PIANO RECITAL WELL RECEIVED

The annual Piano Recital given by the pupils of Miss Irene J. Bashaw was given before an audience that taxed the capacity of East Jordan High School Auditorium last Monday evening.

There were some thirty-eight selections given by thirty-three students, ranging from simple music by little tots to most difficult interpretations by the students who have been under Miss Bashaw's tutelage for several years.

The program as published in last week's issue of The Herald was carried out in full.

FORTUNE-TELLING CRAFT THRIVES AS NEVER BEFORE

"Gypsy Princess" Reveals Secrets of How She Reads Clothes, Faces and Minds.

New York.—Educators, pastors, writers and sociologists will tell you that this is the most enlightened generation in history. And yet the ancient craft of the fortune-teller is flourishing as never before, and there are more of us anxious to believe what the "gypsy" finds in the tea cup, or the "mystic" in the crystal globe. This is true in New York and throughout the country, according to "Princess Karina," who admits she was born in an Ohio village of native English parents, but who, none the less, is one of the most prosperous of the "gypsy" fortune-telling clan, with a nationwide reputation.

The "Princess" reveals her story in the North American Review, admitting bluntly that the tea leaves, which she "reads" for as many as 100 customers a day in a fashionable tea shop, mean nothing to her, or to anyone else.

"The leaves? They are really not much more than the stage properties for a private demonstration of practical psychology," she says. "They would hardly cramp my style if I took them seriously. I now really read nothing but faces and hands, manners and mannerisms, and the many small details of dress and personality."

"My story is always one of encouragement, of hope, of a future worth living for. They want to believe it, even though they affect to be amused by it. Moreover, I give them good advice, or I think I do."

Women's clothes, she asserts, give the fortune-teller her best lead. "I know what is quietly expensive and what is dressy but cheap. I can see at a glance the signs of careful economy. The stenographer's costume identifies her as distinctly so though she wore a uniform and goes does that of the home-body out on a shopping spree. The careful observer can immediately identify the school teacher, the office girl, the housewife, the woman of leisure without asking questions. All are subtly stamped with signs of their calling."

Airplane Drops Motor and Glides to Safety

Oakland, Calif.—An airplane that drops its motor to become a glider is the invention of Joaquin S. Abreau, an inventor of this city and former World War flyer with the American forces.

The monoplane is constructed so that by pulling an emergency lever in case of motor failure or fire the motor and gasoline tanks, which are carried in an undersektion, drop away. The fuselage carries the pilot and passengers to earth as a motorless glider, according to the claims of the inventor.

Spring skids attached to the fuselage force the lower part of the plane away when the emergency lever is manipulated and also act as shock absorbers in making a landing.

It has been estimated that the winged fuselage will have a gliding radius of 80 miles after the weight of the motor and gasoline tanks has been discarded.

If the world owes every man a living tramps must be collectors.

Be an optimist and the world laughs at you. Be a pessimist and who gives a darn?

Probably more young people would embark on the sea of matrimony if stern parents would raise the blockade.

3 Conventions For E. Jordan

DISTRICT ORGANIZATIONS TO MEET HERE IN 1930.

Three ladies fraternal organizations have selected East Jordan for their District Conventions in 1930. At their Elk Rapids meeting, the Meezue Association of the Eastern Stars selected East Jordan as their next meeting place. The District Convention of the Pythian Sisters meeting at Charlevoix recently accepted East Jordan's invitation to meet here next year. At Boyne City, last week, the Rebekahs held their annual district meeting and decided on East Jordan as their meeting place next year.

REBEKAH MEETING

(From Boyne Citizen)
The Fourth Annual District Meeting was held in the Gym at Boyne City, May 27th, each member registering at the door were given a badge of pink ribbon lettered in green, the colors of the order. This was worn during the session. The meeting was opened by the officers of Boyne City Lodge members then turned over to the President of the District, Sister Adeline Upthegrove of Central Lake. We had with us the Grand Lodge officers of the Rebekah Assembly: Sister Mollie Crowe of Detroit, Assembly President; Sister Carrie Taylor of Petoskey, Warden; Sister Dorothy Reiser of Wayne, Outside Guardian; Sister Lottie McKeel of Cadillac, Assembly Past President; Sister Sarah McDonald of Petoskey, District Past President who were introduced then the words of welcome by Estella Gould, Noble Grand, in her pleasing manner. We met as an order to promote Fraternity and practice virtue, just words cannot express a welcome. These officers were presented with flowers from Boyne City Lodge. The afternoon session was a business meeting, election of officers for the District meeting for the coming year:

Pres.—Mary Bird of Charlevoix.
V. Pres.—Rachel Osborn of Harbor Springs.
Sec'y.—Myrtle Howe of Mancelona.
Treas.—Fay Cataline, Boyne City.
Meeting was then adjourned for supper which was served in the M. E. Church.

At the opening in the evening the Central Lake Rebekahs gave a play which was very pleasing; the Boys Band gave four selections which were greatly enjoyed by all. The Assembly President then gave a fine talk on "Our Beautiful Home" at Jackson. The members numbered, Alba again being the winners of the Silver Cup, this is the third time. Charlevoix Lodge gave the ceremony of draping the Charter, it was very pretty and impressive. Mancelona gave the degree work, it was pretty. Harbor Springs gave the Memorial work which was beautiful and showed that a great deal of time and thought had been given it.

There were twelve Lodges and 15 visitors, three lodges were not represented.

Next year the meeting will be at East Jordan.—Contributed.

The car climbed wildly up a bank, The driver's face was green; He'd put his moonshine in the tank And drunk the gasoline.

"Billy, don't you love driving on a night like this?"
"Yes, girle, but I thought I would wait until we got farther out."

Jay: I think the driver in that car ahead must be a teacher I had when I was in school.
Ray: What makes you think that?
Jay: Well, she was just as stubborn about letting me pass.

"Does your fiancée know much about automobiles?"
"Heavens, no! She asked me if I cooled my car by stripping the gears."

O.: How's your wife coming along with her driving?
K.: She took a turn for the worse last week.

Garageman: Check your oil!
Motorist: No, I'll take it with me.

HELPS A PAINFUL ACHING BACK

A weary, tired-out feeling, lack of strength and vigor, stiff aching back, suggests the need of a good diuretic stimulant to regulate kidney secretions, and clear the blood of lurking poisons that cause the distressing aches. Mrs. Black, Petersburg, Va., says, "Before I took Foley Pills diuretic I could neither stoop over nor rise up without great pain. Since taking them I have no pain nor stiffness and my general health is wonderfully improved." Men and women everywhere use and recommend them. Hite Drug Co. adv.

Ingenious New Device

Warns of Escaping Gas

Linköping, Sweden.—A new and ingenious gas alarm apparatus has just been invented here by two engineers, A. Olson and P. Peterson. The device consists of a supersensitive scale, fitted in an oval metal box, which is placed in the ceiling. When illuminating-gas escapes, it rises upward, being lighter than air, and the scale immediately responds to the difference in weight between the atmosphere and the gas.

Connected with the apparatus is an electric bell which rings as soon as the scale gets out of balance, thus warning the occupants of the room. The appliance has been successfully tested and is now protected by world patents.

Find Pictures Carved

Into Rocks by Indians

Ottawa, Ont.—Pictures that were carved into the rocks long ago by Indians have been discovered in British Columbia. Harlan I. Smith, Canadian government archeologist, has reported. Mr. Smith came upon the rock pictures 20 miles west of Victoria at a point overlooking the Pacific ocean. It is considered remarkable that these carvings have escaped the notice of archeologists who worked in the region for many years. Mr. Smith has spent the field season collecting Indian specimens in western Canada, making motion-picture records in the Indian areas and photographing the crude old paintings and carvings placed on the rocks by Indian artists.

Charlotte—Mrs. David DePue, 67 years old, dropped dead in her bedroom while preparing to visit a cemetery.

Adrian—Damages estimated at $25,000 was done to the Adrian senior high school by a fire. The fire, cause of which has not been determined, started in a janitor's room in the basement. Firemen said it apparently had been smoldering most of the night.

Benton Harbor—Following the loss of scores of baby chicks on his farm at Royalton, Herman Radtke clubbed a five-foot blue racer to death. The snake had been concealed in the garage. Going to the store room above the garage to look for rats, believed to be the culprits, Mrs. Radtke and little daughter, Marion, saw the huge reptile coiled among fruit packages. A search is being made for the racer's mate.

North Branch—St. Mary's Catholic church, in Burnside township, a mile and a half west of the Earl Memorial highway, U. S. 53, was destroyed by fire recently. The loss is placed at $45,000, partly insured. Only the vestments and the sacramental vessels were saved. St. Mary's, regarded as one of the finest country churches in this part of the state, was a brick structure, built in 1915 by the Rev. Father Leo Gaffney, now of Redford.

Kalamazoo—Mrs. Helen Barrett, the only real daughter of the Revolution in Michigan, and one of the few in the United States to lay claim to that honor, recently celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday anniversary at her home in Richland. Mrs. Barrett has been a resident of Richland for 80 years, coming there from New York when a bride of 16 years. She lives with her daughter, Mrs. Emma Little, 79 years old, and her son, James, 76 years old.

BEGINNERS' CLASS
E. J. H. S. BAND

Director John Ter Wee announces the organization of a Beginners' Class to East Jordan High School Band.

All prospective students, either boys or girls, are requested to be present at the Band room in Central Grade building, Monday afternoon, June 10th, at 2:30 standard.

Various instrumentations are needed to balance out the present band, owing to vacancies caused by graduation. At this time students may have the choice of several band instruments.

Triplets received diplomas from the La Grange, Michigan High School for the first time in history. Ruth, Ruby and Robert Reed, living one and one-half miles south of LaGrange, have completed their school term together. Many twins have gone through school classes together, but never before triplets, as far as is known in Michigan. The Reed triplets differ considerably from most twins in that they bear only a normal family resemblance to each other, no two could by any stretch of imagination be mistaken for each other, and they might be taken to be of different families, although they are blonds. The triplets have twin sisters, 23, and other brothers and sisters.

Forty men are to be used this year in the Lower Peninsula. The Upper Peninsula has been almost entirely covered by work which ended last year. ## PARIS STAYS UP ALL NIGHT NOW

No Real Parisian Knocks Off His Evening Pleasure Until 4 A. M.

Paris.—Smart Paris is developing insomnia. Night life has become early morning life, and no real Parisian would think of knocking off his night's pleasure now, before four o'clock in the morning.

During the winter, the smart set was hard put to find something new to do. Spring weather has solved that problem by permitting all night revelries. Blase Parisians, tired of Montmartre and its cabarets, fed up with the ordinary plays of the theaters this winter and looking for something new to tease their jaded appetites, have leaped to this opportunity.

So to be really smart you have to stay up all night. At the start it must be pointed out that Paris is in a world of its own. Tourists can never get a visa to that set, and the smart Parisians shun tourists like plagues. They stay out of the tourist cabarets and that is why they have been so hard put to find diversion.

Montmartre Is Dead.

Montmartre is dead to Parisians. True, the lights still burn brightly on the hilltop, the girls dance with the same gay abandon, and negro jazz or Argentine tango hands sit on every doorstep, but even Montmartre knows that it is doomed.

Montparnasse is killing Montmartre, and Americans are to blame. The tourists have gotten off the beaten path of the "Grand Duke's tour," which used to climb around the hilltop of Montmartre, and they are now knocking about the Boulevard Montparnasse between two and four o'clock in the morning.

Just a few years ago Montparnasse began and ended at the corner of the Boulevards Raspail and Montparnasse. The two famous cafes, the Dome and the Rotonde, stood on opposite corners and were filled with artists of various callings.

Commercializing Gayety.

Now even the creameries stay open all night and once staid umbrella shops have given way to dance halls, paint shops to cabarets and Montparnasse is commercializing gayety for the tourists.

But smart Parisians do not go there. They have found amusement places still farther out. Not far from the fortifications in the Vaugrard quarter are several ballrooms and bars patronized by West Indies and Central African negroes. There the smartest of the smart Parisians trek every morning around three. There they find all the excitement their blasé appetites crave.

Paris at night, as it is advertised for tourists, is not exactly the Paris discovered by the real noctambules, men who boast they never see the sun, whose day starts at seven in the evening and goes on all night, and whose real pride is to discover something new in the way of pleasures.

In past ages night life consisted of a play, then to Neully for the fair, and on to Montmartre in the places where good "diseurs" used to sing French songs, with some witty side cracks on the celebrities of the day. We still have some theaters of that kind but it is considered quite "bourgeois" to go there.

Night Life Changing.

Night life in Paris is changing and the cafes of the Bohemian painters are transformed into night places for high society and millionaires. To make a success of a place it must not be too big; then cabaret paintings on the walls, more chairs than tables and many more people than places to move.

Frequently charming places with good dancing floors, tasteful decorations, agreeable atmosphere, turn out to be perfect failures. In Paris the smaller the place is, the greater success it has. The newcomers must always have the impression that they are let in just because they are they.

It is interesting to watch how unknown back shops suddenly metamorphose into notorious night places where cars pour out millionaires from all parts of the globe, because night life in Paris has always had a strange fascination on foreigners.

Some Parisians take great pleasure in piloting their friends to an unknown place and after a few dances and drinks suggest to the owner a funny name for the place which the crowd adopts without protest from the owner.

These anonymous places are adopted by the people who are present and who bring along their friends, they shake hands with the owner, calling him Alfred or Gustave, and every one has a sort of paternal feeling toward the place until the day tourists hear about it, then the prices go up with an unthinkable rapidity. The god father is treated like a poor cousin making him hunt for another place. That is how the innumerable new night places which are springing up at every corner of Montparnasse can be explained.

Iso-Vis

It's a hard life for the modern motor! Traffic is congested. Engines are built with higher compressions. Cars are driven faster. Motors run hotter. Correct lubrication is more important than ever before. Only the richest and sturdiest motor oil will stand up under the strain!

Polarine will do it! Polarine is rich—sturdy—steadfast! It covers every frictional surface of the engine with a protecting cushion of oil.

By draining the crankcase every 500 miles and refilling with fresh Polarine, you insure satisfactory lubrication of your car—at minimum cost.

Iso-Vis is an oil of unusual quality. It lubricates the engine faithfully—to stand up under the strain of today's driving. Like Polarine, Iso-Vis is rich and sturdy and steadfast.

No need to drain the crankcase so frequently if you use Iso-Vis. This new type, constant viscosity motor oil gives a new type of lubrication service. It will not thin out! It wears and wears and wears!

For smooth motor miles—and a long life to your engine—use Polarine or Iso-Vis. They are dependable products of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). They are the motor oils you can trust.

Bedridden, Happy With Friend 9,200 Miles Off

Lima, Ohio.—Bedridden since he was twelve years old, James C. Lisk, twenty-eight, a radio operator, faces life each day with a pleasant, sunny disposition and a welcoming smile to visitors.

Lisk has established an unusual friendship with Hampton Buchanan in Adelaide, Australia, 9,200 miles distant, whom he has grown to know intimately during the last four years, but has never seen.

This acquaintance is the bright spot in Lisk's life and is one of the reasons why he looks forward to each new day with a pleasure lacking in most invalids.

The strange friendship began four years ago. Lisk lay in bed, his radio in operation, when the faint call of a remote station caused him to reach for the key and begin rapping out staccato clicks in answer to the Australian operator.

Soon the two men, separated by thousands of miles, were engaged in conversation. Thus did the casual meeting begin and soon ripen into a close friendship that has been uninterrupted daily since.

At present Lisk is concentrating in communication with the Byrd expedition at the bottom of the world. When the Eleanor Bolling, one of Commander Richard Byrd's ships, was steaming toward the Antarctic, Lisk held a two-way communication with the radio operator on board.

France Plans to Seek

Health in Nudity Camp

Paris.—The movement in France to "return to nature" by removal of clothes has been given impetus by the arrival here of the German apostle of nudity Herr Zimmerman. Zimmerman came to Paris to confer with his colleagues in this country regarding the establishment of a health camp for members of the nudity society in France.

"You can have little idea of the moral revolution brought about by nudism," he said. "I believe that humanity can only be saved from evil by the practice of complete naturism. I also believe that this regeneration must be international in character. This is the reason I have come here to see M. de Mongeot and his friends who are soon to open a camp."

Zimmerman founded a health camp at Klingberg near Luebeck, 25 years ago for persons who preferred to stroll about without clothing. Since the war the movement has grown rapidly and it is now claimed that it has 10,000 members in Germany.

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT SHRIKE BIRDS

"THE birds," said the Sandman, "are frightened of Mr. Northern Shrike who has black wings and a black tail with touches of white. He has a black spot behind the eye and his body is of a grayish black color."

"He is about the size of a robin, and I must tell you later about the one I saw the other day. I've been seeing a good many birds this season. Of course the Northern Shrikes come down to us in the winter time."

"There is a kind of a sociability about the birds that somehow is always especially to be noticed. At least, I have noticed it. The other day, for example, I saw a lot of friendly cowbirds having a regular afternoon chat in a field."

"I don't know when I've seen so many of them together."

"And I saw a group of lovely bluebirds high up in the air having a so-able time with each other, talking in their soft, beautiful voices.

"Mr. Northern Shrike has cousins named Loggerhead Shrikes. The Loggerheads wear white waistcoats and their black touches are blacker than those of the Northern Shrikes—for though I said the Northern Shrikes have black touches often it's a gray black and the Loggerheads don't care for gray."

"The Loggerheads are a little smaller than the Northern Shrikes. They whistle in their harsh way and they build their nests in thickets of twigs and leaves."

"They lay about five or six or even seven eggs so that many little Loggerheads come along to do the cruel things their family has always delighted in doing.

"Shrikes, it is true, eat grasshoppers and small mice, but they eat little birds, too. And they kill more than they can eat and leave their food hanging upon thorns or twigs, so that often they are called butcher birds—because their homes look like butcher shops."

"The Northern Shrikes have breasts which are barred. They have feet which are like the feet of other small birds and it is almost impossible for them to hold their prey in their grasp. So they hang it on thorns and tear the bits they want to eat from these hooks of theirs by pulling with their beaks."

"But they leave a great deal on the thorns which they do not want to eat, and that is the worst part of them. For they have eyes which are bigger than their stomachs, as the saying is. They think they want more to eat than they really can eat."

"And, too, it shows such a horrid nature to want to kill little birds, even when they're sure they have enough to eat in the home as it is!

"But Mr. Northern Shrike was fooled the other day. He was looking out of his cruel eyes and seeing what there was about for him when suddenly he noticed there seemed to be no birds about at all."

"What had happened! He couldn't understand."

"And what do you suppose had happened?"

"I can't possibly guess," said Nancy.

"Neither can I," said Nick.

"Tell us, please," urged Nancy.

"A brave little robin had warned the other birds that the shrike was nearby."

"Yes, he had been brave and had risked his life going to warn the other birds."

"And he had escaped, too!"

"Oh, how mad Mr. Northern Shrike was! I wanted to have a good hunt today," he said to himself. "This weather is so bracing and makes me feel like marketing in my usual wild fashion."

"But Mr. Northern Shrike was not to do his marketing in the way he had planned."

"He was not going to find birds in the market, for the birds had all been warned away and he grumbled to himself:

"Birds aren't in the market today. Wretched, wretched, wretched!"

"But the birds, as you may imagine didn't think it was wretched at all."

"They were thankful they were safe ly away from Northern Shrike."

U. S. POPULATION GROWS RAPIDLY

Census Head Expects It to Reach 120,000,000 Next Year.

Washington.—The population of the United States is now increasing at the rate of about 1,400,000 persons a year, or about one person every 23 seconds, according to William M. Steuart, director of the census bureau of the Department of Commerce, who recently outlined the scope of the work to be done in taking the 1930 census.

"The total increase," said Mr. Steuart, "is made up of the annual excess of births over deaths, which amounts to an additional 240,000 per year. By 1930 the population will be more than thirty times as great as it was in 1790, and nearly twice what it was in 1890, or only 40 years ago."

The census figure for 1790 was 3,829,214 and for 1890 the total population was 62,947,714. The census taken in 1920 showed a population of 105,710,620. The census bureau has made an estimate of population on July 1, 1927, as 120,710,620.

Census Knowledge an Asset.
"History records no other instance in which the population has increased so rapidly," said Mr. Steuart. "Further, there has been no other nation in which the increase in population has been accompanied by such improvement in the comfort and well being of the people. As a statistician, I believe this advancement has been due in no small degree to the definite knowledge we have of our production, our resources, our facilities for transportation, and our population as expressed in current statistics."

It required 13 months to take the first United States census in 1790. In taking the 1930 census the director will be required in one month to enumerate more than 120,000,000 people.

"The 4,000,000 people who lived in the United States in 1790," said Mr. Steuart, "occupied a territory of 868,000 square miles, there being 4.5 persons for each square mile of territory. The present area of continental United States is 2,974,000 square miles and the average population per square mile in 1930 will be more than forty, or nearly ten times the earlier average."

"In 1790 there were in the United States only six cities having as many as 8,000 inhabitants. The population of these cities formed a little more than 3 per cent of the total population of the country. In 1920 there were 924 such cities and their population was nearly 44 per cent of the total."

"Including the population of smaller cities—down to those with 2,500 inhabitants, the urban population of the United States in 1920 formed a little more than half of the total and the rural a little less than half, while the farm population taken alone formed less than 30 per cent."

A Nation of Cities.
"It appears, therefore, that we are becoming more and more a nation of cities. But there are strong factors operating against this tendency. One of the most potent of these is the automobile. You may be obliged to work in a city, but if you own a car you can readily live out in the more spacious regions of hollyhocks, roses and vegetable gardens."

"There are some who prophesy that by reason of this growth of suburban residential areas, the 1930 census will not show the usual increase in the proportion of urban population."

"The first census recorded only the name of the head of the family and the number of persons in the family, distributed into four or five groups or classes. The family of John Hancock, for example, was reported as comprising two white males over sixteen years of age, three white females and seven other free persons, not white, who were presumably negro servants."

"There are about 3,100 counties, 17,000 incorporated cities, boroughs and villages, ranging in size all the way from the little village of Dering Harbor, N. Y., which at the last census could boast of a total of three inhabitants, to the great metropolises of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia."

Admit They Don't Like Women Smoker

Syracuse, N. Y.—A few side lights on students of Syracuse university were revealed recently by the results of questionnaires circulated among them by Prof. Julian D. Corrington of the zoology department.

Of the 85 collegians taking the test, 30 admitted falling in and out of love at random, 57 said they were cracked, 44 devoted cantaloupe sans seasoning, and 51 are "agin" the present-day usurpation of gentlemen's smoking rights by women.

The professor said he gave the tests not as a psychological experiment but as a means of discovering variations of thought among the students. They were allowed three seconds in which to answer each question.

1268 acres would make a big farm

AT Milford, Michigan, 1268 acres have been made—not into a farm—but into a Proving Ground for automobiles.

Long before your General Motors car is built, specimen models are sent to the Proving Ground. This fleet is tested in actual use. It has to meet every bad driving condition, from heart-breaking hills to slam-bang bumps.

But that isn't all. Other cars of American and European manufacture are bought and put through the same tests, so that General Motors always knows how its products compare with others.

The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil and tire economy; body strength—every phase of car construction and performance.

When the specimen cars are finally able to meet every test, they are sent back to the factory. The car you buy is made exactly like them.

The next time you examine a General Motors car in your dealer's showroom, think of those 1268 acres. They would make a big farm. But they make a better promise of proved car value.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"GUIDE ME, O THOU GREAT JEHOVAH"

WHEN we sing the words of this powerful hymn we have a consciousness of life's trials, of battles and of strife. And it was in a heart torn with trials and a mind fired against opposition, that the lyric which has been sung wherever English is spoken had its inspiration.

The author, William Williams, was born in Wales in 1717. Though first a doctor, he studied for the ministry of the Church of England. Independent and liberty loving, however, his disposition was against the rulings of the "Successors" who were at that time the bone of contention within the church. The English bishops were stern in repression of such sentiments, and Williams became a Methodist or Wesleyan, preaching in this denomination for 40 years. He is said to have done for liberalism in Wales what Wesley did for England and Luther for Germany.

It was during the time of his difficulties with his bishops, while he was pitting himself against the "powers that be," nature frowned and thundered in accord with his inner turmoil, that Williams penned with his goosequill the words which have brought his name down through the centuries as one of his sermons, powerful as they were, would have done.

Guide me, O thou Great Jehovah,
Pilgrim through this barren land;
I am weak, but Thou art mighty,
Hold me with Thy powerful hand.

BY-PRODUCTS

THE annual report of a well-known motor company for 1928 states that the total sales of its by-products were nearly seventeen million dollars, an increase of about a million and a half dollars over the previous year. Everything that is cast aside in the process of production in the plants is utilized. From the waste wood, charcoal is made, also a few chemicals. Of the fourteen elements made from the by-products, ammonium sulphate was sold in large quantities to farmers for fertilizing purposes. Benzol was sold as a motor fuel and brought in nearly a million and a half dollars. Large quantities of slag was used for surfacing roads. Thus all of the fourteen by-products were used for constructive purposes. Nothing is ever thrown away as waste.

The economic problem of waste is of vital concern, not only to large manufacturing establishments but also to large cities. In a recent issue of a leading magazine attention was called to the financial value of the 1,800 tons of rubbish and garbage which the city of New York annually dumps into the sea. The article stated, "A few years ago an engineer of the bureau of municipal research estimated that the city was paying three million dollars annually for dumping nearly five million dollars of values into the sea;" also that the total loss caused by smoke in New York was estimated by the department of public health at ninety-six million dollars and that leaky plumbing alone caused a daily loss of twenty thousand dollars.

Perhaps an even more serious problem is suggested not by the waste of material by-products but by the waste of human energy. Misdirected energy is waste and its evaluation in terms of dollars would be exceedingly high could it be properly estimated. Misdirected energy is always a negative process. It not only fails to create values but positively destroys, for it lowers ambition, vitality and the realizing sense of a definite life purpose. Endeavoring with all our might to do the thing we can best do, and not wasting time and energy in trying to accomplish what we were never born to do, argues for the conservation of energy and the avoidance of many of the social and economic failures in life.

Resumption of its battle against the White Pine blister rust on a much larger scale than last year is scheduled for next month. A. G. Carton of the State Department, of Agriculture, announced. A force of 10 men will be sent into the field to protect Michigan's pine forests from a disease which threatens to wipe them out. Their work will be financed by $20,000 appropriation of the 1929 legislature which approved the battle. "Information given us by the school children last year will be the biggest asset we have as we enter the drive to rid Michigan of this plant disease," director Carton said. Some was found at Indian River.

THAT NIGHT HE DIED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THAT day he passed
A little child
And, as he passed it,
Stopped and smiled,
He brought his paper
At the square,
And left an extra
Penny there,
And then went on
And quite forgot
The paper-woman
And the tot.
For many duties
Business brings,
Yes, greater matters,
Larger things.

That night he died
And people said,
Who heard the news,
"So Smith is dead."
And Smith was troubled
As he lay
Within his little
House next day:
His gold was dust,
His fame was dim,
He had no gifts
To take with him.
"What chance," thought he,
"Has one who stands
Before God's gate
With empty hands?"

At last he stood
Before the gate,
As all must stand,
And all must wait,
And then its mighty
Hinges swung,
And welcome all
The angels sung.
Was it not written
In the Book,
Where Peter, God
And all might look?
Two things they found
Recorded there—
A baby's tear.
A woman's prayer.

Why We Do What We Do

By M. E. THOMSON, Ph. D.

MISERY LOVES COMPANY

WE ARE very exclusive when it comes to honors and preferment; we are very democratic when it comes to misfortune and calamity. Misery loves company. There is a great consolation in seeing others in the same fix. We know then we are not singled out by fate. It does not seem quite so personal. We can escape by blaming fate and our lack of ability. People who have lived side by side for many years on the same street are sometimes comparative strangers until a great fire or earthquake comes along and makes them friends. Calamity unites men; good fortune separates them.

Survivors of the Titanic although of different social strata were so united by the common disaster that they organized a club. A war unites people as nothing else does. Suffering together knits men's hearts together.

When we get into serious trouble we like to point out how others are in the same fix so as to lessen the sting. It cannot be very bad if the experience is a common one.

If others are in the same fix they will not laugh at us. They are more likely to sympathize. We resent the fellow who is smug and complacent. We like to have him descend to our level. We like him better after he falls—even though we cease to envy him.

Misery loves company because there is everything to gain and nothing to lose by sharing misfortune. The more people involved the less responsible we become and the more sympathy and less ridicule we get.

SHE HAS HEARD THAT—
If you have promised your "one and only" to marry him and you want your days of courtship to run smoothly, the first morning after you have "wedded" him be sure to walk down stairs backward—for that will tell the world that you have turned your back on all your old sheiks.

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

HORSEHAIRS

IT IS a rather common practice for boys to place a horsehair in water with the belief that it will turn into a snake. A few years ago this superstition was very prevalent—perhaps it is as common now—and though no boy ever saw the expected transformation you could not convince the young necromancer that it was not liable to take place.

It is a curious fact that some superstitions engendered in the mind of primitive man, and brought over from his day, are continued through adult life in the "persisting primitive" in modern man; while others of like origin prevail only during childhood and are dropped as the "repression" of advancing years cause the mind to become less distinctly and generally in harmony with that of the cave-dweller.

The horsehair superstition is one of the latter sort. In it the child exhibits a strong atavism. Our aboriginal ancestors were firm believers in the power of the hair to retain some sort of life after its severance from the body, and also in the reproductive power of water which was yearly exhibited before their very eyes when the rain made the crops grow. The combination of a hair and water ought, naturally, to produce some form of life. This is the atavism which the child has, but which he is unconscious of possessing. The child's mind is, in essentials, the primitive mind and the child conducts the rest of his experiment just as his skin-clad ancestor would have done had the idea occurred to him to try it. Perhaps the skin-clad ancestor did try it—who knows? A coarse horsehair suggests a small snake. Therefore the horsehair placed in the reproductive element of water will become a snake—a cave-man's Q. E. D.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

LIVING TO BE A HUNDRED

SOME time ago a man in Los Angeles celebrated his ninety-ninth birthday. More interesting than the mere anniversary however was the fact that twenty years ago he wrote a book with the title "How to Live One Hundred Years and Grow Old Gracefully."

Any man who can write a book with that title and then demonstrate his theory by actually coming "with-in one" of accomplishing a century (and he says he will live many years beyond that mark) is entitled to attention.

We do not know the man's name, but we venture that he has two marked characteristics.

Regular habits—that he has eaten in moderation and slept the proper hours at the regular times.

Cheerfulness—that he has not worried and that he has made the best and THOUGHT the best of whatever his ninety-nine years have brought him.

The human body is much like other machines. It has to have care. If you run it at top speed too long and particularly if while you are running fast you do not watch out to see that the bearings are well oiled you will have a breakdown.

There are plenty of physical speed maniacs. They stay up till all hours of the night, they abuse their digestions and overtax the whole mechanism of their bodies and then wonder why one day something snaps and they have to lay up for repairs.

Work has seldom ever killed a man or even made him ill. It is when men think they are resting that they do themselves the most damage.

If you want to live to be a hundred work earnestly and rest reasonably.

There is one character in the Bible that has always seemed to be deserving of considerable sympathy. That was Job.

Job worried something terrible. He always thought something was going to happen to him and as a result a good deal did happen.

The fact that he died "old and full of days" seems to have been despite his anxieties. If he had been a cheerful soul there is no knowing how long he would have lived.

Cheerfulness is a great tonic. A laugh is the best kind of medicine.

When you just smile you exercise more than a score of muscles and when you laugh heartily you bring into action more than a hundred.

Lord Bacon, who was a very wise man, said: "To be cheerfully disposed is one of the best precepts of long fasting."

You can best measure your life by what you accomplish, by the good you do, by the contributions you make to the world's store of happiness and well being.

Some day as man increases in intelligence, as he lives more wisely, a hundred years will not be considered a great age.

Then the average man will be able to devote twenty-five years to getting ready to live, fifty to seventy years to actual living and accomplishment and ten or twenty to the enjoyment of what he has done with an occasional hour devoted to the mistakes he has made.

We ought to be able to accomplish something worth while when that time comes.

Goodness does not more certainly make men happy, than happiness makes them good.—Landon.

A good word is as soon to travel as an ill one.—Eliot.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

TAKE the ordinary hamburger steak with plenty of suet to enrich it, season well with salt, pepper, a pinch of cloves, a little onion juice and make into small flat cakes. Wrap in thin slices of bacon, fasten with a toothpick and broil until well cooked. Serve hot with spinach.

Candy Bar Ice Box Cake.

Line a shallow tin with waxed paper, cover with sponge cake and a layer of sliced candy bar. Cream one-half cupful of butter with one-half cupful of sugar (powdered), add three eggs, one at a time, and beat well. Flavor with vanilla and fold in one cupful of thick whipping cream well whipped. Spread one-half of this mixture over the candy, add another layer of sponge cake, candy and cream. Set in the ice box for 24 hours.

Marshmallow Fruit Delight.

Cut up one-half pound of marshmallows, let stand in two cupfuls of strawberry juice over hot water until softened. Whip one cupful of cream, add one-fourth cupful of sugar or more if needed. Beat well and fold in the fruit. Chill for one hour. Serve in glasses lined with lady fingers or in sponge cake cases. Top with a rose of cream.

Here are a few first-course salads which are so well liked by many hostesses: Each is served on a bed of lettuce and with french dressing.

For each portion allow one slice of pineapple, three sections of grapefruit and one-half an orange.

Another—Allow for each portion one-half a banana, one-half an orange and six red cherries.

For each portion allow one-half an orange, one-half a cantaloupe cut into balls or cubes and six white grapes.

New Cabbage Salad.

Shred a pint of cabbage very fine and chill in cold water for an hour. Drain and marinate with french dressing. Prepare a cupful of finely cut celery, one apple cut into fine cubes, season with french dressing and combine the two, adding a generous spoonful of mayonnaise to each salad plate.

from embarrassment

Guests arriving unexpectedly just before dinner need not cause you embarrassment. There may not be enough ice cream and cake to go around, but you can call the corner grocer and order more, unknown to your guests. You can do it, that is, if you have an extension telephone—in the kitchen, for example. Then you cannot be heard in other parts of the house.

An extension telephone costs only a few cents a day

To Wed an American GLYCERIN MIXTURE STOPS CONSTIPATION

The simple mixture of glycerin, buckthorn bark, saline, etc. (Adlerika) acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and relieves constipation in TWO hours! Brings out old waste matter you never thought was in your system. Don't waste time with pills or remedies which clean only PART of the bowels, but let Adlerika give stomach and bowels a REAL cleaning and see how good you feel.—GIDLEY & MAC, Druggists. adv.

Particular
Ho—Why did you mark that cross on the gate? Those people fed us.
Bo—True, but I just don't like the way that cook makes her steak.

Everybody Knows Everything
Jones—The missionary said one-half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives.
Smith—That isn't true in this town.

Don't argue; then you won't lose your temper; and when you lose your temper you lose your friends.

Don't Let Your Community Make the Same Mistake

Within recent years many communities have made the mistake of paving their roads and streets at what they considered a "bargain price." The taxpayers thought they would save thousands of dollars.

In many instances the maintenance has not only wiped out the hoped for saving, but has exceeded original cost. And in many cases also it has been necessary to build entirely new pavements—of permanent construction.

There are communities, however, which know the cheapest is not always the best. Many of these also built roads and streets several years ago. And they built for permanence with concrete.

These concrete pavements, built in accordance with approved standards of construction, are in as good condition today as when they were built.
