SOIL MEETINGS WELL ATTENDED

The discussions on the topics of barnyard manure and commercial fertilizers proved to be interesting to a large number of Charlevoix County farmers. For the first time, the real dollars and cents value of barnyard manure was given as well as the difference existing between the various forms of livestock. It was brought out that if a person were able to save the entire tonnage of barnyard manure on the average farm, it would take about $400 worth of purchased plant food to equal that in barnyard manure. From a dollars and cents viewpoint there is very little difference in the total value from the various kinds of livestock but there is quite a difference in the tonnage and the value per ton. From the actual plant food that it contains, pig manure is worth $1.30 per ton, cow $1.48, horse $2.04, sheep $3.06 and poultry $4.10. The biggest problem is to avoid losses occurring in manure and thus place more plant food in the soil. Generally speaking, the sooner a person is able to get the manure applied to his land and spread, the less losses will occur. On the average farm, out of this $400 of plant food produced annually, without a question, not over $100 actually is incorporated in our soils. The construction of a manure pit will pay for itself the first year in the saving of plant food that otherwise will be lost. It was also recommended that from 30 to 50 lbs. of super phosphate be added to each load of manure as it is taken to the field. This way the phosphate can be balanced and make a complete fertilizer, whereas, if manure is used alone is deficient in phosphate.

In regard to commercial fertilizers every farmer should buy a high analysis product instead of buying a low analysis fertilizer that contains quite some quantity of sand. In other words, in a 2-12-6 analysis, there is approximately 400 lbs. of sand used while in a 3-18-9 there is none. The higher the analysis, the less the loss per unit of plant food. One ton of 3-18-9 can be bought for $4.00 less than a ton and a half of 2-12-6 and is finer fertilizer to use on any particular crop that the average farmer might need it for. I would suggest that if a man did not wish to buy several different kinds that a 2-10-8 or a 3-18-9 would work in wonderfully for any crop. For the vegetable and truck man, some fertilizer similar to the 5-10-5 or 6-8-6 would possibly be best. Remember that your fertilizer dealer can help you considerably in suggesting the right analysis and the proper amount to apply and the most efficient manner of application.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation of the many acts of kindness extended by friends and neighbors during the illness and death of our daughter and sister. Also thank the people of the Church for their service, and the minister, Elder Allen Schurer, those who sent floral offerings and those who donated the service of their cars.

SCHEDULE OF DAIRY-CROPS TRUCK

Everything is in readiness for the visit of the Dairy-Crops Truck which makes its first appearance in Charlevoix County on March 29, 30, 31 and April 1. This truck comes as a result of the action taken by the Dairy delegates at their recent conference held in Boyne City and should attract considerable attention. This truck will carry exhibit material of several kinds and grades of roughage, grains and seeds. It is the purpose of this truck to bring to the county these crops and seeds that are known to be adapted to the farms of the county. There will also be a display of home-grown grain mixtures according to the quantity of roughage available for dairy cattle feeding.

Every dairyman who visits the truck will have a chance to have an individual conference with the dairy specialist of the Michigan State College and the county agricultural agent. These two men will prepare a statement of feed recommendations and the recommended varieties of seeds for seeding purposes. At the end of each meeting each individual farmer will see an outline which will inform him the number of acres of various crops to raise for the efficient production of milk.

Following is the schedule, all meetings on E. S. T.

Tuesday, Mar. 29, Ironton Grange at 9:30 a. m.
Tuesday, March 29, South Arm Grange Hall, 1:30 p. m.
Wednesday, March 30, Barnard Grange Hall, 9:30.
Wednesday, Mar. 30, Marion Center Grange Hall, 1:30.
Thursday, March 31, Carl Clark's farm, Chandler Hill, 9:30.
Thursday, March 31, Boyne City Co-op. Co., 1:30.
Friday, April 1, Maple Grove Grange Hall, 9:30.
Friday, April 1, I. O. O. F. Hall, Hortons Bay, 1:30.

Be sure to attend your nearest meeting. Let's talk this matter over, and decide what is best to do under the present day conditions.

Tail Spin in Aviation

A tail spin is the result of a stall. After stalling, an airplane falls off on one wing, the nose drops and the airplane revolves in the opposite direction to which the rudder is applied. The tail revolves, making the nose the approximate center of the turn. If the rudder is applied to the left wing, it becomes a left spin. A tail spin is used as a stunt and also as a means of losing altitude. It becomes dangerous only when the pilot loses control of the plane.

Odd Boundary Line

The irregular section in the boundary between Massachusetts and Connecticut, known as the "Southwick Jog," was caused by the straightening out and adjusting of errors in the boundary line between Connecticut and Massachusetts as previously run by compass. A long narrow strip of land was given to Connecticut, and the Southwick Jog ceded to Massachusetts as a parcel of land of equivalent area.

Indian Cure for Insomnia

Although the Indians may not have known much about science, one of their simple devices for curing insomnia is worthy of adoption, according to Modern Mechanics and Inventions Magazine. Their favorite method, which they are now offering to nerve-racked moderns, was to follow with their eyes the devious lines of a complicated pattern. Five or ten trips around this pattern will bring sleep.

POMONA GRANGE THIS SATURDAY

Charlevoix Pomona Grange will meet with Ironton Grange, Saturday, March 26th. Pot luck dinner at 12 o'clock and supper at 6:00 o'clock.

Afternoon session called to order at 2:30, and evening program at 8:00 o'clock. Several important questions are to be discussed and every Grange is requested to have their delegate present.

We are very fortunate to have the loan of two reels on Michigan Mammals and one on Wonder Isle from the Educational Division of the Michigan Department of Conservation. The use of these reels are made possible by Ironton Grange, having recently installed electric lights. Visitors are invited to attend the programs.

Every Grange will be well represented and company is expected from Emmet County.

Animals and Serpents

Objects of Veneration

It is a fact that cows, on account of their supposedly sacred character, are allowed to roam at will in parts of India, but the animals are venerated or respected rather than actually worshipped. Real worship of cattle, however, has existed at other periods of the world's history. It was common among the ancient Egyptians who possessed the cult of the bull Apis. When one representative of Apis died, a new bull was sought and specially educated in sacred matters for four months. Celebration of its birthday was held annually, with sacrifices of white oxen, and it was unlawful for women to go near it. Apis was supposed to have oracular powers, and after death, was mummified. Another animal that has received great respect has been the white elephant, which is believed, in Siam, to carry a dead man's soul. It cannot be purchased, and feasts are held for it and a funeral when it dies. But perhaps the most feared and respected of all is the serpent. At Whydah, in Africa, there is a serpent temple, and these reptiles in many parts of Africa are regarded as incarnations of dead relatives.

Bright Idea Evolved

by Puzzled Boston Cop

At last the absent-minded professor has been topped and by a smart man from New Jersey, or at least, that was the designation on the license plates of the car he stopped alongside of a harassed Boston traffic cop.

"I know it sounds silly," admitted the New Jerseyite, "but I'm stopping at a hotel here in Boston and I've forgotten what the name of it is, and how to get there."

The officer puzzled for a moment and then began to rattle off the names of what hotels he could remember, until finally he mentioned the Copley Plaza.

"That's the one!" exclaimed the Jersey man, "and now will you please tell me how to get there?"
Vainly the officer tried to explain the maze of crooked streets the man must pass through to reach the desired destination, but finally, realizing from the blank look on the man's face that his task was hopeless, said:

"The post office is in the next block. I guess your best bet is to go there, cover yourself with postage stamps and let them deliver you."

Artist's Praise of Tripe

Like many another famous artist, Auguste Rodin gave considerable thought to the amenities of the table, and laid it down that the two finest dishes ever conceived were roast rabbit and boiled tripe, writes a columnist in the Manchester (England) Guardian. He carried his gastronomic taste into his criticism of art, and used his two favorite dishes as standards of perfection. His strongest charge against a colleague's work was that it "had no rabbit."

Of tripe he grew almost lyrical. "Does it not look like the stones of an old cathedral?" he once demanded of a guest. "This tripe, with its warm tones, its crinkles, its crevices, makes me think of the cathedral of Beauvais."

To Live Life Over Again

If one could only live one's life over again with the experience that one has gradually acquired! You will say that to yourself, and you will think of everything that you might have done that you did not do and, even more, of everything that you did do that you would not do again. It will seem that you lived blindly and that now light has come to you. But if the omnipotent Lord offered to allow you to live your life over again from childhood with your present personality, I believe that you would reply: "My God, do not take so much trouble to give me all that worry again!"—Frederic Paulhan in Nonnelle Revue Francaise, Paris.

MAYVILLE-DUDLEY FIRST WARD CITY PRIMARY NOMINEES

In the First Ward City Primary held last Monday for the nomination of two candidates for the office of Alderman of the First Ward, Joseph Mayville received 40 votes, Leonard Dudley 39, Robert G. Proctor 29.

Names of the two receiving the largest number of votes will appear on the First Ward City ballot of April 4th at which time one of the two candidates will be elected.

NEW POULTRY RATION ANNOUNCED

The new "Spartan Starter" for feeding baby chicks is recommended highly for Michigan poultry raisers. This starter has been worked out experimentally and in feeding trials has been superior.

The "Spartan Starter" is as follows:

36 lbs. yellow corn meal
20 lbs. flour middlings
20 lbs. gr'd. oatmeal
10 lbs. dried milk
5 lbs. scrap meat
5 lbs. alfalfa meal
2 lbs. steamed bone meal
1 lb. salt
1 lb. cod liver oil.

Ground oat groats may be substituted for the ground oatmeal.
This feed is an all mash ration and should be fed exclusively to the chicks for the first six to eight weeks, when they should be changed gradually to a growing mash. Scratch feed should be included in the ration at the time when one begins the change from starting to growing mash and continued throughout the season. When scratch feed is added the "Spartan Starter" gives very good results as a growing ration.

Scratch Feed
50 lbs. cracked corn, 50 lbs. wheat
There is no scratch feed equal to equal parts of cracked corn and wheat; but where a farmer has home-grown feeds such as barley and oats, one can substitute the barley for corn almost entirely with equal results. Add oats but do not have over 30 to 35% total weight of oats. Buckwheat can also be used in smaller quantities. Use your own judgment in regard to home-grown grains and use as much as possible without destroying the value of the mixture.

Baby Plane Is Designed for the Novice Flyer

London.—An airplane with a landing speed of eight miles an hour, powered by a motorcycle engine, will soon make its appearance in England. The machine was first designed for the nine-year-old son of Herr Klemm, well-known German designer. Its top speed of 40 miles an hour compares with the minimum of most light airplanes. The slow landing speed whereby it would be almost impossible to injure the pilot or damage the plane is attained by a huge wing of 54 feet from tip to tip. A novice can fly it after two or three lessons, and it cruises at about the same cost as a motorcycle.

Girl Lives on Diet of Spinach and Cotton

Pasadena, Calif.—A diet of spinach is bad enough, but nine-year-old Marvella Donosau has had to eat a combination of spinach and raw cotton. The girl, who swallowed a four-inch nail, was fed the strange diet to dislodge the spike after it had been located by X-ray. Marvella is cured now and she can eat anything she wants. And it won't be spinach, or cotton—or nails.

17 of 18 in Lindy's Class Are Flying

San Antonio, Texas.—Out of a class of 18 members graduating from the United States army air service in March, 1925, including Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, 17 are still living—and flying.

This fact was disclosed in a "chain" letter circulated among members of the class, which has just reached Capt. Eugene Stevens after a three-year journey around the world.

The "chain" letter as a means of communication between members of the class was evolved in 1927 by Lieut. W. R. Wolfenbarger, president of the class. Each member, upon receiving the letter, writes an account of his activities since leaving school and sends it on. The letter bears a characteristically terse account of Lindbergh's doings.

DAN KALE BORN HERE 59 YEARS AGO

Dan Kale passed away at his home in East Jordan, Sunday, March 13th, following an illness of some three years from pernicious anemia.

Mr. Kale was born at East Jordan Nov. 24, 1873, and had always made this place his home. On Dec. 20, 1897 he was united in marriage to Miss Emmalea Parks of this place.

He is survived by his wife and the following sons and daughters: Mrs. Ed. Beauchaine, Mrs. M. Kadrovich, Mrs. Charles Patterson and Mrs. Charles Dowland of Flint; Russell Kale and Miss Isabelle Kale of East Jordan.

Mr. Kale was, by occupation, a farmer.

Funeral services were held from his late home Wednesday afternoon, March 16, conducted by Rev. James Leitch, pastor of the M. E. Church, Interment at Sunset Hill.

Among those here to attend the funeral were Mrs. Grace Jupe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patterson, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Beauchaine of Flint.

HUGH WHITEFORD FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN WASH.

Hugh Whiteford, aged 85 years, and for 20 years a resident of East Jordan, passed away at a Hospital in Tacoma, Wash., Friday, March 4th. His home was at Puyallup, Wash.
Mr. Whiteford was born in Ireland Dec. 18, 1846, and, when a year old, came with his parents to the United States, locating in New York State. In 1865 he was united in marriage to Alice Eugenia Sayer at Ranselar Falls, N. Y. They came to Michigan in 1880, locating at East Jordan. Mrs. Whiteford passed away in 1893. Mr. Whiteford later on went to the Canadian Northwest, where he resided about six years, then going to Puyallup, Wash. He was remarried, and is survived by his wife.

Three sons and a daughter by his first marriage are living, viz.: John Whiteford of East Jordan; Leonard of Minneapolis, Minn.; Clarence of Tacoma, Wash.; and Mrs. Joseph Cummins of East Jordan. Also 12 grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from Hill's Funeral Home in Puyallup on Monday, March 7th, and burial was at that city.

Admitted

Martin was talking at the dinner table about the inconsistency of woman.

"These girls who protest that they are never going to marry!" he broke out. "Everybody knows they will believe their own words at the first opportunity."

He paused, and evidently hoped that Mrs. Martin would come to the rescue of her sex. But that discreet woman held her tongue.

"Why, Mary," he continued, "you remember how it was with yourself. I heard you say more than once that you wouldn't marry the best man alive."

"Well, I didn't," said Mrs. Martin.

Post Office in the Home

Letter writers often find themselves without stamps when ready to mail their letters. One mother has solved this problem, according to the Parents' Magazine, by delegating one of the children in the household to act as postmaster. He is given a dollar's worth of stamps and it is his business to see to it that stamps are always available. The various members of the family buy their stamps from him. This arrangement not only ensures a supply of stamps being in the home, but also provides the child with training in the handling of money and the keeping of accounts.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE BY REV. P. BOODAGH NEXT WED.

Wednesday, March 30 is the date set for the illustrated lecture on Persia given by Rev. Paul Boodagh at 8:00 o'clock in the Methodist Church. This lecture which was originally scheduled for an earlier date was necessarily postponed until this time.

Having heard Rev. Boodagh address the Parent-Teachers meeting last month, many people will need no further introduction to him. To others not fortunate enough to hear him then another opportunity has been given them to hear him during the Good Friday service at the Presbyterian Church.

A native of Persia, Mr. Boodagh will be able to speak with authority of the country, its manners and customs. His lecture will be made more interesting to all by the use of pictures. The young people should find this especially interesting.

Since being in this country Mr. Boodagh has received both College and University training. He holds the degrees of A. B. and L. L. B., being one of the very few Persian lawyers in this country. Recently he has been preparing himself to return to Persia as a Missionary, which he will do when arrangements can be made. At present he is the minister of the M. E. Church at Boyne City. As a forceful speaker, a clear and deep thinker, Mr. Boodagh will be sure to delight you. Come and bring your friends.

An admission of 15 and 25 cents will be charged.

CHAPTER IX

Portraits by Roberts

In the drawing room Roberts at once locked the door and drew the curtains at the windows. He then opened his bag and took out a quart bottle of whisky. With it he went into the washroom and poured himself a half-glass of the liquor.

After drinking it neat he gasped and coughed, but even in his nervousness he remembered to play host. He rinsed the glass and came out to offer it and the bottle to Stanton who shook his head.

"No? . . . All right," said Roberts. "We'll have lunch here in the room. We'll have all our meals here. Blair and Ashley are on the train. I'll need all the breaks I can get away from them. D—n the luck that I had to run into them at old man Darling's. Without that I'd have had a fair chance."

It might seem that Roberts at this time was overemphasizing the probable consequences of this unfortunate coincidence, however true they proved in the event. Allowance, however, must be made for all the motives animating the Turner will associates. Persons with intimate knowledge of their characters gave more weight to distrust than to desire of money without at all overlooking the strength of the latter. As Malsie later says, it was a panic. Turner undoubtedly knew the men thoroughly. Possibly if Blair and Ashley had not encountered Roberts as they did in Newburgh the temptation to do away with him might have been resistible. This remains conjectural, but it is possible that without the meeting at Mr. Darling's home the murders might have been three and not six.

"I'll ring for the porter," said Roberts. "Have him send a waiter. Whenever anyone comes I'm going into the washroom."

"I'll go through the train," said Stanton, "and see if they're on."

"What good would that do?"

"You'd be able to stop worrying in one case and really begin it in the other."

"Never mind. I know they're on the train. They may or may not know I know it. Let them guess. I'll need all the breaks."

After lunch Roberts slept on the couch and Stanton read. When Roberts lazily aroused himself he played games of Solitaire, and enjoyed his bottle, coaxing the lieutenant to join him in a two-handed game of cards or in drinks.

"You're a dull John Law," he said. "Hunt up your friends," said the lieutenant. "We might invite them in."

"That's an idea. A true. They'd keep it as long as they wanted to."

"What did you fellows do to Turner? You might as well begin cleaning up that."

"That seems to be preying on your mind. Nothing was done to Turner. Incidents will happen in a rough life. We haven't lived in the parlor. Sometimes one man would get a little the worst of it and sometimes another. No one would keep account of them. Turner wasn't the fellow to do it."

"Just a great big boy."

"That's it."

"And the best two-fisted hater I've ever heard of. Play your cards, or you'll have me knowing I'm simpler than I am."

With dark and after dinner Roberts appeared almost at ease in his mind. His bottle explained some of his comfort. The cloister sense—he again had the curtains drawn—in the closed room of the speeding train was another reason for his lifting spirits. He was talkative, and the lieutenant thought something might come of that but very little did.

"They'll pair for it," he said late in the evening in one of his few references to his flight, "but I may handle them yet. They've always been paired, and it's a queer combination at that. I never could understand how they trusted each other. I don't believe they can. I'll never know why I haven't trapped and shot them. Nothing but scruples can keep anyone from murder in New York or Chicago. It can't be detected. You know that, Stanton."

"You know murder can't be discovered if sensible men hide it. Only mad men and fools are caught. Everything favors concealment and prevents detection. The only thing that keeps a man's enemies alive is his own conscience. You know that. I'll not be so sure of mine, with this conscienceless pursuit of me going on the way you see it."

"Blair is a public nuisance. I have seen enough of his life to hang him a dozen times. Once at Port Said a porter was surly. Blair cracked him on the chin, knocked him overboard, senseless, and leaned on the rail and grinned, watching the spot where he went under."

"I saw him in a Tia Juana cantina, not one of the American bars, take the knives away from two Mexicans and carve them. Then he shot a rufian in the leg, took his horse and, with Ashley behind him, get across the line. Ashley was laughing all the time as if it was a musical comedy or Charlie Chaplin."

"He's a devil. So's Ashley. You said you fancied Ashley. In one fashion you might be right. Blair's a fool about women, and Ashley isn't. He doesn't get himself tied up, and Blair does. He's crazy. And you'd think he was irresistible. Maybe he is with the only kind of women he ever sees or is ever likely to see. It's a wonder he's come out of some of his casts."

"They are all alike. For a month Blair will be obsessed with a girl. You would be sure it was for eternity. So would she. The great lover. If she's Omphale she thinks he's Hercules at the spinning wheel. Oh, don't grin; I know some music. I was an Anglican vicar once, whatever that has to do with it. He makes them think they are all Dellahs. He likes violent ones. His favorite woman is the tigress. He quits every one in about a month. It's a wonder he's alive. He laughs at them. I know perfectly well he must have killed some of them to keep himself from being killed."

"You think I'm romancing. I saw a girl, half Spanish, half Riff, come up behind him in a Marseilles cafe with a half-foot knife blade. I was with some American naval officers off a cruiser, the Nashville I think it was. Blair was sitting with Ashley. Blair's back was to the girl, but Ashley was facing her and he saw her. He knew who she was and why she had the knife, but he gave her a break. The only warning Blair got was a sort of

"I'll stay here," said Roberts, "and I'll take the upper berth. Ring three times when you come back. Then I'll know who it is."

"I'll see," said Roberts. "Probably I shan't mind."

"I hope you won't, partly for your own sake. I think it will be better for you. Now you can go into the washroom, or you can come with me to the smoking room. I'm going to call the porter to make up the berths. If you stay here tell him what you want."

"I'll stay here," said Roberts, "and I'll take the upper berth. Ring three times when you come back. Then I'll know who it is."

CHAPTER X

Roberts Bolts for Safety

When Stanton awoke the following morning there was no sound from Roberts in the upper berth. The train was an hour and a half's run from the La Salle Street station, and the lieutenant did not disturb his roommate but quietly set about dressing and shaving. Then he considered whether to have his breakfast without awaking and speaking to Roberts or to arouse him. He thought it best to arouse him.

"Roberts," he called, "are you awake? Want to get up?"

There was no answer.

"Say, Roberts," he called again, "I'm going to breakfast."

There was no sound from the upper berth, and Stanton reached in to shake the sleeper. He could feel nothing but the bedclothes. That astonished him, and he stood up on the couch to look in the berth. Roberts was not there.

This was so completely beyond Stanton's understanding that he looked in the washroom on impulse although he himself had just stepped out of it. Then he looked for Roberts' bag. It also was gone, and the case was clearer.

Stanton rang for the porter and opened the door. The porter was at work on a near-by section.

"That was my ring," said the lieutenant. He did not say George. "The man who was traveling with me isn't in his berth. I thought he was asleep. His bag isn't in the room. Do you know anything about him?"

"He got off at Elkhart," said the porter. "Didn't you know that?"

The porter had no plantation idiom which would require an attempt at phonetics in type. He did not say "Captain" or "Boss."

"No, I didn't know it," said the lieutenant.

"Nothing wrong, is there?" the porter asked.

"Nothing at all. If he wanted to get off it was his business. If he didn't want to tell me that also was his affair. He probably made a sudden decision and didn't want to disturb me."

"Have you—" the porter checked himself.

"Have I what?"

"What I started to say might not sound so good," said the porter, smiling. "So I'll not say it. I was thinking that your friend might have left a message with me for you and since he didn't—"

"I'd better see whether I have all my belongings? That's all right. I anticipatory grin on Ashley's face and the same sort of look in his eyes. That was sport for Ashley. Blair knew him well enough to be warned that something amusing to Ashley was behind him. He knew that. It might have been danger or just a fellow coming up to slap him on the back or knock his hat down over his ears and buy a bottle of wine. That would be champagne. That's always wine to Blair. He's a pig, but he's an old tusk of a wild boar. And it could be something else behind him and it was.

"I don't know how he did it, but he seemed to follow the girl by watching Ashley's expression and he whirled just as she struck. She shrieked and fainted. They said afterward he had broken her arm. She was carried away. No one could blame Blair for what they saw, and it was nothing to the police what emotional suffering she might have had. To the Continental police that's hokey. Pulling a knife's something, but you've got to stick it in a heart to have a case for the police. Over here you could have got a jury to hold Blair while the gal sliced him. It might be a good system at that. I wish to G—d she had been a second quicker or that Ashley had kept his d—n face straight. He could have had his fun later."

"When Blair sat down again he ordered some more drinks and began to cuss Ashley. Ashley just laughed. The madder Blair got and the louder he cussed, the more fun Ashley had. I thought there'd be murder yet, but Ashley had one hand spread out on the table and there was a blue shadow between two of his fingers. He had one of these d—n little single shot .38's covered. Blair saw it. If he had made a pass it would have taken him right through the stomach and the spine. So pretty soon he began to laugh, and Ashley took his hand off the table. They knew each other pretty well. They do yet.

"They sat there two hours, and every once in a while Ashley would lean back and laugh. He certainly enjoyed that girl's visit. When they were comfortably drunk they went away arm in arm. That's Blair and Ashley."

"You said Malsie was Tremblay's wife," said Stanton.

"Did I?"

"Well, maybe it was Blair said it. Where's she living now? Chicago?"

"I don't know."

"There are some things I want you to know tomorrow. You're going over to talk to the state's attorney."

"I am, like h—l. And why? What am I charged with?"

"Nothing. You're helping us partly in return for helping you. And you're being decent to me. Who do you suppose would believe my story without something to show for it? You're that something."

"We'll see," said Roberts. "Probably I shan't mind."

"I hope you won't, partly for your own sake. I think it will be better for you. Now you can go into the washroom, or you can come with me to the smoking room. I'm going to call the porter to make up the berths. If you stay here tell him what you want."

"I'll stay here," said Roberts, "and I'll take the upper berth. Ring three times when you come back. Then I'll know who it is."

Philosopher Sets Fifty as Golden Age of Man

While drinking a bumper of apple cider, there awhile back, one day at a roadside caravansary, a man asked us what age would we choose to be if we could live for a thousand years.

It was a funny question to ask. Maybe we would not care to live a thousand years more. And yet we sometimes think we would. It might be interesting to see what the world will be like a thousand years from now.

Well, anyway, we said if we could have the say about it, we would decide to go through the thousand years at the age of fifty. Not twenty-one nor ninety-one, but fifty. Fifty seems to be the ideal age, writes John Steven McGroarty, in the Los Angeles Times. A normal man or woman ought to be in ideal shape at fifty. Still virile, not yet senile, all the mistakes and follies of youth left behind.

No doubt others will not agree with us, but, anyway, fifty would be our choice.

Ancient Weatherwans

The oldest of English weatherwans is the beautiful Fourteenth century one in wrought copper pierced with the arms of Sir William Echingham which still surmounts the tower of Echingham church, in Sussex.

didn't have enough to worry about, and I guess he wouldn't want any of them. I'll go to breakfast."

"Yes, sir," said the porter.

By the time Stanton was seated in the dining car the whole episode had become amusing, his own part in it as much as any other. His ward had absconded. He was returning home with some fantastic stories and nothing else. He knew one of the murderers and had talked to him but was not able to lay a finger on him. He could not bring him home, and it was a Wisconsin case even if anything ever could be made of it. He had been returning with a possible victim who had run away from him.

He thought he knew why Roberts had bolted. The man was convinced Blair and Ashley were on the train. He also was persuaded that they thought he didn't know it. They would expect him to get off at the La Salle Street station without any suspicion that they were back of him. Therefore it would be easy to deceive them, get off and make a dash by any route he wanted for the Pacific coast and his dive into the obscurities of the Far East.

After breakfast Stanton sat in his room reconciling himself with amusement to his predicament. I never said I was a detective, he thought to himself as an answer to the whole thing. His murderers had flown out of his ken and jurisdiction.

"Is everything all right?" the porter asked when he came to take the bag out of the room.

"Everything," said the lieutenant.

As he walked down the train shed toward the gate he decided to stand there a moment and satisfy himself as to Blair and Ashley. If they were on the train Roberts would have to be conceded something more than agitated romancing. The lieutenant was not required to wait. The two had preceded him, and they were waiting at the gate.

Blair's expression was puzzled when he saw only Stanton, but Ashley was grinning. The lieutenant, seeing them, found that he was getting angry and was on the point of showing it. He stepped out of the way of the stream of passengers and stopped beside the two.

"Welcome home, lieutenant," said Ashley. "Hardly expected to be here before you. Didn't Mr. Roberts come with you?"

"I think I'll call the wagon for you," said Stanton.

"Why, lieutenant?" said Ashley. "We're here to meet my Uncle Hiram Greene, of Oshkosh."

"Then you'd better go to the North Western station."

"D—n you, Blair, you had to be so cock-sure. Here we are at the wrong station."

"Oh, dry up!" said Blair. "Who is this cheap copper? On your way, flat-foot."

Stanton lost his temper. He drew his pistol. Blair started back, but Ashley continued to grin. People nearby stumbled and pushed back out of the way. A few women cried out. A station policeman hurried up.

"I'm lieutenant Stanton, of East Chicago Avenue. Call a wagon for these men."

"Blair," said Ashley, "sometimes you're certainly an awful d—n fool. I'll break you for this," said Blair to Stanton.

"In Chicago?" said Stanton, amused again. "Big boy, just now you're one of two vagrants. I may give you a murder charge later. Anyway, Roberts gets a break."

"He'll need it," said Ashley amiably.

He was grinning when Stanton left him and Blair at the detective bureau. The man's amusement was not feigned. Blair having made a fool of himself, Ashley, although he was in no better case than the other, was enjoying it.

"He couldn't win," said Ashley, "but a thing like that never stops the big boy. Lieutenant, you'll love him when you know him better, but you'll have to protect him from Roberts. I'll never be able to."

Stanton went directly to the state's attorney's office in the Criminal Court building. Corvaleski had just come in, and Horde, the first assistant, entered the room before they had sat down.

"Telegram just came for you, lieutenant," he said, holding out a yellow envelope, "from some one who thought of addressing you here."

Stanton opened it and read: "Decided best to leave you. Am indebted to you for consideration and kindness. Am playing the game safe and will win. R."

The telegram had been sent from Elkhart, Ind.

"That's where he left the train," said the lieutenant, laying the paper in front of the state's attorney.

"Who is R? And why did he leave the train?"

"R is Roberts. He is one of the three survivors of the Turner will. He left the train while I was sleeping, to get away from Blair and Ashley, the other two survivors. They have him marked for number four. They were on the train. They are over at the bureau now. That's what I came to talk to you about. It will all seem crazy to you, but I'll tell it as it happened. First I'd suggest you have Mr. Horde telephone the bureau to send over exhibits A and B. You might do well to talk to them."

"Do that, Horde, will you? Spin your yarn, lieutenant."

For a half-hour Stanton gave a concise narrative.

"And there you are," he concluded, "I've always told you I was no detective. I've got my birds and no cage. I've just let a man slip me. He's dodging his own murder. I've got a murderer, or two of them, and we can't lay a finger on them."

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Bayer Aspirin is ready with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

Engine Governs Speed

If a man will but build an engine powerful enough there is nothing to keep him from flying at a speed of 1,000 miles an hour, believes Squadron Leader A. H. Orlebar, captain of the Schneider cup team, members of which have already flown in excess of 400 miles an hour. "Flying at high speeds is a perfectly wonderful sensation," he said. "But there really is no big thrill. There is a much bigger thrill in tobogganing or skiing. If somebody will design the engines there is nothing in the human element to prevent airplanes reaching a speed of 1,000 miles an hour."

"Know thyself," says the philosopher. Yes, but who is to introduce us?

Shooting Merely a Bluff

Some Latin-American countries resort to revolutions as a simple form of election and regard it as the best method for making a political change, Charles H. Cunningham, former United States commercial attaché at Lima, Peru, said at St. Louis recently. "There is a lot of blank shooting done in some of the revolutions, with shots being fired ### mainly for effect," Cunningham said.

"During some of the revolutions in Peru foreigners were allowed to transact business as usual in downtown districts, but were warned to keep off of certain streets where fighting was going on."

Protect Your Children

Protect your children from those nasty colds that always come when winter is breaking up. Doctors recommend Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil as an effective resistance-builder. Its Vitamin A helps protect children from recurrent colds. And its Vitamin D helps build strong bones and teeth. Youngsters—and grown-ups, too—find this emulsion an easy, pleasant way of taking cod liver oil. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. Sales Representative, Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Inc., New York.

"Double" Plagues Premier

For a brief space Premier MacDonald of England lay under the dark suspicion of quarrelling with a shopkeeper over a pound of butter. It was reported that the premier, accompanied by his daughter, rebuked the tradesman for stocking only Danish butter. Before Scotland Yard could be put on the case it transpired that the customer was Dr. E. Collis, professor of public health at the University of Wales, who bears a striking likeness to the premier and is an old friend of his.

Island of Cyprus Once Famous for Its Copper

Cyprus and copper are synonymous. In ancient times the island was famous as the best-known source of the red metal that made the Bronze age possible, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. But whether the island was named for copper, or copper for the island, remains one of the mysteries of history.

What is left of Cyprus' copper ores is not rich, but an American company works the mines and removes considerable quantities of the mineral. This, and a British company mining asbestos; the amber (a paint pigment) diggings; a silk reeling plant, and several cigarette factories constitute the island's industrial plants.

The only railway is narrow gauge, about 75 miles long, extending across the island from east to west.

The men have a distinctive costume—a straw hat with a mushroom brim, a plain shirt, sometimes with a jacket; voluminous Turkish trousers whose seats are tucked into their belts for cross-country walking, and heavy leather boots with their tops turned down and tied above the calf.

The Moalems wear a kerchief with lace flower fringes about their red turbans, and pink and orange shirts, blue trousers and purple stockings.

Leggings for Mules

Hockey players wear shin guards, cowboys wear chaps, and in the Tropics mules wear leather leggings, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The leggings are put on mules used to cultivate sisal, one of the chief sources of binder twine. Sisal leaves have sharp spines and animals must be protected against them. Many of the sisal fields are so rocky that hand cultivation is necessary. Tractors are being used in increasing numbers for sisal cultivation.

Big Tree

Many states can boast of big trees but out in Humboldt county, California, a forest engineer recently measured a redwood that stood 308 feet high and was 20 feet in diameter at a point 5 feet above the ground. At a point 230 feet above the ground the tree measured 12 feet in diameter. It is estimated that if the tree is sound it should yield the astounding total of 300,000 board feet of salable lumber, enough to build 20 average-sized homes.

Strict Treasury Rules as to Damaged Money

There is no federal law forbidding the total destruction of coins by their owners. But there is a statute forbidding the mutilation or lightening of a coin in such a way that the original coin may later be circulated in its impaired condition. It is also illegal to deface a coin without removing any part of it.

Occasionally the ashes of burned money are identified by the Treasury department and redeemed at face value. But no relief is granted by the government to the owners of paper currency totally destroyed. Three-fifths or more of a mutilated United States paper currency bill, note or certificate is redeemable at face value by the Treasury department. When less than three-fifths, but clearly more than two-fifths of the original bill remains, it is redeemable at one-half the face value of the original bill. Such fragments, however, must be accompanied by satisfactory evidence, as affidavits, subscribed and sworn to before a notary public, setting forth the cause and manner of destruction.

MRS. ELIDA BROWN WAS PIONEER OF JORDAN TWP.

Mrs. Elida A. Brown passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Todd of Wilson Township, Tuesday, March 15th, following a week's illness from influenza.

Elida Young was born in Orangeville, Barry County, Michigan, Feb'y 23, 1844, her parents being Samuel and Katherine Young. On Dec. 31, 1863 she was united in marriage to Albertus W. Brown at Orangeville. They resided at that place until about 1877 when they removed to this region, locating in what is now Jordan Township, being among the first settlers. Mr. Brown died Jan. 9th, 1913.

Deceased is survived by the following sons and daughters: Mrs. Albert Todd of Wilson Township; Mrs. Frank Bricker of Okemos, E. E. Brown of Flint, and George Brown of Jordan Township.

Funeral services were held from Wilson Grange Hall (of which Grange she was a member) Friday afternoon, March 18th, conducted by Rev. James Leitch, pastor of the M. E. Church of East Jordan. Interment at the Brown cemetery in Jordan township. Among those here to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brown of Flint.

West Africa No Longer Submerged in Darkness

Many changes may be noted as evidence of improved social conditions in West Africa. Cannibalism is nearly extinct. Slavery is waning. Fetichism is greatly decreased. Most of the harmful secret societies are practically dead. Tribal wars may be said to be at an end—Murder is very rare, as compared with its frequency in the United States. Polygamy is very greatly decreased. The language has been reduced to writing and the New Testament, portions of the Old Testament and many textbooks have been printed. The majority of the young men and boys, and some thousands of women and girls can read and write. Young women have more freedom as to school and marriage, and some are taking nurses' training courses; some become teachers, and others dressmakers. Time was when all days were alike. The introduction of the Sabbath was a novelty to the people, and has proven a great blessing. Last year's statistics showed that the attendance at Sunday school averaged 94,000.—New York Sun.

Egyptian Stone Cutters

Despite prevailing impressions to the contrary, the ancient Egyptians discovered and used hardened steel in stone-cutting. Scientists, who have made extensive investigations of the Egyptian stone carvings, can refute what most writers on the subject say, that before 1,300 B. C. the Egyptians did not have iron or steel tools. To deny the use of steel for stone-cutting by the ancient Egyptians is, to a steel metallurgist, almost like denying the cutting itself, for hardened steel is the only substance known to man which could have served the purpose. Before the dawn of history the Egyptians made amazing progress, for they were able to produce beautifully carved statues of hard stone and such a pile as the 200-foot high stepped pyramid of Sakkara.

Presidential Gardener

The President's garden goes back to the days when John Quincy Adams of Massachusetts lived at the White House, says an article in a Boston paper. It was said that President Adams had the tastes of an English squire. In his diary he mentions that he delighted to work in the garden in the dew of the morning. "In this small garden," he wrote, "of not less than two acres there are forest and fruit trees, shrubs, hedges, esculents, vegetables, kitchen and medicinal herbs, hot-house plants, flowers and weeds to the amount I conjecture of at least 1,000. Onseley, the gardener, knows them all by their botanical names."

Old Jewish Burial Customs

The ancient Jews of Palestine buried their dead by placing the corpse either in the earth or in caves hewn out of the rock. Sometimes the sepulcher was dug in the ground in the neighborhood of the family dwelling. More frequently, however, rocks were excavated so as to form compartments or galleries with as many vaults as desired. These vaults were known as "kokim." The burial place was often in a garden situated at least 50 cubits distant from the city. The site was usually marked by a whitewashed stone.

Ancient Water Organ

One of the strangest musical instruments, and which, by the way, plays an important part in the history of music, is the ancient water organ or hydraulic. The water organ was the musical instrument of ancient Alexandria and Rome. One of these old organs was discovered in making excavations for a new electric plant in the suburbs of Budapest, Hungary. Despite the fact that it had been buried for centuries it was in a good state of preservation.

Are you ever disappointed when you pick up your Herald and find that some social function, or a trip you have made to some other locality, friends visiting you, etc., etc., was not mentioned? We are when we do not mention it, but a newspaper cannot print the news unless it hears of it, and though we ask countless people each week for news, much of it escapes us. Won't you help us in printing all the news by calling us, phone 32, writing a letter, or coming to the office, telling us of these items? Another new ocean liner was added to the fleet on the Pacific ocean when the Santa Rosa was launched at Kearney, N. J. It is the first of four vessels building for the Panama Mail line of San Francisco, the total cost of which will be more than $18,000,000.

State News in Brief

Mt. Pleasant—Gordon Miron, 14-year-old student at the Mt. Pleasant Indian School, was drowned when a cake of ice on which he was playing in the Chippewa River overturned. He was the son of Joseph Miron, of Manistique.

Howell—Harry, Jr., five-weeks-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wallace, of Petyville, 12 miles southeast of here, was smothered, according to Coroner A. R. Crittenden, who investigated the death. The child had been taken into its parents' bed because of the cold weather.

Monroe—Fines and costs imposed by Mose Evans, veteran justice of the peace of Erie Township from March 1, 1931, to March 1, 1932, upon traffic violators totaled about $10,000. The fine money was credited to the County Library Fund and the costs to the General Fund.

Mt. Clemens—More than 124 miles of township roads are now being taken over by the County Road Commission under the McNitt bill passed by the 1931 legislature. The roads will be repaired and maintained in the future by the county through a grant of slightly more than $19,000 a year from the state.

Lansing—A check for $3,932.24, representing the balance of Michigan's share of the receipts of Western Conference football charity games, has been received by Gov. Brucker. It brought the total to $21,903.19. The money will be used by William S. Carpenter, State welfare director, for emergency relief work.

Plymouth—Injuries suffered when he slipped on a rug at his home and fractured a hip, caused the death of George Lee, 88 years old. Mr. Lee was born on a farm at the edge of the village, purchased in 1831 by his father. He lived there all his life, but the growth of the village brought his home within its limits.

Mt. Clemens—Mrs. Frank Anderson, 57 years old, who, with her mother, Mrs. Laura Tucker, became violently ill at their home here on Jan. 9 from eating tainted meat, died recently from the effects of the illness. Her mother died on Jan. 19, 10 days after she became ill. They were found unconscious in their home.

Ann Arbor—Beavers are the traditional busy-bodies of animal life, but they would have to go some to better the record of deer mice in the University of Michigan Museum. Dr. Lee R. Dice furnished a rotar similar to the exercise-wheels provided for caged squirrels, but with a "speedometer" attached. He found that in one night a mouse whirled his traveling roadway 100,000 feet, or about 20 miles.

Petoskey—Always seeking thrills, more speed and something to make one gasp, Petoskey is turning to airplane coasting on the ice of her long lakes. An airplane body and powerful engine have been mounted on steel runners, and goes skimming along the ice at from 200 to 250 miles per hour. The outfit found some difficulty because of bumpy snow on the ice, but should next season bring some clear, smooth ice, there will be a lot of this fun during 1933.

Flint—George Byran was buried in a heap of coal at the city waterworks pumping station for a half hour. He was using a crowbar to break a crust which had formed on the top of the heap, the bottom part of which had been dug out, when it caved in. He was rescued by A. C. Mathers and Herbert Parker, fellow workmen. They dug away the coal which covered his body until they could fasten a rope under his arms and pull him out. He was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and exposure.

Lansing—Marriages and divorces decreased in Michigan in 1931, according to Dr. C. C. Slemmons, State health commissioner. In 1930, 29,482 marriages were performed, in 1931 only 28,856. The decrease was 2.1 per cent. In comparison with the average for the four preceding years, marriages fell off 17.5 per cent during the year. Divorces were granted in 9,507 cases, as compared with 10,639 in 1930, a decrease of 10.7 per cent. The total was 13.5 below the average for the four preceding years.

Mt. Pleasant—A Pied Piper could be used to good advantage here by W. L. Davis, whose garage is infested by squirrels. Supposing that school children had made off with 12 pounds of pecan nuts stored there, he forgot the matter until his coal supply diminished to expose the floor in one corner of the basement. Davis was surprised to find part of the missing pecans. Some were intact, others were without meat, showing signs of malicious treatment by squirrels. More nuts were found carefully hidden in discarded auto tires and under the eaves.

Clare—Late last fall Jack Myers constructed quite an extensive winter center at Spike Horn Creek. Owing to the unusual weather this season, it took a belated March blizzard to bring enough snow for use of the toboggan slides. Many people have visited the course near U. S. 27, but December, January and February developed no possibilities. The two slides on opposite hills are so arranged that coasters get nearly to the top of the opposite slide each trip, saving much climbing.

Grand Ledge—Gottlieb Berner, 72 years old, died of injuries received when he was attacked by a bull at the farm home of his brother, near here. His chest was crushed.

Lansing—Contracts for six miles of grading and drainage structure to prepare for pavement of trunk line US-10, in Osceola County, were let by the State Administrative Board to Thomas McNally of Saginaw for $48,000.

Grand Haven—James O'Connell, Grand Haven's last veteran of the Civil War, is dead. He was 89 years old. Mr. O'Connell enlisted in 1862 in the 5th Michigan Cavalry. He became a marine engineer after the war and later owned a plumbing shop here.

Kalamazoo—Two Detroiters are included among the 10 members of the Western State Teachers College varsity cage squad awarded letters by the athletic board of control for their work during the season just closed, when Western State won 14 of 19 games played against teams of four mid-west states, including six contests with university aggregations.

Oscoda—Au Sable's historic landmark, the Lower School, will be moved to the waterfront by Ray Colbath for use in his commercial fishing business as a packing and storage house. Built in 1869, the building was used until 1926, when Au Sable arranged to send its pupils to the local school. It was one of five buildings in Au Sable to escape the fire of 1911, which practically destroyed that town and Oscoda.

Onsted—While several Michigan villages have foregone elections this year for economy, Onsted did not have an election because no one was interested in voting. The village's only political party called a caucus but nobody attended. So C. A. Des Ermia, village president, who got the only 18 votes cast at the last election, will continue to hold office until the 375 persons who reside here decide they want a change.

Detroit—Statistics issued by the Department of Health reveal a marked decrease in Detroit's tuberculosis death rate and an increase in the number of patients whose condition improved. The death rate of patients at the William H. Maybury Sanitarium declined from 25.8 per cent in 1927 to 10 per cent in 1931, according to the report, and the percentage of patients whose condition improved rose from 45.4 in 1927 to 68.9 in 1931.

Bay City—Albert Davis, Au Gres fisherman, was acquitted of a charge of piracy from a vessel in distress by a Federal Court jury which deliberated five hours. He was charged with the theft of a quantity of rope, chain and other fishing apparatus from a fishing tug belonging to William P. Kavanaugh, of Bay City, which was stranded in Lake Huron, near Au Gres. The case was the first of its type to be brought to trial in district court here.

Lansing—Michigan's National forests had 322,852 visitors during 1931, according to E. W. Tinker, federal forester. Of this number, 109,500 were vacationists on the Huron National Forest in lower Michigan. The tree planting program on the Huron, including plantations now 14 or 15 years old, is of tremendous interest to forest travelers, says Mr. Tinker. While the trees are not yet big enough to cut, they are attractive to a vast number of people.

Cass City—Decreasing taxes, decreasing bonded indebtedness and increasing the balance in the treasury is the history of village finances in Cass City in the past eight years. The tax rate has been lowered from 15 mills to nine mills in that period and the indebtedness has been decreased from $24,450 to $11,000. The balance in the village treasury in March, 1925, was $379.79, while the annual report of March 1, 1932, shows $19,503.68 in the treasurer's hands.

Kalamazoo—With flames enveloping the first floor of his residence at West Lake, Andrew Cappiletti rushed to the second floor where his wife was trapped and dropped her into the arms of H. L. Hess on the ground. Cappiletti then jumped from the window to safety. The cottage, an all-year residence, was burned to the ground and its contents were destroyed. Mrs. Cappiletti's screams attracted the attention of her husband, who was at the H. L. Hess cottage next door.

Detroit—Three Michigan men were among the 57 persons announced as recipients of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation awards for 1932-33. Mark Wessel, of Bronson, music composer, was given a fellowship for creative work abroad in musical composition. A fellowship for research in England and Ireland was granted Howard Mumford Jones, professor of English at the University of Michigan. Dr. Herbert Orion Calvery, assistant professor of physiological chemistry in the Medical School of the University of Michigan, was given a fellowship to study in European laboratories.

Mt. Clemens—Pearl Louise Fouchey, 22 years old, has been united with her nine sisters and brothers in this vicinity after being separated from them 21 years. When she was a year old Miss Fouchey was placed in care of a society following estrangement of her parents. After many years of searching, her brother Samuel, of Detroit, located his sister in Galy, Ont., where she had been taken by her foster parents. Her foster mother died when she was 14 years old, revealing before her death that she was not the child's mother.

CHILD need REGULATING?

CASTORIA WILL DO IT!

When your child needs regulating, remember this: the organs of babies and children are delicate. Little bowels must be gently urged—never forced. That's why Castoria is used by so many doctors and mothers. It is specially made for children's ailments; contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. You can safely give it to young infants for colic pains. Yet it is an equally effective regulator for older children. The next time your child has a little cold or fever, or a digestive upset, give him the help of Castoria, the children's own remedy. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

Dr. Morse's INDIAN ROOT PILLS Mild & Gentle Laxative

Indians in U. S. Army
The twelve Indian scouts still remaining in United States military service live in Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., in tepees of the same general pattern of those their Apache ancestors built. The dozen Indians are still authorized by regulations, although scout plane squadrons have almost completely replaced them. Their last active service was in the Pershing expedition in 1916.

Poems in the Spring time are not rare, Poems in the Spring time found everywhere. Genius awakens and takes flight, Making poets just over night. ### POULTRY MEETINGS

Two poultry meetings will be held next week by J. A. Hannah, Michigan State College Poultry man.

At this time we need to urge our farm poultry raisers the importance of sticking to the ship and giving the best of care and attention to our baby chicks and pullets coming on.

At present prices a good fair flock of hens producing well will more than pay for their feed. In other words one can get more than a good market value for feeds consumed. Many may not agree with this statement but the results of records kept by farm poultry raisers when feed prices were more than double what they now are showed that eggs could be produced for about 12c a dozen. You certainly can produce eggs for 6c per dozen now can't you?

Come to one of the following meetings and discuss this matter with Mr. Hannah.

Thursday afternoon, March 31, at Ellsworth High School, 2:00 o'clock.
 Friday morning, April 1, Bellaire Court House, 10:00 o'clock.

SPRAY SERVICE

This year we will not send as definite, as in past years, information on the time to do spraying of fruit trees. We will, however, give definite times for spraying codling moth and cherry fruit flies.

The following information regarding dormant sprays has been received from H. A. Cardwell, Michigan State College Horticulturist.

DORMANT APPLICATION

This is intended as a reminder rather than specific recommendations for controlling each dormant season pest for every fruit.

Peaches
 Owners of peach trees who did not spray during late fall or the warm weather of mid winter, for peach leaf curl, are urged to take advantage of the first sunny mild weather.

Scale strength lime-sulphur spray will give control of scale and Curly Leaf. No matter what is used, it should be applied early. If the disease has developed as fast as the buds it is imperative that the treatment be given early.

Pears
 Pear psylla has been out for some time and will return with the next warm period. An early oil application of 3% strength will handle scale and prevent egg laying by psylla, if applied before eggs are laid.

Summer infestation can be held in check by the use of summer oil.

Cherries
 After each grower has weighed the importance of scale, case-bearer, leaf-roller and aphids—material and strength can be decided.

When a strength of 8% oil is used as for leaf-roller and case-bearer thoroughness but not over-spraying is important and the buds must be strictly dormant. Such a strength of oil spray will handle all dormant season insects on sour cherry.

Summer strength lime-sulphur and nicotine-sulphate will control sweet cherry aphids when used as a late dormant application just as buds are swelling.

Apples
 Whenever oil is to be used alone for scale, mites and leaf-roller, it must be applied very early so as to be out of the way when lime-sulphur should be applied as a delayed dormant application.

If scale is present and NOT mites or leaf-rollers, dormant strength lime-sulphur and nicotine sulphate can be used as a delayed dormant and scale, early crab and aphids will be controlled with one application.

Plums
 Scale on plums can be controlled by either dormant strength lime-sulphur or 3% oil, if applied in the dormant bud period.

Currents
 Examine plants for presence of scale insects. Dormant lime-sulphur is indicated if condition warrants it.

Cat-Worms
 If cut-worms are expected, have materials on hand so that bait, "Tanglefoot," or cotton can be applied in advance of the feeding time.

New Spraying Calendar
 All this information and much more can be found in the new 1932 Spraying Calendar. Have your copy handy. As you read it through, write down your plans of attack for each fruit. If you haven't and want a copy drop me a card.

WHEN TO USE FERTILIZER

The function of a fertilizer is to supply such plant food as the soil, unaided, is unable to supply. Fertilizer is a tool of crop production, to be used, like any other tool, when a profit can be made.

There are soils and conditions where other factors are so limiting that a profit from fertilizers is hopeless. But the majority of farmers who will combine the use of fertilizers with other good farm practices will find that fertilizers have an important place in a farm management program to reduce production costs, and to give a greater labor return.

While increase in yield is usually the principal effect of fertilizers, other effects, such as improvement in quality, earlier start, earlier maturity, and greater disease resistance are frequently of equal value. Harder, more mature corn, earlier and plumper small grains, better grading potatoes, heavier heads of cabbage, better tobacco—these are common, rather than unusual effects of good fertilizer treatment.

The Age of Selection Is Here

Our times are marked by one vast advantage over all past history—freedom of choice for the average person.

A young man now has a hundred interesting careers to consider. His grandfather had ten. Many paths are open to the scientist, writer, teacher, athlete, business man. When we travel, we often choose between rail and bus and car and plane. Every last thing we buy is one of many offered.

This is the Age of Selections. For advertising keeps us informed. Tells us the special benefits of this, the new features of that. Shows us how to build houses and how to make muffins. Explains why and where and when and how much.

As we read we learn how to discriminate, to recognize worth, to be sure of value received. Before we buy a car or refrigerator or a can of beans, we know what it is and what it offers. Advertising teaches us how to live by this year's rules.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They bring you up to date in this Age of Selection.
