EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1932.

NUMBER 10

Supt. Duncanson Resigns Schools

FOR 11 YEARS IDENTIFIED WITH EAST JORDAN'S INTERESTS.

At a meeting of the Directors of East Jordan's Consolidated Schools, held Wednesday, Feb'y 24, A. J. Duncanson, Superintendent of our Public School System, formally tendered his resignation to become effective at the close of the school year—July 1st. The resignation, while regrettable, was accepted.

For the past eleven years Supt. Duncanson has been actively identified with East Jordan's business and social growth. Coming from Traverse City where he resigned the Principalship of the High School there eleven years ago, Supt. Duncanson and family immediately purchased a home in our resident section and since then has worked intensely for the up-building of our community, both during school hours and out of school hours. He has always had that fine faculty of the intense worker—to forget the clock.

Outside of school administrative work, probably his greatest heritage to East Jordan and vicinity was his work connected with the consolidation of the East Jordan Public Schools with the various schools in this region, making this fifty per cent larger than any other district in the State, according to reliable information. Mr. Duncanson went out into the highways and byways and pleaded earnestly for such a forward movement. As a result of his efforts, East Jordan now has the best consolidated school district in Michigan today. And the matter of taxes is not of minor importance, for these school taxes have been more than halved since consolidation.

To his many friends, Supt. Duncanson is known as "Sandy"—a leftover from his early athletic days in prep schools—but wherever athletics in schools enter, so enters "Sandy." He is a baseball, football, basketball, or what-have-you fan right. As a result of his efforts there was organized the Tip of Michigan Class C Conference and other athletic activities both locally and State-wide.

Supt. Duncanson is a graduate of Alma College in 1910 with an A. B. Degree. He attended Central Normal two summers, two at Columbia University, entered the University of Michigan and received his M. A. Degree in 1930.

The Herald Publisher sincerely regrets the going out from our midst of Supt. A. J. Duncanson, his wife, and family.

Many Fanciful Theories Concerning the Pearl

The history of the pearl industry is a colorful and romantic story. The ancients obtained their pearls chiefly from India and the Persian gulf, but for a long time nothing was known scientifically of the pearl's formation. Early peoples thought it had formed from a dewdrop or rain, but inquisitive scientists of the sixteenth century set themselves to discover how the rain or dewdrop got into the shell in the first place. There followed a period when it was believed pearls were formed from the eggs of the oyster. Then it was noticed that pearls were made of the same substance as the inner lining of the shell. With keener observation the truth was finally discovered. It became known that a foreign body, attacking the inner shell, caused the oyster to deposit matter at the point of invasion, and this hardened substance made up the "pearl" known to the Jewel Industry.

Imperfectly formed pearls, attached to the inner shell, are known as "blister" pearls. Hollow, warty pearls are known to the trade as "coq de perle," while irregularly shaped pearls are "perles baroques." Pearls of the first water are of delicate texture, free from speck or flaw, and a clear, almost translucent white in color, with a subdued sheen. They are perfectly round or pear-shaped.—Exchange.

REPORT MADE OF 1931 SEAL SALE IN COUNTY

Although the 1931 sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals in Charlevoix County is still below the previous year's total, the Michigan Tuberculosis Association expresses confidence that necessary funds will be secured for a continuation of the fight against tuberculosis when all late returns are received.

The sale to date in the county has amounted to $271.11 compared with $447.16 received during the 1930 campaign, according to a report just issued by the Association. Of this sum, $210.69 has been received thru the mail sale. The remainder has been secured by teachers and school and community managers through local campaigns.

In a statement accompanying the report, the Association requests that county residents who have returned neither the seals or money for them do so at the earliest possible moment. As long as a great number of seals remain unaccounted for, the Association will be unable to draft its complete program for 1932 or close the 1931 seal records. Approximately 287 county residents have not acknowledged receipt of seals sent to them last Thanksgiving Day.

Expressing appreciation for the generous support which has been given by many persons this year, the Association states that it will do everything permitted by its limited budget to meet any possible advance of tuberculosis, particularly among children. It will continue its regular service for school children, while working for the prevention and discovery of hidden cases of tuberculosis among high school students with a newly adopted health program.

FROM BOYNE CITY AND CHARLEVOIX TEAMS.

Two great games were played by Cohen's men the past week. When Boyne City came to East Jordan recently and lost to the locals, we were generous in our praise of the team. Many local patrons were rather surprised how much the locals outplayed Boyne City that particular night. Boyne City fans of course thought it was a mistake and felt quite sure that they had much the better team. But after the game last Friday night they must have changed their mind, for by any break of luck they would have lost on their own floor again—without the excuse of a different floor or anything to hold them up.

Basketball fans know now, beyond a doubt, that East Jordan has just as good, if not a little better basketball team than Boyne City. Yet everyone must concede that Boyne and East Jordan have real Class "C" outfits.

The game could easily have come East Jordan's way when Bill LaLonde had the last shot that might have decided the game in our favor. In the overtime, Boyne scored the winning basket after a hair-raising game and finish.

Please understand that East Jordan thinks Boyne has a wonderful basketball team and any time they go on the floor with the locals, it is a nip-and-tuck affair.

It should be a toss up at the Tournament which one would be the victors. The locals have played some great games, especially with the two strongest teams. The Harbor team has been the local's hoodoo. Boyne and Charlevoix seemed to take Harbor into camp rather easily but East Jordan doesn't even get going against the fast Harbor team.

The playing of Howard Sommerville was classy throughout. He handled the team at Boyne with superb judgment and every man on the team should be rated as playing an excellent game. For Boyne City, White and Sandel starred. White in particular played a brilliant game.

Charlevoix looked for a rather easy game on their court Friday night and they had some reason for the expectation. They took the locals into camp 21-10 a couple of weeks ago on East Jordan's court after a brilliant display of basketball. In the game at East Jordan, however, there was one little difference in the team they played and the one that played at Charlevoix. This factor was rather unknown to our friends from the Resort town. I imagine they are still puzzled how East Jordan looked so much stronger. But we have an idea that they have made the acquaintance of one Howard Sommerville by this time and any time he is in a basketball game hereabouts, there is something doing. In fact there is one real warm spot on the floor—the result of friction caused by unusual speed. This was the factor that is

Final Plans For Smelt Run Made. Run Expected Soon

The State Department of Conservation has again authorized the Jordan River Sportsmen's Club of East Jordan to supervise the dipping of smelt in the Jordan River.

At a meeting of the Club held Monday evening, final plans and regulations were drafted to govern the run. They are—

1st. Dipping will be permitted between 8:00 p. m., eastern standard time and daylight, any place south of a line 150 feet south of M66 where it crosses the river in East Jordan.

2nd. No boats or rafts will be permitted on the river where dipping is taking place, during dipping hours.

3rd. No fish traps are to be used anywhere in the river.

The three above regulations were adopted because of the large crowds of out-of-town and out-of-State people, whom the Club hopes to furnish with plenty of fun and fish.

There will be approximately three and one-half miles of river in which they can obtain smelt a short time after dark. (The Jordan is the largest smelt stream in the State.)

The Club will publish no misleading statements but will notify all State papers as soon as the run actually starts.

said to have upset the dope at Charlevoix. However, the dope was not up-set at all. East Jordan looks to be the stronger team when Sommerville is in the game. This does not mean that there aren't four other boys in the game also, but it means that Sommerville is absolutely a necessary cog to Cohen's machine. Take out one or two other boys and of course the team would be greatly weakened. But the five or six in the game at Charlevoix are a combination that is rather hard to stop. Hignite and Ellis played very good basketball. Perhaps next to Howard Sommerville, Bill LaLonde was the star. George Sherman was at his best and when he is, he is a mighty tough guard. Martin Sommerville played well all the time he was in the game.

For Charlevoix, Anee, Chew and Davenport played well but were stopped practically cold most of the time. East Jordan won the game 14-10 and by the playing the last ¼ of the game, should have won by a much larger score. Unger of Traverse City refereed.

As usual, the refereeing was excellent. In fact, throughout the year in this section there has been no question about the refereeing and anyone that lays it on the referee is simply sobbing and not showing the best of sportsmanship. We're saying this about the refereeing in every game in which East Jordan has taken part. We have nothing but high praise for them all and that is in the face of losing quite a number of basketball games.

At Boyne City last week the East Jordan Junior High, coached by Mr. DeForest, lost to the heavy Boyne City Junior High in what was a very good game, but size and apparently age was against the local squad which is very light but fast. At Charlevoix, although it was a most excellent game, again the Junior High team from East Jordan lost to a very strong Charlevoix team. The locals won from Charlevoix on the local floor, but lost there. The stars for the Juniors the past two games were Saxton, Captain of the outfit, Bill Ellis and David Pray. They seemed to be the stellar performers and give a very good indication that when they start to grow and take on weight, with the speed they now have, the High School will still have a basketball team.

East Jordan drew a bye at the Tournament. They are to play the winners of the Charlevoix-Harbor Springs game. It was decided last night 15-10 that Charlevoix was to be our opponents tonight. Boyne and Mancelona play this Friday afternoon. They will play the winners Saturday night of the East Jordan-Charlevoix game.

EARLY RUN OF SMELT EXPECTED

An early run of smelt up the streams along the Lake Michigan shore is expected by the Department of Conservation because of the open winter. It is considered likely that the run will begin the first or second week of March.

Because of the fact that large catches of smelt have been taken through the ice and from the docks in open water during the winter, the run this spring is expected to be the largest in the history of the species in Michigan.

During the "runs" smelt may be taken with hand nets of not more than five feet in circumference or with handles not over five feet in length, from the following streams as designated by the Conservation Commission.

Charlevoix County: Boyne River down from Pearl St., in Boyne City; Deer Creek down from dam on Sec. 25, South Arm Township; Horton Creek down from dam on Sec. 6, Bay Township; Monroe Creek down from Highway Bridge; Porter Creek down from dam situated 720 feet from the mouth; Stover Creek down from dam situated 450 feet from mouth.

MISSIONARY FROM JAPAN TO SPEAK

Next Thursday evening Miss Irene Reiser, whose home is in Cadillac, and who for ten years has been a Missionary in Japan will speak in the Presbyterian Church.

Japan is one of the most interesting of countries to us at the present time and it is a privilege to be able to hear a speaker who has intimate, sympathetic knowledge of conditions there. Miss Reiser is in this country for a six months furlough.

The time of the meeting will be 7:30.

RANGE LANDS GROW HIGH GRADE LAMBS

Lambs which will sell at top market prices at four to five months of age can be produced, without the use of grain supplements, on Michigan's grazing land if sufficient area is available and if the flock is kept healthy, according to the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College.

This conclusion is based on a study of the methods used during the past year by Michigan shepherds who entered their flocks in the Wolverine Lamb Production contest.

Other lessons learned from the contest are that legumes are the most valuable feed for sheep, careful systems of control for internal and external parasites must be used, and that a high average of lambs per ewe is necessary for profitable results.

Some alfalfa or other legume hay should be fed as part of the flock's winter ration and legume pastures should be used if they are available. If legumes cannot be fed during the winter, the ewes should get some grain daily.

The breeding flock should be drenched three times each year to kill internal parasites, and the lambs should be drenched once or twice before they are marketed. External pests can be eradicated by dipping the sheep. Several communities have built dipping vats which are used cooperatively. A mineral mixture for the flock is prepared by mixing 50 pounds salt, 50 pounds special steamed bone meal, and one ounce of potassium iodine. The use of the iodine preparation decreases the number of lambs affected by goiter.

FERTILIZER DEALERS TO MEET NEXT WEEK.

Plans have been definitely made for a Fertilizer Dealers Meeting to be held on Tuesday, March 8. It will be held in the Charlevoix County Court House, and will begin promptly at 1:30 p. m., eastern standard time. The object of this meeting is to thoroughly inform each of the plant food dealers in the county, as to the latest information upon the use of fertilizers.

When one stops to consider that this county used approximately 350 ton of commercial fertilizer during the year of 1929, one begins to realize a big percentage of our farmers are sold to the value of additional plant food.

Now, then is it not proper that each dealer of commercial fertilizer should have the latest information on hand relative to the analysis to be used, the manner of application, and the amount of application, so that he may be in a better position to be of service to his customers? Mr. Paul Rood, Extension Soil's Specialist, will be in charge. He will bring to the dealers the very latest results in the use of fertilizers and what dozens of experiments conducted throughout the State indicate. All dealers, whether big or small, are cordially invited to attend this meeting, and have the opportunity of discussing with Mr. Rood, and among themselves, all the latest information on fertilization.

MANY OLD THEORIES UPSET AS THE RESULT OF SOILS MEETINGS.

Over one hundred farmers in the county attended the ten Soils Meetings, held last week in the ten different Granges throughout the county. By means of a carefully prepared outline many of the newest thoughts were discussed in regard to Lime and Acidity, and the importance of using larger quantities of Organic Matter in our soils.

Especially in the case of liming it is true that many of our old theories have been discarded as the result of several experiments having been carried on in the State. In the first place it can be emphatically stated that there are only two kinds of liming materials that a person could consider buying. These are agricultural limestone and marl, and the person should buy the one that can be applied to his land the cheapest, providing that you use from one and one-half to two times as many yards of marl as you would use tons of limestone. It is not profitable to buy the extra fine materials, as they have not given any better results than the coarser materials that are similar to the Potosky Limestone in composition. In other words, the cheapest forms of lime materials are the best to apply to your land.

In regard to organic matter the value and importance of this was placed right down on a dollar and cents view point, which pretty well indicated to the farmer how valuable it actually is. Space does not permit any further details, but just remember that you are welcome to attend the next meeting which will be held on the same schedule, except being held the week of March 14. It is hoped that each farmer who attended the first meeting will urge another farmer to come with him next time, and in that way reach 200 instead of 100 as was the case this time.

REMOVE AND BURN MUTILATED CANES FROM RASPBERRY BEDS NOW.

There are four raspberry pests that cause constant loss to Michigan growers. The losses occasioned by these insects many times are small, but may on the other hand assume heavy losses at a minute's notice. Observation during the last year indicate four infestations which if not cared for will result in a heavy loss during 1932. The species in mind are the raspberry cane borer, the red-necked cane borer, the raspberry cane maggot, and tree crickets.

Now then, to largely eliminate losses from the above-named insects, remove and burn all damaged canes, as well as all dead canes before growth takes place in the spring. The reason why is that all of these pests pass the winter in these canes. Therefore, this treatment recommended will destroy most of the over-wintering forms.

The raspberry cane borer injury is indicated from the two girdled places, usually about an inch apart on the canes. This will weaken the canes and ordinarily results in the breaking off at the point of injury. The red-necked cane borer injury is noted from the gummy galls caused by the boring of the larval form of this beetle just below the bark. The raspberry cane maggot is usually indicated in summer by many wilted tips here and there in the planting. The tree cricket injury shows largely by their habit of laying their eggs closely packed in longitudinal slits, which causes weakening and death of canes above the injury.

Even if you feel that you have not suffered any loss from the above-named insects, still it would be a good habit to get in the practice of removing all dead canes, and badly damaged canes in the winter time, and then most important of all burn them.

The Men on the Dead Man's Chest

by Clifford Raymond

FROM THE BEGINNING

During a "holdup" at the Dutch Mill, Chicago night club, a patron, Dunn Clayton, is killed. Lieutenant of Police Stanton questions a club visitor, "Buck" Trembly. In Clayton's pocket Stanton found a note signed "Maise," making an appointment with the dead man at the Dutch Mill. Stanton is inclined to suspect Trembly of the murder. At a Wisconsin winter camp a boisterous crowd includes Preston Brown. An apparent stranger arrives. Later, two men, driving, come on the scene. The stranger leaves in his car, and the two men follow, passing him. A vehicle is out and one of the two men removes the danger signals. The stranger, in his car, goes over the embankment. He is dead when found. Brown is dead. In his papers Clayton's name is found and Stanton connects the deaths. He goes to Wisconsin, and finds the dead man is Trembly. Trembly had caused Brown's death, apparently an accident. A Vermont lawyer, John Whittle, and Clayton, the case, recalls the names in connection with an odd will made by a man named Turner, bequeathing the interest on $5,000,000 to six men, Blair, Ashley, Roberts, Brown, Trembly, and Clayton. The income, at the death of each beneficiary, is to be divided among the rest. Turner's son, on the deaths of the six beneficiaries, is to inherit all. Turner dies shortly after making the will. Whittaker suspects foul play in the three deaths, and writes to the Chicago police. Stanton interviews Asa Darling, one of the executors of the will. Darling tells him he believes Turner wanted and expected the six beneficiaries of the will to kill one another, they having in the past injured him. The will is his method of revenge. Turner's son is contented and happy with his small income. Roberts, one of the three survivors of the six cared for by Turner's will, visits Darling. He reveals the fact that Blair and Ashley, supposed to be abroad, are in this country.

"Probably?" the lieutenant asked. "Couldn't you know?"

"Frankly, I kept to my cabin after I saw Ashley. I assumed Blair was with him. I didn't trust them. If I wanted to commit murder a ship's the place I'd choose."

"You'd be an awful fool if you did," said the lieutenant. "But why did murder occur to you? You didn't know anything of Clayton, Brown and Trembly then?"

"I'll refer you to the Turner will," said Roberts, "and then to anyone who has had a chance to know Blair and Ashley. The whole thing was only a question of who and when. Turner wrote that plot. Europe wasn't big enough for the three of us. That's why I was coming back. Blair was with Ashley on the boat. I saw them both on Fifth avenue yesterday. And look here, Mr. Darling, I'm declaring myself out of this. I don't want any more of your d-n checks. I don't want anything to do with the d-n will. I'm not going to be hunted down."

"Mr. Roberts," said the lieutenant, "as you may have surmised, I am in doubt. I have some convictions and some of them concern you, but there are many doubts. We know Arthur Trembly shot Dunn Clayton or had him shot. We know Arthur Trembly threw Preston Brown on a knife blade. We know Arthur Trembly ran off the road and was killed. But we don't know, you see, who took away the red lights. If you and Mr. Blair and Mr. Ashley had been in Europe at the time and had remained there you might have left us speculating as to what agencies you could have employed. But we could not have placed any one of you on the road by the lights. But it appears that you were all three in this country. When did you arrive, Mr. Roberts?"

Roberts looked at his questioner as if he suspected his answer would not be satisfactory.

"I landed October 7," he said.

"And your boat?"

"The Empress of Australia."

"Oh," a reflective exclamation from the lieutenant. "Did I misunderstand you, Ron, when you said you landed in New York and that Mr. Ashley was on the boat with you?"

"That was a slip, an inadvertence. We were on a Canadian boat. I came direct from Montreal to New York."

"You landed at Montreal and not Quebec?"

"Naturally, for the connection for New York."

"Odd. The Empress of Australia does not go above Quebec. Another inadvertence probably. The ship's list will prove you were on the boat. Your hotel registration in New York will prove you went there. Consequently you didn't go from Quebec to the Eagle River region of Wisconsin. You were not there October 8 because you did not land until October 7.

We've got to give the three of you that break, Ron. All we need is a verification of it on the ship's list and the hotel register."

"You'll not find it. I didn't use my name in coming over."

"You d-n little louse! Will you come clean? Pompey, bring me three feet of garden hose."

The lieutenant arose to meet Roberts face to face, and Stanton's bulk and conviction dwarfed the other's physical and moral nature.

"Come clean, before I handle you. Come on, now. Pompey, get me the hose."

Mr. Darling arose in horror.

"Stop!" he cried. "What is this in my house?"

Stanton turned to him and smiled.

"Your Roman centurion, Professor. Your lieutenant of Chicago police. Come through, Ron, or I'll put your remains out in the street. You'll have to pardon me, Mr. Darling, but this requires it. I want the truth from him. I'm going to have it. I may have to prepare him for it. Look at him. A rough word and he's not so hard boiled."

Roberts had quailed but was recovering, and he was to recover enough dignity in another minute to make use of his outraged position in Mr. Darling's home.

"I wasn't prepared for this treatment," he said. "It startled me, it was so entirely unexpected."

"It startled me," said Mr. Darling. "I had more confidence in Lieutenant Stanton."

"Sorry, Mr. Darling, but it was necessary to startle Mr. Roberts. I must remind him that I can and will throw him into a cell. Now, I want the truth. When did you land?"

Roberts was silent a moment, looking down at the rug.

"I think I made a mistake in trying to conceal anything," he said finally. "It's only as to the time. I came over September 15 and landed in New York."

"Was it the truth that Ashley and Blair were on the same boat?" Stanton asked.

"Yes; that is, I saw Ashley as I said. I kept to my cabin, but I saw Blair with Ashley a few days after landing."

"Not just yesterday, then?"

"No, it was five or six weeks ago."

"So. The entire six of you were here two weeks before the first of these killings."

"That's true, but now listen, Mr. Copper. I'm not an assassin. I've been covering, but it's been to protect myself. That's all. I don't mind hazard and danger. I've had them in my day. But I can't stand being stalked like game. I haven't got the nerves to be expecting a shot from the brush or the alley. So I've been going to pieces in a way. D-n them, if they would shoot it out I'd take them on, but I'm not equal to this assassination. That's all there is to it, Lieutenant. I can't stand it. I'm not but enough. I can't kill first. So I've got to wait for it. I can't do it. You can say I'm yellow. I guess I am, if this is the game. I could have killed both Ashley and Blair. There wasn't much chance of its being difficult or dangerous. I could have got Ashley any time at night, out on the deck, even in his room. Who in h— would have suspected me? I could have got Blair in New York. What's another murder in New York? But I can't do it. I want to throw them off me. That's why I came here. I give up my share. I'll get along."

"But, Mr. Roberts," said Lieutenant Stanton, "you can't give up to their satisfaction. So long as you live there is an impediment to the redistribution of the estate in the hands of the sole surviving beneficiary. And that, I think, is the object being pursued."

"I think you're right," said Roberts. "I've tried to think it otherwise, but I can't. I may be yellow, but I can't go through with it."

"Of course you're yellow," said the lieutenant.

Roberts turned on him. "No copper can tell me that. I've been more places which asked for guts than any copper ever saw."

"One of them made Thomas Turner your enemy," said Stanton. "You might tell us that piece of yellowness."

"Lieutenant," Mr. Darling protested, "this has been interesting but—"

"I know what your objections would be, Mr. Darling, but isn't our pattern defining itself? You may know why Mr. Turner made this will. I can guess. Mr. Roberts here knows. Roberts, do you want to tell us?"

"I presume Turner thought he had been injured. He was wrong as to me."

"How were you six associated with Mr. Turner?" the lieutenant asked. "And where?"

"Once, for me," said Roberts. "I don't know about the others. The seven of us were in a Peruvian jungle. Turner was taken desperately ill. I volunteered to make a dangerous trip to get a doctor. I don't know what happened. I got out, but I couldn't get back. I was too sick myself. I don't know what the others did."

"You were inclined to think that Mr. Turner was sincere when he said his bequest to you was in gratitude?"

"It was unexpected, but I had no reason to think it was in enmity."

"It would seem that he planned a massacre and evidently not in gratitude. He must have been pretty sure of the character of some of you."

"Well, I want out of it. His money can't compensate me for life on these terms. I tell you I'm not an assassin, and I can't protect myself."

"I intend to meet and talk to your two friends," said Stanton. "It may add to your sense of security. Frankly, Mr. Roberts, I do not know whether you removed the red lights or did not. My guess is that you didn't. My guess is that one of the other two did. Whoever it was had a d-nable brutality. He did not care who went off the road. He took a chance he would get the man he wanted. Who's the greater brute of the two?"

"Acton Blair, I'd say. But Ashley is trickier. He might be crueler, although he's physically weaker."

"It must be apparent to all three of you," said the lieutenant, "that a fourth death will be highly suspicious. We have actors' and motives rather plainly before us. I shall advise all three of you to take your increased dividends and trust to luck we can't find the man who took away those lights."

For the first time Roberts, standing on Mr. Darling's hearth-rug, smiled.

"Don't be simple, Lieutenant," he said. "Murder—needn't be legal murder, not if you knew Ashley or Blair or the others. Look at the way Brown died. You'd have some difficulty prov-

"You d-n little louse! Will you come clean?"

ing anything there. I think, even if Trembly hadn't been killed almost immediately afterward. Suppose a man is stalked by an automobile. Easy, isn't it?"

"Blaine did that one," said the lieutenant. "No one knows how often it has been used."

"It's too simple. They'll not try that."

"You leave yourself rather out of it," the lieutenant suggested.

"Good lord, do you suppose I'd be here talking as I am if I wanted to play this game?"

"Yes, that's exactly what I'd suppose. You're getting your plausible alibi in advance, aren't you? But my guesses don't have to be plausible. So I guess you're on the square in being a quitter. You'll have a talk with your friends. Do you want protection?"

"Don't be ridiculous," said Roberts. "How could I get it?"

"Mr. Roberts," said Mr. Darling, "I'm sorry for your agitation. I'm almost sorry my friend, Turner, had this side to his nature. I probably should have refused to participate in it. I was incredulous, and he was determined."

Roberts, who constantly had fingered his watchchain, took out his watch.

"I'll be getting back to the city," he said. "I'll protect myself as well

Boston Scene of First Conversation by Phone

It was on October 9, 1876, that the first conversation ever held over a telephone line took place between the Boston and Cambridge offices of the Walworth Manufacturing company. Professor Bell was at the Boston end of the line and Mr. Watson was at the Cambridge end, the distance apart being about two miles. In the early days they used to say, instead of "Hello," "Ahoy," doubtless a relic of New England's familiarity with shipping. The first telephone exchange was opened by Edward T. Holmes. The first woman telephone operator was named Miss Emma Nutt. A year after the discovery of the telephone practically all the telephones in the world were in Boston and immediately surrounding cities and towns.

The New England Telephone company was organized in February, 1878, and was followed in July of that year by the incorporation of the Bell Telephone company, which was the predecessor to the American Telephone & Telegraph company, at present with its associated concerns the largest company from the standpoint of assets in the world.—Boston Herald.

Weather Lore

People began "speaking of the weather" a long time ago. The first scientific treatise on the weather, says the United States weather bureau, was written by Aristotle more than 300 years before the Christian era. The weather bureau library, which is the largest meteorological collection in the world, has a big book on the weather by Albertus Magnus, printed in 1494, and a facsimile of a weather journal kept by Rev. William Merle of England, who recorded the weather day by day from 1377 to 1384. The first weather records in America, so far as known, were kept by Rev. Johann Campanius, who recorded the weather each day in the colony of New Sweden near the present site of Wilmington, Del., for the years 1644 and 1645.

as I can. I thought I could resign. I see I can't. But you've heard the light of me. You'll not need to send any more checks. I haven't a great deal, but it's enough. I'm on the wing in a few days, and the person who ever finds me or knows me will be welcome to use his knowledge. Good day to you gentlemen."

"Pompey," said Mr. Darling, "assist Mr. Roberts."

"Yes, sir," said Pompey.

[Ronald Roberts had been a Church of England vicar with a small living. An Easter service with twenty dull communicants brought him to a decision to hereticate, if that were still a way of looking at it, and to become a non-conformist, evangelistic worker in the London slum where his considerable power of vivid expressionism might attract attention, possibly an heiress or a tolerable woman with money. In doing so he was a dramatic success of pale and earnest aestheticism, but the heiress did not appear. However, Mr. Roberts made some acquaintances outside his mission and became Art Twitcheley, a character later wanted by Scotland Yard. In emigrating the ex-cleric and evangelist reverted to his proper person as Ronald Roberts, but he did not resume his priestly function or title. He had not been an Oxford man, and this lack enabled him to disguise the otherwise fatal quality of English accent in American crime.]

CHAPTER VII

The Three Quick and the Three Dead

"You've heard me say I'm not a detective," said the lieutenant as the door closed on Roberts, "or haven't I thought to mention it? This case seems to recognize my hat size. My mystery plot is to detect three known characters killing one another for an explained motive at a place easily discoverable. It will probably be too much for me."

"I find an immoral enjoyment in incidents which should be shocking to a person of ethical integrity," said Mr. Darling. "What do you think of Mr. Roberts' fears? After all, aren't they a little egocentric?"

"He isn't as yellow—" Stanton broke off in his sentence, leaving "as I pretend to believe him" unsaid. Roberts was re-entering the room.

"Ashley and Blair are coming in at your front gate, Mr. Darling," he said nervously.

"Indeed," said Mr. Darling. Roberts went to stand on the rug.

"You'll hear their knock at your door in a minute," he said. "They did not see me. They are at your door." Roberts' voice was muted.

Mr. Darling's door-knocker sounded three times.

"Pompey," Mr. Darling called, "admit the gentlemen and have them come directly in."

There was a moment while Pompey opened the door and the callers laid aside their overcoats. Then Ashley and Blair entered.

"Good afternoon, gentlemen," said Mr. Darling. "Mr. Roberts you know, of course. You may not know Lieutenant Stanton, of the Chicago police."

Both men stopped instantly and looked first at Roberts and then at Stanton. It was as if they saw a trap. Then the smaller of the two, a fellow with lively eyes and a square chin, chuckled, and the larger, he was much larger, stepped forward.

"Hello, Roberts," he said and turned toward Stanton. "I'm Blair, Lieutenant and this is Ashley."

The smaller man—it was rather in bulk than in stature—smiled and bowed. Stanton, having arisen to shake hands, sat down again. He said nothing. He perceived that Blair and Ashley were caught a little off their balance, and he intended that for a while they should guess at the con- stable.

Blair had addressed Mr. Darling.

"Come up to see you," he said, "and I see Roberts did. Hello again, Ron. You see, Mr. Darling, it's getting so we're noticed. Why, d-n it, we're getting to be public characters. What's all this? I'm going to sue some one for libel."

"You do that, Acton," said Ashley, "and then take it to the bank and see what Mr. Morgan will give you on it."

First Aid-Home Remedy Week

Chicago, Ill.—"Insure Yourself Against Needless Suffering!" is the intensive slogan of personal action which prefaces national announcement that the eleventh anniversary of First Aid-Home Remedy Week has been fixed for March 13-19. The National Association of Retail Druggists, sponsors of the plan which Sterling Products, Inc., dedicated to the drug world in 1922, is joined in this campaign for nation wide preparation to meet unexpected accident and sudden illness, by the National Wholesale Druggists' Association and the National Association of Retail Drug Clerks. For the first time all State Pharmaceutical Associations are also co-operating for greater preparedness for the physical emergencies of life. Several governors and mayors of municipalities have by proclamation called attention to the week which has enjoyed a decade of increasing success.

"First Aid Medicine (First Now)" is the command that has been made from the first week to the present campaign, and all of them have been timed during housecleaning days. Secretary S. C. Henry of the N. A. R. D. in an awakening suggestion to the retail druggists predicts record-breaking co-operation this year when the week affords opportunity for live wire druggists everywhere to use timely advertising in their local newspapers and thus insure additional sales in a helpful effort to maintain volume.

The Poet's Lot

John Masefield, the poet laureate, said to an American interviewer in London:

"The liners nowadays all advertise their stowage as 'college cabin.' Our new Third Class College Cabin," you read, "arranged exclusively for ministers, students, professors, research workers, etc."

"These advertisements leave our poets. Poets aren't even up to college cabin."

Mr. Marsh laughed and ended: "Poets are born, not paid."

Girls Raising Goats

Goat raising is becoming a favorite vocation for girls in Britain. The milk of the animals is becoming increasingly popular there, and girls at the recent dairy show in London said that the work is easy and pleasant. "To say that anyone is as silly as a goat is to pay him a very high compliment," said one fair exhibitor, "for the goat is a most intelligent animal."

Neal's Mother Has Right Idea

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children. That prophecy would surely come true if every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Western mother, Mrs. Neal M. Todd, 1701 West 27th St., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "When my son, Neal, was three years old he began having constipation. I decided to give him California Fig Syrup and in a few days he was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all his colds or little upset spells. It always stops his trouble quick, strengthens him, makes him eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

Reform yourself and it helps your neighbor to reform—and in the best way.

The Three Hortons

By FANNIE HURST

(WNU Service)

NIMBLE-footed, nimble-witted, were the Three Hortons, and their long bookings on wide vaudeville circuits testified to it. The Three Hortons were a cheering part of any bill and almost invariably second only in importance to a headliner like Friganza, Brice or San Francisco.

There were Beatty Horton, whose patter was as nimble as his soft-shoe dancing, Alicia Horton, who could outpattern but not outdance her spouse, and, from the age of seven on, Winstead Horton, who could fling himself in a bridge from maternal to paternal shoulders, and sing in a choir-soprano that had captivated his audiences from the days he had toddled on stage with lifted hands balancing unsure feet.

All that was changed now. Winstead was grown, his father Beatty had developed a gouty tendency and had been obliged to cut out the soft-shoe work, and Alicia, while she still made up to something of the old dazzling blondness and was adorably cute in her slip line of patter, was nevertheless subject to the relentless eye of her audience to the extent that they simply did not want the "young stuff" from her any longer. Alicia, in rather severe togs and a slight comedy make-up, was getting around that, these days, by doing the young matron sort of thing, and to a point making her audience like it. But the fact of the matter was that by the time he was eighteen, and his parents were in their forties, Winstead, single-handed, was carrying the act.

And carrying it brilliantly. A flying contortionist, voice for comic, character and solo singing, a baffling ventriloquist and a soft-shoe dancer who seldom failed to get his six recalls, the Three Horton act practically rested on his slim young shoulders.

Not that anything of the kind was ever admitted in the confines of the Horton family, however achingly Beatty or Alicia might long since have realized it to themselves. Regularly, the Three Hortons held confab for the refurbishing of their act; periodically rehearsals were called, changes inserted, songs revamped and costumes freshened for each and every one of the three of them, with emphasis on the requirements of each. Beatty's audiences wanted his sure-fire bombardment of patter; Alicia's wanted her's blood and grace; Winstead's wanted him the flying, dancing, comic, vocal young devil.

The Three Hortons, up to the bitter end, until Beatty's patter began to crack in his throat, and Alicia's ankles to twist and turn as she danced, there was no out-and-out admission on the part of the older Hortons that they were finished.

The situation racked Winstead and tore at the very vitals of him. They were such a gallant pair in his eyes; the duds, the rakish, old Beatty who would limp to the wings from his dressing room, with his face made up into a grin and the darts of pain through his ankles like the pranks of dear-beyond-the-telling, Alicia, whose role in life was to pamper everyone except herself, from her husband and son down to the most obscure performer on the bill. To see them slowly disintegrate, to see a merciless public grow cold to them, to behold the hurt in the eyes of his father and the bewilderment on the face of Alicia was pathos beyond the telling.

Not but what they gloried in the rising success of their son, and stood back with their faces perspiring and their hearts hurting from exertion and something else, for him to take the honors for the act, but there came the time when there was simply no easing the fact, for the two of them, that they were finished. Managers were clamoring for Winstead, and for years had been tolerating the presence of the older pair for the simple reason that he would not book without them.

But the time had come when it was apparent even to Winstead himself that there was imposition in any longer asking for bookings for the older pair. Beatty was winded almost before he reached stage, Alicia, poor dear, no longer had the stamina. Strangely, this realization dawned, nearly simultaneously, upon the three of them, sparing Winstead the almost unbearable pain of telling them their hour had struck.

"We're finished, Beatty," Alicia announced to her husband one evening, as they sat around trying wholeheartedly to discuss plans for a next season's act. "What's the use bending around the bush? They don't want us. We're dead weight around Winstead's neck. Let's face the music."

It was with a sense of what seemed positive relief that Beatty capitulated. Actually, his old face seemed for the first time to allow itself to fall into the luxury of wrinkles.

"I guess you're right, Alicia. We're done."

There was not any money scare. Winstead, of course would see to that, and besides the Hortons, Beatty and Alicia, simple-living, simple-minded folk, had put by their little penny.

It was fear of Winstead that lay in their hearts. This boy, never out of his parents' tracks, suddenly alone on the road! Fear of Winstead had squatted on their old chests, both of them, ever since the shadow of this day of their retirement had begun to cast itself across the circuit. He was such a child, Winstead was. A helpless, confiding, genius-like fellow. No good at money, for instance. Had to have it handed to him every morning. So much for taxicab. So much for lunches and little luxuries. So much for tips. No good at watching himself against colds, to which he was subject. It took all his mother could do to keep after him effectively with muffers, rubbers and precaution about drafts. No good at eating well. His father was forever giving him the second helpings of food without his even knowing it, stacking his plate when his attention was diverted and then insisting that he eat.

"But I have eaten, father. Didn't you slip some more potatoes on my plate?"

"Nonsense. Eat, I say!"
Imagine a boy like that, a helpless, off-in-the-clouds fellow who had never had to think much for himself about the creature phases of life, off suddenly by himself on a circuit. It hurt the heart of Alicia so that she cried most of her nights. It threw such a dread into Beatty that his efforts to pretend to Alicia that all was well were pathetic to her almost beyond endurance.

Well, it had to be faced and the sooner the better. The Hortons purchased for themselves the inevitable chicken farm in New Jersey, that haven of all good retired vaudevillians, and Winstead, bewildered and a little frightened with his released, began re-hearing a new act with a young girl with the stage name of "Yvette," whose singing and dancing had attracted the admiration of the Three Hortons.

It was a whirlwind turn of fast, amusing young-blood talk, really exquisite and highly diverting soft-shoe and toe-dancing, and some pretty duet singing that marked them for almost instantaneous success.

After a tryout in Newark, Winstead and Yvette were booked over a forty-week cycle and the pair of the older Hortons settled down to what gallant resignation they could muster.

And muster they did, except it actually did seem that with the letting down of the strain and excitement of their life-time of years on the circuit, Beatty and Alicia were destined to fall apart like the proverbial one-hoss shay. Bad health set in for both almost the month after retirement. An old pair were nearing the final turn in their road.

It was quiet and peaceful and even beautiful in a way. Sweet, come right down to it, growing old out of a youth that had been so long and tumultuous and vigorous. It was Winstead that brought dread to the heart—Winstead, who had been so babied.

His first visit home after the forty weeks brought peace to the heart on that score. He and Yvette had come back to the farm to be married. She is a tumultuous little thing. Dances like a whirl and can fling herself in a horizontal bridge from the neck of Winstead and start whirling.

She is young, vivacious, beautiful and a whirlwind for making Winstead toe the mark. Rubbers! Let him try to venture out on a damp day without them. Appetite! Let him try to skip that glass of fresh cream with his lunch. Money! Yvette holds the purse strings and does out to him as if he were a child.

There is nothing left for Alicia and Beatty to dread about the twilight.

Dogs With Titles

The amazing history of Pekingese has been told by Mrs. A. C. Dixie who spent a long time in China. A thousand years ago these small bundles of trouble were worshipped as symbols of Buddha, and invested with the highest titles an emperor could devise. They were granted princely and dukes. They were honored with literary degrees. To steal one was to run a certain risk of enjoying that death known as the "Death by ten thousand slices." Today the Pekingese is guarded with something of the same stringency, but in Tibet and not in his native birthplace, China last her hold on him when the Summer palace in Peking was sacked in 1860, and an English general brought a "sleeve dog" home in his hat as a gift to Queen Victoria.

Britain's Red Tape

The sleepy little village of Upper Tean, between Uttoxeter and Stoke-on-Trent, is where the government obtains its red tape. Officialdom ties itself up with tape from Upper Tean. It also uses the same tape to tie up the parcels of restrictions which go to make Britain what it is. Old women with kindly faces turn out tape by the mile. It falls in cascades from the looms and, on the floor, great piles of red tape may be seen. There is enough tape to trip up the nation when handled with the cunning dexterity of Whitehall.—Montreal Herald.

Dying Request Denied

Though England has produced great painters, oddly enough the only one commemorated in Westminster abbey is Sir Godfrey Kneller, portrait artist from the time of Charles II to George I. Still queerer, Kneller's dying words were: "By G—d, I will not be buried in Westminster." To make absolutely certain he designed his own monument and paid $15,000 for the stone and work and chose a spot in Twickenham churchyard. But due to a dispute of his widow with Pope over the rights to this plot, Kneller was buried in the abbey in spite of himself.

Latest Frocks of Lacy Open Mesh

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHIONLAND is enjoying the thrill of a new enthusiasm. It's for open lacy mesh effects, if you please. Seeking shoes, hosiery, gloves, dress goods, sports frocks, evening and afternoon gowns, wraps, suits, sweaters, or a blouse, millinery, handbags, or "what have you" in shops, you will be reminded every day in every way that open mesh effects are "it."

Some of the woolen materials are woven so open and lacy one has a feeling they surely are knitted or crocheted. Often these "meshy" weaves are made up with touches of hand crochet to finish them off. At any rate, if madam or mademoiselle aspires to follow in the footsteps of fashion, an openwork knitted or mesh-fabric gown on the order of the up-to-the-moment models pictured is inevitable for midseason and spring.

The good-looking spectator sports dress which you see to the left in the illustration is of bright orange woolen in a knitted patterning which looks very much like allover lace. Its smart tailored handling adds "class." The coat repeats the white accent which occurs in the yoke of the dress, a whole fox skin forming the collar. The swanky shoes enter into the color scheme most beautifully. Observe that they are very smart open-shank sandals made of exquisite orange toned kid. According to the style program a big vogue is in promise for dainty footwear of finest kid in very lovely coloring. Black, tangerine and white are cleverly combined in the early spring street costume shown to the right. The open square-mesh material is in tangerine. Its many-gored skirt which spherulizes at the hipline and flares at the hemline is one of the outstanding features of the model. The surplice yoke of white mesh is also voguish.

VELVET IS SMART FOR SPRING WEAR

Many velvets are popping up here and there in the shops.

One of the most effective suits for formal wear combines a white velvet jacket with a black satin skirt. The velvet of the jacket is the new dull-surface variety, and very smart.

Short velvet evening wraps are to take the fashion trenches by storm this spring. They are being shown in every conceivable color, from black and white, through the pastels, to the bright jewel tones.

A black velvet coat for spring wear has barrel sleeves starting to flare at the elbow, and gathered into a tight cuff of white ermine. A standing white ermine collar is finished by a black velvet bow, like a Windsor tie.

Spring Suit Must Have

Jacket to Be Success

You must have a jacket with your new spring frock if it is to be a grand success. Of course, the jacket is sometimes a long coat, especially when it comes to the ensembles that are so liked just now. But it is jackets and nothing but in the evening, when the younger set, almost to a girl, steps out wearing some sort of jacket, however brief, with her frock.

Mostly the jackets are of the same material as the frock, and what they lack in length they make up in chic. But to put back to the frock with its coat, that does not match in color or material and yet manages to show that it is the soul-mate of the accompanying frock.

Plaid Gingham

Another southern fashion that will bear watching is the shirt made just like a man's, of brilliant plaided gingham. These are worn with trousers or with sports skirts and have a chic all their own.

The kid opera pumps, knitted turban, and abbreviated fur jacket are in black. A chain motif in gray beige to match the hose trims the shoes. Waist-length jackets of every type of flat fur or of velvet, corduroy or velveteen are outstanding in the new modes.

It is not only for the dress entire that mesh fabrics are scoring a triumph, but for the making of the sultrious these loose-woven effects are the rage. In this connection mention should also be made of the latest blouse as per Schiaparelli and other Paris dressmakers, which is hand-crocheted of coarse mercerized cotton and worn with the new spring suits.

Another use of French square-mesh hand crochet or of the materials which simulate these effects is that of making of them the deep yokes and sleeves such as top-fashionable frocks this season, in contrast or of like color.

So popular has the theme of open-work novelties become, some of the shops are displaying accessory sets that include gloves, scarf and bag, all of matching mesh material, either in black, white or bright colors.

Likewise, latest footwear plays up to the flair for open mesh in that ultra-chic shoes made of suva cloth (open-mesh that looks like lace) are shown at all leading booteries. Not only are the now-so-voguish mesh and lace-effect fabrics sponsored in street colors and in vivid shades, but they are apropos to spring and summer in a series of delicate colorings designated by stylists as "water lily shades." These include such delectable tones and tints as pink petal, water lily green and other as fascinating colors.

HIGH WAISTLINE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The built-up waistline is important this season. This smart black and white check wool suit achieves the desired silhouette via a skirt which is brought up high over the blouse. The lining and the blouse are a vivid green crepe. Even when there is a belt, the newer skirts are made to look as if they extend above the normal waistline by means of tabs and various other clever devices.

"Hit" With Daddy

The return to the stage of our beloved Maude Adams brings to mind her equally famous contemporary, the late Richard Mansfield. Mansfield, like Miss Adams, managed to keep his stage life quite separate from his personal affairs, but once on the occasion of Nat Goodwin's "seventh marriage," Mr. Mansfield said:

"Well, I'm not sure whether he's lucky or unlucky. As for me, I play mostly villains and was never a so-called matinee idol. Only one woman ever wrote me a mash note, and I promptly married her, lest she change her mind."

"I'll never forget the day I called at her house to interview her father on the subject."

"What do you do for a living?" he wanted to know, and when I replied that I was an actor, he bellowed in righteous indignation:

"So you're an actor! Well, get out of here before the foot lights!"

Mirror Superstition

Many people still believe that if they break a mirror they will have bad luck for seven years. But why should this be the case with a mirror? asks a writer in the Los Angeles Times. The superstition probably dates to the time when the only looking glass was a stream or some stretch of calm, clear water. When people looked into this water and saw their reflection they thought it was their spirit that had been transferred. Hence an enemy, by throwing a stone and disturbing the image, believed he would cause harm and bring bad luck to the person looking into the water.

Confidences

The newly wed young man met a friend who had been married for some years. "Does your wife ever doubt your word?" he asked. "Well—" pondered the much-married man. "What I mean to say is, does she ever think you are fibbing to her?" interrupted the younger man. "The elder man nodded. "Rather," he replied, "especially when I'm telling the truth."

Rules and Exceptions

Exceptions are not the case with all rules. There are certain laws of nature which are steadfast. And there are certain laws for success which are just as unchanging. No one has yet found an acceptable substitute for ambition, honesty, integrity and industry.—Grit.

CLIPPERTON ROCK AWARDED TO FRANCE

Is One of Loneliest Islands on Globe.

Washington.—An arbitration award gives to France its first possession on the Pacific coast of North America. Clipperton Rock, a desolate spot of land 670 miles off the Mexican coast, has just been placed under the tricolor by King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, arbiter, to whom France and Mexico submitted their claims of ownership.

"Clipperton Rock is one of the loneliest and least visited islands on the globe," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "It is about the same distance from the nearest Mexican port of Acapulco as the Bermuda islands are from New York. Like the Bermudas, this lonely island rises sheer from the bed of the ocean. It is surrounded by dangerous coral reefs.

Looks Like a Sail.

"Mariners who have sailed near Clipperton Rock say that the island, which is about two miles in diameter and reaches a height of 60 feet, looks like a sail at a distance. Upon closer approach it presents the appearance of a castle rising from the waves.

"Most ship captains give Clipperton Rock a wide berth. In fair weather it is easy enough to steer clear of its encircling reefs, but in times of fog a ship could be wrecked before the sounding lead could give any warning of land. Soundings less than a mile offshore give no bottom at 150 fathoms (900 feet).

"The island, destitute of any vegetation, is inhabited only by a small Mexican garrison. It was annexed by France in 1857. A party of Americans next claimed it and attempted a settlement. When France protested to this country in 1897, the United States recognized French sovereignty. But the same year President Porfirio Diaz, of Mexico, claimed and seized the island. Later Diaz agreed to submit the matter to arbitration of the King of Italy and abide by his decision.

Possible Seaplane Base.

"While the sail-like rock is the most conspicuous feature of the island, most of the new French possession is a huge ring or belt of coral sand, inclosing a circular lagoon which varies in depth from a few inches to 300 feet. The lagoon water is brackish and during the dry season smells strongly of ammonia. It could be used, however, as a seaplane base, for at all times it affords a quiet anchorage and taking-off place.

"Native food supplies are meager, insufficient in themselves to support human life. This was demonstrated about 12 years ago when, during one of the acute periods of the Mexican revolutionary struggles, supplies could not be sent to Clipperton Rock. All the garrison there, with the exception of one man, died of starvation before a ship could be spared.

"Sharks swim about the island, and in the big lagoon there are a number of knobs of land above water on which countless sea birds lay their eggs. These eggs are good eating. "Some time ago the Mexican government leased Clipperton Rock to the Pacific Islands company, which expected to exploit the guano deposits of the bird-breeding rocks. A wharf 400 feet long was built out to the edge of the reef, but, as the sea breaks beyond it, the wharf will have to be extended before ships can use it. The Mexican name for the island is 'La Isla de la Pasion'; or the Isle of the Passion."

Kindness to His Chum's Mother Wins Him $50,000

Ottawa, Ill.—Many acts of kindness to an elderly woman, whose only son met death in the Spanish-American war, won for John G. Schumacher a reward in the shape of a legacy valued at more than $50,000. The gift was provided in the will of Mrs. Elsie Campbell.

Schumacher and Mrs. Campbell's only son, Irving, were boyhood chums. Campbell enlisted in the Spanish-American war. He died on his way home and was buried at sea. After that Schumacher always looked after Mrs. Campbell as a son would. When she died the members of the Schumacher family were surprised to learn that Mrs. Campbell left them the bulk of her large estate.

Kin of Mark Twain, 81, Popular Trick Skater

Shellsburg, Iowa.—Skating ability of a man eighty-one years old, with skates 76 years old, attracted many persons at the Cedar river. They watched him cut his name, and outdistance skaters many years younger. The skater is George Clemmons, cousin of Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain). Skating is his favorite winter sport and rarely a day passes when the ice is thick enough that he is not out on it. Clemmons, born in Ironton, Ohio, was a drummer boy in the Civil war. He knew Mark Twain well.

Judge Rules Autoist's Excuse Was a Good One

Duluth, Minn.—A hit and run driver who fled after an accident in which his car smashed the fender of a taxicab was excused in Municipal court when he told the judge his reasons. "My mother-in-law was in the taxi, you honor, and I had a woman, not my wife, with me," the man explained.

ONE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHATSOEVER world may lie beyond This world around our feet, It always is some earthly bond That makes that world complete, Yes, this makes heaven sweet:

That always yonder there are some Who make that heaven fair, Or there is some one who will come If we shall first be there, Some heart for whom we care.

This world and that, that world and this, We think of them as two; But only when a face we miss, Or our own days are few, Heaven we ever knew.

A husband waits there for a wife A mother for a son; This earthly life, that heavenly life When earthly life is done, We know, at last, are one. (©, 1931, Douglas Malloch.)—WNU Service

Through a Woman's Eyes

By Jean Newton

TWO MISTRESSES IN ONE HOUSE

A TORTURE of the soul may prove far more painful than physical suffering. It has done so in this case. The real and underlying cause of the trouble is mother-in-law.

That was the statement of a judge in a case where a woman sued for separation on the ground that her husband had installed his mother in their home and had demanded his wife's subservience to her. The judge announced that unless the mother-in-law left the home before a certain date he would grant the wife a separation.

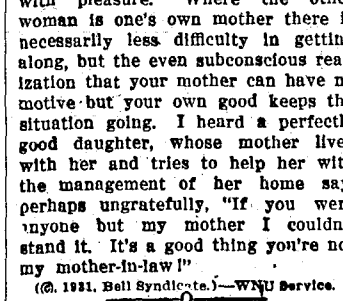

It always pains me to have the relationship of mother-in-law branded in this way. It may be a great cruelty to the individual concerned, who may be quite blameless. And of all generalizations, which are manifestly unfair, it is the most harmful. It is that sort of thing which makes young women start their married life with a fear complex or prejudice against their husband's mother, who may be the most wonderful mother, who may be the most wonderful woman in the world, and that often puts the older woman on the defensive, so immediately erecting a barrier to real friendship between them.

Mother-in-law is a term for a situation whose felicity depends not on the term but on the nature of the people concerned. Like marriage, the relationship depends on what you make of it.

In the particular case under discussion, the trouble would appear to be not "mother-in-law," as the judge characterized it, but the attempt to have two mistresses in one house. Except with the most unusual characters on both sides, that equation almost invariably equals trouble, whether there is an in-law in it or not.

Two active women interested chiefly in managing the same house will have difficulty in getting along without friction even if they are sisters or if the mother is one's own mother. Ask any who have tried it. Even though they have had years of practice in disagreeing with each other, sisters who have tried double house-keeping have been known to separate with pleasure. Where the other woman is one's own mother there is necessarily less difficulty in getting along, but the even subconscious realization that your mother can have no motive but your own good keeps the situation going. I heard a perfectly good daughter, whose mother lives with her and tries to help her with the management of her home say, perhaps ungratefully, "If you were anyone but my mother I couldn't stand it. It's a good thing you're not my mother-in-law!"

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

It always has seemed to me a new and increasing marvel that a person in New York can take a telephone receiver off the hook and in a moment be talking to some one in San Francisco. Yet that great invention of Mr. Bell, which permits us to speak in a natural voice over thousands of miles, is not an unmixed blessing. There is a man of Manhattan whose telephone is not beside his bed, but across the room. Not long ago, he was awakened in the middle of the night by a most persistent ringing of the bell. Rising in the dark he made his sleepy way toward the telephone. In some manner he caught one foot under the rug and, plunging forward, brought his other foot into violent contact with a chair, breaking a toe, as was afterward discovered. Nevertheless this Spartan, uttering language, to be sure, hopped painfully to the telephone and grasped the receiver.

It was the wrong number.

In a restaurant in Grand Central station there is a waiter who used to work at Jack's. The other morning he and I talked of that place of lamented memory, of the nights when you could find there such notables as Rex Beach, Fred Stone, T. A. Dorgan, and all the rest of that old-time throng.

"Jack's," said the former employee, "was like that place in Paris of which they always talk. If you stayed there long enough, you would see everybody, who was anybody, in the world. There is no place like it now. In a week I'd average $100 in tips. Those days are gone. That was a lot of dough then and it would be more right now. 'I well remember the first time I ever saw a $1,000 bill, and I have not seen many since. A little fellow who was sitting in the back room gave it to me to pay a check that totalled less than seven dollars. The cashier certainly looked hard at that bill before he got the money out of the safe to make change. Who gave me the bill? Well, you might have heard of him. His name was Arnold Rothstein."

One of the most interesting and remarkable persons in New York manages an uptown agency. Totally blind, he runs the office by himself. This means that he opens the safe, runs two adding machines, operates two typewriters, and answers and uses three dial telephones. He also keeps a card index. There are many blind men and women who do similar things through some adaptation of the Braille system, the system of little raised dots. The remarkable thing about this man is that, except in the case of the index and of dots in his watch, he does the whole thing by memory. In other words, in the matters of typewriting machines, adding machines and dial telephones, he uses the touch system. He remembers anything said to him on the telephone, including house and street numbers, long enough to type them and then remembers the location of the typewritten notes, so that he always gives the proper memorandum to the particular outside man he selects for the job. His ear tells him which telephone rings and which outside man has entered the office. He wears dark glasses and so sure are his movements that customers frequently come in and go out again without knowing he is blind. He also can play the piano by the touch system. Once he played in a place in which "Legs" Diamond had an interest. It still owes him his last week's salary.

There is one thing which makes a deep impression on every distinguished visitor who comes to New York. If they have not experienced it before, and often when they have, they invariably speak of it. I am referring to their rides behind a motorcycle escort. Owing to the limited size of Manhattan island and the number of automobiles which daily travel its streets, the traffic situation is something to write home about. Yet a good motorcycle escort will take a distinguished visitor from Harlem to the Battery at an average speed of about thirty miles per hour. Some distinguished visitors grow pale and shut their eyes. Some merely hold on to anything they can reach and do ghost braking for the driver, or curl up their toes. A few are either fatalists or else so phlegmatic that they sit relaxed and show no reaction to a street car missed by an inch, or a flake of paint flicked from a truck.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"TO BE ON THE ANXIOUS SEAT"

THEY kept him waiting on the anxious seat for a long time before he was finally assured of the position.

This is the present and usual use of the expression "anxious seat" which, strictly speaking, should be "anxious bench."

A person who is on the "anxious seat" or "anxious bench" does not really sit. It is a reference rather to a mental state than to a physical posture. This mental state may be one of worry, concern, depression or anxiety.

Originally, the phrase was purely ecclesiastic. It had its inception in the practice at Methodist and other religious revivals in the United States, to have special benches set aside for use only by those members of the congregation who had repented of their previous lives and who felt that they would be saved only by joining the church.

It was these benches that came to be known as "anxious benches." Because those who sat upon them were quite anxious pending their notification of admission into the church.

The Old Gardener Says:

IT IS not advisable to wait until late autumn before transplanting delphiniums. They give best results when moved in late summer. New plants are readily grown from seed if the seed is fresh. Delphiniums do not resent a certain amount of shade from the midday sun but should not be grown actually under or too close to trees. Established plants will persist for several years but it is wise to keep a new lot coming on to provide for future needs. When the plants are growing in hot sandy soil it is advisable to apply a mulch of well decayed leaf-mold or peat-moss, or some form of humus to keep the ground cool and moist.

A special permit is required to ship furs out of the State.

As he stopped two men came from behind the car and one hurled the wrench at him. A constable found Richardson a half hour later.

splitter" and Lincoln himself set current a number of dignified political maxims that were adopted as slogans by the orators, such as "A House Divided Against Itself Cannot Stand" and "Slavery is a Moral, Social and Political Wrong."

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

NOW that the Presidential campaign is beginning to warm up, the sloganers will soon be busy inventing apt and easily-remembered catchwords with which to charm the ear of the voter. Already senatorial groups in both parties have chosen from those submitted in a recent contest mottoes which they hope will advance the cause of their standard-bearers—the Democrats with their "Hee-haw! We're coming back!" and the Republicans with their "Prosperity Is Returning—Don't Throw It in Reverse!"

democratic ideals had become considerable of an aristocrat. So when the Whigs nominated the type of man that Andrew Jackson had once been—a frontiersman, an Indian fighter and a military hero, the nation was ready to turn (to state it paradoxically) from a Democrat who was an aristocrat to a Whig who was a democrat.

And what a godsend that was to the Whigs! Immediately the log cabin and the hard cider barrel became their symbols and Harrison's Indian-fighting record furnished them the ringing war cry of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!"

How potent a slogan may be in winning for a Presidential candidate (and also for losing one) is easily seen by an examination of American political history. The first effective use of the campaign slogan was away back in 1800 when the Republican party (which later became the Democratic) raised the cry of "Equal rights for all; special privileges for none!"

Four years later the campaign witnessed not only the appearance of the first "dark horse" in a Presidential campaign but also another telling slogan. The "dark horse" was James K. Polk of Tennessee and the slogan was "Fifty-Four Forty or Fight!"

Then followed 24 years of rule by the "Virginia dynasty"—Jefferson, Madison and Monroe—and the Federalist party disappeared from the scene, leaving only the Republicans, who now called themselves Democrats, with various factions within the party.

Cleveland's first campaign contributed "The Man of Destiny" and "Tell the Truth" to the slogan stock, both of which had a strong appeal to the voters.

In the election Jackson led in both the popular and the electoral vote but did not have a majority. So the election was thrown into the house of representatives and there Clay threw his support to Adams, resulting in his election.

The tariff campaigns were prolific with slogans—among the most telling ones were "Protection and Prosperity," "Free Trade and Pauperized Labor" and "Free Trade and the Destruction of American Industries," which the practical Mark Hanna boiled down into the vote-getting slogan of "The Pull Dinner Pail."

When "Old Hickory" was through with being President he passed his mantle along to his secretary of state, Martin Van Buren, who was elected in 1836 over four Whig candidates, one of them, William Henry Harrison.

William Jennings Bryan, who is associated in most Americans' memory with Clay, Tilden and Blaine as men "who just missed the Presidency," had a strong slogan—strong in its brevity and its capability of being easily remembered—in his "Sixteen to One."

Affairs had gone badly for Van Buren during his four years. They had been four years of "continued executive autocracy, of undiminished official partisanship, of increasingly violent interference with the fiscal system of the nation, of unrelenting administrative abuse of power."

As for the slogans of recent years, they are too familiar to most of us to need much comment. War-weary America turned "Back to Normalcy" with Warren G. Harding in 1920.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for March 6

JESUS WASHES HIS DISCIPLES' FEET

LESSON TEXT—John 13:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Washes the Disciples' Feet. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Performs a Humble Task. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Dignifies Lowly Service. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spirit of Christianity.

I. Christ's Amazing Love for His Own (vv. 1-3).

Jesus was fully conscious of what was immediately before him. He knew that the cross with all its shame and anguish was upon him. He knew that his disciples would shamefully forsake him in a few hours. He knew that one of that number would be the instrument in the hands of the Devil in his betrayal. He was fully conscious of his duty. He knew that all things were in his hands. Despite all this, he displayed great patience and manifested untiring love.

II. Christ Washing the Disciples' Feet (vv. 4-11).

This act was symbolic of his amazing love for his disciples. Jesus did not regard his hands too holy to do this menial service.

- 1. Steps in this service (vv. 4-6). a. He rises from supper. b. Laid aside his garments. c. Took a towel and girded himself. d. Poured water into a basin. e. Washed his disciples' feet. f. Wiped them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

These steps symbolize Christ's entire work of redemption. His rising from supper represents his rising from his place of enjoyment in the heavenly glory. His laying aside his garments symbolized his putting aside his vesture of majesty (Phil. 2:7, 8). His girding himself symbolized his taking the form of a servant (Phil. 2:7). The water in the basin—his cleansing blood. His washing of the disciples' feet—his actual cleansing of them through his Word (John 15:3; Eph. 5:26). His taking his garments again—his returning to his place and position of glory.

2. Peter's impetuosity and ignorance (vv. 6-9). When he realized what the Lord was doing, he refused to have his feet washed. When he realized the peril of refusal, he desired to be fully washed. He went from one extreme to another.

3. The significance of this service to those who participate in it (vv. 8-11).

a. It is a spiritual cleansing (v. 8). Fellowship with Jesus is only possible as we are continuously cleansed from our sins. The cleansing here is not the washing of regeneration, but that of sanctification. Even those who are regenerated need the continual cleansing of Christ's blood in order to have fellowship with him. He that is regenerated; that is, washed in the blood of Christ (symbolized by water baptism), does not need a repetition of the act, but he needs the cleansing of sanctification (symbolized by the washing of the feet).

b. A badge of brotherly affection (v. 14). This act showed his abandonment to the service of his disciples. This is a lesson that is much needed today. True love is tested by the service it renders.

c. A proof of humility (v. 15). This was a lesson much needed by the disciples, and much needed by us all today. They had just been disputing as to who should be the greatest in the kingdom. Thus their selfish ambition was expressing itself. On every hand we see expressions of pride, vanity, and even arrogance, in those who are professed followers of the lowly Jesus.

d. Equalization (v. 16). As the disciples were thus served by Jesus Christ, their vain ambitions were rebuked. To enter into this service in the Spirit of Christ is to encounter a leveling of humanity.

III. An Example for Us (vv. 14-16). Christ the Lord of all became the servant of all, and his disciples are under solemn obligation to follow him in their service to others. This obligation rests upon his lordship (v. 14).

GEMS OF THOUGHT

- Full redemption removes remorse.
- Christ can change sadness to gladness.
- Sin is like a river which begins in a quiet spring and ends in a stormy sea.
- Jesus on earth—his path, his spirit, his ways—is the measure of our walk and obedience.

 East Jordan's boys played a good game at Charlevoix last week when the red and black topped the game off with a score of 10-14. The half was in favor of the red and whites from Charlevoix but our boys would not let that pass over without making a few more points to get ahead of the other team which they did by making the total score 14-10. H. Sommerville, B. LaLonde and J. Hignite were the star players for the local team. This game was the last game of the season, but the champions will be announced at the end of the Tournament which is being held this week at Charlevoix.

 The fifth grade had an Arithmetic test and only one had a failure. Elaine Hosler just came back to school after having the mumps. The "A" spellers in the fifth grade are Jean Carney, Nellie Harrington, Pearl Hite and Marion Hudkins. The fourth graders who had "A" in spelling are John Craig, Sonny Bulow, Basil Morgan and Donald Walton.

The fourth grade can locate any State in the Union. They play a game and see who can find the States first.

GRADES
 Fourth Grade—The following people had "A" in Arithmetic: Betty Jean Campbell, Billy Dolezel, Eldeva Woodcock.

Genevieve's group put on a "Thrill" play Friday after recess.

Fifth Grade—In our study of the Middle Atlantic States we have been answering the problem, "Why is New York City the largest City in America, and the greatest trading center?"

We find the multiplication of fractions interesting, also multiplying a whole number by a fraction.

In the study of the poem Hiawatha by Longfellow, we decided to illustrate parts. One part was Hiawatha's home, John Earl drew this in colors for us on the blackboard.

We are making a booklet on the famous men of February.

The following were neither absent nor tardy during February: Louise Bechtold, Elaine Collins, Vernetta Faust, Betty Sturgell, Beatrice Valen court, Veronica Woodcock, DuWayne Penfold, John Pray, Raymond Richardson, Richard Saxton, Billy Simmons, Ralph Stallard, Robert Sloop.

A few stories about ships that we read resulted in many ships being made, of soap, wood and paper. The ships made were the Mayflower, Sinbad's ship, a Viking ship, and a canoe.

Sixth Grade, Section I—Our "A" spellers for the past month are Jean Bartlett, Carl Beyer, Robert Bigelow, Arthur Engel, Kathryn Kitman, Frances Lenosky, Mary Lilak, Jessie McDonald, Liela Nowland, Marietta Quick, Arthur Rude, Robert Schroeder, Margery Scott, Anna Jean Sherman, Leonard Smith and Frank Strohl.

We think spring must be near. We have a very beautiful Cecropia moth, 5 1/4 inches from tip to tip of its wing. Alfred Kaley of the seventh grade brought it to us. Thank you.

Mary Lilak and Phyllis Dixon have returned to school. Sickness had kept them out some time.

Arthur Rude and Galen Seiler have done especially good work in geography the past week.

Roy Hott and Jessie McDonald were our stars in a recent Arithmetic test, both having an "A."

If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Sold at GIDLEY & MAC'S, Druggists.

Coveted by Witch Doctors

White baboons are rare, almost unknown, but one has been seen by a European trader in the Taita valley, near Umtata, Africa. The trader has been offered two oxen for it by local witch doctors if he can manage to shoot it for them, as they are keen on the dead body for "muti." The trader states that it is a huge animal and uncanny to look at. Many years ago there was a white baboon in the Fletcher district. It used to kill newly born lambs, but was never known to do any other damage. It was known as "the white spook" and was supposed to have a charmed life. When, eventually, it was shot, five previous bullet wounds were found on its body.

"Stop, Look and Listen"

Various accounts of the origin and adoption of the sign, "Stop, Look and Listen" have been given and no two agree. However, Col. J. C. Fuller, vice president and manager in charge of construction of the old Gettysburg & Harrisburg railroad, now part of the Reading, in looking over a court decision in a suit brought for injury at a crossing, found that the judge stated that "it is the duty of every one to stop, look and listen before crossing a railroad." He at once adopted it for use at crossings on his line and it was made standard on their line in Pennsylvania on July 23, 1891, although its origin was prior to that date.

Study in Contrast

It is all a matter of contrasts. The fetish worshippers of Africa kill through ignorance, superstition and distorted reasoning. Civilized people kill for greed, for love, for hate, for political power. In the last analysis, it is easier to forgive the savage slayer than the killer of an enlightened race. Civilization must progress far before it protects human life adequately, and that progress is needed as badly in New York, Chicago, Paris and London as in the jungles of the "dark continent."—Richmond Times Democrat.

The first and last word in good manners—Don't fuss.

Manners are a device of wise men to keep fools at a distance.

If you should fall into any extreme, let it be on the side of gentleness.

Your gentleness shall force—more than your force moves us to gentleness.

Herald Want Ads Get Results.

It's got to be good to be ADVERTISED

All the king's horses—and all the king's men can't make a success out of a bad product. No amount of advertising will create a market for it. The more it's advertised, the more its defects become known.

But a good product well advertised grows as swiftly and naturally as a healthy plant. People try it and like it. They tell others. They like it. Soon that product is found everywhere—and its name, spread abroad by advertising, is on every tongue.

When you see something widely and consistently advertised, you can be pretty sure it's well worth having. If it weren't—if it didn't represent an honest and worthy value—the maker couldn't afford to advertise it.

Look over the advertisements in this paper. Some of these names you know. Others perhaps are new-comers, potential friends bringing some new comfort or convenience. But all are entitled to your trust—all are here because they have something real to contribute to your advantage—your service—your happiness.
