

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT THE LOON

BILLIE BROWNIE had always wanted to talk to the bird known as the Loon or Great Northern Diver. He had heard the expression "as crazy as a loon" and he knew it was always used when people did silly, crazy things.

He wondered if there was any truth in the expression or how it had started in the first place.

So he decided he would call upon a loon.

On his way there he wondered just how he would talk to a loon.

It was rather a difficult thing to go to a creature and say:

"Look here, old chap, they say a person is as crazy as a loon when that person has been behaving foolishly. Is it true? Are you about as crazy and foolish as a creature can be?"

Yes, it would be extremely difficult to say that, and yet that was just exactly what Billie Brownie wanted to find out.

"Are You So Restless Then?" Billie Brownie Returned.

He puzzled and he puzzled as to the way he would begin the conversation. Perhaps he would start in by saying something about foolishness and then say, as though it had just occurred to him:

"By the way they tell me you're a bit foolish yourself."

He was afraid, though, that he would not be able to say this in such a way as to make it sound as though he had just thought of it.

Then he wondered if he could talk about crazy things people had done and add:

"I don't suppose you've ever done anything silly, have you?"

But he was afraid that might not do. That might sound as though he had meant the conversation to lead up to that very subject—as was really the truth!

He didn't know what to do. And even after he saw the loon he did not know what to say. He decided to himself he would wait awhile and see whether the loon seemed spiteful or "touchy" or whether he appeared as though he would not mind what was talked of between them.

The loon did seem very nervous. He was, Billie Brownie soon saw a most marvelous diver and he did his marketing with great ease and masterfulness.

"You'll forgive me if I'm a bit restless," the loon said. "It's my disposition."

Billie Brownie was delighted. Here was the loon introducing the subject himself!

Billie needn't have spent so much time worrying and puzzling over what he might say.

"Are you so restless then?" Billie Brownie returned. "I suppose your family all have the same kind of a disposition?"

Billie had long ago discovered that once a creature was started in talking about himself, there was no effort about making him continue.

"Yes, we have much the same disposition divided up among the members of the family," the loon said.

Billie smiled to himself. The loon spoke as though dispositions were divided up as homes and gardens might be divided.

"You see, we have always been restless. But we're not crazy when we're free.

"We're pretty foolish at times. Now and again. But it is when we're put in close quarters that we go crazy.

"Yes, we go plain crazy—or fancy crazy if you prefer to speak of it in that way.

"They do not keep us in the zoos because we go crazy, lose our appetites and all our energy.

"We wouldn't mind, perhaps, if we had quantities of room, but quantities of room means to be free.

"It is when we have been in zoos and when we have gone crazy that people have seen us and have said:

"See those crazy loons. How very, very crazy they are."

"So we have the reputation of being crazy. Crazy as a loon" has become quite an expression.

"But I must go for a dive and swim, now," Billie Brownie. "Glad you called, as the signs at either end of the town say to the automobile people who've come a-visitin'."

And Billie Brownie went home with his question answered without having had to ask the question.

WORLD OF FRIENDS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I HAVE a friend who has a friend, another friend of his, For that's the way it is with friends—how wonderful it is!

If I should meet that other man I'd pass without a sign. Although, if he's a friend of his, then he's a friend of mine.

I'm sure of this, I shouldn't hate, I mustn't if I can, For he may be a friend of friends of mine, that other man.

I cannot hurt another man, I cannot make him fall. For I may hurt some friend of mine. I'd hate to hurt at all.

Yes, even if we aren't friends, the strangers on the street, They may be friends of friends of mine, although we never meet. I guess they all are friends of ours, the way that God intends—Although we push, although we crowd, we're just a world of friends.

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

ON SISTERS CUTTING EACH OTHER UP OVER A MAN

DOWN in Mexico City two sisters fought a duel over a man.

Their names are Dominga and Angela Ayala and they literally fought a duel with knives, wounding each other so severely that they had to be taken to a hospital, where they are lying in adjoining beds. Let us hope that when their wounds heal and they regain their strength there will be nothing around their beds that might serve as a weapon!

But to go back to the story; the duel followed a party at the home of Angela's sweetheart, whom Dominga also loved. Up to that time she had concealed her emotions, but took occasion during the festivities to voice them—whereupon her sister challenged her, the victor to get the man.

The sisters went into the kitchen of the house, we learn, and fought desperately with knives until both fell, many times wounded. But according to the news dispatches, the question of who will get the man is still unsettled.

Probably neither will get him. It was silly of those sisters to imagine that two women fighting over a man could decide which one should have him. After all the man has some say in the matter.

And it's in such terribly poor taste. To say nothing of the fact that it will probably make the man feel too important, so that whoever gets him is unlikely to have much joy out of him.

Indeed those women ought to be ashamed of themselves. It should be pointed out that you don't see brothers cutting each other up over a woman. No indeed. You hear of such things as men fighting over a woman, of course, but they are usually strangers, fighting, say, in a brawl. But brothers—or indeed even friends, don't let a mere woman break their friendship, to say nothing of cutting each other up!

No, there's very little that can be said for those two sisters in Mexico City.

NUTTY NATURAL HISTORY

BY HUGH HUTTON

THE SOFT-SHELLED GINGERSNAPPER

THIS pestilent creature is rather plentiful in the dairy regions, where it inhabits the streams running through cow pastures. The unwary cow that wanders within reach of its powerful jaws is likely as not to have the lower part of her legs snapped off. The first time is not so bad, but as a cow does not learn from experience, the legs are lopped off again from time to time. In some districts the cows have become too short legged to milk, and, not being beef cows, the only use for them is to train them as ferrets to chase jack rabbits out of their holes.

The gingersnapper is mainly constructed from an ordinary gingersnap with clove legs and horns attached. The head is a single peanut with pen and ink expression, and the tail is a toothpick broken here and there. The beast, however, is rather too dangerous for a house pet.

The Copper Capital

Butte, Mont., is the copper capital of the world. Some hundred and fifty mines operate in the vicinity of that city and a Washoe, twenty-six miles away, is located the world's greatest production works. Approximately one-fourth of the American production and one-seventh of the world's production come from this vicinity.

Better Alive

A certain man announced that he was marrying a widow.

"I could never be a widow's second husband," his friend said bluntly. The newly engaged man smiled.

"Well," he murmured, "I'd much rather be her second than her first."

First Flapper: "I wouldn't wear a one-piece bathing suit; they are too immodest."

Second Ditto: "I haven't much of a shape either."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

WHY IS IT "THE ALL-FATHERING RIVER?"

ALMOST every one of us has heard this reference to the famous body of water under discussion; yet how many of us, offhand, would be able to say that it was an allusion to the River Nile?

It was G. W. Stevens, historian, traveler and litterateur, who coined this name, after the fact that throughout the unparalleled length of the Nile's flow it beneficently waters a greater area of the agricultural world than any other stream.

The ground slaked by the Nile is known to be the most fertile soil of them all.

It is in tribute to this largesse of the mighty Nile that Stevens christened it "The All-fathering River."

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

PEACOCK'S FEATHERS

AMONG the superstitious peacock's feathers have a bad reputation. In England and the United States it is a common belief that to keep them in the house for decorative purposes portends disastrous events; and that if there are daughters in the family the girls will never be married as long as the ill-omened feathers are a part of the household adornments.

These superstitions are survivals from the ancient cult of Juno to whom the peacock was sacred and by which the Romans represented the goddess in many of their paintings and sculptures made for protective purposes. Elworthy says with regard to the superstition that peacock feathers bring bad luck, that Juno's anger is excited in some way by the plucking of the feathers of her favorite bird; while the idea that so long as they are kept in the house no suitor will come for the daughters points to the old attribute of spite and jealousy in love or matrimonial matters with which the goddess was always accredited.

Dear Editor:

TODAY I was so hungry, after 150 miles of touring, that I ordered everything on the menu except the fly specks.

Signs today: "Population 703." Well, don't boast. "Threshing machines and tractors not allowed on the pavement." No, you've got to leave room for the trucks.

Why does every one wave at a locomotive engineer?

A few farmers are threshing; the silos are getting loaded up with anything left after the drought. Apples are growing right along the roadside. I'm convinced again that this is a great country.—Fred Barton.

The Supreme Court of Michigan has upheld the law forbidding unnaturalized foreign-born residents the right to hunt, but this law cannot forbid them from protecting their property. A native born minor child of an alien may secure a hunting or trapping license, but must be accompanied while hunting or trapping by some adult legally possessing a license. This is in substance an opinion of the office of the Attorney General, given in response to questions asked by the Law Enforcement Division of the Department of Conservation.

Wilber M. Brucker, successful Republican candidate for Governor, is coming back to Petoskey for another campaign meeting. He was here during his campaign for the nomination and made a fine impression. The state-wide campaign of the Republican party will bring him here for an evening meeting on Monday, Oct. 20. Details as to the place and hour of the meeting have not yet been worked out. However, it is believed there will be a dinner, at which Republicans will gather to honor their candidate, and that the meeting will be held following the dinner. Mr. Brucker will come here from Alpena where he speaks at a noon meeting, and goes from here to Sault Ste Marie for a noon meeting the following day—Petoskey News.

The Charlevoix County Council of Religious Education held their fall rally at the Presbyterian Church in East Jordan last Wednesday afternoon and evening. Supt. Otterbein of Charlevoix spoke of the new approach of educators toward themes of the Bible and stressed the importance of an experience of personal salvation on the part of each young person as a buttress thru life. The evening session was attended by a larger representation from the church schools of the county, and Lieutenant Governor Dickinson gave a helpful message showing mental pictures of home surroundings, Christian and otherwise giving in contrast the result in lives of usefulness, vision and blessing and the wasted, wrecked life. The assassin of Pres. Harding was cited as a product of a selfish, greedy, godless home. Officers for the coming year were elected—J. L. Ekstrom of Boyne City, President; Mrs. Kirby of Charlevoix, Vice President; Miss M. F. Nash of Boyne Falls, Secretary; Mr. Clark of East Jordan, Treasurer; Mr. Otterbein of Charlevoix, Supt. of Young People's Work; Mrs. Davis of East Jordan, Supt. of Children's Work. The Junior award of the cup went to the Baptist Church of Charlevoix, and the picture to the East Jordan Presbyterian Church. This being their third year the picture remains with the Presbyterian Sunday School—Boyne Citizen.

GENERAL NEWS

The show entitled "Byrd at the South Pole" was given for the school students last Wednesday. The show was enjoyed by everyone. After the show a great many of the students went to the football game which was held at school.

There has been so many vacations lately that we find it hard to find news.

Beginning next week we hope to have more school news.

The Juniors had a stand last Wednesday at the football game where they sold hot dogs and candy. We heard the returns were very good. That certainly tells us they have quite successful business people in the Junior class as a whole.

GRADES

The grades are having two contests for perfect attendance, one on each floor. The prize on the first floor, which includes the first, second and third grades, is a book, while that of the higher grades is a statue, "The Young Student."

The second grade have three new books on their library table, and also a new number game. They are now enjoying their "Read and Do" books.

The third graders won the book for perfect attendance this month. They have started a contest in spelling. They have some new books for their library table as well as some new circus books.

The fourth graders have started reading "The Forestry Primer." Black cats and old witches are appearing in the fourth grade room. The following pupils had "A" in spelling the past week: Marie Essenberg, Isabelle Kaley, Anna Kraemer, John Pray, William Royce, Richard Saxton, Betty Sturgill, Jane Ellen Vance, Buddy Hite, Elaine Collins, Marion Hudkins, Billy Simmons, Beatrice Valencourt, Buddy Staley, Melvin Gould.

The fifth graders have a scholarship ladder. The pupil having the highest average for the month, taking first place, and so on. Betty Cook is at the top this month. They are making animal booklets. So far they have studied the elephant and the tiger. They are now making leaf booklets in spelling.

The sixth graders are making graphs in spelling and arithmetic. Kenneth Carney is the pianist this week. The two pictures which were presented by the sixth grade of last year have now been hung in the room.

WEST SIDE

The fourth and fifth grades are going to publish a newspaper once a month, which will come out on Friday. The price is one cent a copy and each member in the two classes is contributing news. The newspaper will be called, "West Side News." The Editors-in-Chief are Gene Carney and Mary Lilak.

Now the new balls and bats are here and the fourth and fifth grade teams organized.

Chic Fall Costume

Here's a chic costume for fall wear. A frock of bright blue covert cloth is trimmed with rickrack in white plique. An agnes tam of blue is bound with a band and bow of white grosgrain ribbon.

"Don't you admire the sangfroid with which Harry eats his salad?"
"Oh, I don't know, I prefer mayonnaise myself."

It's seldom that a word to the wife is sufficient.

HUGE MAP READY IN FIFTY YEARS

Offers Relief Outline of U. S. and Canada.

Wellesley, Mass.—The largest map in the world, which will measure 63 feet from east to west and 45 feet from north to south, is being constructed here.

Conceived by Roger W. Babson, noted statistician, the work, a relief outline of the United States and Canada, was begun about five years ago. It is estimated that 50 more years will be required for its completion, and approximately $2,000,000 will be expended on the project.

The map will be ten times larger than that of the Pan-American union which the government possesses. The latter is flat, whereas that being pieced together here will be of spherical form in exact ratio to the earth's curve.

The horizontal scale will be one inch for four miles. The vertical scale will be one foot for four miles, insuring that altitudes and depressions depicted will stand out prominently.

A gallery, 15 feet high will encircle the map. Viewed from this, any section reproduced on the work will appear just about as it would if actually seen from an airplane at a height of 12 miles.

Not only will the topography of the United States and Canada be limited with precision, but by elaborate color schemes, even landscape effects will be simulated as far as possible.

Every river, mountain, railroad line, city, and smaller community of the two countries will be traceable from the gallery.

The painted desert of Arizona, the everglades of Florida, California's orange groves, the pasture lands north of the Rio Grande, and the ice-bound regions of northern Canada will be delineated.

The entire work will conform to data being furnished by the United States topographical survey.

Designer of U. S. Capitol Urged in Hall of Fame

Washington.—Charles Bulfinch, "the first American architect," and designer of the United States Capitol, has been nominated to the Hall of Fame by the board of directors of the American Institute of Architects. Summaries of the achievements of the early American designer have been sent to each elector of the Hall of Fame by the board.

"Few architects of today can boast of a list of such notable buildings as those designed by Bulfinch," says the board in its plea. It was stated that Bulfinch's record as a statesman during the formative period of Boston should be sufficient to elect the architect to the Hall of Fame as a statesman, if not as an architect.

Bulfinch was born in Bowdoin square, Boston, August 8, 1763. He died April 15, 1844.

A graduate of Harvard, Bulfinch became interested in designing work while attending to improvements on his father's and friends' houses. Later he was able to make an extensive tour of Europe, studying the types of architecture used in the old cities.

While serving as a selectman in Boston, Bulfinch inaugurated street lighting, the system of coeducation, establishment of a board of health, and a financial committee that brought about order and system in the method of collecting taxes.

In 1817, after completing his second term on the board of selectmen, Bulfinch was appointed architect of the United States Capitol in Washington.

Among the many buildings designed by the architect are the Connecticut state house in Hartford in 1792, the first theater in Boston, five institutional buildings, ten churches, three hospitals, seven schools and seven commercial and bank buildings.

Long Skirt Blamed for Woman's Death by Coroner

London.—H. R. Oswald, a London coroner, presiding at the inquest on the death of Mrs. Sarah Stedman, said that the woman was killed because she had trodden on the hem of her long skirt and had fallen. He recorded a verdict against the ultra-fashionable long skirt.

Memory Expert

Denver.—Mrs. N. G. Peters would make a good instructor in a memory school. When a thief stole 21 phonograph records from her home she was able to give the song title on each disk, a total of 42.

Curfew Mistaken for Alarm of Fire

Ingersoll, Ont.—All the children who were supposed to run home when the town fire bell rang out the curfew came scurrying to the fire engine house recently to find out where was the fire.

The town council had neglected to announce the date when a new curfew law was to take effect.

Volunteer firemen who knew nothing about the unannounced curfew shared the children's disappointment when they learned the bell signaled nothing more exciting than a warning to all children less than fourteen years old to go home.

MAN, IN LIFETIME, SPENDS YEARS ABED

Sleeping Equipment, Therefore, Becomes Important.

Chicago.—What's the most important piece of furniture in the American home? The answer is practically unanimous—the bed!

Why? The bed sees more use than any other one piece of furniture. The average person spends eight hours each day in bed—56 hours a week, 240 hours a month, 2,812 hours a year and, figuring a lifetime as 50 years, a total of 145,600 hours during a lifetime. Quite a period!

These statistics probably show why mankind, through the ages, has devoted so much attention to the task of making beds more comfortable, with each age witnessing a new improvement in sleeping equipment.

The first beds, if they may be called such, were nothing if not simple. It is related in a survey of the subject published at the American Furniture Mart here. Your caveman simply wrapped some covering about himself, laid down "à la is"—and there he was, all ready for a night's repose. But the bed was one of civilization's first achievements.

Egyptians Had 'Em High

The Egyptians, it is believed, were the first people to get up in the world as far as sleeping was concerned. Their beds were so high a stool or a whole series of steps were required to climb into them. Falling out must have been a serious business. The beds were supported by long, curved legs, ending in clawed feet, graceful in design.

With the Persians, a bed must have been a complicated contraption. It is recorded that when Artaxerxes, a Persian, presented a bed as a gift to Timagoras, an ambassador from Athens, he sent along a whole corps of attendants, "skilled in preparing it for sleep." Just what these bed-mechanics did has not been disclosed, but their services were obviously considered essential and all part of the night's work.

The Romans, who divided all Gaul into three parts; as Latin students know, divided their beds into five classes: 1. the ordinary sleeping bed; 2. the reclining table couch; 3. the smaller lounge for rest during the day; 4. the high marriage bed; 5. the funeral bed, carried during a funeral procession. No explanation is offered as to why the marriage bed was higher than any of the others.

As time went on, beds varied greatly as to size and decoration, as springs and mattresses were introduced and improved. During the time of Charlemagne beds were very simple and often made of bronze tubing, somewhat similar to the brass bed once popular in America. About the Thirteenth century, beds had increased in size and luxury and the custom of parking the marriage bed right out in the middle of the main hall at a wedding was introduced. Curtains, it may be added, were placed entirely around the bed.

Achieves Importance

During the Fifteenth century, the bed probably achieved the greatest importance of its career. It became an elaborate piece of furniture for display purposes and it was quite the thing to receive guests in the bedroom, even kings holding court receptions while reclining on the royal couch. At this time it was customary to suspend draperies and canopies from the ceiling, but later columns to support these decorations were built as part of the bed and from this beginning evolved the four-poster bed which still retains its popularity.

Skipping through the centuries to the present, small, single beds have long been dominant in continental Europe, while the double bed was commonly used in this country, the popularity of the twin bed being a comparatively recent phenomenon.

Through all its ups and downs, comfort has always been the major item determining sales.

All Spoons Barred From This Cemetery

Port Jervis, N. Y.—Automobile spooning couples who have been visiting the Bloomington rural cemetery, near Port Jervis, have been barred by officials of the cemetery after 8 o'clock at night.

A constable patrols the cemetery and seizes any couples who enter the burial ground in automobiles or on foot after the forbidden hour.

Spooners who do not mind spooky places for petting parties have been invading the cemetery in large numbers, and most of them are said to come from Port Jervis, Middletown and other near-by communities.

Monument to Honor Amundsen Searchers

Havre, France.—A monument representing a large iceberg and a seaplane with its fuselage half out of the water will mark the spot in the Seine, along the Paris-Rouen-Havre road, where the Latham-47 hopped off for the hunt for Amundsen in which the plane and its crew of four were lost.

Lightning Is Kind

Tecumseh, Neb.—Strange noises on the darkened porch of E. R. Carter's house annoyed him. He stepped out, barefooted, to investigate. A bolt of lightning revealed a rattlesnake, coiled to strike. Carter killed the reptile.

Flocked-with-White Tweed or Travel-Print for Fall

They are the talk of the town, the new flecked or nubbed lightweight tweeds. So are the smart-looking travel-print silk-and-wool crepes. The color appeal of these swanky weaves is breath-taking. The smart idea is to make everything to match—hats, scarf, pocketbook, dress, coat or suit.

Tunic Frock Reflects Russian Influence

Stylists turn to Russia for inspiration. The influence of their picturesque dress is felt all along the line in daytime fashions, and has resulted in the revival of the tunic frock and the return of the over-blouse which was dethroned last season by the precocious little tuck-ins.

Calls are made or received without getting out of bed when you have an extension telephone at hand the day when you're upstairs, it's tiring to run down to answer the telephone. . . . You can have a telephone at your bedside—an extension of your present line—at a very small cost—only a few cents a day. . . . To place an order, or for information, call the Michigan Bell Telephone Company and ask for the Business Office. Installation will be made promptly.

"I wonder why they say 'Amen' and not 'Awoman, Bobby?'"
"Because they sing hymns and not hers, stupid."

A young lady who wanted to keep up with the latest styles went into a dry goods store and called for a pair of rolled hose. The clerk was equal to the occasion—with a little to spare. "Have a seat, miss," he said with alacrity; "we roll them free of charge."

A sensible person is anyone who agrees with ME.

"Somebody to See You!"

IF EVERYBODY with something to interest you should come and ring your bell, what a nuisance it would be! Think of the swarming, jostling crowd, the stamping of feet on your porch and carpets!

Every day we know of many callers who come to see you. They never jangle the bell—they don't take up your whole day trying to get your attention. Instead, they do it in a way that is most considerate of your privacy and your convenience. They advertise in your newspaper!

In this way you have only to listen to those you know at a glance have something that interests you. They make it short, too, so you can gather quickly just what you want to know. You can receive and hear them all without noise or confusion in comparatively few minutes.

In fairness to yourself look over all the advertisements. The smallest and the largest—you never can be sure which one will tell something you really want to know.
