National Educational Week

EAST JORDAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OBSERVE SAME NOV. 7-13

As usual the local public schools are going to observe National Educational Week. Plans have already been completed to make the week one of a good deal of interest to citizens and patrons of the local schools.

Educational week has not only become an established custom with the local schools, but throughout the public schools of the United States. The United States Secretary of Education at Washington is head of the movement and for that reason the program is quite uniform throughout the country.

Among other features already decided upon by the local schools is a monster school parade through Main Street, with appropriate flags, pennants, and banners, on Tuesday of Educational Week. This idea is entirely original with the local schools and if plans carry as expected, the parade will start at about 1:30 standard.

Another feature as in former years, will be a half day of regular school Wednesday evening, November 9. A good speaker from out side, perhaps, will address the parents and citizens immediately after the dismissal of the evening school, on an appropriate educational topic. Sermons of an educational nature will be preached in the local churches.

The above is a general hint of the plans laid for Educational Week. The whole idea is largely to give the school patrons a chance to see what the schools are doing. It is largely to give them some idea of the importance of the public schools to a community. Most school patrons without a doubt will plan to be present at these events of this most important of all national weeks.

Miss Bessie Stanek Weds Rev. Storm

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stenke was the scene of wedding festivities, Wednesday, Oct. 12th, at 4:00 p. m., when their daughter, Bessie, was united in marriage to Rev. Henry J. Storm, son of Rev. and Mrs. Storm of Freesoil, Mich.

While the wedding march was played, the groom took his place beside a pretty altar surrounded with a beautiful arch of ferns and bells, and the bride was ushered in to take her place beside the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Storm, father of the groom in the presence of about fifty relatives. The couple were attended by Miss Hanna Leanders of Grand Rapids as bridesmaid, Fred Storm as groomsmen, Miss Cora Stanek as maid of honor, and Paul Stenke, usher. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white crepe, embroidered with silver.

The bride is a graduate nurse, having received her training at the Lutheran Deaconess hospital at Fort Wayne, Ind., and for the past two years has been engaged in this work in Grand Rapids. The groom has preached at Freesoil for the past eight years.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The couple left on a three weeks wedding trip, after which they will be at home to their many friends at Freesoil.

School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLY

A special High School assembly was held Monday morning of this week. Mr. R. N. Holsapple, President of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, talked to the students about the evils of the liquor traffic and the victories which prohibition has yet to gain. Mr. Holsapple and Walter Rice of Detroit presented a dramatic debate in the Methodist Church, Sunday evening, on the question, "Can the Law Be Enforced?"

SCHOOL LIBRARY

The High School students are working hard to fix Room 15 into a library. Some of the books which were taken to the Public Library are to be secured and the books which are in the different class rooms are to be placed in the library. When it is completed we will have one of the finest school libraries in northern Michigan.

LYCEUM COURSE

The Junior Class has taken the responsibility of sponsoring one of the best Lyceum Courses that has ever been brought to East Jordan. The course consists of four fine entertainments.

Fog Is Cause of Auto Accident

A near-serious accident occurred on the road near Sunset Hill Cemetery, Tuesday morning, about 7:00 o'clock standard.

The Boyne City Bakery's delivery truck, driven by Mr. Towns had completed deliveries in East Jordan and had started on the return trip. Misses Harriett and Helen Chaddock, students at East Jordan public school, were enroute to East Jordan.

Owing to a heavy fog the two cars met head-on on the hill, the Chaddock car and truck-side-swiping each other. The Chaddock car was driven into a fence at the side of the road, and the truck was thrown down the embankment turning over several times. Mr. Towns received a scalp wound and the Chaddock girls sustained minor injuries.

The truck was smashed beyond repair and the Chaddock car was also somewhat smashed.

E. J. H. S. Wins Third Straight

DEFEAT FRANKFORT LAST FRIDAY BY SCORE OF 27 TO 0.

The High School football team added a third game to its string of victories last Friday afternoon by winning from Frankfort with a score of 27 to 0.

In the first three minutes of playing East Jordan succeeded in putting over a touchdown but it was called back on account of holding. Neither side was able to score in the rest of the first half. However in the second half Coach Lee's men staged a comeback and ran up a total of four touchdowns, one kick, and a safety.

A large number of East Jordan students and townspeople followed the team to Frankfort and added a great deal of spirit to the contest.

The last home game of the season will be played here at the Fair grounds this Friday afternoon. Grayling will furnish the opposition and a close game is expected. Little is known about the strength of the visitors but they should be able to give East Jordan a real battle. The game will start promptly at three o'clock, eastern time.

Announce Opening of Radio School

East Lansing, Oct. 18th—The "school of the air" at Michigan State College will open Monday evening, October 24, broadcasting over W K A R, the college radio station.

Material of interest to everyone will be presented this year combining the offerings of 22 departments of the college. The first half of the program will be devoted to the arts and sciences and the last half to agriculture. In addition, special programs of music and football and basketball games will be broadcast.

Farmers of the state will play an important part in the school this year. Each of the lectures to be given by the department of agricultural engineering will be based on a power project as developed by some outstanding farmer. Prominent producers of the important crops will speak on the farm crops department programs.

Five departments which did not appear on the programs last year will be included in the school this year. The Boys' and Girls' Club Department will give a series of 15 lectures and will include many of the champion club boys and girls of the state among their speakers. The athletic department will give a series of lectures on the major sports which will give the average individual a better understanding of these games. The other new departments will include electrical engineering, botany, and the department of drawing and design.

The radio school courses will be given five nights each week from 7:15 to 8:00 o'clock. The program each evening will be divided into four ten minute periods. The fall term which opens Oct. 24 will continue until Dec. 16. The winter term of 24 weeks will open Jan. 2 and end April 20.

Catalogs giving a complete schedule of the courses will be ready when the school starts and may be procured by writing to W K A R.

Well, we don't want to hasten the day, but if all the same with everybody, we hope the end of the world will come bright and early on a press day.

If newspapers were to print all the truth in just one issue most of the people of any town would join the mob that would lynch the editor the afternoon after his paper came out.

It's Politics Now

Fine Programs Well Received

AT COUNTY S. S. CONVENTION HERE LAST THURSDAY.

Last Thursday afternoon and evening, two fine programs were presented at the M. E. Church in this city, under the auspices of the "Charlevoix County Sunday School Association."

Since its reorganization three years ago, the Association has become a potent factor in the religious work of the county, including in its personnel all protestant denominations.

The afternoon session was devoted to the question of "Week Day Religious Education." Supt. W. L. Fuehrer of the Boyne City schools stressed the importance of teachers, as well as parents, reflecting Christ in their lives.

"Education is the process of eliminating consciousness." The child consciously learns two times two equals four, but when once learned the process is performed unconsciously, and it is equally possible for the child to be trained to do right in the same way.

The formation of good habits form the foundation for character which, in turn, becomes the base of the child's personality and thru the forming of christian habits, the child becomes acquainted with God and develops christian character and personality thru his knowledge of God.

Rev. C. W. Sidebotham spoke on "The Study of the Bible in High School." He asked that the Bible be placed on a par with other text books. Its historical value, alone, makes it a desirable addition to the High School curriculum. Intellectual Education, alone does not make character. There must be religious training, combined with it, to form a well-balanced personality.

W. L. Boileau then gave a concise account of his work in Montgomery Co., Ohio, where a plan, based on the Gary plan, was carried out, which placed the teaching of the Bible in the curriculum of every school in the county. The aim is a vital and wholesome conception of God.

Mrs. James E. Secord discussed the question briefly, then Mrs. Chas. Malpass sang "Because He Loved Me So."

After the business session, everyone adjourned to the basement for a pot luck dinner. Rev. E. P. Linnell, Pres. of the Association presided in his usual happy manner, and at the close of the dinner he asked each one to rise and tell their name, home, and

Plans Announced For Snow Removal

The most comprehensive snow clearing plans ever attempted on Michigan roads have been completed for this winter by the state highway department.

To the 5,707 miles of trunk line patrolled last year the department has added 925 additional miles bringing the total mileage to be maintained to 6,630.

This means the cost will increase from an approximate $285,000 to an estimated $335,000. The average cost per mile last year was $50, while the added area this year will cost some more than this average because of more snow hazard added.

Many counties are contracting to maintain the additional work, the state is planning to do some and private contractors will maintain the remainder.

Carriers' Convention at E. Jordan

CENTRAL LAKE TORCH GIVES FINE BOOST FOR COMING EVENT.

Last week's issue of the Central Lake Torch has the following booster article for Northern Michigan.

The next state convention of the Rural Letter Carriers will convene in the city of East Jordan in July 1928.

Can we fully realize just what this means? Do you know that 400 or 500 carriers and their wives from the lower part of Michigan are even now planning on taking their vacation at that time and will not only spend the 3 days of the convention at East Jordan but will spend a week or ten days more visiting the various places of interest in this region?

The Quin-County Association (Cheboygan, Otsego, Emmett, Charlevoix and Antrim) upon whose invitation the convention is coming is bending every energy in their power to prove to the carriers from the lower part of the state that this is not a backwards frontier with Indians lurking behind every tree; with bear and deer and other wild animals to be seen skulking about; with mere Indian trails as the only means of communication between the sparsely scattered homes; where the mail has to be carried on horseback or afoot; with any kind of old and contraption for a mail box, but rather, that this is one of God's favored spots, that the most intelligent, the most industrious, the most up-to-the-minute class of people live upon well-cultivated farms stocked with as fine poultry and dairy stock as can be found in any part of the state; with the schools and churches the equal of any rural community anywhere; with patrons of the rural mail they are willing to meet their carriers more than half way in complying with governmental requirements by having their mail boxes present just as neat an appearance as possible. Will you co-operate with these carriers in trying to boost the finest country the sun ever shone upon? Now, altogether: That's fine.

The citizens of East Jordan are also leaving no stone unturned to make this meeting a success. The Chamber of Commerce has already delivered the keys of the city to the local carriers saying, "Go to it, boys, we are with you with all the resources at our command. There is our fine public school building in which to hold your meetings and our new Tourist Park where you may pitch your camp tents, and our homes are open for the entertainment of those who do not care to camp."

Postmaster Wilkinson, of Gaylord, attended a meeting of the carriers recently and said, "Remember, boys, that Gaylord is but a suburb of East Jordan, where you will find lodging and breakfast free."

The patrons of the various rural routes should co-operate with the carriers and citizens of the villages in order to make the best impression possible on these visitors coming into our midst. The patrons of the rural routes should see to it that their mail boxes comply with all of the requirements emanating from the department at Washington. Some of those requirements are: mail boxes should be erected on good, substantial posts, (not telephone or fence posts) of a uniform height and so situated on the right side of the road as traveled by the carrier as to be easy of access by him; all posts and boxes to be painted white with the owner's name in neat black letters on each side of the box.

The local carriers have placed near the corner by the postoffice two mail boxes with a "Before and After" appearance. No collection of mail will be made from these boxes at any time, but look them over and decide which presents the neater appearance.

For further information, ask any member of the postoffice force from the postmaster down to the smallest carrier.

October Meeting of Supervisors

COMMITTEES REPORTS AND APPROPRIATIONS MADE.

The Charlevoix county board of supervisors went into session Monday for their annual October meeting, with all supervisors answering the roll call. Chairman H. A. Craig presided.

Monday and Tuesday forenoon was taken up with committee reports and committee meetings. A special committee appointed at the last meeting to investigate the advisability of making the fronton ferry a part of the county road system made their report Monday. It was found that the commission looked favorably upon the matter and the clerk of the board was authorized to make formal application to the road commission to make the ferry a part of the county road system, thus vesting in the commission the care, control and management of the ferry.

The report of William F. Bashaw, who was delegate to the state meeting of Equalization was heard and accepted, as also were two reports on jails by Judge of Probate Correll.

A special committee was named Monday to investigate the accounting of the office of the sheriff from the time the sheriff was put on a flat salary to the present time. This accounting will start back to the time when Charles Novak was in office and has been a matter of much interest and discussion during the present session.

At the Tuesday afternoon session, Jacob E. Chew of East Jordan, was unanimously elected as superintendent of the poor for a three year term. A. J. Duncanson of East Jordan was elected county school examiner for two years and William J. Pearson of Boyne Falls as county park commissioner for a five year term.

A report of the county Soldier's and Sailor's Relief commissioner was heard and accepted, and an appropriation of $150 made for this body for the coming year. The county school commissioner was authorized to trade in his old car for a new one. The Michigan Tourist and Resort association received an appropriation of $1,000, as did also the Charlevoix hospital. The amount of $350 was appropriated to the Michigan Children's Aid Society of St. Joseph, and a like amount to the hospital for crippled children at Farmington, Mich.

A motion was carried to pay C. E. Kimball, publisher of the Northern Michigan Magazine, the balance due him on subscriptions to said publications. An appropriation of $1,000 was made to the city of East Jordan for the East Jordan bridge over the south arm of Lake Charlevoix. The financial report of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society was heard and after considerable discussion was accepted. It was voted that one tenth mill of the assessed valuation of Charlevoix county be appropriated for Fair work the coming year, which will amount to $1,103.57, besides an additional sum of $896.43 for advertising purposes.

Wednesday morning's session was taken up with reports and discussion of the county fair, as well as some other minor matters. The supervisors adjourned at 11:30 and proceeded to the Hotel Noble, where they were the guests of county officers at a dinner given in their honor.—Charlevoix Courier.

Both are registered freshmen of the Pasadena Junior college. White is a member of the police force.

Only Buick has an engine Vibrationless beyond belief

BUICK'S remarkable freedom from vibration is due primarily to three vitally important factors. First—the inherent smoothness of the Buick Valve-in-Head six-cylinder engine. Second—rubber engine mountings, front and rear. And third—the scientific and almost perfect balance of the entire Buick crankshaft assembly.

Only Buick enjoys these advantages. And only Buick provides the silken performance—the unvarying smoothness at all speeds—the longer life and greater serviceability of an engine vibrationless beyond belief.

Community Building

City Beautiful Rests

With Whim of Builders

Market demands as well as civic duty should cause owners to give architects the latitude to plan proper decorative finish for their buildings. A pleasing exterior is not only a contribution to the neighborhood and to the community, but it has a direct effect upon marketability. A prospective buyer is much more interested in a well-finished attractive building than in one where scantiness of exterior decoration betrays the owner's desire to skimp. Such a condition is irreparable when small additional expenditure would bring the decoration up to the proper standard.

To illustrate: A fourteen-story building was erected at a cost of $1,750,000. A beautiful facade enlivened with terra cotta would have cost only $12,000 more than a plain, unattractive one, or seven-tenths of 1 per cent of total cost. A property owner is also under more obligation to the community to preserve general attractiveness. He should not destroy the pleasant appearance of a street or neighborhood by an ungainly, unadorned structure. Wise use of color, or selection of form, can avoid this. New York buildings have the general line of packing boxes. The architects should not be blamed. They have the skill to create beauty when they get the opportunity.

Confine Planting to

Borders and Foundations

The center of the lawn should always be left open and planting confined entirely to the borders and house foundation.

All of which sounds very well to one who is building, or rather getting ready to plan a house. But what of the poor unfortunate who already has houses and lots that are "all wrong" from standpoint of design?

Where and how shall they begin? Service areas again become first consideration; we must have them, but the problem is to get them all together, and out of the way, instead of scattered widely all over the lot. Kitchen entrance and garage should be on the same side of the lot, if possible.

Sometimes a small garage can be moved a short distance at small expense, providing there is not already a permanent drive. At least as many service units as possible should be together. Garage, drive, kitchen entrance, laundry yard, vegetable garden and possibly swings, trapeze or sandpiles should be grouped together just as much as possible, and arranged in the least amount of space. Next, we must try to relate some portion of the living side of the house to the grounds, which is not always easy and sometimes impossible.

Most Fires Avoidable

A very small proportion of our annual fire loss, probably less than a fourth of the total, may be classed as unavoidable. All the rest could be prevented by human foresight. First of all it is necessary for the American people to overcome that tendency to take a chance which seems to be a national characteristic. Fire losses can never be appreciably reduced until the human equation is altered radically for the better. It will be a long time, if ever, before all structures used and occupied by the people of this country are sufficiently proof against fire to offset the carelessness that is responsible for the greater part of our current fire losses.

Summer Work

During the summer is the proper time to go over the house and pick out spots that need repairing, and when the work is completed it is advisable to give the house a new coat of paint. Painting will reduce the decay and wear on the home and will give a better appearance.

The summer is also a good time to go over the interior of a home and see that all the woodwork is in a condition that will make the dwelling have a neat appearance.

Have Well-Built House

The less expensive the lot the more money is left for the house itself, and a well-constructed house on a cheap lot is more desirable than an unsatisfactory house on an expensive lot. Although a house that is very much more expensive than its neighbors might be hard to sell at a good price, a very cheap house may add nothing at all to the sale value of an expensive lot.

Civic Duty

Would you do your part—perhaps only a very small part—to make the city cleaner and more sanitary and to lower the fire hazard? If so, cooperate with the city administration in its clean-up program. If your premises need putting in order, if your basement, attic, closets or garage have accumulated rubbish or useless articles, why not get rid of them?

And He'll Be Right

Knock your town to a stranger and he'll think you have a yellow streak.

LIVE STOCK

KILL GRUBS IN HEAD OF SHEEP

There are subjects even to this day that none of us can fully agree upon. That this is a fact one need only look about, nevertheless I want to bring up an important question that affects at least one portion of our agricultural industry, and that is, grubs in sheep. Writes H. W. Swope of Pennsylvania, in the Farmer's Guide. Ever since I was a boy, and that has been some years ago, I have been told that grubs in the heads of sheep can be successfully removed by cutting a disc of the bone over the nose, or nasal cavities of the sheep so treated. Then the grubs are taken out or they are driven out, as the case may be with the squirting in of some kind of liquid suitable or calculated to get rid of the grubs. Some say that the method is a good one, others say not. I have experimented upon sheep myself for the purpose of finding out if there is anything in this sort of treatment for grubs. In one case, I lost two sheep, then, in another, I believe, this method did remove the trouble. However, I am inclined to believe that such a method is at best inefficient.

I know several men who have practiced this thing for years, and then I know a young veterinarian who has successfully operated in the same manner upon more than one flock of sheep, for this annoying trouble is to be found in the best of flocks. Yet, it does seem to me that such an operation is more of a harm than the relief usually obtained.

The question is, whether it really does the work on a percentage basis high enough to warrant its continued use and practice, or is there a better way of removing grubs. Here is a chance for some young intelligent fellow to get busy and put his improved methods into use, preferably some one who is genuinely interested in sheep and their future possibilities, for at present the outlook for sheep raising is considered very good by most observers.

Rotation of Pastures to Control Diseases

The case of grazing animals presents certain special difficulties. They habitually soil their "table" with manure, insuring the prompt return to the body of the bacteria, worm eggs and larvae and other infectious agents passed in the manure. With sheep, experiments have shown that rotation of pastures or of different kinds of stock on the same pasture is an aid in the control of stomach worms, but it is far from being the effective control measure hoped for. Control of parasite diseases would go a long way toward solving the problem of losses among lambs. So far as sanitation is concerned, lambs should be given special preference in the matter of pasture. They should be placed on fairly dry hillsides—not on bottom lands—away from weathers and all older sheep except the mothers, whenever possible, and the mothers should be treated for worms.

Popularity of Silage for Feeding to Steers

The popularity of silage for steer feeding is increasing, especially since its use is becoming better understood. Through the growing period it can be fed to about the same extent as to dairy-bred animals of similar relative development, but with the approach of the fattening stage and its requirement for a more concentrated ration the grain is increased without a corresponding increase in the amount of silage fed. The rate and economy of gain made by silage-fed steers justify the more general adoption of this feed for beef production, especially where pasturage is limited or uncertain. The same is true to a certain extent with sheep. Moderate feeding is the rule and more careful regard to the quality of the silage.

Little Difference in Quality of Tankage

The Missouri station has fed a large number of different brands of tankage but has never compared them in an experimental way. Observations of the use of tankage from various sources, however, has shown no apparent differences in the different brands of these 60 per cent protein packing-house products. In purchasing tankage, then, the important consideration is its protein content and it is our opinion, says a writer in the Missouri Farmer, that there would be little if any difference between tankage put out by different companies, so long as they all contained the same amount of protein.

Packing Industry Site

The packing industry, in the interest of economy, moves to localities where its raw material—live stock—is most readily available. The relations between the freight rates on pork products and live hogs is influential in determining the location of packing centers. Freight rates on hogs have advanced from 40 to 85 per cent above prewar levels. The ease of shipping dressed meats as compared with shipping live animals is another factor.

Limed Soil Best for Clover Crop

Experiments Show Plants Respond Remarkably Well to Treated Soil.

That clover responds remarkably well to a limed soil has again been demonstrated in experiments recently completed by Prof. A. W. Blair at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, at New Brunswick.

An unplimed plot of timothy and clover at the first cutting produced 1,242 pounds of hay per acre (practically all timothy) and a corresponding limed plot (treated with 4,000 pounds of ground limestone per acre) yielded mixed hay at the rate of 2,801 pounds per acre. At the second cutting the unplimed plot gave no hay, while the limed plot yielded excellent clover hay at the rate of 1,654 pounds per acre—a total for the limed plot of more than two tons per acre as against just a little over a half-ton for the unplimed plot.

Protein Value of Hay.

But the hay from the unplimed plot was practically all timothy which has a protein value not much above 8 per cent, whereas the mixed hay of the first cutting from the limed plot has a protein value somewhat higher than timothy alone, and the clover of the second cutting has a protein value almost double that of timothy.

"Furthermore," says Professor Blair, in commenting on the experiment, "there is at present an excellent prospect of a good crop of clover from the limed plot next year, but the yield of hay from the unplimed plot will be very meager and there will be no clover in it. Again, the limed plot will make a better soil to be turned under for corn, the following year, since the clover will have added considerable nitrogen to the soil, and some of this nitrogen will be left for succeeding crops."

Doesn't Like Acidity.

"Clover just will not grow in a soil that is acid beyond a certain degree. The county agents and the experiment station will help farmers to find out if their soil is acid to that degree, and thus spare them the trouble and expense of seeding clover with no prospect of getting a crop. Farmers are advised to buy no soil-acidity testing outfit until it has been approved by the county agent or the experiment station.

Hogging Down Corn Crop Is Good Farm Practice

"Hogging down at least part of this year's corn crop, if there is any, will save labor in husking, cribbing, re-loading, and feeding," says H. G. Zavoral, a live stock specialist of the agricultural extension service, University of Minnesota. "Well grown shoats averaging 75 to 125 pounds make the most desirable weights to be turned into the corn fields. It is best to get them gradually accustomed to eating green corn, filling them with old corn just before. Pigs can be turned in to the corn fields when the ears are glazed or dented and can stay there until ready for the market or until the weather becomes unfavorable.

"It is well not to place the pigs in a larger field than they can clean up in three weeks. Fattening hogs should be moved just before all the corn is gone, and breeding stock or growing pigs turned in to clean up. Shade and plenty of water should be available at all times. If less than one gallon of skim milk per day per pig is available, a self-feeder of tankage will pay big dividends."

Big Value of Barnyard Manure as Plant Food

The value of barnyard manure both as a plant food and in improving the physical condition of soil is suggested by a report to the United States Department of Agriculture from a southwestern citrus grower who established a dairy farm of several hundred acres solely with a view to providing a supply of manure for his citrus groves. It was his belief that if the dairy enterprise was only self-sustaining it would be fully worth while because of the value of the manure that was thus made available for his main enterprise.

Agricultural Notes

It pays to store farm machinery.

Orderliness is one of the best ways to save labor.

A good field of alfalfa should never be overpastured.

Better test by leftover garden seeds from last year that you intend to plant.

At corn ripening time drop all other business and select an abundance of seed corn.

Soy bean hay used as a winter feed for maintaining lambs gave even better results than the same amount of alfalfa hay.

Buckwheat is one of the best of all the nonleguminous crops. It leaves the soil in wonderful condition and it starts so quickly when sown that it is great to smother out annual weeds.

The very last word in smart street wear is shown here. A prominent screen star is displaying to excellent advantage this street dress of meta-brocade, developed in shades of henna and gold. Accordion plaited, fan-shaped jabot and a chine collar, are features. With the attire is worn a henna-colored felt hat trimmed in a rhinestone pin.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Our Most Valuable Food

One of our most valuable foods is the skin that forms on top of milk when it is heated. This substance is lactalbumin, and is composed of tiny clots which have formed under heat and floated to the top. It is possible for babies and invalids who are unable to take any other protein to digest lactalbumin. (© 1927. Western Newspaper Union.)

READJUSTMENTS
 By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
 Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

WE ARE, as I have often remarked, the slaves of habit, good or bad. The older we are the more difficult it is to readjust ourselves to new conditions, to take on new friends, and to be happy in new surroundings. Winter or summer, at work or during vacation, I awake at about the same hour, and try as I will I cannot long be contented. I must be up and at something. It is a habit I learned, with difficulty I must admit, long ago on the farm, but, having learned it, I am a slave to it. I want the same things for breakfast. Wherever I am, I am a little uneasy unless I am in my own chair. I am contented only when I have my old friends about me. And yet I know full well that one should learn to be and do otherwise, for sooner or later readjustments will have to be made. Old friends will have to go; new conditions will arise; and the wise man will learn to make readjustments early in life.

Wilder is a bachelor who has always had means enough to live as he desired. He has always intended to marry, but he is past fifty now and he is afraid of the readjustments which he knows will be inevitable in his life if he takes on the responsibilities of married life. She might want breakfast earlier or later than he has been accustomed to; she might not find his friends as agreeable as he finds them; she might even appropriate his favorite chair or insist upon its being replaced by a more artistic though less comfortable one. There is too much risk, and he will very likely drift on and die as he now is. Selfish you will say he is, but his habits are formed.

Gregory, though he is an old man, has just lost his mother. During his seventy years he has scarcely been separated from her. He has a wife and a family of his own and is a self-reliant and successful man, but there has always been mother to go to when he was depressed or in trouble or felt the need of sympathy. He is as completely lost as a child without her. He wanders about like a stranger in a strange land, not knowing what to do or where to go. He knew that the change must come, sooner or later, but he had not prepared himself for it. Fuller and his wife were inseparable. He was a shy man, who held himself in the background in social affairs. No one else could bring him out or put him in as good light as she could do. He quite sparkled when she was about, but without her he was silent, lit-at-ease, and not at his best. She died suddenly when still a young woman, but he could not make the readjustments necessary to a life without her. He was like a vessel drifting helplessly in a heavy sea. He had never learned to make readjustments.

BEING "TOO TIRED" DOESN'T PAY.

A healthy person never feels constantly tired. Being "too tired" continually is a sign of something wrong. Watch the kidneys. A very able physician said, "When they are affected, life is in danger." If elimination is too frequent, or too scanty and burning, take FOLEY PILLS diuretic. W. K. Holland, Harlingen, Texas, says: "I bet that 90 per cent of sufferers from kidney irregularities never take anything until it is too late, whereas FOLEY PILLS diuretic would be a God-send to them. THE DOG'S STORY

"BOW-WOW, bow-wow, bow-wow," said Bruce the dog.
 "Bow-wow, bow-wow, bow-wow," answered Buster, who was Bruce's best dog friend.
 "I've something quite funny to tell you," said Bruce.
 "I'm anxious to hear it," said Buster, and he wagged his tail to show that he meant it indeed.
 "Didn't you have something to tell me, Buster?" Bruce asked. "Do tell that to me first of all."
 "Very well," said Buster, "I will." "I was going to tell you," he went on, "about the city trip I made. You know I visited in the city?"
 "I should say I did know it," said Bruce. "I was very lonely. I know how lonely I was. I missed you dreadfully, Buster."

And Both Dogs Meant What They Said.

 "And I missed you, too, Bruce. You've no idea of how much I missed you."
 And both dogs meant what they said for they were very, very great friends.
 "Well, the children went to a big school in a very crowded part of the city."
 "One day I got lost. But you know I couldn't help it. The city was very confusing and puzzling to me."
 "And in that nice big school they announced in the assembly where all the children appeared at the first of the morning that I had been lost."
 "And they described the kind of a dog I was and all about me and about the collar I wore for those who did not happen to know me.

 "Of course I had made many, many friends but I didn't know all the children. You can't know them all in a city school, Bruce.
 "Doesn't that seem strange?"
 "That seems very strange," said Bruce. "I don't know that I would like that."
 "Now, do you know, I was just going to ask you if you were found," Bruce griped.
 "That would have been a foolish question as there could have been. Quite as foolish a question as there could ever be," Bruce added.
 "Of course you were found but tell me about it."
 "Well, as I say, they announced that I was lost. That noon when there was recess many of the boys and girls went in different directions all over the neighborhood thinking I might have lost my way not far from school but far enough so as to be puzzled.
 "But I found my own way back! Yes, I had gone a longer distance than I had meant to and then had become very much puzzled.
 "But I found my way back. I'm thankful to say, and I'm always happy to think how many fine boys and dear girls went looking for me.
 "It showed me how so many friends I had!
 "That very afternoon it snowed." Buster continued, "and the snowballs that those children made—they were great. I used to think they didn't care for snow much in the city and that city children couldn't appreciate snowballs, but they can, Bruce, oh yes, they can!
 "But here I am talking away the time and I want to hear your story."
 "Oh," said Bruce, "a friend of my master wanted to take my picture and the friend said:
 "Now look pleasant!"
 "So I looked 'pleasant' and wagged my tail to show how very pleasant I could be when having my picture taken.
 "Well, it seems they didn't want me to look pleasant with my tail for when my tail moved it spelt the picture. Dear me, the idea of telling a dog to look pleasant and expecting him to keep his tail still! That is about the funniest thing I ever heard of, Buster."
 "I think it is the very funniest thing I ever heard of," said Buster.
 "It is perfectly ridiculous."
 "And I loved your story, too, Buster, for I think it seems fine to think of a school that thinks of the dogs as well as the children of the neighborhood."
 But both dogs began to laugh again, for the thought of being told to look pleasant and keep one's tail still was quite the funniest thing dogs could hear.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
 By F. A. WALKER

WATCHING THE CLOCK

HOW far back the measurement of time goes is lost in the unrecorded events of prehistoric times. It is altogether probable that early man reckoned the passage of time by the length of shadows cast on the ground and later perhaps an instrument similar to the hour glass served to measure the divisions of the day.
 Certain it is that clocks as we know them were not invented until the Ninth century and the credit for the idea is given to a man of Verona named Plicificus.
 Like all things mortal the clock had faults as well as virtues. Before the hours were automatically measured for him man worked until he was tired and then "called it a day." With the coming of the clock he began measuring his efforts by time and acquired the habit of "watching the clock."
 There is one certain thing; no creature not endowed with more than two eyes can watch his job and the clock at the same time.
 When a man is looking at a clock his sole interest is the answer to the question, "What time is it?"
 The most efficient office in Washington during the war was one particular division of the Navy department. In that big room there was neither a calendar nor a clock.
 The head of that bureau said to the writer: "I do not want any one here who cares what day it is or what time it is. The measure of a day here is the finishing of the work in hand, then we can all go home."
 No truly in-earnest worker was ever able to quite finish his day's task. There always remains some portion upon which he would like to spend a little longer time.
 The reason the not-in-earnest worker watches the clock is because his heart is not in his labors and his pride is not in their results.
 Don't be a clock watcher. Work while you work with so much energy, so much interest, so much intensity that time doesn't matter.
 Play when you play with so much abandon, so much enjoyment, so much enthusiasm that the day passes without your measurement.
 The man who measures time in cycles or circles is wrong.
 Time must be computed in a straight line along which there is no backward motion.
 You can never have yesterday again if you wasted it, try and make today do double duty. But you can't do that if you watch the clock.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE
 BY JOSEPH KAYE

AT 21—Lee Shubert Did Not Own One Theater.
 AT THIS time my brother, Sam, and I were managing road companies. It was almost impossible then for independent managers to get a house in which to play for even one night, the theaters being controlled by a syndicate, and we soon ran up against this snag. All the best theaters were closed to us, so we got hold of old, run-down places and fixed them up as well as we could. We rented halls, anything we could find, so we could play our companies.—Lee Shubert.
 TODAY—As if destiny had played a designing hand in the case, the Shuberts own and direct more theaters in this country than anyone else in the theatrical profession, and have the greatest theatrical organization in the world.
 The Shuberts are also the producers of numerous plays and musical pieces every year, among them such almost institutional productions as the Winter Garden shows.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS
 By H. IRVING KING

LOVE AND DAISIES

PROBABLY most people have, at some period of their lives—when they were young and not so foolish as they are now—picked a daisy and, thinking of one of the opposite sex, picked the petals of the flower one by one, saying at the same time "He loves me; he loves me not." If the last petal picked coincides with "he loves me" all is well. If with "he loves me not" all is wrong.
 There are several modifications of this superstition of daisy picking, but this is the most common one, and it is very widespread. Empires have risen and vanished away, civilizations have flourished and decayed to be succeeded by new ones, since boy and girl first sought to know the hearts of their loved ones by plucking the petals of the daisy and still the practice goes on. The very name of the flower chosen for this incantation is significant of the origin of the superstition—daisy, Anglo-Saxon daegeseage—that is the sun, and looking at the daisy the reason of its being so named is apparent. Now, Freyja, the goddess of love in the old Scandinavian mythologies and whose cult spread over northern Germany had, according to some of the legends, her home in the sun; and she thus became associated in the minds of her worshippers with the daisy—the flower-sun. Therefore, it was most fitting to consult the daisy upon matters of love.
 The altars of Freyja have long crumbled to dust; but young men and maidens still consult her symbolic flowers to learn the hearts of their loved ones, believing, in the words of the popular song, that "Every daisy 'n the dell knows the secret, knows it well."

You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.
 To feel always tired, lame and achy is too often a sign of improper kidney action. The self-conscious to hide their sensitiveness assume a sort of aggressive bravado manner that repels and gives them the appearance of being bullies. Underneath this there is a great desire to be thought well of. They wish recognition, and find that this unnatural air creates a certain recognition, even though it is an unfavorable one.—Dr. C. Owosso—The explosion of an acetylene gas generator wrecked part of the plant of the Owosso Boiler & Welding Works with a loss estimated at $1,000. Large pieces of steel were hurled through the walls of the plant, but none of the workmen were injured. The blast was felt and heard for blocks.

Ann Arbor—Temporary seats numbering 10,000 are now being constructed around the top of the University of Michigan's new stadium for the Ohio State game. They will bring up the stadium capacity to more than 33,000, but even this number is more than 5,000 short of the number of seats ordered for the formal opening contest.

Lansing—Dr. Guy L. Keifer, commissioner of the Department of Health, is making a tour of the state to interest physicians and county boards of health in the establishment of county health units. The last legislature passed a bill permitting the establishment of such units. The units are miniature state departments. He has visited Kent and Saginaw counties so far.

Detroit—The Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, Henry Ford's railroad, has been ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission to pay reparations in the sum of $7.07 on account of an overcharge on a shipment of zinc scrap from Wyandotte in 1923. Mr. Ford must raise the money and make good the overcharge by Nov. 15. The order requires the railroad to pay interest on the award at the rate of 6 percent per annum from July 6, 1923.

Grand Rapids—Nick Glavis, of Detroit, who was convicted of having taken a 22-year-old Kent County woman to Detroit where a fake wedding ceremony, spoken in a language she did not understand, led her to believe she had become his bride, was sentenced by Circuit Judge M. L. Dugham to the Marquette Branch Prison for two and one-half to five years. The maximum period was recommended.

Monroe—A delegation of Indiana farmers, accompanied by Frank Wallace, Indianapolis state entomologist, and E. C. Kiplinger, assistant at Auburn, made an inspection of the European corn borer research station of the United States department of agriculture here. An inspection also was made of the state corn borer laboratory along the south Custer road west of here. A tour of infested corn fields was also made.

Ann Arbor—The Interfraternity Council of the University of Michigan has gone on record as opposed to the ban on student automobiles. This is the fourth student organization to oppose the ban. The council also passed resolutions suggesting all upper classmen who are scholastically eligible be allowed to drive cars. The council also expressed its disapproval of the present ruling prohibiting fraternity dances after football games.

Elsie—Eight Coral High school football players were injured recently when a small car in which they were riding crashed into a loaded coal wagon. The accident occurred while they were going to the root ball field for practice. Howard Pearce, 16 years old, is in the St. Johns Hospital with a fractured skull. Fay Davis, who was driving, also was hurt seriously. Wayne Loynes, Opal George and Glen Purviss were out on the face and hands.

Ithaca—Arthur Cummings, 40 years old, of Alma, was sentenced to life imprisonment at the Michigan State Prison at Jackson by Judge Kelly Searl in the Circuit Court for the County of Gratiot when he pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing the Gaffney Style Shop in Alma. Cummings was sentenced under the new Michigan habitual criminal act. He previously served felony sentences at Jackson, the State Reformatory at Ionia, and in California.

Grand Rapids—The attorney-general's department is prepared to defend the "deficiency appropriation bill," passed by the 1927 Legislature, according to a letter received by Prosecuting Attorney Earl W. Munshaw from Deputy Atty. Gen. Emerson R. Boyles. The constitutionality of the act has been attacked by Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Toms, of Wayne County. "So far as the attorney-general's department is concerned the 1927 deficiency appropriation bill is constitutional until declared otherwise," Boyles wrote.

Hillsdale—Viles Huser, Jr., three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Viles Huser, Sr., died here of burns received when a pot of boiling coffee overturned onto him.

Bay City—An attempt to rob the Sleeper, Merrick & Co. bank, at Twining, failed when tear gas bombs set off when the bank vault was tampered with, filled the interior of the building and drove out the robbers. When the burglars blew off the outside door of the vault the tear gas was released.

Decatur—Sudden excitement has stirred this town out of its accustomed quiet with the announcement that oil had been discovered on the A. D. Vought farm, three miles south of here. Drilling, which has been in progress for more than two years, was rewarded when oil was struck at a depth of 975 feet.

Community Building

Lay Out Community With Eye to Future

Preventive planning, which foresees and prevents mistakes in building, is recommended to village communities. As in the cities, rebuilding after a bad start may be expensive but cheaper in the long run. Exceptional new villages planned recently, with an eye to the future, include Mariemont, Ohio; Longview, Wash.; Hinchurst, N. C., and Palo Verde, Calif. Other villages are rebuilding either in large-scale reconstruction work at one time or by adoption of long-term plans for replacement of undesirable buildings as they wear out. The movement is country-wide and supported by planning associations and boards in several states.

Des Moines Enforces Strict Building Code

All persons will have to apply for a permit before beginning construction in Des Moines now, following adoption by the city council of the new building code first proposed eight years ago. Under the code all buildings will have to conform to rules and regulations enforced by the city building commissioner, and provide specifications for weight and quality of materials used in buildings within the city limits, as well as for quality of workmanship. It was drawn up by a group of local architects, contractors, and real estate men, in conjunction with V. O. Marriott, city building commissioner.

Brick Quality Guarantee

A brick is unique in that it is the one building material that is self-tested and carries its own guarantee in its ring. It is the only material of all the long list that a novice may judge with perfect safety. So long as a brick rings true when two are struck together, it needs no other certificate of character. The standards of brick have been so long established and are so well recognized in the construction world that it rarely happens that bricks are offered in the markets that are not of good quality. Unless they are good there is no demand or sale for them. Nor is there any inducement for the manufacturer to attempt to make an inferior article, knowing that these conditions are universal.

Model English Towns

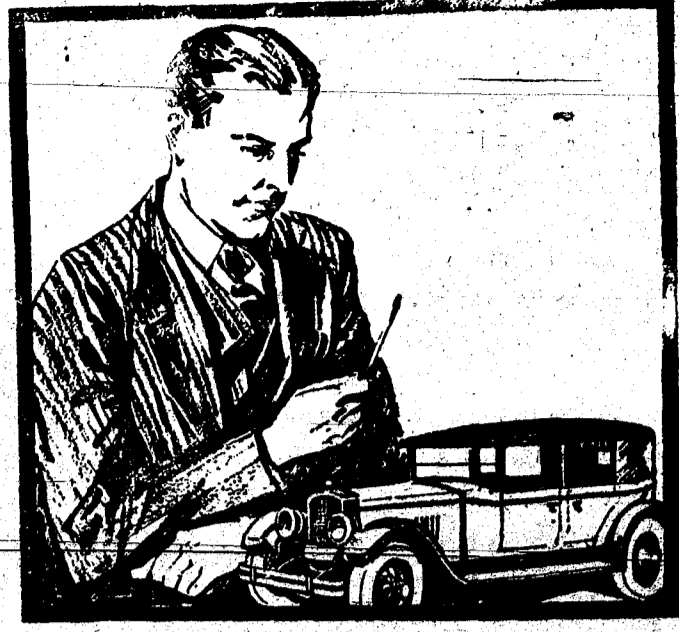

"In England there is an association called Garden Cities and Town Planning, which has sponsored a number of splendid developments, of which the most noted are Letchworth and Welwyn, both of which are self-contained towns, just outside the city of London. Another, especially interesting, is Bourneville, near Birmingham, built through the philanthropy and foresight of Cadbury. Bourneville consists of about four hundred acres, laid out attractively with hundreds of houses built under the plans laid out by the founder. They are chiefly constructed of brick. The houses are set well back from the street and provide plenty of room for the always expected English flower garden.

South Imported Buttons

During the Civil war, the northern states were able to supply all the buttons needed by the Union army. At the outbreak of the war button manufacturers in Europe expected to receive orders from both the North and the South, but were disappointed to find as time went on that the North could fill its own requirements. They found some consolation, however, in being called upon to supply all the buttons needed by the southern states, though in doing so, they were forced to run the blockade. There were numerous losses of cargoes as a result and this made it necessary to charge high prices for the buttons that reached their destination.—Exchange.

Art on a Large Scale

City planning and architecture are just as truly art, and fine art, as painting or sculpture, but because they both are primarily utilitarian they are perhaps less well understood or appreciated. The fact is, however, that city planning and building are intimately allied to everyday life, and the city planner and the architect, therefore, have it within their power to demonstrate to the people at large the value of art as no other artist has.—Lella Mechlin in the Washington Star.

"How best can I trade in my present car for a new car?"

WHEN you are ready to trade in your present car for a new car, you naturally want full value for your present car. But most of all you want full new car value. It will therefore pay you to consider varying trade-in allowance offers in the light of these basic facts:

- 1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value: i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.
6 Remember that you are making a purchase—not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply using your present car as a credit against the new car's purchase price.
