DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Modern World Wonders

The ancients referred to great works of art in enumerating the seven wonders of the world, but our present achievements are more along the lines of science. Today, therefore, we consider the modern seven wonders as follows: The X-ray and spectrum analysis, antiseptics and antitoxins, aeronautics, wireless and radio, telephone, telegraph and radium.

Library Drive Coming Soon

EAST JORDAN PUBLIC LIBRARY IN NEED OF FUNDS.

Most progressive communities have a good Public Library. East Jordan is one of them. But I think sometimes too many people take it for granted. This is true many times also of the churches. However if the Library and Churches were to move out of East Jordan, most of the best citizens would begin to pack their trunks for more desirable communities.

The above institutions, like the air we breathe and the liberty we enjoy, are usually ever present but least appreciated and yet the most important assets we have in life. I do not mean that the East Jordan Public Library is going to move out but the Library Board is sure that the general public does not know the exact situation in regard to the public library.

A citizen remarked not long ago, "Oh, my I understood you got three thousand dollars a year to run the library." This never was true since its institution. It is over four or five years ago since the library received the last $500 given by the East Jordan Lumber Company. Since that time the library budget has been about $1500 a year. The budget has been, after very careful management, kept down to $1500. The above amount has been received from the library funds and city treasurer for four or five years. This year the Library Board will not receive as much as formerly. However this is not the reason for the Drive. The city will likely take care of any little extra expenses anyway.

Now for the real point of the whole story. For years the East Jordan Public Library has been able to spend for books $150 a year. This has been the limit. Two or three weeks ago a set of books "A History of the World War" was put in by all the Libraries practically in the country as a memorial to the over-seas men. This was done locally. The better binding cost $98. The library board bought the cheapest binding possible, making the books cost $69. There are other sets of books that are really necessary and even required by the public library. It is easily seen that one set of books practically takes half of the library money. Then on top of this the magazines that are expected to be in all public libraries cost around $45 to $50, leaving this year possibly $40 or $50 for new books.

This is entirely out of keeping with a well regulated library. As hinted above in this article the library possibly could go on doing a very ordinary job for the community for quite a number of years but one can easily see that unless we can get a larger amount for books the library will not be a valuable institution very long. We of course all realize that books wear out and have to be re-bound or replaced. In many cases this is costly. In fact it is much better in at least 50 per cent of the cases to get an entirely new book. The binding ordinarily costs about two-thirds the value of the books in the first place. The average public school library gets somewhere in the neighborhood of $270 to $500 for library purposes. The local public school has received $270 on better for a number of years and then do not come up to the requirements instituted by the State Department or the University of Michigan. Let us say a great big THEREFORE the East Jordan Public Library is actually being starved to death for the necessary up-to-date reading and the lack of necessary replacement of books. The above is the actual facts of the situation at the East Jordan Public Library.

At a meeting held a few days ago the above situation was discussed. A committee was appointed to put on a Drive for Funds to secure books for the Library. This fund will not necessarily be spent for books immediately but will largely increase the amount that is to be spent this year and some of it can be used as a reserve for future needs. Definite details of the effort to secure more funds will likely be given in next week's Herald. It may be a Tag Day or a personal appeal—that will be taken up later. It seems as though nearly everyone could contribute some amount to put the library in the dignified position it should hold in a community of the standing of East Jordan.

With consolidation of schools and many boys and girls here from the country there never was a greater need for good books than at the present time as far as East Jordan is concerned.

It would not be amiss to have the public know who the library board is. They, like the library, many times are taken for granted. Yet there is a good deal of detail and sacrifice connected with the running of this or any other institution. We are there-

During the month of September there were on test 294 cows, 23 of which were dry. The total number of herds was 26. The average production per cow was: B. F.—22.3 lbs., milk—518 lbs.

One grade cow was sold and one purebred was bought. The nine separators tested were O. K.

Error: In last month's report the high three year old was owned by Irving Crawford instead of by R. V. Liskum as was stated. The production was 58.5 lbs. B. F., and 1125 lbs. of milk.

FARMERS BUY FAKE POULTRY MEDICINE

East Lansing, Oct. 14.—Michigan poultrymen are warned by the poultry department at Michigan State College that at least one man has defrauded State farmers by selling them a medicine supposed to cure almost every disease which affects poultry.

The salesman claimed to represent Michigan State College when he sold the remedy to one poultry raiser in St. Clair County. At other points in the State, he has posed as the representative of the Michigan Poultry Laboratory.

A sample of the remedy, when analyzed at the College, contained reground bran or middlings, wood charcoal, quassia, limestone, salt, and Epsom salts. None of these ingredients have a marked remedial effect upon diseases of poultry and any of them can be purchased at local stores if they are wanted.

College poultry specialists advise flock owners to call the local veterinarian, the county agent, or the College department before investing money in poultry remedies sold by strangers.

To Broadcast Symp. Orchestra

STANDARD OIL CO. AGAIN SPONSORS CHICAGO SYMPHONY.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has made arrangements, with Professor Stock to resume the Sunday afternoon broadcasts of The Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The series will start on Oct. 20, from 2 to 3 o'clock, Chicago time and will be given each Sunday afternoon following, for a period of six months over WGN, Chicago, WWJ, Detroit; WTML, Milwaukee; WOC, Davenport; WHO, Des Moines; WOW, Omaha; WDAF, Kansas City; KSD, St. Louis; KSTP, St. Paul; WEBC, Duluth-Superior.

The Standard Oil Company's continued sponsorship of these concerts is a response to the articulate appreciation of the audience who listened to last season's series. The mounting vigor of the listener's hosannas for Professor Stock's offerings seem to indicate that since the air was first tapped for its sounds, no program has been more cherished than the Sunday afternoon broadcast of the Symphony Orchestra.

Doubtless there are many wealthy benefactors or big corporations who might have sponsored these programs purely for the public weal. But, the Standard Oil Company happens to be the patron, and it is to their enterprise and civic spirit that thousands of music lovers will again delight in the expert performance of the Symphony Orchestra.

Professor Stock proceeds with the comforting certainty that fine music has a tremendous allure for great numbers of people. Many of them are debarred by distance or other obstacles, from attending the Symphony Orchestra's regular concerts. It is to these thousands that the Standard Oil Company presents the six-months series for all that it may mean to them.

Tribute to the Symphony Orchestra came from the most remote parts of the country. Listeners seemed to take much delight in the inimitable preludes of Professor Stock himself during each concert. There was a likeable intimacy about the whole offering, and even people to whom Symphony had meant music on a remote and classical plane, found themselves caught in the thrall of the Standard Oil hour.

The previous season has served more or less in the nature of an experiment for this year's offerings. Meddlesome pieces from the works of the great classicists will be given, as well as compositions of contemporary masters. And, as the orchestra has proved before, it can be as gay and light as any caroller, when it serves a lively measure.

The Standard Oil Company hour with the Symphony Orchestra on Sunday afternoon promises to be one of the most important musical offerings of the season.

STATE RECORDS FALL IN PULLING CONTEST

East Lansing, Oct. 14.—The State record in horse pulling contests for both heavyweight and lightweight teams has been broken several times in the contests held at 15 county fairs which were supervised by members of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College.

The record at the beginning of the year was held by the team owned by J. F. Gehr, Lansing, which pulled 3200 pounds. This record, in the heavyweight class, was broken by a pull of 3275 pounds made at the Ionia Fair by a team owned by Geo. Abbott, Ellwell.

This record held one day less than a month and was raised to 3300 lbs., at the Saginaw Fair by horses owned by R. F. Langley, Flint. The Gehr team went out and got their record back by pulling 3325 pounds at Marshall.

Records in the lightweight class were broken by teams owned by the Hall Orchard, Belding, and by Peter Horne, Charlotte. The Horne team now holds the record at 2925 lbs.

The three heavyweight teams which have broken records this year will compete at Michigan State College during Farmers Week, Feb. 3-7. An attempt will be made to better the world's record pull of 3500 lbs.

All pulls are made on a machine which measures exactly the amount of energy expended by the horses and the pull made is equal to lifting the same number of pounds vertically.

Cadillac—Holding more than 15 persons at bay with drawn revolvers, five armed men forced Alfred Chapman, cashier of the Peoples Savings bank here, to open the vault, from which they took between $40,000 and $50,000. The robbery occurred just 15 minutes before the bank was to close for the day. The holdup was well planned and was executed in less than five minutes, according to Chapman.

Howell—Howard Davis, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Davis, of Handy Township, Livingston County, was killed when he fell under the wheels of a truck driven by his father. The boy was riding in the cab of the truck with his father when it struck a stone. The boy was pitched through the door to a bank beside the road and rolled back under the wheels before the vehicle could be stopped.

ALFALFA HAY IS GOOD FOR HORSES

Fed With Corn, It Makes a Well-Balanced Ration.

Alfalfa hay can safely be fed either as the sole roughage for horses, or to replace half or more of timothy or prairie hays, according to A. O. Rhoad of the New York state college of agriculture. Experiments have shown that horses at hard work and fed alfalfa hay as the sole roughage, maintained their weight on 20 to 22 per cent less grain than others fed timothy hay.

Alfalfa makes a well-balanced ration when fed with corn alone. Timothy hay may not be fed with corn alone, as this ration is low in protein and needs a supplement to balance it. With grains other than corn—such as oats, barley, peas and bran, which in themselves contain considerable protein—alfalfa should not be used as the sole roughage. Under such circumstances lower the amount of alfalfa fed; use, for example, half alfalfa and half timothy.

For horses, the first cutting of alfalfa is more beneficial than the second and third cuttings. Second and third cuttings are preferable for dairy cattle because the stems are not as coarse and there is a larger proportion of leaf area. For horses, however, the first cutting is better as it is not "washy" and is coarser. It is commonly advised to cut alfalfa when one third in bloom and this is highly desirable for the dairy cow. Alfalfa is better as a feed for horses, however, if it is cut at a later stage—when almost mature.

No better roughage exists for growing colts than alfalfa hay. The high protein and lime content of this hay is just what the growing animal needs to build firm muscle and dense bone.

Ensilage Is Essential to Cattle and Sheep

Feeders of beef cattle and sheep have even more reason to build a silo and feed silage than the dairymen, according to experiment station results. Yet nearly all dairymen feed silage, while the majority of beef men and sheep men do not.

After summarizing the results of all experimental data available Prof. F. B. Morrison, director of the New York Experiment station, finds that the average ton value of silage for dairy cows is approximately one-third that of good mixed hay, while the per acre yield of silage is four or five times greater than that of hay. For beef cattle, he finds silage worth half as much per ton as clover hay, and for sheep more than half as much.

In an average of 20 trials with two-year-old steers, gains on silage-fed cattle cost $1.22 hundredweight less than on steers fed no silage. In these tests a ton of silage replaced 27 pounds of concentrates and 605 pounds of clover hay.

Prof. Morrison, who has long been considered one of the foremost feeding authorities of the country, feels that cattle and sheep feeders, like the dairymen, could make greater profits by feeding silage.

Pigs at Weaning Time Need Plenty of Grain

Pigs at weaning time should be getting all the grain they will eat. The ration should include tankage or some form of milk. With a good pasture on which to run, pigs should be getting a good start for market weight. Pigs which are doing well should make a pound a day gain in weight. Self-feeders are a convenient means for feeding corn and tankage, and the use of self-feeders results in as good and often better gains than the hand-feeding method. A self-feeder should keep the feed dry, keep feed before the pigs at all times, and prevent waste.

Live Stock Hints

Lambs should be docked and castrated before they are three weeks old.

Alfalfa hay may be fed with safety as the sole roughage for ewes and young lambs.

Records are a necessary part of an intelligent conduct of the hog business.

Experiments indicate that 100 pounds of boiled potatoes will go about as far in feeding hogs as 140 pounds of raw potatoes.

Sheep are useful in destroying weeds, and they will eat more different kinds of weeds than other live stock.

The breeding ewes should have grain a few weeks before the lambing season and be well fed while suckling lambs.

Mange stunts pigs and prevents satisfactory gains. In severe cases they become unmarketable. Dip the pigs in a one to 40 dilution of lime-sulphur. Keep the quarters clean.

Traditions of Sheep Disproved

Coverings of Wool Over the Face Does Not Indicate Its Quality.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Traditionally sheepmen have believed that the best sheep have coverings of wool over their faces. Another common belief was that folds around the neck and shoulders of a sheep was an indication of a fleece of superior quality and value. Another idea commonly held was that the weather exercised a controlling influence in the quality and quantity of wool.

Bring Out Facts. Research work by the United States Department of Agriculture has disproved two of these ideas and confirmed the other, but with a highly important modification. To bring out the facts, the department workers have for years carried on painstaking investigations, using methods which they admit seem wasteful and useless until the methods and results are understood.

The bureau of animal industry maintains a flock of sheep in eastern Idaho. Each June at shearing time each sheep is identified, weighed, and sheared. The staple is measured. The fleece is weighed. A sample is inclosed in a tin container and sent to the United States Experiment farm, Beltsville, Md. In the wool laboratory skilled workers dry the samples in an electric conditioning oven and get the moisture-free weight. They remove grease with carbon tetrachloride and the dirt by a special scouring process. Another drying makes possible a determination of the weight of clean wool and of dirt. Thus it is possible to compile a complete record of each sheep's production each year and for successive years.

Constant Culling Wise. These records have disproved the first two ideas which were widely believed. Weather does make some difference in wool production, but there is much more difference between individual sheep in one season than there is between flocks in different seasons. This points the wisdom of constant culling of low-yielding ewes and selective breeding for heavy fleece production.

Application of these facts on the sheep ranges is returning to sheepmen each year many times the cost of the research, says E. W. Sheets, who is in charge of the animal husbandry work of the Department of Agriculture.

Swine Having Constant Access to Water Thrive

It has been demonstrated many times by experiment stations as well as by thousands of producers that hogs do better and make larger gains from a given amount of feed when they have constant access to water. Normally a hog drinks only small quantities at a time, but it likes to drink often. It will drink several times during one feeding period when it can run to a self-feeder at will. When the feed is thrown on the ground or on a feeding floor where the individual hog must eat in competition with a large group, it is not likely to stop for water so long as there is grain to eat. But when it can run to a self-feeder it soon learns that there will be plenty of feed left when it returns. Then it begins to eat more deliberately and to drink several times before it has satisfied its hunger.

Feed Market Chickens as Much as Possible

All chickens intended for the early market should receive as much food as they will consume four times daily. Under good management it is possible to add half a pound weekly to the weight of birds which have been specially bred for the table.

Of course, in every flock there will always be a few birds with a tendency to put on very little flesh—in fact, there is often some difficulty in maintaining their weight.

Such birds should be marketed without delay. If kept for special fattening they frequently drift into an unmarketable condition.

Farm Notes

Put a poor tree when it is young to permit a good one to replace it.

A good draft horse is a ready and willing worker and is neither irritable nor nervous.

Pullets and cockerels should be kept in separate flocks if they are to develop as they should.

When raspberries and blackberries have been harvested, cut out and burn the old fruiting canes. This will help hold disease and insect injury in check.

Good pasture for growing pigs, brood sows, and all classes of swine is so valuable that it often makes the difference between profit and loss in the hog business.

Fewer mistakes in culling hens will be made when the flock has been properly fed and the hens given a chance to lay as many eggs as they are capable of producing.

THE DESERT MOON MYSTERY

By Key Cleaver Strahan

© by Doubleday Doran Co., Inc. WNU Service

I guess I was too sentimental. But I couldn't bear to see Sam's good old face all aching with worry.

"Sam," I wheedled, "have sense. We've a confession here that will satisfy the world. He killed her; and, when the body was found, he shot himself. Nothing could be more reasonable. No one would doubt it. We can send this to the papers—he has no relatives to be disgraced, or to sorrow over it—and the Desert Moon will be cleared of crime. One of your favorite sayings, Sam, is to let well enough alone."

Sam drew himself up to the top of his six feet and five inches and looked down, from there, at me; away down—as far, say, as if I had suddenly dropped into a dirty old cistern. "There is no question of well enough," he shouted, so that I could hear him in my depths, "until the Desert Moon is cleaned, clean, Mary Magin. Cleaned and fumigated, or destroyed. It is not going to be white-washed. There is someone on this ranch who is as guilty as h—; who knows who committed the murder; who aided and abetted it. We are going to find that person. Then we will hang together. After that, we can leave well enough alone."

"Suppose," I suggested, "that Chad was the accomplice."

"Somebody suggested, already today, that it was Chad who put the key in your pocket. When did he get the key to put it there? Well, say that he got it between seven and eight o'clock, when he was out scouting by himself. Did he meet some entire stranger, then, who asked him to dispose of the key? Did he agree to do it as a favor to said stranger? Did he, later, shoot himself and leave a lying confession to shield the stranger? The stranger, that is who had killed the girl Chad loved? Chad did carry some secret to the grave with him, Mary. I am sure of that. But not a secret that we can't discover. We are going to discover it."

To doubt Sam, standing there before me talking so earnestly to me, to doubt his honesty of purpose and his goodness, was more than a question of doubting my eyes, my ears, my senses.

"Sam," I began, resolved to tell him, then and there, about those pipe ashes of his on the beaded bag. I had waited too long. Mrs. Ricker was coming down the stairs.

"I think," she said, "that Martha should not sleep so late—I fear that she is sleeping too heavily."

"It is a blessing that she can sleep," Sam said. "She is all right. Those sleeping powders are as powerful as all get-out. I'm going up, though, I'll have a look at her."

"By the way," he added, from the stairway, "I want you two ladies to be here in this room, at promptly three o'clock this afternoon."

"Upon my soul!" I said, when Sam was out of sight. "What do you suppose that means?"

Mrs. Ricker shook her head, and walked to the windows and turned her back on me.

I looked at the straight, gaunt back, and at her long arms hanging at her sides. She seemed frail. And yet, she could hold Martha still, when Martha was in one of her tantrums.

All the world's a stage, whereon the actors are paid and the audience is led.

and that was more than I, a much stouter woman, could do. She, with no one but Martha who did not count, had been alone in the house for an hour the evening before, while the others of us had been out hunting for Gaby.

Sam insisted that Gaby had been dead two or three hours when we found her. But was he certain of that? How did he know? Might he be mistaken? Mrs. Ricker had hated Gaby, as only a jealous woman can hate.

CHAPTER VIII

Clews.

All the while I was getting a makeshift dinner ready, that last thought of mine kept bothering me like the smell of something burning. So, as soon as dinner was over I told the Indian girl, whose name was Zinnia, to manage the dishes the best she could, and I went off up to my room.

I took up some dinner on a tray with me, for Mrs. Ricker and for Martha. When Mrs. Ricker opened her door, I managed to get the information that Martha was awake, at last, and that Mrs. Ricker had just been helping her with her bath.

"Is she all right, now?" I questioned.

"I—suppose so." She edged the door shut, in my face.

I went into my room and combed my hair. I can always think better when I am doing some absolutely unimportant thing like that. But today, my thoughts whirred, and tossed, and foamed.

Sam's pipe ashes. The key in my pocket. Chad's suicide. Chad's note of confession. Gaby's fear. Mrs. Ricker alone in the house. What it was that Danny knew and dared not tell?

Sam's pipe ashes—Lands alive! What had been the matter with me? Sam was the only member of our household who smoked a pipe, but he was not the only man in creation who did; nor was his the only pipe. I supposed, that had ever dropped and spilled its contents. A very nice and comforting thought, if I could have fooled myself into believing it.

Try as I might, I couldn't keep from thinking that part of Sam's talk was bluff—that is, soon as I got away from him I thought that. Did it mean that he was trying to shield Chad? No. It could not mean that. Besides, Chad himself had surely been trying to shield someone. Sam? Gaby had feared someone, when she had left the house. No woman had ever feared Sam.

Mrs. Ricker had hated Gaby. But, so had John hated Gaby. Mrs. Ricker had said—John had said—

I jumped to my feet, holding my head in my hands. I could not endure thinking. I must stop it. I must find work to do; someone to talk to. I ran across my room and pulled open the door, just in time to see Hubert Hand starlighten from where he had been stooping to my keyhole.

"Hubert Hand," I said, "why are you listening at my keyhole?"

"I wasn't listening. I was looking, or trying to. This keyhole peering is the bunk, Mary. You might as well cut it out yourself." With that he turned and walked on down the hall.

I stood watching him, trying to account for an odd sense of relief that had come to me. In a minute I understood. Since he had been at my keyhole, he must have had some suspicion of me, for something. Possibly he had a good reason for that suspicion. As good a reason as I had for suspecting Sam, and John, and Mrs. Ricker. He was clear off the track with his suspicion. Probably, I was just as far off with mine.

He turned, quickly and came back to me. He looked up and down the hall. He lowered his voice to just above a whisper. "Mary," he said, "I've gone at this all wrong. I'm off my nut today—that's all. I guess I cared a lot more for the girl than I thought I did. By G—d, I believe I loved her. It is h—I—having her clear gone. But my hanging for her murder isn't going to do her any good; not now."

Horried, I backed away from him. For one wild moment I thought that the man was confessing to me.

"No!" he said. "Not that! I swear to God I'm innocent. But they are going to try to pin it on me, and they may not have much trouble doing it. I want to make a bargain with you. You'll get the best of it, for I know d—n well that I'm innocent, and I don't think that you are—entirely. It is this. If you'll keep your mouth shut, I'll keep mine shut. Fifty-fifty. Will you do it?"

"Hubert Hand," I said, "I don't know one solitary thing about you that would be of any importance if I told it to the world. Anything that you think you know about me, I'm glad and willing to have you broadcast, or publish in the papers."

"Sure of that? Sure you are willing to have me broadcast that you found the body; that you didn't scream; that you stayed there, quiet and alone with it for ten minutes before you gave the alarm?"

"I was sick, stunned, dizzy with horror."

"Probably any jury would believe that, all right. Just the same, I'll bet it would save you a lot of trouble, now and later, if no one knew anything about your lonesome five minutes, or longer. I'll tell you how I know. I came out of my room at the minute you opened the attic door. I saw you leave the hall to run up the steps. I went on downstairs. Chad was kidding around down there, collecting keys. I didn't know what he wanted with them, fortunately for you, or I'd have said you'd gotten the door open."

"And—and," I couldn't keep my teeth from chattering, "you think I killed her, then?"

"Rot! She had been dead for hours. Rigor was complete. No, all I think is that you know more than you are telling."

"I tell you, I was frozen stiff, with horror."

"All right. Tell the jury. Tell them, too, why you came rushing out of your room, as you did just now, white and trembling. Don't like your thoughts, all by your lonesome, do you? Come on, Mary. Be a sport. We are both innocent. But—Fifty-fifty? Shut mouth for shut mouth?"

His talk about telling a jury scared me. I had heard of third degree. I knew that if I ever told anyone but Sam himself, about those pipe ashes, the words would choke the life out of me, as I would want them to do.

"Hubert Hand, I'm going to be honest with you. I don't know what it is you want me to keep my mouth shut about."

"Don't?" Well, I want you to keep still about that conversation you overheard between Ollie Ricker and me in the cabin. She went back to get her parasol and saw you coming out. We knew you had been hiding there, listening."

"Lands alive!" I said. "I'd had no idea of telling that, anyway. It was none of my business."

"I'd Had No Idea of Telling That, Anyway."

"Fine! I didn't have any idea of telling anything, either. It was none of my business. Shake on it."

I let him take my hand. I said yes, when he made me promise. I felt like I'd been associating with a side-winder.

As I was trying to hurry past Gaby's door, Danny opened it, and asked me if I would come in and sit with her for a while.

I should have been there, long before. I went right in, apologizing, and trying to explain. But, when I saw that she meant for us to sit in Gaby's room, I suggested that we go somewhere else.

"No, please Mary," she said. "I don't want to be alone; but I do want to sit here. I feel as if here, with all her things around me, I might get in touch—I mean—something might come to me. If she is still on earth, she would come here. Wouldn't she? And she would try, I am sure, to give me a sign. Something to help me—to help all of us. If it should come, I want to be here to receive it."

"It won't come, Danny, dear," I said.

"No, I suppose not." She leaned back in her chair and sighed, and her arms dropped straight down over the chair's arms. The engagement ring that John had given her slipped from her finger and came rolling toward me. I scrambled to pick it up. When I rose from the floor she had jumped to her feet. She was ashy, shaking and trembling as if she had a chill.

"Mary! Promise me that you'll never tell that, not to anyone. It didn't—it couldn't mean anything."

"It means," I said, handing her the ring, "that you are wasting away. You'd better let me go down and bring you up some good, hot soup, or an egg nog."

She clung to me. "Don't leave me, Mary. I am afraid. I am dreadfully afraid. Promise that you won't tell about the ring. It—didn't mean anything."

I will admit that I did not like it any too well myself. There, just as she was asking for a sign, the ring, which had fitted snugly enough, I had thought, had dropped off. But, of course I had to put up a brave front to her.

"Nonsense," I said. "I won't tell anybody, because it is nothing to tell. All that it means is that the ring is too large for you."

Danny sat down in a deep chair, opposite me, her hands clasped on her knees, and leaned forward, and looked into my eyes.

"Definite things, Mary," she said, "are always so wise. This was a silly, futile little accident. The ring has dropped off, I suppose, half a dozen times this week. Gaby's last note to me was all affection. Living, if Gaby could have taken John away from me, for herself, she would have done it. Dead—she wants us to marry. I know that. As for any other implication—If only Uncle Sam were not so heartless," she finished.

"Heartless!" I spoke sharply in spite of myself. "If the Creator ever made a man with a bigger heart than Sam Stanley's, nobody ever saw him."

"He has been good to you," she said. "But you give him his own way about everything."

I reminded her that Sam was John's father.

"Uncle Sam is not John's father," she said. "John is Uncle Sam's adopted son. They are so different, so utterly different, they could not be father and son."

"Maybe not," I said, trying to keep pleasant, for I did not want to be snapping at the poor child on this day, "but no real son ever loved his father better than John loves Sam. He all but worships him, and he has ever since he was a little fellow."

"I know. I know. Sometimes I think John cares more for Uncle Sam than he does for me. Mary, tell me, honestly. Do you think John loves me as much as he loves Uncle Sam?" I should hate to have John have to choose between Uncle Sam and me.

"That is foolish talk. Why should John ever have to choose between you and Sam?"

She sighed, and shook her head. A sudden certainty came to me. Whatever it was that Danny had refused that morning to tell me, whatever it was that she had said that she dared not tell, had had something, somehow, to do with Sam.

"What I can not understand," Danny said, "is, that Gaby knew that she might be killed. And yet, so far as anyone knows, she did not do one thing to save herself. If only, only she had confided, in me! Surely I could have found some way to help her—to save her."

"You know, dear," I said, "I think that Gaby was not—well, at least not doing any clear thinking, those last few days."

"I know. I thought it was only her disappointment. But now—Who could be quite sane with such a fear confronting her? Yet—she left all of her things in order; as if, deliberately, she prepared for death. She burned her papers and letters. See—"

I crossed the room and looked into it. Papers had recently been burned there. I took the poker and stirred in the fluttering, black bits; but nothing had escaped the flames.

"I believe," said Danny, "that you are the only one in the house who hasn't looked at what Gaby had in her bag—"

Misfortune is often good fortune.

Jackson—Because he failed to provide for two small children, Paul Stephenson, a stereotypist, was sentenced to serve from two to three years in Michigan state prison. Two and a half years were recommended.

Edmore—D. C. Goldsmith, assistant cashier of the Edmore State bank, suffered a fracture of his right leg while turning over in bed. He has suffered from rheumatism for several weeks. He is in the Edmore hospital.

Benton Harbor—Mrs. John Bartak was carried from her burning farm residence south of here when fire destroyed her home, entailing a $5,000 loss. She was ill in bed and passersby gave the alarm. The Bartaks bought the home a few weeks ago.

Pontiac—Negotiations are under way to bring the Camden, N. J. motorcycle polo team, eastern champions, here for a game with the Pontiac quintet. The Pontiac team recently won the midwestern championship and the game would be for the championship of the United States.

Grand Rapids—Death has interfered with plans of Freeman S. Milman and a twin brother in Toledo to celebrate their eightieth birthday anniversary here Nov. 1. The Ohio brother died of heart disease. For months the two had been planning the celebration. They drifted apart years ago.

Sault Ste. Marie—Gerald Lucas, of this city, and Frederick White, a soldier stationed at Fort Brady, were killed instantly when the automobile driven by Lucas went over an embankment into a 20-foot ravine. The accident occurred at a curve on East-Grand avenue. A heavy fog is believed to have blinded the driver.

Sault Ste. Marie—Figures for traffic passing the Soo canal in September show that this year's business is 12,304,357 tons more than for the period to October 1, 1928. A total of 73,974,614 tons of freight has passed the locks here so far this year. Last year the tonnage for the same period was 61,670,257. An all-time record is anticipated this year.

Owosso—A feed mill operated by Ray Skinner & Son, at Henderson, six miles north of here, and a barn owned by Harry Coy were destroyed by fire which threatened for a time to wipe out the village. James Richards was burned seriously in attempting to keep the flames from his house. Fire departments from Owosso, Elsie, and Chesaning fought the fire.

Saginaw—Saginaw's new water plant, just completed at a cost of approximately $2,500,000, will be dedicated Armistice Day, it has been decided by the council. The Saginaw American Legion Post, which participated in the ceremonies on Armistice Day three years ago, when the first earth was turned for the new plant, will have charge of the dedication ceremonies.

Lansing—With fresh water clam shells bringing $95 a ton, the highest price in years, Michigan clam diggers face a prosperous season, but for some reason there are a smaller number of diggers now operating in our southern counties than in years past. Many of the operators claim that clams are getting scarce in the creeks and rivers and that it hardly pays, even at the present high price, to devote time to the industry.

Dearborn—Elijah H. Watkins of Lincoln, Ill., took his first train ride when he and his wife came to Dearborn, to take up their residence in a home provided by Henry Ford. Mr. and Mrs. Watkins for many years lived in the old Pottsville courthouse at Lincoln, Ill., and when Ford purchased this building and had it shipped to Dearborn for reassembling as part of his "American Village," he provided a new home, near the former landmark, for the old couple.

Kalamazoo—Mrs. Anna Pakar, Kalamazoo laundress, is sadder, wiser and poorer today. Mrs. Pakar withdrew $282, her lifetime savings, from the bank, wrapped it in a newspaper, and had a religious worker from Poland mumble some magic words over the parcel. She was told not to open the package for several days and she would become successful immediately. Upon opening the parcel she found her money had "magically" disappeared. Her advisor is sought.

Detroit—John W. Smith and Charles Bowles are the nominees for mayor of Detroit as a result of the biggest municipal primary election in the city's history. Former Mayor Smith, in one of the most remarkable comebacks of recent municipal politics, won first place by a margin of 18,195 votes. Former Judge Charles Bowles won over Mayor John C. Lodge by 4,802 votes. More than 178,000 ballots were cast. Returns from all of the 853 precincts gave: Smith, 71,417; Bowles, 53,233; Lodge, 48,420.

FOR RELIEF FROM BACKACHE

Backache may not mean anything serious, but it certainly does not mean anything good, especially if the result of disturbed kidney and bladder function. Ask Wm. Lagle, Anderson, Ind., about Foley Pills diuretic. He says: "when my back hurts, and irregular secretions warn me of coming trouble I take Foley Pills diuretic. They act promptly and give me quick and satisfactory results." A reliable valuable medicine, guaranteed. Cost little. Try them. For Sale at Hite's Drug Store. adv.

State News in Brief

Hart—Wilfred Schaner, 8-year-old son of George Schaner, of Weare Township, was killed when he fell 22 feet from a church belfry where he had gone with two other boys to get some pigeons.

Shelby—Clayton E. Ellis, 60-year-old secretary of the Oceana Canning Co. and Oceana County fruit grower, died of injuries suffered when he cranked his automobile while it was in gear. The car shoved him several feet and then ran over him.

Lansing—About 1,000,000 fingerling blue gills are expected to constitute the output of the branch county rearing pond this year. Spawning has been completed. The output last year was 265,500. The branch county rearing pond is on the St. Joseph river, near Union City.

Colon—Colon possesses an albino sparrow. This is a rarity among the herds of English sparrows that infest the State for this little dusky-coated household visitor seldom reverts to pink eyes and white feathers. It was seen on the streets by Jay Groton, a local barber.

Owosso—Although their sedan was wrecked, Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Doud, of Perry, escaped serious injury when their car was struck by a Michigan Central train here. Witnesses said Doud drove onto the tracks as the gates were being lowered and then stopped in the middle of the track.

Bay City—Ronald Schwartz, 22 years old, employed on the construction of a bridge over the Kawawita River for the State Highway Department, was killed by electricity when a boom struck an electric wire carrying 2,800 volts. His father, Frank Schwartz, foreman on the job, witnessed the accident.

Muskegon—Mrs. A. Stauffer, of Whitehall, was injured fatally when she was knocked by a train from a railroad trestle, between Whitehall and Montague, into the White River. Members of the train crew pulled her from the river but she died soon afterward. Her grandson, who was walking on the trestle with her, was injured slightly.

Manton—Word has been received here that Lawrence P. Briggs, consul at Nuevitas, Cuba, has been transferred to Bahia, Brazil. Consul Briggs is a native of Michigan, having been born at Manton. He was superintendent of public schools at Grand Marais and St. Ignace prior to his graduation from the University of Michigan in 1905.

St. Joseph—Anna Bentler, 63, and Jared K. Quantrell, 70, childhood sweethearts, are to be married, it was announced in New Buffalo. The bride-to-be is a spinster who has conducted a millinery and dry goods store in New Buffalo for 31 years. Quantrell is a widower. He left New Buffalo 25 years ago and won a comfortable fortune in Alhambra, Cal.

Lansing—The order issued by the State Conservation Commission last month prohibiting the hunting of pheasants before noon of Oct. 25 was rescinded by the commission, all the members of which acknowledged that the original order never should have been issued. All of the printed literature that has been distributed, including 400,000 game-law digests, carry the 12 o'clock prohibition. This is now invalidated by the new order.

Jackson—All real estate and rolling stock of the defunct Detroit, Jackson & Chicago Electric Railway, which recently suspended operations between Detroit and Jackson, will be sold at auction at the waiting room of the company in Ann Arbor, Oct. 31, according to an announcement by John F. Collins, of Jackson, the receiver. The company operated a passenger and freight business over its 80 miles of track for more than 30 years.

Ann Arbor—News of Dr. Alexander C. Ruthven's selection as president of the University of Michigan penetrated the wilds of Yucatan, it was learned, when the new executive received a telegram of congratulations from Dr. E. V. Kidder, in charge of the Carnegie Institute's explorations there. Dr. Kidder learned of the appointment while flying over the Caribbean Sea, when he tuned in his radio set on American news dispatches. He is a close friend of Doctor Ruthven.

Adrian—Standing at the corner of Church and South Main street, waiting for traffic to pass, Arnold Schomp, a newsboy, 12 years old, was dragged more than a block when his paper sack caught in the bumper of a car driven by Victor Kelp. Unaware of the boy caught on the bumper, Kelp was overtaken by Clarence Cole, Madison township, and the car was stopped. An examination showed no bones broken but the youngster was badly bruised about the body and suffered abrasions on the knees.

Lansing—The State is entering its annual poverty-stricken period, according to O. B. Fuller, auditor-general. Bills totaling more than $500,000 are on file and some of them will not be paid until the general fund has been replenished. The tight financial condition is usual in the late months of the year. The State property tax does not start to come in until after Jan. 1. During the period preceding the collection of the levy the general fund must depend largely upon fees and other comparatively small sources of income.

School News and Chatter

JUNIOR HIGH

The seventh and eighth graders have taken their hikes, which they plan to do every semester.

The seventh grade had a Weenie Roast out at the Pines Tuesday night. Everyone enjoyed a very good time. When all were ready to leave and the fire was dying out, the students formed a circle and everyone took part in telling ghost stories.

The eighth grade heard the seventh grade talking about what great fun it would be to have a Weenie Roast. At this, the eighth grade took up the suggestion and planned on having it Wednesday night after school, at Lone Tree Point. They also told ghost stories and sang songs when the fire was burning low. This certainly reminds us that Hallowe'en is near.

The eighth grade boys defeated the seventh grade boys in a football game last Friday. They surely have a fine fighting spirit. Let's go!

The seventh grade girls chose sides with Pauline Clark for one Captain and Gertrude Sidebotham for the other side, in playing the game "German Ball."

WEST SIDE

The second and third graders are planning a Hallowe'en party.

Much progress has been made in the Spelling Contest. Jean Carney and Matteson Smith have been chosen leaders, and as yet, Jean's group is in the lead.

The fourth grade are writing letters to Erel Moore, a member of the class, who is ill at the Charlevoix Hospital.

The fifth grade haven't much news this week, save that they too are starting a Spelling Contest.

The following students, representatives of the Junior and Senior class, have charge of the School Notes:

Editor-in-Chief—Frances Brown.
Assistant Editor—Helen Severance
Reporters—William Taylor, Katherine Wangeman, Ethel Staley, Margaret Bayliss and Luella Nelson.

EXPLORERS

The third grade, under the guide of Mrs. Hager, are enthusiastically looking forward to a trip this Tuesday afternoon, into the surrounding fields and meadows. On this trip they are to all be on the look-out for such valuable discoveries as bright leaves, cocoons, and larvae. Perhaps, in them, such explorers as Columbus, Marco Polo, and DeSota shall live again.

THIRD GRADE SPELLING RACE

Come on second division—the first division is still ahead. We suggest that you get up a little speed—don't let them have the lead forever. You have shown your good work by leading in the Arithmetic contest, so don't save gas in the spelling race.

BIG AUTO RACE

The A Division of the sixth grade Arithmetic class are staging a big feature this week—an automobile race. One part of this class is driving a Packard, and the other side has chosen the Studebaker. Each group has a very good chauffeur who carefully watches and records the speed being made by those riding in his car. At present, everyone in class is advancing most rapidly in arithmetic.

EUROPEAN TRAVELERS

The sixth grade Geography class is now traveling through Europe. The only baggage they carry is a note-book telling of the different people in each country, their occupations and industries, and something of their costumes and languages. Their guide—a very well-traveled one—is the bulletin board which explains many interesting mysteries of these foreign people.

HALLOWE'EN

The Hallowe'en spirit has been truly reflected in the Grade Building. Committees have been appointed for the purpose of decorating. Many vicious looking black cats adorn the windows, and paper pumpkins grow on every blackboard. Gay colored leaves add autumn beauty and outdoor life to the various rooms.

ORIGINALITY

Black Cats and Orange Pumpkins in the form of spelling books are being made by the second graders. No pupil wants his cat or jack-o-lantern to be ashamed of him, and so he therefore studies his spelling more energetically.

SOPHOMORES

FRESHMEN

The Freshmen girls in Home Economics are making a study of the different rooms. Just now they are planning the arrangement of furniture and colors and etc., of the bedroom. They are fixing over their own rooms to measure up to these standards. The girls find this work very interesting.

JUNIORS

The Juniors have a War on Weenies planned for Tuesday, after school, at Lone Tree Point. We are hoping that a good time will be enjoyed by all.

Lois Healey of the Junior class has been ill for some time on account of having her tonsils removed. We are hoping she will soon be back to school.

SENIOR LADIES ARE ENTERTAINED

The Bachelors of the Class of '30 showed their generosity Thursday night by giving a party for the girls, at Lone Tree Point. By the time the girls had arrived, a welcoming bonfire was already burning, and entering into the spirit immediately, the girls began to chant mysterious tunes and give toasts and dances. Mr. Eggert sang a very beautiful tenor solo, much to the enjoyment of the class. After we had all participated in weenies and coffee, for which the boys had had to spend their weekly allowance, we went to the Tourist Park where we all enjoyed dancing.

CHEBOYGAN TROUNCES JORDANITES

While the cubs were battling for supremacy with the athletics in baseball, a light speedy team was trying to stop a human battering ram in the form of Judd, Cheboygan's fullback.

We could not expect much more from our boys, however, seeing the conditions they had to compete with, for we congratulate Cheboygan in selecting a genuine sand lot for a football field—I believe I was mistaken, a potato field would be a better description, and whoever had a crop of potatoes there must have had a good one for there were holes deep enough for a British tank to die in, all over the field. The game opened with a bang with East Jordan receiving. The team made some beautiful gains, in fact the only real gains they ever made, through the line at the opening. It looked for a minute as if Cheboygan didn't have much, but we soon found our mistake. Cheboygan made a touchdown, a pass and Judd scored the first one to Rogers. This same play was worked for extra point. From then on, it was just a light team trying to get started on a slow field.

At the end of the half, the Cheboygan Band rendered a few selections. They looked pretty "cocky" in their new uniforms. If they keep up the way they are going now, they ought to give East Jordan some competition in the tournament.

The final score was: Cheboygan 20; East Jordan 0. The old saying can always be brought out however, that East Jordan can be outplayed but NEVER out-fought.

Following is the East Jordan lineup for the Cheboygan game:

Center—Hipp
Right Guard—Hott
Right Tackle—Gunderson
Right End—Sommerville
Quarterback—Kitsman
Right Half Back—Kling
Front—Quinn

Substitutions: Last quarter, Lorraine for Kling at Half.

Referees—Dicke and Ellsworth.

Time of game, 2:00 standard.

The Gaylor team comes here Friday, and we are looking forward to the best game of the season. The Busses will wait long enough to enable the country students to attend the game. This is going to be our big day and let's make it bigger, with your help. Admission—Adults 35c, Students, 25c.

Misfortune is often good fortune.

An endurance flight becomes a contest between a gas tank and a pocketbook.

'Speaking of the smaller currency,' scoffed the town crab, 'I've had little money all my life.'

The retainer for keeping out is probably man's closest approach to something for nothing.

What this country needs more than endurance flights in aviation is more endurance flights in matrimony.

Its Wonderful To Have Health Again

CORUNNA LADY RELATES HOW BONKURA RESTORED HEALTH.

All Other Medicines Failed.

MRS. EFFIE MITCHEL

"Bonkura is the medicine I should have had in the first place," exclaimed Mrs. Effie Mitchel, Misner St., Corunna, Mich. For years I suffered with stomach disorders, gas, belching and bloating after meals. The gas crowded my heart so that I could hardly breathe. I had neuritis pains so bad that I could not do my work. Many medicines failed and I almost lost hope of regaining health.

"A friend of mine convinced me to try Bonkura, because it had done wonders for her. The results of the first treatment were so remarkable, that it almost relieved me completely of my old ailments, but I kept on using it and now feel like a new person. Soon after all the poison and waste matter had been removed, my bowels functioned properly; the gas belching and bloating left me and the neuritis pains were gone. The splendid Bonkura Tonic gave me back my lost strength and I wish to tell everyone, that it feels wonderful to have health again."

Peterkin—You seem to have grown shorter since I last saw you.

Gargoyle—Yes; I got married and settled down.

Experience sees only the past; enthusiasm sees only the future.
