State News in Brief

Galesburg—Samuel Stohler, 22, Kalamazoo, was killed here when his truck was struck by a locomotive. The truck caught fire and his body was burned beyond recognition.

Ishpeming—Stricken with a heart attack while stooping to inspect a bridge he planned to repair, John Wirtala, a Cooper Lake farmer, fell into a creek and was drowned.

Clare—The body of 19-year-old Jacob Novack, who has been missing for six weeks, has been found in Budd Lake. Novack is believed to have stepped into a channel cut by ice harvesters.

Mt. Pleasant—The seventh oil well within a week was drilled in here, bringing daily production of the field to 30,000 barrels. The heavy output and the low price of crude oil have caused a movement among operators for proration.

Mt. Clemens—A house he was aiding to raise caused the death of George R. Mills, 50. The house slipped from its blocks, crushing Mills who was working underneath. He was dead before fellow workmen could jack up the structure.

Jackson—Approximately 1,000 acres of land in and about the city are to be farmed this season by men receiving aid from the municipal welfare bureau. The land and implements are being donated; the seed to be furnished by the city.

Belding—The citizens' committee named to consider a subsidy to hold the Belding Hemingway Silk Mills here has been notified that within 90 days the plant will be moved to Putnam, Conn. Closing of the silk mills, which have operated here for 50 years, will throw 325 persons out of work.

Allegan—A truck load of sample furniture was destroyed by fire while being taken to the Grand Rapids market for show purposes. It was necessary to work day and night to make new samples in time for the show. The fire loss was $1,500. John Hettinger, the truck driver, was burned while fighting the fire.

Berkley—More than 50 Berkley High School students who refused to attend classes one recent afternoon because the weather was so fine, were ordered by Robert B. French, superintendent of school, to remain at their desks until 6 p. m., as punishment for their walkout. The students organized a picnic after cutting classes.

Grand Rapids—Tragedy terminated the eighteenth birthday celebration of Peter La Fata, high school student. After attending a dance with a number of friends, La Fata went to Little Pine Island Lake, seven miles northwest of the city, and started across the lake in a canoe. About 200 feet from shore the canoe tipped over and he was drowned before help reached him.

Baldwin—A fire swept 2,000 acres near here and threatened resort property at Idlewild Terrace and North Lake Marlborough. Fire fighters from Baldwin, Luther, Chase, White Cloud and Dighton, 200 in all, were in the line. While the fire was being fought, word was received that the Conservation Department had cut its rate from 20 to 15 cents an hour, but no one quit. The blaze was checked after a six-hour battle.

Detroit—Twice as many young men are seeking to spend their summer vacations at the Citizens' Military Training Camps at Camp Custer and Fort Brady than can be accepted, Phelps Newberry, civilian aide in Michigan to the Secretary of War, has announced. Applications have been received from 3,219 youths, although the quota for Michigan is 1,600. The quota was exceeded by 25 per cent before the date set for receiving applications, March 1.

Mt. Pleasant—"Warranted if well used," stated the inventor and maker of John L. Seaman's clock which regularly ticks off the hours in his farm home in Gratiot County. Apparently Eli Terry, of Plymouth, Conn., the inventor, knew what he was talking about, as the faithful counter of the hours has been steadily ticking away on its job since 1734. William Seaman, grandfather of the present owner, came from New York State in 1828 and traded his bob-sleighs for the timepiece, then 104 years old.

Muskegon—Martin Deater, 10 years old, is going to get well from his severe burns doctors said he could not survive some seven years ago. He has had to go to the hospital for new skin frequently as scar tissue failed to grow to keep pace with his bodily development and began to contract him. The surgeons finally have solved the difficulty, however, and little future trouble is expected. Young Deater suffered second degree burns while playing near a bonfire of leaves.

Jackson—What is believed to have been an attempt to make way with a large number of radios from the plant of the Sparks Withington Co. here, was discovered by a night watchman at Plant No. 3. Investigation by police disclosed that ten table model sets had been removed. While the officers were searching the vicinity an automobile containing two men drove up to the plant, then turned and disappeared in the darkness. Police are of the opinion that the men had returned for another load of merchandise.

Grand Rapids—A sturgeon weighing 80 pounds, believed to have come up the Grand River from Lake Michigan, was taken from the river by three net fishermen as 2,000 persons looked on.

Norway—Dr. G. V. Johnson bowled a perfect score on the Rialto alleys here in a match contest. It is the second 300 game ever rolled in this city and Johnson is in line for an A. B. C. medal.

Muskegon—Ninth District Republicans were in session 12 minutes and elected two delegates to the National convention, nominated a presidential elector, and endorsed President Hoover for re-election.

Coldwater—Shock of the news of an injury to a friend whom she was teaching to drive caused the death of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Green, 33. Her friend, Mrs. Richard H. Fidler, was hurt when her car crashed into a tree.

Muskegon—Richard Kriesel, 29, was probably fatally burned; Milton, 18, was seriously hurt, and two others, William Sam, 20, and Frank Borgeson, 19, suffered minor burns when gas from a leaky regulator exploded at the Clover Foundry.

Dowagiac—Over the past 25 years Mrs. Fred Hungerford has been the mother of 19 children, one at a time. Recently twins, a boy and a girl, arrived at the Hungerford household. Eighteen of the older children are living, 16 of them at home.

Hesperia—The school building in this Oceana County village was destroyed by fire and approximately 100 high school students escaped from the building without injury. Grade school pupils had not arrived at the building. The fire started on the roof of the two-story frame structure.

Detroit—Cranking his car while it was in gear, Edgar Ducharme, 30 years old, was instantly killed when the auto pushed him out of the garage at the rear of his home and across the alley, and crushed him against a telephone pole. The body was found by a neighbor after the accident.

Ewen—Ten thousand trees were planted by members of Ewen Post 41 of the American Legion in a plot of ground one-half mile south of Kenton, secured through co-operation of the Government and forestry officials. It will be designated as a Washington bi-centennial memorial forest.

Adrian—When Adrian and Tecumseh firemen found that a blaze in a stack of corn stalks on the E. J. Marshall farm was endangering farm buildings, they hauled the fire into a field. Putting a chain around the stack of stalks, a tractor was used to haul the fire away. It took four hours to extinguish the blaze.

Detroit—Hopes have been raised for the recovery of Fireman Frank J. Riopel, who was scalded while doling hot stew to destitute men two months ago. "His growing cheerfulness is likely to pull him through," hospital attendants reported. Riopel slipped and his right arm plunged into a 10-gallon pot of stew. Infection set in a week later.

Berkley—Stanley Gruber, reputed possessor of $20,000, is in the County Jail for 60 days for failure to support his wife and 11 children. A son, Frank, 16 years old, testified that his father provided only two beds for the family, forcing five of the children to sleep on the floor, and that food often was lacking. Mrs. Gruber said her husband had made as high as $175 a week, practically all of which was placed in banks.

Houghton—Herman Kortajarvi, Sidnaw woodsman, died of heart disease induced by overexertion while running from conservation officers, Coroner Charles R. Little has reported. The warden met Kortajarvi in the woods while they were inspecting traps set for coyotes and Kortajarvi began to run, the warden said. They overtook Kortajarvi and were questioning him when he fell dead. The warden said there was no evidence that Kortajarvi had been violating the game laws.

Flint—Two men were burned severely in an explosion that wrecked a plant of the Seeley Dry Cleaning Company. Frederick Mallok and Harrison Wilkins were so severely shocked they could not explain what happened. Clarence Cooper, the foreman, was returning to the plant, he said, when he saw a sheet of flame inside the building followed by the explosion which demolished the machinery and bulged two walls. The damage is estimated at $10,000.

East Lansing—Michigan State College's seventeenth annual summer session will be held from June 20 to July 29, according to an announcement by Albert E. Nelson, director of the session. The courses will be similar to previous ones. These include courses offered by virtually every department in the college. Courses also will be offered by the Dunbar Forest Experiment Station, 16 miles south of Sault Ste. Marie, for which college credit will be given.

Bad Axe—Arthur Dundas assisted a skunk with no unfortunate complications for himself. Doing some plumbing at Lakeside resort, he sighted a skunk with his head caught in a salad bottle. Carefully following the bewildered creature, Dundas laid a plank on the bottle and stood on one end of the board while his helper mounted the other. The skunk then freed itself and scampered away. Dundas and his man also got away with nothing but the bottle for proof, they are pleased to say.

SABBATH DAY OF REST AND WORSHIP

At the time Moses was given the Ten Commandments the Sabbath day was the seventh day of the week, one of the feast days. After he had received the Commandments, the Sabbath day was observed as a day of rest and worship. It was to this ancient Jewish Sabbath that the Fourth Commandment referred.

The association of Sunday with the true Sabbath and its development as a day of rest came about with the dawn of Christianity. From the beginning many Christians commemorated the first day of the week as Resurrection day, or Lord's day. There does not seem to be any evidence that the first day was originally intended as a substitute for the Jewish Sabbath. In fact, most of the early Christians observed both the Sabbath and the Lord's day.

The tendency to observe the first day of the week was confirmed by the Roman emperor Constantine in 321 A. D., when he issued the civil decree that "all the judges and townspeakers, and the occupation of all traders," should "rest on the venerable day of the sun." As time passed and the Christian church grew in strength, the majority of them paid less attention to the Sabbath day and more to the Lord's day, until it finally supplanted the Sabbath. Many took the position that the first day of the week had divine sanction and that the Fourth Commandment was applicable to it instead of to the Scriptural Sabbath of the Hebrews.

The observance of Arbor day varies in the different states of the Union, although the majority of the celebrations are held during the latter part of April or the first part of May. But whatever the date, it has a special significance this year because of two men. For 1932 is the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington, the "Father of His Country," and the centennial of the birth of J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day."

The connection of George Washington with Arbor day celebrations lies in the fact that this year he has been the inspiration for the most extensive tree-planting program ever undertaken in this country. For a part of the general bicentennial celebration program this year has been the project, sponsored by the American Tree Association of Washington, D. C., of planting 10,000,000 trees, all dedicated to Washington, a veritable living memorial stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Canadian line to the Mexican border.

In announcing this project at the time that President Coolidge created the Washington bicentennial commission to have charge of the general celebration this year, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, said:

"What more significant and unique method could be employed to manifest the affection which American feels for Washington? Washington himself must have loved trees, for his diary contains repeated references to their value and care; and he chose a spot for his home where their beauty is unexcelled. Along the shaded path that leads to his final resting place, two columns of trim, straight larches stand like sentinels, his constant companions, along with those thousands of Americans who come to pay him reverence during the daylight hours. He must have loved the regal beauty of a tree. In the symbolism of a tree can Washington be remembered pre-eminently. Deep-rooted in the ground, a tree is like a man, coming up out of the earth, but lifting its branches to heaven. And as it grows in usefulness, so it grows in beauty. It may outlast the ages, it offers its shade to all alike, and its disinterested ministries succour a thirsty countryside and provide for its physical and esthetic necessities. So a tree bespeaks the spirit of Washington. He was democratic in his services, regal in his leadership, commanding in his principles, while he extended a brotherly hand to a new and independent people struggling for fuller freedom."

Not only have millions of trees already been planted in honor of Washington and registered with the American Tree association by social, civic and patriotic clubs and organizations as well as by individuals, but the bicentennial tree planting idea has now gone around the world.

King Boris III of Bulgaria has joined this great tree planting army in honoring Washington by presenting to Henry W. Shoemaker, the American minister at Sofia, two very rare Balkan varieties of evergreens, one for the legation garden, the other for the American school near Sofia. These trees have been planted by Minister Shoemaker, who is from Pennsylvania, with the help of the legation staff and with I. Kerekoff of the Bulgarian foreign office representing that nation. Mrs. Shoemaker, Mrs. Maynard Barnes, Mrs. Frank Barnes, wives of the secretaries of the legation, and Mr. H. Frey, the king's landscape gardener, aided in the planting of the tree.

Joseph C. Grew, the American ambassador at Istanbul, Turkey, was the first representative of the American government in the foreign land to register on the national roll when he planted three black walnut trees with Eugene M. Hinkle signing the application on the national honor roll as a witness.

Following this came the registration of Fred Morris Dearing, American ambassador at Lima, Peru, who, with Garrett G. Ackerson, Jr., as a witness, planted a tree to mark the bicentennial of the birth of Washington at the Country club

1—J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day," born April 22, 1832.

2—Certificate issued to Joseph C. Grew, American ambassador to Turkey, for three trees planted in Istanbul, Turkey, in honor of George Washington.

3—Mrs. Herbert Hoover helping plant a cedar tree from the Ferry farm, where George Washington spent most of his boyhood days, as President Hoover and other government officials look on. The tree was presented to the President and his wife by the George Washington Tree Guild of Fredericksburg, Va., and was replanted on the White House grounds.

4—A tree, presented by King Boris III of Bulgaria was planted recently in the garden of the American legation at Sofia for the American Tree association with the help of (1) Henry Fry, the king's landscape gardener, (2) Henry Shoemaker, the American minister to Bulgaria, (3) Mrs. Henry Shoemaker and (4) I. Kerekoff of the Bulgarian foreign office, representing the Bulgarian government in the program honoring Washington.

at Lima. Another registration also came from F. E. Libenow, the consular agent at Charramal, Chile, who planted six English walnuts there. From Cuba came the registration of Eugene E. Jova, the American consular agent at Sagua La Grande. Pompilio Montero, the director of the board of Sagua Yacht club and secretary of the Rotary club of Sagua la Grande, has also registered on the national honor roll. In the name of the Yacht club itself, Eduardo Radelat, Sr., the president of the club registered two trees, Eduardo Radelat, Jr., registered two more in his own name. Manuel Mill and A. M. Ribas have registered also.

Carlos Cunanán, ranger in the bureau of forestry of the agricultural college at Laguna, P. I., has registered the planting of a seedling he took from the Sierra Madre mountains and brought to Los Baños to acclimatize it. The tree has now been planted in the lowlands and is doing fine, he reports.

Paul E. Nilson of the American school at Talas, Turkey, has registered the planting of eight trees, and at his suggestion and that of Ambassador Grew, the American Tree association has sent the bicentennial tree planting message and its "Forestry Primer" to more than a score of schools in Turkey. These schools include the Constantinople Woman's college, Robert college, the American Academy for Girls, the American Boys' school, and Ihsan Bey, chairman of the council of education at Ankara. Ambassador Grew says there is a keen interest in tree planting of all kinds in Turkey.

There has been more than a hundred registrations from the Boy Scouts in Hawaii, and the library of the department of agriculture, Kyoto Imperial university, Kyoto, Japan, has asked for the bicentennial tree planting posters and printed matter for display.

On April 22, the date on which Nebraska celebrates Arbor day, the fame of one of her distinguished citizens went far beyond the borders of that state. For April 22, 1932, was the centennial of the birth of the "Father of Arbor Day" and a special commemorative stamp issue by the United States government, as well as special observances of the day in many parts of the country, recalled to all Americans their debt of gratitude to J. Sterling Morton.

Morton was born in Adams, Jefferson county, N. Y., on April 22, 1832. When he was two years old his parents moved to Michigan and there he grew up, attending a private school in Monroe and then a Methodist seminary in Albion. In 1850 he entered the University of Michigan and remained there for most of the course, but withdrew in his senior year and was graduated from Union college in his native state in 1854.

In the same year he was married to a Michigan girl and the young couple decided to "go West and grow up with the country." They settled first at Bellevue in the territory of Nebraska, but moved later to what is now Nebraska City, where Morton was a member of the town company, which surveyed and established that town. Adjacent to the townsite he pre-empted a tract of land half a mile square and upon that site he built his home which he called "Arbor Lodge."

Morton was the founder and first editor of the first newspaper in Nebraska City, the Nebraska City News and was a prominent figure in Nebraska during its territorial days. In 1858 President Buchanan made him secretary of the territory, and upon the resignation of Gov. William A. Richardson he became acting governor. He was, however, more interested in other matters than in politics. He was an original member of the Nebraska territorial board of agriculture and the Territorial Horticultural society. Coming from two heavily-wooded states, New York and Michigan, Morton was struck by the bleakness of the "treeless state," as Nebraska was called at that time.

The result was that at a meeting of the state board of agriculture on January 4, 1872, Morton introduced a resolution setting aside April 10 for tree planting so that Nebraska would be a "treeless state" no longer. More than a million trees were planted that year and several million more during the following years.

In 1885 the Nebraska legislature, wishing to further honor the man who had originated the idea of Arbor day, passed an act changing the date of its observance to April 22, Morton's birthday, and making it a legal holiday in that state. In 1893 Morton entered the cabinet of President Grover Cleveland as secretary of agriculture, remaining in office until 1897.

By 1895 the Nebraska legislature was able to proclaim to Nebraska's sister states that henceforth she was to be known as the "Tree-Planter State" because this commonwealth, which had once been so markedly destitute of this form of verdure, now had more than 700,000 acres planted in trees.

Arbor day is yet to be observed in a number of states and in all of them two names will figure prominently—George Washington, the "Father of His Country," and J. Sterling Morton, the "Father of Arbor Day." Among those (as this is written) are the following:

- Alabama—Proclamation of the governor.
- Connecticut—Latter part of April or first part of May by proclamation of governor.
- Georgia—First Friday in December.
- Hawaii—First Friday in November.
- Idaho—April 29, when possible, recommended by governor.
- Iowa—Proclamation of the governor.
- Kansas—Option of governor.
- Kentucky—In fall by proclamation of governor.
- Maine—Option of governor in the spring.
- Massachusetts—Last Saturday in April, proclamation of governor.
- Mississippi—Second Friday in December. Proclamation by governor.
- Montana—Second Tuesday in May.
- Nevada—Proclamation of governor.
- New Hampshire—Proclamation of governor, early May.
- New York—The law in this state is very elastic in respect to Arbor day and permits of naming the date sectionally so as to take full advantage of climatic conditions in different parts of the state. Hence, there are three Arbor days in New York, one for Long Island, one for "up-state," and one for the northern counties. As a rule, the last Friday in April and the first two Fridays in May are the dates selected.
- North Dakota—Option of governor.
- Ohio—Proclamation of governor.
- Pennsylvania—Proclamation of governor.
- Porto Rico—Last Friday in November.
- Rhode Island—Second Friday in May.
- South Carolina—Third Friday in November.
- Virginia—Proclamation of the governor in the spring.
- Wisconsin—Proclamation of governor. Usually first Friday in May.
- Washington—Proclamation of governor. Usually first Friday in May.
- Wyoming—Proclamation of governor. Usually first Friday in May.

No Snap for Members of U. S. Marine Band

Anyone who thinks a member of the United States Marine Band has a soft snap of it should take a trip to the Marine barracks and get a glimpse of the musicians at work. There's no chance for temperament in the daily routine of the Marine Band which is heard in the National 4-H club program of the National Farm and Home Hour on the first Saturday of each month.

Rehearsals are serious occasions when every man is tuned up to concert pitch, for every member of the band understands the high expectations of the American public when the United States Marine Band appears in radio broadcasts.

Captain Taylor Branson, renowned leader of the band, wields the baton for the organization, and his able directing and intimate understanding of arrangements play a big part in the splendid performances.

Besides the vigorous rehearsals, there are numerous engagements to be filled by the Marine Band which is in constant demand for diplomatic functions, civic and patriotic parades, White House concerts and the various governmental and social affairs that play a part in the daily life of the Nation's Capital.

Principals in the new WABO-Columbia comic sketch of the prize ring, "Joe Palooka," could come to blows in what might be termed the battle of the century. Four of them have worked out inside the ropes. There's Ted Bergman, 200-pound Palooka of the act, who once in his varied life managed a New York gymnasium. . . . And heavyweight Ham Fisher, cartoonist-creator of the comic strip on which the act is based, who sparred in school, hobnobs with all the fighters and still works out with them. . . . Ted Husing, ring-side commentator at Palooka bouts, who took it on the chin while in the army. . . . Harry von Zell, program announcer, once an amateur lightweight boxer of the Pacific coast. That accounts for all but 130-pound Frank Reddick, who plays the part of Knobby Walsh, Palooka's classy manager. He'll toss in the sponge.

Jessica Dragonette, NBC's songbird, returned from a short holiday in Bermuda with a new definition of a zebra. She says she overheard a native describe the black and white striped animals as "sports' model mules."

Each member of the cast of "The Goldbergs" is Jewish. Mrs. Gertrude Berg, the originator and author of the sketches, plays Mrs. Goldberg. James R. Waters, the father, is an alumnus of "Able's Irish Rose." Rosie Silber and Alfred Kohn play the children.

Language of Broadcasts
 The talking motion pictures and the radio are undeniably having an effect on language as it is spoken. The microphone has definite limits, which are even further limited by the films and their technique. Long words, and particularly sibilant words with nuance of inflection, do not reproduce properly. So for the making of "talkies" there has to be a vocabulary censorship. This censorship has weeded out a long list of words. It is noteworthy that most of those words which have been retained have been those belonging, roughly speaking, to the Anglo-Saxon family. And many of those which have been banished are of distinctly Latin ancestry.—Philadelphia Ledger.
