads have attained the highest record for the average daily movement of freight cars ever reached, and, likewise the best performance in use of fuel.

So much for the new record of the railroad of the United States.

THE plant, which comprises the railroads that serve Michigan's varied industries, has contributed its share in this proud national achievement, and in the saving of one and a half billions of dollars, through lessened inventories carried by our business institutions and made possible by the accelerated service. This has been achieved, too, while facilitating the even flow of production as well as the orderly diffusion of commodities.

Michigan has received great tangible benefits, since it is now a veritable beehive of industrial activity.

Michigan will continue to progress only so long as its railroads continue to enjoy the undivided support of the communities they serve.

Michigan people, as a whole, farmer and manufacturer, preacher and teacher, office employee and laborer, are cashing in through this new outlook on transportation, so vital to the public weal and welfare. Our people will continue to cash in only so long as this understanding is maintained.

We have much to gain—the people and the railroads alike—in prolonging this understanding.

We can keep Michigan in the vanward of economic importance only through the continued expansion of our industries and by keeping our railroads just ahead of the country's transportation needs.
