EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1932.

NUMBER 41

East Jordan vs. Harbor Springs

SATURDAY, OCT. 8, 2:30 P. M., AT H. S. FIELD. ADMISSION 25c.

East Jordan Defeats Charlevoix 21 to 0.

East Jordan scored enough points in the first half to defeat Charlevoix by the score of 21 to 0 last Saturday. The second half honors went to Charlevoix who puzzled the East Jordan team with a deceptive short passing attack that was difficult to solve. The East Jordan second team played the third quarter and held their own. There were no outstanding stars for East Jordan because the whole team clicked like a machine.

Each man had his assignments and carried them out to the letter. Bobbie Somerville scored the touchdowns for East Jordan but received great blocking from his team-mates. The whole team functioned as a unit. The team thus far has shown wonderful co-operation. The success of this year's squad for the season will depend upon the development of further co-ordination and co-operation.

The first touchdown was scored after three minutes of the first quarter when Gilbert Joynt recovered a fumble from a kick and Bob Somerville ran 20 yards for the touchdown. The second touchdown was made possible through a pass to Hignite who ran to the 10 yard line and Bob Somerville plunged for the touchdown on four plays. The last touchdown was caused by a blocked kick on Sweet's part and recovered by Brooks on the 10 yard line where Bobbie went over for the third touchdown. The extra points were made by Bobbie, Dale and Hignite on a line play, an end run and a forward pass. The crowd was curious in the third quarter when the new substitution rule came into effect which disqualified Dale Clark for going back into the game in the same quarter in which he was taken out.

Harbor Springs comes here Saturday for revenge for the beating received last year, but we have to battle hard to hold our own.

The team will practice hard this week fixing up a defense to stop the expected strength that Harbor will show in their forward passing attack. A big crowd from Harbor is expected and there should be a large attendance of the home fans at the game rooting for victory. Let's all be there!

FATE OF BANDIT AROUSES CORSICA

Case of Last of Robin Hoods Divides Island.

Eastia, Corsica.—The fate of the picturesque and romantic honor bandits of Corsica is swinging in the balance as a court decision decides the case of the last of the Robin Hoods, known as Jean Simon Ettori, who ranged the island brush for 27 years and gave himself up to the authorities in their campaign to cleanse the island.

All of Corsica is divided over the question, which they claim is one of honor, involving the right of native Corsicans to pursue their feuds and live the free and adventurous life of banditry, according to the code in which personal honor with a dash of kindness and gallantry, flavors their ways.

Ettori claims he committed only one crime, and that 27 years ago, which was demanded on the honor of his family. Being thus outlawed, Ettori accepted the life of beautiful and primitive hillside, and for 27 years he carried on in the true Robin Hood style.

Ettori was unsympathetic to the killers and murderers who rob taverns and poor people indiscriminately to the bad repute of the island and the Corsican race.

It is claimed that Ettori's past is not all filled with gallant exchanges of booty from rich to poor, nor are his days and nights idyls of free and romantic beauty in the lower-scented headlands over the Supplire sea. There is a little item of the killing of Antoine Lenzi at Pila Canale, when three distinguished bandits arrived at his tavern, demanded much wine, asked for the bill and paid it with bullets, killing Lenzi and blinding a customer, Dominique Casabianca.

There is a tale of wounded gen darmes in a scuffle at Saparellu when a bandit was being sought who had not done his military service, and who let a gun fall in his flight, and this gun bore the name of Simon Ettori.

These incidents must be studied by the court, but there is no doubt that Ettori has honorably presented himself to the court, and if it decides he has honorably lived, Ettori, the honor bandit, will go free.

NEARLY ALL FIRE LOSSES ARE PREVENTABLE

The report of the State Fire Marshal shows that on an average, annually, we lost through fire, 15,242 dwellings, 2,506 stores, 1,979 garages, 1,215 automobiles, 1,174 barns, 560 hotels and apartment houses, 340 factories.

The greatest hazards are shown as follows: Restaurants, theatres, dry cleaning plants, laundries, churches, bakeries, foundries, hospitals, schools and so forth.

These fires can nearly all be prevented by eliminating the hazards which exist in the home and other buildings.

Assist your State Fire Marshal by making a thorough inspection of your home and property in endeavoring to eliminate all rubbish and fire hazards. It is suggested that you carry this out with the assistance of your family during Fire Prevention Week, October 9th to 15th, 1932.

STATE OFFICERS ARE RE-NOMINATED

Complete approval of the Republican party in its State officers was shown at the State Convention in Detroit, when the present State officers were re-nominated by unanimous acclamation.

They are: Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald; State Treasurer Howard C. Lawrence; Attorney General, Paul W. Voorhies; and Auditor General, Oramel B. Fuller.

The desire of the Convention was so apparent when Governor Wilber M. Brucker declared that the four officials should be re-nominated, that "set" nominating speeches were eliminated. Perry F. Powers of Cadillac, followed the Governor in nominating the officers in one short address. This was greeted by shouts of approval where a viva voce vote was called for.

Another evidence of the esteem in which Michigan holds its State officers was shown in the gatherings of delegates prior to the formal convention. At no time, were any other names mentioned as possible opponents to the present incumbents.

Picture of Gorgulov Recognized by Mother

Moscow.—An eighty-two-year-old woman in a village of the Kuban region (in Ciscaucasia, bordering on the Black sea) was shown a Paris newspaper clipping picturing a dishevelled, wild-eyed, blood-stained man denounced in screaming headlines as an assassin.

"It is he! My Pashka!" she cried. It was the first picture Mrs. Varvara Gorgulov had seen in a decade of her son, Paul, assassin of the French President, Paul Doumer.

A Moscow reporter obtained from the woman a statement attesting that the man in the picture is her son. The assassin's aunt also signed an identification. The document received prominent display in Pravda, official organ of the Communist party, along with alleged interviews with villagers who recalled Gorgulov as a bitter enemy of Bolshevism.

British Museum Receives Ancient Elephant Teeth

London.—The natural history museum has been presented with three teeth of an ancient elephant, each weighing between three and four pounds, unearthed in a gravel pit near Gravesend, Kent. Ancient elephants roamed the Thames valley long before the mammoth and were the ancestors of the straight tusk elephants of Africa and India.

Lord Loses Hat Where Ancestor Lost His Head

Bolton, England.—"I lost my hat on the spot where my ancestor lost his head," was the humorous comment of Lord Derby, attending the Bolton Conservative association bazaar here. He revealed he had mislaid his hat some where in the town hall, within 200 yards of the spot where his ancestor, also a Lord Derby, was beheaded in the market place in 1651.

State Ram Truck To Visit County

AT GEORGE HANSON FARM ON WEDNESDAY, OCT. 12.

Arrangements have been made to have the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders Association Ram Truck stop in this county on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 12th, at 2 o'clock at the farm of George Hanson, located one-half mile south of Ironton on the west side of South Arm. This project is sponsored by the Michigan State College Extension Department as a service in helping the county sheep men in the selection of high quality sires.

At each stop a regular sheep meeting will be conducted and discussions will be given on timely fall flock management practices. The fact that the rams will be present makes this meeting of additional interest as these animals are being used to demonstrate the desirable points in the selection of a ram, besides they are used to show the various breed characteristics and to show how to age, judge and handle sheep. Other important topics such as culling ewe flocks, lamb grading, flushing and breeding problems will also be taken up. This discussion will be conducted by Delmer H. LaVol, Extension Specialist in Animal Husbandry.

The rams on the truck this year will be of very good quality and will be priced to sell. They have been carefully selected by the Secretary of the Purebred Sheep Breeders Association and the Extension Specialist. These rams have been selected from the very best flocks of the State and are sold with registration papers and breed guarantees.

The most common breeds will be carried, such as Oxford, Hampshire and Shropshire. There will be many extra animals of each breed offered for sale at the close of each meeting. In case you have a ram you wish to trade or sell, get in touch with your County Agricultural Agent. It may be possible to make a trade with the ram truck. Remember that you have the opportunity of seeing a large number of special rams of different prices so that if you are interested in buying you can see what you buy.

Remember the use of a good ram is the first step toward assuring yourself of a good quality lamb crop next spring. The market demands blocky lambs of early maturing qualities. Why not produce this kind? The old adage of "Like begets like" is an important one to remember in this case as there is no individual that will stamp his characteristics on his offspring more strongly than will a good prepotent purebred ram.

With only one meeting in the county it is quite necessary to have a central location and it is felt that Ironton would be within reach of all districts in the county. Don't forget Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 12th at the farm of George Hanson at 2:00 o'clock.

ROOSEVELT SCORED BY NORMAN THOMAS

A new phrase, "amiable nothings," was coined by Norman Thomas, socialist candidate for President, in discussing the speeches of the Democratic candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt. Thomas declared that Roosevelt has behind him the "greatest miscellaneous, ramshackle lot of office-seekers in the Democratic party, shouting

"Hehah, here we come." Even Roosevelt's liberalism was attacked by Thomas in an interview in Jackson with William C. Richards of the Detroit Free Press.

"Mr. Roosevelt remains a synthetic liberal who writes endorsements of liberal ideas—and then does nothing," Mr. Thomas said. "And he has given Tammany more things that it wanted than any Governor of New York State in the last 20 years. His speeches amuse me with their amiable nothings."

Mr. Thomas, in four short sentences, showed the shallowness and lack of constructive thought in the Roosevelt campaign. He said:

"Mr. Roosevelt has yet to speak out on the bonus. All he has offered for the railroad problem simply makes it easier for the roads to get a receiver.

"He is against the power trust, but the people of New York are paying 50 per cent more for power, via a 'service' charge than when Mr. Roosevelt took office.

Do you want to buy, rent, or sell? Do you want employment or give employment? Try a Classified Ad. Moreover, he has done less well in giving aid to the unemployed than Jimmy Walker did while Mayor—and that's saying something."

We are studying the Bones and Joints in Healthy Living, and have quite a collection of them.

Fifth and Sixth Grade—Section 2—We have slightly changed our room this year. In fact we have allowed twelve fifth graders to come into our midst to live up the spirit. We are enjoying their company very much and hope we sixth graders are setting a good example for them.

We had our first art lesson this week, and did some very nice free hand work.

Our room is very pleasant, and we are proud of it. We have seven new pictures which we bought with the $2.00 given us by the P. T. A. last spring for obtaining the most votes in the membership drive.

The people who have received 100 per cent in Spelling this month are: Dorthey Ager, Sonny Bulow, Paula Earl, Shirley Sturgell, Doris Parks, Elaine Collins, Marion Hudkins, Lucinda Moore, Helen Nichols, and Buddy Staley.

JUNIOR HIGH

7th Grade—The geography classes are being kept busy during the month of September by taking care of a notebook. They have drawn charts pertaining to the globe, and are becoming acquainted with important terms used in geography.

The history classes in the 7th grade are studying about the ancient peoples who started civilization about 5,000 years ago and the many contributions in the form of inventions and discoveries that they gave to us.

The boys healthy living class has learned about the importance of being healthy and clean. They have also learned the game of speed ball during the past week and enjoyed it very much.

The seventh grade this year has seventy-five pupils. They are divided into two sections by alphabetical order. All those from "A" to "J" are in 7A and "J" to "Z" in 7B section.

SCIENCE—JUNIOR HIGH

All eighth graders have a new class to attend. It is a science class that meets twice a week. The grade is divided into two sections. One meets on Monday and Thursday and is taught by Mr. Roberts, the other meets on Tuesday and Friday and is taught by Mr. Wade.

Several experiments were given by the instructors the first day and they proved to be very interesting. It has been thought for years that the eighth graders do not have enough work to do after the preceding year when they had only one study period. This new class therefore has been added for the student's own good, giving them a chance to use their spare time and to help prepare them for their first year in high school.

SOCIOLOGY

The Sociology class is studying the relationship of psychology to social problems. Several interesting discussions have arisen in class on the subject of whether an animal can or cannot think.

Some of the textbook material has been supplemented by many illustrations from the interesting book entitled, "Fruit of the Family Tree". This book which is a scientific treatise, has appealed to the interest of

CELEBRATE FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

The following, relative to former East Jordan residents, is taken from the Flint, Mich., Daily Journal of Sept. 30th:

"Mr. and Mrs. Albert Trombly of 306 VanWagoner Street, observed their 50th wedding anniversary on Thursday, Sept. 29th. A dinner for 45 was given by their children for relatives of Flint and from out-of-town.

Two of their sons live in Flint, Jay and John Trombly; while Dr. F. F. Trombly and Mrs. LeRoy Langland and families, who reside in Chicago, were present for the occasion. Another guest was Mrs. Trombly's sister Mrs. Anna McDonald of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Trombly were presented with many gifts and flowers.

many members of the class. Several people have secured this book for outside reading.

MATHEMATICS

Geometry—The Geometry Classes are finding themselves perplexed with their first proofs. Three theorems have been learned and each has been followed with several problems.

Algebra—The Algebra classes have been studying the different types of graphing, they have studied and have made several line graphs of positive and negative numbers. Although this is a difficult section of Algebra, almost every student in the class has a true conception of their meaning.

Trigonometry—This is a class in higher mathematics which has been organized to accommodate post graduate students and other students preparing to enter engineering schools. This semester we are studying solid geometry, and next semester advanced algebra will be taken up.

English—The English 4 students have finished the so-called "Transition Period", between the time of Chaucer and that of Shakespeare, especially interesting. Here they have found evidence of the great influence of the work of Caxton, the first English printer, as well as the influence of the revival of interest in the classics that also came in this period. They have discovered from what crude beginnings our dramas originated.

Tests have been occupying us quite largely during the few school days of this week. Because of the Teachers' Institute held at Traverse City Thursday and Friday there was no school on those days. Our school news is rather incomplete this week because of this fact also.

Soils—We have finished our soil experiments and find that there is more pour space in sand than clay but sand weighs the most per equal volume after having all pour spaces full of water.

We have been studying the ten soil elements and what part they play in plant growth.

Chemistry—This week the Chemistry class has been studying what is considered one of the most important chapters of the book, "Atoms and Molecules". In the chapter the subject of Theories, Atoms, Atom weights, molecules, symbols and formulas is taken up.

The class has found by this time that Mr. Eggert's way of finding out what each student knows is by an unexpected quiz. Three have been given so far this year.

The Tuesday laboratory class experimented with bopper, magnesium, and tin in class. Each student is required to write up the results of the experiment in his laboratory manual.

6. If the name of any person who is not a candidate on any ticket is written or placed on a party ticket opposite the name of the office and there is a cross in the circle under the party name, the name so written or placed shall be counted one vote for such person, whether the original name on the party ticket is erased or not, excepting cases where there is a cross in the square before the name of some opposite candidate on some other party ticket.

7. If no cross is placed in the circle under the party name, a cross in the square before the name of any candidate shall be deemed a vote for such candidate except in cases where the elector votes for more candidates for the same office than are to be elected.

No More Lost Babies in These Stores

No more lost babies, if the Capwell department stores of Oakland, Calif., have anything to say about it. When you check your baby in the nursery you will be sure to get the same baby when you have finished your shopping. Miss Mary Stone who is in charge of the nursery is being assisted by Inspector Cooley on account of the grand rush to toe the mark. Bobby Ames is the first to sock his dimpled foot into the ink.

SLOT MACHINE MILK

Now London shoppers may get fresh milk at all times from this automatic slot machine which, after the money has been inserted in its slot, produces a pint bottle of the beverage. Twelve cents is put in the slot, and when the empty bottle is replaced in the machine six of the cents are returned to the shopper.

Church Attendance Was Too Large

The little abandoned church seen above is on a quiet street in Clifton, N. J. Recently prohibition agents noticed it was drawing an astonishing number of "worshippers," and on investigation they discovered the fully furnished bar shown in the lower part of the picture.

Faced with the problem of distributing material and supplies over the eight acres of floor space in the new Department of Commerce building at Washington, which is said to be the largest office building in the world, officials have solved the problem by installing small electric tracks.

NEWS from MICHIGAN

Oakley—Archie Crippen has a Guernsey calf which only weighed 24 pounds at birth, could not walk until six days old and drinks only a pint of milk daily.

Muskegon—Mary Flentlewiez, 11 years old, was burned seriously when a younger sister threw a lighted paper toward her, setting fire to her dress.

Kalamazoo—Approximately a ton of the finest celery on exhibition at Kalamazoo's second annual Celery Show was distributed among the hospitals and philanthropic institutions of the City to be enjoyed by the sick and needy.

Tecumseh—A rooster's crop contains a gold filling from the mouth of Mrs. Hollis Clark. The rooster, a pet, was being fed by Mrs. Clark on her lap when it reached up and pecked out the filling which it apparently mistook for another kernel of corn.

Mt. Clemens—Ruben Palmer, 10-year-old son of Dan Palmer, was saved from drowning in a manhole when Pearl Reise, 12-year-old Mt. Clemens girl, saw him and pulled him out. The boy took the cover from a manhole at North Broadway and Charles street and fell in head first. He was unhurt.

Alpena—Detroit & Mackinac Railroad crews were busy recently repairing the damage done when four tank cars containing 40,000 gallons of gasoline and a baggage car burned near Metz. Rails were warped and ties burned for half a mile. John Baillargon, Alpena, brakeman, and Joseph Gettling, Bay City, express messenger were slightly injured.

Iron Mountain—Fred Mitchell, grocer, had a nice, plump partridge for dinner without the use of ammunition or the cost of a hunting license. Mitchell was sitting in his home when he was startled by the crash of falling glass. He hurried into the kitchen and found a partridge, near death, in a rocking chair, and a kitchen window broken.

Coldwater—Harry Blackstone, Col. on, near here, nationally known as a magician, will provide a 200-acre home for wild fowl in Sturgeon Lake, the site of his home at Colon. The magician is being assisted in the project by Dr. M. D. Pirnie, of the Kellogg Bird Sanctuary, Battle Creek, and Prof. H. M. Wight, head of the School of Forestry, Ann Arbor.

Lansing—The Red Cross came to the aid of 1,368 families in Michigan during the year ending June 3, Miss Josephine Davis, field representative for Western Michigan, said in an address at a conference here of state workers for the service. Miss Davis said that 185,915 senior members and 101,405 junior members had joined the Red Cross in Michigan during the last year.

Mt. Clemens—More than 100 local residents called City Clerk Joseph Matthews. Recently he sent out notices advising them that if their water bill was not paid their water would be shut off. When they failed to get any response from their water faucets, they believed the threat had been made good. A water gauge broke at the City Water Works and the water was turned off all over the City for repairs.

Richmond—The elevator, hay and coal sheds of the Columbus Elevator Company, at Columbus, a village on the Grand Trunk about eight miles north of here, were destroyed by fire. The loss was estimated by Matthew Burke, his son, James Burke, and John O'Donnell, the owners, at from $2,000 to $40,000. The fire started from sparks from a gasoline engine used to operate elevator machinery, it was believed.

Fremont—Charles Whitman, 64 years old, conservation officer for the Northern Newwaygo District, died of injuries suffered when he was run over by his own car, which he cranked in gear. It was the second mishap of the day for Whitman. His car had overturned in a ditch earlier in the afternoon. He escaped unhurt in that accident but damage to the machine apparently paved the way for his fatal accident.

Crystal—Fire destroyed the Crystal Postoffice and Alfred Newberry's hardware store, which contained $7,000 in stock. The mail was saved by Postmaster J. A. Lasalle. The fire started from an undetermined cause in the second story of the hardware store. The buildings were owned by Case DeYoung and were valued at $5,600. Bradford Higbee, 19 years old, was in the building when the fire started and was burned and struck on the head by a falling beam in making his escape.

Milford—When giant puff balls run around 10 pounds the mushroom hunter is elated over his find, but when one tops the scale at 39 pounds it establishes a local record. One mushroom weighed almost as much as Clarence Smith, of Milford, who found it—with many smaller ones, near Walled Lake. This species, scientifically called Calvatia gigantea, is highly prized as food. In some of the Atlantic coast states it is used as a sponge, as tinder for starting fires, for making color dyes and burned under bee hives to stupify the bees.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 9

THE CHRISTIAN IN THE FAMILY

Luke 2:4-52; 10:38-48. GOLDEN TEXT—I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way. O when wilt thou come unto me? I will walk within my house with a perfect heart. Psalm 101:2.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Happy Family. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Home Life of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being a Christian at Home. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making the Home Christian.

Confessedly our subject is a strange one to fit to the texts selected by the Lesson Committee. Jesus is the central person in both texts. It is manifestly improper to think and speak of him as being Christian. He is the eternal Son of God made flesh (John 1:14). A Christian is one regenerated by the Holy Spirit and joined to Jesus Christ by faith on the ground of his redemptive work. Two views of him are presented in these texts:

1. Jesus in the Home of His Mother and Joseph (Luke 2:4-52).

a. Jesus growing (v. 40). While Jesus Christ was divine, yet his deity did not interfere with his development as a human being. The processes of his physical and mental growth were the same as those of any normal human being.

a. He grew and waxed strong. It was necessary for his body to develop. His brain, nerves, and muscles must not only attain unto their proper sizes, but must become correlated.

b. "Filled with wisdom." His mother doubtless was his teacher in those early years. It is reasonable to assume that she taught him to commit Bible verses to memory, and told him the great narratives of patriots and prophets of the Old Testament.

c. "The grace of God was upon him." God's love, favor and tender care were upon him.

2. Jesus found in the Temple (vv. 41-47). At the age of twelve the Jewish child took his place as a worshiper in the temple. He was then considered a "child of the law." Being conscious of his mission, Jesus turned behind in the temple when his mother and Joseph left Jerusalem after the Passover. When they made search for him, he was found in the temple. Observe, a. He was found sitting (v. 46). He was no passing visitor or sight-seer, but at home in his father's house.

b. He was hearing the teachers of God's Word (v. 46). He was eager to learn God's will.

c. He asked questions (v. 46). His growing mind inquired after truth.

d. He answered questions (v. 47). His answers astonished those who heard him.

3. Mary's complaint (vv. 48-50). She reproached with him for his behavior. To this he replied in a dignified, yet tender manner. He made no apology, showing that he was more than the son of Mary. God was his father.

4. Jesus' obedience (v. 51). Though he was fully conscious of his divine being and mission, he lived a life of filial obedience, teaching us that obedience to parents is pleasing to God, and a duty which will be discharged faithfully by those who have the spirit of Christ.

11. Jesus in Martha's Home (Luke 10:38-42).

1. Jesus welcomed into Martha's home (v. 38). Though Jesus had no home of his own, into Martha's home he could come at any time. This home was his special retreat in the last days of his ministry on earth.

2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). Mary had a peculiar spiritual insight which prompted her to sit at Jesus' feet and listen to his words.

3. Martha's complaint (v. 40). She desired doubtless to prepare the very best possible meal for Jesus. He prefers the love which concerns itself with himself and his message to any personal ministry. Because of her failure to see this, she was "cumbered with much serving." She not only found fault with Mary, but found fault with Jesus for allowing Mary to sit at his feet while the dinner was unfinished.

4. Jesus' reply (vv. 41-42).

a. He rebukes Martha, telling her that she is careful and troubled about many things. Those who are primarily concerned with the Master are anxious for nothing (Phil. 4:6).

The one thing that is needful for everybody is to sit at the feet of Jesus.

b. He commended Mary, saying "Mary hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her."

Never Say Can't

Denver Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 3855 1/2 Wolf St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

Columbus Day 1932

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OLUMBUS DAY this year finds a long-discussed memorial to the great navigator nearer reality than ever before, for an international jury of architects has announced its selection of the prize-winning design for the monumental lighthouse which is to stand facing the harbor of the City of Santo Domingo in the Republic of Santo Domingo in the West Indies.

The prize-winning design, a lighthouse in the form of a cross, is the work of an English architect, twenty-four-year-old J. L. Greave of Nottingham, and when the lighthouse is completed it will be unique among memorial structures throughout the world. And certainly it will be the kind of memorial which Columbus himself would have most desired—this great beacon which shall safely guide the sailors of both the sea and the air who follow him to his last resting place in Santo Domingo.

The prize design, according to Frank Lloyd Wright, the Chicago architect and a member of the international jury, not only reflects a monument of distinguished and impressive simplicity, but it presents a memorial form with a purpose. "Anything in the nature of a monument," said Mr. Wright, "is today somewhat old-fashioned in thought. This happens to be more a memorial than a monument in that it serves a useful purpose. Through its radiated lighting, the Columbus Cross will serve as both a good air beacon and a good lighthouse. As a navigators' and aviators' beacon it has, unlike many other monuments, some reason for existence. The historic spot chosen for the memorial on Santo Domingo harbor, not far from the ruins of what was once the palace of Columbus' brother, Bartholomew, is an appropriate site for this enduring symbol of friendship between North and South America."

From its harbor side the lighthouse will be reached by a flight of broad low steps. According to the design the main entrance carries into a building which, as described by Mr. Wright, becomes a series of high cool canyons, the walls bearing sculptured motifs. Standing in the center of the largest canyon are six small altars. From these altars light is radiated upward through clefts (in the mass of the structure) in the pattern of a cross. It is this lighting system that forms the air beacon. The revolving navigators' beacon (a horizontal beam) will be mounted at the center and highest part of the cross. In its memorial chapel there will be a tomb where the bones of Columbus, which some students believe to be in the Cathedral of Santo Domingo, will be laid.

While the harbor portal may be called the main entrance, there are two others almost as impressive. They also form part of the setback design of the pyramidal pattern. There is a fourth portal at the diminishing point of the cross, affording a view of Santo Domingo's aviation field. A visitor may enter at the harbor side, and after traversing the several canyons leave by a rear door. A terrace on top of the structure, also open to visitors, commands a fine view of the harbor and city. The altars, which stand free and clear down the center of the major canyon, will tell through bas-reliefs the story of Columbus and his journey of discovery to a strange land.

That there is no idea of height in the memorial structure, Mr. Wright considers an impressive feature of the design. "Here is something finer in the idea," said Mr. Wright, "something a little more natural, a little more organic, a little more a part of the historic plot it is to commemorate. The simple thing, when you want to mark a spot, is to drive in a post, and in the case of most present-day monuments and skyscrapers the higher the post the better. This memorial is more like making a symbol (in this instance a cross) on the ground and giving it architectural character that will endure for centuries. It is earthquake-proof. In time, the jungle may grow over it, it may disappear from sight, it may be rediscovered. But it will still be a worthy symbol suitably commemorating a great discovery."

More than $800,000 has already been contributed by this country for the monument, which will cost in the neighborhood of $1,500,000. Santo Domingo and several South American cities have appropriated several hundred thousand dollars for the project, which is in charge of a committee of the Pan American Union.

So after more than half a century of persevering effort, during which the idea of building a fitting memorial to the man who is universally hailed as the discoverer of America was kept alive by a few enthusiastic Latin-Americans, the dream is nearer reality than ever before in this four hundred and fortieth year since Columbus made his first epochal voyage.

The honor of first suggesting the erection of a great memorial lighthouse to the eternal glory of Columbus belongs to a son of Santo Domingo, whose people have for many generations, despite their small numbers and limited means, done so much to honor the name of the great navigator. Don Antonio de Monte y Tejada of Santo Domingo, the spot Columbus loved above all other lands be discovered, wrote in 1852: "The time has arrived . . . when the verdict of posterity should be proclaimed. This verdict must be as noble, generous, memorable and eternal as his deeds. Let America proclaim it in unison, and let her acknowledge by all means that the honor of the discovery belongs to Columbus; that to him as the initiator of such great exploits are due the many discoveries that have been made by others to this day . . . and in order that this acknowledgment may be worthy of the New World, let us erect in the most visible and notable place in America, in a central point and where it may be visited by travelers as they approach her shores, the statue that his greatness and remembrance demand."

"I designate as such a place, Cape Isabella, on the island of Hispaniola, because there the first city in America was founded, and let it be designed by the best sculptor and paid with funds raised by popular subscription in all the cities of Europe and America. In order that this symbol may carry within itself all the attributes of perpetuity, let there be established in this statue a lighthouse so travelers from the Old and New Worlds may look full of gratitude and emotion toward that venerable image, when they sight the first land from the sea."

Nearly 30 years after these stirring words were penned, another Dominican asked the nations of America to co-operate with ancient Hispaniola to the end that a fitting memorial be reared to Columbus on the spot where he first stepped ashore on American soil. This man was Gen Gregorio Luperon, Santo Domingo's greatest hero in her war against Spain in 1863-65.

Although many statues have been dedicated in different lands to the honor of Columbus—one of the most notable being erected in the Plaza of Santo Domingo City which has since been called the Plaza de Colon—and his ashes have been enshrined in the cathedral in the city of Santo Domingo, yet the idea of a monumental memorial conceived and built by all the people of America, would not die.

At the time (October 12, 1892—the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America) that the Santo Domingo government constructed the great monument that now holds the remains of the discoverer and placed it in the cathedral there, their hope was later to move this tomb to an appropriate structure, crowned by a lighthouse. Lack of funds made this impossible, and it was not until 1914 that really systematic labors were begun to bring about the building of the memorial lighthouse to be participated in by all America.

The leader in this work was William E. Pullian, an American, then receiver of Dominican customs, whose labors resulted in enlisting the interest of editors and publicists throughout North and South America. Mr. Pullian also was the first to appear before the house committee on foreign affairs, where he explained the projected memorial and urged the United States government to participate in the proposal to make this testimonial of gratitude of all the Americas to Columbus an assured fact.

But international support of the long-sought memorial failed to crystallize until 1923 when the fifth international conference of American states met at Santiago de Chile. Here a resolution, proposed by the Dominican delegate, Julio M. Cestero, and unanimously adopted, resolved, "To recommend that all the American republics unite to honor the memory of Christopher Columbus by the erection of a monumental lighthouse, which will bear his name on the coast of Santo Domingo, capital of the Dominican republic, and which shall be built with the co-operation of the governments and people of America and any others who may so desire."

On June 27, 1927, the congress of the United States ratified the action, resolving, "that the several states be notified of the desire of the people of the United States to participate in this movement to honor the memory of the great navigator and discoverer."

Meanwhile the governing committee of the Pan-American Union, having taken steps to secure Pan-American co-operation, resolved in April, 1927, "that the Columbus lighthouse be erected on the coast of Santo Domingo, since this site is the most appropriate one for rendering homage to the memory of the great navigator. This coast was the first land touched in the journey which discovered the continent; it was there that the vision of the New World, given to civilization by the genius of Columbus and the zeal of Spain, assumed reality; it was in Hispaniola that Columbus wishes his ashes to rest and there receive the veneration of America, and it is but just that the monument to his glory should be erected on the scene of his fortunes and misfortunes, near the site of the first colonial city and near the tomb where the piety of a nation has for centuries done reverence to his remains."

"And in order that the offering may be more nearly perfect and more genuinely expressive of the significance of the discovery, of the measure of progress and well being brought to humanity by the store of natural wealth on the continent discovered by Columbus, and of the contribution of culture brought to civilization by the intellectual labor of America, the committee believes it would be fitting for each American nation to send in addition to pecuniary contribution, a portion of earth from its soil to be deposited at the base of the monument and a product of its art or industry to be used in the building, thereby giving real symbolic significance of what is most fundamental and most sacred in the national existence of each country."

The unanimity of thought, labor and expense that animates all the 21 states of North, South and Central America in bringing about the design and construction of this great memorial is one more proof—and the greatest—that Columbus holds first place in the hearts of all men.

Of almost equal significance to the United States is the further concrete evidence that in building this memorial the Pan-American Union has actually become something more than a paper union held together by an imposing building in Washington. Further links in the ties which bind Pan-America may in consequence from this unity of effort be expected in the coming years and these links may well be of the greatest importance to the integrity of this nation.

Mother gives credit to Eagle Brand

Little ROSE MARIE HAGGERTY of Pueblo, Colo., at 1 year, 7 months.

"WE STARTED our baby on Eagle Brand at three months," writes Mrs. W. F. Haggerty, 1016 Carterette Ave., Pueblo, Colo., "and she is perfect now. She has won in three baby shows, and I think Eagle Brand ought to have the credit. She is 1 year, 8 months old now, and has never been sick, not even a cold—and I will send our family doctor's statement if you wish."

"The texture of her skin is just like velvet. I sure have praised Eagle Brand, for I think it has made her beautiful."

"The other day, I was visiting at the hospital and one of the men called a doctor to see her and he asked was she bottle fed and when I told him Eagle Brand, he said, 'Well, Eagle Brand ought to see her' so that is why I am sending the picture."

If your baby is not thriving on his present food we suggest that you and your doctor consider Eagle Brand. Send for free booklet. Newborn Babe Given Intelligence Test

Iowa City, Iowa.—Dr. Orvis C. Irwin of the University of Iowa believes that it is never too young for an infant to start to learn.

Acting upon this theory, the psychologist has begun a series of experiments with babies who are less than 15 minutes old, and expects to begin educating children when they are still in the crib.

A stabilimeter, attached to the child's crib in a cabinet in the University hospital, obtains a perfect record of the child's every movement. The breathing also is recorded. These records are supplemented by pictures taken with high-speed cameras.

Doctor Irwin believes that the scientific studies will enable children to be taught self-feeding, walking and talking at a very early age.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Regular meeting of the common council of the City of East Jordan held at the Council Rooms, Monday evening, Oct. 3, 1932.

Meeting was called to order by the Mayor. Present: Mayor Watson, and Aldermen Strohl, Mayville, Taylor, Kenny and Williams. Absent: Alderman Parmeter.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The following resolution was offered by Alderman Williams, who moved its adoption; seconded by Alderman Taylor:

Whereas, there are within the City limits of the City of East Jordan several descriptions of property which, through default in the payment of taxes, have reverted to the State, and which, in the opinion of this Council, should be taken over by the said City of East Jordan, and,

Whereas, it is understood that, upon fulfillment of certain requirements on the part of the city, title to this property may be obtained from the State, therefore,

Resolved, that the City of East Jordan intends to avail itself of the opportunity to take over all property within the city limits, on which the taxes are delinquent five or more years, and that the City Clerk be, and he hereby is, authorized and instructed to take the necessary steps to secure title to the same.

Adopted by the council of the City of East Jordan on the third day of October, 1932, by an aye and nay vote as follows:

Ayes—Strohl, Mayville, Taylor, Kenny, Williams and Watson.

The Juniors seem to have a lot of business lately, they have been discussing selling candy and sandwiches at the football games. Juniors have also been thinking about having dances after the game.

ATHLETICS

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP for students and Others.

Sportsmanship is that quality of honor that desires always to be courteous, fair and respectful; and it is interpreted in the conduct of players, spectators, coaches and school authorities.

HIGH SCHOOL students and TOWNSPEOPLE should set a good example in the matter of sportsmanship and should quickly condemn unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of either students or adults.

THE FRANKFORT GAME

East Jordan defeated Frankfort 13 to 0, Saturday, Sept. 24. A pass in the first quarter, Clark to Hignite from the 15 yard line scored the first touchdown—6-0.

Lorraine plunged through for the extra point 7-0. At the close of the first half, ten seconds to go, Clark intercepted a pass and went 45 yards for second touchdown 13-0. A forward pass failed to score the extra point. Neither team was dangerous in the second half.

The veteran East Jordan line held up to expectations and played a strong defensive game. Frankfort did not show much in the way of offensive power and kicked repeatedly. They had a great kicker in Lockhart who booted the ball consistently 40 yards or more. Joyn recovered two fumbles and Stallgrd one which showed the aggressiveness of the East Jordan line. The green East Jordan backfield showed up well considering their lack of experience and should improve as the season progresses.

THE CHARLEVOIX GAME

East Jordan was victorious again last Saturday, Oct. 1st. With Jordan's score at 21-0, she must watch to see that she isn't knocked from her high pedestal.

Just as at Frankfort we started out with a touchdown made by Bobby Somerville.

The team was still going strong at the end of the first half, thus making two more touchdowns, each made by Bobby Somerville.

During the last half neither team made a score. Jordan sent in five subs and still we held them back. The boys are doing excellent team work and we hope that it can be kept up. The team had a very good support and that is what we want also.

BANK AT HOME

Money sent away is just that much withdrawn from the financing of local business industry and farming.

It makes it harder for local people to earn a living, harder for them to pay taxes and hampers local progress.

We urge everyone not only to buy at home but to bank at home as well.

"Did anyone ever tell you," said the girl, "that you have a most dangerous smile?"

The blood leaped to his bronzed face. "I hope you find it so," he stammered, confused at the suddenness of the attack.

"I might," she said, with a curl of a red lip, "if you were more polite. You haven't asked me to sit down, and I'm tired from hard paddling."

He glanced around the strip of sand beach, fringed with alder, then shook his head ruefully. "I'm afraid there's only the beach."

"What's the matter with that?" And she sat down, took a cigarette from a small case and started to smoke, her dark brows contracted, her eyes turned from him where he sat. At last she spoke.

"When a man tells a girl she means something to him—that he wants to see her," she began, "and in the same breath says he's going away so he can't see her, what is the poor girl to infer?"

"That the man is a victim of circumstances," Jim answered. She shook her dark head. "No, that he can't want to see her very much or he'd stay."

"Do you believe that?" he demanded, leaning impulsively toward her.

She met his look squarely, quizzically; then asked: "Can't you wait until September? I might not go out of your life—if you'd wait—I'd be sure then."

"Sure of what?" He was very near her now. The arm on which he leaned visibly trembled with his effort at control. But her dark eyes were now cryptic and he fought down his emotion. Could it be that she had come out here to play with him—amuse herself? At the thought his bronzed face filled with blood.

"Sure of what?" he repeated roughly. "Why? I'd be sure you wanted to see me, again," she said, and clasping her knees in her hands, rocked gently back and forth, as the face of Jim Stuart darkened with anger.

So it had been acting, after all, he thought, her face, her eyes, her voice, yesterday at the post?

He got to his feet and walked to the water's edge with his bitterness. Cool, he had been, to allow this girl to draw him on—play with him, to lighten the dullness of her visit to the forests. But he would play out the game. He turned to the girl watching him curiously from the sand.

"I wanted to ask you," he began as she looked up at him, the trace of a smile at the corners of her mobile mouth, "what Paradis told you about our meeting at the split rock."

Aurora's laughter echoed from the forest behind her. "He said that he had beaten you with a stick and you had promised never to look at me again."

"You believed him?" "What, believe Paul Paradis?" she protested. "I happened to know that Mr. Jeem Stuart, having looked at me once, would desire to look again, and our Paul would not stop him. Beat you with a stick—our pretty Paul? Absurd!"

"Thank you. I did want to look again." And he again sat beside her, now steeled against the wiles of her sorcery.

"Now will you tell me why you go away?" she asked quietly. Her dusky eyes were serious.

"Because my duty to my employers demands it. Have you ever heard of that word—duty, Miss Aurora LeBlond?"

"I understand," she said. "It was just to pass the time—until your duty called you away."

"Yes, I have heard of it, Mr. Jeem Stuart, but I am wondering if its demands are greater than those of love."

He turned on her in amazement to find her troubled eyes seeking the distant ridges. Here was a new mood.

"My place, as you've doubtless heard your father say, has not been successful. This is my last year here—unless I can make it pay. There's no room for failures in the fur trade. With mouth set stiffly, Jim gazed away across the rippled surface of the lake. Stuart, he mused, the man who had made two failures at Sunset

FROM THE BEGINNING

At this far post, Sunset House, in the Canadian north, Jim Stuart, trader in charge, with his headman, Omar, rescues a girl from an overturned canoe in the lake. She is Aurora LeBlond, daughter of Stuart's rival in the fur business. In a spirit of fun, she and Jim arrange to exchange notes on a certain island. LeBlond, with Paradis, his half-breed lieutenant, arrives in search of the missing girl. Paradis displays enmity toward Jim, though LeBlond acknowledges his debt of gratitude. Going to the island to see if Aurora has left the promised note, Jim is ambushed by Paradis and forced to travel toward the LeBlond post. On the way he overturns the boat, leaving his enemy on the beach. Jim's superior, Andrew Christie, displeased at Stuart's trade showing, allows him, at his request, one year to "make good." Paradis bribes an Indian to ambush Jim and Omar. The attempt fails, and Jim takes the Indian to LeBlond. After hearing the story, LeBlond discharges Paradis. Jim and Aurora arrange a rendezvous.

House. One, all the trade would know; the other—only Aurora LeBlond and his heart.

He filled his deep chest with the spruce-sweet air; then expelled it as something unclean. He looked down at the hand of the girl beside him and the dark eyes which met his shone, but not with mockery.

"I understand," she said. "It was just to pass the time—until your duty called you away."

Wide eyed with surprise he met her dark gaze as she withdrew her hand. But in the depths of her unwavering eyes lurked no trace of guile. Confused, electrified by her touch but suspicious, he passionately rejoined: "You accuse me of that—you, who are going so soon—who amused yourself with a poor devil of a fur man?"

Her face flamed as he choked out the words. With a little cry she faltered: "Ah, you do—you do love me—Jeem Stuart!"

As the sun destroys mist, her clouded eyes—her voice, banished the suspicious of the bewildered Stuart. With a quick movement he had her in his arms.

"And you love me—Aurora!" he murmured, breathing in the fragrance of her hair as he crushed her fiercely to him.

With a deep sigh she turned in his arms and flung back her head. Taking his bronzed face between her hands, the glowing eyes of the girl lifted to his.

"Look, you doubter! Are you satisfied—?" His hungry lips crushed back her words.

There they sat on the shore of the Lake of the Sand Beaches, the man of the forests and the girl of the city, oblivious of the gulf which separated them; forgetful of the fact that long months would intervene before the return of Aurora to Bonne Chance. Hours were but minutes to the two who had found each other only to separate.

"The miracle of your wanting your lovely self on a fur trader!" Jim was repeating.

"My father is a fur trader," she replied. "And I thought I was being rescued by a Viking that day you lifted me into your canoe. Oh, she said, with her contagious smile, "will you rescue me again, some time, Jeem?"

"You're in great danger, now, where you are," laughed the enraptured Jim. "I'll have to rescue you from the sand." And he swung her to his lap, that he might run his fingers through the raven ripples of her thick hair; marvel at the smoldering depths of her changing eyes; touch with his lips the satin texture of her skin.

So they spent the golden hours, hardly stopping to lunch from the basket Aurora had brought. And then, as the sun swung toward the western ridges, with a pang, like the stab of steel, Jim realized that his dream was near its end. For it all seemed unreal, imaginary—this lovely, headstrong creature caring for Jim Stuart, fur trader.

"It's been so beautiful," she said, wistfully. "If we never meet again, we've had this day."

"Never meet again?" he gasped. "Don't even think of it! Meet again? Why, I'll only exist until you come back. It's all I have to live for."

"But you have your duty," she mocked with a toss of her black head. "We might have many days like this—before September—only for that duty."

"We'd be sure to have trouble with your father. He'd find out." He shook his head gravely. "And you'd not really want me to forget my duty, would you? You wouldn't have me throw up my work and follow you to Winnipeg?"

"I could not love thee half so much, loved I not honor more," she taunted. "Oh, you men! You'd die for love, so you say; but your duty—well, that's a cat of another color." Suddenly two great tears stood on her lashes. With a moan her arms found the neck of the man beside her. "Oh, Jeem, I love you so. I just can't think of your going away."

"You'll write very often and send them all by the Christmas mail!" he said, stroking her thick hair.

"But a canoe may go south in the fall."

"Yes, and I'll go to Expanse on the first sledding snow. The last canoe from the railroad might bring your letters."

"Jeem Stuart, what have you done to me?" she suddenly exclaimed, holding him at arm's length. "I've never felt this way before." She touched her heart. "It's as if I'd been stabbed, right here!"

"I know, sweetheart. I'll carry that longing through the short days and the long winter nights—that hunger for you." And the factor of Sunset House held the sobbing daughter of Louis LeBlond, as he kissed her hair, her eyes, her throat.

A mile away a canoe slowly approached, following the shore.

"There comes Omar." "It's over, Jeem—our golden day," she sighed. "There's Marie, too. Come over here in these alders!" she suddenly commanded. "I can't bear to share you with these people, and I've a great secret to tell you."

In the protection of the alders, she turned and flung herself passionately into his arms. "This is my secret. I love you, Jeem Stuart," she whispered.

"You'll not forget me down there in Winnipeg—not forget me among all those city men?" he asked.

"Forget you?" Through half closed lids, she looked up at him as she shook her head. "You're a magician—a medicine man. They don't have them down there. I had to come to the forests to find one. You've put a spell upon me, Jeem Stuart."

As the canoes approached, the two in the alders said their farewells. Stepping into her boat, she turned to the man beside her with: "Good-by, magician! Don't forget me!"

Jim bent to shove off the craft and his lips touched her hair as he said: "It will be black night up here through the long snows, Aurora. Come back soon!"

The canoes of Aurora and Jim left the beach and separated. Then across the water she called back to the man whose eyes had not left her: "Au revoir! Until spring!"

CHAPTER V

Far to the north of the Sand Beaches, in the heart of the unmapped Kewadin wilderness, lay a land of lake and forest and muskeg. From this country, for years before the advent of LeBlond, had come the best fur traded at Lake Expance. To the men from Sunset House it was strange country, and often, as their canoe pushed north beyond the Height-of-Land in search of the summer fishing camps of the Ojibwas, Jim wondered how he was to win over these superstitious hunters who, since the building of his little post, had traded only with the North-West company.

At last, one windless evening, the smoke of supper fires, rising from islands, announced that the voyagers had reached the first of the fishing camps they sought.

"Ah-hah!" exclaimed Omar, trailing his paddle while he wiped his wet forehead. "Tomorrow we mak' talk wid dese people!"

"But it's going to be a job to get them to listen to us," said Jim.

"Dey listen all right, w'en we tell dem we come nord, before Crismus, in de Little Moon of de Spirit to trade wid dem."

"I'd like to know just how Paradis and Jingwak have got them to believe all this devil stuff."

"We fin' out, Esau and Omar."

"I trade for a bark canoe an' tak' leetle trip by myself. Den I know w'at mak' de troub'." said Esau.

"You'll have to be careful, Esau. These Ojibwas are a wild lot. They wouldn't hesitate to do away with you if you interfere with their shaman, Jingwak."

The lean face of the old Indian wrinkled in a grin. "You see w'at Esau do to dat shaman."

"Goin' to get his ears?" laughed Jim. "Eef I fin' heem, he mak' no more bad medicine for Sunset House," was the cryptic reply.

So the travelers turned in shore, where Smoke awaited them, and made camp. Later, as they smoked beside their fire, the ears of the dog lying beside them suddenly lifted; the hair of his back and ruff straightened, as his deep throat rumbled in a low growl.

The men stopped talking to listen. "W'at you hear, Smoke?" whispered Omar.

The dog rose and picked his way on stiff legs to the beach.

"Cano' comin'! Ah-hah. Dey see us an' come to have a look," muttered Omar.

Shortly, as the canoe neared the camp, came the hail, "Bo-jo! bo-jo!" "Bo-jo!" answered Omar, strolling to the beach to receive the strangers and quiet the excited Smoke.

Presently, from where Jim sat by the fire, he saw the dark shape of the boat slide in to the beach and two figures step out. Reaching the circle of light, the Indians exchanged the customary salutation and handshakes with the white man and Esau. Handing the strangers a plug of tobacco, Jim invited them in Ojibwa to sit down, while Esau went to the lake for water and put the tea pail on the fire.

"You have come far," vouchsafed the older of the Indians, in his native tongue, when he had lighted his pipe and made a minute inspection of the young white man through narrowed eyes.

"Yes," answered Jim, "we have come to talk to the people of the Pipestone lakes and Sturgeon river."

"You are chief at the post of the old company, called the House of the Setting Sun?"

"Yes." The small eyes of the Indian snapped, his body stiffened, as he leaned toward Jim and angrily demanded, "Why do you bring your evil spirits to the Pipestone lakes?"

At the embarrassing question Omar, who had been studying the Ojibwa, broke into a loud guffaw, joined by Esau. "Paradees, he tell you that?" demanded the half-breed. "Are the men of the Pipestone lakes children to believe the lies of the Frenchman? He tell you that to keep your fur for himself?"

Disconcerted by the ridicule, the Ojibwa glanced doubtfully from Omar to Jim's smiling face.

Bear Family Widespread Throughout the World

From Polar regions where the huge white bear is the ruler of snowy wastes, to the tropics where the little cinnamon bear haunts the jungle, or to the Antipodes where much smaller plantigrades are styled bears, every part of the world has, or appears to have had, some member of the bear family among its aboriginal inhabitants.

Despite the evidence of Scripture sceptical critics for many years derided the idea of bears existing in Syria or the Holy land. Ignorance of ordinary historical facts was part of the equipment of these doubters. They knew nothing of, nor studied the accounts of the life history of the good knight Godfrey de Bouillon, who with his brothers Eustace and Baldwin led an army of forty thousand German soldiers to join the crusade to deliver Jerusalem from the Saracens towards the end of the Eleventh century, and who during the long siege of Antioch in Syria went along to the defense of a poor woodcutter against a fiercely attacking bear, in which encounter he was badly mauled, although he did come out of the conflict victoriously at the last. Certainly Godfrey de Bouillon would bear witness to the fact that there was nothing incongruous in the story David told of having killed a bear in protecting his father's sheep at Bethlehem (Samuel 17:34-35).

Paradise for Shoppers

For centuries the center of Japan's arts and crafts, Kyoto, the ancient capital, has never relinquished its leadership in the creation of things beautiful. Here, in tiny shops handed down from father to son, the secrets of the craft are jealously guarded as nimble fingers turn out the beautiful, cloisonnes, the boxes and trays and cases of damasce and lacquer, the limitless swords whose blades surpass those of Damascus, the bronzes in various sizes and shapes—from the huge more-than-man-high lantern to the delicate silver bronze match box—the dainty Satsuma and Awata ware—Kyo is the shopper's Paradise.

Hope Vitalized
When, by nobler culture, by purer experience, by breathing the air of a higher duty, vitality at length creeps into the soul, the instincts of immortality will wake within us. The word of hope will speak to us in a language no longer strange. We shall feel like the captive bird carried accidentally to its own lands, when hearing for the first time the burst of kindred song, it beats instinctively the bars of its cage.—James Martineau.

Had the Proof
"Son, you haven't washed your face yet, as I told you, have you?" said mother surveying the boy's face, still in doubt, as there had been little improvement.
"Yes, I have, mother; here, look!" he said, as he exhibited a very dirty towel, which made it appear that any cleaning had been mostly by the dry cleaning process.

Fable of Surrounding Endicott

By GEORGE ADE

© 1932, Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.
 THERE was a Married Couple that was blessed according to Custom and Precedent. The important it was a highly-colored and wriggly Boy weighing close on to 10 Pounds. The Father, who had suffered unspeakable Agonies during the Ordeal, was known as Henry or Hen and the Mother, who also was among Those Present, bore the old-fashioned Monicker of Martha, so the Onspring for no particular Reason, was Christened Endicott because that Label sounded like Money and Social Eminence.

Let us take a Peek at the Biographical Data surrounding the Parents so that we may better understand the Policy which they adopted for the upbringing and guidance of the First-Born.

Henry came from a Farm, where he slept on a Straw Tick, plowed through the Snow Drifts to the Little Red School House, associated with a sporty Hired Hand and toiled under the hot Sun for Nothing a Month. Later he did Janitor Work and lived on Soda Crickers and other Food devoid of Vitamins while struggling through a Sectarian College. When he arrived in the City he lacked about Ten Beans of having Anything at all and the only Fact that saved his Boarding House from being a Flop Joint was that the Windows had Lace Curtains.

Henry grubbed and saved and kept a Gimlet Eye on the Main Chance and presently Owned a newly-painted Home which was mortgage-free, and a stream-roller Roadster and a shapely Partner who had Eyes like a Girl of 16 and knew how to keep House.

The Touch System.
 Martha came from a Small Town where her no-good Dad wore the same Derby Hat and solicited Insurance for many Years before he was buried by the Lodge. She had to make her own Clothes and waited on the Table while attending Normal School. For a while she Taught and then she achieved great Popularity by combining rapid Shirt Hand with Correct Spelling and became an Ornament to a large Business Concern. After bumping the Bumps and running the gauntlet and swimming the Rapids and being tried by Fire, she had her own Apartment and a Wardrobe, without losing her Identity as a Member of the Female Sex, and then Henry discovered her and hounded her into taking a Chance.

Here were two Self-Mades who had demonstrated that the Path to Success is paved with flinty Stones and bordered with Thistles. Henry and Martha had arrived because they got out and mingled with all kinds of ornery Mortals and wrangled with Circumstances and were not afraid of Perspiration.

So they figured that to make a Neat Job of little Endicott, they should protect him from all the Hardships they had endured and surround him with all of the sweet and civilizing Influences which had been denied them. In this Respect they were running true to Form. It is hard to find Parents who have any Faith in old-fashioned Recipes. If they traveled in the Grit they want the Youngsters to ride on velvet.

Having proved that Assets have no Value unless they are won in Battle, they proceed to spoon-feed the Child and hire Foreigners to wait on them.

These two anxious Parents read books on the Subject and learned that their precious Jewel should be nurtured to Greatness by Contact with all that is True and Beautiful and Good. They sat up Nights to dope out the proper Environment.

The Big Idea is that a young and responsive and sympathetic Being who leans up against Knowledge and Culture will, by Capillary Action, absorb all of the Ingredients which will make him high-brow and useful and looked up to and envied.

If you surround the Little One with Masterpieces of Art, he or she will come to know the Differences between Good Pictures and those appearing on the Outside Cover of a Story Magazine.

Ushers in a Theater learn the Music of the Opera, without any Attempt to memorize it. The Melodies soak into them.

Kids who are dragged to Church get the Scripture and the Hymns even if they have no Enthusiasm for Sacred Themes.

Even the Noodle-Heads who are carted over to Europe find themselves steeped in History and Architecture and Table d'Hotes and come back different.

Mud Hens With Big Ideas.
 Any tall-grass College can get the Text Books used at Yale, Harvard and Princeton, but when they try to duplicate the Expense Accounts, they fall down. If the Freshman wishes to learn New Tricks from the gilt-edge Products of the Brownstone Avenues, he must take a long Ride on the Train.

He can acquire Facts in any Public Library and get Mental Discipline out of a Correspondence Course, but if he wants the old Savoir, Faire (with the Accent on the Salvo) and the Air of Distinction and that haughty Something-Or-Other which enables a Snipe to look down, from Heights above at an Elephant, he must mingle with the Face Cards. He may not learn to do anything right but he will be so swanky and exhibit so much Slide that no one will ever dare to offer him less than $10,000 a Year in the way of Salary.

Henry and Martha had been Mud Hens brought up in the Marsh, but they were determined that Endicott would be a Golden Pheasant, surrounded by Flower Beds and Fountains.

They began to teach him French while he was Teething. Endicott must have been puzzled for Weeks at a Time, trying to determine which was really his Mammy; Mamselle, the Sanitary Nurse, the Kindergarten Specialist or the Psycho-Analyst who was making a Study of his Responses, which probably means Something to those who are up with the Times.

When other Boys were mastering Marbles, he was taking Lessons on the Violin. While many poor Urchins were roaming the Fields barefooted, looking for Green Apples and Snakes, the Hair-Apparent had on the Fauntleroy Regalia, including Silk Stockings, and shiny Pumps, and was learning how to enter a Ball Room. His Guardians and Keepers and Tutors and Trainers and Handlers and Robbers used a Mechanical Appliance on his Face so as to put his Nose in the Air and give him that Suggestion of Sniffiness which is always a Valuable Asset to any Boy who is ashamed of his Parents.

They regulated his Diet, his Gestures, his Pronunciation, his Complexion, his Amusements, his Reading, his Hours of Sleep, his Finger Nails and his Moral Nature. They worked on him the same as Luther Burbank would have applied himself to a new $20,000 Species.

Fudge Instead of Football.
 He was kept in a Jeweled Box, surrounded by Tissue Paper and Cotton Bating.

When the foeman came, he was taken to the front part of the House for fear he might hear something which would corrupt his Vocabulary.

The only Young Persons permitted to come in at the Tea Hour and join him in a Glass of Malted Milk were those Hot-House Products who were guaranteed to be free from Freckles, Slang and the Normal Instincts of Youth.

When he finally went to College, a large Delegation went with him and put more than 80 Sofa Pillows in his Room and had the Curtains arranged so that the Morning Sun would not strike him in the Face, thereby causing him to start the Day in a Peevish Mood.

Even if the Football Candidates did call him Queenie, he could afford to regard them with Disdain, because he knew more about Porcelains and Walter Pater than the whole Rowdy Bunch put together, and the Wife of the Assistant in Chemistry often said that his Fudges were in a Class by themselves.

He came back from the Varsity with a London Accent which can be acquired only by those who are born far from Great Britain. He had acquired no Vices, except that of taking Aspirin for a Headache.

A good many low-brow Spectators on the Side-Lines had predicted that two Hubbard Squashes could not get together and produce a Lily, but it seems that they were wrong, inasmuch as Endicott now has the most interesting Collection of Postage Stamps outside of the Museums.

Historic Tobacco Pouch Now in French Museum

A papal tobacco pouch has been presented to the Museum of Rouen. It was once the property of Pope Pius VII, who was consecrated to papal honors in 1800. Whether he ever made personal use of this tobacco pouch is not known. He presented it to Cardinal Cambaceres, one time primate of Normandy, as a mark of esteem. It is a work of art, being decorated with gold, pearls and enamel. It has had a picturesque history. When Cardinal Cambaceres died, he bequeathed it to his physician, Doctor Trehet. During the Franco-Prussian war this papal tobacco pouch was hidden away in a wine cellar at Saint Ouen de Thouberville, Eure. The house above was burned to the ground by the Prussians on December 24, 1870. The pouch was untouched by the fire, and until recently it has been in the possession of the Duputel family.

Maid Wed to Goat

Incredible as it may seem, a young Indian girl was recently married to a goat at Ramakrishnapura, a village near the Howrah suburb of Calcutta. The girl's two sisters were widowed at an early age, and, to save his third daughter from the stigma of early widowhood, her father directed that this ceremony should be carried out. The theory behind the practice is that if fate has doomed a girl to be widowed young and she goes through the ceremony of marriage with an animal or plant, the evil spirit will mistake it for her real husband and kill it. Then there will be no curse to prevent her from living as long as she likes with her subsequent real husband.

Speeding the Golf Ball

The first golf balls were not rough, but it was found by experiment that if a golf ball is made rough it flies farther and straighter than if perfectly smooth. Why this should be so is difficult to explain. Probably the roughened ball has more elasticity when struck by the club, and it seems certain, too, that the roughening of the ball makes it revolve like a rifle bullet, and thus gives it a straighter path, with more penetrating power.

All Eyes Turn to "New" Fur Capes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SO EARLY as "stepping out" in that which is conspicuously new-looking and eminently chic she is lost who hesitates to top her "first" fall frock, made either of one of the smart woollens or rough crepes, with a jaunty little fur cape. Later on the style formula calls for the addition of a wee muff or one so diminutive if you prefer.

These little fur capes are about the smartest thing fashion has to offer in the way of an early autumn wrap. As winter comes on they will be worn over the collarless cloth coat which thus multiplies their practicality by two.

It is not only that such varied types of fur are employed in their styling, but the fact that the silhouette of these youthful-looking capes is so variously interpreted, adds greatly to their intrigue. Perhaps if one were called upon to cite one fur as being more generally in use than another for the making of the new capes the honors would go to astrakhan and its near relations such as Persian lamb, broadtail and galyak. Dyed lapin is also a great favorite not only in brown seal effects, but especially in gray for gray furs answer the call of the hour.

Then too, the furs which are made up into new and novel capes emphasize their charm in that they are toned to blend into the color scheme of the costume ensemble. Consider the little mole cape to the left in the picture in relation to color harmony. It tops a frock made of a novelty woolen in a rich autumn green shade, the natural tone of the mole pelt together with the soft green achieving a color value which at once appeals to discriminating taste.

This model is unique in that it is a cross between a cape and a jacket. The fronts of this nobby fur wrap cross and fasten with square silver buttons which emphasizes the importance of a touch of metal to enhance the fall costume.

The outfit which the young woman pictured to the right is wearing is keyed up to fashion's very latest. First of all notice that the cloth dress assumes princess lines and that which is highly significant is the fact of it being buttoned from neck to hemline. It has also a close-up-about-the-throat collar effect which interprets, an outstanding fashion trend. The cape of Persian lamb is the popular circular type. Its accompanying barrel muff completes the picture.

The fashion of separate fur pieces which may be worn with any coat or dress or suit is destined to develop into a vogue of vast proportions.

Milliners, too, are doing their bit in contributing to the glory of the new fall fur ensembles in that they are trimming many of their smartest hats with fur fantasies.

BLACK AND WHITE IS STILL POPULAR

Black and white fashions were by far the most striking and predominant in the recent fall fashion show of American designers.

For street, afternoon and evening wear the dashing, crisp contrast of black and white outshone even the luscious new wine tones that have the town on its ear.

Tailored street frocks of the new lightweight woollens were almost unanimous in their choice of white accents. Sometimes the white was the form of the huge Buster Brown collar of chalky white angelskin silk, with matching flaring cuffs, sometimes reaching almost to the elbow.

Sometimes the white was applied in galyak trimming. A black broadcloth frock, severely simple, was made into something to remember you by with the addition of a little vest of white galyak.

Fur Trimming Is Widely Used on New Fall Suits

Fur trimmings are much in evidence. They are used in new ways, not only on fall coats and suits, but on dresses as well.

Strips of black, astrakhan are intercrusted into wool frocks in the little stripes and squares that were formerly made of satin. Many a collar on a white silk blouse turns out to be made of shag-d lamb or brolschwantz.

There is probably more of a variety of furs used on clothes this year than ever before, but there is no blatant parade of heavy fox bands and voluminous collars. A few elaborate evening wraps show silver fox trimmings; there are some few necklaces of fox skins, but in general, the use of fur in any individual garment inclines to be sparse.

Redfern shows some good practical coats of gray tweeds trimmed with collars of gray astrakhan and lined them with white and gray squirrel.

Taffeta Is Planning a Comeback for Fall

Taffeta promises to stage a style "come back" this fall. The heavy stiff silks which played a prominent role in grandmother's wardrobe are already being used for evening frocks and occasional afternoon dresses.

HIGH WAISTLINE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A high waistline which expresses the simplicity of the directoire silhouette gives this gown of white velvet, with hat to match, up-to-the-minute prestige. The trend to lifted waistlines minus belts is marked in the newer dresses. Another distinguishing touch is the wide ostrich bands on the sleeves. Quantities of ostrich will be used this fall and winter in a trimming way. All signs point to this, and there is a wide use of ostrich bands and novelties in the millinery realm.

Revival Styles Still Hold Chief Interest

It's still new to be old-fashioned. Revivals of styles that were popular in the early 1900's, and even before, continue to be one of the preoccupations of the better Paris dressmakers.

Especially among evening clothes, twenty-year-old modes are among the last-minute fads. Lace mitts, ruffled shoulders and billowing skirts are distinctly 1932.

Buttons in Colors

Buttons are doing their share to brighten the new wardrobe. All-black dresses show buttons of bright red or green and white dresses step out of the all-white category when they are adorned with blue or green or red buttons.

Scientific Advice for the Short in Stature

News for short men. Do not despair, for you may yet add a cubit to your stature, if you but lie down. Height, says Dr. Carroll E. Palmer, increases slightly in the reclining individual. The increase varies with height and sex, and is somewhat greater in men than in women.

The observed extension was sometimes as much as one inch. Doctor Palmer came upon this odd phenomenon in the course of an investigation at Johns Hopkins for the purpose of finding a basis of comparison between the height tables of infants.

Ways of the Kurds

Kurdistan is a province in Persia inhabited largely by Kurds, a race of wild and lawless people. Kurds also are found in Turkey and Russia, where they live in the mountainous regions and mix brigandage with their nomadic traits. There are approximately 800,000 Persian Kurds, 1,650,000 Turkish Kurds, and 50,000 Russian Kurds. Although the Kurds are a wild and somewhat primitive race, they take great pride in their ancestry, many families tracing their descent back to the Omayyad caliphs, Sinna, the capital of Kurdistan, is famous for its beautiful rugs, some of which bring handsome prices.

ALMOST FLAT ON HER BACK

Aching back! Will it never stop? She's nearly desperate. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved "feminine troubles" for over 50 years.

In summer, look cool and never admit you are not.

How Old?

He doesn't look a day over fifty. And feels like forty. At the age of 62.

That's the happy state of health and pep a man enjoys when he gives his vital organs a little stimulant!

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation. But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better in every way. You will never need to take another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a strong stomach, active liver and sound bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way. Syrup pepsin isn't expensive.
