Tourists Worth Half Billion

MILLION AND QUARTER CAR PARTIES FROM OUT OF STATE LEAVE WEALTH.

Grand Rapids, Oct. 5.—Tourists spend $500,000,000 annually in Michigan, the twelfth Western Michigan Tourist and Resort Association was told here by President Carrol F. Sweet.

Sweet said that 1,250,000 cars from outside visited Michigan during the past season, and urged that the Association take definite steps to lengthen the tourist season "on both ends."

Special emphasis should be placed on keeping visitors coming after Labor Day, other speakers said, pointing to campaigns already started in Newaygo and Muskegon counties where an automobile festival and tour has been scheduled for Oct. 10, 11 and 12.

The Association selected Miss Verena Sweet, of Muskegon Heights, as "Autumn Queen" for this festival and named five maids of honor. They were Misses Jean Monroe, Fremont; Dorothy Vanness, Newaygo; Emily Halby, Muskegon; Fern Bearss of Grant and Geneva McKinley, White Cloud.

Minnesota and Wisconsin are just beginning to get into the resort field, and the competition with Michigan is becoming stronger each year, Wm. D. McJunkin, a Chicago advertising man, warned.

Malcolm Bayley, of the Kentucky Press Association, who has spent many vacations in Michigan, suggested "bigger and better" golf courses as a big attraction for tourists.

The Association will ask the next legislature for $400,000 for a two year advertising program for Michigan.

SPORTSMEN SWING TO HOOVER AND GREEN

Lansing, Oct. 8.—Michigan sportsmen are taking an active part in the campaign for the State and National Republican tickets in Michigan this fall because both Mr. Hoover and Governor Fred W. Green are well known to them as conservationists.

At the request of scores of sportsmen in various parts of the State Hoover-Green clubs are to be organized among them, and A. D. Vandervoort of Lansing, former star football player at Michigan State College, has been named State chairman for the organization of these clubs.

Mr. Vandervoort is now sending out letters to sportsmen in various parts of the State, telling of the demand among them for the organization of the clubs, and enlisting them in the Republican fight.

"There never has been a time when the cause of conservation is more at stake than in the present campaign," said Mr. Vandervoort today.

"Mr. Hoover, as a member of the Coolidge and Harding cabinets, has done more for conservation in this country than all other public officials who have held his office. He understands the fundamental problems of conservation, and if he is elected in November, this country will make more rapid progress in the conservation of our natural resources during the next 4 years than we have in the last quarter of a century.

"Governor Green, the candidate for Governor, is too well known to Michigan sportsmen, to need introduction. Since he became Governor two years ago, Governor Green has endeavored to first give this State a constructive conservation program, and then carry it out. Some of the sportsmen of Michigan may not agree with everything the State department of conservation is doing, but none will say that Michigan has not made great strides in conservation during the last two years, and that the outlook under Governor Green is exceedingly bright.

It is estimated that there are more than 750,000 hunters and fishermen in Michigan. Each year 500,000 small game licenses are issued. This fall the conservation department predicts there will be more than 65,000 deer hunters in the woods, and the number of fishermen is well above the 500,000 mark.

HAS A WELL-ORDERED HOUSE HOLD.

Children are carefully guarded in the well-ordered home of Mrs. Nancy Mather, Richmond, Ohio. She says: "The children and I had colds. We all began coughing but Foley's Honey and Tar Compound quickly stopped that and coughs and colds soon disappeared. We keep a reserve bottle of 'Foley's' on hand for just such emergencies." No opiates, safe, reliable, effective both for children and grown persons. Try it.—Hite's Drug Store, adv.

If some people were to speak their minds it wouldn't take them very long.

BUSINESS MEN ENTERTAIN WIVES AND TEACHERS

The East Jordan Business Men's Club entertained their wives and the teachers of our public schools at a banquet at the Russell Hotel, Wednesday evening of this week.

About 75 covers were laid. The School Orchestra furnished music for the occasion, and Song-leader Snelenberger, with Miss McElwain at the piano, led the assemblage in a number of songs. Rev. C. W. Sidebotham was toastmaster. Short talks were given by Mrs. W. H. Sloan on behalf of the ladies present, Mr. Coher, athletic instructor of our schools, and others.

The address of the evening was given by Hon. Farm. C. Gilbert, Circuit Court Judge. Mr. Gilbert took for his theme the value of the small town community life versus that of the cities, accentuating the value of the former toward the up-building of our citizenship.

OFFER USE OF BOOKS FOR WINTER READING

East Lansing, Oct. 9th.—In making plans for passing the long evenings of the winter season, farmers and their families should not neglect the opportunity of obtaining reading matter offered for loan by the Michigan State College library.

The material offered to the farmer and his family contains discussions on both agricultural and home economics subjects. This material is set apart in the so-called package loan library and may be obtained on request.

A list of subjects will be sent to any one interested who will request the list from the Reference Librarian, M. S. C., East Lansing.

Patrons will be asked to pay only the mailing cost, and any of the subject matter can be held for 4 weeks. The offer is limited to residents of Michigan.

Local leaders of home economics extension groups will find much of his material serviceable in their work, is said. Farmers clubs and other rural organizations will find it valuable for use in studies of rural problems. The material is in pamphlet form and the mailing costs will be small.

A survey conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture shows that rural people are not behind city dwellers in the amount of reading done, but that the farmer spends most of their reading during the winter.

Nutting Season Now On

State News in Brief

Saline—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Layher, Sr., of Saline, recently observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Constantine—The Constantine flour mill, built in 1877, burned recently, at an estimated loss of $16,000. The origin of the fire is undetermined.

Grand Rapids—Oil in small quantities was found at a depth of 225 feet in a well being sunk by the Mid-Continent company two miles south of Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids—Helen Murphy, 6 years old, daughter of Patrick Murphy, died of injuries suffered when struck by Toftick Chacra's automobile. In the accident, the girl's leg was torn from her body.

Owosso—John Fulton, 72 years old, a Morrice farmer, is in the Memorial Hospital here with several ribs, one arm and his collar bone broken as the result of falling out of a hickory nut tree. He was shaking nuts from the tree.

Albion—Officials of the Michigan Eastern railway shops reported that two tons of copper wire was stolen from the company's warehouse one night recently. Apparently the load was carried away on a huge truck. Officers are looking for the thieves.

St. Clair—Anglers are reporting large catches of pickerel and perch in the St. Clair River and Lake. "The run is at its height for this season and anyone using the proper baits can catch the limit almost any day," is the word fishermen are passing on.

Elkton—Cecil Thompson, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Thompson, Elkton farmer, is dead, as the result of the accidental discharge of a shotgun by Tony Cherry, 6 years old. The two boys were playing with the shotgun, which Tony had taken from his home without his father's knowledge.

Elk Rapids—Wounds received when struck by the discharge of a shotgun in the hands of a fellow hunter caused Seaman Beebe, of this city, to submit to the amputation of his right leg. Beebe's companion fell from a log in the Torch River marshes, striking his gun against a tree and causing it to explode.

Pontiac—Attempting to drive an automobile without a steering wheel cost Dale Herron, 20 years old, 15 days liberty when he pleaded guilty in municipal court to reckless driving. Herron was stopped by Detective Mapley when his car was noticed zigzagging across Telegraph road. Investigation revealed that he was driving with only the steering column.

The average man is usually so glad to get home from a reception that he is glad he went.

Bad Girl Freshies Taken for a Ride

Freshman girls of the University of Cincinnati have a hard time of it these days. Any infraction of the rules and they are given a ride in the county dog catcher's wagon. Here's a load of the fair coeds ready to start their jaunt.

SEPTEMBER REPORT CHARLEVOIX CO. DAIRY HERD ASS'N

Twenty-four herds with a total of 252 cows were tested during September. The average production was 589 lbs. milk, and 24 lbs. butterfat per cow.

One separator tested above .06% making a loss of $1.38 per month.

Small Herd Class—High herds in the small herd class were Walter Heileman, first, with 715 lbs. milk and 36.5 lbs. butterfat per cow. James Nice, second, with 526 lbs. milk and 28 lbs. butterfat.

Medium Size Herd Class—Guy Eppler was first, 685 lbs. milk, 30.8 lbs. butterfat. Second, Oakley Saunders, 711 lbs. milk, 30.4 lbs. butterfat.

Large Herd Class—First, Orchard Bay Farm, 896 lbs. milk, 31.2 lbs. butterfat. Second, Wm. Withers, 684 lbs. milk, 24.4 lbs. butterfat.

High cows in the two year old class, Walter Heileman, first, a grade Guernsey, 879 lbs. milk, 55.5 lbs. of butterfat, he also had second, with 765 lbs. milk, 45.9 lbs. butterfat. Bert Elliott, third, 870 lbs. milk, 43.5 lbs. butterfat.

Three year old class, Orchard Bay Farm, first, 1263 lbs. milk, 568 lbs. butterfat. Guy Eppler second 1039 lbs. milk, 490 lbs. butterfat. Oakley Saunders, third, 720 lbs. milk, 38.2 lbs. butterfat.

Four year old class, Orchard Bay Farm, 1532 lbs. milk, 57.0 lbs. butterfat, also second with 1050 lbs. milk, 45.2 lbs. butterfat. Guy Eppler, 3rd, 1182 lbs. milk, 45.0 lbs. butterfat.

Above four years old, Orchard Bay 1st, 2nd and 3rd, with pure bred Holsteins, 1491 lbs. milk, 53.7 lbs. butterfat, 1445 lbs. milk, 52.2 lbs. butterfat, 1500 lbs. milk, 51.0 lbs. butterfat.

Most members have home grown grains to mix with the commercial feeds now, so it is reasonable to expect the cows to do better now for some time. Alfalfa is cheap too, so a liberal feed doesn't cost much. Silage with lots of corn helps the cows to do better.

G. A. BEDELL, Tester.

Grand Rapids—Jewelry and other valuables appraised at more than $500, all of which had been stolen by a burglar who had entered a number of homes here, were contained in a package left one night at the door of the Third Precinct Police Station. The burglar, who is believed to have opened and to have decided to turn the loot over to the police, had fled before the package was discovered.

Shelby—Samuel Odell, of Shelby, chairman of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission, is the owner of the new champion 3-year-old Jersey cow of Michigan, according to an announcement by the American Jersey Cattle Club. Fauvie Golden Rostelle became the new champion by producing 584.18 pounds of butter fat and 11,753 pounds of milk in 305 days. She replaces Golden Rose, a stablemate.

Grand Ledge—The Rev. Samuel Tollard, 72 years old, of Melstone, Mont., who came here to attend the Presbyterian Church homecoming at Onalda recently, dropped dead of heart disease as he completed the sermon he had worked weeks to prepare for this event. Mr. Tollard held his first pastorate at Onalda in 1881-1884. His body was laid to rest in the yard of the little church where he preached his first and his last sermons.

Manistee—Ellis Kott, 31 years old, Manistee garage owner, is dead of injuries received when his automobile was hit by a passenger train on the Manistee and Northeastern railway, one night recently. Kott was unconscious when taken from the wreckage of his car and never regained consciousness. His wife, daughter, Dolores, 8 years old, and son, Jack, 2 years old, were seriously injured. A heavy fog prevented Kott seeing the approaching train, it is believed.

Republic—Deer have become so common in the Upper Peninsula that they are a menace to the automobile driver. Lawrence Tucker, Iron Mountain newspaperman, was injured when the car he was driving ran into the ditch near here and turned over twice after striking a deer. Tucker was unaccompanied. He was taken to a hospital suffering from a gash on the temple. Tucker was rounding a curve when two deer darted across the road so suddenly the driver was unable to avoid a collision.

Grand Rapids—Obbie Bergsma, a west side barber, announced here that no more will he bob women's hair. He asked, does not the Bible state: "Doth not even nature itself teach you that if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him? But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her; for her hair is given to her for a covering." Bergsma, who is not a church member and professes no particular creed, expects the loss of 150 to 200 women customers to be met somewhat by increased business from men who prefer a snag shop.

The New Paper Money

NEW SIZE "BILLS" TO BE ISSUED IN 1929.

With the advent of 1929, the new size of paper currency, smaller in size than the present bank notes, will be issued by the United States Government. The new size is 6 1/4 x 2 9/16 inches, and has been brought about in the interests of efficiency and economy. But, it will have many other advantages. The new "bills" will have new pictures on their faces and backs; they are printed by the intaglio method from specially engraved plates, chromium-plated; they will be easier to handle than the present size of bank notes, and they will be more difficult to counterfeit, or alter.

"Once the New Year arrives," said Alvin W. Hall, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, D. C., "tons of the new currency will move out of Washington by truck loads. When the banks request new currency, they will receive the new size, and the old notes will be taken out of circulation as fast as they come in."

The new size and designs of paper money are the result of years of careful planning, investigation and designing. According to Mr. Hall, it is the first "thought-out" money in the history of the Government. Heretofore, there has been no harmony, and many more varieties were printed than were necessary.

For example, the old $10 note; Five-designs were in circulation. One contained the portrait of A. J. Hendricks; one had the portrait of Michael Hillegas. (Neither men were well-known to the public.) Another had the portrait of Andrew Jackson; still another had that of William McKinley; the fifth pictured a buffalo with a humped back.

In the new line of bills, all this has been changed. All notes of each denomination will be practically alike. On the $10 note, for example, in place of five different pictures, each note will have the likeness of Alexander Hamilton on one side, and a picture of the Treasury Building on the other side.

The various issues of the notes will have only technical differences—denoting gold, silver, etc.—that are of no special interest to the public in general. These differences will be indicated by certain printed matter on the faces of the bills, and a difference in the seal that is put on after the regular printing has been done.

The main idea back of the new designs is that the picture of a famous man shall represent each denomination.

There are eleven denominations of paper money now in circulation. In the new currency, the $1 note will have the portrait of George Washington as at present. On the back appears "ONE" in large letters, making the note raisers task difficult. Jefferson's portrait is on the face of the $2 note while an engraving of Monticello is on the back. The new $5 note has the portrait of Lincoln on the face and a picture of the Lincoln Memorial on the back. The $20 note has Andrew Jackson's portrait on the face, and an engraving of the White House on the back. The $50 note has Grant's portrait on the face, and a picture of the Capitol on the back. The $100 note will have the portrait of Benjamin Franklin on the face, and likely, an engraving of Independence Hall on the back.

All the notes, up to the $100 bill, and except the $1 note, will have pictures of buildings on their backs, making it hard to pass $1 bills for higher notes by changing numbers. Above $100, the notes have beautiful ornate designs on their backs. The $500 note bears the likeness of McKinley; the $1,000 note has the portrait of Grover Cleveland; the $5,000 note has the portrait of Madison; and the $10,000 note that of Salmon Chase.

NOWLAND HILL
(Edited by Mrs. C. M. Nowland)

Conn Nowland of Nine Mile Point spent the week end at the home of his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Small of Topno-bee spent the week end with her cousin, Mrs. James Simmons, who was here over a week from Detroit at their farm, and visiting old friends. Mr. and Mrs. James Simmons expected to move back to the farm, but he got a job in Flint, where they will make their home, having bought a lot and getting a house built on it.

Mrs. S. R. Nowland and Mrs. Ray Nowland visited Mrs. John Martin, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Darius Shaw of Rock Elm, and John Marvin, the Rawleigh man were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Nowland.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Nowland and son attended Pomona Grange at Barnard, Saturday evening, Oct. 6th.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Trojanek and sons of East Jordan were Wednesday evening visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Nowland. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hardy and children of Afton were Sunday supper guests of her uncle, Sam Nowland and wife.

Mrs. Albert Nowland and daughter Mrs. Omar Scott of Boyne City plan on leaving Saturday evening for a week's visit at Detroit at the homes of her brother, Gug Billings, daughter Mrs. Emerson Collins, and grandson, Richard Collins.

Muscular inactivity is the parent of much ill health.

An ounce of flattery is worth more than a ton of tombstone obituary.

Bacterial Canker Is Danger of Tomatoes

Wise Plan to Avoid Old Seed Beds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Bacterial canker of tomatoes, which has been known as "the Grand Rapids disease," from the locality in Michigan where it was first observed in 1910, has since been reported from many regions including the Far South and West. It may appear either in the fields or in greenhouses and damage may range from negligible injury to such complete destruction of the crop as to cause serious economic loss to growers. Mary K. Bryan, of the bureau of plant industry, recommends thorough sterilization of tomato seed as a control method. The disease is believed to have been scattered also by the shipment of young plants which do not show infection at that stage of growth.

In Circular No. 29-C, "Bacterial Canker of Tomatoes," just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, this author gives a brief history of the disease, discusses its economic importance and describes the appearance of diseased plants as distinguished from those affected with other tomato wilts.

The bacteria which cause the disease enter the fruit through the stem, without external signs of injury, and infect the seed. When cut open the fruit shows yellow discoloration but no rot. Sources of infection aside from the seed, especially seed bed and plant bed infection, are being studied. "From all points of view," the author remarks, "it is wisest to avoid old seed beds, to use only clean, fresh soil in growing tomato plants, and to rotate crops where the disease has occurred."

Tomato growers may procure Circular 29-C by applying to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Means by Which Potato
Wart Fungus Is Spread

Some of the means by which the potato wart fungus is disseminated are discussed in Technical Bulletin 56-T, "Factors of Spread and Repression in Potato Wart," a new publication just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The viability of the fungus in the soil and under various conditions of artificial storage is also discussed. New data are presented on the resistance of the resting sporangia to moist and dry heat, and to such fungicides as mercuric chloride and formaldehyde as used in seed potato disinfection.

It is shown that the restrictions on the growing of any but immune varieties of potatoes within the area quarantined on account of wart, and on the movement of any potatoes whatsoever out of these areas, have apparently prevented the disease from spreading.

As no resistant varieties of potatoes have been found, the continued culture of potatoes in wart-infested areas may result in perpetuation of the wart fungus. However, further experiments are necessary to determine this and the period of survival of the fungus in the soil under natural conditions.

A copy of the bulletin, which is primarily of interest to plant pathologists, may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Profitable to Dispose of All Two-Year-Olds

After a number of tests for tuberculosis in poultry flocks, the Nebraska state department of agriculture and the agricultural college recommended that poultry, excepting for valuable breeding stock on poultry farms, be disposed of at two years of age or less. The practice will not only help control the disease, but it will also help increase the profits of the farm poultry business. Most hens pass their most profitable production period during their second year.

If poultry raisers will follow this suggestion and then raise their chicks by artificial means on ground where chickens have not run to any extent, avian tuberculosis can be very nearly stamped out in every state, and the poultry business can become still more profitable at the same time. As individual hens quit laying for the season in the spring, they should be disposed of immediately. The practice will not only save feed, but it will clean up the place so the young stock will have plenty of room next fall and winter. Poultry prices also generally go down during the summer and the hens marketed early will bring more per pound.

Adding Alfalfa Meal to Mash Ration Is Favored

The agricultural experiment stations throughout the country have shown that alfalfa leaves and high grade alfalfa meal are rich in mineral and have a relatively high vitamin A content. The vitamin A content prevents a disease similar to roup and is conducive to better hatches.

The addition of 10 per cent of alfalfa meal to the mash ration does not seem to make too much fiber. This is especially true if the alfalfa meal is allowed to replace a portion of the bran. Second or third cutting alfalfa may be fed to chickens with a minimum of waste by placing it in racks that are made of poultry netting.

STARTING EARLY

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I believe it was Frank who organized the baseball team among the boys of his community when he was thirteen and who captained it. He began to show leadership very early. He was the first to start playing marbles in the spring, and the most enthusiastic, and he opened up the work in football among the juniors in the fall. Athletically Frank got an early start.

I believe, too, that he was president of the organization which opened up the soft drink emporium on the vacant lot across from his house. The parlor consisted of a store box fenced about with narrow boards covered with gay tissue paper. Frank acted as treasurer, also, having pretty largely financed the enterprise at the beginning, bringing in the other fellows as they were able to furnish business or financial aid. He told me that the business flourished during the heated months. As the weather grew cooler in the fall, the soft drink parlor was metamorphosed into a news stand. It was an early start in business administration, but I am sure that this beginning will have its beneficial effects twenty years from now upon Frank's business efficiency. He has learned how to organize a business, how to buy economically, and how to save and invest his money.

It is in church that Frank has attracted my attention most. He sits in the same pew every Sunday, alert and attentive. He seems to understand what the minister is saying even when it is more fully applicable to older persons than to himself. I never see him laughing and carrying on a whispered conversation with the other boys during the service. He keeps his mind on what is being said. He is reverent and serious looking. He follows the responsive reading, he takes part in the singing, he bows his head during the prayer—in fact he plays the religious game as seriously and as enthusiastically as he goes in for athletics and business.

Some day Frank is likely to be the best athlete in school because he has a good body and he has interest in physical development and physical skill, and he is learning how to develop these to the best advantage. I would not be surprised if, when he got to college, he went in for a business training, for even now he seems to be developing a keen business sense. He is making his own spending money and every Sunday I notice that when the collection plate is passed, he drops in his weekly contribution.

I am sure that twenty years from now he will be a leader in the church, for the religious habits which he is so early forming, he will not be able to break. He will be president of the board of trustees very likely. When there is need of raising money to build a new church or to add to the old one it will be Frank who will be called on to manage things. There is nothing like beginning early.

NIGHT COUGHS QUICKLY RELIEVED.

Coughs and colds usually grow worse at nightfall. Most coughing is caused by an irritation of the throat or bronchial tubes, which continued coughing only aggravates. Such coughs are quickly stopped and controlled by Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Hold the dose for a time, low in the throat as for a gargle, then swallow. Relief follows at once. Effective alike for children and grown-up persons. Try it.—Hite's Drug Store, adv.

They turned a possible ally into an angry and dangerous enemy; the rejection of the proposition, with the threat which accompanied it, left Cameron stripped before the world as an enemy to society. He went home and brooded over it.

"But he couldn't let it rest at that," Halliday says. "He went back. And the old man was at his desk. There was danger in Cameron that night, and the poor old chap, was frightened. We'll say he crumpled his letter up in his hand, and Cameron didn't see it. Maybe there was an argument and Cameron knocked him down. But he got up again, and he managed to drop the letter into an open drawer; after that, his heart failed, and he fell for good."

"We acquit him of that. Of the others—"

We are, with regard to the underlying motive, the so-called experiments, again obliged to resort to surmise. We know, for instance, of Cameron's early experiments in weighing the body before and immediately after death. He has himself recorded them. But in the manuscript of his book he distinctly states his belief that the vital principle, whatever that may be, is weakened by long illness, and his belief that those who pass over suddenly out of full health, are more able to manifest themselves.

He quotes numerous instances of murdered men, whom tradition believes to have returned for motives of vengeance. But he himself believes that this ability to return is due to the strength of the unweakened vital principle. The whole spirit, he calls it. And although his manuscript in itself does not deal with any discoveries he may have made during the summer, there are accompanying it certain pages of figures which seem to prove that he made more than one experiment along those lines during his occupancy of the house.

What waifs and strays he picked up on those night journeys of his we do not know; poor wanderers, probably, with no place in the world from which they could be missed.

At the same time, Halliday feels that the experiments were not necessarily to be with life and death; he suggests that they were to lie, rather, in deep narcosis, pushed to the danger point, and that it was under this narcosis that Maggie Morrison, for one, succumbed.

Among Cameron's papers, later on we found a curious document entitled "The Reality of the Soul Through a Study of the Effects of Chloroform and 'Warri-on-the-Animal Economy,'" with the note in Cameron's hand:

"The soul and the body are separated by the agency of anesthesia. The soul is not a breath, but an entity."

Of the nature of the further tests made we have no idea. Halliday believes that, shown the space behind the wall by Horace Porter, he later utilized it to conceal such apparatus as he used in his experiments.

"It seemed to be full of stuff," he says, "the night I found it."

But later on, as the chase narrowed, he got rid of it bit by bit at night, probably throwing it into the bay. This is borne out by the fact that late that following autumn, going back to Twin Hollows to look over the property with a real estate dealer, I found washed up on the beach the battered fragments of a camera.

Only a portion of the lens remained in the frame, but this lens had been of quartz. As nearly as I can discover, the theory of quartz used in such a manner is to photograph the ultra-violet. In other words, I dare say, to make visible that strange world which may lie beyond the spectrum and our normal vision.

Did he obtain anything? We shall never know.

"But sometimes I wonder. Suppose a man to have done what he had done to prove the immortality of the soul; to have taken lives and have risked his own, to give to the world the survival after death it so pathetically craves. And he fails; there is nothing. His own conviction has not weakened, but his proofs are not there."

Then, in the twinkling of an eye, he himself breaks through the veil. With that idea dominant, he passes over to the other side, perhaps to the long sleep, perhaps not. But in that instant between waking and sleeping, to prove his point! To make good his contention; To justify his course!

I wonder, too, if at that moment of realization the supreme irony of the situation could have occurred to him? That the wounded hand, the one in-

Jury poor Gordon had managed to inflict on him, was the factor which must shot him, head foremost, into eternity?

Was Cameron our sheep-killer? We believe so, with certain reservations. We know he was at Bass Cove, under an assumed name, at the time, probably looking over the ground.

At the same time, it seems unlikely that he killed the first lot of Nytle's sheep; that we believe was an act of revenge on the part of a man Nytle had recently discharged.

But that the idea seized on his imagination seems probable. He was planning that mad campaign of his, and it fell in well with what was to come. It prepared the neighborhood, in a sense, but it set them looking for a maniac with a religious mania. And it was an effective alibi for him, occurring before his arrival at the house.

Jane has always believed that he added the symbol in chalk deliberately to incriminate me. I do not. He added it, after Helena Lear had told him of it, as he added the stone altar, a madman's conception of a madman's act.

Carroway's murder was incidental to that preparation of his, but in view of all we know, we can reconstruct it fairly well.

Thus we have the boy, firing of carrying his rifle, putting it away in the darkness, and possibly dozing. We have the appearance of the killer, and Carroway unable to locate his rifle quickly, following him to the water front and reaching to too late.

Underneath our boat the killer should have found his knife, but as we know, Halliday had taken it away. They were two unarmed men, then, who met that night on the quiet surface of the bay. And one of them, although nobody knew it, was not sane.

Unarmed only in one sense, however.

Cameron had an oar and used it for Cameron had an oar. And used it when it was over, he apparently rowed back quietly to the creek beyond Robinson's point, left his boat there, and walked to Bass Cove.

The proprietor of the small hotel there seems never to have known that he was out at night.

"He was a very quiet gentleman," he says, "and always went to bed early."

One thing which had puzzled us, in the Morrison case, was that the girl had stopped her truck, at a time when the nerves of the countryside were on edge. It seems probable, therefore, that on some nights, at least, it was not the square and muscular Cameron who went forth, but an old crippled man.

Shown to her by the lightning flashes that night, age and infirmity by the roadside and a storm going, what wonder that she stopped? The only marvel is that this bait having proven successful, it does not appear to have been used again.

Much that impressed me strongly at the time has lost its impression now. It is a curious fact that a man may see a ghost—and many believe that they have done so—without any lasting belief in so-called survival after death. And so it is with me.

On editing my Journal, however, I find myself confronting the same questions which confronted me during that terrible summer.

Have I a body, or is my body all there is of me? In other words, am I an intelligence served by certain physical organs? Or am I certain physical organs, actuated by an intelligence as temporary as they?

Frankly, I do not know. But any careful analysis of the extra-normal phenomena of the summer seems to show, every so often, some other-world intelligence, struggling to get through to us. As though—

We have never had, as I have said, any explanation of the coming of the book during the second seance, nor of the sounds from the library. While much of the physical phenomena of the first two seances was deliberately engineered by Mrs. Livingston, in pursuance of Halliday's plan to get Cameron into the house, these two things remain without explanation.

The same thing is true of my finding of the letter, of the flashlight apparition, of the sitting at Evanston, and of Jane's clairvoyant visions. None of which, by the way, she has had since. And yet all of which had their part, large or small, in our solving and understanding of the crimes.

Peter Geiss, and the figure in the foreground of the slum, my own vision of Cameron at the foot of the stairs, when he lay dead behind the panel, what am I to say of these?

Am I to accept them as I do Jane's "vision without eyes" as no more extraordinary than the feats of somnambulists, who go through their curious nightly progress with closed eyelids?

Am I to accept them, refute them, or evade them?

There are, however, certain incidents which, puzzling as they were at the time, lend themselves to very simple explanation. Among these are the cough I heard more than once, and Hadly's story of the materialization in the Oakville cemetery.

Throughout Gordon's diary, here and there, were the letters S. and G. T. There was also, in one place, a sentence which translated, became "The G. P. stuff went great last night."

Halliday believes that Gordon was what we know as a medium, and that it was in that capacity primarily that Cameron took him to the country. The S. he therefore translates as "sitting," and the G. T. as "genulose trance." After the G. T. there almost invariably follows the rather pathetic cry: "Feel rotten today," or "all in."

Hadly's ghost, then, in all probability was the secretary, securing data for the "sittings" which he so carefully differentiates from the nights when he went into "genulose trance. Being honest with himself, poor boy, and honest nowhere else. And the same was no doubt true as to the dry cough which he practiced on me the night I was in the garage."

It was during those "sittings," too, almost certainly, that under pretended control from beyond he began to ferret out, with the cunning of his kind, the story underneath; to bring back Horace Porter, and watch the reaction; to mention the boat he had discovered, and see the man across from him, in the dim red light, twitch and tremble.

To play him, to fool him and at the last, to threaten and blackmail him. And, in the end, to die.

But there remain these things I cannot explain. One of the most curious is the herbal odor; that this was not a purely subjective impression is shown by the fact that both Hayward and Edith noticed it during the second seance. The scent of flowers is, I believe, not unusual during certain psychic experiments. Warren speaks of the impression of tuberoses being waved before him in the dark by some ghostly hand.

Of this, as of the other inexplicable phenomena, I can only say that at the time I did not doubt them; living them again, as I prepare this manuscript, I accept them once more. But I do not explain them.

"You wish," said Cicero, "to have the explanation of these things? Very well. I might tell you that the magnet is a body which attracts iron and attaches itself to it; but because I could not give you the explanation of it, would you deny it?"

In closing this record, I cannot do better than copy the following extract from my Journal, made the following June:

June 1, 1923.

Our little Edith was married today. Heigh-ho. And again, heigh-ho.

How we begrudge the happiness of others when it is at our expense! How I hate Halliday when, once in the house, he put his arms around her and held her close. How I resented that calm air of possession with which he took his place in the line beside her, and shook hands smilingly with the hysterical crowd that kissed and blessed them, on the way to the dining room and food.

And yet—how happy they are, and how safe she is.

"My wife," he said. "Forever and ever. Amen."

Old brass and new glass; china, silver and linen; the Lear's candlesticks; every corner of the house filled with guests and gifts—and Jack. And for the two of them nothing and nobody, just a space filled with shadows which smiled and passed; themselves the only reality.

And perhaps they are. Love at least is real; the one reality perhaps. "Love thou art absolute; sole lord of life and death."

So they have gone, and tonight Jane and I are alone. Safe and quiet—and alone, alas.

Heigh-ho!

A "used car" is unused transportation

A GOOD automobile is built to stand years of use. It will provide many thousands of miles of satisfactory transportation.

But only occasionally are all its years and all its mileage used up by one owner. Many owners turn their cars in after an average use of only two to three years—long before the cars' lives have been exhausted.

This custom brings into the market every year so-called "used" cars which represent outstanding opportunities to buy unused transportation at low cost.

Every year more and more people appreciate this fact. Today millions of families are driving cars of which they are the second or third or even fourth owners; and this year the volume of new car sales and trade-in transactions has created wider choices and greater values in unused transportation than ever before.

3 out of 5 buy used cars

THREE out of five of the cars you see on the road have been purchased as "used" cars. You cannot tell—nor do you ask yourself—whether the driver of any particular car is its first owner, or its second or its third, providing the car looks well and is running satisfactorily.

The cars which General Motors dealers have accepted in trade vary in name, body style and price. Some have seen sturdy service; in others the potential mileage has scarcely been touched. And all offer a wide field of opportunities—

To the family wanting transportation at lowest possible cost.

To the family wishing to own a car of a higher price class.

To the family needing a second or third car to meet the requirements of all its members.

We invite you to examine the unused transportation in the stores of General Motors dealers. For your convenience General Motors extends the GMAC Purchase Plan.

Letters were recently issued from the secretary of state's office at Lansing to all election inspectors in Michigan outlining their duties throughout the general election in November. This action was felt necessary after it was found that nearly all ballots were handled illegally in the recent primary. This deprived Thomas Read of Newaygo County, of the opportunity to contest Republican nomination of Orville E. Atwood to the State Senate. Atwood obtained a majority of 97 votes in the election as certified. Inasmuch as packages of ballots were not sealed, as required by law, the State could not conduct the recount requested.

 "Quack, quack," said Mrs. Indian Runner Duck.
 "Gobble, gobble," said Mr. Turkey.
 "Neigh, neigh," said the horse.
 "Moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.

"Bow, Wow, Wow," said the Dog.

"Baa, baa, baa," said Mrs. White Sheep.
 "Bow, wow, wow," said the dog.
 "Baa, baa," said Billy Goat in a different tone of voice from that of Mrs. Sheep.
 "Chirp, chirp," said little Mr. Robin as he sat on the branch of a tree.

"Squirm, squirm," said the little worm, "this is no place for me."
 And to prove that the worm was right Mr. Rooster picked it up from the ground and handed it most politely to Mrs. White Hen who swallowed it and cackled her thanks.
 The song sparrow sang his little song and finally Porky Pig could stand it no longer.

"What are you all doing?" he asked.
 "Just saying a friendly word to each other," they said.

"Who has got the food?" asked Brother Bacon.

"No one has any food, now," said Mr. Duck. "The time for breakfast has not as yet arrived."

"How gorgeously and grandly and magnificently and beautifully you talk, quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"You flatter me, quack, quack," said Mr. Duck.

"Not at all, it is the truth," said Mrs. Duck.

"But what does all this friendly word business mean?" asked Sammy Sausage.

"Here I was having a nice dream of a castle built of food and I awoke to hear every one talking and chatting and I thought to myself:

"Ha, ha, grunt, grunt, the food has come."

"No food has come as yet," said Red Top. "We are all hungry and ready for a good breakfast it is true. But it will not be long now."

"Why are you all talking in such a friendly fashion when there isn't even any food to talk about?" asked Pinky Pig.

"Of course, Red Top," said Porky Pig, "you have always had the habit of getting up at crack of dawn, as the saying is:

"You take after your father and his father before him and his father before him—and I don't know how far."

"But they have all been early risers. Much too early risers to suit lots of folks."

"Well, I won't change the custom of the family, for it would be making our family to be of little importance," said Red Top.

"Still I don't understand why you are all strutting about and talking," said Sammy Sausage.

"You woke up the whole pig pen," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"You did, it's true," said Percival Pork.

"Had we been awakened for food we would not have complained, but to be awakened by a lot of idle chattering, gracious, mercy, grunt, grunt, it is too much," said Grandfather Porky.

"The ways of the barnyard creatures are funny," said Sammy Sausage.

"Of course they are to you," said Mr. Rooster. "All you creatures think of is food. You think that any other conversations or talks are utterly foolish."

"To be sure we do," said the pigs. "We're sensible, greedy pigs and the love and affection in our pig hearts is all turned in the direction of food and direction where there is food!"

But at that moment appeared the animals' breakfast and the whole barnyard partook of the meal!

Community Building

Social Life Made to Fit New Conditions

The coming of rural free delivery and better roads, followed by the automobile and still better roads, has brought about many changes in rural life and rural conditions. The country church felt the effect of the greater radius the farmer and his family were enjoying. Consolidations of congregations did not halt the decline and many rural churches followed the cross-road stores in going out of business. So, many country churches stood vacant and idle.

In the face of such conditions, some communities just cancel social life that cannot be satisfied in the homes of the community. They try to fit in the pattern of social activity in the nearest town, if home affairs do not suit. But some communities do not accept this new situation. Pisgah community in Cooper county is an excellent example. Modern life took the church as an organization from the Pisgah community. Now Pisgah has taken it back—or at least the building.

The members of the community formed a club and bought a conveniently located but abandoned church building. Its condition was poor and the cost of acquiring it small. The old building was torn down and overhauled and the materials used in building a community house. The cost was eight times the purchase price, which was only $300. But in the first year of use the cost has been repaid from the proceeds of a variety of entertainments that have been held in the building. Pisgah community now has a home for its plays and parties, for suppers and debates, for any activity that will entertain and bring improvement to the members of this self-sufficient neighborhood. Other communities have done the same and still others will use an identical pattern.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

ORIGIN OF THE "PRINT"

THE collecting of prints is becoming one of the most popular of hobbies. Certainly enjoyment of them is no longer limited to the artistically sophisticated, for today in quite modest homes, we see the product of the etcher, the woodcutter and the engraver. And of all the known arts, none has woven about its history a more unique tale than the origin of making prints, or taking impressions from engraved plates.

For its beginning, we must go back to the workshop of one Tomaso Fini, a goldsmith of Florence, who decorated gold and silver plates by filling their engraved lines with black enamel or "biello." Before treating his wares with this substance, which hardened and became permanent after it was applied, he would try out the effect with a temporary medium. This was accomplished by rubbing soot and oil into the crevices that were to hold the ink.

One day, according to the story one of his plates was laid face down, ward upon a sheet of paper, and when the plate was removed the first crude "print" appeared which is supposed to have furnished the inspiration for the subsequent improved efforts in this direction.

The earliest recorded engravings are a series of copper plate engravings dating about the middle of the fifteenth century, their subject being the "Passion." The latter half of the fifteenth century saw the birth of two of the world's greatest engravers, Durer, being born in 1471, and Michael Angelo, in 1474.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

OUTWITTING MIDDLE AGE

"OUTWITTING Middle Age"—so reads the title of a book recently written by Dr. Carl Ramus. The Century company in reviewing the book says: "Old age is a preventable disease. Exuberance, vitality and appearance of youth may be recaptured and preserved."

Has the fountain of perpetual youth at last been discovered? Does the last word of science inform us that old age is a disease? If it is certainly should be preventable. The same component parts of the human body exist in all other forms of nature and they have kept on dying for centuries. Have we discovered that the old philosophers were right? That matter is eternal? Even if it were true—who wants to live forever?

Time does not measure the value of life. Some persons live more in thirty years than others do in seventy. Existence is not life. The former is physical, the latter mental and spiritual. The real quality of a person's life is not necessarily measured by his achievements. Not what we accomplish but what we tried earnestly and sacrificially to realize—are the records which the angels keep.

Life is a strange thing. It cannot be defined, analyzed or even destroyed. Try and write a definition of life and see how difficult a task it is. No one has successfully defined it. Yet it is the most real thing with which we have to deal. The thing for which we will be remembered is the kind of a life we lived, in terms of the highest moral values, and not the material possessions we may have acquired. Life is saved by being lost in service.

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on the dial. We should count time by heart throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest acts the best. It matters not how long we live but how.

The Reason

Stranger—What's the bell ringing for in the town hall?
 Village Lad—'Cause somebody's pulling the bell rope.

All Must Recognize

Duty to Community

Just what do you really owe to your community? Is it enough to pay taxes and be a "good citizen" in a moral sense alone?

Streets are made up of individual homes. A pretty street can be irrevocably marred by houses and yards which are "run down," neglected. An unpainted house is harmful to your street. It lowers property values.

And streets, in the aggregate, make up cities, towns, villages. Too many neglected houses, therefore, can give the impression of a neglected community.

Fathers and mothers are shouldering their share of the national responsibility in this respect. It is fast becoming "the American way."

Smile through! When something about the place begins to look a little "run-down-at-the-heel" attend to it promptly. Leave nothing undone that should be done. And all working together will produce "the city beautiful."

Applies to Every Town

The season of the year has arrived when it is customary, and also advisable, for communities to give themselves a thorough cleaning and do considerable brightening up of unsightly buildings. In this matter Chattanooga is no exception to the general rule. The city authorities without doubt, give streets and public places, public dumping places and areas of wire and standing water such attention as they require. And while the municipal government is doing its part to make Chattanooga a more healthy, more brightly city, it would be a fine thing if all owners of neglected property would see to it that all decaying vegetable matter and other rubbish are removed, that dilapidated buildings are repaired and that those structures which need it are given a coat of paint.—Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times.

The City's Measure

There is food for thought in the statement that the measure of a city in the future may not be so much the number of persons living within its limits as other things, including the amount of business and manufacturing. In nearly every city there is beginning to be a drift toward the highways out from the busy centers. Homes are springing up along all of the main roads. As more good highways are built, more families can be expected to move out beyond the city limits.

Uses for Coal Ashes

The home owner who burns coal in his furnace can employ the ashes for several useful purposes.

Gardening time, flower blooming time is at hand. And while the ashes can always be used for building up paths, they can also be worked into soil that is firm to great advantage. Some people even insist that they can be worked into soil that is sandy.

Excellent Town Slogan

"Build a home first" is the slogan of a community preparing for a prosperous year. There is no better slogan, whether for material prosperity or spiritual prosperity. Start with a home and the rest will follow.—Baker (Ore.) Democrat.
