EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1929.

NUMBER 41

Change Ownership of East Jordan Electric Plant

MICHIGAN PUBLIC SERVICE CO. PURCHASE LOCAL INTERESTS.

An announcement of considerable interest, and one which will have a distinctly beneficial effect upon the future of East Jordan, was made today when the Charlevoix County Herald was given exclusive permission to formally announce the sale of the East Jordan Electric Light & Power Company to the Michigan Public Service Company.

While negotiations for the sale of the local plant have been in progress for some time, the actual transaction was not made until late last week and the new Company took actual possession last Saturday.

The Michigan Public Service Company is one of the Insull Properties and operates in most of the principal cities along the west coast of Michigan, starting just outside of Muskegon and running north to Mackinac City, then through Cheboygan south to Grayling. It serves such cities as Hart, Shelby, Whitehall, Ludington, Traverse City, Elk Rapids, Boyne City, Mackinac City, Cheboygan, Mancelona, Gaylord, Grayling and Kalkaska, besides scores of smaller communities along its properties. The general offices of the Company are located at Traverse City. The addition of the East Jordan hydro-electric and steam plants gives the company twenty generating plants, most of which are water power stations.

W. A. Wadsworth, Vice President and General Manager of the Company, was in East Jordan Monday and while here announced that L. G. Balch, for many years Superintendent of the local company, will remain as manager and that the local organization will not be disturbed but will function as usual, with the exception of being given vastly better facilities for serving the city than in the past.

One of the first moves of the new owners will be to tie in the East Jordan plants with its 33,000-volt transmission line which extends from Cheboygan to the south end of the property. All of the company's generating stations are connected with this high voltage transmission line, thus giving every city served the advantage of being able to get power from any or all of the company's power plants. By this hook-up East Jordan will be able to draw electric current from the transmission line as needed or in case of trouble in the local plant. On the other hand, if the remainder of the system needs additional power the East Jordan plants can feed any surplus it might have onto the high line and send it anywhere from Cheboygan to Whitehall, but not until the needs of this city are amply taken care of.

The Company's engineering department will start immediately to make a study of the distribution and street lighting systems and generating plants to determine the best methods of improving local service promptly.

Another distinct advantage locally will be the application of the Michigan Public Service Company's rates, which will be placed in effect just as quickly as the proper and necessary steps can be taken. These new rates, it is announced, will result in a saving to the majority of the local customers, over the rates which are now in effect.

In order to make the East Jordan property fit in with the remainder of the property, a new permit and street lighting contract will be asked for within a short time. These will be necessary in order to put the local situation on the same basis as the other cities of the same class served by the Michigan Public Service Co.

Another interesting announcement, made by Mr. Wadsworth when he was in East Jordan, has to do with the new offices and salesroom. A suitable ground floor location will be secured where a new office can be located. In connection, a modern salesroom will be operated in which a complete line of large and small electrical appliances will be carried. Under the new rates it will be possible for the larger appliances, such as electric ranges and refrigerators, to be operated in East Jordan at a very reasonable cost and to stimulate this use, the company will have a large display of every sort of electrical merchandise.

East Jordan Banker Dies

HUGH C. DICKEN PASSES AWAY AT A PETOSKEY HOSPITAL.

Hugh Charles Dicken passed away at a Petoskey Hospital, Monday morning, October 7th, 1929, following a ten days' illness.

Mr. Dicken was born in East Jordan, Oct. 5th, 1904, his parents being Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Dicken. He graduated from the East Jordan High School and attended college at Antioch, Ohio, later going to the University of Michigan, where he obtained a Bachelor of Science degree. He has been Assistant Cashier of the State Bank of East Jordan for the past couple of years.

On Sept. 21st, 1927 he was united in marriage to Miss Julia Supernaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Supernaw of this city.

He is survived by the wife, his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Dicken, and a brother, Dick W. Dicken of Boyne City.

The young man was of sterling character and his untimely death is deeply mourned by a host of friends both old and young.

Funeral services were held from Dr. H. W. Dicken's home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. C. W. Sidebotham, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Interment at Sunset Hill. As a mark of esteem the business places of East Jordan were closed during the funeral hour and our Public Schools held a two-minute silent period.

GIFT PLAN FOR PATRONS OF TEMPLE THEATRE

Mgr. Bulow of the Temple Theatre is promising his patrons a rare treat in the way of a Gift Plan. Starting on the date of Oct. 17 and every Thursday thereafter for a series of FIFTY WEEKS, EVERY LADY who attends the regular Thursday performance will receive, with the compliments of the Theatre, a piece of beautiful Chinaware.

The novelty of the plan lies in the fact that, if the ladies follow up the series of China Nights they are bound to collect a COMPLETE SET OF DINNER WARE.

There is to be no increase in the price of admission on these so-called China Gift Nights. And the management purposes, on the nights, to present the cream of the season's bookings. It is frankly an advertising stunt to prove to the public that the present and forthcoming season is productive of bigger and better attractions.

The public is assured that there are NO STRINGS nor NO CATCHES to this offer. There is to be NO LOTTERY. EVERY LADY is to receive her Gift of Chinaware, without obligation on her part. Further details of the plan may be learned by applying at the theatre. Mgr. Bulow will be pleased to answer all questions.

The management stresses the fact that the chinaware to be given out is of an original and exclusive design, samples of which are now on display in the Temple Theatre lobby.

For the entertainment next Thursday Mgr. Bulow has secured Colleen Moore in "Smiling Irish Eyes."

JAMES STEENBURG DIES AT DETROIT

James H. Steenburg passed away at the home of his son, William, at Detroit, Wednesday, Oct. 2nd, at the age of 81 years, following a brief illness of three weeks, this being the only illness of his long life.

Mr. Steenburg was born in Little Meadows, Pa., April 24, 1848. He was united in marriage to Mary Burns in Big Rapids, Mich. They will be remembered by many friends in Charlevoix County, having resided nine years in East Jordan and 20 years on a farm near Ironton. Following the marriage of their son, William, they moved to Detroit, where they have since made their home.

Deceased is survived by his wife and son, both of Detroit. Funeral services were held from Visitation Parish, Friday morning, and the remains were taken to Big Rapids for burial.

We really can't understand why people gamble with slot machines when there are canteloupes on the market.

The East Jordan woman who is married to a grouch ought to be wearing a hero medal instead of a wedding ring.

Ludington—Arthur Greenwald, 35 years old, volunteer fireman, was electrocuted when he grasped an open switch carrying 2,200 volts at a fire at the former P. C. Hansen store. Physicians and rescuers worked over him an hour without success. Greenwald was well known in this section of the state, served in the World War, and was recently advanced to foreman of the Electric Tamper and Equipment company here.

East Lansing—John Inglis, of Millersburg, Presque Isle County, obtained a new state record yield of Spartan barley this year. Prof. H. C. Rath, head of the Michigan State College farm crops department, has announced, Inglis' crop from 5.2 acres averaged 65.6 bushels of barley per acre. The previous record yield was obtained by F. A. Lundy of Coleman in 1928. His crop from five acres averaged 62.5 bushels per acre.

Stanton—The Clifford Lake Hotel, a summer resort six miles west of Stanton, was destroyed by fire recently with a loss of $30,000. The Stanton Fire Department pumped water from Clifford Lake but was unable to save the building. Several nearby cottages were saved. The fire started from a spark which lit on the roof near the chimney. Mr. and Mrs. F. W. McConville, who managed the hotel, reported the insurance would not cover the loss.

Clare—Great excitement prevailed in this region over what is believed to be the largest gas well ever reported in Michigan. It came in with a flow of 3,800,000 cubic feet daily. Prospects for oil are favorable, it is said. The well is owned by John McKay and John Mercer, Detroit, paying contractors. Attempts will be made to bring in other gas wells and a search for oil will be made. The gusher is 15 miles Northwest of the Mt. Pleasant oil field.

Lansing—In an effort to reduce the number of motorbus accidents the Michigan Public Utilities Commission issued an order prohibiting employment of bus drivers for more than 10 hours a day. Several recent accidents had been blamed to drivers who had been working a double shift. The new rules also prohibit the employment of drivers less than 21 years old. Drivers are prohibited from smoking while at work. All buses are required to be equipped with speedometers, spare tires and emergency lights.

THE NEWEST GRAFT

If the opinion of A. B. Genung, nationally known authority on agriculture, is worth anything, and Uncle Sam values it very highly, then the East Jordan man who has money invested in farm land has little cause for worry. "Bit by bit agriculture is getting straightened away for a generation of prosperity," he says in an article written for The Farm Journal. "The well located and productive farm lands of America are among the best bargains on the real estate market today. By the time we wake up to the fact they will be marking up the prices, for wise farmers are buying and when farm land starts to move upward it doesn't take it long to reach a good figure." We are offering the gentleman's opinion merely for what it is worth. You can take it or leave it. But we do believe in it enough to advise the man with money to invest to put it into old mother earth instead of chancing it in Wall Street, with its crazy speculation flurries and paper profits that are wiped out over night.

A BRIGHTER OUTLOOK

You've got to get up before daylight to beat the modern American grafter: Yet it seems from press reports out of Washington that agents of the Department of Justice have been doing that very thing. No sooner had congress authorized the construction of Boulder Dam than smooth individuals began offering land in the vicinity of the dam at a few dollars an acre, and advertising that as soon as the dam was finished the valley would bloom like a new Garden of Eden. It sounded good and it might have been good only the acres of sand and alkali and cactus they were offering will still be a long way from water even when the dam is a completed job. So Uncle Sam reached out and got several of the grafters, and fixed it so it won't be safe for others to try the same game. We don't know whether anyone around East Jordan bit or not; we hope they didn't. But if there's anyone contemplating such a purchase this would be a pretty good time for them to investigate before they invest.

Tell it to us—we'll tell the world. If you're tired of living you're living wrong.

Life is increasingly engaged in constructing.

The world don't give something for nothing.

Don't see faults if you would see friends.

Potato Grading To Be Enforced

ALL TABLE STOCK POTATOES MUST BE GRADED.

John E. Koon, special investigator of the State Department of Agriculture, has been ordered to enforce carefully the new regulations requiring all table stock potatoes sold in Michigan to be graded. His assignment is to the counties of Benzie, Grand Traverse, Antrim, Leelanau, Charlevoix and Emmet.

The only exemption from the grading requirement are the potatoes sold directly by the grower to the consumer. All potatoes sold to the retailer must be graded and marked to conform to the regulations prepared by Commissioner of Agriculture Herbert E. Powell under an act of the 1929 legislature.

The regulations follow:

1. All table stock potatoes commonly known as Irish potatoes must be graded unless sold by the producer direct to the consumer.

2. There are three grades of table stock potatoes: U. S. Fancy Grade, U. S. No. 1 Grade, and U. S. No. 2 Grade.

3. Potatoes must be graded and stamped on the premises where prepared for market. Preparation for market means proper grading and proper marking or stamping. When graded on the premises where prepared or tagged with the name and address of the person or persons responsible for the grading and packing, and the name of the grade, together with true net contents, and are thus delivered to the grocer or retailer, the grocer or retailer's responsibility then begins.

4. If the grocer or retailer sells potatoes properly graded from a sack or container properly marked and the sack or container remains in plain view of the purchaser so that such purchaser may ascertain and know that the potatoes are in fact graded and that he may know which grade of potatoes he is receiving and the name and address of the person responsible for the grading, the grocer is not required in such case to label or mark each individual package going to the consumer.

5. The grocer or retailer can not, however, empty potatoes from the sack above described into a bin or other receptacle, or mix them with other potatoes unless he grades such potatoes in accordance with the requirements of Act No. 220, Public Acts of 1929, and when selling same marks the individual packages going to the consumer as by law required.

6. The single instance in which the grocer is released from marking the individual packages going to the consumer is when he sells direct from the sack or container, already graded and properly marked and in view of the customer.

7. The stamp, label or tag used by the grocer or retailer shall be securely affixed to the package going to the consumer, and shall be printed in letters not less than 3-16 of an inch standard type.

BETTER HEALTH—LONGER LIFE

Her life clouded with pain, back-ache, stiff aching joints, constantly too tired, and plagued with urinary irregularities, Mrs. J. E. Stevenson, Emporia, Kansas, finally rid herself of torment by taking Foley Pills diuretic. "Nearly every day someone asks me what I took that helped me when I was so crippled up and miserable. THE DESERT MOON MYSTERY

"Nobody was looking nor listening, as I remember. I tell you, he killed her there on the stairs, and he made his get-away."

"If you think that," I said. "Why aren't you out hunting him?"

"H—!" Sam exploded. "Why ain't I out hunting last night's lightning? The girl had been dead any way two or three hours—more likely longer, when we found her. He had that head start on us. He's gone. He went straight across the deserts, h—! bent for Sunday. He'll need food. He'll need water, worse. I've telegraphed to every town within two hundred miles of here. They are watching. I've phoned every ranch. I've kept that phone hot for six solid hours. I've got posess' at every water-hole."

"Listen, Sam," I said. "Unless after he murdered her, he walked downstairs, with none of us seeing or hearing him, and into the living room or the kitchen, and put the key in my pocket, Cannizzano is not the guilty man."

The telephone bell rang. Hubert Hand and John followed Sam into the living room. I stayed where I was. I had to have a minute to think. The ashes on the bag? The key in my pocket? Sam?

If Sam, I thought, had found it necessary to murder Gabrielle Cannizzano, he had probably done it to keep something worse from happening. Sickened at myself, for that thought, I found another way of thinking, not much better.

It did seem to me, remembering the pipe ashes on top of the bag, that Sam must have been there on the stairs at some time after she had been murdered and before I had found her. He must, then, be keeping some secret concerning the murder. It did look as if, considering his talk, he must be shielding the murderer, with every ounce of his horse-sense and ingenuity, both of which he had in plenty. But whom would he shield to that extent? Chad, alive or dead? No. Martha? Yes. But Martha could not have done it. John? Not unless there was something to it that none of us dreamed of. Hubert Hand, or Mrs. Ricker? No. Danny? I thought not. Myself? I couldn't be sure.

The men came back into the kitchen. Sam looked ten years older than he had looked ten minutes before.

"It was San Quentin," he said to me. "Cannizzano was positively not released from there until nine o'clock, yesterday morning."

"That," I said, "lets him out."

"And," Hubert Hand said, "lets every man-jack of us here on the place, in."

Habit was too strong for Sam. "Well in," he quoted, with a groan.

CHAPTER VII

A Confession.

The sheriff, the coroner, the undertaker, a newspaper reporter, and another man that the coroner had brought along for a jurymen, drove up to the ranch at five o'clock that morning. Sam and the sheriff had been friends for thirty years. Sam's money had paid for the coroner's medical education. They, and the others, were mighty sorry to have to bother us at all, and their sole aim was to make as little trouble as possible.

They interviewed each one of us, alone, but pleasantly and informally. In the dining room; each one, that is, but Danny—the coroner, visiting her as a doctor, said it would never do to pester her, in the state she was in—and Martha, who was still asleep, and whom they said it was no use to wake. They kept each of us about ten minutes. They brought in the verdict of died by his own hand, for Chad; and, murdered by person or persons unknown for Gaby. They left, on tiptoe, holding their hats in their hands clear to the end of the driveway.

The sheriff left, I am all but certain, with the strong conviction that I had committed the murder, and with the resolution that he would not do Sam an ill turn by depriving him of a good cook. The coroner, and the others, except the reporter, were sure, I think, that one of us was guilty, but were thankful to goodness that they had not found out which one.

The undertaker did not leave with the others. He was preparing the bodies to take them to Telko; there to wait the instructions that we could not give until after we had gotten in touch, if possible, with Chad's people, and had come to a decision about Gaby's burial place.

All the Nevada newspaper accounts made much of the fact that the fiend, who had committed the terrible murder on the Desert Moon ranch, had made a complete escape, without leaving any clues of any sort.

No clues! Lands alive! The place was positively cluttered with clues; and most of them about as useful, in the end, as clutter generally is.

I asked Sam about the contents of Gaby's beaded bag.

"It is all on the table in her room," he said, "where I put it for the coroner's jury. You can go and see. But, first, read this. It was tucked inside her dress. The undertaker found it, and gave it to me. I dread giving it to Danny."

He handed me a folded sheet of paper. I opened it, and read:

"Danny dear: If you ever read this, I shall be dead—murdered. Don't have me buried here in this Godforsaken country. Take me to San Francisco and have my body cremated. I love a flame. I hate the cold earth."

"You have had much trouble on my account, old dear. Don't blame me for having kept the fear and the dread of this thing, which I felt certain was going to happen, from you. You, nor no living person, but one, could have saved me."

"Remember, Dan, that in spite of all the distress I have caused you, and may still be causing you, I have always, in my own way, loved you. Gaby."

"Sam," I said, "I knew she was afraid, yesterday. Oh, why didn't she tell us? Of course you men could have saved her. Why did she go out alone to meet that fiend?"

Sam's only answer was a slow shaking of his bowed head, and a deep sigh.

"Mary," he said, then, "will you give this note to Danny, and explain to her how it is?"

"How what is?"

"I mean—well, she can't leave the Desert Moon, now, to take the body to Frisco. Until we find out who murdered that girl, not a man-jack of us is going to leave this place, for any reason. Danny may be as innocent as she seems to be, and she may not. She, nor anyone else, can leave this place until we have gotten to the very bottom of this thing. That goes. This note, in Gaby's handwriting, clears Danny of the crime, if all the other evidence didn't, which it does. We know that she did not kill her sister. But, of all the people in this house, she is in the best position to know who did do it. Of course, if she is involved in this she is involved innocently. If she put the key in your pocket, while we were out in the car, she did it with no idea of what she was doing. Just the same, I want her right here on the Desert Moon, for a while. Mary, you take the note to her, and explain, in your nice way—"

"I'll give her the note, Sam," I said. "But you'll have to do the explaining yourself. I'll tell you why. It isn't right for you to try to protect anyone, not even Martha, to the extent of refusing to allow one sister to carry out the dying request of another sister."

Sam dropped his pipe. As I saw the tobacco and the ashes scatter, I was more certain than ever that I was acting as a decent woman should. The door opened, and Danny came in. She was so pale that her cheeks had sort of a greenish tinge to them. Great dark circles spread far down under her eyes that were red and swollen from crying.

I hurried to her, and put my arms around her. Sam turned away, as if he could not bear to look at us. I took her into the living room, and sat down in a big chair and held her in my lap.

"If only," she kept saying, "if only she could have left us in her beauty."

When I telephoned to Sam, down in his office in the outfit's quarters, I tried to keep the truth from him; saying, only that the girls and I had had a spat, and asking him to find some new girls for me.

He came up, in about half an hour with an Indian girl, not more than fifteen years old, trailing along behind him. Answering his nod, I went with him into the living room.

"She is the only one I could get," he said. "We'll have to send to Reno or Salt Lake. None of the outfit want their women folks working here. I don't blame them. The Desert Moon ranch is disgraced—" He stopped short, looking at a piece of paper on the writing desk just in front of him. It had been propped up against a vase; but it had slithered down into a curve. He reached for it; read it, and handed it to me.

"I killed her. Chadwick Canfield. P. S. Sorry to put you to the trouble of disposing of me. Make it cheap and snappy. I haven't a relative in the world. P. G."

"A lie," Sam said. "I tell you, she had been dead two or three hours, anyway—probably longer—when we found her. Listen, Mary. Between four and five o'clock—we all saw her alive at four—Chad sat right there at that piano, and he never left it once. Did he?"

"No, he didn't. I kept thinking he would, to join Gaby. But he didn't."

"Between five and six o'clock," Sam went on, "he was with me, every minute of the time, down in the barn, and coming up to the house. Never out of my sight. Between six and seven he was with us all at supper. If he'd been gone all afternoon, I'd know that note was a lie; know it just as well as I know it now—"

"But this note! A confession! Why should he die in disgrace, when we know he was innocent?"

"God knows. To shield someone else, I reckon."

"Who?"

Sam dropped his pipe. I heard him stamping the sparks out. I did not look down. I did not want to look down.

"He wrote it," I said. "The writing is his. So is the wording. You know it."

"To San Francisco?"

"We'll have to talk to Sam about that, dear," I said. "I am afraid that Sam wants us all to stay here, for a while. Sam thinks that the duty of each one of us, right now, is to stay here and help to find the guilty person."

"Does Uncle Sam think we will find him here?" she questioned.

"There isn't anywhere else to try to find him," I said. "Did you know about the key in my pocket?"

She nodded. "I knew about that," she said.

"What else did you know about?" I asked.

"Nothing," she said, hurriedly. "Nothing. But, Mary, doesn't it seem possible to you that someone, clear from the outside, did it? And gave the key to Chad, and asked him to put it in your pocket? And that, for some reason we probably never shall discover, Chad could not, dared not, tell of the person who gave it to him? And that is why he shot himself?"

"And we hadn't thought of that!" I gasped. "I do believe it. It is as clear as day."

Her sudden, definite silence talked as plainly as any words she could have spoken.

"Danny," I questioned, "you thought of that, but in your heart you don't believe it. Do you?"

"I—I want to believe it," she evaded.

"But you don't?" I persisted. She was silent.

"Danny," I pleaded, "tell me about it. Just tell me, dear. I'll never breathe it to a soul, if you say for me not to. What is it you know, or think that you know?"

She waited so long before answering me that I thought surely she was finding the words with which to take me into her confidence. I was so disappointed I could have cried with her, when she hid her face on my shoulder, again, and moaned, "Mary—I can't. I dare not tell. I tell you—I dare not."

She jumped up out of my lap, and ran upstairs as if wicked, dangerous things were running after her.

John came into the room. "The outfit is back, or most of it," he said. "Darn their souls! Curiosity, nothing else. But for this, they wouldn't have shown up for two days yet. I think the women went into the kitchen just now, Mary."

There they were, Belle, Sadie and Goldie, all huddled up together like a bunch of something, near the back door. As I came into the room, they jumped and screamed. The only thing that makes me madder than being scared myself is to scare somebody else. I spoke to them right sharply.

I told them that I expected them to go about their work, and to act like sensible girls while so doing.

Sadie, the sauciest of the lot, spoke up.

"We haven't decided yet that we want'a go workin' in a house where a murderer, and maybe more'n one, is livin'."

"Very well," I said. "If you are going, go now. If not, put on your aprons and get to work."

I could scarcely believe my eyes. The three of them skeddaddled out through the door. I felt sort of sick, watching them go. Not because I'd have to teach new girls the work and my ways, but because their leaving gave me my first realization that the Desert Moon ranch was darkened by the shadow of sin.

When I telephoned to Sam, down in his office in the outfit's quarters, I tried to keep the truth from him; saying, only that the girls and I had had a spat, and asking him to find some new girls for me.

He came up, in about half an hour with an Indian girl, not more than fifteen years old, trailing along behind him. Answering his nod, I went with him into the living room.

Men like these are testing your car

Types of the engineers at General Motors Proving Ground who are working for you. Drawn from a photograph. They are shown examining a specially devised instrument for measuring clutch pedal pressure.

It used to be the custom for a man who wanted to buy a car to take a mechanic with him.

Today, General Motors itself employs skilled automotive engineers to make it easy for you to select your new car. These men are working for you at its Proving Ground—the 1268-acre outdoor laboratory in Michigan where every kind of car is tested.

Before any General Motors car goes into production, a fleet of advance models is constructed and sent to the Proving Ground. There these advance cars must meet every test—tests far harder than you would make. Sometimes they are rebuilt, redesigned, retested many times until they are pronounced right, and ready to be put into production.

The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel and oil economy; body strength and safety—every phase of car construction and performance.

Buying a car is easy today—because these men at the Proving Ground are working for you to assure you of value when you select a General Motors car.

Houses Marred by Time

Modernizing the home need have no terrors for the home owner, L. T. Henderson, secretary of the Louisville Building Trade bureau, said in a bulletin to contractors calling attention to safeguards that must be observed. He said:

"The owner must be assisted in choosing a reputable contractor and a financing agency. This should be done before the work is begun. Regardless of the size of the job, whether it be a small repair job, or the making of an old house throughout into a new one, a sketch should be made by a reliable architect, which should be agreed upon by the family desiring the improvement. Once this sketch is made and accepted, then specifications should be drawn, together with a legal contract. After this has been done, two or three reliable contractors should be called upon and asked to bid.

"With the financing arranged for and definite plans and specifications to bid on, the contractor will give the lowest cash price that the work can be done for.

"The owner can save considerably more on the contract price by having a definite program to begin with more than all his supervision fees and financing costs.

"By handling a job in this manner, the owner is relieved of worry and unexpected costs and, in many cases, liens being filed on account of unpaid bills."

Movement for General

Roadside Beauty Grows

Roadside beautification has become general throughout the United States. In this new era a road becomes a work of art. There is a "State-wide Beautification club" in Florida; an association, "Friends of Our Native Landscape," in Wisconsin; the "Colorado Historical society" in Colorado, and various organizations from garden clubs to chambers of commerce in Arkansas, Alabama, West Virginia, Kentucky, North and South Carolina, and Virginia. California now has 600 miles of trees planted along highways; Oklahoma is planting highway trees steadily; Delaware has many of its highways landscaped; Arkansas calls systematic beautification "a worth-while investment of public funds"; Michigan planted 140,000 pine seedlings along highways in 1928; Indiana 10,000 small evergreen trees, and Massachusetts more than 50,000 trees planted on highways in the past 22 years. State after state may be cited, with mention of Missouri's new landscape architect for its roadways, Pennsylvania's forestry unit, and Connecticut's landscape division.

State Makes Beauty Spots

In Connecticut, where rivers and lakes are near by, shrubbery and trees have been removed to open a view. Several fine vistas which have hitherto been lost are now offered. The state is doing much planting of indigenous species. Dogwood and laurel, when removed to clear the view of a distant scene, are replanted elsewhere and small growths of natural shrubbery in which forest fires start easily have been transplanted to roadside gardens.

Providing Picnic Nooks

The Connecticut highway department is encouraging family touring and picnics by creating wide spaces by the road for the parking of cars at a safe distance from the thoroughfare. In selecting picnic nooks the commissioners have been guided by the natural advantages. Where the trees provide ample shade and a spring bubbles up, the road is widened. Several cars may be driven into the cleared area where they will not be a hazard to other motorists.

Frightful Fire Waste

The importance of guarding against home fires is shown in estimates of a large insurance company. In the last ten years, according to this firm, enough money has been wasted, on the average, in fire losses to pay for 101,000 one-family houses at the cost of construction prevailing in 1926, or to pay for all the new residences erected in 56 principal cities of the United States the same year.

Correct Ideas in Painting

Large houses on small plots of ground are best painted in unobtrusive colors—that is to say, colors that lend themselves to their immediate surroundings. Blue-grays or gray-greens show off such houses to good advantage without making them appear too unwieldy for the size plot upon which they have been erected.

Build Well for Beauty

Good and lasting construction is an essential quality of real beauty. Shoddy and beauty are hard to conceive as existing together in the same creation, so when we build we must think of economy, construction and beauty in the closest relationship.

Work for Civic Leaders

Most of the improvement work of a town is done by a dozen men whom the other citizens back up.—Exchange.

FARM STOCK

HEEL FLIES ARE CAUSE OF LOSSES

Most Important Insect Problem for Cattle Owners.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Control of cattle grubs or heel flies is one of the most important insect problems with which owners of cattle of all classes have to deal, say the authors of a bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The cattle grubs or, as they are otherwise known, "warbles" or "woolies," cause losses estimated at from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 annually. The bulletin traces the life history and habits of the insect and explains methods of control.

The adult form of the insect, the heel fly is rarely seen, although its presence terrifies cattle and causes them to make frantic efforts to escape. Why this is so is not clear, for the insect has no mouth for biting, and it lays its eggs on the hair of the animal without causing pain. Two varieties are known—the common cattle grub and the northern cattle grub. The common grub is found over most of the United States. The northern grub is the more persistent and annoying in its attacks on cattle and is found only rarely in the southern states where infestations commonly die out without treatment. It is most prevalent in the northeastern states.

The cover page of Farmers' Bulletin 1596-F, is something of a departure from the usual federal publications. Five small drawings caricature the efforts of a cow to escape from a buzzing heel fly.

The injury to the cattle comes through their frantic running caused by the flies and through the parasitic action of the grubs, which result in less healthy and thrifty condition of the cattle and in lessened milk or beef production. Serious injury to the value of the hides is also caused from the holes cut by the grubs.

The bulletin gives information as to methods of control, extraction of the grubs by hand or with forceps or killing them by applying insecticides. It has been found that fairly satisfactory local control is possible. The flies apparently do not migrate great distances. The authors, however, believe that, because of the serious damage the insects do, it may eventually become necessary to carry on a system of general eradication, either nationwide or over large areas. Until such a campaign develops they advise each owner to control the insects affecting his own animals.

Farmers' Bulletin 1596-F, Cattle Grubs or Heel Flies with Suggestions for Their Control, by F. C. Bishopp, E. W. Laake, and R. W. Wells, of the bureau of entomology, has just been published for free distribution. A copy may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Crossbred Pigs Often Excel the Pure Breeds

Crossbred pigs very often excel purebreds in vigor and ability to make rapid and economical gains. It is usually not advisable to use these crossbreds for breeding purposes, since their offspring frequently lack uniformity in type. One should certainly not mate crossbred sows with a crossbred boar.

If these sows are used for breeding purposes, better results should be expected if a good Poland China or Duroc is used than if a boar of some other breed is used. No doubt you will secure good results by mating them with a Poland China boar, although we are inclined to believe that pure bred sows will prove more satisfactory for breeding purposes than the crossbred sows.—H. J. Gramlich, University of Nebraska.

Satisfactory Breeders Product of Ton Litter

Some feeders are inclined to feel that feeding for ton litters in market production may be all right but that capacity feeding will not prove satisfactory for the production of breeding stock. The latter is not true of hogs if the growthy, stretchy type are used and the high kinds of feed are fed. Type of hog and kinds of feed rather than amounts will determine whether they will develop satisfactory or otherwise. Some of the best breeding hogs ever produced were products of ton litters and practically every purebred swine association in the country is co-operating in the development of plans for special registration for hogs which have made ton litters or very similar records.

Favor Vaccination

While the last serious outbreak of cholera occurred in 1926, proper precautions should not be neglected this summer. Plowing under old hog lots prevents the spread of the germs which might be lurking in the refuse around the lot. The ground should be planted to some crop for a season before placing hogs on it again. Hog houses should be cleaned out and thoroughly disinfected by spraying with a standard disinfectant solution at least twice each year.

EDUCATION AND DISCIPLINE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Mrs. Collins came in to see me a short time ago concerning her son who is shortly to finish a course in a high-priced preparatory school. She had the child by the hand when she came in. He was an indifferent looking youth with little enthusiasm apparently for the strenuous activities of life. He let his mother do the talking, and she talked very easily.

"I want George to go to college," she assured me, "and I am sure he will do well if he can find something not too hard that he likes. What would you suggest?"

I hadn't anything in mind, and I told her so. She was not wanting her son to have an education; she was looking for a pleasant, easy experience masquerading under the guise of training. She had never heard the statement of a very wise man, or if she had heard she had forgotten, that "an education that is not a discipline can scarcely be considered a preparation for life." It is only when we subject ourselves to the discipline of the difficult task, and do it well whether or not we like it or find it pleasant that we really progress far in education. I said as much as this to Mrs. Collins, but she did not understand me, and my statements bored her son.

Ruskin's early life, he tells us, was a very guarded one. He was given very little responsibility; he was kept from error and harm and not allowed to make his own decisions or to learn through failure the necessity of self-discipline. He acknowledged when he was an old man that this defect in his early education unfitted him for the discipline of life and became the cause to him of failure and misfortune. Any education which does not involve a rigid discipline of one's self is pretty much a failure.

Much of the trend of education today, in and out of schools and colleges, is towards making the path of youth smoother and easier. We are doing everything we can to make education pleasant and attractive—to lower the grade and remove the barriers to progress, and to make the discipline less rigid. The effect is not altogether good.

Wood and I were talking over old times a few evenings ago. We had had the same difficult course in college under the same instructor—a hopelessly inefficient instructor, he was, too. We had put a pretty loud howl at that time regarding the little help he gave us and the rigid results he required, but all to no effect. If we passed the course, as fortunately we did, it was because we set out to discipline our own minds.

"I guess it was a good thing for us after all," Wood concluded at the end of our discussion. "It prepared us for the more difficult things of life which come to every man when he gets out into the world, no matter what job or profession he falls into."

It is really discipline which counts most in education and in life.

129,000 Additional Telephones in Three Years

DURING the past three years, 129,000 additional telephones were installed by the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, as follows:

1926	-	-	46,000 additional telephones
1927	-	-	38,000 additional telephones
1928	-	-	45,000 additional telephones

During the first eight months of this year, 40,000 additional telephones were placed in service, making more than 670,000 now served by this Company.

Every additional telephone installed increases the value of your telephone service by bringing more people within your reach.

Our policy—"To continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety".

FOR RELIEF FROM BACKACHE

Backache may not mean anything serious, but it certainly does not mean anything good, especially if the result of disturbed kidney and bladder function. Ask Wm. School News and Chatter

Sixth Grade: The sixth grade is having a program this Friday, prepared by the children. They plan to have a Nature Program the third Friday of each month.

Fifth Grade: Section I won in the spelling contest. Last month on the first day of spelling there were 13 one hundreds out of 32. Today there were 26 one hundreds out of 31. Some new ink wells have been added to the fifth grade department of which the class is very proud. Among other accomplishments letter writing has been taken up, bringing unusual results.

Fourth Grade: The fourth grade is mounting autumn leaves in Nature Study. They have been doing many interesting things during the past week. Among them was a contest between the two divisions. The first division won in spelling while the second division won in arithmetic. The class is working on a dramatization in Reading in title "The London Doll," to be given this Friday.

Third Grade: The aeroplane race which has been going on for some time has resulted in a decided victory of 250 miles for the blue group. The class has also started on its first language books.

Second Grade: Not to be outdone in preparations for the Autumnal season by the other classes, the 2nd grade is making some very clever October calendars. It also has entered into the Hallowe'en spirit and are re-decorating the room after that fashion. The new music books have come and aroused unusual interest among the members of the class.

First Grade: The members of the Sunshine and Happy Group have just started their reading books. They are also re-decorating their class room for the anticipated Hallowe'en season.

Kindergarten: The little folks are kept interested and busy as well as those in the higher grades. This week they have made a collection of leaves of various colors and have waxed them.

EAST JORDAN DEFEATED BY CHARLEVOIX—25-7.

The East Jordan Football team journeyed to Charlevoix last Saturday with a "do or die" spirit, but their spirits were short lived as they were defeated by the heavy aggressive Charlevoix team.

The boys were somewhat disheartened at the opening of the game. Quinn kicked the ball on the twenty yard line but the kick was blocked and bounded back over on the Jordan line and a Charlevoix man fell on it—a very bad "break" of the game.

The half ended 19-0, in favor of Charlevoix.

Coach Cohen must have said something rather warm to the boys during the half as they defeated the Charlevoix team 7-6 the last half.

The East Jordan touchdown came in the last few minutes of play, following a foul on the Charlevoix team. Quinn taking the ball, slashed thru tackle for their only touchdown of the game. Quinn passed to LaLonde for the extra point.

Teddy Katovich was the outstanding player on the line along with Capt. Hipp who fought ferociously. In the backfield Quinn was the only man who could gain any ground. Kitsman at Quarter played his usual cool, steady game. LaLonde did stellar work at end and half back.

The local team was without the services of the two Hegerbergs, "Big Pete" and "Little Arnie."

Kling, a promising half back was also out of the line up.

Coach Cohen can be congratulated on the fine showing he has put up with the material he has had.

Two busses went to Charlevoix, one with the team and the other filled with students. They presented a very colorful appearance on the field.

The next game is at Cheboygan and we are hoping that the boys will revenge last year's defeat. Those wishing to go with the team in the bus will be charged the small fee of $1.00 round trip. Let's have everybody there to help the boys win.

MONTHLY TEST-WAVE OVER-FLOWS BANKS.

Monthly tests swept the High School building Thursday and Friday, disastarously leaving behind a wide path of mental agony and wrecked personalities. During this unpleasant storm, everyone was forced to retreat to the protective shelter of books, and to arm themselves with paper, pencils, and valuable notes on different subjects. We are happy to report, however, that most everyone recovered from this mental shock enough to attend the Charlevoix-East Jordan game on Saturday, and to enjoy the East Jordan Faculty dance that night. Luckily, results of the damage done by tests have not been announced as yet, and everyone is rapidly regaining their optimistic ways.

LAST HOME GAME OF SEASON

Friday, October 18th will be the last home game of the season, played between the local team and Gaylord. The game is scheduled for 1:30 p. m., standard time. School will be dismissed earlier than usual and in order to give the students living in the country, as well as those in town, an opportunity to see the game, the busses will wait until the game is over before starting out on their routes.

Those of us who will not have a chance to attend the out-of-town games want to be sure to make use of the opportunity to witness this last fight between our team and Gaylord.

MUSIC

We are glad to announce the arrival of the new Chorus Teacher, Miss Chandelier immediately won 70 students to her heart, and they are all quite prospective singers. A Girls' Glee Club has been organized, and perhaps a Boys' Glee Club will be later, when the boys have worn off that first coat of self-consciousness. We hope that East Jordan may soon rank with New York and Boston in the musical world.

In relation to the Social side of chorus, the following officers have been elected to perform various duties assigned to them throughout the year:

President—Marian Maddock.
Vice Pres.—Ethel Staley.
Librarian—Bea Boswell.
Sec.-Treas.—Minnie MacDonald
Miss Chandelier has promised us many good times during the coming year.

WAR OF THE WEENIES

It may be a relief to the parents to know that the Freshmen enjoyed their party, Tuesday night, unmo-lest. It seems that only a part of the class arrived in-time to start the fire for the roast. However, the second reinforcement arrived in a canoe commanded by "Hiawatha" Lorraine and "Iagoo" Malpass, after the battle of Weenies was fought. Several brave attempts at singing having been made, everyone departed peacefully and happily.

LIBRARY CLUB

The Library Club meetings are held on Monday night at 2:30 now. There are over thirty students taking this course, and they are rapidly advancing under Miss Crofoot's efficient instruction. The Library is open every school day of the week now, and the new books that have been received are an incentive for students to enlarge their reading list.

HOME ECONOMICS

The Home Economics Girls are becoming very efficient, domestically. The tenth grade girls are studying all about the sewing machine, its use, and how to care for it. The ninth, eleventh and twelfth grade girls are learning the proper way to make beds and how to make their own rooms attractive. If the desired effect is produced, these girls will get up early enough in the morning to make their own beds.

FACULTY DANCE

A fairly large crowd attended the faculty dance given Saturday evening at the High School Auditorium. A great number of the student body, as well as some of the townspeople, was present. The Petoskey High School Dance Orchestra furnished the music. All of the students were pleased to see so many of the foot ball boys present. By this fact alone, we conclude that they are very good losers.

JOURNALISM CLASS

William Taylor is another victim of the class. He will be responsible for all sport news, beginning next week.

DEBATERS

The debaters have completed their reading on the jury question and are now ready for actual work. There will be two teams—affirmative and negative. At present they are planning their cases and will soon be having debates among themselves. Any interest shown by the townspeople or any support given by them will be greatly appreciated.

HIGH SCHOOL AG. CLUB.

The Agriculture Club is preparing teams for the Gaylord Apple and Potato Show, to be held Oct. 30 and Nov. 1.

They are preparing two teams for competition with other Smith Hughes schools.

Much enthusiasm is aroused, and we have a great deal of competition among the Ag. students.

We also expect to send one judging team to East Lansing to the Apple and Flower Show, which is to be sponsored by students of Michigan State College and members of the State Florists Association.

This Show is to be held Nov. 15-16-17, and is one of the largest of its kind held in the central States. Twenty-five hundred dollars is being offered for the flower exhibits alone, and all other classes are provided with liberal premiums.

This is especially of interest to Horticulture students, and good experiences provided in selecting fruits, vegetables, nuts and honey.

The Ag. Club will also be of assistance in raising funds for sending teams to these contests.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

This is Fire Prevention Week. Last week we were drilled concerning the exits and fire alarm signals as well as the method (order) in which we should leave the building. There will probably be a drill this week. There are many precautions concerning fire prevention and this is and always will be a question of vital importance.

WEST SIDE SCHOOL

Second Grade: There has been a great improvement in spelling since the awarding of gold stars has been adopted.

Third Grade: The third graders have brought the spirit of Hallowe'en into their class-room by making a Hallowe'en decoration for their blackboard.

Not everyone has received his new Language book, but all are very anxious to start them.

Fourth Grade: The students are very interested in geography for this is their first experience in that subject.

Fifth Grade: They are studying the wheat and corn belt in the United States. They are also entering into the spirit of Hallowe'en by making clever decorations of that type for their room.

When a man is prominent in number of lodges he has to attend to many functions that he doesn't look natural without a strip of ribbon pinned on his coat.

CHANGEABLE WEATHER STARTS BRONCHIAL COUGHS.

Sensitive throats easily irritated by the cool changeable weather of early fall find quick and comforting relief from distressing nervous hacking, tickling throat and worrisome bronchial coughs in reliable Foley Honey and Tar Compound. It spreads a pleasantly soothing coating on the irritated surfaces, dislodges tickling mucus, stops the wearing cough. Effective alike for children and grown persons. No opiates, not constipating, mildly laxative. Accept no substitute. For Sale at Hites Drug Store. adv.
