SECOND SERIES OF SOILS MEETINGS NEXT WEEK

The schedule for the second series of ten meetings held in the Grange Halls has been announced for the third week in March, beginning Monday, March 14th. Continuing the different phases of soil improvement, the two subjects that will be discussed will be the use, care and handling of barnyard manure and the usage of commercial fertilizer. At the first series of meetings lime and organic matter were the two important subjects.

It is especially desired that all who attended the first series be present for the second as in that way these topics will be closely tied up together. Instead of having one hundred at the attendance, certainly there should be two hundred in attendance for the second series. Following is the schedule, all forenoon meetings beginning at 9:30 E. S. T., and all afternoon meetings at 1:30.

Monday forenoon, March 14, Deer Lake—Grange. Afternoon, Boyne River Grange.

Tuesday forenoon, March 15, Iron-ton Grange. Afternoon, Maple Grove Grange.

Wednesday forenoon, March 16, Peninsula Grange. Afternoon, Rock Elm Grange.

Thursday forenoon March 17, Barnard Grange. Afternoon, Marion Center Grange.

Friday forenoon, March 18, South Arm Grange. Afternoon, Wilson Grange.

Please remember the dates and be sure to attend the nearest meeting. You will enjoy the discussions and they will be helpful.

Candidates For City Offices

THREE FOR ALDERMAN FIRST WARD NECESSITATE PRIMARY.

Time for filing petitions for City offices expired Monday. Mayor R. G. Watson is unopposed for re-election.

For Alderman in the three wards there are two candidates each in the Second and Third Wards, and three candidates in the First Ward.

For the First Ward, a Primary Election to eliminate one of the three candidates will be held at the Library Building on Monday, March 21st.

For Mayor—R. G. Watson.

For ALDERMAN

First Ward—Leonard Dudley, Joseph Mayville, Robert G. Proctor.

Second Ward—Roland P. Maddock, Charles F. Strehl.

Third Ward—Don Parmeter, William H. Malpass.

NON-RESIDENT FISHING LICENSES ARE NOW $4.00

The 1932 non-resident fishing licenses are now being prepared for shipment from the Lansing office of the Department of Conservation to the various license agents scattered through the State. The licenses are accompanied by a green button.

Non-residents this year will pay for the first time the increased fee set by the State Legislature last year. The law increasing license fees were passed too late to be effective for the 1931 licenses. The licenses are issued for the calendar year.

The non-resident fishing license this year costs $4.00 instead of the $3 paid last year.

Under the new fishing law non-residents fishing in the waters of the Great Lakes over which the State of Michigan has control, must have a license. The same license permits fishing the inland lakes and streams.

In past years non-residents were not required to have a license for game fish in the Great Lakes.

The licenses must be secured by all non-residents over 18 years of age who fish in Michigan waters. The license permits the taking of any kind of fish during the respective open season. One day's legal catch may be transported outside the State when carried as open hand baggage.

The old law permitted non-residents to take fish by hook and line only. Under the law now effective non-residents may take fish in any manner in which fish may be caught by Michigan residents, provided they have purchased a non-resident fishing license.

Republican Conventions

STATE, APRIL 27. COUNTY CONVENTIONS APRIL 13.

To the Republican Voters of Michigan:

The Republican State Central Committee directs that a State Convention of the delegated representatives of the Republican party of Michigan be held in the City of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Wednesday, April 27, 1932 at eleven o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing seven delegates at large and seven alternate delegates at large to the Republican National Convention called to meet in the City of Chicago, Illinois on June 14, 1932; also for the purpose of selecting two candidates for electors at large for president and vice-president of the United States; and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

The voters of the several counties who are in accord with the principles of the Republican party, believe in its declaration of policies and are in sympathy with its aims and purposes, are cordially invited to unite under this call in the selection of delegates to the said State Convention and to the district conventions called pursuant hereto.

Pursuant to law and the action of the Republican State Central Committee, each county will be entitled to representation in the State Convention in accordance with the apportionment of delegates herewith shown, being one delegate for each 367 votes or a major fraction thereof cast at the November election of 1930 for the Republican candidate for Secretary of State.

Delegates shall be qualified voters, men or women, of their respective counties.

Under the resolution of 1858 no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the State Convention who does not reside in the county he or she proposes to represent.

County Conventions

Delegates to such State convention from all counties in the State, except Wayne, may at the option of the respective county committees of such counties be selected in one of two methods: (one) by county conventions to which the delegates shall be the same persons who were certified as delegates to the convention held in the county by the Republican party in the spring of 1931, or, (two) by county conventions, to which the delegates are chosen under the regular caucus system for the selection of delegates to county conventions, as prescribed by the statutes of this State.

In Wayne County the delegates heretofore elected and certified as delegates to the county convention of the Republican party held in the spring of 1931, and as of record in the office of the clerk for such county, shall be re-certified by a new certificate of election issued after this date by such county clerk, and shall be the delegates to the county convention of such county.

All Republican county conventions for the election of delegates to the State and district conventions shall be held on

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13, 1932

Each Township and Ward shall be entitled to the number of delegates in the county convention of its county as shall be specified in the call issued therefor by the Republican County Committee, except in Wayne County which shall be governed by the provisions above set forth for said county.

The place and hour of meeting of the county convention in each county shall be designated by the Republican County Committee in its call therefor. The delegates to the State convention to which the county is entitled shall be chosen at such county conventions.

List of State Delegates

The Chairman and Secretary of each Republican County Committee are requested to send to the Republican State Central Committee at Lansing by first mail after the county convention is held, a certified list of the delegates chosen by said convention to the Republican State Convention hereby called, giving the post-office address of each delegate so that the temporary roll of the convention may be prepared.

District Conventions

A district convention is to be called by the congressional district committee of each congressional district of this State for the purpose of selecting two delegates and two alternate delegates to the aforesaid National Convention to be held at such time and place as shall be designated by the District Committee of such district, the date to be between the date of the county conventions and the time of the convening of the State convention herein called. Each county shall be entitled to as many delegates to the district convention

East Jordan Defeats Petoskey

LOCAL BOYS HIT HARD TO COP ANOTHER.

For the second time within a week the Petoskey Indoor Baseball team met defeat at the hands of an East Jordan team.

Tuesday evening the local Indies went up to the "Little Bay" town and pounded out an 18-7 victory.

Leo Sommerville pitched the first six innings and held the Petoskey boys well in hand so the locals started to clown, Malpass pitched the seventh, Blossie the eighth and Charlie Dennis the ninth.

Petoskey was badly handicapped without the help of Potts, veteran twirler, whose Laundry plant, home and furnishings were burned to the ground Tuesday morning. Floyd was burned some on the arms, but not seriously.

The Petoskey girls' teams, playing Basketball in their new snappy scarlet and black suits kept our boys "pepped up" for the main game. In fact, Bill St. Charles, Lawrence Hayes and Ken Blossie had to be sat in order to keep them from going out and taking enough suits away from the teams to fit out our own.

Louch Bennett and Dick Farmer said they took "a keen interest" in their first basketball.

Score by innings:

E. Jordan	5	0	3
Petoskey	0	3	1
Batteries:	L. Sommerville, Malpass, Blossie, Dennis and St. Charles, Fred Rose and Floyd Rose.

as it has delegates to the State convention where such Congressional district is formed of more than one county; but where a county contains more than one congressional district, or a fractional portion of such county is a part of a congressional district, the delegates to the district convention shall be those delegates to the State Convention, allocated to the respective congressional districts in which they reside, and they shall serve as delegates to the convention called in that district.

District Caucuses

Delegates to the State convention from the several counties of each congressional district will meet in District caucuses at 9:30 a. m., on the day of the State convention and select persons for the following positions to be presented to the State convention for confirmation:

One Vice-Chairman.
One Assistant Secretary.
One member of the Committee on Credentials.

One member of the Committee on Permanent Organization and Order of Business.

One member of the Committee on Resolutions.

One Candidate for Elector of President and Vice-President of the United States.

By order of the Republican State Central Committee.

HOWARD C. LAWRENCE, Chairman.

JAMES G. FREY, Secretary.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS FOR 1932 RESORT BUSINESS

W. A. Loveday and L. G. Cornell took part in a regional meeting of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Ass'n at the Park Place Hotel in Traverse City, Friday, when encouraging reports were received on the prospects for next summer's resort business.

George E. Bishop, secretary of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau at Marquette, was the principal speaker. Michigan communities are only beginning to spend the money in tourist promotion that they should and are only beginning to reap their profits from the tourist business, he said.

L. J. Thompson of Grand Rapids, president of the Tourist Ass'n, asserted that "the tourist crop is the only crop that has never failed us."

Wilson J. McDonald, secretary of the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, gave a vigorous talk urging Northern Michigan people to protest against the proposed diversion of the weight tax money from the highway department, declaring that the loss to this section of the State in road building will mean a huge loss in tourist dollars. The regional meeting consisted of discussion meetings throughout the day and a banquet at night.

DAIRY DELEGATES SUGGEST COUNTY DAIRY PROGRAM

The second annual Charlevoix County Dairy Conference was a success from every viewpoint. While the delegates present did not equal in number the attendance of last year, they more than made up for the lack of their enthusiasm and deep interest in problems pertaining to the future dairy development in this county. First of all, some very interesting accounts were given on what the 1930 census revealed. There were 1029 farms in Charlevoix county having a total of 4505 dairy cows, two years of age and over. To feed this population, 20333 acres of hay crops were raised. Of this total 31% was timothy, which is not so hot as a dairy feed and 43% was alfalfa, much better. Comparing our percent of alfalfa with that of other counties we find that Charlevoix County is very near the top. The biggest disappointment is that the average production per acre is only 1.36 tons which is much lower than the average. This, being the case, probably farmers are not particular about their stands of alfalfa. It was also found that 335 acres of sweet clover was used for pasture which is a crop that cannot be duplicated in this respect. Fifty-nine farms reported as having sweet clover.

Most of the time in the discussion was spent in talking about what could be done to increase our production of alfalfa which is the hub around which dairy progress revolves. The delegates recommend that the following steps be taken to secure the best results with alfalfa:

1st—Well drained, clean seed bed.
2nd—Test for lime and use if necessary.

3rd—Prepare firm seed bed.
4th—Use adapted seed.
5th—Inoculate seed.

6th—Seed sown on light soil or with companion crop on heavy soil.
7th—Fertilize and cultivate.

This certainly is a program that would insure better results in alfalfa hay production than is now being noted in the county.

Considerable discussion hinged around the activities of the new co-operative creamery at East Jordan. Summing up this discussion the following resolution was presented by George Meggison of Charlevoix and supported by L. D. Welsheimer of Charlevoix, "that Charlevoix County Dairy dealers urge all county dairymen to extend their entire support to the new Co-operative Creamery."

Carried.

Realizing that a good sire is half the herd, it was recommended that dairymen construct bull pens which would permit the safekeeping of aged bulls until they could be proven.

Clyde Clute, Boyne City, Roy Hardy, Boyne City, Bert Lumley, Boyne City, and Oakley Saunders, Charlevoix stated that they would erect bull pens this year.

In making plans for extension work along dairy lines for this year upon motion by Frank Wangeman, East Jordan, seconded by John Struthers, Charlevoix, it was recommended that the Quality Cream Truck promoted by the Michigan State College be scheduled to again spend three or four days in the county and close its itinerary at a big Visitors Day for the patrons of the creamery. This was carried unanimously.

Further upon motion by Roy Hardy, Boyne City, supported by John Knudson, East Jordan, it was recommended that the County Agent arrange for a series of meetings with the Crops-Dairy Truck at seven or eight different points in the county. This would accurately inform these present the kinds of crops as well as acreage of crops necessary to feed the dairy herd being kept on the respective farms.

Space does not permit a more extended outline of what actually was transacted at this conference but the above summary of the recent Dairy Conference pretty largely indicates of what a Charlevoix County Dairy Improvement program consists.

Attempt Made To Stop Bonding

BANKS TOWNSHIP: TEMPORARY INJUNCTION ISSUED. HEARING MARCH 22.

(From Mancelona Herald)

Banks Township's plan to erect a building at Ellsworth, the most of which was to be leased to Reid, Murdoch & Company for use as a Canning Factory, has been stopped by a temporary injunction.

The Township voted three weeks ago to bond the township for $15,000 to erect a building "for the public use of its inhabitants in whole or in part for township purposes." The idea was to give the township officers offices in one corner of the building, and lease the balance for canning factory purposes—a matter of vital interest to the township as a whole.

Reid, Murdoch & Company have paid out thousands of dollars to Banks township's thrifty farmers for material for canning. Then the Company wanted to enlarge, and other towns in northern Michigan tried to secure the Cannery. Kalkaska has a large building, built for a handle factory, and offered to remodel it with concrete floors, suitable plumbing, and stuccoed exterior, and turn it over to the Company.

Traverse City, not sneezing at the cannery Ellsworth has, made desperate efforts to land it also. And other towns made generous offers.

All this was turned down by the Company when Banks township voted to raise money to erect the building the Company needed for its expansion. Reid, Murdoch & Co., according to the plans, were to deed to the township the land on which the new combination office building and cannery was to be built, and then take a long-time lease, good as long as the building was used for cannery purposes. Now the whole matter is again up in the air.

Some funds appear to have been raised for legal assistance in combating the raising of the necessary money by the township to keep and enlarge their cannery. No one can exactly put his finger on the source of the money supply, but it is believed to come from some town that will benefit materially by Reid, Murdoch & Company deciding to move their cannery from Ellsworth if the injunction is sustained.

The injunction hearing will come before Judge Parm C. Gilbert on Tuesday, March 22. Deputy Sheriff, Verd H. Carpenter served the injunction papers.

GROWERS LOSE MONEY BUYING POOR CHICKS

The few cents saved by poultrymen when cheap baby chicks "are bought is apt to become an expensive economy after the chicks have grown to a producing age and it is found that the birds lack the characteristics which are necessary to make them profitable layers, according to the poultry department at Michigan State College.

Sellers of baby chicks are in the business for profit. They cannot maintain good breeding flocks and use good systems of flock and hatchery management and then sell their product at a low price. Egg producing characteristics are hereditary and a pullet which lacks the producing factors cannot be fed or handled in a manner which will make her profitable.

The difference in price between good chicks and mediocre ones is usually only a few cents. The feeding and care of poor chicks is just as expensive as that of better birds so the only saving made is in the original purchase price.

Well bred pullets should lay 200 eggs or more a year, but poorly bred pullets usually have production records of 100 eggs or less each year. The difference in production may be as high as 10 dozen eggs per year, and if the price for eggs is only 25 cents per dozen, the difference in returns from the two birds is $2.50.

When any lot of chicks is placed in the brooder house, all small, weak, and deformed chicks should be taken from the lot and killed. These chicks are apt to be a continuous liability and time and feed should not be wasted on them.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I am a candidate for re-nomination for the office of Highway Commissioner of South Arm Township at the Primary to be held March 14th. Your continued support will be appreciated.

As affairs are liquidated the scrip will be taken in and a new scrip for another 25 per cent issued.

War Hero Is Now a Window Washer

David E. Hayden was found the other day in Los Angeles washing windows at 20 cents an hour. Nearly fourteen years ago, at Thiancourt, in France, he crawled across No Man's Land, a wounded officer on his back, disregarding machine gun fire to save his comrade's life. For this deed the United States gave him the Congressional Medal of Honor; France, a Croix de Guerre with two palms and a star and her Medal of Commemoration; Italy, her War Cross; Portugal, her rare War Cross. "To David E. Hayden, nineteen, youngest war hero," read the citations. "I'm not kidding!" emphatically declared Hayden, now thirty-three years old. "It's work, isn't it? Maybe not the kind I should prefer, but I want to work."

State News in Brief

Monroe—Mrs. Nellie Petee, of Temperance, has started suit against the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad Co. asking $20,000 damages for personal injuries.

Clare—Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Dunkle, farmers near Bertha Lake, have twin daughters. On their eleventh birthday the family livestock was augmented by twin heifer calves and twin ewe lambs.

Boyer City—For the first time here a woman will be in the mayoralty race, opposing Mayor W. P. Vought at the coming primary election. The candidate is Mrs. James (Sadie) McNeal. She is widely known and actively connected with several organizations.

Holland—Olivet College won its first major athletic championship in modern history by defeating Hope College, 35 to 28, and thereby completing its schedule of eight games without a loss. The victory gave Olivet undisputed claim to the basketball title of the M. I. A. A. Conference.

Bay City—Announcement that the annual Michigan Air Tour will be sponsored this year by the Michigan Department of the American Legion was made here by Leslie P. Kefgen, state commander. Dates for the tour have not been set. Kefgen plans to pilot a plane in the tour.

Bay City—Five months ago Lawrence Angstman bowled the first perfect game rolled in Bay City since 1917. He duplicated the feat recently while practicing for a match. Angstman rolled three games, 234; 248 and 300, finishing with 20 consecutive strikes. It was the fourth perfect game ever rolled here.

Allegan—When Miss Myrtle Clark, 21-year-old Heath Township farm girl, stole some chickens from a neighbor, she told Judge Fred T. Miles, she had to have some means of getting her loot to market, so she stole a team of horses. She pleaded guilty to the horse theft and was given 18 months to five years in the Detroit House of Correction.

Saginaw—Because municipal economies threaten to force abandonment of the city zoo, or leave it without a staff of caretakers, Saginaw Boy Scouts are about to turn volunteer zoo keepers. The boys have offered their services as caretakers, working in short shifts, if the council decides it must economize by laying off all but one member of the zoo staff.

Argentine—Havens & Son, groceries and meats, put up their ice from the village mill pond. The season's open winter yielded only three inches of ice, but Chauncey Havens contrived a siphon with a barrel and rubber hose which was used to flood a section of the pond at intervals, thus adding ice above as well as below the surface. The plan developed six-inch ice which was harvested.

Calumet—After mature deliberation, the United States Geographic Board, at Washington, D. C., which carries on one of the less essential functions of the Federal Government, has determined that the "Royale" in the name of Isle Royale, in Lake Superior, should be spelled with a final "e." This decision reverses an earlier determination by the board, which in 1895 decided the correct spelling should be "Isle Royal."

Ann Arbor—Withdrawals from the University of Michigan at the close of the last semester totaled 587 and exceeded by 47 the number of students entering the university, figures announced at the registrar's office show. This leaves the resident enrollment at slightly more than 9,000. The majority of withdrawals were due to completion of course, though 125 students were sent home because of poor grades and 95 left for financial reasons.

Flint—Two propositions will be submitted to the voters of Flint at the election April 4, result of action by the city commission. One will be on the question of repealing an ordinance adopted recently requiring the Sunday closing of grocery stores and meat markets. The other will be on a proposal to waive the charter provision providing penalties on delinquent taxes and allow payment without penalty of taxes from 1929 to 1931, inclusive, until June 15.

Grand Rapids—George R. Scott, general manager of the Grand Rapids plant of the De Vaux-Hall Motors Corp. recently sold to Continental Motors Corp., announced that manufacturing operations would be resumed April 1. Scott said that the Dominion Motors, Ltd., of Toronto, would resume Canadian operations at the same time under a licensing arrangement. The Oakland, Calif., plant of the De Vaux-Hall concern, which did not figure in the sale to Continental, is expected to remain idle.

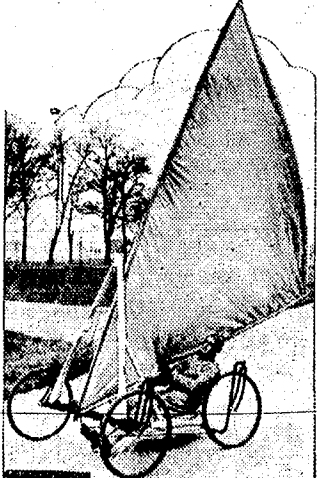

Lansing—Any motorist permitting an intoxicated person to operate his vehicle is subject to conviction of a misdemeanor and suspension of his operator's license for 90 days. Such a ruling has been rendered the State Police by Paul W. Voorhies, attorney general. Act 31 of 1931 is silent on the point but the ruling holds Act 318 of 1927 thus applies. The latter law gave the Secretary of State discretionary power on license suspensions but the former law makes a one-year suspension mandatory for all drunken drivers.

"READY TO STRIKE"

Gen. Vassily Constantinovich Blucher-Galen, commander-in-chief of the special far eastern army of the U. S. S. R., who told a meeting of government leaders at Khabarovsk that the Red army is ready to strike at any moment at any one "who dares stretch dirty hands" toward Soviet soil.

Here's the Perfect Male

The perfect man possesses the following qualifications, in the opinion of girl students of the medical and legal faculties at Prague university. He must be tall, fair, 50 per cent a sportsman, 25 per cent a good dancer, and 25 per cent a humorist; he must sunburn a rich brown color and be reasonably smart. He must drink and smoke. He must not kiss after eating cheese or drinking beer, or when he has his hat on.

Hospital Visitation

"When you visit the hospital," a Hygeia Magazine article by Jean McCaleb states, wear costumes that are cheerful and becoming, let gifts be somewhat off the beaten track, give reading matter which is easily handled and which will help lift the patient's spirits.

Lansing—Michigan State College has begun production of maple syrup, the earliest in many years. Dr. John C. DeCamp, of the department of forestry, is directing operations. The college sugar bush is on the Red Cedar River.

Lansing—An additional $250,000 from the malt tax fund was released by the administrative board recently for payment to the counties to which the state is in debt for care of tubercular patients. This brings the payments to the counties from the malt tax to $750,000.

Port Huron—Miss Ida A. Stevens, who has taught in the public schools 46 years, has been suspended by the board of education pending an investigation of a whipping she is charged with administering to a 10-year-old boy. No date for a hearing, asked by Miss Stevens, has been set.

Royal Oak—An ordinance enabling the city to sell land deeded to it by the State Conservation Commission was passed by the city commission. The city has title to 706 lots on which taxes have not been paid for five years. Wherever possible the lots will be sold to the original owners.

Romulus—The Romulus State Bank reopened March 5 under a five-year moratorium on old deposits. The bank, which had footings in excess of $1,000,000 before the depression, was closed Sept. 18, 1931. Reopening was expedited by a depositors' committee, selected by Charles H. Schutz, receiver, which secured signatures to 97 per cent of the deposits in 10 days.

Mt. Pleasant—Believing that its rights had been stepped on, when President E. C. Warriner opposed moves to correct negligent freshmen students, the Central State Teachers College Student Council tendered resignations. Council President Edward Killoran hopes that a reconciliation can be reached when the retired council of 16 members convenes, with the college administrative body.

Pontiac—In a municipal primary held here five persons were on duty in Precinct 29, in accordance with the law, to count a maximum of four votes. There are eight registered voters in the precinct, but four have moved. It cost the city about $40 to take the vote, City Clerk Harry Maurer estimated. The precinct was created when the city annexed a part of Bloomfield Township occupied by the General Motors Truck Corporation plant.

Bellevue—Mrs. Rachel Lane, who has just observed her ninety-third birthday, has spent her entire life on the farm, where she was born, one and one-half miles northeast of this village. Her father, Lewis Ives, obtained the tract in 1836 from the Government, President Van Buren signing the deed. While the original homestead still stands a new house was erected 69 years ago. Mr. Lane died 36 years ago. A married son, Horace Lane, now works the old farm.

Grand Rapids—Ernest L. Fischer, 21 years old, of Sparta, a farmer, appeared at the County Clerk's office for a license to wed Opal Brown, 18, of Casnovia. Two days later Fischer was back asking for a license to marry Erma B. Walker, a neighbor girl. "We had a falling out," the applicant explained, referring to Miss Brown. He added that he had known Opal for only a few months, while he had kept company with Erma for three years. The first application was cancelled.

Petoskey—For the first time in history of the Petoskey high school a pupil has completed her high school course with an all-A record. In achieving this honor Miss Doris Reber also was chosen valedictorian of the class of 1932. Running a close second was Earl Lawrence, who completed his work with 28 A's and two B's, to become class salutatorian. Miss Reber is a member of the high school debating team, treasurer of the senior class, member of the dramatic club, of the honor society and Girl Reserves.

Harrison—The ice cutting at Budd Lake for the Dow Chemical Co. has been completed with the shipment of about 300 cars carrying 10,000 tons.

Grand Rapids—For the alleged theft of an overcoat from a church here, Ray R. Theron, who said he was a transient from Brazil, Ind., faces a possible life sentence as an habitual criminal. Police records show he has served six felony terms in Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. Theron is said by the police to have admitted stealing the overcoat.

Jackson—A drum which was used in the Revolutionary War is in the possession here of Arthur Curtis. Curtis acquired the instrument about 15 years ago in Branch County, had it reheaded and roped, and reports it is in excellent playing condition. He employs the original sticks. The drum was brought to Michigan about 1836 from New York State by Francis Bates, a pioneer who drove cattle through to Michigan, and took up residence here. Bates's father, Curtis relates, bought the drum from a man who played it during the Revolution.

Holland—Holland's third annual tulip festival, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be staged May 13 to 20. Despite the fact that the opening day falls on Friday the thirteenth, officials are preparing for the biggest event of its kind in the city's history. The festival will feature a flower show in the Armory, and the Garden's club display in the Women's Literary clubhouse. Charles A. Gross, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and John VanBragt, superintendent of city parks, estimate 2,500,000 tulips will be in bloom for the festival.

Gold Found Under City
In the heart of Johannesburg, South Africa, a reef rich with gold has been found, but cannot be worked because the laws prohibit mining under cities and towns. Workmen excavating for a new post office in Von Brandis square struck the reef six feet below the surface. Efforts are being made to trace the reef beyond the city limits so that mining may begin.

COUGHED, LOST FLESH

Grand Rapids, Mich.—"It was wonderful how two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery restored my daughter to normal health a few months ago," said Mrs. Thos. Walton of 843 Ionia St. "She is 15 years of age and seemed to be growing too fast. She developed a bad cough and it was necessary to keep her home from school, as she became very weak and lost flesh. I learned of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and we owe the good health she is now enjoying to that splendid tonic. It not only stopped the cough, but also increased her appetite and built good solid flesh so that she has no more trouble." Sold by druggists.

KIDNAPING OF LINDBERGH BABY STIRS WHOLE WORLD

No Crime in Modern History Has Aroused Such Universal Indignation—Tops Long List of Abductions.

No crime in recent history so aroused the entire American public as the kidnaping of the young son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, Little Charles Augustus, Jr., is the nation's baby. He is a national character and has been since the day he was born. His abduction was a dastardly crime resented by every red-blooded American, grown-ups and children alike.

Every parent grieved with the stricken father and mother. They knew the anguish they endured. They could feel the heart throbs and the immeasurable grief. They could realize what the finding of that empty crib meant to the grief-stricken parents. They knew the darkness that settled over Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh as they viewed the dirty foot-prints left by the villains, and the ladder on the lawn outside the window, that told so vividly the fate that had befallen their young son. It is one great American heart that grieved with those grief-stricken parents.

A little delicate child, only twenty months of age, had been dragged from the affectionate embrace of his parents. From the tender care with which he had been surrounded, and spirited away into the fowl hands of the most detestable type of criminals. There was no more touching incident of the whole dastardly affair than the pathetic appeal of the mother to the kidnapers to feed her sick baby properly. It was addressed by Mrs. Lindbergh to the criminals was, of course, on the part of local police near the Lindbergh home in New Jersey.

Through the agency of the teletype the alarm reached the police of New York, Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth, Camden, and Philadelphia within a few minutes of the receipt of the first news at Trenton. All of them quickly swung into action, as did the New York and Pennsylvania state police.

Orders were flashed to every precinct by the police telegraph system to be on the alert for suspicious cars, while the new police radio station WPEG flashed word to the short wave station of the patrolling detective cars to join in the watch.

Similar steps, though on a smaller scale, were being repeated simultaneously in every city for many miles around the Lindbergh home. Posses of motorcycle and bandit squad policemen from Philadelphia, Pa., and New Jersey state troopers, clamped down a heavy guard on every bridge over the Delaware river.

But the circle of activity soon widened beyond state borders. Within a few hours the news reached Washington, the full co-operation of the federal government in hunting down the kidnapers was offered to the New Jersey state authorities. Attorney-General William D. Mitchell hurried to the White House for a conference with President Hoover and immediately afterwards the Department of Justice announced that every agency of the department would co-operate to the utmost with the state authorities.

Following a second conference between the President and his attorney-general, it was announced that the government had placed its prohibition enforcement officers as well as all of the other department of justice agents on the case. All agents in the eastern section of the country, acting under direct orders from the President, transmitted through the justice department's bureau of investigation in

New York and Philadelphia, were instructed to be on the lookout for suspicious characters. Between these two offices the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and Connecticut, were immediately covered with a network of investigation by the most skillful sleuths in the service of the United States.

Although kidnaping is a state rather than a federal offense, the United States government officials had justification for entering the case because of the possibility that the kidnapers might have violated some other federal statute. But one immediate result of this abduction was to cause a widespread demand for speeding action on bills then before congress making kidnaping a federal offense.

One of them by Senator Roscoe C. Patterson of Missouri makes the transportation of a kidnaped person across a state boundary an offense punishable by death. Another—by Representative John J. Cochran of Missouri makes kidnaping a federal offense if state boundaries are crossed and still a third bill makes use of the mails in kidnaping cases a federal crime punishable by a maximum of 20 years imprisonment. Not only was legislation to curb this crime the chief topic in the national legislative hall, but state legislatures began taking measures to increase the state penalties for abduction.

But more striking than the immediate action taken by the constituted authorities of the law for dealing with the criminals who had stolen away the Lindbergh baby was the instantaneous reaction of private individuals everywhere to the crime. It is doubtful if ever before in the history of America have so many millions of her citizens felt the personal obligation to aid in a gigantic manhunt—in spirit if not in reality.

Aviators, who had been buddies of the famous flying colonel, immediately placed themselves and their planes at his disposal to aid in the search. Thousands of amateur detectives were busily engaged in watching for "clews" which might aid the authorities in catching the malefactors. In New York the clergy of three religious denominations joined in broadcasting a prayer for the safe and speedy return of the Lindbergh baby—a prayer which found an echo in the hearts of millions.

Nor was the excitement over the case confined to the borders of the United States. In far-off China, the kidnaping was told in big headlines alongside the news of the Chinese defeat on the Chapel-Woosung battlefield. The French press, to which Colonel Lindbergh has been a hero since his conquest of the Atlantic in 1926, was filled with the story of the crime. Germany forgot for a moment its heated political atmosphere arising from the presidential election campaign and was swept by a wave of sympathy for the parents of the lost baby. All Berlin newspapers published the kidnaping on their front pages, along with numerous photographs, an extraordinary occurrence in that country, where political issues invariably occupy all available front-page space, even when an election campaign is not in progress.

England's anxiety over the fate of the little boy was nearly as keen as America's. The news of the abduction caused a sensation in Mexico where the baby's grandfather, the late Dwight Morrow, had been ambassador from the United States. A stream of telegrams was sent to the Lindberghs from their many friends in Mexico. President Ortiz Rubio, Foreign Secretary Manuel C. Tellez and J. Reuben Clark, who succeeded the late Senator Dwight Morrow as ambassador, asked to be kept closely informed of any developments in the search for the kidnapers.

The abduction was brought home to Mexicans all the more vividly because of the fact that it had occurred on the third anniversary of Colonel Lindbergh's arrival in the Mexican capital on the visit before his last trip to Mexico, in the days when he was courting Anne Morrow in the romantic atmosphere of Cuernavaca.

Just as the news of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby circled the globe within a few hours after it had occurred, so had the news of the birth of this baby been an item of world-wide interest. Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was born June 22, 1930, which also was the anniversary of the birth of his mother, the former Anne Morrow, daughter of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey. She was twenty-four years old the day her son was born. The baby was born in the Morrow home in New Jersey, in which his parents were married May 27, 1929.

The first "official" announcement of the baby's arrival came from the late ambassador, who, an hour after the child was born, told a friend. "I'm a grandfather, and it's a boy! But don't you tell any one."

His secret could not long be kept however, for many friends had been aware of the preparations made at the Morrow home.

One whole wing had been turned into hospital-like quarters, and two nurses from a New York registry, with Miss Marie Cummins, the Morrow family nurse, were in attendance to aid doctors.

And so, within a few moments after Ambassador Morrow had informed his friend, the news was given to the world through press associations.

In Lindbergh's usual taciturn fashion, only the mere fact that his son and heir had arrived was announced. But from more talkative attendants these important facts came on that first day.

He weighed seven and one-half pounds. His hair was blond and curly. He looked "just like his father."

In the four days interval between June 22 and the day the birth certificate was filed members of the Morrow and Lindbergh family participated in an amicable discussion as to what the infant would be named.

That question was settled when the birth certificate disclosed he was to be "Junior." And it was understood to have been Mrs. Lindbergh's choice all along. It was reported, too, that Lindbergh had favored calling his son after his father-in-law, but that for the first time since he hopped the Atlantic three years before he was turned back from his goal.

During his first few months of life, when his parents were making occasional short jaunts by airplane it frequently was reported that Charles Jr. was to accompany them. They did not take the infant on any of these trips, however, though the reports were so persistent that they gave rise to the impression that Charles Jr. would be brought up from earliest youth with the idea of making an aviator out of him.

So widely was this conviction held that his reticent father declared in an interview, which was printed in October, 1930, in the Pictorial Review, that Charles Jr.'s future was in his own hands.

"Our son," Colonel Lindbergh was quoted as saying, "has hardly reached the age to have his future determined for him, and, in any case, it is a question that he can decide for himself when the time comes."

"Personally, I do not want him to be anything or do anything that he himself has no taste or aptitude for. I believe that everybody should have complete freedom in the choice of his life's work."

When word of the birth of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. went around the world and even before it was announced, gifts began to arrive at the Morrow home for him in such profusion that they soon became an embarrassment. His parents were quoted as saying that the boy would have to remain an infant for ten years at least merely to wear out the baby clothes which had been sent to him.

When Charles, Jr., then just past the age of six months, goggled at his first Christmas tree in the home of his parents in Englewood, N. J., the gift most prominent by its frequent duplication was the toy airplane. He divided his time pretty evenly for the first year of his life between the home of his grandparents at North Haven, Maine, and that of his parents in Englewood, near Princeton, N. J.

In Maine, as at Englewood, extraordinary precautions were taken to guard the baby. Rumors that special watchmen had been assigned were confirmed when it became known that Colonel Lindbergh, as the result of threats from "cranks," had taken such steps to protect his son.

Similar care was taken after the parents returned from the Orient and took their son to their Hopewell, N. J., home.

But all of these precautions apparently could not prevent the perpetration of the dastardly crime that so stirred the world. Early in the case it became apparent that ransom was the motive for the kidnaping for the fortune on which the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby apparently hoped to lay hands is one of the largest in New Jersey.

Lesson for March 13
JESUS COMFORTS HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—John 14:1-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Plans a Home in Heaven.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Plans a Home in Heaven.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Comforts His Disciples.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Comforts His Disciples.

The hopes of the disciples were utterly shattered when Jesus told them about the cross. He had told them that he was going away and that they could not follow him. He consoled them by

1. Pointing to the Coming Reunion in the Father's House (vv. 1-3).

1. He asked them to trust in himself even as God (v. 1). Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how intense the grief or how great the sorrow. Faith in God and Christ is one and the same thing, for Jesus Christ is not merely another God, but one with God. Christ himself is divine and therefore the revealer of divinity. Jesus Christ is the same object of trust as God himself. The believer should repose in him the same confidence and yield unto him the same submission as to God. Trust in Jesus as God is the secret of a quiet heart.

2. He informed them that he was going to the Father's house to prepare a home for them (v. 2). Heaven is the Father's house. Heaven is an eternal dwelling place. There is in it abundant room for all. There are "many mansions." All who come to God through Christ will find room.

It is a prepared place for a prepared people.

3. He assured them that he would come again and escort them to the Father's house (v. 3). Jesus will not wait for his own to come to him, but will come and call forth from the graves those who have died and transform living believers, taking them all to be with himself forevermore in the heavenly home.

11. Revealing the Way to the Father's House (vv. 4-11).

Jesus informed the disciples that they knew the way to that place to which he was going. To this Thomas interposed a doubt, in answer to which Christ asserts that he is

1. The way to God (v. 6). He is something more than a mere guide or teacher—he is the way itself. He is the door of the sheepfold—the very entrance to the tree of life.

2. The truth (v. 6). He is not merely the teacher, but the truth incarnate. In Christ's incarnation the spiritual and material worlds were united. Therefore, every line of truth, whether spiritual or material, converges in him. No one can ever have the real truth about anything who does not have Jesus Christ. In him we have especially the truth about God. To pretend to know God while at the same time rejecting Jesus Christ is utter folly. Only as Christ reveals God can we know him (John 1:18).

3. The life (v. 6). Christ is not merely the giver of life, but he is the essence of life. Only those who receive Christ have life in the truest sense.

111. Assuring Them That His Work Was to Continue (vv. 12-14).

Jesus' going away was not to end the work which he had begun. This, no doubt, means that through the ministry of the Spirit-filled disciples the work which Christ began would as some larger proportions. There would be a much greater number of conversions than under his ministry. The means by which they were to get the power to do such wonders was prayer. God will surely answer prayer, not only because he loves his children, but through answered prayer his own name will be glorified.

IV. Promising Another Comforter (vv. 12-17).

The word "comforter" means literally "one called to the side of another to give help, protection and deliverance." This Comforter is the Holy Spirit. Jesus was the Comforter while here on earth. The Holy Spirit was to be "another" Comforter. The condition upon which they might enjoy the comfort of the Spirit was obedience to Jesus (vv. 15-17).

V. Assuring Them of His Return to Them (vv. 18-24).

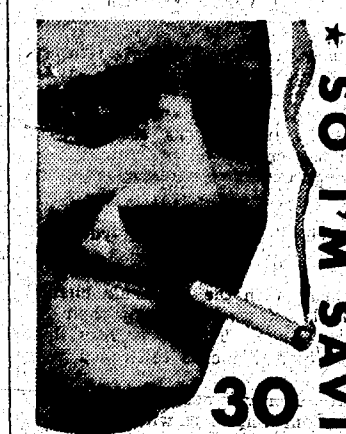

Although Jesus went away he did not leave his disciples as orphans. He is spiritually present all the time. The Father and the Son make their abode with the disciple who loves and obeys Jesus Christ.

Trust the Lord

Difficulties afford opportunities for learning God's faithfulness, which otherwise we should not have. It gives me great comfort to remember that the work is his; that he knows how best to carry it on, and is infinitely more interested in it than we are. His word shall not return unto him void; we will preach it then, and leave results with him.—Hudson Taylor.

Gratitude is the continuous echo which our hearts give to God's mercy.

kidnapers of her son and broadcast through the press of the nation. In it she said:

"To the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby:
"Here is a heartbroken appeal direct from the mother of the child you stole.

"The baby has been sick and its recovery may depend on the treatment it gets from you. You must be especially careful about the diet.

"Mrs. Lindbergh issued to the press today the strict diet she has been following since the baby fell ill. She did this in the hope you might read this story and that there was some spark of humanity even in the heart of a baby thief.

"Here is the diet, accompanied by the fervent prayer of a grieving mother:

"One quart of milk during the day.
"Three tablespoons of cooked cereal morning and night.
"One yolk of egg daily.
"One baked potato or rice once a day.
"Two tablespoons of stewed fruit daily.
"Half a cup of orange juice on waking.
"Half a cup of prune juice after the afternoon nap.
"And fourteen drops of medicine called viosterol during the day.
"That's all, kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby. That's what the baby's mother wants you to give the boy. Follow her request and you may in some small part redeem yourself in the eyes of a contemptuous world."

The fathers of the nation in spirit trapped with Colonel Lindbergh the woods about the large estate, searching with him for clews that would lead to the recovery of the stolen child. In spirit they repeated his prayers and his curses. To the mothers of the nation the abduction was a real, a personal tragedy. Not one of them but felt with Anne Morrow Lindbergh the devastating blow that had

D. T. WILLIAMS WILL GIVE LECTURE AT L. D. S. CHURCH

D. T. Williams, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will deliver the last lecture of his series on the fundamentals of his religion next Thursday evening, March 17th at 8:00 p. m., at the local Latter Day Saints Church.

The lectures, Mr. Williams assures us, have proven to be all that could have reasonably been expected of them.

It becomes necessary at this time for him to give up this Circuit because of the near approach of the General Conference which meets April 6th at Independence, Missouri.

Mr. Williams is a member of the Joint Council, a body of men made up of the Administration Quorums of the Church, including the Presidency, the Quorum of Twelve Apostles and the Presiding Bishopric.

This body is responsible for the administrative policy of the institution and as well, highly influential in its program of legislation. It, therefore, becomes essential for the Lecturer to give up his pulpit program in behalf of this latter responsibility.

The subject of this last lecture will be "The Judgment Eternal."

This discussion, the Lecturer feels, will prove of great interest to the general public and he wishes to extend a cordial invitation to all to attend.

Furthermore, the Speaker wishes to thank the 36 newspapers which have so kindly given space to his invitations to the public.

Few Without Desire to Peer Into the Future

The good round sum of $125,000,000 annually is reported to be paid by our people to various prophets of the future who by reading horoscopes, gazing into glass globes and by other means agree to give information as to the future. It is customary to set down this investment as a tribute made by human folly to desire for foreknowledge. But it is reasonable to believe that a goodly part of this expenditure is made much like investment in other amusements.

Every normal person is interested in the future, so that the urge to learn something about it, if that were possible, is well nigh universal. But it is not reasonable to suppose that $125,000,000 annually is spent by people who really believe that they can learn something. For the curiosity about the future is accompanied by curiosity almost as urgent about anything mysterious outside the zone of personal experience and capacities.

Fortune tellers have attracted and continue to attract a host of patrons who would strenuously deny belief that the future can be foretold, but yet are interested in the occasional evidences, deriving from unknown means and causes, that those who practice prophecy do "hit it right" many times.

There is innate in humanity distrust of absolute rationality. We are all conscious of the vast negligence that underlies our knowledge and present means of acquiring it. We are generally curious about possible sources of knowledge yet undeveloped. And we pay a high price merely to gratify curiosity.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Opportunity In Plenty for Week-End Fathers

America needs more week-end fathers who when the week's work is over, become companions with their children and in this way strengthen the bond of sympathy between parent and children, writes Henry B. Lent, in the Parents Magazine. "I am a week-end father," says he. "From Monday to Friday I drive feverishly three miles to catch the 8:10 train and feel grateful if I am lucky enough to get the 5:35 or the 6:10 train back again in the evening. And that leaves me just week-ends to do the most important job I have—being a father to my boy."

"Without carrying it to the point of absurdity I try to be a real pal to my boy," continues Mr. Lent, in the Parents Magazine. "I never force his relationship, yet as far as I think it wise, I gear my own interests to his level. One of the keenest joys of being a father is the privilege of sharing with your youngster the contagious amusement that accompanies his first insight into interesting, perhaps commonplace, activities of your world. Some of the things for which I go considerably out of my way to do with my son on week-ends would be unbearably tiresome to many people. For me it is fun."

After the passing of a few years Mrs. Whitehead remarried. And with all the men in the wide, wide world to choose from, whom should it be but a Mr. William Redhed. (At that time, Whitehead-Redhed may have been giving in to a delicately Quixotic sense of humor.) No more than her former husband was white-haired, was her present one red-haired, but his name was William Redhed, nevertheless. As far as little Paul's name was concerned he was still called Paul Whitehead.

Some time later, Bill, Jr., was born, which, to give him his full due, made him William Redhed, Jr. In the entire galaxy of exactly four persons, their names were Mr. and Mrs. Redhed (Mrs. being formerly "Whitehead"), Paul Whitehead, Jr., and Bill Redhed, Jr., brand-new.

To those with a pedagogical turn of mind, can be easily imagined the ancient school-marm calling the roll. At Bill Redhed's name she will stop and say, "Bill Redhed, now isn't that funny? Years ago I had a pupil whose name was John Whitehead. Odd if there were some kind of relationship!"—New York Sun.

Some Trees Young at 50
Leaves of some trees turn red in autumn, as those of many maples and sumachs; the leaves of other trees, as the ash and tulip tree, turn yellow. Some trees have leaves so large that you could wrap one about you like a robe, says "Forest Facts for Schools." Others have leaves hardly larger than your little finger nail. Some trees have wood so soft you can tear it apart in your hands and so light that it floats like cork; others have wood so hard no nail can pierce it and so heavy it sinks in water like a stone. In age, too, trees differ tremendously. Some, like the aspens, are old trees when they have reached forty or fifty years, while others at that age are youngsters just getting a start.

Child's Play Gives Rhythm
Play is of as much or more value in teaching a child co-ordination than work, according to the children's bureau of the Department of Labor.

One of the most important results of play, the bureau points out, is the training of the child's senses and muscles. For instance, when a little girl is jumping rope to the sound of her own singing, or that of her playmates, she is learning to co-ordinate eyes, ears, and muscles. The perfect rhythm involved is itself the result of earlier muscle and sense training and the child who has played with vigor and freedom attains it without conscious effort.

Two Men Carlyle Honored
Two men I honor, and no third. First, the toil-worn craftsman that with earth-made implement laboriously conquers the earth and makes her man's. Venerable to me is the hard hand, crooked, coarse.

A second man I honor, and still more highly: Him who is seen toiling for the spiritually indispensable; not daily bread, but the bread of life. These two in all degrees I honor; all else is chaff and dust, which let the wind blow whither it listeth.—Thomas Carlyle in "Sartor Resartus."

Legend of Arcas
According to a Greek legend concerning Arcturus; Arcas, son of the king of Arcadia, while hunting, pursued his mother, who had been transformed into a bear by Zeus. The bear mother took refuge in the temple of Zeus and the god, in order to prevent matricide, transported both the mother and son into the heavens.

To locate Arcturus, follow the handle of the big dipper in a curved line a distance that of the dipper itself. Arcturus is the brightest star in the constellation.

Mankind Yet May Find Use for Desert Wastes

Whoever finds a cheap way to separate water and salt will change the face of the world. Deserts, according to the late Prof. Percival Lowell, are the beginning of the end of life upon the earth, and they are widening. Lower California and the west coast of Mexico, Central and South America down to Cape Horn are arid most of the year. Australia is ringed around with water and vast stretches of barren beaches. The Sahara and Arabia are bone-dry all year. Yet here are the seas, covering more than three-fourths of the earth, used by us merely to sail on and fish in.

In every 100 pounds of sea water there are only three and one-half pounds of salty materials, three-fourths of the salts being sodium chloride, or common salt. If we knew how to separate the salt and water economically, we could drive back the deserts from every shore.

Nature knows one way; she evaporates the water, leaving the salt behind, then condenses the vapor into rain. On ships at sea, man makes use of the same process, but this evaporation process is too expensive for use ashore. Unless willing to let nature take its course, multiplying man will in time have to tackle the water problem in a new way.—Los Angeles Times.

Warning About Neglect Credited to Franklin
The authorship of the old saying about "for want of a nail a kingdom was lost," is attributed to Benjamin Franklin. In the preface of his "Poor Richard's Almanack for 1758," Richard Saunders, the name Franklin assumed in the writing, quotes a man named Father Abraham as saying: "And again, he Richard adviseth to circumspection and care, even in the smallest matters, because sometimes a little neglect may breed great mischief, adding, for want of a nail, the shoe was lost; for want of a shoe the horse was lost; and for want of a horse the rider was lost; for the want of a rider the battle was lost; for the want of a battle the kingdom was lost—and all for the want of a horseshoe nail."

Mankind's Average Height
It is estimated by the United States public health service that the average height of a man in this country is about 5 feet 8 inches and the average height of a woman about 5 feet 4 inches. Whitaker's almanac gives the average heights of natives of the British Isles as follows: Scotsmen, 5 feet 8 1/2 inches; Irishmen, 5 feet 8 inches; Englishmen, 5 feet 7 3/4 inches; Welshmen, 5 feet 6 1/2 inches. Books dealing with anthropology, such as that by E. B. Tylor in the Popular Science library, give average heights of other races. Thus 5 feet 4 inches is given for the Chinese laborer, 5 feet 7 inches for the Swede, 5 feet for the Lapp, 5 feet 11 inches for the Patagonia of South America, 4 feet 6 inches for the Bushmen and other South African tribes.

Longevity of Elephants
No accurate information is obtainable as to the extreme age an elephant reaches in the wild state. Nor is there any positive evidence available that one ever lived to be more than seventy-five years old either in captivity or in the wild state, although it is supposed that one may occasionally live to be ninety-five or one hundred years old. The director of the New York Zoological park states that the extreme life span of animals may be estimated with a fair degree of accuracy by multiplying by four or five the number of years which the young of the species requires to reach maturity. Elephants reach maturity at about twenty-five and begin to get old at sixty or sixty-five.

Know His Host
He was well known to his friends for his weakness for extravagant living and a distinct aversion to paying anybody when he could possibly avoid it; and the other day, having taken and furnished a somewhat sumptuous dinner, he invited some of his friends to dinner.

"Don't you think," he asked, proudly, as he was showing them round the place, "that it's rather nicely furnished? Don't you consider I deserve great credit for it?"

"You do," remarked one of the party, dryly, "and I should imagine you've got it, too."

Americans Use Most Power
Some years ago a farm power survey showed that each farm worker in the United States produced more than six times as much farm products as the average Italian farm worker, and used 2.05 horse power as compared to 19 horse power for the Italian worker. Now the average Nebraska farmer with more than 5 horse power available is able to produce 18 times as much as the average Italian. This difference in productive capacity accounts largely for the difference in their scale of living.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

BOHEMIAN SETTLEMENT

(Edited by F. J. Kubicek)

Joseph Chanda had the misfortune to drop a large buzz pole on his hand while buzzing wood one day last week, injuring one finger quite badly, and smashed the end off of another.

Albert Chanda helped his brother, Joseph, buzz wood last Thursday. A fine cake baked by his sister, Margaret, was the surprise given to William Zitka on his 21st birthday last Sunday.

Albert Chanda helped Chas. Sulak buzz wood last Saturday.

Miss Dolezal of Manelona was a business caller at Edd. Nemeceks.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Skrocki and children were last Saturday evening visitors of the Edd. Nemecek family.

The Kotalik brothers, Frank, Joe and John; Frank and Joe Kortan and Cleo Ecklund were last Thursday evening visitors at the home of Edd. Nemecek.

George Daniels of Petoskey was a week end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Kortan.

Joseph Zitka lost a horse last Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chanda visited Mr. and Mrs. Em. Kratochvil last Tuesday.

The Soil Test meeting held in the Bohemian Settlement Hall last Monday was not so largely attended on account of the bad snow storm.

We have received the worst snow storm of the winter.

Miss Mary Stanek is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Josefek.

SETTLEMENT SCHOOL
Teacher, Mr. Ecklund

There are three pupils in our school who have never been absent nor tardy this year. They are Archie Nemecek, Esther Stanek, and Irene Stanek. Those being neither absent nor tardy for the past three months are Archie and Leo Nemecek, and Esther and Irene Stanek.

The fifth, sixth and eighth grades have been making posters on Holland.

The lower grades have been drawing and coloring pictures of birds.

We are trying to make our room look like Spring as much as possible by making pictures of different things and putting them on the wall.

LEGAL SIZE OF FISH THAT MAY BE SOLD
If you purchase a dressed whitefish that weighs less than a pound and ten ounces; a lake trout that weighs less than a pound and a quarter or a blue pike that is less than 11 inches long, you have purchased an illegal sized fish.

The Fish Division of the Department of Conservation is reminding fish dealers and fish markets of the legal size of fish that may be sold.

The sale of fish under the legal size specified by State law applies not only to fish that have been caught in Michigan, but also to fish imported from other States as well.

Fish measurements are taken from the point of the snout to the end of the tail spread naturally.

Following are the minimum sizes permitted to be sold:
Whitefish—2 pounds in the round; 1 pound 10 ounces dressed; 1 pound 6 ounces when dressed with the head off and salted.
Lake trout—1 and one-half pounds in the round; 1 and one-quarter lbs. dressed.
Ciscowet trout—2 pounds in the round.
Perch—Not less than 9 inches.
Redhorse, red or sturgeon suckers or white suckers—1 pound in the round.
Grass pike—2 pounds in the round.
Cattfish—2 pounds in the round.
Blueheads—Not less than 8 ounces.
Yellow Pickerel—1 and one-half pounds in the round.
Blue Pike—Not less than 11 inches.

Illustrated Article On Kidnaping of Lindbergh Baby Feature of This Issue

When Charles A. Lindbergh flew alone from New York to Paris in 1927, he became a hero in the eyes of the world. Since that time, his every action has been of intense interest to the public at large.

All the world rejoiced with him when his romance with Anne Spencer Morrow culminated in marriage during the summer of 1929. They seemed ideally happy and the following year, a baby boy was born to them. Young, gifted, they had wealth and a son to carry on the traditions which they had created for themselves. Life must have seemed very sweet indeed.

Then fate stepped in, and the first touch of tragedy came to them when Senator Dwight W. Morrow, father of Mrs. Lindbergh, died while the young couple were on an aerial tour of the Orient.

Returning, they took up life once again, this time in the new home so recently constructed for them in the Sourland Mountain district near Hopewell, New Jersey. The events which took place there the night of March 1st when their child was kidnaped from his crib on the second floor, are known to everyone.

The feelings of the public at large were deeply aroused. Sympathy and words of comfort poured in upon the distraught young couple. Read the article on another page of this issue and learn more about the reactions of the people of America, when they learned of the crime.

W. C. T. U. TO HOLD MEETING, THURSDAY

Sponsored by the W. C. T. U., an oratorical silver medal contest will be given by some five children at the Presbyterian Church, Thursday evening, March 17th, commencing at 7:30 o'clock sharp.

An additional feature of the evening's entertainment will be an address by Rev. E. P. Linnell of Petoskey.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Ellsworth Wins Class D Tournament Play

DEFEAT BOYNE FALLS & ALBA AT CHARLEVOIX TOURNAY.

Ellsworth High School Cagers returned to the Class D Championship role at the District Tournament at Charlevoix Saturday night by a 11 to 9 victory over Alba's red and white clad tossers.

The following articles are from the Petoskey Evening News of Saturday and Monday.

Ellsworth Shows Class
Ellsworth showed potential strength in eliminating Boyne Falls in the Friday evening Class D tilt, 22 to 6. While many of their points were made from long range, Ellsworth nevertheless showed a good brand of team play and an alert defense.

The Antrim County aggregation took a 4 to 1 lead at the quarter, but were out-scored three points to two in the second stanza, which closed with the count Ellsworth 6, Boyne Falls 4. In the third canto Elzinga and Rood each hooked a pair of goals for 8, while Purroll's deuce was Boyne Falls' only count. With a margin of 14 and 6 to start the final session, Ellsworth piled up three goals and a pair of free ones, held Boyne Falls scoreless and coasted through to an easy victory.

Elzinga, Ellsworth center, was outstanding. He scored 13 of his team's points. Westover, Williams and Purroll each made two for the losers.

Ellsworth Holds Lead
Ellsworth and Alba opened the final Saturday evening play before a crowd which packed every available bit of space in the large gymnasium. As in their previous encounter against Boyne Falls, the yellow clad Ellsworth team jumped right out into the lead in the early moments of play, and from then on never relinquished their advantage. Elzinga, their lanky center, who was one of the Tournament's outstanding Class D players, found the meshes twice in the first quarter with goals to give his team a 4 to 2 lead at the intermission. Alba scored on free tosses by Strickland and Peterson. A goal and free one by Rood in the second stanza was one point better and Anderson's goal for Alba, and at the half Ellsworth led 7 to 4. Elzinga and VanderArk connected with goals in the third to advance the winner's total to 11, while Alba counted on Hysell's goal and Stark's free one. The final period was hard-fought. Ellsworth was held to no count, but their early margin was sufficient to overcome Hysell's lone goal.

Elzinga led Ellsworth with 6 and Hysell for Alba with 4.

The Men on the Dead Man's Chest

FROM THE BEGINNING

During a "holdup" at the Dutch Mill, Chicago night club, a patron, Dunn Clayton, is killed. Lieutenant of Police Stanton questions a club visitor, "Buck Trembly." In Clayton's pocket Stanton found a note signed "Maise," making an appointment with the dead man at the Dutch Mill. Stanton is inclined to suspect Trembly of the murder. At a Wisconsin winter camp a boisterous crowd includes Preston Brown. An apparent stranger arrives. Later, two men, driving, come on the scene. The stranger leaves in his car, and the two men follow, passing him. A vial is out, and one of the two men removes the danger signals. The stranger, in his car, goes over the embankment. He is dead when found. Brown is dead. In his papers Clayton's name is found and Stanton connects the death. He goes to Wisconsin, and finds the dead man is Trembly. Trembly had caused Brown's death, apparently an accident. A Vermont lawyer, John Whittlesex, reading of the case, recalls the names in connection with an odd will made by a man named Turner, bequeathing the interest on $4,000,000 to six men: Blair, Ashley, Roberts, Brown, Trembly, and Clayton. The income, at the death of each beneficiary, is to be divided among the rest. Turner's son, on the death of the six beneficiaries, is to inherit all. Turner dies shortly after making the will. Whittlesex suspects foul play in the three deaths, and writes to the Chicago police. Stanton interviews Ass. Darling, one of the executors of the will. Darling tells him he believes Turner wanted and expected the six beneficiaries of the will to kill one another, they having in the past injured him. "The will is his method of revenge," Turner's son is contented and happy with his small income. Roberts, one of the three survivors of the six cared for by Turner's will, visits Darling. He reveals the fact that Blair and Ashley, supposed to be abroad, are in this country. Ashley and Blair arrive at Mr. Darling's abode. They manifest uneasiness at their friends' deaths.

"Ashley and I are ready to put our cards on the table," Blair continued, ignoring his companion's remark. "Give the money to the boy. None of us want it this way. Now, Mr. Darling, here's the three of us. Let's come to an understanding."

"Sit down, gentlemen," said Mr. Darling. "Take chairs wherever you like. What kind of an understanding have you in mind?"

"I, for one," said Blair, "would like relief from the general public assumption that we are assassins."

"But," said Mr. Darling, "if you don't assassinate anyone you won't be assassins. That's odd, but it's true."

Only Ashley had sat down. Roberts stood on the hearth-rug fingering his chain. Blair did short nervous turns. Stanton noted how large he was physically. He was a man whose muscularity may be draped by clothing but is not concealed. It seemed to bulge through and it seemed to be driven by a quick and nervous vitality.

"What public attention are you getting, Mr. Blair?" Stanton asked.

"These murders," said Blair with a sharp turn to face the lieutenant. "The will. Our association with it."

"You mentioned a desire to surrender your interest in the estate," said Mr. Darling.

"It may be the ethical thing to do."

"Be a little bit yourself," said Ashley. "Give up your right eye! Turner gave me my interest. He was the judge. I'm not yellow. I'll keep mine. I think I'll presently have the whole thing."

Blair confronted him with a sharp turn.

"Yes," said Ashley coolly. "You're giving your share up, and Iton looks as if he'd die of heart disease within a month. Things I haven't done and do not intend to do can't wrong me."

Lieutenant Stanton arose from his chair, walked about the room for a moment, looked out of a window into the October garden and then without being observed stepped into the hall.

"Mr. Blair," said Darling, "are you serious in suggesting that you wish to surrender your equity?"

"Excuse my laughter, Mr. Darling," said Ashley. "Don't permit yourself to be kidded."

"We have explained to Mr. Roberts," said Mr. Darling, "that a renunciation would have no effect in one respect. It would not make the death of that beneficiary less profitable to the survivors. I seem to state that indelicately, but such is the fact. On the other hand," Mr. Darling slightly shifted his posture in illustration, "such renunciation would be effective in removing the person from any suspicion of purposeful gain in the death of any of his associates."

The lieutenant came back into the room.

"Why don't you gentlemen keep continents between you if you wish to avoid suspicion, or one another?" he asked.

"Who will stay put?" Roberts asked. "You are just as dead in Bombay as you are in Chicago."

"I'm at a loss to explain your calls on me," said Mr. Darling. "You present nothing I can do."

"I think the gentlemen are merely uncertain," said Stanton, "and nervous under suspicion."

"Who says we're under suspicion?" Blair asked, whirling around.

"I believe you did," Stanton replied. Pompey came in then with a tray of glasses. They were water glasses filled with Pomard. He bent toward the seated Ashley, who took a glass.

"A break," said Ashley, "and an unexpected drink, even of wine. Good luck, Ron, and you, too, Blair."

Pompey served Blair and Roberts, then Stanton, and then Mr. Darling, who, when he saw the Burgundy offered him in a water glass, exclaimed: "Pompey!"

Stanton had stationed himself close to his host.

"Please, Mr. Darling," he said, "what do we care what we get our wine in? Here's luck, good fellowship and better times under the Turner will!"

Roberts, Ashley and Blair raised their glasses in salute and drank the wine. Pompey gathered the tumblers back again on his tray which he placed on the library table near Blair. Stanton slipped slowly. Mr. Darling looked at his wine and then at Pompey who with an apparently uneasy conscience came and took the glass from his hand. Mr. Darling looked at him as if he must find some explanation in his face for such inexplicable behavior.

"I'd like to join my guests, Pompey," he said, "but what a strange manner. I can't account for it."

Pompey's uneasiness was mute, but his glance flicked an instant toward the lieutenant. Mr. Darling perceived something and motioned for the return of his glass of wine.

"Gentlemen," said Stanton, "you know I am a copper. I'm not a detective. I never could be one, but my bad breaks in the police business occasionally put me in the position you see me in. I suppose you are interested in what has happened. That, I suppose, is why you have called on Mr. Darling. There's not much to complain of the newspaper accuracy. Clayton was shot in the Dutch Mill by or for Buck Trembly. I think by Trembly. At least that's my guess. Do any of you know a lady named Maise?"

The three men glanced at one another.

"Maise," said Ashley. "Lieutenant, don't you know who Maise is?" He laughed a mirthful chuckle. "Maise is, or was, Mrs. Arthur Trembly. A nice girl."

"Did I say I was no detective? I think I mentioned it. That's quite wonderful, and I never even guessed. Well, gentlemen, getting on, let me explain that there was an unusual circumstance attending the death of Trembly when he ran off the road. You'd hardly expect it of the local constabulary. You just couldn't expect it. But the lanterns were examined for finger-prints. It's all unbelievable. These lanterns are next to impossible for prints. You pick them up by the handles, but it's the strange fact that two of them had been handled at the base. They were oily and dusty and consequently the prints were excellent."

Roberts on the hearth-rug, Ashley in his chair and Blair nervously pivoting on his heels or toes, looked at the lieutenant with suspense for his next words.

"That won't interest you much, if at all," the lieutenant continued, "although of course it has interested me. A little while ago I went out and found Pompey in his pantry. He has offended Mr. Darling by serving wine in these glasses. I asked him to do so. I asked him to take glasses which had been unused for a very long time; if he had any which might convict him of bad housekeeping to use them and to ladle them with a fish knife or some such thing on a tray without touching them. Then to fill them and bring them in."

"You see, gentlemen, if Pompey has done as I think he has these glasses contain our finger-prints. Of course they could have been obtained otherwise, but here they are."

Lieutenant Stanton pointed to the tray on the table which had the three glasses from which Blair, Ashley and Roberts had drunk.

Blair picked up two books from the table, one in each hand, and smashed the three glasses.

"There's your cheap trick," he cried. "You cheap dick! Nobody cares for finger-prints, but your legs are sour." The lieutenant looked at him, smiling.

"I told you I was not a detective," he said, "but I should tell you that no finger-prints were found on the lanterns. No one would have looked for them, and they wouldn't have been there if they had looked."

Blair stepped toward him menacingly. "Then why did you produce this comedy?" he asked.

"Quiet yourself, Mr. Blair," said Stanton. "Your face contains a veridical of justifiable homicide for any John Law who would bump you off at this moment. The comedy was to see what false starts one or all of you would make. I've told you I was a copper and not a detective. I quite astonished myself by doing this finger-print trick. I'm a great guesser, Mr. Blair. My guess is that you took the lights away. It's probably unreasonable to ask you how you knew that Buck Trembly was at Little Butte des Morts."

"Are you accusing me, you cheap copper?"

"Easy, Mr. Blair. I'll take advantage of that expression of yours and construe it as resisting an officer. Mr. Darling is fairly primed for some thing more authentically western? How did you know Buck was there, Acton? You won't mind my calling you Acton? I was calling Arthur Trembly, Buck, a half-hour after he shot Dunn Clayton or had him shot."

"I haven't any time to waste with you," said Blair.

"You're not wasting it, Acton, if you are as intelligent as I think you are. You're learning that I do not think that just now it would be worth a d-n to hold you on charges and extradite you back to Wisconsin. My guess would be that no one near Little Butte des Morts or along your route could identify you, although my guess is that you knew just what Buck was doing with Brown. I think you had intended to crowd him off the road and wreck him or shoot him as he made his own getaway from the lodge."

"Hologm," said Blair contemptuously.

"Isn't it? Then you saw the bridge and an idea occurred to you. You chanced it as worth while, and it worked. But how did you know where

Surely Easy for Jury to Believe One Story

Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway at a dinner in Little Rock laughed about the manifold defenses set up by a politician who had gone back on the farmer.

"All these defenses," Senator Caraway said, "remind me of Lawyer Isaacs and the hog-stealing case. To defend this case wasn't easy, for the fool who was accused of stealing the hog had told a dozen different stories about the way the hog came into his possession, and of course, the other side showed that this was a very suspicious action on his part."

"Isaacs, a funny little chap, wound up his speech for the defense with the words:

"Gentlemen of the Jury, it has been proved that my unfortunate client has told no less than 11 stories to account for his possession of the hog. The hog followed him home, a policeman sneaked it into his hog pen as a framp, he bought it for $10.75, it was given him by his deceased uncle, he found it on the high road, and so forth and so on."

"Now, gentlemen of the Jury, I don't ask you to believe all these stories, plausible as they are. No, that would be too great a tax on your credulity. But I do ask you to believe one of them. One, just one, gentlemen—anyone you choose—believe just one out of the eleven, and I am positive my unfortunate client will be acquitted."—Springfield Union.

Early Pugilism

Pugilistic practice or sport of fighting with the fists is first mentioned in literature in the twenty-third book of the "Iliad"; another full description is in Vergil's "Aeneid." Although fist-fighting was supposed by the Greeks of the classic period to have been a feature of the mythological games at Olympia, it was not actually introduced into the Twenty-third Olympiad, after the re-establishment of the famous games in Iphitos, about 880 B. C. Onomastus was the first Olympic victor.

No Pleasure to Meet Him

"I don't mind meetin' a man that thinks well of hisself," said Uncle Eben. "What I don't like is to meet one that tries to make me think he's a picture card when he knows as well as anybody dat he's only a deuce."—Washington Star.

Buck had gone? Do you know, Acton, my mind goes back to the Dutch Mill in Chicago. Dunn Clayton has a note from Maise. He is waiting for her when who comes in and sits near by? Her husband, Buck Trembly. Interesting, wasn't it? I'm afraid we'll never know anything completely satisfactory about this until we find Maise. Do you know what I guess, Acton?"

"No," said Blair, "and I don't give a d-n. Come on, Ashley, get your coat. Sorry we bothered you, Mr. Darling, but it's this fellow's fault. We couldn't anticipate this scene in your house."

"No, indeed," said Mr. Darling. "Indeed, who could? But don't apologize. I've been interested."

Ashley arose, smiling, and went to shake hands with Mr. Darling.

"It has been interesting," he said, "and I enjoyed the wine. I thought I'd have to wait until I was back in France for anything like it. Sorry Acton is so impulsive and breaks glasses."

The two men walked toward the door.

"Wait a minute," Roberts cried, starting toward Stanton. "Are you letting that man go? Why aren't you holding him? Haven't you just charged him with murder?"

"What the h—!" Blair exclaimed, turning around. "Why, you miserable little louse!"

Roberts edged behind Stanton.

"Lock him up. It's the only protection I'll have," he cried. "Lock him up. He killed Buck. He'll kill me."

Ashley broke into a laugh, and Blair slowly began to smile.

"You're amusing, Ron," said Ashley. "Better watch yourself or you'll have a delirium."

"I don't believe I'll lock you up now, mister," said Stanton, "but keep in touch with us, won't you? Don't go anywhere without letting us know. I'll have a local Dogberry go to the city with you, and then headquarters will be attentive to you."

Blair stared at him and turned toward the door.

"Oh, and another thing, Acton," the lieutenant remarked. "I didn't tell you my last guess. It's that Maise sent you to Little Butte des Morts."

[Acton Blair seems to have been born at the age of thirty. No one who knew him ever had got into an earlier period. He may have been a seafaring man, although the attesting on his forearms need or need not indicate that. Presumably he was American born, but again no one knows. His education had been mostly that of experience, a university he appears to have entered at thirty without previous existence. It may be that an uncharged murderer disappeared about that time.]

Howard Ashley was the son of a New Haven (Conn.) physician. He was not graduated from Yale, being expelled in his junior year for conduct unbecoming an undergraduate. It may have been cheating in examinations, cutting chapel or being indifferent to holding them, Yale. This last is plausible. He was perfect for the show in strength, weight, rhythm and stamina, but did not try for it. It would be irrational to graduate such a man.]

"Mister," said the lieutenant to Roberts when the door had been closed on Blair and Ashley, departing, "that last remark of yours was an inspiration."

"I know it was none. H—!" I didn't seem able to hold myself. You produced Trembly's murderer here in the room, and then you let him walk out of the door. I know that pair. They'd smile at you and crack you out. You see who's next, don't you? He's here now with you. Mr. Darling, do you mind if I take a drink? I'm needing one. I have a flask."

"Let me continue to be your host," said Mr. Darling. "Pompey will bring you and Lieutenant Stanton some Scotch. And I'll have some wine, if you please, Pompey. Don't raise the point that I already have had some. You may get another log or two on the fire. I feel a bit of excitement myself, but I'm reprobate enough to find it pleasurable."

Early dusk had begun to dim the day, and the freight was ruddier in the room. Roberts drank his whiskey straight and, with a look of request and apology at Mr. Darling, poured himself a second.

"I think we've disturbed Mr. Darling enough for the day," said the lieutenant.

"No disturbance, none whatever," said the old gentleman.

"I doubt that Pompey agrees with you. We'll get along."

"I might be told first," Mr. Roberts expects to do, not that it is properly my concern other than to see that he receives his December check."

"I don't know what to do," said Roberts. "You can see my chances. It won't help if I decline to receive any more checks. I'm to be put out of the way unless I can protect myself. By G—d, I'll have them taken for a ride. There are a hundred men in New York who would do it for a thousand dollars. They'd do it for a hundred, for ten."

"I don't announce it in advance," said Stanton, "and particularly not to a police officer."

"You know why I've got to. You know it's self-defense. You know he's already murdered a man. You know they're killing us off."

Look to Purity of Farm Water Supply

Two Methods Given Sanction by Authority.

A pure water supply on the farm helps in insuring protection from typhoid and other diseases, believes Virgil Overholt, extension specialist in agricultural engineering at the Ohio State university.

The ideal well, he says, should be located about 300 feet from sources of pollution such as leaching privies, open-jointed sewers, and open bottom cesspools. Otherwise the water supply of the farm home is very likely to be a menace to health.

All wells are best made with a water-tight wall extending to at least 25 feet below the ground surface, and should be provided with a sloping concrete well slab so as to divert the surface drainage. It is a good idea to connect the pump to the well slab in a way that will exclude the entrance of waste water. Another precaution is to install a self-priming pump with the base cast solid on pump stock or standard. This makes it unnecessary to prime with water of questionable purity.

Although springs are commonly thought to be a source of pure water, in reality they often are polluted, according to Overholt. In springs the water must come clear to the surface through natural channels. This makes surface contamination easy. Great care is required in developing a spring so as to exclude surface water and to prevent the entrance of such animals as salamanders and crawfish.

Grass Beef Considered Inferior to Grain-Fed

Beef formed on grass is, on the average, considered to be less desirable than the beef from grain-fed cattle. It is usually darker colored, the fat is normally yellow, and the carcass shows greater shrink from slaughter up to time of consumption. Because of the greater exercise the animals have to take during their period of fattening their muscles are, on the average, tougher. On the other hand, the flavor of grass beef usually ranks high and in some of the special investigations on quality and palatability of meat co-operatively conducted by the Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges, unusually fine results with regard to flavor, quality, texture, flesh color and fat color have been secured. Nevertheless, it is the common opinion of the trade that grass beef is inferior to grain-fed beef, and the outlets for grass beef are diminishing annually.

Potato Acreage Cut

Reports received by the Department of Agriculture from commercial growers of southern early and of intermediate crop potatoes show a greater degree of uncertainty concerning plans for the approaching season's plantings than has prevailed for several years past. Although expenses will average lower on many important items entering into the cost of producing potatoes, credit is restricted and the difficulty of securing the usual financing to grow a crop is reflected in a majority of the reports.

For 18 states growing a commercial early or intermediate crop, the reported January 1 plans indicate a prospective planting of 256,030 acres, which would be about 23 per cent less than the 1931 acreage and slightly below the reduced acreage of 1929. The intermediate states, as a group, report plans for a slightly increased acreage.

Money in Cowpeas

One crop of potatoes following cowpeas was worth a crop of potatoes and a cotton crop in addition to C. A. Stanford, Cameron county, Texas. Mr. Stanford had 12 acres in potatoes. Six acres had been in cowpeas the year before and the peas had been plowed down. From this field he got 770 sacks of potatoes, worth $2,507.50.

The other six acres were in cotton the previous year. It made 507 sacks and brought $1,632. The cotton crop brought $300. The cowpeas seed cost $30 so the six acres of potatoes that followed cowpeas were worth $345.50 more than the potato crop and the cotton which preceded it on the other six acres. Potatoes on land that had been in peas brought $145.91 an acre more than those that followed cotton.

Farm Hints

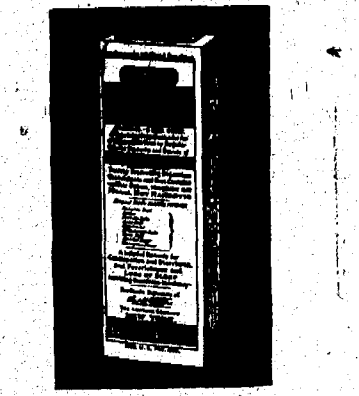

The problem of neglected orchards is really a community problem, for such an orchard is a breeding ground for pests which infest other orchards in the vicinity.

In the past six years 784 pure-bred rams have been distributed at 24 sales conducted by co-operative sheep and wool producers' associations in Pennsylvania.

Town in 1931 produced about 4,675,000 bushels of potatoes—125,000 bushels more in 1930.

The Colorado station finds that moderate weathering may cause loss of 50 to 80 per cent of the vitamin content of alfalfa hay.

Twenty principal crops in Illinois yielded a return of $100,000,000 in 1931, according to A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician. This is a decrease of $70,000,000, or about 29 per cent from the value of 1930 crops.

Odd Traffic Directing

High up in the signal control tower at the Detroit municipal airport a man stands as planes come in, directing traffic with a barrel-shaped object 18 inches long and 8 inches in diameter. It is fitted with pistol grips and triggers. As the planes hover in close the man can be seen pointing the "weapon" at them. It is an aerial traffic light which is visible only to the plane at which it is pointed. When the red light shines the pilot must circle some more, but when he spots the green the field is clear for him to bring his plane down.

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 217 Cudwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her. Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Haul for Firemen

Every time the San Francisco firemen go out on a fire they come home with a haulful of trout. Fire Chief Brennan says the fish come through the fire mains, sometimes clogging up the lines. The trouble is caused by trout spawn slipping through screens over the intake to the fire hydrant mains and later growing up to be good-sized fish.

Mothers... Watch Children's COLDS

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance—at the first sniffle rub on Children's Muterole once every hour for five hours.

Children's Muterole is just good old Muterole, you have known so long, in milder form.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Muterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain.

Waist-Length Jackets in Fashion

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A JACKET, and a jacket and a jacket with a few extra jackets just to have a variety is fashion's decree for spring and summer. One really must have a whole wardrobe of cunning little jackets if one lives up to the code of smart dress prescribed for the coming months.

And what a decorative role these versatile jackets are playing. They are everything that is fascinating both as to color and the materials of which they are made. Brief affairs are they, the newest models favoring waist-length.

Fitted eton jackets for daytime wear appear in quantities. They stop above the waistline and smartly contrast the skirt. Other of these little jackets have quite a military bearing, as they are broad at the shoulders and frequently have a double-breast fastening with brass or nickel buttons. Stunning costumes for sports and town wear developed in intriguing novelty lightweight woolsens in gay colors (red, white and blue being in high favor, the world of fashion having gone colonial this season) flaunt these youthful waist-length jackets.

Whether for daytime, afternoon or evening a jacket of some sort is now considered an indispensable part of the costume. At afternoon bridge, for dinner, for the theater and other formal occasions jackets take on a versatile and decorative mood which imparts an enlivening touch to the style picture.

There is nothing stereotyped about the clever jackets which are topping the new spring afternoon and evening frocks. Some of them are of simplest construction, with trowing or bell sleeves and open front similar to the style portrayed in the little center panel above. Whatever this simpler type jacket may lack in intricate detail is offset by its fetching color.

PARIS CATERS TO LOVE OF UNIFORM

Women like uniforms, proverbially, and now they may have military touches in their own clothes, as evidenced by Worth's spring styles.

Chevrons, braids and frogs have been added to the already popular epaulet mode. Metal buttons and chain trims carry the effect still further.

Lines of the spring clothes match the new trimmings, for broader shoulders are correctly military, and the slimmer skirts give the proper fitted-in appearance to the lower part of the figure.

Evening skirts are narrow, as with the daytime frocks, and some are designed with slashed sides. Worth uses some trains, and continues to show the ruffled skirts.

Short evening coats have very wide sleeves, embroidered in-angora wool. For day wear, there are many bolero short jacket suits, some with contrasting jackets.

Light-Weight Wool Is Favored for Blouses

Light-weight wool, such as shantung, is much in favor with the Paris house of Worth for blouses. White is usually the color with buttons that harmonize or contrast with the suit color.

For example, one of Worth's white wool blouses has green buttons to go with a green suit; another has black or dark blue buttons to accompany dark suits; a third has red buttons designed to be worn with a black or brown suit.

Two-in-One Coats

Some coat manufacturers are making spring coats with heavy interlinings. They are being shown for immediate wear, and when the weather moderates the linings may be taken out and the coats worn for spring—two coats for the price of one.

Made of sheerest ice-green transparent velvet as it is, and posed over a formal dance pajama costume of pale yellow chiffon, the color scheme is perfect. As a little summer wrap to slip over lingerie frocks, a jacket of this type will prove a delight the season through.

The black velvet jacquette to the left declares a greater formality. Its fitted-at-the-waistline silhouette is very new and chic. At the front it ties in a soft knot and two ends. It is worn over a white crepe dress which has a bow tied at the neck, left hanging outside the wrap, which lends to the back a graceful note. White fox fur on the loose sleeves completes this symphony in black and white.

All sorts of intriguing details enter into the designing of the myriads of petite velvet jackets which are so outstanding in the mode, such as for instance, voluminous puff sleeves, ornamental buttons, an abundance of shirring with a plentiful use of decorative bows.

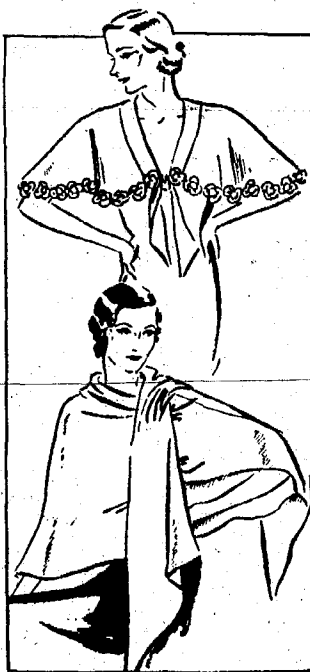

Notwithstanding the allurements of the little waist-length velvet jackets, there is a rival in the field—the bolero or eton made of allover lace. These little lace fantasies are in loveliest tones and tints, which add greatly to their charm. The model pictured is the pale blue venise lace. It is significant that the crepe yoke of the black crepe gown is in the same shade of blue. This color alliance of bodice-top or yoke and the little jacket which tops it is a new move which is accentuated throughout the costume design.

It is expected that the lace jacquette will be a leading item for summer as well as during the spring months, not only in contrasting colors which will lend a gay note to frocks of monotone crepes, but to all types of sheer and dainty dresses.

NOVEL WRAPS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A pleasing venture in fashion's activities is the creating of novel little capes and scarfs of colorful sheer velvet. These cunning fantasies are all that fancy dare picture both as to color and unique design. The winsome cape sketched at the top is made of transparent velvet with self-fabric tiny roses completely bordering it. Another new and voguish type of wrap done in high-key colors of turquoise, coral and green or in any of the delectable pastels is the circular scarf with long pointed ends which are thrown gracefully around the shoulder. They are very lovely worn with prints, or triple sheer or satin gowns.

DAIRY NEURALGIA

SHOW WHY IT PAYS TO KEEP RECORDS

Consensus of Opinion From New York Dairymen.

Nearly two-thirds of the 800 dairy record club members in 20 central New York counties report that they have 1,992 cows and that they have culled 161 poor milkers from their herds. Many say that they are waiting until the herd has completed a year's records before culling in earnest.

Five dairymen admit that they own scrub bulls. 16 have grades, and 109 have purebred sires; 85 of the sires are registered. The average age of the bulls is about two years and two months. Forty-seven dairymen expect to buy a herd sire within a year and 50 wish information about better bulls.

The dairymen report 831 heifers more than a year old and 470 calves being raised. Only 15 expect to have calves for sale but 66 are interested in buying good calves.

About 170 dairymen say record keeping has helped them to feed cows according to the amount of milk and test; 87 say records help in selling surplus stock; and about 150 say records help in choosing calves to raise. In using low-test milk for feeding calves, and in encouraging better care and management.

Ventilation of Stable Matter of Importance

A cow breathes out about 5 1/2 quarts of water each 24 hours, and a herd of 20 cows would breathe out 110 quarts, or 27 1/2 gallons of water in 24 hours, according to Prof. A. M. Goodman of the agricultural engineering department at Cornell University.

Where most of the stock is kept, and where the walls are well insulated, the heat from the animals keeps the stable walls and ceiling warm and no moisture condenses. However, in that part of the stable where little animal heat is given off, as in box stalls and calf pens, or where heat escapes readily, as through bare mow floors or single boarded or concrete walls, the air is chilled and deposits its moisture.

One cause for unnecessary moisture is open hay chutes. The warm, moist, light air rises up these chutes and if the loft siding is tight, this air condenses on the siding and on the under side of the roof.

What is the effect of all this moisture? It causes soggy, mouldy, decaying timbers, warped ceiling and siding, swollen and sticking doors and window sash, and a miserable place in which to work and keep live stock. The condition of these damp, unhealthy stables can be entirely corrected by proper ventilation.—Michigan Farmer.

In 100 Pounds of Milk

One hundred pounds of 4 per cent milk will make 46.5 quarts of market milk, or 45 14-ounce cans of sweetened condensed milk, or 45 16-ounce cans of evaporated milk, or 12.5 pounds of whole milk powder. It will make 4.8 pounds of butter, leaving 80 pounds of skim milk and 15 pounds of buttermilk. These latter by-products may be converted into 12 pounds of cottage cheese, or 2.7 pounds casein, or 6.8 pounds skim milk powder.

One hundred pounds of whole milk will also produce 11.5 pounds Camembert cheese, or 11 pounds of Cheddar cheese, or 8.5 pounds of Swiss cheese and .6 pounds of whey butter, together with 88 pounds of whey.—J. H. Frandsen, Massachusetts State College.

Sugar Beets in Ration

Sugar beets when sliced, as is done with other root crops, make a most excellent feed for dairy cows when fed to supplement hay and grain. They have a "cooling" effect on the digestive organs and consequently help to prevent digestive troubles when cows are being fed a high concentrate ration. If fed in too large quantities, some scouring may result due to the high sugar content of the sugar beets. If fed at the rate of 35 or 40 pounds a day, no ill results will occur. It is not necessary to cook them.

We have fed large quantities of sugar beets and no sore mouths have resulted.—E. V. Ellington, W. S. C., in the Idaho Farmer.

DAIRY FACTS

Jerseys and Guernseys mature somewhat earlier than do Holsteins, Ayrshires and Brown Swiss. The best age for heifers to have their first calves is from twenty-four to thirty months.

Granted that it costs more to raise a cow than to buy one. The additional cost may be cheap insurance against the introduction of disease into the herd.

In September, 1931, 100 pounds of butterfat would buy more pounds of corn, oats or bran than at any other time since 1921, says W. L. Cavert, extension economist, Minnesota University farm. At the same time, 100 pounds of butterfat would buy more oilmeal than for a longer period.

Fight those colds!

When winter begins to break up, wet weather brings on a flood of annoying colds. Men and women often lose fitness during such seasonal changes. It's an ideal time to take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil every day. Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "tonic!"

Every child's stomach, liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those bilious days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.

LATIN I

The Freshman class has begun the study of third declensions.

GOING SOME

Congratulate Elvera. A speed of forty words a minute was made by Elvera Skrocki last week. A pin will be awarded her for this speed record. Who will be the next to get a pin?

MANUEL TRAINING

The ferneries that are being made by Arthur Quinn, Archie Ward, and Bill Swoboda are about finished. Mr. Maynard has asked that a donation be made of bulbs, flowers, etc., for the ferneries. Bill has asked that his donation be made of tulips. Einer Olstrom has decided to make a costume or a hall tree for his term project.

SENIOR CLASS

The sample announcements have arrived and a committee has been picked to choose the announcement for the class.

Vegetable Hints by Home Ec. 10
 Have you ever tried cream and sugar served with ripe tomatoes?

Try this one on the family, squash blossoms or elderberry blossom dipped in egg and milk mixture and fried in butter.

Rutabaga-Mashed Potato Dish—Remove leaves from rutabagas and wash remaining stems, cut in half inch pieces, boil these in small amount of salt water until tender, season with pepper and butter and combine with two parts of mashed potatoes.

AMERICAN HISTORY

Mr. Duncanson and his students are now taking up the effects of the World War, the peace treaty, the Armistice, and Wilson, the great peace maker.

The class is taking much interest in the case of the Lindbergh baby and is thinking strongly of sending out the class detective, Carl Sutton to get back the Lindbergh baby. I think he would make a success, don't you?

The class will soon be taking up Civics for they are about through the History book.

ENGLISH III

The class has finished reading the story of Henry V and is at present just adding the finishing touches, the synopsis of the story as a whole.

In the Scholastic, the class found the story "Wild Geese" and it's author, Charles Caldwell Dobie, a very interesting subject to discuss. Mr. Dobie you know is one of the most brilliant of the new short story writers.

GRADES

Fourth Grade—The project in the fourth grade this month is "Holland and the Dutch People."

The following pupils had A in Arithmetic: Genevieve Ellis, Billy Dolezel, Eldeva Woodcock. A-Betty Jean Campbell, Keith Rogers, Paula Earl, John Seiler, Francis Earl.

Fifth Grade—We are now studying about Holland and are planning to make a sand-table representing a Holland Village. We are reading the book about Kit and Kate, the Dutch Twins. It is very interesting and shows us the way Holland people live.

We gave our book reports last week. Some were very interesting, such as Erudy, The Five Little Peppers, and Sophie, the story of a bad little girl.

Marie Essenberg entered our room today.

In Geography we are studying the New England States.

Sixth Grade, Section II—Our February honor roll includes these names, Shirley Bulow, Helen Burbank, Betty Cook, Faith Gidley, Artie Houtman, Beatrice Justice, Alta Mathers, Walter Shepard, Jean Stroebel and LaVera Trumppour.

Our perfect attendance honor roll was rather badly demolished by measles and mumps, but the following people were neither absent nor tardy: Shirley Bulow, Helen Burbank, Ruth Galmore, Eugene Gregory, Albert Jackson, Alta Mathers, Arnold Moore, Buddy Porter, and Lyle Weaver.

Our 100% spelling list this week includes Shirley Bulow, Helen Burbank, Faith Gidley, Artie Houtman, Beatrice Justice, Alta Mathers, Helen Reed, Walter Shepard, and LaVera Trumppour. Ten other people had A averages.

We changed our customary routine last week and had a history spell down. LaVera Trumppour took honors for spelling down the entire class.

THE CAUSE OF THE DEPRESSION

To His Home Paper, a Man in West Tennessee Writes.

Holler Rock Junction, Tenn.
 Dear Mr. Editor:

There seems to be so much talk about our so-called Republican prosperity, I believe its my duty to write my views on the same, and help analyze the situation as far as possible, so's we can make up our minds we had auto change our ways of living and so forth.

I have taken my own case for instance. I see my mistakes and many others have acted likewise. I bought a Ford instead of a farm and it is worn out, but the farm I figured on is still O. K. I invested in a radio instead of a cow, and the radio gives static instead of milk.

I am feeding five nice hounds which answer to the names of Red, Red Wing, Slobber, Jake and Bayrum, instead of five pigs. I had our piano tuned instead of the well cleaned out. I spent all my cash in 1928 and used my credit in 1929 and traded up my future wages on installments in 1930, so hard times caught me in bad shape last fall.

If I had spent my last ten dollars for flour and meat instead of gas and oil I would have been O. K. I built a nice garage last year instead of covering my barn, and I loafed in a mountain two weeks instead of being in the pasture fixing it so's my cows won't get out, but she is dry and mortgaged to boot for two blankets my wife bought from an agent instead of paying the preacher.

I'm on a cash basis now but ain't got no cash. I am tied to the end of my rope and the man I'm working for is busted on account of nobody wouldn't pay him and his cotton won't sell cause nobody won't buy no cotton clothes; all the gals wear slick, silky underwear right here in our cotton patches. I had $4 saved up for a rainy day; it turned dry and I spent the $4 for two inner tubes.

I tried hard to make both ends meet with a turnip patch but when I got turnips ready to sell, everybody was selling turnips for nothing, and the market was glutted. I'm worried plum to the bone and my wife's kin folks are coming over next Tuesday to spend two weeks.

Write or phone if you hear of any relief from the government coming down my way, and I'm willing to be either a Democrat or a Republican for a few weeks if that will help out any. Mike Clark, R. F. D.—Taken from Central Lake Torch.

FEDERAL SEED LOANS
 This year, as last the Federal Government will make emergency loans to farmers for the purchase of feeds for livestock, seeds, fertilizers, spray materials and gas and oil for tractors.

The following are the most important considerations to determine eligibility of a farmer in securing a loan:

1. He is without the means or is unable to obtain a loan from other sources for crops production purposes.
2. He operated a farm in 1931.
3. He has no means of livelihood other than farming.
4. He will agree to use seed and methods approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.
5. He will agree to plant a garden for home use and a sufficient acreage of feed crops to supply feed for his live stock.

Seed Loans will be made upon the promissory note of the borrower, to be payable on or before November 30, 1932, to bear interest at the rate of 5 1/2% per annum, and to be secured by a first mortgage or lien upon all the crops to be planted.

The amount to be loaned to one farmer will depend upon the size of his farm and the nature of the crops to be planted, but in no case to exceed $400.00.

HOW TO SECURE A LOAN—Application for loans must be made to the Advisory Loan Committee to be established in each county on forms to be supplied by the Department of Agriculture.

As all applications must be made to the County Advisory Loan Committee, no blanks will be sent to individuals from Washington or the regional seed loan offices.

The right is reserved to the Secretary of Agriculture to lower the loan rate per acre, to make payment of the loan in installments, to amend or supplement the regulations for loans, or to withdraw the regulations at any time without notice.

OX WARBLERS
 A Practical Plan of Eradication Since Ox Warblers are readily controlled, when proper measures are adopted, all dairymen should make a real effort to clean up this pest. If every farmer owning cattle would treat and kill every warble for just one season, this Warble expense and loss would be practically eliminated. The Warble is very easy to find and it always appears at a definite time—in the latitude of Michigan from March to July.

It is easy to apply Gusanol during this period and it has been shown that the application of Gusanol is much better than extraction, which latter has often quite a serious effect upon the animal. Considerable work has been done by Government and State authorities, not to mention our own experimental work; and Gusanol has been established as a very effective product, and since its simple application destroys practically every warble it touches, it is the real solution of this costly problem.

What is Gusanol?
 Gusanol is a thoroughly tested and proven ointment for killing warbles, bots and also screwworms. It is safe and easy to use, does not injure the animal tissue, but actually aids healing and hastens the return to normal condition.

Gusanol can be used regularly because animals submit willingly to its use—and it overcomes completely the dangerous effect of extracting warbles or grubs.

Gusanol, apart from killing the warbles, actually expels the mature specimens from the skin, whilst the immature or smaller warbles are very soon absorbed, following treatment, leaving no trace of their presence.

The simple application of Gusanol is from 98 to 100% effective in one application. By treating at intervals of 30 days, each warble is exposed to a second treatment if it is not killed by the first, thus assuring complete eradication if the following plan is adopted.

Mode of Application

Gusanol is easily and rapidly applied in the following manner. First the back of the animal to be treated should be gone over in order to determine the relative position of the grubs. This is easily done by running the fingers through the hair and feeling for the small openings and swellings. The animal should also be carefully examined for grubs back of the hips, front of the shoulders and on the neck and head. Occasional grubs are to be found in these positions. All dairy animals over six months of age should be examined. After removing the lid or cap hold the can of Gusanol in the left hand. A small piece of Gusanol is then placed on the ball at the tip of the fore finger. Then feeling each hole or swelling, the scab covering the hole should be removed with the middle finger and the Gusanol on the fore finger pressed into the hole. In general the first treatment should be made not earlier than February 15 or later than March 1st in the latitude of Michigan. Subsequent treatments should be made at 30 day intervals until four or five treatments have been given or until no more grubs appear at the back.

When to Start Treatment

The exact time for starting treatments will vary in different localities and should be determined by the presence of the first grubs to reach the back. The first treatment should be made soon after the grubs cut holes through the skin on the back or the small swellings begin to show up. After establishing the proper time for the first treatment the later applications should be made at 30 day intervals.

In the farming and dairy sections systematic treatment as described above is fully warranted at the present time and the cost of treatments is indeed small compared with the benefits derived.

PROBATE ORDER

State of Michigan. The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix.

In the Matter of the Estate of Myrtle Grant, deceased.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix in said County, on the 23rd day of February, 1932.

Present: Ervan A. Rueggeger, Probate Judge.

The above estate having been admitted to probate and Robert Campbell having been appointed Administrator.

It is Ordered, That four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present their claims against said estate for examination and adjustment, and that all creditors of said deceased, are required to present their claims to said Court, at the Probate Office in the City of Charlevoix, on or before the 24th day of June, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time claims will be heard.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix County Herald, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

ERVAN A. RUEGSEGER,
 Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by Robert Evans and Antonia Evans, his wife, she contracting separately and in bar of dower, of the Township of South Arm, Charlevoix County, Michigan, to Mrs. Lena Martin, of South Arm Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, which said mortgage bears date the 11th day of April, 1929, and was recorded on the 4th day of May, 1929 in Liber sixty-two (62) of Mortgages, on Page one hundred fifty-seven (157), in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, and that said mortgage is past due, and there is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of four hundred sixty-two and 90-100 ($462.90) Dollars at the date of this notice, including principal, interest, taxes, and attorney fee as provided for by said mortgage; and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the moneys secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and of the statute in such case made and provided, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on Wednesday the 20th day of April, 1932, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, eastern standard time, at the east front door of the Court House in the City of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, the said Mrs. Lena Martin will sell at public auction to the highest bidder the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage and all legal costs and attorney fee.

The premises described in said mortgage are as follows, to-wit: "The northeast quarter (NE 1/4) of the northwest quarter (NW 1/4) of Section twenty-eight (28), township thirty-two (32) north, range seven (7) west, and containing forty (40) acres of land more or less according

It's got to be good to be ADVERTISED

All the king's horses—and all the king's men can't make a success out of a bad product. No amount of advertising will create a market for it. The more it's advertised, the more its defects become known.

But a good product well advertised grows as swiftly and naturally as a healthy plant. People try it and like it. They tell others. They like it. Soon that product is found everywhere—and its name, spread abroad by advertising, is on every tongue.

When you see something widely and consistently advertised, you can be pretty sure it's well worth having. If it weren't—if it didn't represent an honest and worthy value—the maker couldn't afford to advertise it.

Look over the advertisements in this paper. Some of these names you know. Others perhaps are new-comers, potential friends bringing some new comfort or convenience. But all are entitled to your trust—all are here because they have something real to contribute to your advantage—your service—your happiness.
