County Fair at East Jordan Next Week

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY'S FORTY-FIFTH ANNUAL OPENS TUESDAY.

The forty-fifth annual exhibit of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Association will be held at East Jordan next week Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 27-28-29-30.

Preparations have been under way since last fall, and, with exception of minor details, next week's annual promises to be the best in the 45 years existence. As Secretary, Kit Carson puts in—"all we need now is some good weather."

Unusual interest is being shown in the draft horse and mule pulling contest, which will be a new feature at the Fair this year.

The contest is divided in two divisions—light class, which includes teams weighing under 3,000 pounds; and heavy class, for teams 3,000 lbs. or over. First, second, third and fourth prizes of $40, $30, $20 and $10 are posted for winners in each class.

Prizes totalling $62 are being offered for winners in the boys' and girls' dairy club exhibit. This division covers Jerseys, Guernseys, Holsteins, any other dairy breed showing and a prize of $5 for the grand champion of the exhibit. The contest is open to only dairy club members and both grades and pure-breds may compete in the same classes. Club members must have their record books and stories filed with County Agent Mellencamp on or before Oct. 15 to receive premiums awarded at the Fair.

In the girls' canning club division, which is also sponsored by County Agent Mellencamp, a total of $44 in prizes are posted. Awards will be made on the best club of 40 jars of fruits and vegetables representing budget for family of five members for four weeks; best individual collection of six jars of fruits and vegetables in each club; best individual collection of six glasses of jellies and jams in entire county; best individual collection of three jars of canned meats in entire county and best individual collection in exhibit.

Fair-goers are asked to keep in mind the $2,000 in prizes to be given away on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the Fair. Ask your merchants for tickets whenever you make purchases and be on hand for the drawings.

PRAISES WORK OF ROGERS CONSTRUCTION CO.

[The following article appeared in the Petoskey Evening News of Aug. 6th.]

Detour troubles west of the city on U S-31 will be eliminated after Thursday, Aug. 8, when the new cement road will be opened to motor traffic. The new strip which runs to a point just beyond the plant of the Petoskey Portland Cement Company, eliminates several dangerous curves, and is a credit to the workmanship of the contractor, the Rogers Construction Company.

News Corrects Self
In the issue of July 5, The Evening News carried a story to the effect that work was lagging on this project, and inferring the work was going slowly.

Subsequent investigation discloses that the Rogers Construction Company has completely carried out its contract with the State and in several instances had finished work ahead of the specified time.

The contract with the State called for grading to start May 15 and be completed by Aug. 1. This was finished ahead of time as were the drainage structures. Pouring cement was to start July 15. This was started ahead of the mentioned date and completed Aug. 3.

From the above facts it will be seen that the Rogers Construction Company of East Jordan has carried out its contract with the State, and that any criticism that has been voiced regarding the dates in the contract is not applicable to the construction company. The Evening News gladly makes this correction.

A new contract from the cement plant to Bay Shore will be advertised August 12, the new road being relocated, leaving the present road for use as a detour, according to plans now contemplated by the state authorities.

GRAND RAPIDS WHOLESALE HERE SEPT. 20

The itinerary for the good will tour under the auspices of the Grand Rapids Wholesalers' division of the Association of Commerce has been arranged for Sept. 17 to 20. The trip will be by special train. Morley, Stanwood, Big Rapids, Paris, Reed City, Orono, Ashton, LeRoy, Tustin and Cadillac will be visited the first day.

The second day's program will take in Manton, Walton Junction, Fife Lake, South Boardman, Kalkaska, Leetsville, Antrim, Mancelona, Alba, Elmira, Boyne Falls and Boyne City.

Leaving Boyne City the Grand Rapids visitors will continue to Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Ellsworth the third day, making an automobile trip to East Jordan and then visiting Central Lake and Bellaire after having returned to the train.

The final day's schedule provides for stops at Alden, Rapid City, Elk Rapids, Williamsburg, another auto tour and after visiting Traverse City the Grand Rapids party will start home.

School Starts Sept. 9th

SUPT. DUNCANSON ANNOUNCES REASON FOR DELAY.

Supt. A. J. Duncanson announces that the local schools will open Monday, Sept. 9th instead of the first Monday in September as heretofore.

The delay is caused by the fact that at present the newly-endorsed Rural Agricultural School District is without officers. These will be elected next Monday night, Aug. 26th. As soon as the directors are elected and organized, action will be taken to secure suitable busses for the transferring of school pupils, and the arranging of a running schedule.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY LABOR DAY PICNIC

The annual County Picnic at Whiting Park under the auspices of farmers and merchants association of the county will be held Sept. 2.

A meeting of the Park Board was recently held and the usual permission was cheerfully granted the association to make use of the park on the coming occasion.

Each of the three cities in the county will have a committee headed by a chairman that will look after the representation in their portion of the territory. It is proposed to have band music, base ball game, tug-of-war, quoit pitching contest, running races for all ages, a greased pig, sack race, three-legged race, a greased pole, all with prizes which are open to residents of the county. There will be coffee and doughnuts served free, tables will be provided for those who bring their dinners in baskets.

This annual Picnic is county-wide, held in the County Whiting Park, on the south shore of the lake, one of the pleasantest locations in the State, endowed with natural beauty and improved amazingly for the past several years. It has a lake side drive and swimming beach, a flowing well of purest water, improved drive ways, and observation fire tower owned by the State, in charge of a watchful custodian, who may allow you to climb up and view the beautiful surroundings.

Everybody in the County is invited to come with their friends and celebrate Labor Day together. There will be no charges of any kind.

B. C. MELLENCAMP, County Agr'l Agent.

Saleslady: "Funeral wreaths, life preservers, invalid cushions and doughnuts."

"What was the most difficult part of the civil service exam you took at the postoffice?"

COUNTY FAIRS EDUCATE THE PEOPLE

At this time many people are engaged in preparations for the coming County Fair of their section. These fairs may be looked forward to as a means of earning some pin money, but they serve as a big educator for all communities, although the people may not at once realize it.

For instance, when careful selections of products are made to participate in contests for prizes, all knowledge concerning the perfection of the products is called into play, and the result of this is bigger and better products. Every year the winning products are carefully examined, and thus people are educated as to the best type of products to grow.

In the case of livestock the same holds true, as the breeders try to reach the same standard and even a better one than that of first prize winner. Even people who do not enter the contests learn to appreciate good stock.

Thus we are gradually increasing our knowledge unconsciously by attending and participating in County Fairs.

In order to be happily married a girl might try marrying a fellow so homely that no other girl wants him.

Latest bandit fad is to take a girl friend along staging holdups. Femininity, it appears, provides moral support.

TOP O' MICHIGAN POTATO AND APPLE SHOW

The premiums to be offered at the Seventh Annual Top O' Michigan Potato and Apple Show at Gaylord, Oct. 30 to Nov. 1, will be the greatest in the history of the Show, according to A. C. Lytle, Secretary. Last year the premiums and prizes totaled over $1,600. This year additional premiums and prizes will make the amount paid out to exhibitors and contestants nearly $1,800.

The principal change allows for a first, second and third prize of $5.00, $3.00 and $2.00 respectively for each county in the Association, provided there are three or more exhibits worthy of such a prize. In the past there has been only one prize of $5 for the best exhibit from each county. This change alone raises the premium list $60.00.

The other important addition to the prize list is the awarding of $100 to the leading potato grower of Michigan for a trip to Prince Edward Island next summer. This prize is awarded upon several factors, with 25 per cent allowed for yield, 25 per cent for quality, 25 per cent for ability to grade and 25 per cent for ability to pick an exhibit of 32 potatoes.

There have been no changes in the amount of money to be paid in the apple classes. A total of $385.00 is the same as was paid last year.

In the Boys' and Girls' Club classes there are no changes in the money paid out, but the students of the Smith-Hughes Vocational Agricultural Schools will compete with the Boys' and Girls' Clubs.

The Grading Contest, Apple Pie Baking Contest, and Potato Paring Contest will receive the same awards as last year. The annual Top O' Michigan town and country choir singing contest will be held as usual.

The premium books which are now about ready to go to press, will be available for distribution, Sept. 1, and will be sent to all on regular mailing list. Those who are not on regular mailing list may request copy from their County Agent or write direct to A. C. Lytle, Secretary, Top O' Michigan Potato and Apple Show, Gaylord, Mich.

ALBERT V. MILES PASSED AWAY SUNDAY, AUG. 18

Albert V. Miles was born in Homer, New York, March 5, 1868, and passed away Aug. 18, 1929, after a lingering illness of three years, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clyde Strong of East Jordan.

He came to Michigan at the age of ten years with his parents, Levi and Alvira Miles, and located on a farm in South Arm Township, which has ever since been his home.

He was united in marriage to Mattie D. Holben on August 12, 1889. Four children were born to this union. Besides the wife, he is survived by three children: Eugene of Ellsworth, Kelle of Lansing, and Mrs. Clyde Strong of East Jordan. Also two grandchildren, Donald and Madelon Miles of Lansing. He also leaves a host of friends and other relatives to mourn his loss.

He served for many years as a member of the Miles District School Board and Board of Supervisors in a faithful, efficient manner.

The community has lost a loyal citizen and a kind neighbor.

"He lived in a house by the side of the road and was a friend to man."

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his daughter, conducted by Elder Leonard Dudley. Interment at Jones cemetery.

SILLS AND MACKAILL TRIUMPH IN DRAMA OF CARNIVAL LIFE

Reports from every city or town where "The Barker" has been shown, are to the effect that this George Fitzmaurice special production for First National Pictures is one of the finest offerings of the season. Local film patrons will have a chance to see for themselves when the film opens next Thursday and Friday at the Temple Theatre.

Milton Sils and Dorothy Mackaill are co-starred and a fine cast of supporting players includes Betty Compson, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Sylvia Ashton, John Irwin, S. S. Simon, George Cooper and others.

The picture deals with carnival life, a third-rate traveling troupe whose internal dissensions cause the dramatic episodes which culminate in near tragedy.

It is with deep interest that local film lovers await this new Milton Sils picture.

Holding his nose to the grindstone will not sharpen a man's wits.

A Splendid Service

HELD AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH LAST SUNDAY.

Last Sunday morning the people of East Jordan, in very large numbers, took advantage of the opportunity to hear the high quality of religious talent that is in Charlevoix County during the resort season.

The Presbyterian Church was crowded to capacity by the expectant multitude who assembled for the Sequanota service. All the pews were full and chairs had to be placed in all the remaining available space, both in the auditorium and the side room.

It was not only a capacity congregation, it was varied in scope and in occupation. The writer has personal knowledge that at least fourteen States were represented, and the probability is that there were many more. At least nine clergymen are known to have been present, including some of the ministers of outstanding reputation in the country. Some ministers had inquired months in advance when this service was to be, in order that they might arrange to be present at it. Several College Professors were in attendance, and the people of East Jordan and vicinity were present in large and appreciative numbers.

The music was reverential, dignified and of soul stirring quality. Prof. John Thompson, of Knox College, played the pipe organ in such a manner as to usher the reverent worshippers into the conscious presence of God.

The quartet that led the congregational singing also brought the hearers to a sense of profound trust in the great Pilot of life as they sang with flawless technique and heart gripping feeling the anthem "Jesus Savior Pilot Me." The personnel of the quartet was Prof. Mueller, who has charge of the music in the First Baptist Church of Minneapolis; Prof. Bentley, who heads the vocal music in Knox College; Miss Helen Mueller, of the Conservatory of Music in Madison, Wis.; and Miss Edith Thompson, who the coming year will be in charge of the vocal music in Wilson College.

Dr. George Buttrick, the preacher of the morning, is pastor of the Madison Ave., Presbyterian Church of New York City. He is simple and unaffected and unspoiled by the fact that he is the author of a book that has made a deep impress in the religious thought of the twentieth century, and the further fact that he is sought after to supply the largest churches of the country in his vacation period.

His text was: "Blessed are the Pure in Heart for They Shall See God." It was a simple, straight forward heart to heart talk with the hearers of some of the deepest realities of life and of the high privilege of the human soul. The language was chaste and beautiful and forceful. It was an example that purity of heart and depth of thought and best expressed through words that let the truth shine through as the sunlight comes best through the purest air. The naturalness of the delivery and the sympathetic manner was evidence that the preacher did not wish the hearers to think of him; he wished them to see God.

Dr. Buttrick beautifully brought out what it means to see God, and that we cannot see Him as we should through the medium of alien affections or a stained imagination; that what we see is colored by what we are and only as we approach purity in heart, affection, imagination, can we begin to see God as He is.

While the large congregation was pleased and delighted with the service the dominant thought expressed was of moral and religious uplift, and an increased appreciation of the glory of the soul in its capacity to see God. There was in the heart the echo of the words of the hymn: "I Have Walked With God Today."

CENTRAL LAKE

(Edited by Jesse Morse)

Twenty-two people were at Bay View Sunday School, although many were at Eastport.

Miss Lois Blakely, daughter of E. V. Blakely of the West Mich. Development Bureau, returned to her home in Grand Rapids last week.

C. H. Morse returned to Lansing Monday after a short-visit here. He is doing carpenter work on a house for O. R. Morse.

Gerald DeForest is home from Ypsilanti, where he has been attending summer school. He is out of his position as teacher at Chestonia on account of East Jordan's consolidation.

E. B. Neuman of Grand Rapids, and his wife, left for home Monday, after resorting a few days at the Blakely cottage.

Prof. W. S. Perry, formerly Supt. of Schools here, but now of Pinconning, was calling on people here last week in the interest of Educational Pub. Co.

Lambert DeVries and wife returned from a short visit to Zeeland to look after their crops. Mr. Carson, also of Zeeland is visiting here.

Two boys ditched their car at Larabee's corners, north of town, Saturday night. This is a bad embankment, and should be railed. Many accidents have occurred there this summer.

Raymond Lamereaux, formerly of this place, but now of the U. S. Navy out of Philadelphia, has been visiting for a short time at the Abe Arnold home. He returns Tuesday.

Clare Savage and family who have been visiting at Traverse City and Creswell, are back on the farm again. He is not working the farm this summer.

O. R. Morse hired Harry Simmons Friday to take two cows, 50 chickens, and his household goods to South Lansing, where Mr. Morse and family will reside in the future.

The Perches family who have been residing at the Edwards cottage, and Mr. Helder and wife left for their homes at Ann Arbor and Muir last week, after a short visit here.

Mrs. Lizzie Harris, whose husband was a former hardware merchant at Eastport, has purchased the Kauffman log cabin of Ray Wilkinson and Ray is moving to her place a few rods south this week.

Philip Ohman is able to superintend S. S. at Creswell again. He also helped with the Baptist choir last Sunday at their dedication exercises at Eastport.

Quite a crowd attended the Gleaner picnic at Eastport last Thursday. As usual, the Gidley ice cream of East Jordan supplied the wants of the people. The ball game in the forenoon between Creswell and Central Lake was won by Central Lake. Bellaire won from Central Lake in the afternoon.

The Baptist Church was filled to overflowing (estimated three hundred people) at their dedication exercises last Sunday. There were ten preachers present from different points. Rev. H. V. Gould, a pastor 21 years ago, preached in the forenoon. Rev. Andem, state secretary presided in the afternoon.

Another sure way to break a drought is to wash your car to go to the annual Sunday school picnic.

Harrietta — John Henderson, 77 years old, who drove the last stage coach from Traverse City to Cadillac, died after a sunstroke. With Mrs. Henderson he observed his fiftieth wedding anniversary June 30.
Lansing—Clarence M. Booth, of Detroit, has played golf 33 years but it remained for him to score his first hole-in-one here while competing in the Michigan traffic men's golf association-summer tournament.
Jackson—Ward T. Johnston, 25 years old, of Rives Junction, was killed when he came in contact with an electric wire at the Consumers' Power Co. plant on North Mechanic street, where he was employed. He leaves a wife.
Detroit—Buried under tons of salt, Mike Krebemy, 38 years old, was suffocated. He was working in a salt hopper at the Detroit Rock Salt Mine, when the salt crust gave way beneath him. Fellow workers dug him out and vainly attempted to revive him.
Bay City—Speed boat service, for passengers between Bay City and Saginaw, on the Saginaw river, has been announced by the newly formed Bay City-Saginaw Speedboat Service company. An experimental two-hour schedule will be put into effect.
Detroit—Mrs. Susan Reid, 37 years old, was seriously burned. She told police she had fallen asleep while smoking in bed. The fire was discovered by other roomers at the house, who called the police. Mrs. Reid was burned about the body, arms and head.
Pontiac—The urge to impress his companions with his daring, universal among small boys, cost Ray Cheseman, 13 years old, of Berkley, his life when he became frightened and drowned while wading in the 'Ebbets pond at the Twelve-Mile and Town line roads.
Morrice—A loss estimated at $15,000 was caused by fire which destroyed a large barn and several other buildings on the Thomas Heath farm near here. Two horses, several cows, some sheep and several hundred chickens were burned. Charles Deharr, owner of the team, was burned trying to rescue the horses.
Port Huron—A registered air mail letter, mailed in Mexico City, was received by T. C. Mann, agent here for the Grand Trunk Western Lines. The letter travelled from Mexico City to Detroit, more than 2,000 miles, in 28 hours and 25 minutes. It took 21 hours and 20 minutes to bring the letter from Detroit to Port Huron, however.

Pip—Has your son forgotten all he learned at college?

It isn't always love that enables married people to get along; sometimes it's just common sense.

Muskegon—Lottie Pickford, stage and screen actress, sister of Mary Pickford, celebrated her third marriage recently. She was married to Russell O. Gillard, an undertaker formerly of Muskegon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Allan Hunter, of Los Angeles, at the bride's Hollywood home. The honeymoon plans of the couple, it was announced, include a trip to Honolulu, after which they are to return east to live.
Lansing—The state and the railroads have agreed to spend $1,000,000 a year on signal lights at grade crossings and in removing obstructions that hide oncoming trains. They will share the cost equally, the state paying its proportion from the gasoline and weight taxes. The removal of obstructions is a new duty to be assumed by the state government. It is not definitely known yet whether the highway department may legally pay half of this cost.
Cheboygan—Over-confidence in his ability to swim, caused the death of Donald Smith, 8 years old, of Benton township, who was drowned in Black river. He proudly told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Smith, that he had learned to swim, and went to the river with a friend to practice. His companion on the bank saw him sink and fail to reappear. His father, who was summoned recovered the body in 10 feet of water after the boy had been dead for about two hours.
East Lansing—Michigan State College has entered into a conspiracy with the Michigan Central and Detroit & Mackinaw Railroads in an effort to outlaw scrub sires in Northeastern Michigan. A better sire train will be operated north of Bay City in September and farmers will be given an opportunity to exchange their scrub bulls as part payment toward the purchase of a pure bred animal. One hundred bulls will be carried in stock to supply the demand. The scrub sires will be shipped to the Detroit market.

Joshua chuckled to himself. "Ah, you thought you could get on without me, but all you did was to make a fool of yourself. And I caught you, Ben, I caught you fairly!" "Fairly, Jos," Ben agreed. "And I can't pay off the debt—except to say I'm sorry—for what happened before this."

"Sorry, eh? Ouch, damme! Burned my fingers. Well, the thing's done." He hesitated as the last charred flakes of the deadly petition floated to the floor. "Sorry eh? Matter of fact, so am I. Hanged if—ah, no, no!—d—d if I can remember what it was all about."

"Need you care, Uncle Jos?" asked Cara, between laughter and weeping. "S'pose not, s'pose not, niece," Joshua admitted. "Still—"

"Oh, won't you two shake hands?" she begged. "Can't we be a family instead of enemies?"

Her father stepped forward promptly, and after a moment Joshua met him, arm outstretched.

"God bless you, Jos!"

"Eh? Eh? Seem to have something in my eye. Mind those fingers, Ben."

The door to the outer office was flung open, Nimrod Sopher standing at attention beside it.

"His excellency the governor," boomed the lawyer, and Governor Tompkins bustled into the room, bowing to Cara, plainly puzzled by the spectacle of the Ingelplin brothers clasping hands.

"Your servant, ma'am," said his excellency. "Am I to witness a reconciliation, gentlemen? I heard the Centurion was in, and thought from your message—"

"Governor, I burned the d—n paper!" Joshua confessed. "Hang the whole Federalist party—hang Ben—hang my niece, here? Couldn't go it. Ben's learned his lesson, so's the girl. The rest of 'em—Well, they'll eat out of any feed bag we hitch on 'em, soon as they hear we know their little scheme."

A smile warmed the governor's homely features.

"You did the right thing, Joshua," he pronounced. "Party hatred is as evil a thing as personal hatred, old friend. You've found that out, I see. Good! So let's all sit down, and talk it over reasonably and—But where's Captain Fellowes gone?"

Fellowes had done all he could do, he felt. His one desire was to avoid Cara Ingelplin. If he didn't see her, perhaps he could forget her in time. At least, it would be better than trying not to look at her, struggling against the pricks of what-might-have-been, cursing himself for useless jealousy of a dead man.

CHAPTER XV

Mary McCarthy Intervenes

Fellowes had scarcely reached the waterfront when his name was called behind him in a brogue thicker than O'Shaughnessy's—"Misther Fellowes! Capt'n, sorr! Oh, Mother av God, will ye—"

And he turned to face the waddling bulk of the duenna, her tallowy features crimson for once as she panted an incoherent stream of prayers, denunciations and saints' names:

"Ain't ye got the sinse ye was born wid? Oh, holy Bridgit, the wind's clane gone out av me! Shure, 'tis me end I'm at this munit!"

In one lightning-flash of memory Fellowes reviewed the moment of his leaving the True Bounty in the Badger's quarterboat. It hadn't been imagination, after all, that glimpse of the strange creature at the cabin window, and the fragment of brogue he had thought he heard. But what on earth could be the reason for her pretending ignorance of English?

"By your leave, ma'am!" he rasped sharply. "You've deceived me many months. How d'you excuse it?"

Her face fell, and the gibbness left her speech.

"Ah, now, yer honor! Don't be ather wringin' yersef into a murderin' rage—and me no more nor fearful for a full stomach—and sorra the chance av that more often nor not, what wid the worry was on me and the fret av the say."

"That's no answer," he told her, with what he knew was mock-severity.

"Ah, but them Sifers, sorr!" she sighed. "For ever ather me becuz I tuk a bite and a sup bechune meals, and cryin' out loud if I had more nor a hunk o' salt fish to me dinner."

To save himself, Fellowes couldn't resist a smile.

"You mean you were in a convent?" he asked. "Were you expelled?"

"Thi thank ye not to asperse me repytashun," she retorted angrily. "Expelled! Divil a bit! All the ould tartar would be sayin' was: 'Mary darlin', don't ye think ye'd do better in privit service? 'Tis me loves ye like me own flesh-and-blood, but 'twas never a convent ye was born for.' And when the word come me young leddy was for settin' up a duenna, in the Portuguese style, she says: 'And here's God's owa blessed chance for ye, Mary darlin', but 'tis Portuguese ye must be, and see ye, never let on there's a drop av Irish blood into ye or a word av English on yer tongue.'"

"I still don't understand," said Fellowes, shaking his head. "You were a nun, anyway?"

"Sorra a nun. Unless ye call me nun that was housekeeper for the Irish Nuns at Lisbon, and that same by token Mother Seraphina that was born Margaret Gilhooly, thir'd daughter to ould Squire Gilhooly av the Reeks, in County Donegal, would have me come wid her when she tuk the veil for a bit av company and blanchardin by times she wasn't prayin'. But that was before I got me growth or me appetite, and shure, says she, I'd ate the convent out av its funds if I went on. But was I to blame that the dear God give me a stomach above nuns' fare?"

"So you left the convent for Miss Ingelplin's service?"

"That I did, and maany's the time I've been down on me two shinbones, thankin' the blessed saints that slat a folne, lovely, young leddy the like av her—"

"But didn't she know you were Irish?" Fellowes interrupted, his suspicions reawakened.

The duenna eyed him shrewdly.

"Not she! 'Twas a Portuguese she wanted. One that knew the way av the country, and Mother Seraphina says, says she, me young leddy wouldn't be satisfied wid—"

"Was that honest?"

"And why not?" snapped the attendant. "How was a chit of a girrl to know what was better for her? And I'll thank ye not to miscal me, that's been a good friend to ye, for all yer black scowls, and murtherin' rages, and the blood ye've spilt on the right hand and the left."

"I'm sorry," Fellowes apologized, genuinely bewildered. "But you mustn't blame me—"

"Arrah, and 'tis nobody else I'll blame, and me young leddy asettin' wid the salt tears on her cheeks, all for the way ye mishandled her, wan minute for kissin' and the next for hangin'! Think shame to yersef, sorr, that have spread misery wid yer hate, and won't see love when it comes in yer path, but turn yer back on it, and go off to seek God knows phwat!"

She paused to catch her breath, perhaps to give him an opportunity to answer; but he was speechless, fumbling for comprehension of her words.

"Ah, as shure as me name's Mary McCarthy, that was housekaper to the Irish Nuns, and for hunger sint out to wait on the swatest young leddy alive, 'tis ye are the fool av the worrld!" The beady, black eyes assumed a sympathy at odds with the spirit of the declaration. "God forgive ye, sorr," she went on softly, "do ye have to be told 'tis just yersef she loves?"

"I'm afraid you don't know what you're talking about," Fellowes protested unsteadily. "Miss Ingelplin was very fond of Captain Collishawe. He deserved her affection. That's why I feel so bad over his death."

"Oh, my glory," exclaimed Mary McCarthy. "'Tis a babe in arms ye are! Ain't ye got the sinse to know she turned down poor Capt'n Collishawe for yersef? That was why she made such a todo over him—and to her credit. A kind, gentle lamb wouldn't do a hurrt to anny maan, which is more nor the best av them deserve!"

With a strength none would have suspected, she clutched one of Fellowes' elbows, and started to propel him back to front street; but almost immediately she released him.

"Shure ye can run faster nor me that's weighted wid belly-fat," she said. "Go on, tad! Put the spurs to yer flanks, and make haste to her. There's nothin' the like av tears to wipe clane the sorriest slate. So be aisy—and on yer way."

He obeyed mechanically. The crowd in front of the Ingelplin warehouse had increased in size with the arrival of the governor, and made room for him reluctantly until Doak and Eaches recognized him, and abandoned their reminiscing to brandish musket-butts and bayonets and shout importantly:

"Stand aside, good people! Stand aside for Squire Fellowes!"

Cara, mournful and perturbed, sat at her uncle's desk, Joshua on one side of her, Ben on the other. The governor was stamping back and forth in front of the window, while Sopher orated with keen appreciation of the distinction of his audience.

"—and I can but asseverate once again, your excellency, that as the woman passed me I distinctly heard her say—or possibly 'twould be preferable to employ the word mutter—'Ah, 'tis hungry ye'll be this hour to-morrow, Mary McCarthy!'"

"She'll not be, then," asserted Fellowes.

The four men stared at him in a complex of humors, but Cara cried out spiritedly:

"That she shan't be, and I care not who'd persecute her. Besides, 'tis ridiculous, Mr. Sopher. The poor creature has no English."

"Yet we all heard her speak," Governor Tompkins pointed out temperately.

"She speaks English as well as any of us, your excellency," Fellowes interjected; "but there's no great mystery to it. She was in need of employment; she was told Miss Ingelplin would accept only a Portuguese; and lest she should lose her place she pretended ignorance of English. She abandoned her ruse because—because she had her mistress' happiness at heart."

He looked straight at Cara, and after a moment of indecision she let her eyes meet his.

"I owe a debt to Mary McCarthy," Fellowes added gently. "She showed me what I was too blind to see."

The answering light that shone in Cara's face drew him forward a step before he could check himself.

"Humph," grunted the governor. "I must get back to Government house. You might come with me, Joshua."

"Mind if I come, too?" asked Ben.

"Glad to have you," answered Joshua, linking arms with him.

In the doorway his excellency paused, and seized hold of Sopher's shoulder.

"You, too," he commanded.

"But, your excellency, I am on duty! In charge of Captain Fellowes' escort, and—"

"You come along as Fellowes' attorney," advised the governor. "He'll not require assistance here or I miss my guess."

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

The Humming Bird

The humming bird derives its name from the sound of its swiftly moving wings. It remains in the air all day, never tiring and even slips honey from the flowers, as it floats about them. This bird, like the bee is valuable in that it carries pollen from one plant to another. There are about five hundred species.

THE COUNTY FAIR

(C. F. Wadsworth in Publishers Auxiliary)

Oh, let us see the County Fair—(Forget the cost of living!) Everybody will be there

To see the show they're givin—The beef-steers broad, the cornstalks tall,

The windmills humming gaily; The meek-eyed Jersey in the stall, The races pulled off daily.

We'll go and see the fruit and grain That farmers take a pride in, And maybe find an aeroplane

That we can take a ride in. We want to see the bread and cakes; And what the high school teaches; Examine all the plows and rakes,

And note the blushing peaches. To see the fair in days of yore Was not an easy matter;

We had to rise at three or four, And all was rush and clatter; We'd feed and water Ding and Dong

And hitch them to the surrey, But now—"it rambles right along" And gets there in a hurry.

"TOO TIRED"

A healthy person never feels constantly tired. Being too tired continually is a sign of something wrong. Women who find themselves always "too tired" to be a companion and playmate to husband and children should first of all suspect the kidneys. When they are affected, good health, even life itself, is in danger. Foley Pills diuretic, a reliable valuable medicine constantly in use over 25 years, promotes sound health by stimulating kidneys and bladder to a normal healthy activity. The door closed behind the four, and as if the click of the latch had been a signal Cara rose from her chair. Her eyes were brown pools, flecked with star-glint, and it seemed to Fellowes that he was sinking gradually, gratefully, into the infinite mystery of their depths. Here, rekindled for him, was the subtle glamor that had lured him from Perenna to Lisbon, and from Lisbon aboard the True Bounty, its embers glowing rosier with every breath he drew. He leaned toward her, and suddenly she was in his arms, her lips lifted frankly to his. "Forgive me," he whispered. "Ah, dearest—" her fingers stroked his lacerated back—"I have your stripes to answer for, however innocent I was."

CHAPTER XVI

Mrs. Rhodes Makes Up Her Mind

"Easy, Pete! Whoa, thar, Paul!" Jeff Riggle caught the thong of his whip around the butt, and climbed creakily down from his seat, as the Widow Rhodes emerged from the side door of the General Armstrong into the spring twilight of the inn yard. "Late as usual," she sniffed. "Ben stop'n' off ag'in to see that hussy daown to Floyd-Jones, hey?"

"Allus b'lieve the wuss't of a man, daon't ye?" Jeff countered. "Anyone 'ud be late, carry'n' the load I did." "Tain't noticeable," she remarked, peering into the coach's empty interior.

Mrs. Dunn Owns Orioles

One of the two women to head a baseball organization in this country is Mrs. John Dunn, owner of the Baltimore International league team. She is the widow of Jack Dunn who until his death managed the Oriole club. She is not only intensely interested and enthusiastic over her new role of becoming a business woman but is making a great success of it. She attends all of their games and is an inspiration to all her team.

Some folks think the "Spirit of '76" comes in bottles.

"Naow, naow, M'randy, ye ain't give me time to flap my jaw, I was all sot to tell ye, and—"

"Go on, lummock! Tell me! Has he got his health? Haow'd he do privateer'n'?"

"Done fina. Married."

"Married!" The widow's tone was falsetto. "Aprivateer'n'! Be ye crazy?"

"Shore, he's married. Thatair Miss Ingtepin was up to Chater's. Reck'lect'?"

"Waal, I vum," exclaimed the widow. "Guess I better git my bonnet, 'n' hustia up to the Manor. They'll be needin' help more'n likely."

"Oh, they got plenty help," Jeff assured her. "Thatair Portygee woman—only she ain't Portygee, she's Irish, name o' McCarthy, and talks nigh as much as ye do, M'randy—"

"Hub! I'll thank ye not to be couplin' me with an outlandish furniner the shape of a bar'l of salt pork!"

"Shore," drawled Jeff, "but ye kin say this for a fat woman. She ain't so short in her temper."

"Any woman 'ud be short-tempered with a tight-mouthed nunny hadn't more'n boss talk on his tongue! Git along, do! Who else come with Squire?"

"Nimrod Sopher. The rest o' the Babylon Yellers stayed into the city. Spendin' prize money."

"They would," the widow observed grimly. "Anyone else?"

"That mahogany-colored feller, Tom, 'n' his niggerman—only he ain't Tom's nigger no more 'cause Squire Fellowes—or mebbe 'twas Miss Fellowes—it's kinder hard to make out haow they done it—bought him off o' Tom."

Mrs. Rhodes' eye brightened visibly. "Do tell!" she cried. "Why thatair Tom must have a heap o' money, Jeff."

"But money doan't never do a sailor no good," asserted Jeff. "And the best of 'em air uneasy fellers, allus up 'n' away, jest when ye figger ye got 'em tied daown."

"I'd like to see the man, sailor or no, could git away from me, short o' the Heavenly trump," commented the widow.

"Waal, naow, if 'twore me, thar wouldn't be no need to keep him from gittin' away," propounded Jeff. "I had it on my mind quite a time, M'randy, to talk things over with ye. 'Save yer breath,' advised Mrs. Rhodes. "Did ye hear haow much prize money Tom got?"

Jeff's response was unintelligible, and he turned to the task of unharnessing his team; but the widow reached out a lean arm, and grasped him to her.

"None o' that with me, Jeff Riggle," she ordered. "Answer my question."

"Haow'd I knaow? Ask him yerself."

"As if ye didn't worm into every bit o' news along the road," she scoffed. "Haow much?"

After a hopeless wriggle, Jeff answered sullenly:

"They do say squire give Tom all his share o' the prize money."

"Squire's share? Glory be! But haow much?"

"Four-five thousand dollars."

Her arm fell beside her.

"Land's sake! All that money for a nigger-man?"

"Squire 'n' Mis' Fellowes air purty fond o' Cuffee."

"Oh, Cuffee's a good nigger! But—All that for him! I vum! And Tom innercent as a cradle babe!"

Her head sank in reflection, while Jeff regarded her more anxiously than before.

"I got a ter'ble hunger, M'randy," he said. "Haow 'baout a snack to eat?"

She didn't hear him. Her eye was scanning the inn structure with a calculating efficiency.

"Mebbe 'twould be a good scheme to change the name," she murmured.

"Ye jest changed it," objected Jeff.

"I knaow, but the war ain't goin' to last much longer. And folks won't think much o' sojers. 'The Sailor's Rest!' That 'ud be a good one. Kludger appealin', too. Make a man feel to home. Course, we'd need a new sign, but that pig fits into any pictur', and a handy man—"

M'randy, ye ain't fixin' to throw me over?" gulped Jeff. "Ye ain't goin' to go 'n' tangle yerself with this leettle, hairy sailor that wont draw two sober breaths ashore?"

"I'll thank ye to keep a civil tongue in yer head where Tom's consarned," the widow retorted briskly. "And I ain't throwin' ye over—thar ain't nothin' betwixt us to throw, Jeff Riggle. Jest 'cause I've let ye order me 'round like I was yer wife, while the dear Lord knaows I'd never dream of bein', not while thar was a single other man left able to draw britches onto his legs, ain't no reason why ye should presume to try to boss 'n' bother me. Git along, naow! Unhitch them hosses, 'n' bed 'em daown. If ye want a bite, thar's a ham in the cold cupboard, 'n' fire for a dish o' tea."

"But whar ye goin', M'randy?" he wailed as she started to saall out of the yard.

"Goin'?" Why, of course, I'm going to see what I kin do for squire 'n' Mis' Fellowes."

"Figgerin' to marry Tom right off?" he snarled. "Mebbe he'll have somethin' to say for hisself."

"He's a sensible man, Tom is," she retorted. "And thar's more to a sailor 'n' thar is to a stage driver."

Bitterness welled up in Jeff's heart.

"Yes, and more'n one wife most gen'rally."

"Not if he's married to M'randy Rhodes," the widow returned, undisturbed. "I calc'late to keep a man so busy he won't hanker after sin—which is what I'm goin' to tell Mis' Fellowes. Not that squire ain't a decent, young man, but men air men, and all Nimrod Sopher's law learnin' won't change 'em."

(THE END.)

SPARKS CIRCUS TO EXHIBIT IN PETOSKEY

ON MONDAY, AUGUST 26

The Circus, the name of which is a household word in the United States and Canada, and now the largest giving a daily street parade, will exhibit in Petoskey on Monday, Aug. 26. Its Sparks Circus, one of the oldest and best. Enlarged in every department this season, carrying 300 people, 500 horses, and the largest collection of trained wild animals in the world, it will surely exhibit in the above city on the above date.

Among the outstanding features of Sparks Circus this season is the Nelson Family, the world's premier acrobats, seven in number. The three herds of elephants include a group of baby elephants, all being handled by ladies, under the careful guidance of their trainer, Walter McLain. Sixty laugh producers headed by America's foremost clown, Paul Wenzel, will see that you have plenty of laughs during the performance.

Other sensational features include among the many, Mlle. Rosina, the world's most daring high wire artist; Madame Harriette Guilfoyle and her leopards, and Franz Woska and his tigers. Flora Bedini and the Walter Guice troupe of riders furnish the sensational riding acts. Carlos and Etta Carreon handle the manege and high school horses, and the Sparks' rotation horses, sixteen in number. The performance concludes with a gorgeous spectacle, 'Lily of the Nile,' featuring Alice Sohn, Prima Donna, and George Sohn, Concert tenor. Don't forget the date—Monday, Aug. 26th at Petoskey.

TESTED HERDS SHOW INCREASING PROFIT

East Lansing, Aug. 20.—Records from 77 Michigan herd improvement associations indicate that the dairy methods used by members are resulting in a marked increase in the profits from their herds, is the announcement made by members of the dairy department at Michigan State College.

Nine of these Michigan herds produced an average of 500 or more lbs. of butterfat during the past year. This is five more herds of such high producing ability than were found by the testing done the preceding year.

Ninety-five herds produced between 400 and 500 pounds of butterfat per cow, and 833 herds averaged between 300 and 400 pounds. The food needed for body maintenance is not much more for a high producing cow than for a poor one, and the extra feed given to the good cow is turned into butterfat.

The dairy specialists say that profits from dairy cattle increase rapidly as the amount of butterfat produced increases. Labor costs and housing equipment needed are about the same for the good cow and for the poor one.

The nine high herds for Michigan the past year were owned by Doan Straub, Berrien County; O. J. Becker Ingham; H. M. Atwater, Allegan; Henry Meyers, Oceana; O. O. Dunham, Berrien; J. D. Wedge, Allegan; Otto Cilmore, Hillsdale; Geo. Rasner, and Carl Hansen, Menominee
