1932 State Tax is $6,370.59 less than the 1930 tax.

If the proposed re-apportionment Amendment should carry, giving the larger counties control of Legislation, this policy would be in danger, and this advantage in revenue wiped out.

And any change in State administration, such as changing Governor Brucker for the Democratic leader, William A. Comstock, would also be dangerous.

Charlevoix Co. Republican Com. Herman C. Meyer, Chairman, Agnes Lorch, Secretary.

Red Lamp and Bell to Warn of Monoxide Gas

London.—A device for detecting the presence of carbon monoxide gas such as given off by an automobile exhaust has been placed on the British market.

The invention is enclosed in a box the size of a telephone battery. It has a window through which a red lamp glows when the poisonous gas is present. At the same time a bell rings.

This bell, presuming the apparatus is in a garage where a man is working, can be connected to any other part of the building and would act as a S. O. S.

It consists of a photo-electric cell, similar to that used in the invisible ray apparatus.

German Plane Has Speed of 1,000 Miles an Hour

Berlin.—A new type airplane designed to travel at terrific speed—possibly 1,000 miles an hour—through the rarefied atmosphere far above the earth has been virtually finished by the Junkers company of Germany.

The new plane for stratospheric operation is said to be equipped with a crude oil Junkers engine and a hermetically sealed pilot room. The wings have an unusually large area for support. Test flights have been made for some time by a famous German pilot.

King Pats Dog, Now He Is Sir William

Weymouth, England.—Emulating King James I, who knighted a loon of beef at Houghton Towers 300 years ago, giving "sirloin" the name by which it has been known ever since, King George has bestowed a knighthood "on a dog."

The animal was "Bill Bulldog," mascot of the battleship Nelson. The sailors dubbed the dog "Sir William Bulldog," after the king had patted the animal on his head. The incident occurred during King George's inspection of the home fleet.

COUNTY-WIDE 4-H CLUB COUNCIL IS SELECTED

The recent 4-H Club Leaders Training Meeting held in Mont's Restaurant, Charlevoix, last Thursday night, was attended by representatives from all sections of the county. A splendid banquet was enjoyed at 6:30, followed by songs and recreation.

During the discussion on plans and preparations for a highly successful 4-H Club season, everyone seemed to believe that a county-wide 4-H Club Council would be of great assistance. This Council will confer with the County Agricultural Agent and will consist of representatives from different sections of the county. With this arrangement a representative would be in direct contact with all club activities.

Mrs. Harold Stueck of Charlevoix was selected as the Chairman of this Council. The other members are as follows: John Vester, Clarion; Mrs. Chas. Withers, Charlevoix; Juanita Baker, Boyne City; Mrs. Robt. Russell, Boyne Falls; Douglas Ross, Bay Shore and Carleton Smith, Charlevoix.

A. G. Kettunen, State Club Leader and Miss Sylvia Wixson, Assistant State Club Leader, were present and supervised the study hour, at which time two groups were formed, one interested in the boys' work and the other in the girls' program.

It is too early to make any announcement as to the number of clubs that will be organized this winter, but it is pretty safe to anticipate around 25 in the county.

Any communities that are interested in organizing a club are requested to get in touch with me as soon as possible. All boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 are urged to participate in this work.

B. C. MELENCAMP,
County Agr'l Agent.

RADIO GROWS INTO GIGANTIC INDUSTRY

Total Investment Is Now Almost Two Billions

New York.—The radio industry, barely fifteen years old, has now a total investment of $1,800,000,000 and contributes more than $500,000,000 annually to the national wealth, according to an analysis of the industry in Dun's Review. It pays out $350,000,000 each year for operating expenses, spends $50,000,000 for entertainers, and provides entertainment and instruction for nearly 17,000,000 homes scattered from Maine to California.

Of the invested capital, $150,000,000 represents the investment of radio manufacturers; $25,000,000 the investment in radio broadcasting; $1,600,000,000 in listeners' sets; and $25,000,000 the investment in commercial radio stations. It is the universal acceptance of the radio that is its best guarantee of continued popularity. To millionaire and laborer alike, it brings the vocal and instrumental genius of the world's foremost artists, reports of sporting events, political occurrences and the news of the world.

Retains Popularity. The retail sales of radio products have fallen from the record peak in the last two years, yet this is not an indication of waning popularity for the instrument, but rather a sign of intense preparation for a period of great achievement. In fact, the drop in sales in 1931 to $309,270,000, and a decrease of 63 per cent from the $842,548,000 in 1929, which was the record year for the industry, is regarded as the natural sequence of the tumbling prices caused by the hectic activity during 1928 and 1929 when volume and volume alone was the aim of the industry.

The major networks have increased revenues over those of last year, they are expanding facilities by acquiring stations in strategic locations. Two of the principal broadcasting companies, both with a basic network of twenty-one stations, charge around $5,000 an hour for night service and $2,500 an hour for day service. Both organizations have hook-ups with fifty or more outside stations which are available at an additional charge.

Television, by being carried out experimentally, will, when developed, probably expand the field of radio.

35,000,000 Receivers. Of the 35,000,000 receiving sets installed in homes throughout the world, almost half, or 17,000,000, are operated under licenses. Subscription licenses, part or all of which are located to the support of broadcasting, are paid by 13,500,000 owners. The total population of radio-licensing countries is 370,000,000, approximately three times that of the United States. These nations have one-half as many stations as the United States, and one-third of these are operated under extra-monopoly arrangement.

Supervisors Cut Officers' Wages

REDUCE GREATER PORTION OF ANNUAL APPROPRIATIONS.

Charlevoix County Supervisors brought their October session to a close Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 18th, voting a drastic reduction in officers' salaries.

The Sheriff's salary was cut from $2,400 to $1,500, and meal allowance from 25c to 20c; Treasurer from $3,000 to $1,800 with $400 for clerk hire; Clerk from $2,800 to $1,800 with $400 clerk hire; Prosecuting Attorney from $2,000 to $1,800.

Probate Judge Ervan A. Rueggeler accepted a voluntary cut from $2,000, set by law, to $1,800. The Register of Deeds was placed on a flat salary of $1,500 and a committee of three appointed to set the fee for recording of abstracts. The school commissioner's salary was left at $1,500, but clerk hire was reduced from $400 to $200 and garage allowance from $180 to $50. The Drain Commissioner's salary of $48 was cut out entirely with a recommendation the office be abolished. It was also recommended automobile mileage be limited to 5c.

Appropriations totaling $5,060 were voted as follows:

County Normal, $1,000; Sailors and Soldiers Relief Commission $350; County Agricultural Agent, $1,200; Michigan Tourist and Resort Ass'n, $400; Michigan Children's Aid Society, $100; Starr Commonwealth, $100; Michigan Children's Fund for district office expense, $375; Charlevoix Hospital, $500; County Picnic, $150; Top O' Michigan Potato and Apple Show, $135; Whiting County Park, $500.

The County Agent's appropriation was $1,300 less than last year, five hundred dollars was lopped off the Whiting Park fund, also a small reduction for County Normal.

An appropriation of $150 to the American Legion to cover cost of distributing confiscated fish to the needy was allowed, also $100 for rent of a landing field at Beaver Island.

The Board accepted a report of the Poor Committee, requesting $25,000 for care of indigents during the coming fiscal year. This amount is three thousand less than last year. A committee of three, one from each county district, was named to audit the Poor Commissioner's bills at their monthly meeting in an attempt to curtail unnecessary expenditures. It was ordered that no cash be given indigents. The report revealed temporary relief to the poor last year cost $9,705.29 in East Jordan; $7,911.93 at Boyne City, and $1,171.27 at Charlevoix.

The mill tax for the coming year is 1 1/4 mills, compared with 1 1/2 a year ago, providing considerable reduction in county taxes.

Practically everything was cut except the Supervisors' own pay, this proposal finding little favor was brought up for discussion.—Charlevoix Courier.

There are 73 countries now broadcasting in various parts of the world. Broadcasting is supported in whole or in part from licenses in 31 of these.

During the past year there was an increase of nearly 25 per cent in the number of receivers in use. The increase was world-wide.

There are now 1,423 radio broadcasting stations in the world, an increase of 33 since July, 1931. Of this number, 806 are foreign stations, operating in 70 countries, and 617 in the United States and its possessions. Of the 607 located in continental United States, New York takes first place with 52 broadcasting stations, and California second place with 43.

Father Fish Mothers Young as Mamma Gads

St. Louis.—One of the most curious families, having literally thousands of members, is attracting wide attention to the aquarium in the zoo here.

It is the sunfish family. The mother fish lays the eggs, thousands of them, in a nest prepared by the father. She then leaves home and does not return.

The father hovers about the nest, his fins in constant movement to supply the necessary amount of oxygen. Unless the eggs are fanned fungus fosters by lack of oxygen, grows on them and they do not hatch.

Eventually the eggs hatch and the father takes charge of the rearing of his young. He guides the youngsters as they swarm away in squads and platoons to shelter in the cracks of the aquarium and between the tiny pebbles on the bottom.

Your brain is only as strong as your weakest think.

Once a month every man complains of his family's extravagances.

HON. F. P. BOHN HAS GIVEN US BEST OF SERVICE

The Hon. Frank P. Bohn of Newberry, Mich., candidate for re-election to Congress from this District, was in East Jordan, Tuesday, meeting friends, while on a business tour of the several counties in his district.

Mr. Bohn while Congressman for this district has given best of service. He always has the interests of his district in mind, is much in favor of tax reduction.

He is a member of several important Congressional committees, one of them, the Postal Roads Committee on which he has served several sessions of Congress.

It was through his recommendations that extensions were granted on the several Rural Mail Routes leaving this city, which has improved the service by bringing mail direct to the homes of patrons on rural routes where extension was granted.

A vote for him Nov. 8th will insure a continuance of such worth-while services.

ROAD COMMISSION HAS $26,000 ON HAND

Sidney Medalie, chairman of the Antrim County Road Commission, was re-elected for another term by acclamation, by the Board of Supervisors, Tuesday, Oct. 18th.

The Antrim County Road Commission, composed of Sidney Medalie, Paulus Haller and H. B. Losey, made their annual report to the Board of Supervisors last week. The report shows a balance on hand of $26,874.99.

The Commission maintained 66 miles of State trunk line, 130 miles of county road and 132 miles of McNitt roads taken over from the townships. This makes a total of 328 miles. Next year the county will take over an additional 132 miles which will give the county road commission 460 miles to maintain.

In 1932 the county received $21,804.62 to maintain the roads taken over by the county. Next year the county will receive $26,165.53 to maintain these roads.

Next year the State will return the entire weight tax of this county, or about $50,000. Approximately $3,000 of this will go to the villages to help maintain the streets.

The Board of Supervisors will not raise any road money by taxation this year, thereby saving the taxpayers of Antrim County about $18,000.—The Mancelona Herald.

I LIKE TO LIVE IN A LITTLE TOWN

(From Toledo Blade.)

I like to live in a little town, With streets all shaded up and down, Where green lawns run from house to street, And you know everybody you chance to meet.

I like to live where I know the folks, As well as the maples, elms and oaks, Where nobody passes without a word of friendly greeting, and where is heard

Sweet song of bird of every kind, To smooth the spirit of troubled mind. I like to live where the roads lead out To miles of country round about, Where town is country, and country is town,

And neither on the other ever look down.

I like to live where a need for aid Is not delayed nor help denied, But where the friendly folk give heed And oft anticipate that need.

Perhaps to live in a little town, Will never bring wealth or renown, Will keep us out of the hall of fame But we like to live here just the same.

After you've lost money there's nothing so irritating as to hear of somebody who's made a lot.

Advertising will convert depression into prosperity.

Get Up Nights? Try this 25c Test

Physic the bladder as you would the bowels. Drive out impurities and excessive acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Get a 25c test box of BU-KETS, the bladder physic, from any drug store. After four days if you are not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. BU-KETS containing buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc., acts similar to castor oil on the bowels. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains, arising from bladder disorders, you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. "Gidley & Mac says Bu-kets is a best seller."

DEER LICENSES ARE NOW ON SALE

Deer and bear licenses for the 1932 season were placed on sale by approximately 1,800 agents of the Department of Conservation, Thursday, Oct. 27.

Licenses have been distributed from the Lansing office of the Department to all agents. For the first time in years the licenses are unaccompanied by the customary "but-tons."

While the licenses are on sale 20 days prior to the opening of the season, hunters are not permitted to enter deer hunting areas with their guns more than five days immediately preceding November 15.

Muskrat trapping licenses have been on sale for some time. They are not available through the regular license agents but are distributed through the regular Conservation officers.

LISTENING IN

(From Boyne Citizen)

The other day, passing the Bank corner, the writer overheard a couple of old fellows talking about whiskey. They were well acquainted with conditions twenty-five years ago, when 13 saloons graced—or disgraced Water and Lake Sts. The burden of talk was: More whiskey is sold and used in Boyne City than before the saloons were closed. We hear the same statement made, continuously. A lot of people who don't know any better, repeat the statement and a very few believe it. That those who have lived in Charlevoix County and have come into manhood and womanhood, during the past 25 years, should give ear to this propaganda, is not surprising. They don't know. They were too young to realize the facts of the saloon era.

ONE OF THE OLD SALOON KEEPERS ALONE, used a carload of beer besides the whiskey and liquors, EACH WEEK. There were thirteen of them. Do your own figuring. It is safe to say that more liquor was brought into Boyne City and dispensed over the bar and thru the "Ladies parlors," in one week than is dispensed by bootleggers and blind pigs still in Charlevoix County in a year.

They make a great to-do and shed crocodile tears about the terrible menace to boys and girls, young men and women in the present conditions. One would think that in the Halcyon days of the open sale of liquor, that the youth were protected from this damning curse. Use your head. If you think that the youth of the past generation were a bunch of morons, you have another think coming. They were actuated by the same craving for a good time and the same curiosity about life as the present, and they had constantly flaunted before their eyes the open saloon and the example of their elders. Not only their natural desires, but the brewers and distillers made a special effort to produce the drink habit. Their business was selling liquor and they made every effort to catch 'em young. The LAW said that no liquor should be sold to minors, but that law was never obeyed in spirit, even if it was in the letter, which was seldom. If the adults less than fifty years old, would quit bragging and snickering about what they "used to do," instead of charging prohibition with debauching of youth, they would have little to worry about with their own children.

They stand aghast at the "debauching of young womanhood." They forget, or perhaps those less than 25 years old never knew of the awful debauchery that was the concomitant of the liquor traffic. Every saloon had its "ladies parlor" to which young girls were lured. The younger the better. They surely "caught 'em young." It was the business of the writer to patrol the streets of Boyne City for 15 years after the saloons were closed, at all hours of the night. During the whole fifteen years, he never saw a bevy of naked girls dancing on the sidewalk or on the tables of the "back room," which was a not uncommon thing during the open saloon era. They are mightily concerned about the young womanhood, but they ask us to legalize the sale of beer, wine and cordials, which, from time immemorial have been the weapons employed by the rake, procurer of prostitute to feed the maw of vice.

They say that there will be no saloons. That liquors will be sold through "regulated Government dispensaries." No more bootleggers, speakeasies or blind pigs. You see no flaring headlines about the conditions as they exist in our neighboring Province of Ontario, where for five years they have been trying the noble experiment of Government Dispensaries. Go to the Canadian Sault, to Windsor and Sarnia. Find out that drinking has increased by 250%. That bootleggers, blind pigs and "Ladies Cafes" cover the whole

Boys Defeat Mancelona 44-2

CONTINUE MARCH TOWARD SECOND SUCCESSIVE TITLE.

East Jordan drove to Mancelona last Friday and added another scalp to their list of victims, defeating Mancelona 44 to 2.

Our crimson shirted boys lost no time in getting their offensive under way, scoring in the first four minutes of play and pushing over another before the quarter was over.

The one disappointing feature of the game seemed to be the two points Mancy got at our expense. Those two points came on a safety, scored, when Mancy blocked a punt which rolled back of the goal at the start of the final quarter. Our second team was playing at the time and the experience they gained from those few minutes of play, may keep more than one touchdown from being scored on us in years to come. So we will just forget those two points and work for the future. The facts of the case are the second stringers played a great game while they were in there and showed the folks we have some boys we can fall back on in case of emergency.

Just one word describes the East Jordan side of the game and that is "Teamwork." When a man tears through the line and runs forty or fifty yards for a touchdown once all season it may be "a break" but when fellows go through the line and sprint that distance for two or three touchdowns in one game there is but one answer and that is the interference is "getting it's men." While there is still room for improvement the team seems to "click" better each game and we're hoping to see this continue until the season is over.

One of the prettiest plays that was ever made by an East Jordan team came in the closing minute of the game. Bob Somerville ploughed off-tackle and with perfect interference ran 45 yards for a touchdown but we were off-side and the ball was brought back. With the ball in mid-field, "Spin" Cihak stepped back to our 40 yard line and tossed a beautiful spiral pass which Hignite took on the dead run, on the Mancy 35 yard line and ran the remaining distance for the score.

Mancelona played a hard and clean game, but were unable to get started and registered only one first down while the locals were running up 20 of them.

country and that automobile accidents charged to drunk driving have become a serious problem.

It is inevitable that the question of the abrogation of the 18th should come up for settlement. The forces behind the liquor business have the driving force of money and profit behind them, personal profit. Especially that part of the country east of the Alleghany Mountains, New York City, Philadelphia and Boston, never realized that it would be possible to close the saloon. They have employed every possible device to break down the enforcement of prohibition, and have worked assiduously to create adverse sentiment. Their propaganda has permeated the metropolitan press with a tissue of falsehoods and prevarications.

It is up to the voters of each town, precinct and county to see that Michigan is not put in the same column of New York. Do not let a bunch of Maryland multi-millionaires break down the freedom that has come to us through the prohibition amendment. Get out and vote.

DAIRY FACTS

NEED CALCIUM IN DRY-PERIOD FEED

Cows Should Be Fleshy in Parturition Time.

As they usually lose flesh for three or four weeks after calving, because they cannot consume sufficient feed to provide adequately for both the milk flow and maintenance of body weight, dairy cows should carry considerable flesh at the time of parturition.

It is a well-known fact that cows in good condition at calving time will start off the lactation period at a higher level of production than thin cows. This results in larger milk yields for the year.

The feed during the dry period should be high in minerals. This is especially true of calcium, since investigations at several agricultural experiment stations clearly show it to be the mineral most likely to be depleted. A supply of calcium may be insured by a good pasture in the summer and properly cured leguminous hay in the winter.

A good grain mixture to condition a dry cow is: 3 parts by weight of ground corn, 3 of ground oats, 3 of bran, and 1 of linseed meal. The quantity of feed supplied should be sufficient to bring the cow to a proper state of flesh at calving time. About two weeks before the cow freshens she should be fed a light laxative ration such as wheat bran, ground oats and linseed oil meal. The ration should not contain too much roughage as its bulk adds to the discomfort of the cow. As soon as the cow freshens it is a good practice to give her warm water to drink and follow with a warm bran mash.

Conditions Tending to Make Milk Unpalatable

Only clean, wholesome feed should be given cows producing milk for human consumption. S. V. Layson, writes, in Hoard's Dairyman. Spoiled feed has a detrimental effect upon the health of cows which will alter the composition of milk and possibly cause digestive disturbance in babies being fed on such milk. Feeding should be done after milking, especially any feeds of strong flavor or odor, as milk readily absorbs odors in the barn which may cause it to be unpalatable.

The cow barn should be located where it may be kept in reasonably good sanitary condition regardless of weather. Well-drained cow yards adjacent to the barn will aid materially in preventing soiled udders and flanks. Mud and filth picked up on udders and flanks contain germs which may be very harmful to the quality of milk if they get into it. A small amount of labor spent in grading the barnyard may save many hours of man labor that would otherwise be necessary to properly clean the cows before they are milked.

Manure attracts flies and offers a breeding place for them. It should therefore be so handled and disposed of as to prevent these conditions. Frequent removal to the fields or, in case it must be stored near the barn, it should be so handled that cows will not be compelled to wade through it to get in and out of the barn.

Salt for Cows

Cows in their search for salt and minerals are likely to eat poisonous materials that will be fatal to them. A number of instances have been reported in the corn belt where cows ate partially oxidized zinc storage batteries that had been thrown aside in woodlands and pastures and died from the effects. All such debris should be buried. Salt should be available for cows at all times. When rock salt is used loose salt should be given frequently because a cow cannot lick an ounce or more of salt from the rock each day without injury to her tongue. When cows get an ample supply of salt they are not so likely to eat foreign materials and be poisoned.—Prairie Farmer.

How It May Pay

On a recent farm tour in Skagit county, Washington, the value of testing was very clearly demonstrated. At the farm of Roosevelt Olson, we found a cow that Mr. Olson intended to sell to the butcher. Her first test was 4.1 per cent. He decided to give her another chance and the first four months after freshening she has produced 231 pounds of fat and $31.40 over feed costs. This cow will easily make $50 over feed costs for the year. Deducting what she would have brought for beef, $20, he will have $30 left or about what it cost to test the entire herd. Testing finds the good as well as the poor cows.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Feeds Rich in Protein

Protein is more efficient in one feed substance than it is in another, says the Farm Journal. For example, proteins of milk are 65 per cent efficient, those of cereal grains only 30 per cent efficient in feeding pigs. In dairy feeding, there has been a feeling that the ration with most protein in was the most efficient. Now experiments have shown that the source of the protein and the variety of protein are just as important, maybe more important, than the amount.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for October 30

THE CHRISTIAN AND LAW OBSERVANCE

(World's Temperance Sunday)

Romans 13:1-7; 1 Corinthians 9:19-27; Galatians 6:1-10; 1 Peter 2:11-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Galatians 6:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Laws for Me to Keep.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Why We Have Laws.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Observing the Law for the Sake of Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian and Law Observance.

1. The Christian Obligation to the State (Romans 13:1-7).

The believer is a citizen as well as a Christian. The instructed Christian will be loyal to the state as well as to the church.

1. Obedience to rulers (v. 1-4). This obligation is upon all Christians. The civil government is ordained of God and reposes his representatives.

2. The spirit in which the Christian renders obedience to rulers (v. 5). He should regard it as his obligation, not only because it serves a good purpose but because it is morally right.

3. Method of expressing this obedience (vv. 6, 7).

a. In payment of taxes. The citizen who enjoys its benefits is morally bound to support the government.

b. Payment of duty upon merchandise, and license fees. The business exchange between nations must be regulated, and for this the citizen should pay.

c. Veneration to magistrates, "fear to whom fear." Those who have the fear of God in their hearts will venerate their rulers and representatives.

d. "Honor to whom honor" is due. Civil officers should be honored because of the ministry they perform.

II. The Christian's Self-Control (1 Cor. 9:19-27).

The true way to get people to be free from intemperance is to help them gain self-control.

1. Paul's own life and example (vv. 19-23). Though free from all men, he made himself servant unto all.

2. The Isthmian games (vv. 24-27). Paul uses these popular games to illustrate the need of self-control.

a. Life is a race (vv. 24-25). In order to win a prize there must be self-denial and definite exertion. The Christian obtains life by contact with Jesus Christ through faith (John 3:16; 3:36; 5:24). This he must possess before he can begin the race.

b. It is a fight (vv. 26, 27). The Christian has a real antagonist—his carnal nature.

III. The Christian Life and Walk in the Spirit (Gal. 6:1-10).

Those who are freely justified in Christ will live and walk as follows:

1. Restore the sinning brother (v. 1). "Restore" is a surgical term which means the placing back of a dislocated member to its place. We are members of the body of Christ and the sinning of a brother ought as really to give us pain as the dislocation of a member of our body.

2. Bear one another's burdens.

3. Bear our own burdens (v. 5).

4. Support teachers of God's Word (vv. 6-8). It is incumbent upon those who are taught in the Word of God to give of their means for the support of the teacher (1 Cor. 9:14).

5. Be not weary in well doing (v. 9). Some fall of the reward because they quit even when the goal is near.

6. Work for the good of all men.

IV. The Christian's Behavior as a Sojourner and Citizen (1 Peter 2:11-17).

1. As a sojourner or pilgrim (vv. 11, 12). Christians are pilgrims on the earth. They are journeying to their eternal home in the heavens. Such citizenship demands:

a. That they abstain from fleshly lusts (v. 11).

b. Behave so as to glorify God before the world (v. 12). The word "conversation" means behavior.

2. Behavior as citizens (vv. 13-17). He has a responsibility as a citizen on the earth. As such he should:

a. Obey all requirements of civil rulers (v. 13). His duties as a citizen he performs as the Lord's free man, not through servile fear.

b. Honor all men (v. 17). We should see in every man the image of God, and in that sense give honor to him.

c. Love the brotherhood (v. 17). The brotherhood is composed of those who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ.

d. Fear God (v. 17).

e. Honor the King (v. 17). This has a peculiar significance because in all probability the wicked Nero was then reigning as emperor.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Many a man lives as though he thought God was afar off.

You may understand love, but you cannot overestimate it.

For the faithful man the way to heaven is right straight ahead.

When Faith goes fishing it takes a frying pan. Doubt carries a box of sardines.

This Little Girl Got Well Quick

"Just after her third birthday, my little daughter, Connie, had a serious attack of intestinal flu," says Mrs. H. W. Turnage, 217 Cadwalder St., San Antonio, Texas. "It left her very weak and pale. Her bowels wouldn't act right, she had no appetite and nothing agreed with her. Our physician told us to give her some California Fig Syrup. It made her pick up right away, and now she is as robust and happy as any child in our neighborhood. I give California Fig Syrup full credit for her wonderful condition. It is a great thing for children."

Children like the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup, and you can give it to them as often as they need it, because it is purely vegetable. For over 50 years leading physicians have recommended it, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows it gives satisfaction. Nothing compares with it as a gentle but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It regulates the stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

There are many imitations of California Fig Syrup, so look for the name "California" on the carton to be sure you get the genuine.

Golden Dinner Service

Not Alone for Wealthy

Would you like a gold dinner service or, rather, one that looks like gold? If so, it will not be long before you can buy it just as cheaply as the familiar nickel plate.

Curiously enough, the new "gold" is made in Sheffield, England, the city of steel. The first just-like-gold dinner service was made as the result of a joke. Messrs. W. Turner and company had been experimenting for some time with a new alloy of aluminum and bronze which has all the appearances of good red gold. "Why not make poor men feel like millionaires?" someone suggested, and for a jest the first near-gold dinner service was made. To the surprise of the firm it aroused an immediate demand. People liked the idea of eating off gold, and the new metal is easy to look after, since it is almost stainless.

The biggest demand, though, is likely to come from South America and other Latin countries, where there is a deep love of gold itself or of metal that looks like it.

SECRETS OF HOTEL SACRED TO WAITER

Good Reason for Discussion Over Caviare.

The Soviet government has done a great deal towards changing human nature, despite the popular theory that this cannot be done, writes Bruce Bliven in the New Republic. Yet Russia is a large stubborn country, and these things take time. I was reminded of this fact in a Russian city, which I think had better be nameless, by my experience with the waiter and the caviare.

A foreigner, unaccustomed to the Russian food of today, learns to learn rather heavily on caviare, which is not prohibitively expensive. In this city I was living on the American plan at a leading hotel, under an arrangement by which I was entitled to caviare with both dinner 5 p. m., and supper 11 p. m.

In the dining room I sat each day at the same table, and was served by the same waiter, an amiable, middle-aged man who spoke a little of what he proudly imagined was German. For four or five days he served me caviare twice daily without comment and then one day I came in for dinner, ordered the dish as usual, and ran into an obstacle.

"Excuse me," he said. "Caviare is an extra in this hotel. You must order it a la carte. Large portion, twelve dollars. Small portion, eight dollars. Which would you like?"

"I wouldn't like either," I explained patiently. "I am paying a lump sum per day, and it includes caviare twice a day with my meals. Don't you remember? You have served me yourself, day after day. Every day. Twice a day."

My words had no effect. "Twelve dollars for large portion," he repeated hopefully. "Eight dollars for small."

"Before I was in this city," I went on, "I was in (let us call it) Danyetgrad. Same arrangement there. Caviare twice a day. Included in bill." His face lighted up. "Ah, ah, ah," he breathed. "In Danyetgrad, yes. Caviare free, with meals, yes. Here, no. Large portion, twelve dollars. All right, all right," I said. "No caviare. Bring me some soup."

At my next meal I again sat at the same table, was served by the same man. I gave him my order: "Bring me some caviare first." He brought it, sweetly and without a word. And all meals thereafter. Puzzled, I told the story to a Russian friend, who gave me the key to the mystery. "Don't you see?" said my friend. "That one meal, there didn't happen to be any caviare in the house. And he didn't want to confess this to you, a foreigner."

One can be too poor to make the friends he wants—and too rich.

What a famous clinic discovered about this amazing Baby Food!

ORIGINATED 75 YEARS AGO . . . NEVER SURPASSED IN DIGESTIBILITY . . . EAGLE BRAND NOW PROVED IDEAL FOOD IN PHYSICIANS' TEST WITH 50 BABIES.

WHEN Gail Borden originated Eagle Brand back in 1857, he did so because there was a crying need for a pure, safe milk for babies. No one knew then what we know now of food values. No thorough scientific research had as yet been made in infant feeding.

Yet, amazing though it seems, this baby food created by Gail Borden proved so remarkable in its nutritive value and in its digestibility that it has survived 75 years of revolutionary discoveries in nutrition—has raised three generations of splendid babies—and today, in as thorough a test as was ever given to a baby food, has proved itself unsurpassed in baby building!

Today, Eagle Brand is hailed as a most modern baby food—second to none in its scientific proof of performance.

How the test was made Recently, two famous baby specialists conducted a feeding test with fifty average babies. For months, Eagle Brand was the only food these babies received, except for the supplementary foods* now given with mother's milk or any milk. X-rays were taken of their bones. Blood counts were made. Tooth development was watched. Heights, weights, strength were recorded. And all these records were compared with records of other groups fed on other baby foods.

At last came the verdict. In every way, the comparison was favorable to Eagle Brand. For those Eagle Brand babies showed themselves superbly nourished. This simple diet—Eagle Brand with the usual supplementary foods*—was wanting in nothing that a baby needs for health, growth. Your grocer has Eagle Brand. See directions on label.

*The usual supplementary foods, of course, are orange or tomato juice, and cod liver oil or other source of the anti-rachitic vitamin D.

With his tump-line Jim lashed the two guns to a provision bag, swung it to his back, adjusted the head-strap over his forehead, and piled on the rest of their outfit, while Smoke thrashed off through the "bush" after snow-shoe rabbits. For a half mile the trail held to the high land back from the river, then turned toward the water. Bent under his heavy load, Jim followed the moving legs of Omar under the peterboro. From the slowly increasing clamor of the rapids, Jim judged that they were nearing the end of the carry and approaching the river, but his sweat-blinded eyes did not lift from the moccasins of the man in front.

Suddenly, the legs of Omar came to a halt. Curious, Jim raised his head banded by the tump-line, but the canoe on Omar's broad back, blocking the trail, alone met his blurred eyes. Then, to his startled ears came Omar's hoarse whisper: "De gun! Quick!"

"What is it? Game ahead?" Jim wondered, as he slipped off the head-strap.

As his load slid to the ground he wiped the sweat from his eyes and squinted past Omar toward the river. With a bound his heart started drumming against his ribs. There, twenty yards up the trail, leaning at the waiting Omar, stiff as a spruce under the canoe, stood Paul Paradis.

"Trapped!" muttered Jim, working desperately to free the rifles from the knotted tump-line which bound them to the pack.

Again came Omar's whispered warning: "De gun! Tak' to de bush! Queek!" followed by the fear of Paradis: "So you have come to visset me?"

With his gun almost free, Jim heard a movement in the bush, and looked up to see two Indians hurl themselves at the man waiting, legs braced, under the canoe.

As they came headlong on, with a lunge of his great shoulders Omar pivoted and swung the heavy peterboro crashing into their heads, at the same time slipping his tump-line and avoiding the falling boat. Then with a roar the enraged half-breed met the rush of a third man and, lifting him above his head in his vise-like grip, flung the writhing body to the trail. Leaping over the stunned Indian, he made for the surprised Paradis.

Dodging into the brush to escape the charging Omar, Paradis shouted: "No knives!" as two Ojibwas captivated into the half-breed from the rear, bringing him to his knees.

But they were fighting to take alive a man whose strength was a byword from God's lake to the Barren Grounds, and, as he tripped and fell with two clanking Indians on his back, legs twisted and his, Omar snarled: "I tak' you, too, Parades!"

When Omar clubbed his first assailants with his swinging canoe, Jim, with his hands on his lashed gun, was hurled to his face by the impact of two heavy bodies. As he fell the realization that all he had worked for—all he loved—was on the next few seconds, flashed through his consciousness.

They had not knifed him! Thought they could take him and Omar with their bare hands, did they?

The old fury he had known in many a trench fight overseas returned as Jim fought the men on his back who sought to pin him to the ground. A desperate heave and he twisted and thrashed in their clinging arms until he reached his knees. A wrench, and he had a hand free, as they fell to the trail—a heap of straining, panting men. Chin clamped on chest to cheat their clawing fingers seeking his throat, again and again Jim hunched his fist over the shoulder into the jaw of the man who faced him, then by sheer strength bent back the head, until, with a groan, he fainted.

Desperate with the knowledge of the white man's superior strength, the remaining Ojibwa clung like a cat, with arms and legs, to Stuart's back, but wrenching himself from his grip, Jim beat him to the ground. On his knees, the hands of the dazed Indian fumbled with something on the trail, as Jim rose panting to his feet. Then, with a blind lunge he lurched forward with Stuart's recovered knife, to meet the crash of a swinging bat which crumpled him in a heap.

Omar!

Picking up the knife, Jim hurried ahead to aid his friend. As he approached, from the limp bodies of two men rose a pair of massive bleeding shoulders, from which a shirt hung in tatters. His heart checked as the sun flashed from a knife blade and a crouching figure left the brush to run at the square bulk of Omar's back.

"Behind you, Omar!" warned the running Stuart.

At the words, Omar leaped far to the side and turned to face the danger. But the courage of Paul Paradis was not equal to meeting the black fury of the unarmed half-breed, and he dodged into the spruce and disappeared toward the river.

"We get de gun!" panted Omar, "dere are more de dem!"

Tearing their rifles from their lashings, Jim and Omar followed Paradis. As they ran, from the direction of the stream sounded the yelp of Smoke. "He's struck 'em! Hurry up or they'll get him!" cried Jim, increasing his speed.

Again above the distant drum-beat of the rapids lifted the angry yelp of Smoke. Then two rifle shots drove

FROM THE BEGINNING

At his fur post, Sunset House, in the Canadian north, Jim Stuart, trader in charge, with his headman, Omar, rescues Aurore LeBlond, daughter of Stuart's rival in the fur business, from an overturned canoe in the lake. In a spirit of fun, she and Jim arrange to exchange notes on a certain island. LeBlond, with Paradis, his half-breed lieutenant, arrives in search of the missing girl. Paradis displays enmity toward Jim. Going to the island to see if Aurore has left the promised note, Jim is ambushed by Paradis and forced to travel toward the LeBlond post. On the way he overthrows the boat, leaving his enemy on the beach. Jim's superior, Andrew Christie, displaced at Stuart's trade showing, allows him, at his request, one year to "make good." Paradis betrays an Indian to ambush Jim and Omar. The attempt fails, and Jim takes the Indian to LeBlond. After hearing the story, LeBlond discharges Paradis. Jim and Aurore acknowledge their mutual love, though Aurore is returning to Winnipeg, and Jim has planned a canoe trip to make a personal appeal to the Indians, who have persistently refused to trade their furs with him. He finds that Paradis has enlisted their superstitions to discourage them from trading with Stuart. Esau, half-breed portman of Stuart, leaves on a mysterious journey, which they hope will result in the overthrow of Jingwak.

Jim headlong, his heart cold with fear for his dog. At last the panting runners reached the river. But neither dog nor the canoe of Paradis was in sight.

"Smoke!" Jim called. "Here Smoke!"

There was no answering yelp. Omar, closer to the water, suddenly dropped to a knee and fired down river. Joining him, Jim looked to see, far below, a canoe paddled by two crouching men. Again and again the two took careful aim and fired at the distant craft, but the range was great, and the riflemen panting from exertion. At last the canoe turned a bend.

Back and forth through the thick bush near the landing Jim searched, calling the dog he loved—hoping, if he were alive, that the hurt animal would answer with a whine. But Smoke did not answer. The two friends widened their hunt, thinking the wounded husky might have crawled off somewhere to die. Finally Jim was forced to the conclusion that the dog had been shot in the water and carried down stream.

Poor Smoke! Sick at heart, Stuart bathed his grimy face and arms at the shore as his thoughts went back three years to the puppyhood of the friend he had lost. From the time when, a fluffy ball of fur, Jim had brought him south from the bay to God's lake, man and dog had known no separation; together they had faced the drive of the blizzards and the slant of the spring rains; shared the hardships of the white trails of the long snows and the summer white-waters. Two great tears ran down the bronzed face of the man who knelt by the river, for the slant eyes of his dog would never again shine with idolatry as his deep throat rumbled at Jim's caress; his plume of a tail beat frantically to Jim's call as he yelped in answer.

"Good-by, Smoke!" sobbed the man, turning his face twisted with grief from the sober eyes of his friend. "I loved every black hair on you. Jim will never forget! Good-by, Smoke!"

"Well you wanted to meet him again and you had your wish," said Jim, as they filled the magazines of their rifles and started back for the canoe. "Now did LeBlond lie to us and send him here to hide, or is Paradis disobeying orders? I wish I knew."

The muscles ridged on Omar's clamped jaws as he scowled his disappointment. "Eef he onlee jump me wid dose oders," he sighed. Then his hand slid back to the empty sheath on his sash. "De get my knife wen dey hit me from behind. Dey get your knife, too? You have moch trouble wid dem?"

"They got mine, too, but I picked it up." Jim smiled at Omar's matter of fact reference to his struggle to free himself of the two Ojibwas. "We must wash these scratches, Omar." He went on, examining the bulging shoulders protruding through the ripped shirt of his friend. "They clawed you like a lynx."

Omar's marked face wrinkled in perplexity. "W'y you tink dat Parades try to tak' us wid hees hand? Ver' strange 'ing!"

"I don't know. Maybe he wanted to keep us in a cage to show us to the Indians up here," laughed Jim. "One thing's certain; if he caught us we'd have never seen home again. But that was a clever trick of yours—clubbing them with the boat, you old wolverine."

These young bucks of Paradis won't forget the trimming you gave them. There were three or four decora'ing 'em when I got loose and started to help you. How they'd laugh at God's lake at these people trying to take Omar Bolsvert with their hands!"

Omar's mouth widened across his square face. "Dese young feller on de Sturgeon keep dere hand off Omar Bolsvert, ah-hah," laughed the swart son of Anak. "Dey got sore neck all right."

"D'you suppose they've come to, and are waiting for us with guns to come back for the boat?"

Omar shook his head. "We go an' see. I tink dey got dere fill for to-day. Parades run; dey run. He keep dere gun een hees canoe. He want to tak' us alive, he not dare geeve dem de gun."

"You didn't kill any of 'em—break any necks—with those bear traps of hands?"

Omar thoughtfully scratched his head. "Wan, mebbe. I twist hees neck ver' hard." Then the narrow eyes of the half-breed suddenly clouded. "Esau!" he gasped. "Dey know we come; by gar, dey get Esau!"

Again and Again the Two Took Careful Aim and Fired at the Distant Craft.

The canoe of the old Indian, a day ahead of them on the river, must have run into the party of Paradis.

"He told me he would travel only at night."

The deep chest of the half-breed lifted in a heavy sigh. "Widout Esau we are no good," he said, as they started back to the canoe.

"He may have missed them. There's nothing to do but keep on."

Cautiously, deep in the bush on either side of the portage trail, the two men approached their canoe. As Omar had said, it was unlikely that Paradis had allowed his men to carry rifles to the ambush, for in their excitement the Indians would have used them, and for some subtle reason he wanted to take Omar and Jim unhurt. Nevertheless, the two men stalked their canoe as if sure that trouble awaited them. But the Ojibwas, recovered from their rough handling, has disappeared, leaving the canoe and outfit, with Omar's knife, lying on the trail, untouched.

"Dey were scare' we come back wid our gun and dey make for dere canoe."

Discovers Evidence of Old Hawaiian Culture

Paved stone foot trails extending over the widest and rockiest stretches of lava, artificial fish ponds formed by building a barrier of rock across a narrow bay or cove, and playgrounds represented by prepared tracks down grassy slopes for sled coasting are among the accomplishments of a forgotten culture found by W. M. Walker of the bureau of American ethnology on the almost deserted island of Maui in the Hawaiian group.

He also found sites of 230 altar places, usually on headlands overlooking the sea and oriented towards the ocean, which evidently had a prominent place in the old religion. The largest of these was more than 400 feet long and had a terraced slope 50 feet high extending over the edge of the hill. Much of this culture, especially the paved trails, is attributed by the natives to the genius of a legendary hero.

The old chiefs, Mr. Walker found in his research carried on under the auspices of the Bishop museum of Honolulu, were buried in almost inaccessible cliffs where it is practically impossible to find their graves.

Green and Black Teas

The same kind of tea leaves can be used for the manufacture of either green or black tea, the difference of the two teas lying merely in the process of curing. Some varieties of tea leaves, however, are better adapted than others for making certain kinds of tea. In producing green tea the leaves are sterilized by steam. This prevents oxidizing or fermentation of the leaf which retains its green color and when boiling water is poured over it, the result is green or greenish-yellow liquid. In manufacturing black tea the leaf is allowed to ferment, which changes its color from green to very dark brown. In the case of oolong or semi-fermented tea the fermentation is allowed to reach a certain desired point.

Fasting the Best Way

"How to improve the appetite," was the theme of a recent medical address that consumed more than half an hour's time. We could tell it quicker: Pass up your breakfast, dinner and supper and repeat the same second day if necessary. Your appetite will improve.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"Yes, they must have had another boat downstream."

As the peterboro was brought to the river, and slid into the water, Jim pointed at a patch of mud. "Look! There they are—Smoke's tracks!"

The two men bent over the deep impressions of a dog's feet in the mud of the shore.

"He jumped from here—there's where he landed. See that moccasin print? He was right after them as they put in the canoe! They couldn't miss him—shot him dead!"

Foot by foot Jim and Omar searched the mud of the shore, but found no further traces of the vanished dog.

"Smoke—poor old Smoke!" mourned Jim. "You died like a soldier, facing 'em! And Jim can't give you a decent grave."

Stuart straightened, and gazing downstream where the stiffened body of his dog rode the swift current on its way to the sea, brought his hand to his forehead in salute.

The friends dropped a mile down river, and cutting back into the timber, made a small fire and ate. To avoid a possible ambush, they waited for the moon, then, hugging the shadows of the shore, traveled, until stopped by the churn of broken water ahead.

At dawn they carried around the white-water, which seemed impassable, and all day lay hidden in the brush below, watching the river and wondering what chance two voyageurs who had beaten their young men would have with the wild Ojibwas of Sturgeon lake. Since the meeting with Paradis and his men, the mission to Sturgeon lake in search of Jingwak seemed but a forlorn hope to Jim Stuart.

The presence in the country of LeBlond's man had put a new face on things. At the best, the Indians would refuse to listen to them once they had heard of the fight on the portage. At the worst, it looked as if the prediction of the old Ojibwa at the Lake of the Great Stones would be fulfilled. The peterboro would never return up the Sturgeon.

Of course, Jim knew that he and Omar could not disappear off the face of the earth without a search by company men and the Provincial police. The first sledding snow would bring dog-teams from the south into the Sturgeon valley—clean-faced trackers who would follow Indian or white man, wanted for murder, into the uttermost north—clear to the frozen sea, and beyond. There would be trouble in the Pipestone and Sturgeon river country if the factor of Sunset House and his head man did not come back. But unless Paradis was betrayed, how were these grim man-hunters from the south to prove that the missing men had been shot out of their canoe from ambush or stabbed as they slept? Whom could they accuse? Unless, by some miracle, Esau returned to Sunset House, all that men would ever know would be that three voyageurs and a dog had, like thousands before them, faded into the north, leaving no trace.

Yes, the two friends agreed, having shown his hand, there was no doubt that Paradis, for his own personal safety, would hunt them down when he found they had continued north to Sturgeon lake. In keeping on and attempting to find Jingwak, supported by LeBlond's man, they were paddling into certain disaster, for after the lesson on the portage, Paradis would never again try to take them with bare hands. And yet, as they planned while they waited for darkness, and the deep set gray eyes of the factor of Sunset House met the knotted squint of Omar's swart face, no suggestion of turning back was voiced by either. Ahead of them, they hoped against hope, a dauntless old man still traveled on his lonely mission to Sturgeon lake—a mission which would mean, if he were met and recognized by Paradis, the swift disappearance of Esau Otechi. They had let him go alone, on this mad search for the sorcerer. They would follow and find him, if alive, and make their fight together. Jim would have as soon deserted the old Ojibwa in his present need as he would have left a wounded man between the lines to Flanders.

As the moon rose and they pushed off into the shadows of the river shore, the words of Aurore LeBlond, "You'd die for love, so you say, but your duty—" haunted Jim's thoughts. Had he played fair with this girl who had so frankly shown him her heart? He had allowed a sense of duty—of loyalty to the company—to cheat them of priceless hours together before she went south. And now this loyalty was to rob them of their birthright. For even the masterful Omar admitted that Jingwak and Paradis would never allow the peterboro to return to Sunset House. And now that he felt in his heart that he had said good-by forever, Jim lived again and again each treasured moment he had spent with her. Once more, as the boat slid past the shadow-packed river shore, he felt the warm caress of her lips, heard her low whisper, gazed into the dark depths of her eyes and crushed her little body to his heart.

"Good-by, Aurore!" he murmured, and above the fret of the river on the near shore, he again heard her, "Good-by, magician, don't forget me!"

But he had forgotten her, the brooding howman told himself, when he left her and came north to his defeat. To him in his loneliness had come this miracle of the love of Aurore LeBlond and he had turned from it, put it aside as if a thing of little worth—this miracle of her love.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.

At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

NAPOLEON'S ISLAND

HOME TO BE MUSEUM

French Government Takes

Over House on Aix.

Paris.—Rare new relics of Napoleon's life on the island of Aix, where he passed the last days of his life in France before going into exile at St. Helena, have come into the possession of the French government.

It has been announced the house where Napoleon lived at Aix will become a national museum.

The familiar painting of Napoleon aboard the British warship Bellerophon shows the defeated and disheartened man, who a few days before was still emperor, gazing back upon the island of Aix and the fast-receding coastline of the mainland of France.

Fled in Stage Coaches.

Fleeing from Paris after the disaster at Waterloo in 1815, the fugitive ex-emperor sought to escape his pursuers by flight from France. Fast stage coaches rushed him south to the Atlantic coast, but the path to freedom was barred. At every port British men o' war lay off the coast waiting to trap the little Corsican who had become a hunted outlaw.

It was June 22 when Napoleon renounced his empire in Paris. A few days later he reached Rochfort and crossed to nearby Aix, seeking shelter in a friend's home, July 8, 1815. Before landing at Aix Napoleon had been harbored aboard the French frigate Saale and among the relics in the museum to be opened at Aix is a diary of his life and reflections while hiding aboard the man-o-war.

Surrendered in July.

On a day in the middle of July Napoleon left the house at Aix for the last time, surrendering himself to Captain Maitland of the Bellerophon. With the ex-emperor on the voyage in exile went his old aide-de-camp, Baron Gaspard Gourgaud, who shared the solitude of Napoleon's life on the barren rock in the south Atlantic.

The great-grandson of the aide-de-camp, the present Baron Gourgaud, has been responsible for buying the mansion at Aix and presenting it to the nation. With the house he has given to the state many books and other souvenirs of Napoleon, which the baron has collected.

Trip Around World in

36 Days Now Possible

New York.—A 36-day trip around the world is now scheduled by train and steamship.

By using airplanes the globe trotter can make the journey in about one-third the 90-day trip of Jules Verne. The new belt line follows roughly the route blazed by Gatty and Post instead of the beaten path via the Mediterranean, Suez canal, and India.

The short cut across the United States and spans the Pacific ocean from Seattle to Japan. Keeping well to the north Siberia is crossed by train, reversing the famous journey made by Marco Polo in 1263. The new route crosses Russia and from Moscow and Leningrad the globe trotter proceeds by the shortest route to Sweden. On the theory that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points the traveler sails from Gothenberg and skirts the northern cape of Scotland on the direct route to New York. The new belt line reduces the trip from about 25,000 to 18,000 miles.

British Circus Stages

Most Grotesque Stunt

London.—The world's most grotesque circus act, that of an actual hanging on the gallows, is being featured by a traveling show throughout Britain.

The spectacle is made the more authentic by the fact that the demonstrator was a former public hangman. With the gallows and a "dummy" body, he goes through the motions of throwing the trap. Gasps of horror greet him everywhere.

Attention of the government has been called to the act, but the home minister, Sir Herbert Samuel, said there was no means so far as he was aware to prevent such a display.

Sentiment appears to be against the act, but a few, with humor, suggest that this sort of an exhibition might prevent serious crime.

HONOR WASHINGTON THROUGHOUT CANADA

Neighbors Pay Tribute to Our First President.

Washington.—From British Columbia on the Pacific to Newfoundland on the Atlantic, Canada is actively participating in the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth, according to official reports received by the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission. Throughout the length and breadth of the land fitting exercises have been held in sincere tribute to the memory of the first President of the United States.

In Toronto the American Women's club, with the co-operation of the Toronto post of the American Legion and the office of the United States consul general, held a Colonial dinner and ball in the Royal York hotel. Dr. George W. Locke, chief librarian of the Toronto public libraries, delivered an address on Washington. Doctor Locke was introduced by Emil Suier, United States consul general at Ontario. The event attracted wide attention in the Toronto press.

Bear No Grudge.

A service conducted by Rev. H. R. Grant in Saint Andrews church at Fort William was dedicated to George Washington. The editorial column of the Times Journal of that city noted the occasion with approval and said, "Present-day Americans bear no more grudge against George III of England than Englishmen bear against George Washington."

Under the auspices of the American Women's club of Vancouver a birthday luncheon was held in the Hotel Vancouver.

Interesting in its spontaneity is the project planned by the Memorial University college in St. John's, Newfoundland. A request from the college for material and information on George Washington has been forwarded to the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission with the explanation that students at the institution wish to prepare essays on the life and career of the first President of the United States. The college also plans to present a drama written around the life of George Washington.

One of the most pretentious of all the Canadian programs in connection with the bicentennial celebration was carried out in Kingston where an entertainment held in the Hotel La Salle under the auspices of the American Women's club opened the observance. Many prominent officials and citizens of Kingston attended the reception and it was reported an outstanding success.

Lasting Friendship.

The speakers referred to the cordial relations between Canada and the United States and expressed the belief that such occasions as the George Washington bicentennial celebration could result only in a better understanding between these two English-speaking countries of North America. The Kingston Whig-Standard paid high tribute to George Washington. The article concluded in the following words: "Old antagonisms have been forgotten. Canada and the United States have existed side by side for a century without forts or warships and this Washington bicentennial observance will further cement the friendship that has existed for years between the two countries."

Receptions and programs in honor of George Washington have also been held in Montreal, Winnipeg, Sault Ste. Marie, and other places. Service clubs throughout the Dominion have observed the bicentennial celebration in various ways, and radio talks have eulogized George Washington.

45-Foot Boat to Span Ocean in Sixty Hours

Barnstaple, Devon, England.—To cross the Atlantic in a 45-foot speedboat in sixty hours is the feat Harold H. Gaskin of Westward Ho hopes to accomplish this summer.

Behind Gaskin's resolve to attempt the record trip is the intention to demonstrate to the world his confidence in his father's invention.

Although it has passed severe tests, the Gaskin Nautilus, in which the attempt will be made, was refused an A1 certificate by the British Board of Trade because it failed to comply with certain minor regulations.

Driven by two engines of 530 horsepower each, it has a beam of twelve feet, and incorporates the principle of the Gaskin unsinkable lifeboat. Moreover, it is able to carry fifteen tons of gasoline in six tanks.

Makes Funeral Plans Five Days Before Death

Blytheville, Ark.—Five days before his death, J. R. Lemp, head of the local Volunteers of America, called up on L. G. Moss, an undertaker, here, and made plans for his funeral. Lemp told the undertaker he expected he would die within a few days. He was sixty years old.

To Save Famous Goodnight Herd of Buffalo

Col. Chas. Goodnight

Mrs. Chas. Goodnight

A Monarch of the Herd

A Part of the Goodnight Herd of Buffalo

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WHEN Col. Charles Goodnight died in Tucson, Ariz., on December 12, 1929, at the age of ninety-three years, it not only marked the passing of one of the most interesting figures of the Old West but it also seemed likely to spell the doom of the largest herd of buffalo in the United States—more than 200 in number but only a pitiful remnant of the millions which had once roamed the Great Plains. For the famous Goodnight herd of buffalo in Texas had passed into other hands and there were sensational rumors afloat that the new owners were planning a "big game hunt" where Eastern sportsmen (upon payment of a big fee) would be allowed to enjoy the thrills of an old-time buffalo chase.

Immediately a storm of protest against the destruction of the Goodnight buffalo herd arose among Texans and the legislature passed a bill authorizing the state game and fish commission to purchase the buffalo, provided a suitable place for keeping them could be obtained. But no appropriation was forthcoming for the project and it was not until a syndicate, headed by A. C. Nicholson of Dallas, was formed to take over the buffalo and a part of the Goodnight estate and to finance the project of maintaining the herd intact that its preservation was assured.

No finer monument could be erected to the memory of Col. Charles Goodnight, "the Father of the Texas Panhandle," and his wife, Mary Dyer Goodnight, than the preservation of this rearguard of the "thundering herds" of long ago. In fact, the existence of this particular herd is due largely to the efforts of "Aunt Mary" Goodnight, as she was lovingly known in the Texas Panhandle. Back in the late seventies this pioneer woman, witnessing the ruthless slaughter of the buffalo by hide hunters, realized that it was only a question of time until the great shaggy beasts would be extinct. She began talking to "Uncle Charley" about capturing a few of the calves and starting a herd of their own.

So in June, 1870, Colonel Goodnight roped two buffalo calves and gave them to his wife. She was much interested in the little brown fellows, was greatly delighted at the alacrity with which they learned to drink milk and was surprised at their appetites which seemed to be insatiable, one of her pets requiring as much as three gallons a day. Two years later a neighboring ranchman captured two full-grown buffalo and presented them to Mrs. Goodnight and three calves were also added to her little group, the present of her brother. From this beginning came the great herd of nearly 250 today. On the "game refuge" which the Goodnights established on their ranch were also started herds of elk, deer and antelope, but they never thrived as did the buffalo.

It was on the Goodnight ranch also that a new animal was created—the catalo, produced by crossing buffalo with Aberdeen Angus cattle. This hybrid, according to Colonel Goodnight, was harder than range cattle, thrived on less food, was immune from all disease, did not stampede so easily nor drift with storms and had other advantages which made it a more valuable type of beef animal for the plains. He found an enthusiastic disciple in the work in the person of the late "Buffalo" Jones and at one time it seemed likely that their experiments in producing the catalo might have a revolutionary effect upon the cattle industry of this country.

Although Texas claims Col. Charles Goodnight as one of her greatest men, he was a native of another state, Illinois. He was born there March 5, 1836. Just three days after Texas declared her independence from Mexico, so his history paralleled her history. His parents moved to Texas in 1845, the year Texas entered the Union, and young Goodnight grew up as a pioneer of the Lone Star state with its hardships as a part of his every-day life.

By the time he was nineteen he decided that he knew Texas pretty well and was about ready to move farther west to a newer country—California. With a young companion, and an ox team and a few horses, they started on the long trek west. But by the time they had gone a few hundred miles into West Texas they decided that the state was large enough for them. So Goodnight went back to Palo Pinto county where he ranched and supported his widowed mother. During the Civil war he served with the Texas Rangers, fighting mostly Indians, Mexicans and cattle thieves.

After the war, there was no cattle market. The plains swarmed with herds, and cattle could be bought on credit. Goodnight saw the necessity of finding a western market. So did some others, but the young plainsman, then thirty, differed from the rest in that he determined to find it. There was already one up at Abilene, Kan., where many of the cattlemen took their herds to sell, but Goodnight saw a greater opportunity up in New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, where there were Indian agencies looking for beef and willing to pay well for it.

The drawback in the scheme was that between the Panhandle and this promising territory lay a great expanse of desert and territory inhabited by Comanche Indians ready to pounce upon invaders and drive off the cattle. Without heavy protection, no herd could get through. Goodnight knew that as well as any of his neighbors, and he laid the plan before them. He knew the country, and mapped out a route by which he hoped to trail his animals up into Colorado. But the other cowmen had troubles of their own to attend to when he sought their co-operation. They saw only the danger connected with the venture, and excused themselves.

But young Goodnight found a partner. He was Oliver Loving, who became one of his closest companions. Loving was probably the most experienced cowman in Texas at the time.

In 1859, while the Comanches were quiet, he had taken a herd through to Colorado on a direct route. Young Goodnight had helped him out of the timber country as far as Red river. Loving also had trailed cattle into Illinois and to the New Orleans markets. He asked to go with Goodnight on his trail-blazing venture.

Goodnight had prepared a huge bois d'arc wagon, requiring twenty oxen to pull, which he believed the first chuck wagon ever seen in the cow country. Each man gathered up his own cattle, making a combined herd of some thousand head of mixed stock. They started in June, with eighteen adventuresome cow hands and reached Fort Sumner two months later.

On the whole trip not an Indian had been sighted. Through 600 miles of totally uninhabited country a new route for Texas cattle had been blazed, immediately becoming known as the Goodnight trail, the first and greatest of the colonel's trail breaking achievements. Later it was extended through the Raton mountains, past Pueblo and Denver and into Cheyenne and Fort Laramie. Three hundred thousand cattle passed over it in six years, while thousands perished on the way or fell into the hands of the Comanches.

When Goodnight arrived at Fort Sumner he found the government had 9,000 Apaches "loose herded like cattle" there. Loving and Goodnight sold their cattle two years old and up on the hoof for eight cents a pound, an enormous price for the time. Loving took the stock cattle cut back by the government into Colorado and Goodnight took a part of the hands and $8,000 in gold and silver, and returned to Palo Pinto county. There he purchased extensively of his neighbors and trailed back over the route he had marked out.

It was in the spring of 1867 that Loving lost his life. The partners started with two herds, the two men going ahead with the first one. The second herd, made up of weaker cattle, lost 1,000 head to the Comanches before it had reached the Pecos. Another band of Indians attacked Goodnight and Loving on the Clear fork of the Brazos. Joe Loving, who was no relation to Oliver Loving, was shot in the neck, the herd stampeded and 160 head of cattle ran out. Goodnight pulled an arrow out of Loving's neck with a pair of nippers and Joe got well.

After the herd had been driven about 100 miles up the Pecos from Horseshoe Crossing, Oliver Loving decided to take one man and go ahead to Fort Sumner. One-armed Bill Wilson, the "coolest head in the outfit," according to Colonel Goodnight's description, was selected as escort. What happened on the trip is still an epic of the cow camps.

The second day out, in the southern part of New Mexico, the two men were attacked by some 500 Comanche warriors. The only shelter was the Pecos, four miles away. They headed for it on a long run. Dismounting, they hid in the cane brakes. An Indian, creeping through the cane, shot Loving in the arm and side. Not wishing to die and his folks not know of his end, Loving persuaded Wilson to go for help. Wilson loved the river and, barefooted, walked three days down the Goodnight trail, through cactus, mesquite and other plants containing thorns until he came to the Goodnight herd.

Colonel Goodnight took all available hands and set out for the scene of the fight, sixty miles away. Late the next day the party arrived, but there was no trace of Loving. Two weeks later a Texan told Goodnight the starting news Loving was at Fort Sumner. Goodnight hastened there and learned that the day after Wilson's departure for help the Indians had left Loving's Bend, as the place is now called. Loving had dragged himself five miles to a narrow pass, where he remained five days, and was eating a glove when some Mexicans found him. He gave the Mexicans $150 to take him the 150 miles in a cart to Fort Sumner. Although Loving was walking about, the wound in his arm was infected, and nine days after Goodnight's arrival Loving died.

Goodnight went on up into Colorado and in January returned. Exhuming the coffin, he drove with it 600 miles to Weatherford, Texas, where he delivered it to Loving's family. A year later he turned over to the Loving estate $40,000, gave his partner, Sheek, $20,000, and with $20,000 as his own share, went his way alone.

The second of the famous trails blazed by the colonel was that known as the New Goodnight trail, from Alamogordo, N. M., to Granada, Colo.

Colonel Goodnight found ten cents a head was being charged for all stock which passed through Raton Pass, the only known passage through the Raton mountains, in New Mexico, by the famous "Uncle Dick" Wootton, the "keeper of the gate through the mountains." The colonel refused to pay. He struck another trail, 100 miles shorter, through the mountains and up to Cheyenne.

Goodnight was married on July 26, 1870, to Miss Mary A. Dyer of Tennessee, and soon afterwards established a ranch in Colorado. But the panic of 1873 ruined him financially and he had just 1,800 head of cattle with which to make a new start. He turned his face as always toward the new country, and the Panhandle seemed to hold the greatest possibilities with the fewest inhabitants, in fact, none but Indian and buffalo. It held, though, that great Palo Duro canyon, with its rim of Cap Rock, its ragged depth of 1,300 feet, its marvelous valley 15 miles wide in places, a paradise for cattle. Palo Duro canyon proper begins in the western part of Randall county and extends approximately 75 miles.

Colonel Goodnight took supplies for six months, erected a four-room log house and returned to Denver for Mrs. Goodnight.

At this time John George Adair of Wrath-dair, Ireland, was consumed with the idea of a ranch in America. He was breezing about in Denver, talking cattle and range and looking for a man big enough to handle his project. A few years previous John Adair had opened a brokerage office in New York city, had met and married an American girl in 1869, and they then divided their time between their estate in Ireland and the joys of the New world. Mrs. Adair was the daughter of Major General Wadsworth and the young widow of Montgomery Richie, attached to General Wadsworth's staff.

John Adair and Charles Goodnight met in Denver and made a contract which brought the first development to the Panhandle. It is there today, the J. A. Ranch, with its 400,000 acres and its 19-room ranch house that was built around the log home of Charles Goodnight. The ranch at one time comprised 1,300,000 acres and more than 100,000 head of cattle.

The first contract made was to run five years and specified that 12,000 acres should be bought the first year with additional increase to 25,000 acres. Adair, however, so respected the judgment of Charles Goodnight that he gave him personal authority to buy what he saw fit, and at the end of the first five years 92,020 acres were on record.

Goodnight bought land at various prices as well as in various places, paying on an average of 25 cents to 35 cents an acre. He admitted that he bought up every good water hole, every good range; every place a rancher was likely to go, and that it was the "very devil to survey." This original section was called the Old Crazy Quilt.

John Adair bought the land, gave Goodnight a $2,500 yearly salary and at the end of the five years one-third of the land and cattle, but charged 10 per cent interest for the use of the money during that time. It might seem a little salary, and a big rate of interest, but Charles Goodnight knew he would be rich in the end, and incidentally the contract was renewed for another five years.

From the J. A. ranch Colonel Goodnight next laid off a trail to Dodge City, Kan., traversing territory then inhabited only by Indians and buffalo. It was 250 miles in length and known as the Palo Duro-Dodge City trail. This was the third of the great trails he had blazed.

After a partnership of ten years with Adair, Colonel Goodnight sold his third interest in the property to his partner and together with a man named Moore from Kansas City bought the Quitaque ranch. Later he sold this property and in 1888 purchased what was known as the Goodnight ranch which he operated until recent years. Mrs. Goodnight died in 1926 and a year later Colonel Goodnight's marriage to Miss Corinne Goodnight, a twenty-six-year-old telegraph operator and former nurse in Montana, attracted nation-wide attention. Although bearing the same name, the ninety-one-year-old plainsman and his young bride were not related, their romance developing during a correspondence started by the similarity of their names.

NOT ALL RED INK IN LIFE'S LEDGERS

Crusoe's Philosophy Worthy of Emulation.

When Robinson Crusoe was cast upon a desert isle he began seriously to consider his condition. This led him to draw up the state of his affairs in writing, "not so much to leave them to any that may come after me as to deliver my thoughts from daily poring over them and afflicting my mind." As his reason began to master his "despondency" he began to comfort himself by setting the good against the evil, that "I might have something to distinguish my case from the worse." He thereupon stated his situation "very impartially, like debtor and creditor":

EVIL

I am cast upon a horrible desolate island, void of all hope of recovery.

GOOD

But I am alive and not dead, as all my ship's company was.

EVIL

I am singled out, and separated as it were, from all the world to be miserable.

GOOD

But I am singled out, too, from all the ship's crew, to be spared from death. And he that miraculously saved me from death can deliver me from this condition.

EVIL

I am divided from mankind, a solitaire one banished from human society.

GOOD

But I am not starved and perishing on a barren place affording no sustenance.

EVIL

I have no clothes to cover me.

GOOD

But I am in a hot climate where if I had clothes I could hardly wear them.

EVIL

I am without any defense or means to resist any violence of man or beast.

GOOD

But I am cast on an island where I see no wild beasts to hurt me as I saw on the coast of Africa; and what if I had been shipwrecked there?

EVIL

I have no soul to speak to or relieve me.

GOOD

But God wonderfully sent the ship in near enough to the shore that I have gotten out so many necessary things as will either supply my wants or enable me to supply myself as long as I live.

He concluded that, on the whole, there was scarce any condition in the world so miserable but there was something negative or positive in it to be thankful for. And he let it stand that we may always find something from which to comfort ourselves, and to set on the credit side of the account.

Across the Atlantic

The first air crossing of the Atlantic was made by the United States navy's seaplane NC-4, which made the crossing in May, 1919, from Trepassey Bay, N. F., to Plymouth, England, with stops at the Azores, Lisbon, Mondego river and Ferrol. Two other seaplanes which attempted the feat at the same time were unsuccessful. The NC-4 was commanded by Lieut. Com. A. C. Read, U. S. A., under whom was a crew of four.

The first nonstop flight was that of John Alcock and Arthur W. Brown, English and American flyers, who crossed from St. Johns, N. F., to Clifton, Ireland, in June, 1919.

WEST SIDE

The "A" spellers in the second grade for this week were: Frank Compo, Robert Dennis, Ralph Hignite, Billy Rude and Paul Wilkins. Grades 4, 5 and 6—By Virginia Kaake.

Virginia brought us a plant made from bluing, salt, water and stones. We are going to make one now.

The "A" spellers in the fourth grade are: Vail Gee, Marion Kovarik, Marjorie Kiser, Jean Vallance and Eva Barrow.

The "A" spellers in the fifth grade are: Robert Kiser and Mary Kotovich.

GRADES

First Grade—The first graders have been decorating their blackboards with colored leaves. They are making Health Posters.

Second Grade—The second graders have been making Halloween pictures and mounting them.

Third Grade—The third grade is giving a Halloween party to which the second grade has the honor of being invited.

Fourth Grade—The fourth graders have been divided into poster-making groups, making posters of Columbus, The Indians, and the Harvest.

Reading Section I has started in the Study Readers. Two new pupils have entered the fourth grade. They are Carmen Faust of California, and Edward Baylis of Alma.

Sixth Grade, Section I—We should like to call parents attention to the fact that written excuses are necessary for the children to have for absence, tardiness, or in order to go down town.

There were 20 100's in Arithmetic test this week. Those having 100% in Spelling for the week are: Melvina Davis, Phyllis Dixon, Permelia Hite, Ruth Perkins, Richard Saxton, Jane Ellen Vance, Jean Carney, Jean Bugai, Irene Bugai and Roy Smith.

One of the Sixth graders defined an "interval" as one who had been sick for a long while.

While studying homonyms, one pupil who was asked the difference between "no" and "know" said that the former meant you knew nothing, and the latter meant that you knew too much.

John Pray is pianist this week. Fifth and Sixth Grades, Section II—Those having 100% in Spelling for the week are: Albert Clark, Bud Hite, Buddy Staley, Sonny Bulow, Elaine Collins, Marion Hudkins, Ann Kraemer, Lucinda Moore, Beatrice Valencourt, Doris Parks, Marie Esenberg.

The Sixth graders are writing letters and mailing them for Language. The Fifth graders are studying North America. Their sand table is fixed to represent it.

JUNIOR HIGH

Healthy Living—The girls have studied care of teeth and are learning about different kinds of teeth and what ages they come in. Then they decided to make a chart to see how regular they cleaned their teeth. They have had their weights and heights taken lately.

Sec. A, 8th Grade General Science—The students in this group were somewhat surprised to learn that dust in rugs is pushed into a vacuum sweeper, not pulled in. They also learned that water is pushed up into a pump and not pulled up. They have also been enumerating the many ways compressed air is made to do work.

Home Ec. 8th Grade—The girls are now buying their cloth and are starting on their first construction problem. They have to cut their patterns, shrink their cloth and fit their patterns.

MANUAL TRAINING

Senior High—The boys in 9th grade Manual Training classes are starting a rocking chair. They are working on the third step of caning.

Junior High—The Eighth grade Manual Training classes are starting a neck tie rack. They have drawn their patterns and are now cutting them out.

ENGLISH

The class of English IV is beginning the play "Macbeth" by Shakespeare. The students have already met up with the three witches that fired the ambitions of Macbeth and they have suspicions that all is not well for Duncan although the trusting king has no intimation of impending evil. A good dark, mysterious tragedy will go far in getting them all set for Halloween.

The English III class has made a new friend, Robert Louis Stevenson, and has accepted his invitation to go with him in his "Travels with a Donkey." May they enjoy every step of the way.

The Ninth graders have pretty well mastered the parts of speech so now they are beginning to study constructions of sentences.

Since the Sophomores chief delight is talking, Miss Perkins is teaching them how to correctly punctuate direct quotations. Miss Stroop is teaching her section how to put their sentences into picture form so that you may see at a glance all that they have to tell you.

MATHEMATICS

Algebra—The Algebra class is having a little fun working on addition of algebra. Some find this quite hard while others find it easy.

Geometry—Mr. Robert's Geometry classes have been dealing with parallel lines cut by a transversal, and making angles. The classes find this quite hard. The theorems they are taking are XIII, XIV, and XV. They are working out problems using these theorems.

HISTORY

Modern History—This class is making charts showing reforms attempted by benevolent despots of Europe in the eighteenth century. These despots were Catherine, Frederick and Joseph.

Ancient History—This class is studying the Greek and Persian War. They are starting on the Wars of Alexander the Great.

SOIOLOGY

The main thing that happened in this class is that they had a test.

HOME ECONOMICS

Ninth Grade—The ninth grade is studying the preserving of eggs, applying it to meats and hakes of meats.

Tenth Grade—The tenth grade is studying colors, and making lamp shades of all colors and different shapes.

COMMERCIAL WORK

Shorthand II—Tests seem to be very popular in this class. Students are hoping that it is just a passing fad but they still seem to be coming. Fifty word tests are given about three times a week. A mark of ninety is the minimum mark if you wish to be recommended as a stenographer. So beware that you do not miss more than five words.

Ambitions fires the college man but after graduation the boss does it.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The first meeting of the Girls' Glee Club, led by Miss Roberts, was held in the Auditorium, Tuesday afternoon at 3:30. We elected for our president, Jean Bechtold; secretary, Ruth Clark; and librarian, Mary Jane Porter. After this business was over Miss Roberts explained some of the fundamentals of good singing. Then we tried some of our old music. The attempts weren't so bad considering that this was our first meeting and very few of last years' members are with us again. We had quite a good number present and hope to do as well with the Glee Club this year as has been done in the past. We meet every Tuesday night at 3:30 in the Auditorium.

EDITORIAL

To do or not to do, that is the question.

"To be or not to be, that is the question," said Hamlet and his hesitancy resulted in tragedy.

Shall we do or not do all that we're told to do or not to do and as a result be or not be among the best citizens?

The old student-idea that if we only talked when we had permission and didn't throw erasers or commit some other outrage we'd be rated A-1 in citizenship has suffered quite a bump along with quite a number of other popular beliefs.

The old regime has passed. The new rules are found to be even more strict than the former ones were. But the half has not been told; even if we do sometimes miss News Staff meeting, a conference with one of our teachers, or some other important appointment in consequence of this "no leaving the room after once entering" rule, we find that we're no longer the A-1's we used to be. We are informed that we shouldn't receive credit for doing only what we're supposed to do anyway, but if we recite well in class, volunteer often, and study our lessons every day we'd deserve a better mark.

Another piece of information comes from another quarter: If we should get a three in citizenship, we may call ourselves average citizens. If we get ones or twos, we may proudly consider ourselves thoroughly outstanding but if we face below three, we must look up to the average citizens.

Attention! Forward March! Goal A-1 dimly seen ahead.

THE MANCELONA-EAST JORDAN GAME.

East Jordan swamped Mancelona with the score of 44-2. The whole team clicked like a machine. Penalties on East Jordan amounted to 125 yards. In the first quarter East Jordan received and Somerville returned the ball about five yards. East Jordan punted to them and they punted back to us.

In the first play Mancelona fumbled with East Jordan recovering the ball on Mancelona's 15 yard line. On a few plays Somerville smashed through center for the touchdown. The try for an extra point was not successful. The second touchdown came when a pass from Clark to Hignite was good for a touchdown. The extra point was good. The first quarter ended 13-0.

In the second quarter Bobbie Somerville was hurt so "Spin" Cihak took his place. Then we made another touchdown but the extra point was not good.

Bill Swoboda was hurt when their was only 30 seconds to go for the half.

The third quarter opened with a touchdown by Hignite. On the first play he ran through center for about a 40 yard run for a touchdown. The extra point was not good. In the same quarter Lorraine was hurt so again "Spin" took his place. A pass from Cihak to Hignite was good, Hignite being down on the two yard line. Cihak took it over for a touchdown. The extra point was good.

Then the second team went in, leaving only Dale Clark, Martin Somerville and Cihak of the first team in the game. The third quarter ended with the score 32-0.

In the fourth quarter a long run by Dale Clark was downed on the 3 yard line. Three five yard penalties put us back on their 18 yard line. But Cihak took it around the right end for a touchdown.

Mancelona's two points came when East Jordan was penalized 25 yards for clipping. This put the ball on our own 5 yard line. A block punt was made and Cihak felled on it behind the goal line but was downed giving Mancelona 2 points. In the middle of the fourth quarter the first team went in. A pass from Cihak to Hignite was good for a touchdown but again the extra point was no good. That ended our scoring for the game, 44-2.

Score by quarters:
 Mancelona 0 0 0 2—4
 East Jordan 13 6 13 12—44

THEN SPEND YOUR MONEY WITH CONFIDENCE

For someone, every day, the biggest news is not on the front page. It's not even in the news columns.

There may be an earthquake in Italy or a revolution in Central America. There may be a hot election campaign or a million dollar fire or a metropolitan crime wave. But for Jim Jones, who has decided to buy a new Sedan, and for Mrs. Thompson, who needs some school dresses for little Mary Lou, the big news of the day is in the advertisements.

Even the doings of Congress and the big league baseball results pale into insignificance beside the news of something you really want.

The advertising columns bring you, each day, sound information about quality, style and price. They announce new products and new developments that save time, trouble or expense for millions of people. They point out healthful habits of eating, sleeping, exercising.

Constantly advertised goods are safe to buy. Behind them stand the manufacturer and the merchant, guaranteeing their uniform quality. Read the advertisements before you buy.
