Next Monday the Legion meets the Independents in the first came, while the Foundry and Masons clash in the second period. It will be remembered that when the Masons and Founlry met last spring to play off for the championship, the "Iron Boys" had the game well sewed up until the last half of the ninth when, with two out, the Masons rallied, scoring five runs to win, eleven to ton, taking the game, championship and (incidentally), a good feed. The Foundry said then, they would avenge that defeat if they had to run the Factory ten years at a loss, in order to keep the team together, so two snappy games are in prospect for Foundry 6 next Monday night.

Barrel-Organ in Society

The musician who writes in praise of the barrel-organ, lamenting its rapdisappearance, may not be aware of the popularity the instrument once enjoyed among the great ones of the earth, says a writer in the Manchester (England) Guardian. When first invented, barrel-organs were much in demand for society functions; the famous Lady Jersey set the fashion by having one installed in her drawing room at Berkeley square.

As late at 1877 even Augustus Hare found Lord Exeter, with his family and guests, dancing to the music of a barrel-organ, which they took in turns to grind. Royalty shared the craze, for Napoleon III and the Empress Eugenie gave "barrel-organ par tles" at the Tuilleries, when, according to one of the guests, "the worst of the many bad organ-grinders was the emperor himself."

L. C. ROUSE COUNTY ROAD COM'R ANSWERS CRITICS

My friends have called my attention to an article appearing in The Charlevoix County Herald of the issue of Nov. 27th taken from the Boyne Citizen of the issue of Nov. 19th and signed by Clark Haire which made reference to a road project of the State Highway Department. The article in no way portrays the ambition or devotion the principal holds in the highways of the county. All that is asked of newspapers, men or any set of men is a fair knowledge of the things they attempt to discuss and a continued sense of fairness of truth in giving them to the public. So far, not much of either has been indulged

The writer has shown his confidence in Boyne City. East Jordan and the county of Charlevoix by the investments he holds in these various places, and we would not engage in a single act that would be in any way unfair or unjust. As one of your Commissioners I shall endeavor that very act will be for the best interests of the county as a whole according to my best and impartial judgment. No ne need have any fear but that they will receive fair treatment and I believe every act so far justifies this claim

At this time I desire to thank many of my good East Jordan friends for

TRAVERSE CITY BASKETBALL TEAM WIN 16 TO 8.

(From Record-Eagle) St. Francis High School Basketball team of Traverse City waded right into Class C competition Friday night and came out with colors flying high, by reason of a 16 and 8 defeat it handed Coach Abe Cohen's East Jordan quintet on the northern court.

A defense the speedy Jordaners could not break down or pierce consistently was the Parochials' main forte. As to shooting, Coach Vern Emerson's youngsters should have doubled their score, had hooping eyes been in correct order.

Mort Carroll was delayed in arrivng on the northern battle-ground. He didn't start, but was inserted in the first period; and Bramer went in for Barr as the only other St. Francis substitution. East Jordan also used six players. Coach Walker of Alba referred an excellent game.

East Jordan had a 5 and 2 lead as the first quarter ended, and 6 to 5 at But Captain Pat Burden the half. and his helpers gained an 11 and 8 edge for the third stopping place, and they blanked the home team in the last eight minutes, while picking up five more points.

East Jordan met the strong St. rancis Basketball team of Traverse City at East Jordan Friday night with disastrous results East Jordan knew before the Traverse team arrived that they had all they bargained for if for no other reason than Coach Cohen's men only started practice Monday, four days before the St. Francis game. However, this takes nothing from Ccach Emerson's parochials for they have a classy outfit that can stand-off any Class C High School especially at this time of the season. Not playing football gives a team a drive, freshness and interest in the game that other teams do not have immediately following a hard football schedule.

Coach Cohen has a squad of about forty men out for Basketball but many of them are just beginning to get where they can be used. The local team looked none too good against St. Francis. A decided improvement will have to take place if they expect to hold their own against Class C competition hereabouts. The St. Francis boys had but very few easy shots on the baskets they actually made. Ludka and Bramer made three baskets by tossing from rather awkward positions, not only that, they got rid of the ball in a hurry, and altogether the Traverse crowd deserved to win. It will take a very good team to defeat them, either Class C or D. For the locals Walter Ellis made the only field goals egistered for the local outfit.

Marion and her mother decided to let the father and boys try it first while they gathered more courage. Prince stood by watching excitedly. wagging his tail and voicing his approval in sharp barks.

It was a thrilling ride but a safe one so Marion and her mother readily took their places for the second slide. As they started down hill, Prince gave a quick leap, caught Marion by her coat and pulled her off the toboggan

Hillsdale—Work has been started on $14,000 addition to the Hillsdale City Hospital, made possible through the bequests of citizens. It will house a maternity ward nursery, first aid, an emergency operating room, labor atory, laundry and storage room.

Port Huron—A skull fracture and a caused the death of Wanda. 4-vear-old daughter of Mr and Mrs. James Lansdy, of Port Huran. The child was injured while playing with other children near a pile of lumber. A timber fell, striking her.

Republic - Thirty-eight Humboldt Township consolidated school pupils were shaken but escaped serious injury when a bus, driven by Charles Kotaniemi, skidded, plunged over a 10-foot embankment and overturned The children were being returned to their homes.

Battle Creek-Wilbur Bundy broke his right arm trying to crank the family automobile. His wife took him to a hospital and returned home to find that Olin, 11 years old, likewise had broken his right arm trying to crank the car. She returned to the hospital with the boy, who was placed in a room with his father.

Battle Creek-Although he is the youngest recorded victim of ferment ed beverages, Charles Penock, 9 months old, did not drink the bottle of wine that caused his troubles. He rolled it up against his father's gunstock, and the bottle burst, filling the child's face and hands with glass. The glass missed his eyes.

Ann Arbor-A passenger pigeon, once one of the world's most common birds, but now totally extinct, has been acquired by the University of Michigan museum. The mounted specimen was presented to the university by H. B. Matthews of Ludington. The passenger pigeon in America died 15 years ago in a Cincinnati museum, and specimens are exceedingly rare, Eaton Rapids-Roland Davis, tackle on the local high school football elev en, has an honor he doesn't want. He's been declared the best cake baker in the school's home economics department. The only boy enrolled in the advanced home economics class, Roland gets some tough assignments Recently he had to write a theme on how to entertain 12 girl friends at an afternoon tea.

Ann Arbor-Harry Kipke, coach of Michigan's football team, was named as a probationary officer when Leslie Anderson, 23, of Grasse Lake was placed on probation for five years. Anderson had pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery unarmed, after taking $14 from Russell Meyers, a filling station attendant, in a holdup. Burt Schumacher. Ann Arbor-Moe Kallis, 47 years old, of Chicago, lost his fight for life at University Hospital here when a serum being brought by plane from Chicago by his brother arrived five minutes too late. Mr. Kallis entered the hospital Nov. 11 suffering from a brain tumor. The brother left Chicago at about midnight and upon ar rival was hurried from the Municipal airport to the hospital by cab. Mr. Kallis had just died.

Negaunee-The unemployment situation in Negaunee will be considerably relieved on Jan. 4 when the Republic Steel Corp. will reopen its Cambria mine, which was closed on Aug 19. The property will employ a crew of 80 men on a three-day-a-week basis. The company has sufficient ore in stock piles for 1932 requirements but a desire to help out in the unemployment situation prompted the officials to resume operations at the property.

Jackson-Transfer of tubercular inmates of Michigan prisons to the new tuberculosis hospital inside the walls of the Michigan State Prison will soon be started, according to Warden Harry H. Jackson. The hospital has a capacity of 239. Five of its six floors are devoted to special cells which have wider windows than ordinary cells and are equipped with hospital beds. The sixth floor provides hos pital facilities and opens on a roof deck where the patients may take sur baths.

Grandville-Having no use for same, this village has offered its jail for sale. The coop, once housed by the city hall, stands alone in the open physician, and was followed by in since the building has been razed. A new city hall is to be built but offi procedure must not be repeated. Lesson for December 13 JOHN'S VISION ON PATMOS

GOLDEN TEXT—And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of heliand of death.

PRIMARY TOPIC-The Heavenly

ome. JUNIOR TOPIC-John's Vision of

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP--John Sees the Ever-living Christ. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-C-The Glorified Saviour.

We should be glad that the lesson committee has given us another lesson from the Book of Revelation, which contains Christ's last message

I. The Preface (1:1-3).

1. The title of the book (v. 1). The Revelation (unveiling) of Jesus Christ. The revelation of Jesus Christ refers to his personal appearing in glory to judge the world and to establish his kingdom. The word "apocalypse," translated "revelation," signifies according to New Testament usage the unveiling of a person (II Thess. 1:6-10; I Pet. 1:7). The theme of the book is Christ's second coming. his personal, visible appearance in glory (vy. 1, 7, 10).

2. To whom made known (vv. 1, 2) To his servant John-"To show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass."
3. A benediction to those who read, hear, and keep the sayings of the book (v. 3). It must be possible to understand these sayings, or the promise is meaningless.

II. The Salutation (vv. 4-8). 1. To whom (v. 4). The seven churches then existing in Asia Minor. Seven, the number of completeness. suggests a symbolism of the Church throughout her course.

2. From whom (v. 4). a. From him which was, and is, and is to come. b. From the seven spirits which are before the throne—the Holy Spirit in his seven-fold plenitude as set forth in Isaiah 11:2, also in the Gospel of John.

c. From Jesus Christ (vv. 5-7). While presenting Christ as the gracious Redeemer, John's prophetic eye caught the vision of the Coming One in glory, exclaiming, "Behold he cometh" (v. 7), the Alpha and Omega (v. 8).

III. The Vision of Glory (vv. 9-18). 1. The seven golden lamp stands (v. 12). These candlesticks are the churches (v. 20), thus presented because they are the light holders in this world's darkness. 2. The Son of man in the midst of the candlesticks (vv. 13-18). Christ in the midst of the churches indicates that they give forth light only when Christ is the central figure. a. "Clothed with a garment down to the foot" (v. 13). This is a royal as well as a priestly robe (Isa. 22:21), and signifies his right to judge and to rule, as well as to offer sacrifice. h His head and hair white as wool

(v. 14, cf. Dan. 7:19, 20). This has a twofold significance—purity and eternity. c. Eves as a flame of fire (v. 14)

This suggests his infallible knowledge. d. Feet like burnished brass (v. 15). This indicates that he comes as Judge and King, with irresistible power.

e. His voice as the sound of many waters (v. 15). His voice of judgment will be outside of man's control. All excuses will be swept aside by his resistless word.

f. Seven stars in his right hand (v. 16). According to verse twenty. stars, mean the messengers of the churches, perhaps pastors or representatives sent forth to comfort John in his lonely exile. The minister lies in the right hand of Jesus Christ, hears his message, and speaks it out. g. Out of his mouth was a sharp two-edged sword (v. 16). Observe that this is a mouth sword. "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him" (John 12:48). "The word of God is sharper than any two-edged sword" (Heb. 4:12). The two edges indicate its double action, condemning the evil and approving the good and excellent.

h. His countenance was as the sun shining in his strength (v. 16). The effect of sunshine is healthful and joyous to some things, while it is death dealing to others. The sunshine of God's love cheers some while it hardens others. The manifestation of the glorified king will be hailed with delight by those who love him, and will create dismay in those who do not love him.

All Joined in Song

While on a tour of the coal mines, near Ashland, Pa., Leo Minster, burytone and member of the Apollo club of Boston, heard a miner far down underground singing at his work, The song was "My Wild Irish Rose." Minster took up the song and he and the miner made it a duet. Then evwithin hearing distance as well as officials of the company who were taking Minster on the tour foined in the chorus.

Nurse Cow Saved Colt

Walter A. Gruenberg, Columbia county. Wisconsin, lost a mare last spring that had a young colt. Gruenberg did not like the idea of having to hand-feed his colt, so he installed the foal in the dairy barn where he kept a large number of Holstein cows. After much work the colt was persuaded to get his meals from one of the cows.

This fact brought out information from Kentucky that many thoroughbred horsemen there are raising their foals on a nurse cow via the bucket

Ordered to Thrash Wife

As the result of a court clerk's error a divorcee in Berlin, Germany, is suffering from the effects of a thrashing administered by her ex-husband. with court order. A few days after he had been divorced the man received official notice that he was to pay alimony, to enter her house, and to thrash her. He quickly complied by putting into effect the second and third parts of the order. Investiga-tion disclosed that the order should have read to pay alimony, but not enter the house or thrash the woman.

There is no waiting, no fuss, bother or muss.

Electric appliances are popular gifts, because of the utility they render, and the small cost to operate.

They are easy to purchase, too there are many Electric appliance dealers here in town.

For example, your hardware or furniture dealer displays and sells Electric appliances, anything from an Electric Percolator to a Kitchen Mixer, your Jeweler displays Electric clocks or perhaps the dealer who sold you your automobile will be glad to demonstrate a new Radio in your home.

Indeed, there are really very few of your local merchants who do not sell Electric appliances of one sort or another.

State's Name a Mixture of French and Indian

It is surprising how many people, particularly in the Middle West, pronounce "Wisconsin" as if it were spelled "Wesconsin," with an "e" instead of an "i" in the initial syllable, says Pathfinder Magazine. The name is correctly pronounced "Wis-kon-sin," and there is little in its history to account for or to justify the colloquial pronounciation, -So- far as known the first white man to set foot on any part of what is now the state of Wisconsin was Jean Nicolet, a coureur de bois, who in 1634 was sent into that region by Champlain to make treaties with the Indians. He landed at Green Bay in 1633. In 1673 the region was traversed by Father Marquette and Joliet. At that time the river was known to the Indians by a name which sounded to the French "wis-kon-sin" and the whites picked up the Indian name and applied it to the territory itself. early literatures dealing with Wisconsin the name is variously spelled "Wisconsing," "Ousconsing," "Ouisconsin," and "Wiskonsan," etc., but "Wisconsing," in no case does the short "e" sound occur in the first syllable. However, in 1695 Le Seuer referred to the tribes along the Wisconsin river as the Onesconsins, and this may be taken as circumstantial evidence that the

Zoo Specimens Come High

Lions are the lords of the jungle, but their value on the open market is often much less than that of other animals. A good gorilla usually is worth about $1,000, while lions have sold for even less than $200. And a gorilla is a risky purchase because the climate of most American cities is hard on the big apes. In the zoo market, the rhinoceros brings the highest price-$500 or more. Snakes are sold by the foot, some of the more interesting varieties selling at $15 a foot. Giraffes run the rhinos a close race lu price. A pair of angelfish are snapped up at $100. Among birds, the little blue lovebirds are worth their weight in gold. Popular Mechanics Maga-

"Well, I didn't," said Mrs. Martin.

Post Office in the Home

Letter writers often find themselves without stamps when ready to mail their letters. One mother has solved this problem, according to the Parents' Magazine, by delegating one of the children in the household to act as postmaster. He is given a dollar's worth of stamps and it is his business to see to it that stamps are always available. The various members of the family buy their stamps from him. This arrangement not only ensures a supply of stamps being in the home, but also provides the child with training in the handling of money and the keeping of accounts.

Annual meeting and election of officers of East Jordan Lodge No. I eat my peas with honey, 379, F. & A. M., this Saturday night, I've done it all my life, Dec. 12th. All members urged to be It does sound kinda funny

By LOUISE M. COMSTOCK
IME was when the job of Santa Clausing was a snap. Twelve months supervising the jolliest of elves in the manufacture of a standardized line of toys, and then a romantic evening whirling a picturesque whip over willing Doner and Blitzen, visiting friendly cottages with wide, welcoming chimneys and capacious fireplaces, stuffing the hells and sugar plums to fill in toe, heel sturdy, handknit stockings with wooden dolls, rubber balls and sugar plums to fill in toe, heel and extra corners. A mere nothing in those golden days even the responsibility of distinguishing between the neatly darned sock of good brother Ben and the ragged one of that rascally Willie: very few little boys but were good, and deserving of sugar plums, and easily pleased, when father was a boy!

But changing times, ushering in steam heat, kitchenettes with only two windows on a courtyard and a ventilator on the corridor to accommodate the rotund Saint, chiffon hose and a universal slavery to the great god Style, have put Santa in the big business executive class. Today we make him annually responsible for designing, constructing and distributing some $400,000,000 worth of toys, all with a nice discrimination between the good and the poor, a careful consideration for childish tastes, and correct application of changing styles.

Children's playthings, always imitating the possessions and tools of their elders, have thus naturally from the very earliest times followed closely upon mankind's changing whims and The dolls unearthed in Egyptian tombs are made of wood and sometimes have movable arms and legs; but they all show that stiffness and emphasis upon the profile view character Istic of Egyptian art. Early African dolls without heads were given to children of the Mohammedan faith, for their religion forbade the reproduction of the human features. Among the toys of early Persian children we are not surprised to find many animals, tigers with movable heads, crocodiles whose lower jaws work up and down, lions of limestone on wooden wagons for the owner to pull about, or a carved hedgehog on wheels. Roman children played with twowheeled carts like the charlots in which their public heroes raced. Toys during the Middle ages, if we are to judge from the few preserved for us, included knights mounted on horses modeled in clay, and slender ladies of terra cotta modeled in the elaborate costumes of the period painted in gold and brightest bues. It is the mechanical toy, perhaps, which shows most emphatically the influence of present-day tendencies on children's playthings. From the est tin automobile the furlously a few feet across the floor, to the $1,000 mechanical wonder which succeeds by means of springs and electricity to simulate exactly a real cat or a whole circus parade in action-the pur-mechanical wonder which succeeds by means of springs and electricity to simulate exactly a real cat or a whole circus parade in action—the purchase, usually, so toy dealers tell us, of rich grandparents and uncles who wish to wind up the cat and watch the circus themselves—these toys employ every invention of modern science. And they keep pace also with current interests. Toy counters today are crowded with miniature motion picture cameras and projectors, some of them capable of carrying 500 feet of time and all of them, so they are adderlised.

some of them capable of carrying 500 feet of film and all of them, so they are advertised, ensity managed by a twelve-year old. A few seasons ago, when a transatlantic flight was still novel enough to commend a streamer headline in all the newspapers, the mechanical airplane was in high demand, and toy golf equipment or indoor golf games dominated in the toy store at the same time that miniature golf greens began appearing in every vacant lot. Today mechanical racing automobiles and toy zeppelins are supplanting the airplane in popularity, and automobile or horse racing games, and football, are crowding out golf in indoor games. Carry-car trucks with a detachable traller capable of transporting four small models, and delivery wagons stocked with popular trademarked wares keep this type of toy up-to-date.

While real mothers must be content with bables upon whom current styles in curly or straight hair, blue eyes or brown, have no influ ence, one to ten-year-old mothers can be much more porticular. For styles in dolls change yearly it seems. In grandmother's day all dolls were quite grown up, the youngest of them being prim young ladies in pantalettes and artificial curls The baby-doll, simulating a real baby, is a comparative newcomer, and even it has suffered periods of more and less popularity with changing juvenile tastes. In 1929 the flaxen haired beauty with the baby face languished unwanted on the toy counter, while the "flapper" doll, with dark bobbed hair, natty clothes and a complexion ofttimes modishly sun-tanned found a happy home. This year, thanks to the Empress Eugenie or whoever it was who revived in us a taste for things oid-fashioned and sweetly feminine, curls, dimples, long lashes and frilly wardrobes are in again. And baby dolls! Little daughter has apparently given up dreams of a career and requests of Santa Claus for this Christmas nothing more modern than a doll's house to keep in order and a realistic baby doll to be loved and nursed and dressed and redressed. Her dreams of miniature domesticity are also, it seems, more elaborate and thorough-going than those of grandmother, to whom the doll itself was all-sufficient. They include a ready-made wardrobe, for what up-to-date little girl is going to slave over a toy sewing machine, even an electric one, or prick her fingers with a grown-up needle, what with the grand styles and the bargain prices of read-to-wear dolls' clothes. And they include also electric ranges that really cook, carpet sweepers, or better yet, vacuum cleaners that really clean.

A very different type of doll, but one also indicating the influence of current tastes even on children's toys, is the caricature doll, stuffed and painted to represent characters already familiar through the talking pictures, popular juvenile books, or widely read comic strips and

SOMEBODY'S COMING

Kris Kringle is coming,
Kris Kringle is coming,
Kris Kringle is coming,
Kris Kringle is coming,
Kris Kringle is coming to town!
He wears a big pack
On the top of his back,
And looks like a funny old clown.

Now wait just a minute:

Fill tell what is is it.
Then won't your eyes sparkle with joy!
There's something with curls
For good little girls,
And something as nice for each boy.

There are flaxon haired dollies
And all sorts of follies
And all sorts of follies
To please little folks Christmas day;
There are gay horses prancing,
And Daudy Jacks dancing,
And Daudy Jacks dancing,
And cereything fitted for play.

From Kris Kringle's chin
Hangs a plenty of tin—
Tin trumpets and watches and drums;
Noah's ark painted red,
A little doll's bed,
And 'soldiers with very big drums.

From out of his pockets
He'll take sugar lockets
And candies, all red, white and blue;
And there will be kisses
For_nice little misses,
And sweetmeats in plenty for you.
(Aunt Clara, in the Nursery, January, 1870.)

Managagagagagaga Sunday supplement "funnies." Mickey Mouse, a foot high and true to the original to the last whisker, may not inspire a young owner with spasms of mother-love, but who would refuse a celebrated movie star warm welcome into the doll family circle? Thus Mickey Mouse, and Krazy Kat, and the rollicking Bimbo, as well as the entire Aesop's Fables gang, done up neatly in black velvet, and nine members of Our Gang, modeled in bisque and waiting for their owner to paint them as they should be painted, are important newcomers in the doll world. Orphan Annie and Skeezix and Smithy are among a number of comic strip celebrities reproduced as dolls this year. Rose O'Neill's "Kewpies" done up in flesh pink plush, make a cuddly companion for baby's crib; and from juvenile literature have been borrowed A. A. Milne's funny little bear, Winnie the Pooh, featured in a number of toys this year, and the whole Raggedy family, from Raggedy Ann down.

Ask anybody who has outgrown childhood just which toy he remembers with the greatest satisfaction, and you will find, nine cases out of ten, that it was something very simple, a set of blocks, a rag doil, or even something which he made himself, out of spools, or tin cans. The real pleasure afforded by this type of toy persists in spite of mechanical wonders and layettes in which everything from nursing bottle to safetypins is provided. Psychologists, however, have brought it up to date, and now present us with the term "activity toys," and point out anew the eternal value of the plaything which makes the child the actor rather than the spectator, which demands youthful ingenuity, calls forth infant imagination, exercises childish brains and Thus we find always in style all outdoor games and playthings, from the good old bat and ball to a mechanical see-saw so constructed that it takes only one child to operate it and teeter deliciously up and down without the peril of a sudden bump when the partner at the other end disembarks. Thus also the permanent appeal of tool boxes, paints and blocks of clean paper, pencil boxes, modeling clay, building blocks or any of the elaborate construction outfits by which the youthful engineer may build bridges gand skyscrapers to his heart's content. And thus The demand predicted this Christmas for cowboy boots, or toy revolvers in a holster on a wide belt, by which the small boy is suddenly metamorphosed from the terror of the fifth grade to a hero of the western plains.

Modern child psychologists have also added impetus this year to the sale of toys classed as "educational." Instruction cloaked as amusement, like a sugar-coated pill, may now be pleasantly administered in any number of playthings. When the instruction is for the very young, the educator moreover prescribed toys that durable under normal handling, and above all, absolutely hygienic. No more fragile dolls which the lusty infant will more than likely crush with its first ecstatic hug. No more blocks from which the bright colors may be sucked by any agressive baby, or metal toys, with sharp corners or cutting edges. There is, of course, some educational advantage in giving a delicate piece of mechanism to an older child, especially if care be taken to impress upon him its proper care and use

For the child whose tastes are already sufficiently developed to be evident, the Christmas shopper may choose from cut-out puzzles, composed of hundreds of fascinating colored blocks cut out with a jig-saw, which one labors to fit together and lo, is rewarded by a lovely map, or a famous masterplece of painting! There are sets of chemicals done up in small vials and boxes, with directions for combining them to produce some of our commonest chemical phenomena; and construction sets by which the boy is taught the principles of the cantilever bridge or of modern step-back architecture; and electric transformers which urge their possessor to make his own electric toys.

Games, whether they profess, as many of the newer games do, to be of educational value, or merely claim to amuse, all nevertheless have a certain tendency to quicken the mind and eye to train the muscles in automatic response. Moreover, games have this year attained a certain definite style appeal through the present popularity of "adult games." The fact that grown-ups are playing them has this year lent new attraction to many of the simplest of children's games, and made game-playing in itself a sophisticated and interesting thing to do.

Just when and why the current rage for adult games commenced nobody seems to know. Some says it is the result of the vast interest people as a whole take today in outdoor sports; when the baseball and football season is over and it is impossible to take the weekly work-out at golf or tennis, what more natural than that peoshould resort to their own indoor games, in their own homes? Perhaps officials of the large steamship companies, who have popularized their cruises by filling in the long days of "water water everywhere" with deck tennis, shuffle board and table games in the smoking rooms are responsible. At any rate, last winter people in search of amusement broke away from standard auction bridge through contract, backgammon became a dangerous rival, and, first thing we knew, pool tables appeared in the basement, tennis tables in the attic, guests were given their choice between bridge and club parchesi, and the larger department and sporting goods stores installed flourishing adult game sections.

stores installed flourishing adult game sections. This consequently will be a Christmas of many games. Children and elders alike will drag out such old-time favorites as Flinch and Authors, or amuse themselves with the familiar electric questioner. They will familiarize themselves with famous events in history by a new game based on the History of Mankind of Van Loon, and go into convulsions, excellent to offset a heavy Christmas dinner, over an imported same called Sorry.

Denies Soil Can Be Hurt by Fertilizer

Ohio Expert Shows, Fallacy of Belief.

Do fertilizers hurt the soil? No, says C. J. Schollenberger of the Ohlo experiment station.

An old objection is that they exhaust the humus. The answer, says Scholenberger, is that the increased growth of plants or fertilized land leaves a greater supply of humus in the soil than if land were not treated, and if larger crops are fed to live stock there will be more manure to return to the soil.

Another objection is that fertilizers increase the acidity of the soil. The one regular or large ingredient that leaves an acid reaction in the soil is sulphate of ammonia, declares Scholenberger. If all the nitrogen carried in a 4-12-4 were in the form of ammonium sulphate, only 125 pounds limestone would be necessary to correct the acidity created by the treatment. This amount is insignificant in comparison to the lime in most soils. Superplosphate, the chief ingredient of most mixed fertilizers, reduces the amount of soluble aluminum in the soil moisture.

Some have feared that nitrate of soda would create an alkaline condition in the soil comparable to the soils of the West. After using/heavy application of nitrate of soda since 1894 in a rotation in which 680 pounds nitrate of soda were used, every five years, there was no harm to the piece of land at the Ohio station.—Prairle Farmer.

Better Yield of Wheat

After Round of Alfalfa
Ten extra bushels of wheat an acre may be expected after a round of alfalfa, according to H. G. Eggert, Thayer county, Neb. The second crop usually is better than the first, which may burn, owing to the excessive amount of nitrogen and organic matter in the soil.

"I usually let the alfalfa stand five or six years," said Mr. Eggert. "Then I crop the land until yields begin to fall again. I had one ten-acre field that made 43 bushels an acre, I cropped it 17 or 18 years and the last wheat yield was 26 bushels."

Mr. Eggert rotates his alfalfa with corn, onts, wheat and sweet clover. Most of the crops are fed. He maintains a small dairy herd and raises a few hogs. Early preparation of the wheat seed hed, he has found, results in about five bushels greater yield over late preparation.—Capper's Farmer.

Soy Bean Meal Valuable

The Illinois Soy Bean Marketing association is urging the use of soy bean ollment in rations for live stock in their state.

Harold C. Viai, Du Page county, Ill., praises soy bean products. "It has been my experience in feeding soy bean meal that the average test of the herd of 40 to 50 cows runs one to four points higher than when feeding oilmeal. During the months of April. May and June of 1928 I fed soy bean meal, and I find in looking over the records that my herd test raised from 3.88 per cent in April to 3.64 in May and 3.65 in June,

In July I could no longer obtain the soy bean meal and my test dropped back to 3.5 when I substituted oilmeal. In May and June I fed soy bean meal with the result that my test was raised from 3.39 to 3.48. In 1925-26 the results with the soy bean ment were just as pronounced. The average dairy farmer cannot afford to do without it.

Keeping Soil Sweet

The effect of lime seems to last much longer in some soils than in others. In Michigan, on one strongly acid soil, it was discovered that two tons of limestone applied in 1917 was still keeping the soil sweet in 1930. On another soil, however, which didn't seem to be so acid before the lime was applied, the effect of the limestone disappeared within nine years.

Apparently, no one can tell in advance how long the beneficial results from a lime application will last. The safe thing to do is to start making soil activity tests seven or eight years after the lime application, to see whether another application is needed. Of course, the absolutely sure test is the seeding of sweet clover.—Waliace's Farmer.

Farm Hints

Grain may be cheaper feed than legume hay this winter.

A good farm record book accurately kept will enable a farmer really to know his business.

Blueberries, like cranberries, require an acid soil. Where only 1 few bushes are desired for the home garden, the required soil conditions may be creafed artificially by the addition of a few sacks of acid peat.

If the bees do not have 45 pounds of honey per colony for winter food and spring brood rearing, the supply needs supplementing with sugar sirup.

When frost kills the tomato vines they may be hung up in a protected place to ripen the green fruit still on

Soybean oil ment has almost exactly the same composition as linseed and cottonseed ment, but most experiments indicate that it is slightly more valuable, pound for pound.

Despite mass emigration among people of their faith, Christians again maintain their majority. The largest group is the Maronites with 214,313 adherents. In addition there are 20,-448 emigrants of this faith in the United States who still pay taxes to the homeland. They form one of the oldest Christian churches. Its history goes back as far as the Fourth century, retaining Aramate as the church language. Since the Middle ages, the Maronites have recognized the pope, although they have a patriarch of their own. There are only 5,421 Protestants in the Lebanese republic. The ancient churches such as the Syriar Jacobite and the Assyro-Chaldean claim the majority of 11,000 church-goers classed among the minorities. Next to the Maronites in strength are the Sunnite Moslems with 136,040 and the Shiites with 113,536.

Heart of the North

"You can be shrewder, Alan! You can make him walk into it. Let him think he's got you beaten and hope-less. Hide what you feel. And don't antagonize Superintendent William-

She held his hand a moment in her warm clasp, thinking of her father lying dead at Resolution, of Alan's noble struggle to save him, of Haskell breaking her father's will to live. It was some solace to know she had helped Alan plan a trap for the guilty inspector, a deadly trap if Haskell only walked into it.

As she quietly wished him good luck, in her heart she was fervently saying to him, "God go with you, Alan." And because she had passionately resolved not to see him again before she left, she meant her words not only for the stormy hour ahead of him, but for all the years of his life.

Alan strode into the cabin in a savage fighting mood. He had risen from a sick bed to come to Endurance before Williamson left, and he had sworn he was going to crush Haskell. The inspector had forced him out of the Mounted; had caused Larry to crippled for life; had refused protection to Joyce in her desperate need; had made a scapegoat of Dave Mac-Millan to save his face; and more than anyone on earth he was responsible for that sorry tragedy at Resolu-

Almost the only hope Alan had was that trap which he and Joyce had planned—an idea born in Joyce's quick brain and developed between them during the three days she had nursed

When he went in, he found Williamson and Haskell sitting at the desk, waiting. Haskell did not move but Williamson, considerate of his wounds, drew up a chair and invited him to

"Won't you give us the story of your patrol, Baker?" he requested

Alan countered: "My story doesn't begin with this patrol. It begins last fall, when this gentleman here came down north. I want to tell it clean, from-then till now."

"That's your right," Williamson assented.

Alan hoped that his story, by the sheer blunt truth of it, would carry conviction. But when he finished, the old officer did not comment. The silence was foreboding. Almost in desperation, Alan took up a couple matters that lay very near his heart. "There's two or three favors I want in my own behalf, you may agree to One is about Chink Woolley, the man we brought in. I want to put in a word for him. He deserves heavy punishment but he shouldn't be hanged. He gave us some priceless information. We might never have saved Joyce MacMillan if he hadn't. If it's impossible for me to be present at his trial, I want to turn over to you an affidavit in his behalf. Then, about Featherof, my partner in this He stole some government property and broke some flying regulations. But he made the whole thing possiole, he threw in with me without a thought of pay, he risked his life half a dozen times. We're in position to restore that property or else pay for it in full. Will you get Featherof out of this jam?" "How about yourself, Baker?"> "Well, I don't want to be jailed, if can help it. But I suppose your favors will stretch just so far. I was the instigator, and if anybody has to pay, I'm the one." Williamson was thoughtful. Few times in his career had he ever allowed motive, however worthy, to be excuse for breaking the law. But as glanced at Baker, wounded, maimed in one hand, still pale from loss of blood, he thought what a heartless travesty of justice it would be if Baker were imprisoned. Whatever the truth of his trouble with Haskell, the great fact remained that he had gone on a thankless and prodigious patrol and had run those criminals to

"I'll do what I can for you both," he promised, with no reluctance. "When I go back outside I'll talk to the Edmonton officials and try to get those charges nol-prossed. But you and Featherof see to restoring that prop-

Alan promised: "We won't fail you on that. It's mighty fine and square of you." After a moment, he went "Considering all you've agreed to, I hate to ask still another favor. But I've got to. I've got to speak up for Hardsock and Pedneault. They have charges against them, serious and true charges. But there's this to be said, sir. Neither man deserted. They both intended to return here the moment our patrol ended. They rendered a tremendous service to the Force. They were true to duty in the highest sense of the word. Are you going to look at the good they did, or at nothing but the bad?"

Williamson did not answer. He felt the human justice of Alan's appeal. It seemed to him that the matter went deeper than a question of insubordination, Those men had been under Baker's sway, and he knew what a powerful influence Baker had over his Thinking deeply, he gazed through the window, down upon the dark river. In this tangled affair, it was a sore task to judge wisely, to do the right thing. Baker's long patrol, his

In his forty years the old officer had never seen a more mag-nificent piece of work. It was like Baker, like the brilliant sergeant whom he once had trusted and fought

But the rest of that story, his trouble with Haskell-Williamson did not accept that as true. From start to finish Baker's account was an utter conflict with Haskell's; and to the stern old officer, judging with impar tial mind, Haskell's story seemed more credible. Quite plainly Baker har bored a personal hostility which probably had warped and twisted his story out of all semblance to the truth.

One thing Williamson did know be-ond any doubting: Baker's account clashed with Haskell's all along the line. One of these two men was an out and out liar.

In the tightening silence, waiting for Williamson to start probing, Haskell looked out along the terrace and sav thing which struck him with chill premonition. The doorway of the m's hospital opened; Pedneault and Bill Hardsock came out, bringing Larry Younge with them. Bill on one side, Pedneault on the other, halfleading, half-carrying their crippled partner, they were making straight for the cabin.

When they trod into the room and Williamson heard them, he turned, frowning and demanded:

"What do you men want?" "Sir, we came here to put our paddle in," Bill stated bluntly. "We knew you were thrashing out this trouble kill any chance to trap Haskell. "If the superintendent doesn't want you here, obey him and go."

Bill stubbornly refused. He said to Williamson: "You've got a name, sir, for giving every buck cop and non-com in your division a square cut and seeing all sides of an argument. I don't think you'll kick us out without hearing what we've got to say. This is as much our fight as Alan's. We've had to pay, too, for the inspector's acts. Here's one of us crippled for life because the inspector hog-tied us on that natrol with some fool orders. After a thing like that, do we have to shut up and take it and not even be allowed to-?"

"Sit down!" Williamson bade them. "I'm going to get to the bottom of this. When your time comes I'll hear what you've got to say. Now Baker, I want you to answer some questions. What made you split your detail on that first patrol?"

"Haskell ordered me to, sir. He ordered me to follow both branches. When I objected, he threatened to bust me and keep me here at the post."

"That's a lie!" Haskell challenged "I allowed him to do as he thought best. He purposely made a failure of that patrol. I don't ask you to take my word. Corporal Whipple was here in the cabin, and heard our talk, And Baker, over his signed statement, admitted to responsibility."

"What proof have you got, Baker?" Williamson demanded.

Alan kept silent, deliberately allowing his silence to damp him. Williamson's probe was leading in the right direction, leading toward that deadly

USES TOBACCO TO FIGHT CATTLE LICE

Dairyman Got Good Results, He Reports.

While we are considering the dairy industry, here's a seasonable sugges tion. Do your cattle rub and give in dications of itching? Possibly, persome cattle lice. Now, if you had one of these lice on your hand you could see it readily enough, but when it is snuggling down in a cow's winter cont it isn't very visible.

Most farmers say that these lice come from sparrows by means of bed ding in which sparrows have rested According to Prof. R. H. Pettit of the entomology department of the M. S. C., this is a superstition and not sel entific fact. He says that the lice found on cattle do not molest other animals and that sparrow lice would not live on cattle.

Just why cattle lice confine their nctivities to winter and early spring I do not understand, but such seems to be the case. There are probably a number of equally good ways to rid the cattle of these irritating pests We have tried several. Last winter I mixed up, a solution of "Black Leaf 40" (powdered tobacco) at the rate of a teaspoonful tora gallon of water and used this with splendid results. I do not know whether this is the hest strength to use or not, as I was unable to find any directions for using this poison for such a purpose. Any way, it seemed to stop the itching without harming the cattle. week we went over all our cattle, in cluding the cows, herd sire and young stock, with such a solution, rubbing it well into the hide with a stiff brush This is a case of where it is good policy to "rub the fur the wrong way. Our milk flow has increased since the treatment.-Michigan Farmer.

Poor Feeders Usually

Have Poor Production Which are in the majority-poor dairy herds or poor dairymen? Some years ago, at a national dairy show, a Jersey cow was on display that had made a ridiculously small amount of butterfat in the previous year. She was the poorest cow in the local cow testing association. Professor Van Pelt purchased the cow and recorded her milk and fat for the next year with good feeding-not forced feeding but intelligent, economical feeding-and her record was in excess of 500 pounds fat. Such a cow could never have been a poor cow. The trouble was probably with her owner. The late Henry Glendinning, when in his prime as a lecturer at farmers' institutes, was in the habit of saying that the reason there were so many poor cows in the country was because there were so many poor feeders and be would then cite experiences similar to the above. Business conditions are against us but it is unquestionably true that for many of us there is pleny of room for improvement right at home on our own farms.-Montreal Family Herald.

Soy Beans in Feed

Roughly speaking, fed with farm grains in the proportion needed to make a balanced ration for a dairy cow, ground soy beans are equal pound for pound, to such feeds as linseed meal and cottonseed meal. Thus Joyce's room where he had lain when linseed meal brings $40 to $45 a through weary hours of doubt and ton, soy beans have a value of $1.20 to pain, and where he and she had care-$1.35 a bushel, less the cost of grind-

> A good crop of soy beans will yield about 20 bushels per acre, which at $1.10 a husbel would bring a gross income of $22 an acre. This compares very favorably with oats at 55 bushels per acre at present prices. Practically every Wisconsin farmer can grow enough soy beans to supply his cow herd with all the protein needed for supplementing his ordinary grains and should do so .- Wisconsin Agriculturist.

When Cows Chew Bones

When cows chew bones or wood it is usually an indication that there is something lacking in the feed. In a good many cases these cows are not getting enough mineral and this in turn is usually on indication that the ration is not well balanced. Dr. G. S. Weaver of the South Dakota state college at Brookings, suggests that where this condition is noted that bonemeal and sait should be kept before the cattle all the time. The hone meal may be fed along with the grain ration at the rate of 2 to 5 nounds per 100 pounds of grain or it may be mixed with salt at the rate of 1 pound of salt to 4 pounds of bonemeal.

Long Dairy Record

Martin Xeckser, who lives near Alma, has kept a cow herd for 22 years and never, with the exception of the 01 head he is creep-feeding this year. has he ever grain-fed any of his calves. He plans to cull to 75 head the best individuals out of his 70 Hereford cows and his 14 coming twoyear-old helfers. His cows are bred so that about half of them calve in November and December, with the remaining ones calving before April,-Kansas Farmer.

REVELRY AND WIT IN FAMOUS CLUBS

Gathering Places of Old England and America.

Thoroughly enjoying the exper! ences of Lady Slane, who betook her-self and her eighty-eight years to a house in Hampstead which she had observed thirty_years before, I was reminded that Hampstead Heath was the meeting place of the Kit Kat club of Addison's time, and that recalled other clubs of note. It would be interesting, if one had time, to trace the origin of clubs down to the present days when we have so many that we are in line to be clubbed to death!

It is quite the natural thing fo those who are interested in the same things to enjoy contact with others of the same mind, so we band our selves together in order to compare notes and get inspiration for better action. Though I believe that the Saturday club, of New England origin, held the opposite idea, being an association of some fifteen or twenty men who were elected on the ground that they were generally opposed to each other in mind, character and pursuits, and therefore conversation would assume as animated

In the Sixteenth century, taverns, and in the Eighteenth, coffee houses, took the place of the clubs of today. There was the Mermald tavern where rare Ben Jonson held sway, his genial personality ruling by royal right those "sealed of the tribe of Ben," among them being Shakespeare, Beaumont and Fletcher, Donne and Sir Walter Raleigh who was the founder of the Mermaid club. It was Dryden who made Will's coffee house the center for literary men and wits, gathered together to exchange pleas-antries and criticisms; where Pope found inspiration, and Swift was told that he would never be a poet.

In 1700 the Kit-Kat club was founded, composed of such men as Addison and Steele, Richardson and Horace Walpole. Addison speaks of a Hum-drum club to which he once. belonged being made up of very honest gentlemen of peaceable dispositions who used to sit together and smoke their pipes, saying nothing un- apolis News.

til midnight. But the Kit-Kat is said to have taken its origin from a mut-ton ple. Then there were the Beefsteak club and others founded upon eating and drinking, which are points wherein most menangree.

A little later came the famous Literary club, with Samuel Johnson as its leading light, and Boswell his tor, objecting to David Garrick as amember of the club because he did not recognize the dignity of the theatrical profession and did not care to sit next to a mere player; scolding Goldsmith because he wrote like an angel and talked like poor Poll, later running with his "Vicar of Wakefield" to a publisher to defray expenses of which Goldsmith had taken no thought. Edmund Burke, the politician; Sheridan, the author of "School for Scandal" and the "Rivals," and Sir Joshua Reynolds, the founder of this club, and one of the greatest of English portrait painters were among the members.

In America there was the wellknown Saturday club, which gathered at Parker's, in Boston, once a month to dine and discuss the affairs of the day. By native right of his good-fellowship and intense enjoyment of the scene, Professor Agassiz always sat at the head of the table, Longfellow at the other end, with Emerson at his left and Holmes at his right. Agassiz' laugh was like that of a big giant, and Holmes called him Liebig's Extract of the wisdom of the ages. Whittier came because, like the lady who used to attend Charles Lamb's suppers, he had a quiet nature and loved to hear a noisy debate: Hawthorne, with genius so shrinking and rare; Lowell, with his whole bale of isms tled together with rhyme (Lowell's description of himself). Horatio Woodman, a sort of Boswell, was accredited with the founding of the club, and was said to have once cooked mushrooms at the table, which Dwight, as official taster, said tasted like the roof of a house. Thoreau, when urged to join, said: "The doctors are all agreed that I am suffering for want of society. Was never a case like it? First, I did not know that I was suffering at all. Secondly, as an Irishman might say, I had thought it was indigestion of the soclety I got."-M. O. W. in the Indian-
