Mother's Cook Book

Know the full value of time, snatch, seize and enjoy every moment of it. No idleness, no procrastination, no laziness; never put off till tomorrow what you can do today.—Earl of Chesterfield.

APPETIZING DISHES

DAINTY little appetizer which may be used as a garnish to a platter of sliced cold meat is prepared thus: Chop equal parts of apple and celery; to this add half as much chopped pickled beets also finely cut, and a small quantity of chili pepper, with a very little minced onion. Serve on a curled leaf of lettuce and serve one leaf to each. Sprinkle with chopped parsley if liked.

Beef Olives.
Cut thin slices from cold roast of beef, chop the trimmings and fat, allowing a tablespoonful of the mixture to each slice of the beef; season highly with salt and pepper, and pour over the meat, adding a sprinkling of herbs; mix with one-fourth as much crumbs as meat.

Purée of Peas.
Cook a pint of tender green peas and put through a sieve; add a tablespoonful of butter mixed with two of flour, cook, add one cupful of milk, heat and whip with a Dover egg beater. Serve at once with a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each bouillon cup.

Roquefort Salad.
A most delicious salad is prepared from head lettuce well washed, dried and chilled. Arrange the lettuce carefully in a bowl, sprinkle with broken bits of roquefort cheese. Rub the bowl before adding the lettuce, with a little salt of curbs—add half a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of cayenne, a tablespoonful of chili sauce, and one of vinegar, four of olive oil. Mix well and pour over the lettuce, adding more of the dressing if this seems not enough. Serve cold.

Date Soufflé.
Wash, stone and chop one-half pound of dates, simmer in one-half cupful of orange juice until very soft, mash and add the whites of four eggs beaten stiff, to which a quarter of a cupful of sugar has been added, with a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a pinch of salt. Four into a buttered baking dish and bake until well fluffed—about thirty-five minutes. Serve hot or cold, with creamy sauce.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
By F. A. WALKER

DO YOU GET EXCITED?

ONE of the greatest troubles with the average man is that he does not get excited frequently enough. Excitement is only MULTIPLIED ENTHUSIASM.

The man who lacks enthusiasm doesn't get far whatever road he travels. One of the chief faults of a snail is that it never has the sensation of excitement.

It crawls along in a seemingly aimless fashion and having reached the nowhere for which it was headed it stops to contemplate its ineffectiveness.

Nobody is ever interested in a snail and only the dullard copies him. If you want to see enthusiasm and excitement in animal life watch an ant. Everything interests him. Everything has a meaning for him. Everything he sees or feels is a matter of investigation and study.

He is excited all the time and accomplishes something every minute. Every boy and every man ought to be excited about what he is doing.

He should be so intensely interested in it, so thoroughly in love with the task and its accomplishment that its finish should find him thrilled with enthusiasm.

Can you imagine Edison working without enthusiasm and excitement? Can you conceive the feverish eagerness with which Galileo worked through the night on that first crude telescope and with what excitement he took his first look through it toward the far-off stars? Yet that telescope was not as powerful as the opera glass you carry to the theater.

Can you imagine with what excitement Madame Curie looked upon that first tiny speck of radium which she had distilled from the tons of material which concealed it?

THE GLORY OF LABOR IS ACCOMPLISHMENT.

The real wages of work is the satisfaction of production. The man who makes a machine of himself, who finds no interest and no basis of enthusiasm in his daily task is a little better than the ox.

There is no labor so menial, and no task so hard that it has not in it a reason for enthusiasm. If your present work doesn't enthrall you, if you cannot get excited and happy about it find something else to do. Get another job. Find something that will stir you up and rouse your mind and hurry your fingers and leave you, when the day is done, anxious for tomorrow and the bigger accomplishment that it will make possible.

Early Negro Churches

The first African Baptist church of which there is any record was organized in 1774, in Alen county, South Carolina. In George Golpin's mill. This church was called the Silver Bluff Baptist church and was organized by David George, a negro Baptist preacher. The same David George, who organized the Silver Bluff Baptist church, took 50 members from the said church four years later, 1778, on account of the Revolutionary war, to Savannah, Ga. There he organized them into the First Baptist church of that place, which still exists.

Bullocks Are His Pride
Bob Flood of Walgett, N. S. W., owns a team of 26 bullocks which he treats gentlemanly at all times. He has never been heard to swear at any of them, though in conversation he frequently uses profanity. When working his team he never carries a whip and seldom, if ever, has to speak to them louder than in an ordinary tone. His team is the envy of carriers within 100 miles of Walgett.

Proper Use of Knowledge
An educational authority says that the need today is not for more knowledge but for a better understanding of the knowledge we already possess, and a greater facility in the use of it. Exactly; it is one thing to own a box of tools and another thing to know how to use a saw.

No opiates, no chloroform, made under rigid sanitary control, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound carries a strong appeal to thoughtful mothers everywhere. Ask for it.—Hite's Drug Store.

"THEY PREACH THE BIBLE"

A FRIENDLY TAIL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I'D LIKE to be as friendly as—
Well, as I'd like to be;
I'd like to be the friendly kind,
The way folks are to me.
I always try to be, and yet
A fellow sometimes will forget;
I'd like to be as friendly—well
As lots of things that I could tell.

I'd like to be as friendly as
The friendliest of things,
I've really thought about them all,
And to my memory clings
One friendly thing the friendliest,
Yea, friendlier than all the rest;
A dog, a friend to never fail—
Not all the dog, but just his tail.

I'd like to be as friendly as
The wig-wag of delight
He gives you when upon the walk
He hears your step at night.
One short, inquiring sort of bark
May greet you first from out the dark;
And then he sees you! Then I guess
You know what's really friendliness.

I'd like to be as friendly as
That friendly bit of fuss,
I'd like to greet folks on the road
The way a puppy does.
Though millions I may never own,
For friendliness I would be known,
As quick to give a friendly hail
As not the dog, but just his tail.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Lucius M. Boomer, famous hotel man, was juggling packing cases.

"A T ABOUT this time I got a job in the storehouse of a hotel where I learned how to put up canned goods on the shelves and weigh out sugar, and where I found that the exercise resulting from rolling barrels and moving boxes made me husky.

"Later I was offered a job as bookkeeper in a hotel in Florida. I didn't know one thing about bookkeeping, but I accepted the job at once. Then I went out and bought a book and studied like the dickens—days and nights—any time I could get.

"It must have been a good book, for I made a fair bookkeeper. Eventually I became the head bookkeeper and cashier for a hotel at St. Augustine.—Lucius M. Boomer."

TODAY—Mr. Boomer is one of the most prominent men in the hotel business. He is the general manager of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York, the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia, and the New Willard in Washington. Besides this, he is the head of the companies that own these hotels and of companies which own restaurants and hotel supplies firms. One of the latter does a business of $12,000,000 a year.

In his youth it was thought that Boomer would be a concert violinist, his playing of that instrument showing exceptional talent.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

CALLING HIM "PARSON"

IN THE word "parson" for the minister or the preacher we have a curious example of the strange working of words. For "parson" is a corruption of "person," and in its application to the minister we find a story of theological principle which has been lost sight of in the modern use of the word.

The word "person," as corrupted to "parson," and applied to the preacher, had its origin in the belief that in the person of the priest the church is represented. Among Trinitarians the word "person" had the theological significance of being one of the three modes of being in the Godhead (the Father, the Son, the Holy Ghost).

In its early use the term signified a Catholic priest as well as a Protestant minister. But today we find its use restricted, usually, to the latter. As a matter of fact, the term is employed more in a sense of levity, the man speaking seriously of his pastor being more likely to refer to him as the preacher or the minister than as the "parson." It is in country districts that the term persists. "Parson Brown" being a provincialism with which we are all familiar.

He'd Had One

In one of the Indianapolis high schools an English instructor was discussing with a literature class the author's ideals as judged from his book. Wishing to bring the idea closely home, she said: "All of us have our ideals, and our ideals are the best part of us. They bring out the best there is in us. Now, John," she asked, "what is your conception of an ideal?" John blushed to the roots of his hair and stammered: "Well, er—I had one last year, but she left school."

THE PIGS' PICNIC

"GRUNT, grunt," said Brother Bacon. "Squeal, squeal," said Miss Ham. "Grunt, grunt," said Sammy Sausage and Grandfather Porky Pig cleared out his throat and said, "Grunt, grunt."

"Grunt, grunt," said Mrs. Pink Pig and Master Pink Pig shouted, "Grunt, grunt." "Squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pinky Pig, and Pinky Pig cried in a very shrill voice, "Squeal, squeal."

"Grunt, grunt," said Sir Percival Pork. "Squeal, squeal," said Pinky Pig's mother. "Grunt, grunt," said Sir Benjamin Bacon, and then the new little pigs

What a Picnic It Will Be, said Brother Bacon.

In the Pig Pen squealed and cried, "What's happening?" "Don't you see?" asked Brother Bacon.

"Haven't you good pig eyes?" asked Miss Ham.

"It's coming, don't you see?" asked Sammy Sausage.

"Your pig eyesight must be unusually poor," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

The Hotel Stenographer

By Joe Fulkerson

"KELLY, see that dame over there on the divan?" asked the Hotel Stenographer.

"Which one?" asked the House Detective.

"The one who looks like she had been poured into her dress and ran over because there was no one around to say when."

"That dame is a living demonstration of the fact that you cannot have curly hair and everything else besides. If you get a rich husband and a limousine like she has you've got to take the fat that goes along with that kind of a life and sit around and munch caramels and worry for fear your husband has wandered off with some slim girl and left you in the lurch."

"If you marry a poor man and spend your time over the wash board, the ironing board and the dough board you can keep your figure and your husband, but what a back-breaking price you pay for it."

"Love is certainly the most disturbing thing in life, Kelly. There ought to be some way to avoid it, but nobody ever does. I ought to know because I have loved a lot of people in my time and when I see a lady who has passed her fortieth birth and bust day as the wife of a rich man I want to marry a poor one. When I see the wife of a poor man without any automobile or even a little white kitty skin fur coat with a monkey fur trim I know I couldn't stand that kind of a life."

"When the right bird lights on my shoulder I will marry. If he is rich I will determine not to look like that dame there, and if he is poor I will believe that my superior intelligence can show him how to get rich. I guess, after all, I better get married the same as the rest of them."

Dollars Tint Flowers

Plenty of money has always gone into floral exhibitions, and this is literally true in England, where a florist has succeeded in getting delicate blinks with the aid of silver dollars.

He drops silver coins in water in which the flowers are standing. Silver hydroxide is formed and the action of the chemical changes the natural color of the blossoms, says Popular Mechanics, giving them shadings not possible under natural conditions. After the coloring has proceeded to a satisfactory degree, the coins are removed and a few crumbs of slaked lime or mortar are added to fix the tint.

DOING WITHOUT SLEEP

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I HAVE always rather envied Hall. Besides having an alert and versatile mind, which will do almost anything he wants it to in an amazingly short time, he can work most unreasonably long hours and after snatching a little sleep go at it again with complete refreshment. Four or five hours are all he needs, and if necessary he can get on with less. I have always prophesied that doing with so little sleep would break him down ultimately, but he is fifty years old now and seems as fresh and vigorous as he did at twenty, so that if he does break down he will have gained a considerable working period.

Of course I know all about Edison and Napoleon and those geniuses who are said scarcely to have needed sleep at all, but Edison is a genius and as deaf as a post and so is saved much of the physical wear and tear that comes to ordinary mortals, and Napoleon had fits. Hall is normal in every other way excepting that he needs very little sleep.

I have always argued that sleep, being simply a regular attempt of the body to repair the waste occasioned by the mental and physical activity which goes on during our waking hours and to rid the body of the poisons which naturally accumulate, would be practically done away with sometime when scientists shall have discovered proper antidotes to be injected into the veins. It isn't at all a visionary or an impossible thing, and now the Du Ponts are working on it with some assurance of success. If they succeed, all that will be necessary when a man wants to stay up all night to balance his bank account or to finish a book he has begun earlier in the evening, will be to swallow a tablet or take a hypodermic and lo! the heaviness of the eyes disappears; he feels as if he were waking from a good night's rest; he has had his sleep.

There are those sleepy heads who are wedded to the box springs and who find it difficult even after a good night's rest to drag themselves from under the down comforter, who will not look with satisfaction upon the doing away with sleep or even upon the reduction of the amount necessary to get on with. They enjoy the mere comfort of sleeping. Physical and mental unconsciousness pleases them. They could sleep twenty-four hours a day if the opportunity afforded.

Sleeping, excepting as it recreates me, seems a pure waste of time. It isn't that I do not sleep well, but that I have to sleep so much. I've always hated to give up what I was doing and go to bed, and yet if I cut down on my sleep I feel the next day, I seem never to get interested in a book or a problem or, a conversation that the clock does not strike and I realize that it is time to go to sleep. If the Du Ponts succeed in discovering anything which will cut down the amount of sleep necessary, I shall be one of their first customers.

BUT HE FELT NO BETTER FOR THAT

A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me and in two days' time my cough was entirely gone." Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. THE SQUEAKING WHEEL

Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

THERE is a proverb the result of much wise observation to the effect that "The squeaking wheel gets the oil." I presume it means when applied to the affairs of every-day life that talk and noise and words of complaint attract attention and that an effort is made to appease them. Unless we say something about our troubles and our pains they are little likely to be eased or stayed. Unless we squeak our friends or acquaintances are unlikely to drop on the oil.

It was the woman in the parable who talked a good deal who was listened to. It was her "much speaking" which drew attention to her. We are not told that what she had to say was of any importance, or was said with any effectiveness. She got what she wanted, simply that the squeaking might be stopped.

A young couple with a baby occupied the drawing room of the pullman on which I was riding. The child was fretful and they were unused to its management. They were continually ringing the bell and giving the porter orders for one thing or another. They wanted hot water; they insisted that the berth be made up at once; the young mother required toast and a cup of tea; there were not towels sufficient for their needs; the windows were to be lowered or raised or readjusted in some way. From the moment they got on until we were all safely tucked in they were squeaking for something. No one else got any attention because no one else made any fuss or set up a cry of distress. The porter was not given time to eat his dinner, the ringing of the bell was so continuous. He was pouring oil until midnight and got out the can again early in the morning.

Politicians must have learned the import of the saying. If you say nothing you get neither circulars nor seeds but the moment a member of the party sets up a cry there is action. There is nothing a politician hates so much as the squeaking wheel, which manifests itself usually in the form of telegrams and letters and private interviews. As long as his constituents go along silently he may rest on his oars, but when they begin to whine there must be oil of some sort applied to the works.

A city government may be ever so rotten. So long as nothing is said about it there is little effort made to improve conditions. It is only when the protest becomes loud and annoying that an effort is made to correct matters.

"I am very glad you called my attention to the matter," the uneasy official will write. "I shall do what I can at once to see that the evil is corrected," and he makes a feeble struggle at least to change things. If no one had squeaked there would have been little chance of oil.

Those who bear their ills quietly get little attention. If you want conditions changed you'll have to say something about them.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

1,250 Letters Per Minute

The great stride communication took with the advent of the wireless seems even outdone by a recent development in that field. The new Marconi "short beam" wireless service between Great Britain and Canada permits the transmission of 1,250 letters a minute in each direction if needed. Because of the speed greater secrecy is possible. The "beam system" is not affected by atmospheric conditions.

Huge Purse Latest of Fashion's Whims

Huge purses are the latest whim of fashion. The one carried by Billie Dove, First National player, is of gray moire with an outer patch of gray satin on an amber frame. She carries it when wearing this black crepe-roma, one-piece street dress that depends for its style note upon the abbreviated cape of white crepe-roma, with an exaggerated Peter Pan collar.
