EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1928.

NUMBER 23

Child Killed In Accident

"EMPTY" REVOLVER CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM.

Glenn Bennett, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bennett of Echo township, was shot and fatally injured by a supposed empty revolver, Tuesday morning, June 5th. The revolver was in the hands of his aunt, Mrs. Lyle Smith of East Jordan, and the bullet entered his chest, taking a downward course. He lived about an hour following the accident.

On Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Smith who reside in East Jordan were alarmed by a window-peeper, and went to a neighbors and borrowed a revolver. Early Tuesday morning they drove out to the home of Mrs. Smith's sister, Mrs. Bennett, where she planned to assist her sister in the housework. Mr. Smith thought he had removed all of the bullets from the revolver, and handed it to his wife to put away, and in some way she snapped the trigger when the one bullet was discharged which fatally injured the child. Dr. H. W. Dicken of this city was summoned, but the child died shortly after his arrival.

The boy was aged nearly five years. He leaves, beside the bereaved parents, three brothers—Perry, Percy and Lawrence. Funeral services were held from the Bennett schoolhouse, Thursday afternoon. Interment at Moorehouse cemetery.

MARY ELLEN MURRAY ECHO TWP. PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Mary E. King was born May 30th, 1860 in Chickasaw County, Iowa, and died at her home in Echo Township, Antrim County, May 29th, 1928, aged 67 years, 11 months, 29 days, her parents being Amos and Mary King.

They moved to Charlevoix County, Michigan in the year 1867, where she lived until her marriage. On Sept. 9, 1877 she was united in marriage to George Murray and came to live on the homestead in Echo township, where she lived the rest of her life, except three years spent near Mr. Murray's parental home in Lambton County, Canada.

To this union was born five children, Arthur and Fred who preceded their parents in death. Mrs. Scott Bartholomew of Ashton, Mich.; Elmer and Clarence Murray, both of Echo township, Antrim County, are left to mourn her loss.

She is also survived by three sisters—Mrs. Thos. Bartholomew of Echo township; Mrs. Emma Walker of South Arm township, and Mrs. Joseph Rebec of East Jordan; one brother, Allen W. King, near Seattle, Wash.; eleven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

She was one of the earliest pioneers. Bear and deer were plentiful and could be seen crossing the small clearings scattered throughout the dense wilderness. The only roads were section line blazes, the nearest villages were Norwood, 16 miles away and Charlevoix, or Pine River as it was then known, 20 miles away.

The settlers made their living by cutting and shipping Propeller wood, if there was anything left after the needed provisions was bought, they were paid in Maple Slivers, their employers substituting for money.

She was converted in the year 1887 and lived with a hope of meeting her husband, who preceded her October 6, 1917.

Funeral services were held at the South Arm Grange Hall, Friday afternoon, June 1st, conducted by her son-in-law, the Rev. Scott Bartholomew of Ashton, Mich., this being her request, which was carried out by the family. Interment was made in the Jones cemetery.

GRACE E. LANWAY UNITED IN MARRIAGE TO LOUIS M. COBB

On Saturday, June 2nd, at 8:00 o'clock p. m., at their home, Grace E. Lanway and Louis M. Cobb were united in marriage in a quite but impressive service which was read by the Rev. H. D. Henry.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Nowland of Charlevoix, and was beautifully attired in pale blue georgette and crystal beads. She was attended by Alberta Haan, who wore blue silk chiffon.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Tina Shull of Grand Rapids, and was attended by Leeland Allen.

Following the ceremony, a delicious lunch was served to about 30 friends and relatives. Mrs. Blanche Chick acted as hostess.

The bride and groom received many beautiful gifts, among which was a chest of silver from the groom's mother, sister and brother.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. Knight, Mrs. Chris Taylor and Mrs. Ruby DeGraff, formerly of East Jordan.

The happy couple will be at home to their many friends at 817 Sheldon Ave., Grand Rapids.

The groom who was born and grew to manhood in Grand Rapids is employed with the National Grocery Co. The bride and groom have many friends who wish them everlasting happiness.

Fine Class Graduate Wednesday

Strong Class Day Program Tuesday Night. Prof. L. L. Tyler Gives Fine Address Wednesday Night.

One of the strongest Class Day programs ever presented by a graduating class of a High School was given Tuesday night. It would be difficult to pick out the star of the evening for it would seem that every number was in a class by itself. The class of 1928 can well be proud of their work of Tuesday night.

The first number on the program was the President's address by Margaret Staley and was very well given. It was rendered with the assurance and poise that is refreshing in a high school graduate. The Class History given by Dorothy Clark was brilliantly and nicely given. The Class Poem was given by Thelma MacDonald, and the Class Flower by Marie Kenny, both did exceptionally well. The Class Will by Robert Darbee and Vernil LaPeer, and the Giftatory by George Secord were humorous and pleased the large audience a great deal. The cornet duet by Clayton Montroy and Ira Weaver was a good musical number as was the trio of the Misses Bashaw and McKinnon and Harry McHale. Fredrica Shaw rendered a very pretty solo in a pleasing and able manner and showed a very good voice. Isabel Kitsman gave the Class Prophecy exceptionally well. Seldom will you hear a prophecy so well written and rendered by a high school student. She is to be congratulated on the success of her prophecy. The Misses Webster and Clark gave perhaps the strongest Valedictory heard in many a day. Their Valedictory in the form of a dialogue was a piece of art and showed the ability of these two girls. Altogether it was a program of which the high school and class can well be proud. The Class Day and Commencement programs had an audience of over six hundred and shows that East Jordan is still interested in its schools.

The class was not as large as usual, just an even two dozen graduating, but in many ways it made up in quality for the lack in numbers. Five of the students averaged "A" and four in the class had a "B" average. It may be that more details on the class will be given in next week's Herald.

L. L. Tyler, taking the place of Chase S. Osborne, certainly did a creditable job. He gave a very strong address which was well received by the large audience. His subject being "The Challenge of the Times." He emphasized the importance of accuracy and thoroughness in school and life, and urged us to face the facts and to do our best wherever we are placed. He paid the school and class a fine compliment. It would seem to us that his address filled the bill admirably. Mr. Tyler is now head of the new department of Education of Alma College. They are to be congratulated on the able man they have chosen for this important position.

The honor students made up a real list the present year. Any student receiving a medal for an average of ninety-five per cent is to be congratulated as well as his parents. Of course, it is a great honor to win the medal three or four times, and a number did. Following is the list:

PLEAS OF COLIC AND FAILING APPETITE DON'T MOVE JUDGE

Pleas that they needed moonshine for medical purposes failed to win clemency for two men who pleaded guilty in circuit court at Bellaire, Monday to possession and sale of liquor.

Joe Wanek declared that he has frequent attacks of colic and his father, with whom he lives alone, is suffering from kidney trouble, and they both need the liquor, while Chas. Kotalek told the judge that he could eat no breakfast, but a "hunk of hooch" with his morning cup of coffee gave him strength to work all day.

Wanek was given two days to pay $500 fine and $500 costs, or he will spend 6 to 12 months in Jackson, with 8 months recommended. Kotalek's case was put over to the next term of court. Both men live near East Jordan.

John Hejhal pleaded not guilty to a charge of possession and sale and will have a jury trial. He also lives near East Jordan.

John Groenvelt was granted a divorce from Mildred Groenvelt and will not have to pay alimony.

Changes In School Law

LAST LEGISLATURE MADE SOME FREAK PROVISIONS.

[Note—The following article has been published in a number of Michigan newspapers. In printing this, The Herald does not assume that it is authentic.—The Publisher.]

The last legislature enacted a code of school law which contains much of the old law, some new provisions and some changes, the reasons for which are hard to find.

Some of the important changes are noted in a letter sent by the Department of Education and School Support to all schools except those organized under special or local acts (parochial).

First, the date of annual school meeting is changed from July to the second Monday in June. School officers and trustees elected at this time must qualify within ten days but do not assume office until July 1. This leaves the old school board in office up to July 1.

At the annual meeting on the second Monday in June, the law provides that the financial report of the preceding school year shall be read. As the current school year will not be finished the report to be read will be that of the school year which ended nearly a year before. For instance, at the annual meeting on June 11, 1928, the report to be read will be that of the year beginning July 12, 1926 and ending July 11, 1927. Any report of the current school year need not be read at the annual meeting. This leaves the district practically a year behind at the time of its annual meeting in getting its information as to district finances.

The law further provides that in all graded school districts the Board of Education must publish, after the close of the current school year an itemized financial statement covering the year. Thus, at the close of the school year, June 20, 1928, an itemized financial statement covering that year must be published and this report is the one to be read on the second Monday in June, 1929.

As under the old law, the school board has entire power as to making of the school budget and no budget is to be presented or voted on at the annual school meeting. The law apparently operates on the principle that what the taxpayers don't know will not cause them any uneasiness until they find it out later.

By another change the fourth Monday in July will be the last date for making application for high school tuition instead of the fourth Monday in June.

The new law also gives any school district, except primary districts the power to form the district into one or more regular voting precincts, in which case it would provide for the registration of voters, the nomination of candidates for trustee by petition, voting by printed ballot, etc. This provision, however, is not obligatory.

The RED LAMP

SYNOPSIS

Events of the story from June to September, as set forth in the journal of William A. Porter, professor of English literature.

JUNE—The professor's uncle, Horace Porter, died under somewhat mysterious circumstances at his home, Twin Hollows, which is now Professor Porter's property. Jane, the professor's wife, has psychic qualities; she insists Uncle Horace, then dead for a year was at his class reunion, and a snaphot she takes seems to prove her right. Cameron, a fellow professor of Porter's and president of the Society for Psychical Research, inclines to the idea of psychic photography. Mrs. Porter shows a pronounced disinclination to spend the summer vacation at Twin Hollows. A letter Horace Porter had been writing at the time of his sudden death, reveals he had been interested in spiritualism and makes mention of some implied "danger," and of the "enormity of an idea." A "small red lamp" is also mentioned. Mrs. Porter's reluctance to live at Twin Hollows cannot be overcome, and with Edith, Porter's niece, they take up their residence in the lodge house of the estate. Warren Halliday, in love with Edith, comes to live in a boat-house near the lodge. A reference Professor Porter had once made to a certain cabalistic design returns to plague him. He finds in the village a superstition that there is something mysterious about the red lamp. There are mysterious happenings, and Mrs. Porter is sure Uncle Horace's spirit is hovering about them. A number of sheep are killed in the vicinity, by some unknown person.

JULY—The sheep slayer leaves at the scene of the killings the cabalistic design about which Professor Porter had asked Greenough, a detective, at Twin Hollows, and Porter has an uneasy feeling that he is under suspicion. Twin Hollows is rented to an elderly, partially paralyzed man, Bethel, who, with his secretary, Gordon, takes possession. A youth, Carroway, on watch for the sheep killer disappears. Porter has the red lamp hidden in a room of which he alone has the key, but many people, including the professor himself, have seen its reflection at Twin Hollows. Halliday is attacked and seriously injured, the attacker escaping. Carroway is found in the bay, murdered. Margie Morrison, cook employed by the Porters, disappears. A neighbor, Mrs. Livingston, shows an unexplained interest in Mr. Bethel, Gordon, Bethel's secretary, is found by Porter in the grounds of Twin Hollows, unconscious from a blow on the head. Halliday throws himself into an investigation of the mystery.

June 30.
I have been brought today, for the first time, into active contact with the feeling of the country people against my house, and especially against the red lamp. It is an amazing situation.

Thomas came to the doorway, this morning while I was at breakfast, followed by Starr the constable, who remained somewhat uneasily behind him. It developed that half a dozen sheep in a meadow beyond Robinson's point, were found the night before last with their throats cut. The farmer who owned them heard them milling about and ran out, and he declares he saw a dark figure dart out of the field and run into my woods at the head of Robinson's point.

It appears that the farmer, whose name is Nylle, abandoned the pursuit as soon as he saw where the fugitive was headed, and went back to his dead sheep. They were neatly laid out in a row.

"At what time was all this?" I asked.

"Eleven o'clock, or thereabouts."

"How about a dog?" I asked. "They kill sheep, don't they? Catch them by the throat or something?"

"They don't stab them with a knife. Not around here, anyhow," said Starr.

The ostensible object of the visit was to ask if we had been disturbed that night, and for some reason or other I did not at once connect the situation with Jane's curious experience.

"No," I said. "You'll probably find that Nylle has an enemy somewhere, some hand he has discharged, perhaps."

Starr took himself away very soon after that, but before he left he exchanged a glance with Thomas, and I had a feeling that something lay behind this morning's visit. It was not long before Thomas brought it out. It appears that Nylle ran after the figure to the edge of the woods, and there stood hesitating. The woods, I gather, share in the ill-repute of the house. And as he stood there, although everyone knew the house was empty, he distinctly saw the evil glow of the red lamp from it!

I dare say Jane is right, and my sense of humor is perverted, but I could not resist the opportunity of baiting Thomas. In which I realize now I made a tactical error.

"Really?" I said. "Nylle was certain of that, was he?"

"Saw it as plain as I see you," said Thomas. "I know you don't believe me—"

"But I do believe you. What about the red lamp?"

"Well," he said, "it's pretty well known about these parts that that lamp ain't healthy. Some say one thing and some say another, but most folks is agreed on that."

"Still, I don't see how it could kill sheep, do you?"

And even now I do not distinctly see the connection. I imagine the local belief is that the lamp exerts some malign influence, possibly even that it liberates some sinister spirit. Not, I imagine, that this is ever put into words. The nearest they come to that is the statement that the lamp is not "healthy," and that "George" has come back.

"At least that is all that I can make out of that strange mixture of hysteria, superstitions, fears and local mishaps to which Thomas gave birth in the next ten minutes or so. It began with Annie Cochran in the house after the lamp came, and gradually extended into the country-side; cows had mysteriously and prematurely calved; a meteorite had dropped into a field nearby; a fisherman's boat had been found empty in the bay on a quiet day and its owner never seen again; blight, pestilence and death had visited the community, equaled only in its history by the last few months of Mrs. Riggs' occupancy of the house. And the tradition was that Mrs. Riggs had used a red lamp to call her particular spirit.

"George" was his name," said Thomas, "and by and large he gave us a lot of trouble."

"Let me get this, Thomas," I said. "You mean—that you think this 'George' has come back?"

"I'm not saying that," he said with his usual caution. "But there's some talk of it."

"And killed those sheep?"

"I'm not saying that either. But there's not a man, woman or child around these parts would have gone into those woods night before last, heading for the big house."

I felt that I had gone far enough, and I proceeded to explain the lighting of the lamp that night. But although I saw that he believed me readily enough, it did not for a moment alter his attitude toward the red lamp.

"And as a matter of fact," I concluded, "I think Mrs. Porter actually saw the man Nylle chased, looking in through the pantry window."

"That'll have been 'George' all right," said Thomas, and creaked heavily out of the room.

To heaven the gloom of the morning. Halliday arrived today, in boisterous high spirits, broken with a sort of husky emotion when he saw his quarters.

"It's so darned good of you all," he said, and although the words were to Jane the look was for Edith.

After the women left we sat on the small veranda which surrounds the boathouse on three sides, and smoked. He told me his circumstances; he has exactly enough money to finish his course, which will take another year. At the end of that time he is to have a junior partnership in a law firm in Boston.

"But you know what that means, at first," he said. "A sort of sublimated clerical job. It will be a long time before I am independent."

Before he could marry was what he meant. And again I thought of my endowment fund for lovers. There are so many funds for preserving human life, and so few to make it worth the preserving. But I must talk to Edith. It is no use making the boy more unhappy than he is, or breaking down the restraints he is clearly putting on himself.

"I lost two years in the war," he said. "That threw me back, you see."

"I dare say it was not lost."

"No," he agreed. "I suppose a man must gain something by a thing like that, if he survives."

From that to the stories about the main house, and to Thomas' recital this morning, was not a long step, nor from that to the history of the house itself—and to Mrs. Riggs.

"Some night, sir," he suggested, "you and I might go up there and try rubbing the thing; see if we can evoke the genii."

About 8:30 tonight I took Jock and walked to Nylle's farm, where the sheep had been killed. I found the field, and wandered idly in. To my surprise, a man with a shotgun rose from a fence corner and confronted me, and Jock's hair rose as he prepared to spring.

"What do you want here?" he demanded, suspiciously.

"Go easy with that gun," I said. "My name's Porter, and I'm out for a stroll. That's all."

He apologized gruffly, while I held Jock by the collar, and even descended to point out where the dead sheep had been found, but there was certainly no cordiality in his manner, and even a trace of hostility.

July 1.
More sheep were killed last night. The Livingstones have lost a dozen of their blooded stock, and several farmers have suffered.

In each case the method is the same; the sheep are neatly stabbed in the jugular vein and then as neatly laid out in a row.

We are buying no mutton from the local butcher!

I assured Thomas this morning that I had not lighted the red lamp again, but he did not smile. He is quite capable of believing, I dare say that I have summoned a demon, I cannot control.

But he tells me that a county detective from town, sent by the sheriff is coming out to look into the matter. And there is a certain relief in this. It seems to me that we have to do with some form of religious mania, symbolic in its manifestation. The sheep is the ancient sacrifice of many faiths.

This belief is strengthened by Thomas' statement that in each case, the first one there has been left on a nearby rock or, in one instance, on a rence, a small cabalistic design roughly drawn in chalk.

Eight p. m. I feel like a man who has dreamed of some horrible or grotesque figure, and wakes to find it perched on his bed post.

The detective sent by Benchley, the sheriff, has just been here, a man named Greenough, a heavy-set individual with a pleasant enough manner and a damnable smile, behind which he conceals a considerable amount of shrewdness.

He had, of course, gathered together the local superstitions, and he was inclined to be facetious concerning my ownership of the red lamp. But he was serious enough about the bustle that had brought him.

"It's probably psychopathic," he said, "and the psychopath is a poor individual to let loose in any community, especially when he's got a knife.

My own suggestion of religious mania seemed to interest him.

"It's possible," he said. "It's a queer time in the world, Mr. Porter. People seem ready to do anything to think anything to escape reality. And from that to delusional insanity isn't very far. Now I'll ask you something. Did you ever hear of a circle, with a triangle inside it?"

I suppose I started, and I had a quick impression that his eyes were on me, shrewdly speculative behind his glasses. But the next moment he had reached into his pocket and drawn out a pencil and an envelope. "Like this," he said, and drawing the infernal symbol slowly and painstakingly, held it out to me.

To save my life I could not keep my hand steady; the envelope visibly quivered, and I saw his eyes on it.

"What do you mean, hear of it?" I asked. And then it came to me suddenly that that ridiculous statement of mine had somehow got to the fellow's ears, and that he was quietly hoaxing me. "Good Lord!" I said, ungrinned. So you've happened on that too!"

"So you know something about it?" he said quietly, and leaned forward. "Now, do you mind telling me when you know?"

He had not been hoaxing me. There was a curious significance in his manner. In the way he was looking at me, and it persisted while I told my absurd story. Told it badly, I realize, and haltingly; that I had picked up a book on Black Magic somewhere or other, and had as promptly forgotten it, save for one or two catch phrases, and that infernal symbol of a triangle in a circle, how I had foolishly repeated them to a group of women, and now seemed likely never to hear the last of it.

"As I gather, the Lear woman has spread it all over town," I said. "She dabbles in spiritualism, or something, and it seems to have appealed to her imagination."

"It has certainly appealed to somebody's imagination," he said. "That's the mark our friend the sheep killer has been leaving."

He was very cordial as he picked up his hat and prepared to depart. He was sorry to have had to trouble me; nice little place I had there. He understood I was fighting shy of the other house. He would do the same thing; he didn't believe in ghosts, but he was afraid of them.

And so out onto the drive, leaving me with a full and firm conviction that he suspects me of killing some forty odd sheep in the last few nights, probably in the celebration of some Black Mass of my own psychopathic devising.

July 2.
Larkin thinks he has rented the house. I made a telephone message from him the excuse to go to town this morning. Mr. Bethel, the prospective tenant, was not present, but his secretary was a thin boy with a bald skin and with his hair pomaded until it looks as though it is painted on his head. He smoked one cigarette after another as we talked.

If tomorrow is fair, Mr. Bethel will motor out and look over the property. It appears that he is in feeble health. If it is not, Gordon, the secretary, will come alone. I develop that, although the boy is a local product, and not one to be particularly proud of, Mr. Bethel comes from the West; Cameron's note to Larkin merely introduced him, but assumed an responsibility. As, however, he offers the rent in advance, the matter of reference becomes, as Larkin says, an unimportant detail.

I got the impression from the secretary that the old man is writing a book, and wishes to be undisturbed. And if his choice of a secretary fairly represents him, he will be.

From Larkin I learned that he had heard of the circle in a triangle from Helene Lear herself, at a dinner table, and that he has no idea that it is at all widespread. He regards the use of it by the sheep-killer as purely coincidence, which greatly cheers me.

Nevertheless, I went to the Lear and lunched there. Helene has agreed to spread the thing no further, and I came away with a great sense of relief. Into the bargain, Lear tells me that Cameron, after studying the photograph I sent him, is inclined to think it is the result of a double exposure.

No more sheep were killed last night. I understand Greenough has put guards on all the nearby flocks, and advises outlying farmers to do the same thing. Maggie Morrison told us this morning that they were doing it, but in, I gathered, a half-hearted manner. Most of them believe that, by his very nature, the marauder is impervious to shot and shell.

One curious thing, however, has been brought in by Starr, who stopped on his way past today. In a meadow not far from the Livingstone place two large stones, which had lain there for years, have been moved together and stood on their edges, and a flat slab of rock laid across them. On top of this, when it was found, there lay a small heap of fine sand.

One can figure, of course, that here is an altar, erected by the same unbalanced mind which has been killing the sheep. But no offering has yet been laid on it.

Later, Halliday spent the evening here, and I walked back with him. He tells me that on his first night in the boathouse, he saw a light moving over the salt marsh, about three hundred feet away.

At first he thought it was some one on the way to the beach, with a flashlight or a lantern, and he watched with some curiosity. Earlier in the evening he had himself walked along the edge of the swamp and decided it was not passible. But half way through the marsh the light stopped and then disappeared.

"I decided the chap, whenever it was in trouble," he said, "so I called to him. But there was no answer, and the light didn't appear again."

"Marsh gas, probably," I explained. "Methane, C. H., of course."

"Marsh gas burns with a thin blue flame, doesn't it? This was a small light, rather white. I walked an hour or so, but it didn't show again."

I have, since my return, looked up the book on the Oakville phenomena which I discovered on the desk of the main house. It is not significant, but it is interesting, to find that Mrs. Riggs produced fleeting lights, sometimes of a bluish-green, from the cabinet, again a sparkling point which generally localized itself near her head. But I cannot find any record of a light persisting for any length of time, or following a definite course.

"...but what will it cost me to buy that car on time?"

WHEN you buy a car for cash, you pay the factory price plus freight, war tax and delivery charges. When you buy on time, you pay an additional charge which includes fire and theft insurance. This additional amount is known as a "finance charge."

The finance charges on General Motors cars are low because the General Motors Acceptance Corporation was organized to assure sound credit practice and low rates to those of its customers who prefer to purchase on time. The Acceptance Corporation operates the GMAC Plan of payment. The Plan is simple, fair and economical. Its large volume of business reduces costs. It is conducted to give you satisfaction and to keep your goodwill.

When you buy a General Motors car on the GMAC Plan, you pay the cash delivered price—plus only the low GMAC financing charge—nothing more!

The Plan is available only through General Motors dealers. Another reason for buying your next car—whether new or used—from a General Motors dealer.

Buy your next car on the GMAC Plan

The General Motors cars are Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle and Cadillac. Together they make up a line of 86 models, ranging in price-at-the-factory from $495 to $5500. They are the quality cars of the various car price classes.

Whatever make and model you choose—whether it be of the highest price, or the lowest—you will get a beautiful body (the closed bodies are by Fisher), 4-wheel brakes, a powerful engine, and a quality of design, materials and performance that only General Motors, by reason of its resources and its policy of continuous improvement, is in a position to give.

And the final touch in your satisfaction will come when you buy it on the GMAC Plan. The transaction will be in your interest. The rates will be low. And the dealer will not lose interest in you after the down payment is made.

State News
in Brief

Detroit—Accidentally hit on the head by a baseball bat while he watched a game at Atkinson park, Arthur Born, 18 years old, died of his injuries a few hours later in Providence hospital.

Detroit—Gertrude Weems, two-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Monroe Weems, accidentally smothered
in the bed clothes of her crib here recently. Her mother started to give the child a bath at 10 a. m. and found her dead.

Kalamazoo—Contract for the erection of a hangar and shop at Lindbergh field has been awarded to J.
DeKoenig, of this city, at a cost of $28,360. It was announced here by City Manager Al Buschen. Work will be started immediately in order that mail service may be inaugurated
June 22.

Caro—Fifty-seven acres of land near the Michigan farm colony at Wahjamega has been donated to Caro
for an airport. President Fred Purdy announced. Governor Fred Green in donating this site expressed gratification at being able to aid aviation.
The Caro Board of Commerce will supply all markings and build a hangar.
The land is about two miles from Caro.

Lansing—A perpetual inventory
will be installed in the purchasing division of the state administrative board July 1, for the first time in the history of the state, the secretary announced here. The new system will require one additional clerk. Under the new inventory, the purchasing department will keep constant track of all equipment in care of the administrative board. It is thought the new plan will save many needless purchases.

Lake Orion—Robert Thornton, 6-year-old boy, was injured fatally here
when struck by an automobile driven by H. Albert Mitchell, of Pontiac.
The boy was taken to the City hospital at Pontiac, where he died from a fracture of the skull. Mitchell, in a statement to Oakland county deputies, said he was attempting to pass a road scraper, driving south on Orion road, when the boy dashed out from behind the scraper into the path of his car.

Pontiac—A carrier pigeon, with the word "Belgium" on the tag clamped to one leg, was recovering from an apparently long flight which ended recently on the farm of Frank Farmer, on Williams Lake. The bird was starved and exhausted, when it fluttered down to Farmer's barn, he said. The metal band bore the identification MHC-4779-Belgium. A rubber band held another tag with the number B-972. Farmer is convinced the bird flew here from Belgium.

Detroit—Fort Wayne will not be purchased by Wayne county, in spite of the option voted at a special meeting of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors, it was learned here. A letter from Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war, stated that the government offer to sell the fort had been rescinded. Rather than sell the fort to Wayne County, the letter said, the government will garrison it indefinitely.
Company E of the Second Infantry
has been assigned to the fort.

Lansing—Letters and instructions for the control of rabies have been mailed to mayors and heads of 83 cities and 264 villages in Michigan by the state department of health in a state-wide campaign against the disease. The literature was distributed throughout the state, although infestations are greatest in southern Michigan. The state departments of health and agriculture are alarmed at the spread of rabies from a few counties to 20 now in the quarantine area.

Pontiac—Victor Soucy, 23 years old, and A. Tyler, 55 years old, of Perry Park Subdivision here, were killed almost instantly when the small car in which they were riding was struck near Keego Harbor by a gas-electric train, on the Michigan Airline, running from Jackson to Richmond. Engineer Herman Dering
and Conductor George M. Walker, both of Port Huron, said that they saw the car, which apparently had come to a stop, start again in an attempt to make the crossing ahead of the train.

Lansing—The state legislature will be asked to appropriate a fund to advertise Northern Michigan resorts, it was announced here, following a conference between Gov. Fred W. Green and representatives of eight railroads operating in Michigan. The railroad representatives said their companies planned extending their Michigan resort advertising in co-operating with the Greater Michigan, Inc., movement. If the state appropriation is made, extensive advertising of the state's northern resorts will be launched next spring.

Jonesville—Two boys were drowned in the St. Joseph River about 10 miles north of here, recently when one was seized with cramps and the other tried to rescue him. The boys are Ralph Woolam, 19 years old, and his brother, Lloyd, 11, sons of Mr.
and Mrs. Charles Woolam, of Chicago. They went swimming at a point where there is a deep hole, where gravel has been taken from the river bed for several years. Lloyd suffered from cramps and Ralph, sensing his brother's danger, tried to rescue him,
both went down.

THEY CAN'T SPELL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

SOME one who has been probing into the history and development of our English language or whatever tongue it is with which we attempt in these parts to communicate with our fellow men, told me not long ago that a few hundred years ago it was not considered the part of a gentleman to spell correctly. The higher up in the social scale you were the more leeway you allowed yourself in the matter of orthography. In fact variety and originality in the putting together of letters to form words was a sign of erudition
rather than otherwise.

It was not so when I was a boy, nor even when my father was going to school. He had in fact very little formal schooling, and yet I was never able to detect him in misspelling a word. I read his diary a few weeks ago, written seventy-five years ago or more when he was crossing the ocean and there was not in all its pages a misspelled word.

Correct spelling was looked upon as an absolute necessity when I was in country district school. We practiced every day. We wrote words on our slates; we stood up and spelled down;
we vied with the children in adjoining districts in seeing who could stand up the longest and master the words which were pronounced to us. We were not stumped by such simple combinations as "receive" and "selve"
and "truly" and "separate" and "accommodate" which seem to be the waterloos of our youthful friends today.
We tackled "erysipelas" and "dague-reotype" and "charivari" and "chif-fonier" and words like that and spelled them as glibly as if they had been words of two syllables.

But "them days seem gone forever."
Even the college student takes spelling lightly and does it frequently with picturesque inaccuracy and thinks nothing of his errors. This fact is recognized even in North Carolina
where education, I am told by experts in pedagogical matters, has not reached the state of perfection which it has done in California and Massachusetts, for example. A gentleman wishing a stenographer who had some accurate knowledge of orthography is said to have inserted the following notice in his local paper:

"Wanted—Stenographer for special work after hours. Prefer one who has no college education, as the work will require correct spelling and punctuation, and the use of common sense."

Why doesn't the high school graduate and the college student know something of the simple elements of correct orthography and of punctuation? Perhaps the first reason is that with all the training in English which he has had, he has really never given any serious thought to these details. He hasn't had his mind on them. And secondly, no one has ever made him see the real importance of accuracy in writing.

"You know what I mean," he says,
"so why be so particular." He can't spell and punctuate correctly because he thinks there are so many other things of greater importance. Why waste time on trifles?

Why Animals Do Not Talk.

The only real reason an animal cannot talk is the inferiority of its brain. The mouth, tongue and vocal organs are in every way equal to those of the human being, but though the animal may spend a lifetime in the company of humans his mind
never permits him to use sound with any particular meaning.

"We Serve Michigan"
Elimination of Pullman Surcharge Will Involve Loss of $40,000,000 to Railroads and Will Shift the Burden
Upon Those Who Do Not Enjoy the Service

THE Senate Committee has reported out favorably the Robinson bill eliminating the Pullman surcharge. This action, while apparently a popular one, is class legislation and as such is bound to involve losses not only to the railroads, but to the traveling public who ride in the day coaches and to a number of communities that now enjoy sleeping car service.

TO the Railroads, it involves immediately a loss of $40,000,000 in revenue annually, which will have to be made up somehow. The surcharge is the only revenue that the railroads get for the hauling of the heavier equipment and the incidental special service of parking this equipment at the stations and in coach yards. In fact, the railroads have always had to pay to the Pullman Company a certain small charge for the mileage of each Pullman car and besides a guarantee of a certain minimum of return covering a period of years. All of the returns for berths, etc., go to the Pullman Company excepting the surcharge.

THE surcharge was found necessary by the United States Railroad Administration. Its continuance has been recommended by the Interstate Commerce Commission after an exhaustive study of the entire question of passenger travel returns.

THE Pullman sleeping car after all is a hotel on wheels. It provides an unusual service. It represents a heavy investment per passenger. The berth charge and the surcharge of 50 per cent (which latter is the only revenue the railroads derive from this high class service) together, are not out of line with the charge for a room in a modern high class hotel.

SINCE the Pullman sleeping car passenger enjoys greater comfort than does the passenger in the day coach, he should expect to pay for the added comfort.
The Pullman passenger is allotted two and one half times as much space as the person riding in the day coach. The car weight per passenger of the average day coach—assuming that it is filled—is about 6,800 pounds. The car weight per passenger of the average Pullman sleeping car—assuming that sleeper is filled—is about 12,260 pounds.
The cost to the railroad of hauling a sleeping car passenger is, therefore, approximately twice as much. Should not the sleeping car passenger pay for these additional privileges to the passenger and the obligations devolving upon the railroads?

ANOTHER illustration: The sleeping car lines to Michigan resorts in summer and to Florida or California resorts in the winter, are seasonal movements. The travel is all in one direction, which means that the return movement is an empty one.

RAILROADS have only two main sources of income—passenger revenues and freight revenues.

THE wiping out of $40,000,000 annually in passenger revenues involved in the abolition of the surcharge on Pullman fares must inevitably do one of three things—

1. Result in cutting down of passenger train service now provided by American Railroads;
2. Restricting sleeping car service on the less prosperous lines;
3. Or, shifting the burden of the loss upon the shippers of freight.

ANY one of these expedients is unfair to the general public, that section who ride in the day coaches.

IT is a good principle of business at all times to require the person who enjoys a special service to pay for that special service.

THE Pullman surcharge requires just that.

THE abolition of the surcharge, therefore, constitutes class or sumptuary legislation, which is not desirable in this day and age.

THE railroads do not object to governmental regulation by the proper tribunal—the Interstate Commerce Commission—constituted to deal with the transportation industry exclusively.

WRITE your senator or congressman to-day protesting against this uneconomic and unfair measure.

Training Navy Deep Sea Divers

At the navy yard in Washington a school has been opened for the training of naval deep-sea divers who are called on to aid in rescue work when submarines meet with accidents. This photograph shows one of the compression tanks used in treating divers afflicted with "bends."

Communities Do Well to Beautify Highways

This editorial, from the Grunts Pass (Ore.) Courier, has a universal application:

Southern Oregon is the garden spot of the Pacific coast. Here nature has done her utmost in providing beauty for all of us to appreciate. Unfortunately there have been many in the past who have been unable to appreciate these natural advantages. Just as there are people today who cannot see the beauty of their surroundings.

Native trees and shrubs which once lined the highways of southern Oregon have been removed in many places. In their place can be found old stumps and fallen trees. Old cans, bottles and other rubbish left by unthinking campers are seen from the highway where there might be beautiful natural parks to delight every visitor.

Cities of southern Oregon have awakened to the need for improvement of the scenery along the main arteries of travel. A concerted plan is now being developed by which it is hoped there will be a full co-operation in making these highways roads through giant parks.

One way this can be accomplished is through the planting of trees, and shrubs along the highways. Another is the removal of unsightly deposits of cans and other rubbish. Highways lined with beautiful shade trees of varieties best suited for the various localities would, certainly prove a wonderful attraction in years to come.

To Stimulate Interest in Vegetable Garden

One thousand dollars in prizes for the best ornamental and kitchen gardens will be awarded in 1928 by the Woman's Home Companion in conjunction with local chambers of commerce and other civic bodies.

Last year prizes were offered by the magazine, for the first time for both ornamental and vegetable gardens and the judges were keenly disappointed when the ornamental variety of entries outnumbered vegetable gardens 25 to 1. Prizes are there fore reoffered this year in the hope that interest in growing vegetables will be stimulated.

"This lack of interest in gardening was the more regrettable," says the magazine, "since last summer green corn on the cob was $1.25 a dozen ears in New York. Another instance of the growing indifference to raising food stuffs is shown in the fact that an authoritative report cites such instances as one agricultural high school with 1,150 students, only eight of whom had chosen agriculture as a vocation."

In the Flower Garden

It is quite true that mixtures of flowers growing in a garden seldom offend us. To the average observer flowers are endurable, even pleasant, whatever their colors and arrangement. The point is not that mixtures offend, but that they fail to charm. With few exceptions where mixtures are planted in the garden the effect of a flower group as a group is destroyed. Individually the flowers are not affected, but in the mass they become relatively insignificant. One color destroys another. The exceptions are those families in which the color range is so narrow that all varieties harmonize.

Where on the other hand groups of flowers of a single color are grown the impression of each blossom is multiplied by its association with the others; and if other groups similarly planned are grown near by the appeal is still further increased and the beholder becomes conscious not of mere flowers but of beautiful flowers, which are not negatively pleasant but positively charming.

Pulmotor for Trees

Trees weakened by insufficient oxygen, due to obstructions or surplus water about the roots, are restored to vigorous growth by a special "pulmotor" treatment which is said to have been administered with good results. It consists in forcing air currents about the roots. This is done with the aid of a compressor operating at about 100 pounds pressure and a long hollow "gun" with a shut-off. The gun is forced into the ground to the depth of the roots as far from the tree as the ends of the branches. The air is then turned on and off, the action of the air being visible to the operator by the rise and fall of the earth.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Painting Is Protection

By keeping all surfaces of lumber used in your home smooth and free from decay there will be no necessity for expensive repairs. Money may be devoted to additions rather than to replacements. The fire men, once we guard against with insurance is not nearly so costly to us as is the yearly loss we suffer from the decay of unpainted lumber. Think well on the great truth involved in the idea that when you save the surface you protect the entire structure.

Decorating problems require an individual solution, and it is often necessary to consult a reliable painter of experience.

Back-Yard Importance Not to Be Overlooked

One important room in the home should face the back yard. The yard is the only spot on the lot which has privacy and usually, if the owner is a beauty lover and garden enthusiast, this is the most beautiful spot as well. Much of the beauty is lost if only the kitchen faces it. No one wishes to spend much time in the kitchen.

Should the floor plan of the house place the living and dining rooms on one side, and the kitchen and hall on the other, have the driveway, if any, on the kitchen side, as a drive generally does not afford a good view from the living and dining-room windows and the noise of the passing motors, combined with the fumes from the exhaust, is most objectionable.

Sometimes it can be arranged to have half of the driveway as a walk, but if this cannot be done have the walk as near to the side of the lot as possible, to provide a large unbroken lawn area.

Using this method, many leisure hours can be spent profitably and pleasantly; profitably, as there is enough time during the winter to allow one to take into consideration every little detail, trash out every difficulty and be fully prepared to start work early in the spring.

Garage in These Days

Need Not Be Eyesore

Did you ever consider how your garage, whether it is attached to your house—or detached, can be made to take on a certain degree of artistry in its appearance with a little effort on your part?

Decorative hardware, for instance, gives a pleasing look to a homely door. This hardware may be in the form of metal trimming, bolts, nail heads, or hinges.

Window boxes along the side windows of a garage give a touch of attractiveness. If awnings are used on the house they can also appear on the garage.

The newer garages are no longer boxlike affairs disfiguring the landscape. And while one may not be able to have elaborate ones, any more than an elaborate house, they may be pleasing and appealing to the eye. If detached from the house, they may be an addition to the landscape rather than a blot upon it.

Larger School Grounds

Five acres or more of land for elementary schools and ten acres or more for high schools, junior or senior, have been acquired by several large cities in California, Georgia, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Texas and Wisconsin as announced by the national conference on city planning through the Playground and Recreation Association of America. Sixty cities report a definite policy of providing five or more acres for elementary schools and of ten or more acres for high schools. Small cities, where unimproved ground is available at reasonable prices, make a better showing, and fifty cities of 15,000 to 125,000 population report the acquisition of five acres or more for school sites since 1915. Cost of land for schools in small cities ranged from $500 to $8,000, and, in some instances to as high as $18,000 per acre. In Chicago as much as $80,000 per acre was paid.—School Life.

Proper Home Planning

One thing that a man should never forget when he is buying a home is that the home will be the center of his family life, probably for many years.

His children will be brought up in it and amidst its surroundings. In it his wife must do most of her work and in it both he and his wife will spend most of their leisure time.

He should, therefore, look at the different properties available and see how they measure up by these common sense, practical standards.

It is well for the family to picture itself going through its daily routine in the new house—cooking, cleaning, going to work, school, play, etc., at all seasons.

White Lights

The neighboring city of Kent turned on the lights of its Great White Way on Christmas evening and the familiar comment is that it's a grand and glorious feeling.

Kent officials responsible for the transformation have definitely placed themselves among the progressives. There is no reason why villages and towns should be excluded in the modern trend toward first-class systems of electrification, but it is a fact that too many small communities are in different to the advantages of excellent lighting. Kent's example should be followed by every municipality, great or small, in northern Ohio.—Cleveland News.

Give Average Costs

Average cost of single houses in 1928 is estimated at $3,512, according to statistics compiled by Building Age which covers construction operations throughout the country. Average cost of double houses was placed at $7,818 and multi-family houses at $45,030.
