Regatta Will Bring Crowds

OUTBOARD BOATS FROM MANY CITIES ENTERED.

The following article, published in the Daily Petoskey News, shows the interest boat-owners are taking in East Jordan's Homecoming-Fourth Regatta.

Traverse City, June 25.—The Grand Traverse Boat Club has a few busy days just ahead, at Traverse City, at Frankfort, and at East Jordan.

The first of the outboard programs on Grand Traverse bay will be held Friday afternoon, June 29, off the Wequetong Club. It was originally docketed for last week but the boat club felt obligated to wait until the Chamber of Commerce activities fund finally organizes its budget. The club was to be allowed $1,000 for the summer races but considerably less than anticipated has been collected and the Chamber of Commerce directors will decide Monday night how much can be allotted to the boat club. Nearly all of the money will go for prizes, and the big prizes of course will be hung up for the annual regatta in August.

Dr. W. G. Kinyon, commodore of the club, announces events Friday in classes B, C and D.

A few days later the boats will be trussed up on the trailers and taken to East Jordan for the Fourth of July celebration at that progressive city. "This a progressive city, say the outboard boys, if for no other reason than that it offers $80 in prizes for each race—$50 for first prize, $20 for second, and $10 for third, the local racers understand."

Officials for the East Jordan races will come from Charlevoix, East Jordan and Traverse City, Commodore Kinyon has been asked to furnish the judge and one timer.

Frankfort has a Fourth of July celebration that extends over five days. The Regatta comes on Friday, the 6th, and it will be in complete charge of the Grand Traverse Boat Club. Frankfort has asked Commodore Kinyon and his company to stage the races, and they are planning to stage them in great style. Such style will be possible, they declare, because Frankfort is making ample funds available.

SEPTIC TANK DEMONSTRATIONS

Farmers of Charlevoix County will have the opportunity during the 3 days of July 9, 10, and 11, to actually see three tanks of the latest design constructed by specialists from Mich. State College, one on each day.

A sewerage disposal system is fundamental to the installation of other conveniences on the farm home. Before running water can become possible or at least practicable, it is necessary to provide some means of removing the waste water. A septic tank and tile system provides that means, and at the same time provides the best possible methods of safe-guarding the water supply against contamination from these wastes.

The septic tank and tile system is to the farm home what the sewer system is to the city. It provides a satisfactory means of disposing of the wastes from the kitchen, laundry and bath room.

Its cost is not prohibitive and its construction is little more difficult than the building of a concrete water tank. You will be interested in attending your nearest demonstration during one of the three days and see how simple a matter it is to construct one of these tanks. Watch the next paper for further details and places where demonstrations will be held.

GUERNSEY FIELD DAY, JULY 13 AT EAST JORDAN

Plans are being rapidly completed for the First Annual Guernsey Show and Picnic to be held in East Jordan on Friday, July 13th.

The City of East Jordan and the members of the newly organized Charlevoix County Guernsey Breeders Association are sponsoring this event and working faithfully to make it a success.

The best representatives of the breed will be shown and pitted against each other in the showing. Suitable awards will be donated by the City of East Jordan. Watch this paper for additional announcement.

Fire Destroys Boyne City Mill

BIG SAW MILL, IDLE FOR YEARS, A COMPLETE LOSS.

The big saw mill operated for many years by the Boyne City Lumber Company at Boyne City was completely destroyed Sunday forenoon with a loss variously estimated at from $25,000 to $40,000. The fire was first discovered at about 10:15 o'clock and at that hour had gained big headway. Within two hours the structure walls had fallen in and the one time pride of Northern Michigan lumber days was gone forever, a victim of the flames. It was reported that the mill recently had been sold to W. H. White, a prominent Boyne City lumberman.

The mill was located about two and a half blocks south along the harbor front from the Boyne City opera house. It covered quite a bit of ground, the boiler room being separated from the mill proper by an alley way where sawdust was loaded from the saws. It was in this alley way that the flames are believed to have started in on their deadly work.

The mill was erected about a quarter of a century ago and completely equipped, the cost being near $40,000. For about twenty years the mill was operated quite successfully and steadily, but during the last five years the plant had been idle.

JOHN VALENTINE OF JORDAN TWP. PASSES AWAY

John Valentine, who has conducted a general store at Chestonia, Jordan Township for over twenty years, passed away at his home Saturday night, June 23rd, 1928. He has been a sufferer for many years from stomach trouble, but was only confined to his bed a day or so before his death.

Mr. Valentine was born at Orangeville, Barry County, Michigan, in 1854, being over 74 years of age at the time of his death.

In 1876 he was united in marriage to Eliza Tungate at Battle Creek. They came to Chestonia some twenty years ago and have since made that place their home.

Deceased is survived by the wife and two daughters—Mrs. Emma Shepard of Jordan township, and Mrs. Nellie Ashby of East Jordan. Also by one sister, Mrs. Marie Copland of Superior, Wis., and three grandchildren—Vail, Marshal and Velma Shepard.

Funeral services were held from his late home at Chestonia, Wednesday forenoon, June 27th, conducted by Rev. Samuel Brooks of Petoskey. Interment at Sunset Hill, East Jordan.

Among those here to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Byron Tungate and Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Tungate of Battle Creek.

Miss Florence Coates and Louis D. Bergeron Jr., Married at Flint

An impressive marriage ceremony was solemnized at St. Matthew's Church at Flint, Mich., Tuesday, June 19th, at 9:00 o'clock, when Miss Florence Coates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Coates, became the bride of Louis D. Bergeron Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Bergeron Sr., of Minneapolis, Minn. Rev. Fr. Sullivan officiating at the Nuptial High Mass, the double ring ceremony being used.

The bride was becomingly attired in a white crepe dress, and the long drape which hung from the neck was caught at the shoulder with rhinestones. Her veil was of beautifully embroidered tulle and was held in place by a band of pearls and rhinestones. The bridal bouquet was a combination of roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride chose her sister, Miss Veronica Coates to assist as maid of honor, who was attractively gowned in orchid georgette over pink, wear-

Welcome Homecomers!

EAST JORDAN EXTENDS A HEARTY WELCOME TO ITS FORMER RESIDENTS.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday, July 3rd and 4th, will be gala days in East Jordan when the big Homecoming and Fourth of July Celebration will be held. Already the Clans of South Arm are commencing to trek back to the old home, and East Jordan will witness the largest assemblage of former residents ever held in our city.

It is urged upon all former residents visiting East Jordan at this time to kindly register at The Inn. The Herald would like to publish a list of all homecomers, and wishes to have the list as complete as possible.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate members of the family at the home of the bride's parents at 331 Forest St., Flint. After a two weeks' honeymoon through the east and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Bergeron will make their home in Flint.

WILL DISPLAY SKILL AT STATE CLUB WEEK

East Lansing, June 26.—Michigan club girls will show their skill with needle and thread at a style show to be held during Club Week at Michigan State College, July 9 to 13.

The garments which will be exhibited were made as a part of the clothing project in girls winter club work. In addition to this show, there will be judging and demonstration contests in both boys and girls sections which will determine divisional winners who go to Detroit to compete at the State Fair.

The East Lansing camp is one of three club camps to be held in the State. Northern peninsula youngsters gather at Chatham, August 6, and a third camp will be held at Gaylord, August 13th.

State club leaders expect 350 club members at the East Lansing camp. For the first time, two local leaders accompany the members from each county, and a leader's training school will be given during the week.

Branches of club work in which contests will be held to determine representatives to go to Detroit are: canning, food study, hot lunch, clothing, livestock, poultry, handicraft, and health.

One of life's jokes is that the people who scoff at materialism are often living beyond their incomes.

Life's most heroic gesture is courageously and graciously to descend from a higher to a lower income.

CHEST CLINIC WILL BE HELD AT CHARLEVOIX

Hostesses who will assist in the Christmas seal Chest Clinic which the Michigan Tuberculosis Ass'n will hold in the Court House at Charlevoix, July 2 and 3 are: Mrs. B. Beaudine, Miss Caroline Geiken, Mrs. W. E. Parmelee, Mrs. John E. Lockyer, Mrs. H. Widdifield.

This clinic which will give to the residents of Charlevoix County the opportunity for a free chest-examination is financed by the annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals. Dr. J. W. Toan chest specialist, will be in charge of the examinations.

Tuberculosis is a curable disease if found in the early stages. At the present time, however, over 80 per cent of the cases entering sanatoria are in the far advanced stages of the disease when recovery is very doubtful. It is because of this fact that an intensive campaign for the early diagnosis of tuberculosis was conducted this spring and will again be conducted in the spring of 1929 by the Michigan Tuberculosis Ass'n. An attempt is made in this campaign to acquaint the people with the early symptoms of tuberculosis which are: a continued tired feeling, afternoon fever, indigestion, persistent cough and loss of weight. Persons having any one of these symptoms should attend the clinic.

As tuberculosis is preventable as well as curable persons who have come into contact with a case of the disease should have a chest examination. In early diagnosis lies the chance for cure.

Try First At Home

Whether it is something we want to buy, or some service we wish performed, why not Try First at Home? There is not a single one of us in this entire community but what will benefit to an appreciable extent if each member of the community practices his simple rule.

We want our home town to grow and prosper—we want it to be a place in which we will be proud to live. To realize our desires and our dreams of a better home community we must, one and all, do our share toward making it better—and the one big step toward that end is taken when we each one try first to fulfill our needs from home community sources.

COULD NOT WAIT FOR JULY FOURTH

A bunch of "Good Old-Fashioned" East Jordanites met at Conklin, the home town of H. I. McMillan, recently and enjoyed an especially pleasant afternoon "Just a Talkin'." The event, aside from the joy of renewed old friendships gave added pleasure to those present by presenting to Mr. McMillan a handsome traveling bag as a token of the esteem in which good old Mac is held by young and old who know him. Toasts were given by Andrew Sufferin and Harvey Milford, and responded to by Mac in his characteristic style, telling a Scotch story which convulsed the crowd and will be long remembered by all present.

Among those present were the families of Dr. R. A. Risk, H. F. Reid, Claude Reynolds, George A. Vance, Chris Taylor, Albert Anderson, E. L. Adams, Lawrence Monroe, J. E. McGowan, A. S. Hammond, Mike Lintner, Ray L. Fox, Lou Otto, Longtin, Mr. O'Connor, Harry Potter, Andrew Sufferin, Harvey Milford, Maggie Dooley Hefferan, Jennie McMillan Fitch, also Wallace Merchant.

The crowd met with Harry Curkendall at Allegan about two weeks ago and all expressed a wish to meet at the old Home Town July 3rd and 4th. Here's hoping.

Maggie Dooley Hefferan.

CITY TAX NOTICE

City Taxes for the City of East Jordan for the year 1928 are due and payable at my office over Hite's Drug store during the month of July without penalty. Office hours—9:00 to 11:00 a. m., and 1:00 to 5:00 p. m.

G. E. BOSWELL, City Treasurer.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation of the many acts of kindness extended by friends and neighbors during our recent bereavement. Also for the beautiful floral offerings, and the flowers from the O. E. S.

Mrs. Eliza Valentine
Mr. and Mrs. Homer Shepard and Family
Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ashby

Aren't you often ashamed, when at the end of a hard day's work, you look back and see how little you have accomplished?

Don't Forget The "Hay Day"

AT COULTER FARM, FRIDAY, JULY 6, AT 1:30 O'CLOCK.

All roads lead to the Coulter Farm, first farm south of the Charlevoix Co-operative Association, on Friday July 6th, at 1:30, for nearly all farmers will want to see the "Hay Day" demonstration to be conducted there.

The demonstration will be in charge of Duane Rainey, Farm Crops Specialist from M. S. C., who has charge of some twenty hay making days throughout the State. Several different lines of machinery will be on display and operated in the hay field by representatives of the Companies for your inspection and scrutiny. This will be one of the few times that farmers can actually see different makes of machinery at work at the same time and laboring under the same conditions.

The demonstration will show you how, by modern machinery the hay can be cut, raked immediately in fluffy, loose windrows, and without losing its high feeding value by drying quickly, and to put in the barn on the second day with favorable weather conditions carrying all of its leaves, and fully as important that deep green color that makes alfalfa so valuable.

With the increase of alfalfa acreage and the difficult problem with respect to securing efficient help this new system of curing and handling hay will no doubt be a life saver.

Mark the date down on your calendar right now and plan to be at the Coulter Farm at 1:30 o'clock p. m., fast time on Friday, July 6th.

B. C. MELLENCAMP, Co. Agr'l Agent.

E. J. STUDENTS MAKE RECORD AT WESTERN STATE

Kalamazoo, June 26.—Paul Franseth, East Jordan, who completed his work at Western State Teachers College in 1925 was elected to membership in Tau Kappa Alpha and initiated into the local chapter of the fraternity at its commencement week program.

Tau Kappa Alpha is the newly organized forensic fraternity at Western State. Western is the first State Teachers College in the United States to be given admission to this fraternity which numbers among its members eight leading colleges and Universities in half the States from coast to coast.

An installation ceremony was conducted recently by Morris Edwards of Washington.

Raymond Swafford, East Jordan, a Freshman at Western State Teachers College, and third baseman and catcher of the varsity diamond nine was awarded a letter in baseball at the closing exercises of the spring term of the college.

The Western nine won ten of the fifteen games played on a schedule that included such teams as Chicago, West Virginia and Notre Dame Universities.

Arthur Secord, East Jordan, who is a member of the June graduation class of Western State Teachers College has been chosen one of the ten outstanding students of the Senior Class during its four college years.

Secord was chosen because of his activity in debate. He has been a member of the varsity squad for four years, and has participated in every international debate in which Western State has engaged, including Cambridge University, the Australian debaters, and the debate with the British Students' Union team during the last year.

He is accordingly a member of Delta Rho, honorary forensic fraternity, and a charter member of the newly organized chapter of Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary forensic fraternity. He is a member of the Forum, and of the Student Council. He was president of his class when a Junior, and was this year made president of the Senior class.

AN APPRECIATION

To the Business Men's Club of East Jordan:—
We certainly appreciate your very cordial invitation to be at East Jordan July 3rd and 4th to meet our old friends, who are very dear to us both. We thought at one time we might be present at the Homecoming festival. We are much disappointed in not being able to accept the favor shown us. Owing to my brother's failing health, we decided not to make any plans to come. We hope you may have a nice gathering of East Jordanites and that the weather will be in your favor.

Yours very respectfully,
MR. and MRS. EBER L. BURDICK
Walnut Creek, Calif.

Experience breeds tolerance.

ANNOUNCEMENT

To the Electors of Charlevoix County: I am a candidate for Register of Deeds on the Republican Ticket at the Primary Election, September 4th, 1928. In seeking another term I am deeply sensible of the fact that you have treated me very generously in the past. I am grateful indeed for these evidences of your confidence and good will. I have been led to believe that the hundreds of patrons of the register of deeds' office during the past four years are satisfied that the business has been well performed. I believe I am better qualified today to serve your interests than ever before. I desire to say that if nominated and elected I shall continue to give the office my very best efforts and to conduct it in a business-like and efficient manner. I most respectfully solicit your support for re-nomination.

Original "Loving Cup"

The custom of the loving cup is traced back to the days of wassailing. It was continued after the introduction of Christianity. The monks called the wassail bowl the "poculum caritatis," meaning "loving cup." The ceremony of drinking from one cup and passing it around was observed in the Jewish paschal supper.

INSANITY AND DEFENSE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

ARE we all just a little off mentally, or perhaps something more than a little? Some one has said so, and has tried to prove that if we were quite normal, whatever normality may mean, we should never do an irregular thing, never show bad judgment or crude manners, or attract the attention of our friends or the police by our failure to come up to certain standards. Maybe it is so.

There was a crime committed not long ago in the neighborhood in which I used to live. A young man, lazy and selfish and not given to work, in order to cover up a moral irregularity of which he had been guilty, perpetrated another offense which injured one young person permanently and endangered the lives of a score more. The crime was planned and the purpose of it quite evident to anyone who was familiar with the people concerned. Wholesale murder was prevented only by the merest accident. There was no doubt of the man's guilt and no apparent reason to any unprejudiced onlooker why he should not have had an immediate trial and a quick conviction.

I followed the case with interest because of my knowledge of the community and a slight acquaintance with the people concerned. On the opening of the local paper bore these headlines in giving an account of the first day's proceedings: "Insanity will be the defense." And insanity was the defense. Here was a young fellow selfish and without moral ideals, who had committed one crime to conceal another. He was crazy, his lawyer held, or he would not have done either deed. Fortunately, the practical hard-headed working men who composed the jury could not see it in that way, and the man was condemned and sentenced as he should have been.

It is curious how, in these days of clever lawyers and shrewd criminals, the attempt is made to make the unbalanced mind an excuse for all sorts of moral and legal irregularities and alienists can be found who will prove a man insane no matter what course of action he has been following.

If a man robs a bank, or a minister runs off with the young and attractive wife of one of his parishioners, if a young fellow forges a few checks, or holds up an oil station having sand-bagged the operator—if any of these things happen and the perpetrator is apprehended at once the defense is set up that the unfortunate person, who has been guilty of the irregularity is in an unbalanced state of mind and should not, therefore, be punished. And the surprising fact is how many people get away with it.

I suppose that later this sort of offense will go even farther. If I neglect to pay my fire insurance and my house burns, the company is still liable, for I was crazy. Any man would be who lets his insurance lapse. If I forget to mail my wife's letters, if I anger I assault a neighbor, if I shoot my neighbor's chickens which are scratching up my garden, insanity will be the defense. It will be a haven for every criminal.

Might Be Better

Man's outbursts of temper, says an eminent psychologist, are the result of his suppressed emotions, and it would be just as well probably if he were to keep them suppressed a while longer.—Canby (Ala.) Herald.

Ludington—War has been declared on dogs running at large in Mason county, killing game and sheep. "Shoot to kill" is the order from District Warden W. C. Kidder to Frank Knowles, conservation officer.

Pontiac—George Tate, 45 years old, lost his life in a sewer trench cave-in here recently. He was buried beneath 11 feet of sand in a trench on Saginaw street. It was an hour and a half later before he could be dug out and efforts to revive him proved futile.

Centerline—Lester Lawrence, 14 years old, of Centerline, was drowned while trying to save the life of his 12-year-old chum, Lawrence Jack, who also went to a watery grave. The Jack boy fell off a raft on which the two were playing in a pool at Van Dyke and Thirteen-mile roads.

Silverwood—David W. Snover, 81 years old, died here recently. He came to Silverwood in 1873, and that year built the house in which he died. He is survived by his widow and eight children; also two brothers and one sister.—Dr. C. D. Snover, 92 years old; John F. Snover, 88 years old, and Esther Snover, 72 years old.

Lansing—Increase in bus and truck operation in Michigan this year is indicated by a 20 per cent higher collection of fees from motorized public carriers, reported by the Public Utilities Commission. Collection from bus and truck lines during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, amounted to $107,333, while collections to date during the present fiscal year are $126,153.

Kalamazoo—For the fifth time in the last four years the Brown drug store on West street was robbed here, and a large quantity of fishing tackle was taken. The place was held up by armed bandits February 5. Entrance this time was gained by smashing a front window, the crash of which aroused employees of the store who reside on the second floor. The robbers fled in an automobile.

Pontiac—John Mackie, 63 years old, was killed by his own automobile driven by his 16-year-old son, Hursul Mackie. The two were employed by contractors, on the paving of the Rochester road and were at work east of Pontiac. Mackie was setting forms for the concrete while the boy hauled water in a small automobile. Some one shouted a warning that the car was approaching and Mackie stepped back directly into the path of the car. He died on the way to the hospital.

Escanaba—William Ash, 57 years old, a farmer, becoming suddenly insane, killed his daughter, Myrtle, 27 years old, at their farm home near Soo Hill settlement and dismembered her body with a hacksaw and a razor. Ash was captured by deputies as he was trying to smash entrance into the home of Victor Johnson, a neighbor. He was armed with a huge club. He was returned to the state insane hospital at Newberry from which he was discharged in September of last year.

Kalamazoo—A. C. Estabrook, of Allegan, was elected commander of the Michigan Department of the Grand Army of the Republic at the closing session of the annual encampment here and Bay City was chosen as the place of the 1929 convention. Estabrook, 83 years old, one of the youngest veterans at the encampment, succeeds Charles A. Bartlett, of Detroit. Bay City won out over Pontiac for the honor of entertaining the 1929 encampment of the Grand Army and 13 allied patriotic organizations.

Manistee—Eighty acres fronting on Canfield and Green Lakes, two miles south of Manistee, have been leased by the Pere Marquette Council of the Boy Scouts, with option to purchase as a permanent camp site for Boy Scouts of Manistee, Mason, Oceana and Lake counties. The council will conduct a camp there this summer under the direction of Robert Weir, of Ludington. The tract is heavily wooded and a natural amphitheater, on the shore of Canfield Lake, will be utilized for a camp fire circle.

East Lansing—The idea that college students like to pet is all wrong, according to a study of the petting situation presented in "The Student," Michigan State College literary publication. The conclusion reached by the paper is that co-eds pet because they think the men want to; the men pet because they think the co-eds want to; both the co-eds and the men would prefer not to pet. Opinions from various campus figures are offered to substantiate the claim that petting comes under the heading of unwelcome pastimes.

Lansing—Sheridan Township of Gladwin County will escape taxation this year because there is no one to serve as assessment officer. O. B. Fuller, auditor-general, recently was informed that the supervisor, treasurer and clerk had moved out of the township. All these officers were members of the family residing within its boundaries. Of the 28,040 acres in the township, 680 have been deeded to the state for non-payment of taxes and 19,206 are tax delinquent, leaving only 3,610 to which private owners hold clear title.

Lansing—A rigid state-wide test, designed to insure proper equipment on motor vehicles using Michigan highways, is being made by State Police. Cars driving through are required to submit to tests for brakes, lights and horns. Improper equipment will mean a police summons and probably a fine. Highway inspection posts are located near Marquette, Newberry, Iron Mountain, Cheboygan, Manistee, Bay City, Flint, St. Clair, Wayne, South Rockwood, Sturgis, Paw Paw, Grand Haven and Lansing.

And indeed it has passed the point of philosophical endurance. Even if Carroway's body is not found and no charge of murder can be brought, it is not hard to see what power lies in this detective's hands, backed by his conviction of my guilt. He may not imprison me, but he can cost me my reputation, even my position in the university. He can hound me out of the only life I know and am fitted for. It is well enough for Halliday to say that we can assume a counter-offensive. When? With him temporarily crippled, and every act of mine watched and questioned? And, even with all other things equal, how?

Nor do I see, as he does, any possible clew in young Gordon finding the chalk with which the drawing was done, behind the lawn-roller in the garage, a fact which Edith reported after Hayward and Greenough had gone, or in the scrap of paper in which it was wrapped when found. For one thing, Edith's memory as to what was on the paper may be at fault. Naturally, not knowing my situation, she would observe it only casually.

According to Clara, the only persons visiting the car after it was brought back yesterday morning were Annie Cochran and Thomas, who were there when it was returned; Greenough, who spent some time there while the doctor made his call on Halliday; the doctor himself, who wandered in later to look at it; young Gordon, who she says showed particular interest in it and a sort of ghoulish amusement, and the Livingstones.

But as the garage door was unlocked all night, such speculation is purely futile.

Edith suggests malicious mischief. Her explanation of the paper found about the chalk and what was on it is simple. That in itself, she concludes, proves her contention: "It looked as if children had been playing with a typewriter," she says. And she has reproduced it from memory, as nearly as possible, Greenough having carried it off with him.

It was done, she says, on a typewriter in a curious jumble of capitals and small letters, and the paper was perforated at the side, as if it were from a loose-leaf notebook. Also, it had been torn, so that only a portion of the typing remained.

This portion was, according to her, as follows:

Gel.Tr. K. 28.
(Note: As will be seen, Edith's memory was extremely good. She made only one error in the cipher. The final number, 28, should, of course, have been 24.)

Tonight I have had a long talk with Halliday. It appears that the time of Peter Geiss' apparition almost exactly coincides with the attack. This, however, does not impress Halliday as it does me.

"You have to remember, Skipper," he says, "that old Geiss has been scared almost out of his wits the last few weeks. And the Carroway affair has carried the terror right out onto his domain, which is the water."
"Then why didn't he see Carroway?"
"Search me," he said, "with a shrug that set him wincing. 'What's bothering me is why doesn't anybody see Carroway? Eight days, and no body found yet.'"

"When I left him a few minutes ago, he had Edith's memory copy of the paper found in the garage, and was propped up in bed with a pencil."
"If we had the original we'd be better off," he said. "It oughtn't to be hard to find the typewriter in the vicinity that wrote it. And if Greenough isn't crazy with the heat he's looking for it now."

I glanced at my own portable machine, sitting on the table, and he followed my eyes and smiled.

"You've got your best alibi right there," he said, "if this turns out to be a cipher. And I think it is."

He has it, appears, some small knowledge of ciphers, and from the mixture of capitals and small letters he believes he recognizes this one. But it requires a key word, or two key words.

"Even without it," he says, "it could be solved, possibly, if I had enough of it. But with only this scrap—And I don't get the number added to it."

"The idea of this type of cipher, I gather, is to take a word, or two words, containing thirteen letters of the alphabet, no one used twice. Written first in small or lower case size these letters represent the first thirteen letters of the alphabet. The same word or words repeated in capitals becomes the second half of the alphabet.

Thus the words "subnormal diet" becomes a key in this fashion: subnormaldiet SUBNORMALDIET abcdefghijklm nopqrstuvwxyza
But as "subnormal diet" was the only key phrase we could think of, and as it obviously did not fit, I left him still biting the end of his pencil, and came to complete this record.

Sunday, July 15.
Again, a quiet morning, and I am still at large. Jane is worried. She knows nothing, but she suspects everything. By that, I mean that she is somehow aware, after her own curious fashion, that there is something wrong with her world. She watches me, when I am not looking at her. She has an odd, rather furtive, dislike of Doctor Hayward. And she is almost criminally forwarding Edith's love affair.

Since Halliday was brought here Jane and I have shared her bedroom, and this morning, buttoning my collar, I said:

"The sooner that boy goes back to the boathouse, the better."

"Why?" she demanded, almost militantly.

"Well, if you can't see what's going on under your eyes, my dear—"

"I don't see why it shouldn't go on. There's not too much love in the world."

"Nor enough bread and cheese."

"We didn't have very much when we started, William," she said, looking up at me wistfully.

"And we haven't much more now," I said, and kissed her.

But the plain truth is that Jane's nerves are shaken. She wants Edith settled; she would like nothing better than a speedy marriage, if that would take us back to the city at once. All her old hatred and distrust of this place have been steadily re-creating, and the attack on Halliday has about eaten away her resistance.

Later, poor Carroway's body has been found. The tide was unusually low at two this afternoon and a yawl from Bass cove, crossing the bay, saw it floating face down, and recovered it, not without difficulty. The poor lad had been tied with the end of an anchor rope, and the anchor thrown over with him. Thus for days the body has been only a few feet beneath the surface, floating at the end of its tragic tether.

From the doctor, making his afternoon call here, we heard the details. He was summoned as soon as the body was brought in, and made a hasty examination. From that it appears that Carroway was beaten over the head first and then thrown into the sea.

"He was probably dead before he touched the water," is Hayward's opinion. "Of course the autopsy will tell that. If there is no water in the middle ear or the lungs, we can be certain."

But from Peter Geiss, who wandered in this afternoon after salvaging certain of his personal possessions from the sloop, we learned other facts. Thus, Peter declares that the man who killed Carroway was a sailor, or at least knew how to use a rope, sailor-fashion.

And as Halliday said to me, aside, this was cheering news, for my best friend could not accuse me of any nautical knowledge.

The body, it seems, was tied with two half-hitches around the wrists; from there the rope extended to the ankle, with similar half-hitches, and to these ends, again, the anchor had been affixed.

But, the recovery of the body has roused the neighborhood to fever heat.

He prefig me with polite questions, but I evaded him as well as I could. "But don't you, personally, believe there is some connection?" he insisted.

"I imagine you know at least as much about it as I do. Have you found any?"

"Perhaps my attitude had annoyed him, or perhaps he merely had the discoverer's pride in achievement, for he put away the handful of yellow paper on which he had made no notes, and smiled.

"I haven't found any connection," he said. "But I have found something your detectives missed, Mr. Porter. I have found where the fellow hid after the crash, when the other car was rescuing Mr. Halliday."

But the odd part of that discovery to my mind is not that hiding place. Nor Greenough's failure to locate it. As a matter of fact, I doubt if Greenough has ever looked for it. He seems to have taken for granted that Halliday's assailant merely escaped the wreck and made off in the dark.

No. The point that strikes me, and struck Halliday when I told him is the intimate knowledge of that location shown, and the quickness with which he took advantage of it.

Crossing the road, according to the reporter, and about fifteen feet from where the car was ditched, is a small culvert. Hardly a culvert, either, but a largish clay pipe designed to carry the drainage of the higher fields on one side to the lower on the other.

"Have you searched this pipe?" I asked.

"I looked in. If I'd had a pair of overalls I'd have gone in. But as the only clothes I have with me are on me—" he smiled again. "It's a good job for a ferret," he said.

which wielded the oar that struck him, and which tied the half-hitches.

The anchor presents the only possible clew, and that is a feeble one. There was no anchor in the boat Carroway took out. On the other hand, there is a sort of half-hearted recognition of it by Doctor Hayward as one stolen from his small knock-about sometime late in June.

"Of course, all these anchors are as like as peas," he said this afternoon, "but the boys down at the wharf say it's mine, and they can tell two fish-hooks apart, same size and same kind."

The county authorities have finally roused themselves and the sheriff, Benchley, is in Oakville. Under the excuse of examining our boat Greenough brought him out, and Halliday dressed and went with them, to show where he had found the knife. On their return they stopped in and looked at my car.

When Halliday came back he was grave and quiet. In vain did Edith try to coax him into his usual light-heartedness. While I have no idea as to what happened, I can make a fair guess, for he announced at supper that he was through playing the invalid.

"It's time for me to be up and about," he said.

Benchley has increased the county's reward to twenty-five hundred dollars, and this with Livingstone's makes three thousand. As a result, until twilight frightened them back to their hearths, the vicinity was filled this afternoon with amateur detectives.

According to Annie Cochran, one of them was skulking around the hedge of the main house when Mr. Bethel saw him and drove him off.

Just what that irritable and exclusive gentleman makes of the situation, I do not know. He must have learned, through Gordon, of our trouble here, but he makes no sign.

He is so consistently unpleasant that one must respect it, as consistency of any sort is respected.

My own position is rather strengthened than weakened by today's developments, and I imagine Greenough himself is somewhat at sea. Not only am I no sailor, and obviously no sailor, but I am not a physically muscular man. In the pursuit of English literature the wear and tear is on trouser seats rather than on muscles; in ten years my one annual physical orgy has been putting up the fly-screens each April.

I could no more strangle a man than I could bull-dog a steer.

And, unless Greenough is more beset with prejudices and theory than I think he is, he must know this. On only two points do I plead guilty, and there with reservations. For the murderer shows a knowledge of the countryside, not only equal to my own, but better. And Halliday says he got in to the car as would a man of middle life, rather than youth. I am middle-aged—if that be not the next period just ahead and never quite reached, until some day we waken to find that we have passed it in the night and are now old, and taking an ingenious pride in that age.

July 16.
I am facing an unusual quandary, which is: shall I or shall I not attend poor Carroway's funeral tomorrow?

There is an old theory—I would like to question Greenough about it, if I dared—that your true murderer has an avid curiosity as to the work of his hands; that, against all prudence, he returns to it. Under these circumstances, what shall I do?

Compromise, probably, send more flowers than I can afford, and stay at home. The same sort of compromise which I effected with my soul yesterday, when I gave Jane a rather larger amount than usual for the collection plate.

One of the reporters who has been hanging around the vicinity since the recovery of the body approached me today on a possible connection between the murder and the attack on Halliday.

He prefig me with polite questions, but I evaded him as well as I could. "But don't you, personally, believe there is some connection?" he insisted.

"I imagine you know at least as much about it as I do. Have you found any?"

"Perhaps my attitude had annoyed him, or perhaps he merely had the discoverer's pride in achievement, for he put away the handful of yellow paper on which he had made no notes, and smiled.

"I haven't found any connection," he said. "But I have found something your detectives missed, Mr. Porter. I have found where the fellow hid after the crash, when the other car was rescuing Mr. Halliday."

But the odd part of that discovery to my mind is not that hiding place. Nor Greenough's failure to locate it. As a matter of fact, I doubt if Greenough has ever looked for it. He seems to have taken for granted that Halliday's assailant merely escaped the wreck and made off in the dark.

No. The point that strikes me, and struck Halliday when I told him is the intimate knowledge of that location shown, and the quickness with which he took advantage of it.

Crossing the road, according to the reporter, and about fifteen feet from where the car was ditched, is a small culvert. Hardly a culvert, either, but a largish clay pipe designed to carry the drainage of the higher fields on one side to the lower on the other.

"Have you searched this pipe?" I asked.

"I looked in. If I'd had a pair of overalls I'd have gone in. But as the only clothes I have with me are on me—" he smiled again. "It's a good job for a ferret," he said.

He gave me up reluctantly, at last, and prepared to go.

"So you think it's only an ordinary case of holdup?" he asked.

"I think it's a d-d unpleasant case of holdup," I replied, and he went away. But I have been thinking of his phrase since his departure.

How much of the present world organization lies in that very use of the word "ordinary"? Time was when no holdup was ordinary, and an act of physical violence or a murder caused a shock that swept us all. It is true, then, that one cannot turn the minds of a people to killing, as in the recent war, and then expect them at once, when the crisis is over, to regard life as precious? And is this the reason Greenough spoke of its being a "queer time in the world?"

For the rest of this afternoon, I have made my will. "To my dearly beloved wife, Jane Porter, I bequeath, etc."

There is something strangely comforting in making a will; it is as if one has completed the last rites, and now, with such complacency as may be, faces whatever is to come. Like Ishmael in "Moby Dick," I survive myself; my death and burial are locked up in my desk. I am "like a quiet ghost with a clear conscience, sitting inside the bars of a snug family vault."

A ghost, too, I begin to feel, among other ghosts.

Ignore it as I will, there is a certain weight in the slowly accumulating mass of evidence at my disposal, a weight and a consistency which have commenced to influence me. I am bound to admit that, if I were able to conceive of the survival of intelligence beyond death, I could also conceive that poor old Horace has been on hand during some of our recent experiences.

Not Thomas "George," the spirit evoked by Mrs. Riggs and still surviving in the lamp; nor some malicious demon, frightening honest folk by ringing bells and pinching women in the dark. But a mind like my own, only greater in its wider knowledge, and painfully trying in its bodiless state to communicate that knowledge to me.

The sum total of evidence is rather startling.

(a) Jane's photograph, taken on class day.

(b) Jock's refusal to enter the main house, persisted in to this time.

(c) My own curious telepathic message, relative to the letter.

(d) Jane's experience under the red lamp in the pantry. (Doubtful.)

(e) Halliday's lights over the marsh. (Again doubtful. It may have been the unknown, finding the boathouse occupied and seeking a way to the beach.)

(f) My own experience in hearing Uncle Horace's peculiar cough and smelling the odor of his asthmatic pastilles, or e-cigarettes.

(g) Jock's peculiar conduct at the same time.

(h) Peter Geiss' vision on the sloop, and his identification of it. (Yet Peter is a staunch supporter of "George" and he has been looking for such a visitation would he not naturally have seen George?)

(i) And the fact that this vision corresponds in time with the attack on Halliday.

In this attempt to refresh my memory I have not included Jane's premonition the night Carroway was murdered, or her dislike and distrust of the house. Nor have I included the vague stories of haunting told by Mrs. Livingstone, Annie Cochran or Thomas. Of the latter, they are not only beyond my personal experience or contact, but they are, if the word may be used in such a connection, apparently without motive.

July 17.
I do not like young Gordon. He has little enough time to himself—only, I gather, an hour or so after luncheon while Mr. Bethel sleeps—but he spends that here, if possible.

Edith snubs him, but he is as thick-skinned as one of the porpoises which rolls itself in the bay.

"Why, if you're so clever," I overheard her today, "don't you go out and do something? Use your brains." "It takes brains to do what I'm doing," he said, "and don't you forget it."

But as to what he is doing he is discreetly silent. There is a book under way, but he parries any attempt to discuss it. Also, he seems to delight in investing Mr. Bethel with a considerable amount of mystery.

"The boss is having one of his fits today," he will say.

"What sort of fits?"

"That would be telling," he says craftily, and ostentatiously changes the subject.

Edith, who has a very feminine curiosity, has questioned Annie Cochran but without much result. The "fit" days, so far as we can make out, are merely days when the invalid is less well than others, and mostly keeps his bed. Annie Cochran, however, has her own explanation of them; she believes that those days follow nights when "George" has been particularly active, and when presumably Mr. Bethel has not been sleeping on his good ear.

And as proof of this, she produces the fact that twice now, having left her tea-kettle empty on top of the stove, she has found it full in the morning. As Mr. Bethel cannot get downstairs unassisted, and as the secretary has always stoutly maintained that he has not left his room all night, Annie Cochran falls back on "George"; and, one must admit, not without reason.

Poor Carroway was laid away yesterday, after the largest funeral in the history of these parts. And so ends one chapter in our drama. Ends, that is, for him. What is to come after none can say.

One thing has tended somewhat to relieve the local strain. No sheep have been killed for eighteen days, and the avar in the field still remains without oblation. There are, I believe, one or two summer people who still make it the objective of an early morning excursion, hoping to find on it who knows what horrid sacrifice. But they have only their walk for their pains.

Maggie Morrison, who passes it every morning in her truck, makes a daily report of it to Clara, and so it filters to the family.

It is Maggie, too, who brings us much of our local news. Today, for instance, she informs us that the detective has gone away, "bag and baggage," from the hotel, and probably this accounts for the lighter tone of his entries. I am relieved, at least until some other sheep are killed.

Later: Halliday and I, late this afternoon, made an examination of the culvert, or pipe, in which our unknown hid after the accident. We must have presented a curious study for any observer, working with guilty haste, and I in particular emerging from the pipe, covered with mud and a heterogeneous collection of leaves and grasses. Not only was Halliday too broad in the shoulders for easy access, but his injury forbade the necessary gymnastics. There was a time when, half in and half out of the pipe, I could hear him laughing consumedly.

The Recovery of the Body Has Roused the Neighborhood to Fever Heat.

There have been those, up to now, who have half-believed that Carroway had been the victim of an accident; had somehow stumbled and fallen overboard, and to prove this they brought out the fact that, like many of the men on the waterside, he could not swim.

There were others, too, who still inclined to the belief that some supernatural influence had been at work; that Carroway, indeed, had been the victim of some other-world toy play. But even these superstitious folk can not now blame the red lamp. Carroway has been murdered, by hands

HOMECOMING AND FOURTH OF JULY

Let's all get together to make this the best 4th of July Celebration ever staged in Charlevoix County and the warmest Homecoming that East Jordan has ever had.

"THE BANK ON THE CORNER"

WARNING TO USERS OF CITY WATER

The hours for the use of city water for sprinkling purposes are from 6:00 to 8:00 a. m. and 6:00 to 8:00 p. m., eastern standard time.

All persons violating this ordinance are subject to penalty.

HENRY W. COOK, Chief of Police.

WARNING TO AUTOISTS

A number of drivers in and around East Jordan are running their cars on the highway at night with only one headlight burning. This is in violation of the State law, as both lights must show. Please take warning and avoid trouble.

HENRY W. COOK, Under Sheriff.

Curfew Calls for Quiet

The curfew tolls more than the knell of parting day in the Swiss canton of Berne. It rings at eleven o'clock in summer and nine in winter to warn motorists that the householders want to sleep and that heavy trucks, vehicles carrying more than eight passengers and motorcycles should scurry for their garages and remain until 4 a. m.

Racial Finger Prints

By finger prints the world's races can be roughly classified into west European, Italian, Indian, Japanese and Manchurian, recent investigations have shown, according to Popular Science Monthly. Prints of persons of the same race are similar. This may help eventually to perfect the specific classification and subdivision of races.

Briefs of the Week

Miss Alta Shaw visited relatives at Detroit last week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Burbanks, a daughter, June 23rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Orvie Gunsolus were Flint and Detroit visitors this week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hitchcock spent the week-end with relatives at Grayling.

Anyone wanting Buns for the 4th, leave orders at East Jordan Pastry Shop. adv.

Miss Aura McBride is home from Martin, Mich., where she has been teaching school.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Clark made a motor trip to Manistique and the Soo first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ruhling are at Jackson this week for a visit with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brackett and son, of Detroit, are here this week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bennett.

About twenty ladies of the East Jordan Rebekah Lodge attended a District Convention at Charlevoix last Thursday.

Miss Emma Beyer is expected home this week from Traverse City for a two-weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beyer.

Mrs. Grover Moore and daughter, Lois, of Detroit, are here for an extended visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Webster.

Misses Doris Hayden, Ruth Gregory and Virginia Pray, who have taught school the past year at Detroit are home for their vacation.

Joseph Cummins motored to Flint last Sunday. His daughter, Mrs. R. A. Harrington and children accompanied him home for a visit.

Miss Evangeline Nice was at Petoskey first of the week where she had her tonsils removed, and is spending the week at their cottage at Hayden Point.

Mrs. Joe Kenny was at Cheboygan first of the week to visit Mrs. Lyle, who is very ill with pneumonia. Mrs. Lyle was a former resident of East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cox, and Mrs. Alice Joynt with sons, Gilbert and Thomas, left Monday for Rapid City, where they will remain during the resort season.

Mrs. George Plimley is here from Three Rivers, Mich., to spend the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Beulah Walton. Mrs. Plimley is cooking at the White Star Restaurant.

The following students who have been attending Ferris Institute at Big Rapids arrived home this week: Fern Gidley, Lydia Beyer, Olga Schultz, and Gregory Boswell.

H. C. Blount and daughter, Miss Lydia, left by motor for a visit with relatives at Chicago. From there they will make a trip to Denver, Colo., and other Western points.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hickinbottom with son, Carl, and daughter, Miss Emma, of Verona, Pa., were here this week visiting at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. W. R. Painter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Corneil and son Leon, and Miss Evelyn Mitchell, are here from Lansing for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gould, and other relatives and friends in this vicinity.

Wrestling and fighting polar bears are one of the unusual wild animal features with John Robinson's Circus, which will appear in this community within a few days. Theodore Schroeder, noted graduate of the Hagenbeck School in Germany, will subjugate a group of Siberian polar bears, the largest in captivity. As a climax to the act he will engage in a combat with four of the brutes.

The Robinson Circus performance will be found all new this season, from the massive opening spectacle, "King Solomon and Queen of Sheba" to the thrilling chariot races at the conclusion. An augmented menagerie with giraffes, hippopotami, lions, tigers, zebras, llamas, kangaroos, ostriches, bears, leopards, pumas and other rare and costly animals is also a feature.

Judge a USED CAR by the Integrity of the Dealer

Your Buick dealer's good reputation in the community is worth far more to him than the profit on any used car transaction.

He is the head of an established business and he knows that to get more business, he must please his present customers.

He carries a representative stock of used cars, including both used Buicks and cars of other makes—and he represents them honestly.

You're sure of a square deal when you buy from the Buick dealer. He stands back of the used cars he sells.

But I found nothing, save that undoubtedly some one had preceded me into it. A man skilled in such matters might have read a story into the various marks and depressions, but they were not for me.

The net result of the search was not encouraging. True, Halliday picked up, outside the pipe, half of the lens of an eye-glass, but there is no proof that it belonged to his assailant. On the other hand, I myself had made a discovery of a certain amount of importance. Halliday had said that the man he had picked up had seemed to be a heavy man, broadly and squarely built.

But my experience showed me that no very heavy man could have entered the pipe. We have, in effect, to recast our picture of the murderer; a man of medium size, we will say, compactly if muscularly built.

Tonight, sitting down to make this entry, I have missed my fountain pen, and as it has my initials on it we must recover it tomorrow if possible. It would be extremely unpleasant under the circumstances for Starr, for instance, in a burst of zeal to find it in the pipe.

True, Peter Geiss could swear that at the moment Halliday was attacked he and I were looking for a ghost in the fore-rigging of the sloop. But I am at this disadvantage, that they give me no opportunity to defend myself, for they make no accusation. Their method is that damnable one of watchful waiting; Greenough's psychological idea that, given enough rope, a criminal will hang himself.

July 18.
Edith and Halliday went this morning to recover my fountain pen. Edith in spite of our protests determined to crawl into the pipe for it. To this end she put on my mechanic's overall in which I oil and grease my car, and very sweet indeed she looked in it.

But the pen was not there. She rounded the cap of it, embedded in the mud, but not the pen itself. It looks as though Starr has lost no time! Edith, I believe, suspects something. There is a growing gravity and maturity in her; she tries to show me by small caresses and attentions, that she believes in me and loves me. But she knows that there is something wrong.

And she has, I think, quarreled with Halliday. There was nothing on the surface to show it, on their return today, but he declined her invitation to luncheon and went off, whistling rather ostentatiously, to his bacon and beans at the boat-house. This afternoon, while Mr. Bethel slept, she accepted young Gordon's invitation to go canoeing, and had the audacity to take the canoe, so to speak, from under poor Halliday's nose. According to Jane, she needs a good shaking.

There is, I understand, no definite engagement between them.

I must not forget to enter that Halliday last night believes he saw the red lamp burning, in the den behind the library of the main house. He told me the details this morning as he waited for Edith to don my overalls. It was his first night, after his accident, at the boathouse, and he could not sleep.

The recent performances of Jole Ray of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, in winning the marathon run from New York city to Long Beach, L. I., in the remarkable time of 2:34:18 2-5, and the capture of the special ten-mile race at Malden, Mass. not only makes Jole a certainty for the American Olympic team but also strengthens this country's chances in an event in which it has been weak for years.

"I had a good bit of pain," he said, "and at one o'clock I got up and went outside. There was a sort of dull red light coming from the windows of the library of the other house, and I watched it for awhile. It was extremely faint, and at first I thought it might be a fire; then, as it didn't grow any, I saw it must be a light of some sort."

He knew the stories of the red lamp, but he also knew I had locked it away, so after a time he started up toward the house. He was about half way up the lawn when it went out, suddenly, and left him staring.

But he was curious, and he went on. He made a complete circuit of the building, but there was no movement or sound from within, and so he turned and went back again. He believes the light was in the den, not the library, for he saw only a diffused reddish glare, as though it came from behind. He could not, through any of the three long French windows which open onto the terrace—see the source of that glare.

Here, then, is corroboration of my own impression of some few nights ago, but with a difference. For I saw the light itself, a momentary flash as though a breeze had for an instant pushed open the heavy curtains at the den windows, and then had let them fall again.

I am convinced that young Gordon has never seen the light, or he would have spoken of it. He is fluent enough about what he calls the "spooky" quality of the house. It is unlikely that Mr. Bethel, imprisoned in his upper room, can have any knowledge of it. Yet here we have two dispassionate observers, seeing at different times and under different circumstances, a light apparently of spontaneous origin and no known cause.

July 19.
A sudden and terrifying storm outside. Above the howling of the wind I can hear the surf beating against the shore. Halliday reports, over the telephone, that the float is in danger and that the runway has broken loose. But there is nothing to do. I have just been out, and I do not propose to be soaked again.

(Note: The approach of the storm had made Jane very nervous, and I had driven in to Doctor Hayward's for a sleeping medicine for her.)

Jock is as bad as Jane, and should have a narcotic also! He is moving uneasily from place to place, now and then emitting a dismal howl, and Clara is sitting forlornly at the foot of the staircase, under the impression that it is the only place free from metal in the house, and thus less likely to attract the lightning.

It is indeed a night for dark deeds. And for dark thoughts.

I wonder if I have any justification for my suspicions? Why should Hayward, preparing to go out to an obstetric case, start me along a new and probably unjustified line of thought? Surely, of all men in the world, he has the best right to carry ether. I must be careful not to do as Greenough has done, allow my necessity for finding the guilty man to run away with my judgment.

And yet, in spite of myself, I cannot help feeling that Hayward fulfills many of the requirements. He alone, of all the people hereabout, is free to move about the country at night without suspicion. He knew Uncle Horace "as well as anybody." He is—and God forgive me if I am wrong—enough of a sailor to know and use the half-hitch.

There are other points, also. He is about my age, if anything older, but he is a muscular man. And he is, like all general practitioners in the country, by way of being a surgeon also. He would know how to find the jugular vein of a sheep.

"In all earnestness I appeal to you to consider the enormity of the deed, wrote poor old Horace, more than a year ago. But while killing sheep is unpleasant, even sad, there is no particular enormity in it. I pass by a lot of spring-time lamb without considering that a tragedy lies behind it. The murder of Carroway, too, cannot come under the strictures of that letter; it was done as a matter of protection.

Nearest of all to the possibilities suggested by the letter comes the attack on Halliday, and if the sheep killer did that, why not have put his devilish symbol on the car during that silent ride of a mile before he prepared to strike?

Why have crept in later and done it? But here again—the doctor had access to the car, after Greenough had examined it. He went in alone, according to Clara, and was there some time.

Was it, then, the doctor's typewriter which wrote the cipher over which Halliday has been puzzling? The GeLTr. K. 28?

July 20.
Maggie Morrison disappeared last night; disappeared as completely as though she had been wiped from the face of the earth by the storm.

Livingstone telephoned me the facts at seven this morning, and Halliday and I took the car and went over. We have been out with the searching party all day, but without result.

Tonight the search is still going on. Starr has sworn in more deputies, and the entire countryside is aroused. Jane has been ill all day, and has kept her bed.

July 21.
No trace of the unfortunate girl to-night, and all hope of finding her alive is slowly being abandoned.

I can now record such facts as we know, relative to the mystery. The girl went in to Oakville yesterday to do some shopping, and remained for dinner with Thomas and his wife. In spite of Thomas' prophecy of a storm she insisted on staying over for a moving picture, and it was therefore ten-thirty when, alone in the farm truck, she started out of town.

Nothing more is known of her movements, save that she got as far as the Hiburn road, about two hundred yards beyond the Livingstones' gate. The truck was found there yesterday morning at daylight by an early laborer on the Morrison farm, who, however, thought that she had abandoned it there during the storm the night before, and neglected to report it.

At the farm house itself there was no uneasiness, as the family supposed the girl remained in town. But when the hour came for her to start with her milk delivery, and she had not arrived, inquiries were set on foot.

The truck shows no signs of any struggle, and that robbery was not the motive of whatever has happened is shown by the fact that the missing girl's pocketbook was found behind the seat of the truck, where she usually placed it.

Greenough and the sheriff were on the ground when we got there, as well as a small knot of country folk, kept at a distance by a deputy or two, and already a small posse, hastily recruited, was beating the wood nearby. Such clues as there may have been, however, had been obliterated by the storm. There is no trace of the dreaded symbol in chalk.

THE MODERN GIRL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

GIRLS are different from what they once were. The first thing we know some girl will take into her head that she will look well in the Presidential chair, and she will pull the strings and play her cards to get the job. Girls didn't run for office when I was young. Sometimes the fellows gave them an unimportant place that no else seemed to care for. It was a courtesy, however, a concession to the weaker sex. It simply showed how generous and warm-hearted we were. Girls modestly and shyly sat back in the corner and waited until they were asked or brought forward. They were never so rude as to take the initiative.

It is not that way now. What a girl wants these days she goes after. She looks out for number one. She is practical and capable and aggressive and is quite capable of looking after her own interests. She runs for office—any office in fact that she gets her eyes on—and she makes campaign speeches. She doesn't exactly pass out the cigars and set up the drinks—she hasn't got that far yet, but she does hand out the apple sauce, and she gets you into a corner and asks you to vote for her in such a forceful way that there is no resisting her. She takes the lead now where once she sat in the corner and waited for the fellows to come round.

She's tremendously capable. Ethel is teaching school in a country town a hundred miles away and was invited down to a formal party in our town and Nancy asked her to stay with us. She thought her party gown was quite all right until she looked it over just before packing it in the collar box in which she was bringing her togs, and then she saw that it wouldn't do at all. It was too short and too regular around the bottom so she stopped in Bloomington on the way and bought some material. She got in about noon, designed and cut out the gown and had it made, beautifully made too, before dinner time. It had no home-made look, either. I assure you it might have come from Worth's or Susanna's shop. That's the way girls do things now.

I read a letter from Harriet a few nights ago. She's up in Duluth running a tea room and doing very well. Harriet is twenty-four, and so far has escaped male entanglements of any serious sort. She has had no desire to settle down, and cultivate the domestic life. She is beginning to feel differently and things are likely to happen.

"I met a man when I was down in St. Louis in September visiting Susan," she wrote, "and how I did fall for him! He's six feet tall and has black hair."—Harriet's hair is red—"and wonderful manners. He's shy; just getting started in law, and isn't keen at this moment to marry. I'm going back in a month and work on him."

Poor man! He hasn't a chance.

Expressive Mouth
The mouth, apparently, is the most expressive feature of the face. In the psychological laboratory of Johns Hopkins university, photographs showing various emotions were taken, and cut so that the eyes and mouth were separated. More students were able to define the emotion by the mouth half than by the upper part.

Eyes as Delicacies
The eyes of various fish and animals are relished as articles of diet in many parts of the world. Fish eyes are considered a great delicacy in the West Indies, where boiled salmon eyes are a favorite dish in northeastern Asia. The eyes of sheep are a popular food with some of the peoples of Asia Minor.
