County Bankers Met Here

BIG DAIRY PROGRAM TO BE STARTED IN NEAR FUTURE

A special meeting of the County Bankers' Association was held in East Jordan on Thursday night, Nov. 22 with an attendance of seventeen Bankers and Directors representing each of the six banks.

As a result of this meeting a real Dairy Improvement Program for Charlevoix County farmers, became a reality. After much consideration of the problems confronting the farmers of our county, the conclusions were reached that these problems can be worked out quickest, and that greater prosperity can be realized sooner, by an intensive development of the Dairy Industry.

To properly promote the industry it was decided that there are three major requirements. A high quality purebred bull, first class cows, and lastly the benefits derived from a cow-testing association.

In order to assist the farmer in securing this kind of a sire and higher quality cows, each bank in Charlevoix County has set aside a fund to be used for this purpose and which will be loaned at very reasonable terms to all farmers meeting with the approval of the banks.

The Bankers of Charlevoix County are to be congratulated upon their desire to be of real service to the agricultural interests and their untiring efforts in carrying out this constructive program will meet with hearty co-operation from all interests in the County.

Full details of this plan are being worked out and in the near future a complete announcement of the Big Dairy Improvement Program will be made public. Watch the paper for more information.

All-Gray Costume

The ensemble note in fashion has been taken advantage of by Loretta Young, star of the film "Scarlet Seas" to create a stunning appearance in an all-gray costume. She wears a smart dress of gray covered by a velvet coat of gray, gray shoes and hat. To create the importance of the costume scheme a platinum fox scarf is added. It is in the popular two-fox effect.

Evers Back With Braves

Johnny Evers, former star second baseman of the Cubs and Braves, was signed by Judge Fuchs of the Boston Braves to assist him in the management of the Hub National league team. This means that Evers will run the team from the field, under Fuchs' direction.

Debate Here Next Thursday

EAST JORDAN TO ENGAGE IN BATTLE OF WITS WITH ALBA.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 6th, at 7:00 o'clock, in the High School Auditorium, the Debating team of East Jordan High School will meet a team from Alba. A small admission fee will be charged to defray the expenses of the judges.

The question for debate this year is: "Resolved, That a Federal Subsidy for the Development of an American Merchant Marine Would Be a Wise National Policy." Such a question for this year is not only timely, but should be of interest to every citizen, for the solution of our Merchant Marine problem is an important one before Congress.

The following is the official interpretation of the word subsidy, used in the question for debate:

(1) "That subsidy means a direct grant of funds or property from the United States Government to a private person or company to assist in the establishing or support of an American Merchant Marine."
(2) "That this subsidy shall be made without repayment or return of service to the United States Government."
(3) "That the foregoing statement does not prevent the United States Government from commanding a subsidized boat during a national emergency."
(4) "That according to this interpretation, the present aids extended to American shipping by the United States Government do not constitute a subsidy."

East Jordan's Debaters this year are Thelma Somerville, Frances Brown, Cathola Lorraine, and Carl Weaver. From these four, three will be chosen to constitute the negative team which meets Alba Thursday night.

On this date 244 High Schools in every part of the State will meet in 122 debates, in which 732 high school pupils will participate.

This debate followed by two others on January 11, and January 25, will constitute the four debates of the Preliminary Series in which every high school must take part in order to qualify for the Elimination Series of debates.

Every high school that qualifies for the Elimination Series will be presented with the University of Michigan Wall Plaque Trophy, which is a mahogany shield eighteen inches high by fifteen inches wide, upon which is superimposed a nine-inch solid bronze medallion with embossed lettering.

Only 64 high schools can qualify for the Elimination Series which will culminate in the Eleventh Annual State Championship Debate to be held at Ann Arbor in Hill Auditorium on Friday, April 26th.

The two schools participating in this final debate will each receive a trophy cup presented by the University of Michigan Extension Division, and each of the six debaters will receive a gold watch as a testimonial of individual merit.

In the final State Championship Debate held in Hill Auditorium at Ann Arbor on the 27th of last April, Royal Oak high school won first honors and Zeeland high school won second. The audience assembled for this final debate numbered 4,000 people, which is the largest audience that has ever attended a debate in this State.

This goes to show the great interest that the public is showing in high school debating. East Jordan will not want to be an exception, especially when its interest and support will mean the development of such a school activity as debating, an activity that will mean so much in rounding out the future life of those who participate. The public is cordially invited to attend this debate. In proportion as you show that you are oyally backing the team, so their victory will be more easily obtained.

Review of H. S. Football

MANY UPSETS AMONG NORTHERN MICHIGAN TEAMS.

Quite in keeping with Football throughout the country, many upsets took place in Northern Michigan Football. This was true of the Class C teams even to a greater extent than to the Class B teams of the north. The following schools completed Class C Football schedules—Boyerne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix, Gaylord, Mancelona, Onaway, Harbor Springs, and Frankfort, and the writer has seen all the above schools in action, many of them four or five times and after seeing each individual play, knowing the conditions surrounding his success or failure and the record of his team, has selected the following men as the best in his position in the Class C ranks of Northern Michigan.

It is not difficult to select a very strong Class C team. The material was quite evenly distributed among five or six of the leading Class C teams. Back field material was especially plentiful, including men that would be able to make any High School team.

At ends, we have Shepard of East Jordan, who without question is the fastest end among the Class C teams of the north, down under every punt, a good pass receiver and first class defense man. The other end and a team mate for Shepard—Novak of Charlevoix, a great pass receiver, catching many of his passes above the heads of the defense.

Good tackles were plentiful. Skornia of Boyne City, heavy, fast and aggressive was the best tackle in his position with Captain Schuer of Gaylord—who played end during the season, moving over to the other tackle. There was no better defensive man in the north than this Gaylord boy—six feet tall and one hundred eighty-five pounds—an ideal running mate for Skornia.

At the guards, Jones of Boyne City played strong aggressive game most of the year, without question should get one of the guard positions with Cornell of Harbor Springs at the other. Perhaps Cornell was the best guard in Class C ranks.

For Center, Faunce of Harbor Springs was as good a center as could be found, never making a bad pass and stopping almost anything that came through the center position.

At quarter back we have one of the outstanding players of all northern Michigan—Smith, of Mancelona. Not only a heady quarter but could stand the gaff, run, kick, or pass—triple threat man. Should be Captain of the Class C team. In the backfield there were many good men besides Smith. McBride of Harbor Springs, Miller and Myers of Gaylord, Quinn and Pray of East Jordan, Grimmes and Campbell of Harbor Springs, VanHousen and Morgan of Boyne City. McBride of Harbor Springs perhaps was the hardest charging and best defensive back in the Class C ranks. At the other half, Dick Marshall of Charlevoix, another triple threat man is too valuable a player to be left off the first team and is therefore awarded the position of right half. At full, Miller of Gaylord without question was the hardest charging back any of the Class C schools had and could carry the ball four plays out of five the length of the field without apparently weakening and is awarded full back position. Morgan of Boyne City, all around good half back throughout the season gets the other half.

FEAR

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Law, University of Illinois.

Nothing else so inhibits progress as fear—fear of failure, fear of people, fear of criticism, fear of what people will say, fear of disease, fear of the unexpected, and of the most trifling and impossible things. It is the skeleton sitting across the table from one and mocking him at the feast. I have seen people crushed by it, paralyzed, incapacitated and made wholly ineffective and unfitted for the responsibilities of life. It was fear, so we are told, which drove primitive man to sacrifice—fear of the gods and a desire to placate them by offering up something of value. It is a foolish thing in many instances, which takes away initiative and originality and freedom of action.

Mrs. Stamey is afraid of mice. She cannot remember when she was free from this fear, nor does she recollect what first caused it. She looks furtively into every corner when she is going about the house lest a mouse escape her; she turns down the sheets before getting into bed at night—a mouse may have crept in during the day. She sits tense in her chair at home and when calling upon friends, her meager skirts drawn tightly about her limbs, afraid, not realizing that the mouse, should it appear, is far more afraid of her than she of it.

Sheldon is afraid of disease. He himself really has nothing the matter with him, but his uncle died of cancer a few years ago and ever since Sheldon has been haunted by the thought that he, too, will shortly succumb to the same hideous disease. He exaggerates every symptom, he grows cold with fear at any localized pain, he examines every abrasion, and shudders when he finds a mole on any part of his body. He has little peace of mind night or day—fear of disease paralyzes him.

Miss Lenox is afraid of what people will say. Maybe her remarks at the sewing society were too personal, too direct. Perhaps she should not have expressed herself so categorically. She said something very complimentary she recalls, her face growing hot, concerning the new minister, and he is not married. What will people say? Will they think she is setting her cap for him? Horrors! Fear takes her into its clutches. She is almost afraid to walk down the street—she has done the wrong thing, she has spoken indiscreetly.

Dudley has always been terrorized by the thought of poverty. He has never wanted anything; he has been in comfortable circumstances all his life, but constantly there is before him the dread of bankruptcy. Crops will fail, prices will run down, his creditors will become insolvent, the bank in which his funds are deposited will fail—a thousand things are sure to conspire against him and in his old age he will be a mendicant, a beggar on street corners, an inmate of the poor house. To his dying day he will live in fear of poverty.

Courage! What a wonderful weapon it is with which to fight these useless fears which at one time or another possess us all!

Huggins Takes Vacation

Sault Ste. Marie—Traffic at the Sault Ste. Marie Locks in wheat and iron ore bids fair to exceed any previous year, it was declared by Government officials here. It was announced 268,082,472 bushels of wheat have been shipped through here this year and 48,857,574 tons of iron ore. With a full month yet to go before navigation closes, it is believed that 100,000,000 more bushels of wheat will be registered. Indications are that the movement of ore will be from two to three million tons greater this year than last.

The SANDMAN STORY

THE CONTENTED HORSE

"ODAY," said the policeman's horse to some of the other horses, "we had a picnic—my master and I."

"A picnic!" the horses exclaimed in their own fashion. "Neigh, neigh! Weren't you on duty today?"

"Yes, we were on duty, but we had a picnic, too," the horse answered. "I'll have to tell you about it," he said.

"An automobile came along and in it were some people. That's the usual way, of course."

"An automobile doesn't come along by itself."

"But no matter, you understand me. The people in the automobile asked my master how to get to a place where they wanted to have their picnic."

"There were a number of children and they had a fine dog with them, too."

"They told my master that when they stopped at their picnic grounds

"You All Know What I Think of My Master."

the dog sat on the step along the side of the automobile so that people passing by would know that he was not a stray dog looking for food but that he was really a part of the picnic party.

"They said he always did this except for a few moments now and then when he went for a run of a swim or chasing sticks."

"My master and the people chatted for quite a few moments and then my master told them how to get to the place they wanted to reach."

"Before they left they offered my master some candy and my master said:

"Thank you, and my horse will have one if you don't mind. He loves sweet things. He has what is known as a 'sweet tooth'."

"Well, they fixed up a little box and in it were some pieces of cake and some candy and some sugar as a special treat for me."

"Of course I get sugar very often but it is always a 'special treat' for me."

"Then they hurried on."

"But my master and I had a picnic between busy times. Oh, it was such fun!"

"My master told the people that I was brave but that I was enough of a 'child' to care for sweets."

"And he said he was a 'child' that way, too. But he didn't say anything about his bravery, and of course they couldn't understand me."

"I think perhaps they knew by the way I looked that I was pretty devoted to my master and I think perhaps they had an idea he was brave."

"For he looks so splendid and he has such a fine face. But then you all know what I think of my master."

"After they had gone on we nibbled at something good every once in awhile."

"Oh, yes, we had our picnic, the master and I."

"And the master stroked me and patted me as he does so often, and I thought, just as I think so often, how splendid to have such a master."

"They say I do my work well and that I'm filled with courage and wisdom, but kindness and good treatment have helped me more than anyone knows."

"I should have liked to have told the people these things and I should have liked to have told them of the little girl my master saved the other day—she would have been run over if it hadn't been for my master, and he risked his life, too."

"Oh, I should have liked to have told them so many, many things he has done."

"For sometimes it seems to me that the brave things the master has done are so particularly, unusually, beautifully brave!"

"Yes, I wished today I could speak I don't need to speak to the master. He understands. He knows what I want and how I feel and how much I love him."

"But he doesn't seem to know how magnificently brave he is. It comes to him so naturally, I suppose."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

CALLING THEM "DRAGOONS"

THE word "dragoon" is now familiar in military parlance in this country as the name of a soldier, usually a cavalryman, heavily equipped. And our dictionary sanctions its use as a common noun. Yet it comes to us directly from an English regiment the Dragoons. The origin of the term in its first application to English troops, holds a colorful tale.

"Dragoon" is a corruption of "dragon"—the dragon on the standard of the regiment. It was applied originally because of the short gun which these soldiers carried in earlier times, the spouting forth of whose fire was compared by the populace to fire belching dragons!

While it is true that dragons have appeared on the standards of armies since ancient times, the naming of the regiment which has popularized the word "Dragoon" was inspired by the fire of its principal weapons which by the way, can be seen in museums today.

PERIL OF CONTENTMENT

THE difference between Europe and America is that "Most of Europe has the horse and buggy idea. If the people of the shops and farms could be stimulated into dissatisfaction they would all have cars, phonographs, radios and what-not." In other words, satisfaction paralyzes ambition. It eliminates the element of need. A satisfied person seldom wants anything. The sense of need kindles the fire of energy and purpose. Hunger calls for food, education for books, friendship for human contacts, and love for home and a successful economic career. In the absence of a vivid sense of need lethargy and indifference prevail.

As civilization develops needs are increased. The fact that we want something hard enough to go out and work for it explains much of the progress of our time. Whether we actually need many of these things is another question. Perhaps we would be better off without them, but the fact that we are sure we need them, or think we do, and therefore must have them at all cost, stimulates energy, will power and brain cells.

The sense of need has paved the way to many a fortune. Find a public need and the way to satisfy it and fortune will soon smile upon you. Our own wonderful prosperity and unprecedented development is attributable very largely to the fact that we are seldom satisfied.

The following lines have been attributed to Goethe:

Rest is not quitting the busy career; Rest is the fitting of self to its sphere. 'Tis loving and serving the best and best!

'Tis onward, unswerving, and that is true rest.

The artist who had never seen any picture but his own is not conscious of mistakes in his workmanship. He is content. But when he studies the works of the masters he is fired with a purpose to achieve larger things. He finds contentment in the struggle to attain. The one is the contentment of ignorance, the other of self-expression of the highest within him.

Community Building

Town to Have Novel Home-Life Features

Now a new kind of town has been invented. The first one is being built at Radburn, N. J.

It will consist of a number of units for 600 families each. Each house will have its own individual garden in the rear. From each garden a path will lead to a parkway. Each parkway will be a city block in width and about half a mile in length. Primarily the parkway will be park space, but in each parkway will be tennis courts, playgrounds, a school and a community center.

The cultural life of the 600 families of each unit will center about their own parkway. Every child can reach school by walking along tree-shaded paths and, even if the distance be as much as half a mile, without having to cross any automobile road.

The "limited dividend company" is the practical and powerful tool, through which towns can be built which will solve the perplexities introduced into city life by the automobile age of today. It limits dividends on its stock to 6 per cent. Through economies possible by building hundreds of houses at a time it has been able to pay 6 per cent and yet to develop home regions not for speculative profit but to provide generously for home life and community well-being.

One novel feature of the Radburn plan is that all homes front on side streets—dead-end streets—which will be used only by the automobiles that are going to houses in the particular block. Through traffic is restricted, therefore, to streets definitely planted as motor highways, and hence made wide enough in the first place to accommodate traffic.

Brick Veneering Held as Good Construction

Brick veneer, perhaps, classifies as neither fish, fowl nor good red herring. Nevertheless it is considered sound construction and its practicability has been demonstrated in many years of satisfactory use. But strictly speaking, a brick veneer exterior finish is a shell—a shell of brick protecting some form of backing, such as wood sheathing, mineral sheathing, concrete or other material.

The major purpose of a brick veneer exterior is to carry out the architectural design of the structure. In itself, brick veneer is without structural strength. It is laid up over one of the standard bases, generally in what is known as a "running bond."

Around the lower "course" or any small projecting cornice, the bricks are likely to be laid in what is known as a "soldier course." In this course the bricks are stood on end, with the narrow length exposed, like so many soldiers in a stiff row.

There are a great many bonds for the laying up of solid brick walls, but most of them are not applicable to brick veneer construction because the narrowness of the brick veneer walls makes it necessary to break the brick to carry out the designs of most of the bonds.

Brick's Value Appreciated

While the ancients knew how to use brick structurally and left commendable examples of their skill, they were handicapped in achieving the beautiful effects possible today because the wide range of colors and textures as manufactured now were not then available.

It is gratifying to know that our own country has far outstripped the rest of the world in providing this versatile material in such a variety of colors and textures. And that the architect is thoroughly appreciative of the opportunity it affords in the way of artistic effects is evidenced by his lavish use of face brick, not only for exterior walls, but interior finish as well.

Country Life

True liberty, independence, the practice of virtue, where do they flourish in such amplitude as in the country, where the farmer is master and lord in his own domain; where life is more healthy, moral, and simple; where love is kindled in happy homes; where children are brought up in a more Christian way; where bad examples are rarer, vices more unknown and subsistence more assured; where uprightness and the love of honest toil and thrift are cultivated; where nature herself is more beautiful; "the air purer, heaven closer, and 'od nearer!"—Prince Albert Patriote de l'Onest.

Progress and Taxation

If we are to enjoy "real" tax reduction, it is not necessary to cut out progress and needed improvements, but it is necessary to cut out non-essentials, experiments and political hobbies which add to the overhead of government without giving added advantages comparable with their cost.—Exchange.

INDIVIDUALISM

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Sawyer is an individualist, whatever that term may mean, or at least that is what he thinks he is. He is very young, as is usually the case with individualists, for as one grows older, he sees that one cannot mark out his path without reference to the rights and preferences of others. It is wisest to yield to what is safest and best for the majority, otherwise social chaos would result. Sawyer longs to be free, to express his own personality without trammel of law or regulation. He wants all the comforts and privileges and protection which civilization affords without being called upon to respect the laws and the conventions which have made possible these conditions which he likes so much. He is quite opposed to our present prohibition laws, as many older men are, and takes occasion to violate them whenever opportunity offers. "Shouldn't one respect a law," I ask him "even if individually one may not think it wise or necessary?" "I don't think so," he replies, "I am the judge of my own conduct." "And if you granted that privilege to everyone else, as every generous man would, what would be the effect upon society?" I ask him. He had not thought that out. He has little regard for the ten commandments, but he has not yet, during his eighteen years, devised a better substitute for human beings generally to follow. In fact he is not thinking of other human beings at all but only of himself. He has never considered himself in his relations to society as every thinking person should. He belongs to an organization whose success and progress depend upon unity and co-operation. When he joined, as is common in such cases, he took an oath to follow the principles laid down in the ritual, to respect the authority of those in control, to obey the regulations which experience has shown are for the best interests of all concerned, and yet he wants to be a law unto himself.

"Nobody's going to tell me," he asserts, "when I am to come in or when I may go out. I am not bound to do what anyone else says. If I want to take a drink, that's my lookout. If I don't want to study or go to class or keep still, whose business is it but mine? I have to work these things out for myself." Up in the mountain ranges of British Columbia two or three years ago, I came upon an individualist. He was forty miles from civilization. He was sleeping in a rude cabin which he had made for himself, and living upon what he could forage from the forest and the mountain streams. He had no neighbors, no laws to inhibit his actions. He could come and go as he chose. There were no conventions which he need respect or consider; he was law unto himself. But we who live in an organized society are not permitted to enjoy such freedom; we must pay for the added privileges which we enjoy. (© 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

Princess Abida

The Nawab of Phopal, second greatest Mohammedan prince in India, has decided that after his death his state shall revert to its tradition of rule by women. He has nominated his eldest daughter, Princess Abida Iqbal Sultan, to succeed him. This portrait of the princess was made in England, where she and her father were visiting recently.

Time waits for no man, but man has to wait for his time. Take a woman's looks for her age rather than her word. Many a man fails to recognize his duty, when he sees it. A telegraph operator can make a few words go a long way.

Mange Mites Are Great Liability

Ailment Has Been of Increasing Economic Importance in Central West.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The practical side of controlling animal diseases and parasites is shown in a report to the United States Department of Agriculture by Dr. J. O. Wilson, a federal veterinary official stationed in South Dakota. Swine mange has been of increasing economic importance throughout the Central West with the result that in some localities as high as 40 per cent of the hogs slaughtered show evidence of the presence of the mange mite.

Affects Vital Parts. Since this parasite affects the parts of the hog that are of greatest value—the hams, shoulders and bacon—packers have been purchasing many hogs at a discount ranging from 50 cents to $1.50 per hundredweight. For a 250-pound hog the actual discount thus amounts to from $1.25 to $3.75 depending on the extent of mange present. "This estimate," Doctor Wilson adds, "does not take into account the saving of feed in the fattening of a mange-free hog in comparison with the added time and feed necessary to fatten a mangy hog."

In the endeavor to disseminate such information to swine growers in their trade territories, progressive commission firms are using rubber stamps bearing the notice:

MANGY HOGS SELL AT A DISCOUNT of 50c to $1.50 per CWT. Proper treatment of mange infested hogs insures more RAPID GAINS AND HIGHER PRICES.

Briefly, mange mites are a serious liability to the swine producer, as they cause pork products to be classified into lower grades of less value. The losses occur throughout the year, but are somewhat greater during the winter months when control of the parasites by dipping is more difficult. Officials of the bureau of animal industry point out that mange in hogs is readily preventable and control methods are fully discussed in Farmers' Bulletin 1085 which may be obtained on request. In view of the better prices paid for mange-free hogs, averaging about $2.50 a head over those that are affected by the parasites, the slight cost in labor and material for dipping the average herd is repaid many times.

Weeds in Waste Places Should All Be Burned

Weeds along fence rows and old pastures and waste places generally can be best burned during the early fall before seeds have formed. Unless this is done the dry seeds hanging on the dead weeds will be scattered long distances over the snow crust during the winter.

A good plan is to mow the weeds close to the ground while they are still green and rake into piles before the seeds have a chance to scatter. Piles about half the size of a hay cock will dry quickly and burn completely. It helps to rake the loose ends into the coils after the center has burned.

Before Freshening Cow Needs Liberal Feeding

For a month to six weeks before calving the dairy cow should be given all the feed she will clean up. During this dry period she can store up in her body a large amount of nutrients to be drawn upon later during heavy milk flow. It is a well known fact that the heavy milking fresh cow cannot eat enough to supply all the food needed, but has to draw on her body for making milk. The statement that a pound of feed before freshening is worth two pounds after freshening is probably not far from true.

Farm Notes

Alfalfa pasture has a tendency to blot all ruminant animals. Of course, sheep are in this class.

The thin pastures that are well covered with weeds should be mowed at least twice during the season.

Legume hay carrying a large proportion of leaves and cured without getting wet, makes a good winter substitute for green feed for poultry.

When lime and phosphorus become low in a soil the clovers are unable to compete with the undesirable grasses and weeds for a place in the flora.

There are many thousands of acres of billy land in pasture that should have been left in forest. Erosion has started on these and reforestation is the only practical means of stopping it.

Have you provided a place for those early maturing pullets? They will soon be ready for the winter quarters. Plan to give them a clean, permanent location as it is not advisable to move them after egg production begins.

Where there are some trees already growing or where there is a good natural seeding of forest trees, it is very detrimental to the growing of the trees to pasture it. Under such conditions the amount of pasture produced is almost negligible.

Community Building

Proper Roof "Fits In" to Lines of Beauty

The right sort of roof on a house is as important as the right hat on a pretty woman smartly gowned, according to John Hayden, writing in Your Home Magazine.

"There are some houses," he says, "so roofed that they look like an elephant wearing a number seven derby hat. There are others that look as if the owner had by mistake clapped on them the dunce cap meant for himself."

"In roofs, as in hats, there is an eternal fitness. For instance, a man may put a corrugated iron roof on his woodshed, though it is unbecoming; but he doesn't put one on his new colonial house even though the strength, durability and cheapness of such a roof are surely beyond question."

"Of a particularly atrocious effect, Mr. Hayden says, 'Owing to its location, the house is tall in proportion to its length and width; but the roof, instead of being rather steeply sloped to carry out the lines of the building, rises at perhaps a 20-degree angle, a thoroughly unbecoming thing. It sits up there like a ridiculous little cap on the head of a very tall man.'

"Generally speaking," advises the article, "the conventional slopes range from about 28 to 30 degrees to 60. In the tropics, the prevailing demand is for flat roofs, because people like to live on their roofs. They go up there in the cool of the evening. The flatness has a use; so has the parapet around the edge. In the North they like a roof to shed the snow in winter, and heavy rains of fall and spring. Thus their problem is different. In the cities of the North, on the other hand, flat roofs often come into use because it is not desirable to have snow sliding down onto the heads of pedestrians. Thus a building which borders a busy street takes one roof and a building set back takes another. In like manner the hip roof or the gambrel roof may have eminent fitness on one building and be a misfit on another. There are no rules. In the last analysis it comes down to a question of artistic sensibility."

Ownership of Homes Urged by President

Under present conditions any ambition of America to become a nation of home owners would be by no means impossible of fulfillment. The land is available, the materials are at hand the necessary accumulation of credit exists; the courage, the endurance and the sacrifice of the people are not wanting. Let them begin, however slender their means, the building and perfecting of the national character by the building and adorning of a home which shall be worthy of the habitation of an American family, calm in the assurance that "the gods send bread for a web begun."

Here will be found that satisfaction which comes from possession and achievement. Here is the opportunity to express the soul in art. Here is the sacred influence, here is the earth at our feet around the hearthstone, which rises man to his true estate.—President Coolidge.

Get Rid of the Litter

Any clean-up campaign means something more than to get rid of unclean refuse; something more than brushing up and destroying the litter accumulated during the winter months, and putting our yards in order. It means a lot of repair work; the straightening of broken lines in the home setting, the repainting of houses and fences; the retouching of lawns; the trimming of shrubs; the planting of more flowers, and a long list of other things properly included in beautifying processes, for after all to be clean is to be beautiful, whether we are dealing with houses and lands, or with human beings.

Home Most Tangible Asset

Look about you today and note the vast sections of "good old mother earth," which, in your time, have been transformed from idle waste land into populous districts, dotted with the homes of persons who, at the beginning, had but a few hundred dollars to invest. But, being unable to deny the call to independence, they did invest. And today they possess the most tangible of all assets, a home and land about it.

Home Builders Increase

As against evil conditions that operate to destroy the home, the tremendous home-building movement stands out as an encouraging sign of the times. The more home owning there is, the better will be the home life of the people, and the stronger will be the resistance to those influences that undermine the home.—Chicago Post.

Brighter Schools

The Liverpool (England) education committee has decided that their schools shall be decorated in bright color schemes not only inside the classrooms, but also on the outside of the school buildings. It is hoped that by this means the working hours of the pupils will be brightened and better school work will result.

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

COUGHS DANGEROUS GERM SPREADERS.

Every person afflicted with a cold becomes a germ spreader. An old health officer says he had rather be shot with a pistol than take a cough or sneeze in the face, spraying the air with infectious germs. To arrest an oncoming cold, absolutely stop, coughing, take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, a medicinally scientific, carefully compounded cough and cold remedy, every ingredient of which is active and potent. No opiates. Safe for children, effective for grown persons, the ideal family medicine. Ask for it.—Hite's Drug Store, adv.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE CO.
Long Distance Rates Are Surprisingly Low
For Instance:
for $1.95
or less, between 4:30 a. m. and 7:00 p. m.,
You can call the following points and talk for THREE MINUTES for the rates shown. Rates to other points are proportionately low.
FROM EAST JORDAN TO:—
Akron, O. $1.80
Anderson, Ind. 1.80
Buffalo, N. Y. 1.85
Columbus, O. 1.95
Dayton, O. 1.85
Duluth, Minn. 1.85
The rates quoted are Station-to-Station Day rates, effective 4:30 a. m. to 7:00 p. m.
Evening Station-to-Station rates are effective 7:00 p. m. to 8:30 p. m., and Night Station-to-Station rates, 8:30 p. m. to 4:30 a. m.
A Station-to-Station call is one made to a certain telephone rather than to some person in particular.
If you do not know the number of the distant telephone, give the operator the name and address and specify that you will talk with "anyone" who answers at the called telephone.
A Person-to-Person call, because more work is involved, costs more than a Station-to-Station call. The rate on a Person-to-Person call is the same at all hours.
Additional rate information can be secured by calling the Long Distance operator.

WELL REPAID FOR HER READING.

The man who lives up to his ideals usually remains poor.

Because she was suffering from lumbago, Mrs. T. J. Bucknell, Hardy, Neb., stopped to read an advertisement of Foley Pills diuretic. She tried them, then wrote: "I am much improved in health and vigor since taking Foley Pills diuretic. The dreadful lumbago is gone, also that tired, weary feeling. It is a joy and a real privilege to recommend Foley Pills diuretic." Satisfaction guaranteed. Men and women everywhere use and recommend them. Try them. Hite's Drug Store. adv.
