Shooting Affair Near Ironton

JAMES WILSON SHOWS NERVE IN APPREHENDING MEN

Two men are being held at the Sheriff's office at Charlevoix for investigation while a third is being sought by state police.

On the Ironton-Boyer City road, Tuesday night about 9:30, James Wilson, a farmer residing on this road, met two men who, just as they were meeting, threw something in the ditch. After passing, Wilson investigated and found two shotguns. He returned to where the men were just starting a car, jumping on the running board he ordered the men to halt and, at the same time, endeavored to turn off the ignition switch. In the mile Wilson's finger was bitten by the driver and four shots from a revolver were fired at Wilson—all going wild.

Wilson forced them to halt and accompany him to his home where the Sheriff's office was notified.

The men gave their names as Arthur Conley, 23, Keweenaw, and Fred Herrick, 38, Detroit. Albert Gerhart, owner of the Manitou Club between Petoskey and Harbor Springs is being sought by state police.

It is said that some 57 trees had been marked with white cloth on the Charlevoix County Nursery grounds and similar pieces of cloth were found in the auto. A covered truck from Petoskey was found nearby.

Drivers Licenses Will Be Small

Issuance of motor vehicle drivers' licenses will be speeded up under a new system which has been installed by the Department of State.

In place of hand-typed licenses which have been issued in the past, the new licenses will be prepared by a photostatic process which will reproduce the actual handwriting of the applicant. The new licenses are smaller and more convenient to carry.

"What do you think of that two for a dollar cigar I gave you?" "I think you have kept the 95c one."

P. T. A. Held Their First Meeting

The P. T. A. held their first meeting Wednesday evening at the high school auditorium.

A seven o'clock dinner was served to about one-hundred guests and members after which a short program was given consisting of piano solos by Miss Irene Bashaw; a short talk by Mr. Wade; and an introduction of the new teachers—Mrs. M. B. Palmer, president of the P.T.A. acting as toastmaster.

After the dinner the teachers were the invited guests of Mr. and Mrs. Drew to attend the movie.

A full program is scheduled for the year to which the public is cordially invited.

McKinnon—Pierce

Charles J. McKinnon, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McKinnon of East Jordan, was united in marriage to Miss Ida Pierce of Mackinaw City, at the home of the bride, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 21st, at 4:00 o'clock. The bride wore a white satin dress and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and carnations.

Following the nuptials a lovely dinner was served. The newlyweds will make their home at Gaylord.

Homecoming Next Week

BOYNE CITY WILL FURNISH OP- POSITION HERE ON SATURDAY

The annual Alumni Homecoming will be held next Saturday, Nov. 3rd. The high school students are working on the celebration now and a full afternoon and evening entertainment is promised the EJHS Alumni who return for the affair.

Mr. Cohn, Mr. Roberts and Geo. Secord are working on a plan, in which the entire student body will co-operate to stage the homecoming, instead of falling on just a few people.

Should the Crimson Wave win from Rogers City tomorrow, the Tip Conference championship will definitely be decided here in the Boyne-Jordan game homecoming. The high school F.F.A. Club are going to serve a chicken dinner after the game (prices not known) and the alumni dance will be held in the gym in the evening.

Undoubtedly, an extra large crowd will be on hand for the game, and the school intends to make this the best Homecoming yet.

The date:—Saturday, Nov. 3rd. A week from tomorrow.

Crimson Wave Is Victor Again

DEFEATED FRANKFORT THERE 38 - 0 LAST FRIDAY

Coach Abe Cohn's Crimson Wave turned from a defensive team into an offensive squad last Friday and succeeded in turning a hard fighting Frankfort team back 38 - 0.

During the first half the play was practically even. The Jordanites pushed over a touchdown in the opening minutes of play, when Dave Pray skirted right end for twenty yards. They scored again during the second quarter.

In the second period, Frankfort cut loose with an attack which drove the locals back repeatedly. Cap't Mick was forced to retire early in the game, due to an injury. However, his kid brother proceeded to uphold the good family name of Mick by snatching passes from all angles, which constantly kept the locals in hot water. In their second period drive the Purple and Gold pushed the ball to the 1 yard line before the Crimson was finally able to halt them.

The third and fourth quarters were most East Jordan's. Pray made a pretty 45 yard run in returning a Frankfort punt for a touchdown. Young Mick also made himself felt again by grabbing three of Dud. Swaboda's passes in succession (two of them while lying flat on his side).

Through the game the entire Crimson line was doing nice blocking and presented great interference for our ball carriers. They also blocked two Purple and Gold punts. Ellis, Swoboda, Pray, and Bigelow all made nice runs. Art Quinn made a beautiful catch of a pass, which reminded the boys of the one he snared and ran to score the touchdown in the Harbor Springs game.

The entire game, like the Cheboygan affair, was hard but clearly fought by both teams and the Crimson Wave wishes to take this opportunity to let their East Jordan fans know that they appreciated the fine treatment accorded them by both the Frankfort team and crowd. The girls served a supper to the teams in the basement of the Congregational church and the way the Jordanites ate, we took for granted they were building up for the game at Rogers City tomorrow.

This game will go quite a ways toward settling the Tip Conference Championship. The Calcites hold victories over Cheboygan and Alpena, which means the locals have their hands full tomorrow.

CHARLEVOIX CO. POTATO AND APPLE SHOW AT EAST JORDAN

Everything is in readiness for the Second Annual Charlevoix County Potato and Apple Show which will be held in the High School Gymnasium, East Jordan, this Saturday, October 27. The committee in charge consisting of Howard Porter, W. G. Corneil and Rev. Leitch have worked hard to make this show a success. The County of Charlevoix, the City of East Jordan, Farmers' Co-operative Agencies, Potato dealers and East Jordan merchants have been very generous with their financial help.

Charlevoix county has always won an enviable place at the Top O'Michigan Show at Gaylord and at the State Show at East Lansing. Without a doubt, this year's show will exceed last year's in the number of exhibits. Farmers everywhere in the county have evidenced a keen interest in the show. You will have the opportunity of seeing all the different varieties of potatoes and apples that make up a large share of the agricultural income of this county.

Mr. E. Wheeler, Extension Specialist in Potatoes, M. S. C., will act as judge of that department. It is expected that Mr. Howard Bedell, Bellaire, will judge the apple department. All entries must be in place by 10:00 A. M. No admission will be charged for the show.

The concluding event of the day will be the big-banquet, also in the High School Gymnasium, beginning at 6:30 p. m. Banquet tickets are 40c per plate for a single person, or 75c for two. Last year 200 people enjoyed this feature. Plans are being made for a larger attendance this year. Mr. Wheeler will be the main speaker at the banquet. A very pleasing program has been arranged. Awards will be made at the close of the banquet. $150.00 in cash premiums will be awarded—Ribbons will be given to all winners.

The continuance of this annual show depends on the support and patronage accorded this show. Come and see what Charlevoix county farmers are accomplishing. Enjoy the wonderful banquet followed by a well-balanced program. Read the following program and I know that you will be unable to stay away.

BANQUET PROGRAM High School Gymnasium, October 27, 6:30 P. M.

William G. Fortune Passed Away At Flint

William Gray Fortune, for 37 years a highly esteemed resident of East Jordan fell asleep in Jesus at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Sloan of Flint, Oct. 13, 1934.

Mr. Fortune was in his 94th year. He came here from Ludington 37 years ago and immediately identified himself with the industrial and religious life of the community. He was a carpenter by trade and he put his religion into his work, it being his desire that his work, like that of the "Carpenter of Nazareth", should be done on honor.

Mr. Fortune was a loyal member of the M. E. Church, and he never missed a service when he was physically able to attend. He was a staunch champion of the cause of temperance, and he stood four-square on every moral issue that came to his attention.

For the past 20 years he made his home with his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Sloan of this city until June, 1933, when he went to Flint to be with his daughter, Mrs. Harry Sloan.

Funeral services were held in Flint, conducted by Rev. Scofield of Lakeview M. E. Church. Interment was at Ludington, October 17th.

Mrs. Fortune died in 1914. Surviving are four daughters and two sons, 19 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren; a brother, J. D. Fortune of Frankfort, Ind.; and a sister, Mrs. Marlotte Trail of British Columbia, Canada.

Almost a year now and not a single word about technocracy.

Sewing Club Met With Mrs. Anna Ruhlmg

The Sewing Club of East Jordan, sponsored by the Extension Dept. of the Michigan State College, met with Mrs. Anna Ruhlmg last Tuesday, Oct. 16th.

Mrs. Ruhlmg was such a delightful hostess. The balanced luncheon was served at one o'clock and then, following a short business meeting, the acting leaders, Mrs. Anna Ruhlmg and Mrs. Ida Kinsey, gave the first lesson of this year's work.

The subject, "The well dressed Woman", was given in such a manner it is sure to be a help to each of the 14 members present.

The next lesson will be given at the home of Mrs. Amanda Shepard on November, the 22nd. — Sec'y.

Commendations From Cheboygan

The following letter was received this week by coach Abe Cohn, from C. F. Snellenberger, principal of Cheboygan high.

Dear Abe: Here is news for your local assembly and paper. Send me a copy of the Charlevoix County Herald.

I want to commend the boys on their conduct on the football field and off the field last Friday. They were gentlemen to the last word and are a credit to themselves and East Jordan. Your school has every right to be proud of such a group. It is a real pleasure to have them come to Cheboygan and we hope that plans can be arranged so they will come here for basketball and football for a great many years. EJHS is certainly respected by all Cheboygan.

Wish you and the team the best of luck.

New Brown Jug, Five Feet Tall, M. Grid Fixture

Ann Arbor, Oct. 23.—The University of Michigan has a new "little brown-jug", one that pranksters can't carry off without a sturdy truck.

It is five feet, one inch tall, and has a capacity of 400 gallons of—well, anything.

All Michigan-Minnesota football scores will be printed on it.

The first little brown jug, for the same purpose, disappeared in 1931, another was obtained. The original turned up in 1933. Now they're both locked up.

Minnesota can't win the new one because the donor, J. P. Seiler, of East Jordan, specified that it should—and probably would—remain right

Jordan Has The Lead

WAS FIRST TO TAKE OUT PAT- ENT ON FRUIT

A recent news item states that a Western orchard company had taken out a patent on a new variety of peach, which, it was claimed, was the first fruit ever patented.

In this respect, Michigan—and East Jordan in particular—is at the head. In fact, patents were granted nearly three years ago on two varieties of red sour cherries to the Eveline Fruit and Land Co., whose orchards are near East Jordan.

These patents were taken out in the name of the president of the organization—Prof. L. R. Taft—and have since been transferred to the Stark Nursery Co., of Louisiana, Mo., who have since introduced them.

These varieties resemble the Montmorency—the best known red, sour cherry—but one of them, called "Jordan", not only excels it in quality but it is nearly two weeks earlier.

The other variety named "Eveline", appears to be identical with the Montmorency except that it ripens two weeks later than that variety, thus doubling the length of the sour cherry season and making them especially valuable for the home orchard as well as the commercial cherry growers and to the canning factories.

To the trade these varieties are known as Montearly and Montlate.

Judge Gilbert To Speak Here

AT REPUBLICAN RALLY NEXT THURSDAY, NOV. 1st

Hon. Parm C. Gilbert, Circuit Court Judge, will be the principal speaker at a Republican Rally to be held at the East Jordan High School Auditorium next Thursday night, Nov. 1st, commencing at 8:00 o'clock. Judge Gilbert's ability as a speaker is well known to Charlevoix County citizens, who may expect an interesting and forceful address next Thursday.

in Ann Arbor, win, lose or tie.

Mr. Seiler with son, Galen, and Lyle Wangeman took the jug to Ann Arbor, Friday. It was presented Saturday forenoon and in the afternoon the trio took in the Michigan-Georgia Tech. football game, which probably by the presence of the Big Jug donor, was won by Michigan by the peculiar score of 9 to 2.

Kidnaped Louisville Woman Ransomed for $50,000—Jugoslavia's Murdered King Buried—Collective Bargaining Plan of General Motors.

LOUISVILLE'S sensational kidnaping case came to a climax with the return of the victim, Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, to her home. The young society matron had been held captive for six days in Indianapolis by Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., a maniac who had twice been held in insane asylums. She was treated rather roughly but not really injured, and was set free after Mr. Stoll paid $50,000 ransom. Robinson fled with all but $500 of this sum and a country-wide hunt for him was at once begun. His wife and father were arrested, charged with complicity in the kidnaping. Mrs. Robinson, however, was said to have protected Mrs. Stoll to the best of her ability and it was she who returned the abducted woman to her relatives, abandoning her crazy husband.

T. H. Robinson, Jr.

In Detroit one Edward Lickwala, a youth with a police record, was arrested for attempting to extort $5,000 from Edsel Ford under threats of death. He was promptly indicted by a federal grand jury, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve ten years in the Leavenworth penitentiary.

WITH overpowering pomp and ceremony Alexander I, assassinated king of Yugoslavia, was laid to rest with his fathers, the founders of the Karageorgevitch dynasty. Nearly every nation on earth was represented at the funeral rites. King Boris of Bulgaria and King Carol of Rumania were there, as was President Lebrun of France. King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was represented by the duke of Spoleto, and Chancellor Hitler of Germany by Gen. Hermann William Goering, premier of Prussia, who flew from Berlin. England sent Prince George, now duke of Kent. Other notables present were Prince Cyril of Bulgaria, a delegation from Poland, Foreign Minister D. Maximos of Greece, Foreign Minister Dr. Tevrik Rustu Bey of Turkey, Foreign Minister Dr. Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia, Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu of Rumania, Prince Nicholas of Rumania, and Undersecretary of Justice Karl Karwinsky of Austria, with many others.

Belgrade was thronged with many thousands of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. One entire village of 900 peasants arrived from Herzegovina, a picturesque crowd many of whom had sworn not to shave for three months in token of their grief.

For two days Alexander's body lay in state in the palace while the people passed by the bier. Then it was removed to the cathedral for requiem high mass, after which there was a two mile procession to the railway station. From there the body was conveyed to Topoloz, 53 miles from the capital, and interred in the family mausoleum.

FRENCH police having caught three of the companions of "Kalemen," really Tschernometski, who slew Alexander and Louis Barthou in Marseilles, the authorities of half a dozen countries were making progress in unravelling the assassination plot.

From the confessions of those captured and from the investigations of the police of France and Belgrade it was learned that Kalemen was a notorious Macedonian terrorist named Valda Georgeff Tschernometski who killed two Bulgarian political leaders several years ago. He and his associates in the plot were directed in their murderous work by a mysterious "master mind," and the authorities assert this man, whom the assassins knew as "the doctor," controlled the activities of several distinct terrorist bands who were ignorant of one another's moves.

Dr. Ante Pavelic, described as the leader of the Croatian terrorists, and Eugent Kvaternik, his aid, were arrested in Turin, Italy just as Alexander was being buried in Jugoslavia. Kvaternik was known as the "delegate" and was supposed to have acted as liaison man for Pavelic, making contact with the Marseilles assassins.

The police had hunted them throughout Europe. Kvaternik was trailed as far as the village of Etaples, in France, where the trail was lost. Pavelic, however, was known to be in Italy, and the search turned there, on the theory that the two would get together.

Continental police were still hunting for Maria Vjoudroch, blond siren, who is supposed to have smuggled into France the murder weapons, and Gustav Percech, alleged to have conducted the Croatian exile "murder farm" at Janka Butfa, Hungary, where the assassins held target practice.

Premier Doumergue's French cabinet was considerably changed as a result of the tragedy in Marseilles. Albert Sarraut, minister of the interior, and Henri Cheron, minister of justice, resigned and were replaced respectively by Paul Marchandeau and Henri Lemery. Laval was made minister of foreign affairs to succeed Barthou and his place as minister of colonies was given to Louis Rollin.

FRANCE lost another of her elder statesmen in the death of Raymond Poincare, who was president from 1913 to 1920 and returned later to public service as premier. It was during that period that he seized the Ruhr in an effort to compel Germany to pay the war reparations to France. Poincare was born in Lorraine, and that fact explained in part his unrelenting attitude toward Germany in dealing with post-war problems. Entering political life in 1887, he was mixed up in many prominent "affaires" and made a record as an intense patriot and a liberal republican. In 1928, when he was called out of retirement, he succeeded in saving the country from its disastrous financial state. Poincare was seventy-four years old when he died, and had been in poor health for some years.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL is vexed by what he calls the "indefensible practice" of certain countries in boosting tariffs or other restrictions to obtain concessions by reducing them again in negotiations with the United States for trade agreements. He made a statement about it, intimating that under such conditions there may be a failure of negotiations.

Although no nation was named, Germany has begun a program of controlled imports and has denounced its most-favored-nation treaty with the United States, and France is increasing tariffs.

FIRST shot in the coming contest between the automobile manufacturers and the American Federation of Labor was fired by the General Motors corporation in an offer to its 130,000 employees of its own plan for collective bargaining. In a letter sent to every worker President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., said: "We of the General Motors recognize 'collective bargaining' as a constructive step forward, both for the employees and the management. Regardless of any obligations that may exist, we propose not only to continue the idea, but to develop it."

A. P. Sloan, Jr.

The plan, which actually is already in effect, was designed to meet all requirements of section 7A of the National Industrial Recovery act. Though the company in its communication did not mention the A. F. of L., it declared that "membership in a labor union or other type of labor or employee organization does not in itself establish the right of any such union or other organization to represent employees in collective bargaining negotiations. Representatives for such purpose must have been specifically chosen by the employees they are to represent and the fact of such choice must be established."

Employees must be given complete freedom in setting up collective bargaining organizations and choosing representatives, the company declared. The management may, however, assist any employee organization in plans for employees' mutual benefit, provided that in the determination of the right of employees to participate in the benefits there is no discrimination by management, on the ground of affiliation with any labor organization.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT went to Williamsburg, Va., and took part in the ceremonies attendant on the inauguration of John Stewart Bryan as president of the old College of William and Mary. In return for his courtesy Mr. Roosevelt was given the honorary degree of doctor of laws. The same honor was conferred on Gov. George C. Peery. The exercises were conducted in the reconstructed main building of the college, designed by Sir Christopher Wren.

On the same day took place the formal rededication of Duke of Gloucester street, the city's main thoroughfare, which has been restored nearly to its original appearance as the last major construction project of the restoration of colonial Williamsburg. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., financial backer of the restoration which already has cost approximately $15,000,000, was among the distinguished visitors present, along with cabinet members, congressmen, diplomats and educators.

ALL the members of the German cabinet took the oath of loyalty to Chancellor Hitler at their first fall meeting, and then Dr. Hans Heinrich Lammers, chief of the chancellery office, announced that "Adolf Hitler is fuhrer for life." He added that the Weimar constitution no longer exists. Many laws were decreed by the cabinet to carry on Hitler's policies. These included laws reducing the tax burdens of the big families and the cost of tax administration, laws reorganizing cooperative associations and "purifying the auctioneers' trade," laws altering bankruptcy sales, reorganizing the traffic in grain "to enable the National Grain company to control grain even when the harvest is reduced."

NEARLY fifty persons lost their lives in a typhoon that swept over Manila and nearby provinces of the Philippine islands. Property damage in the city was estimated as high as $2,500,000, and undoubtedly was heavy in the country.

TWELVE hundred coal miners at Pecs, Hungary, won a sensational fight for better wages, risking their lives for the outcome. They imprisoned themselves far underground for days, declaring they would die there voluntarily unless the employers would raise their pay, which had been only $2 a week. Food sent down by their friends was returned, and many of the men were crazed and nearly dead before the company was forced by the government to make a settlement the workers would accept. The owners agreed to eliminate a wage cut, to raise the working time from two to three days a week, and to pay a bonus of $3 a man to help tide over the winter.

REPUBLICAN senatorial candidates in five states have incurred the displeasure of organized labor, and President Green of the American Federation of Labor has called on the members to work for the defeat of those men in the November elections. The five are Senators Reed of Pennsylvania, Walcott of Connecticut, Hatfield of West Virginia and Fess of Ohio, all seeking re-election, and George M. Bourquin, Republican nominee in Montana.

Circular letters signed by Green review the records in congress of Reed, Walcott, Fess and Hatfield. They say the candidates voted against the 30-hour work-week bill, for reduction of federal salaries, for the sales tax and for confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina to the Supreme court after he had upheld what union men call the "yellow dog" contract between employers and workers. Each letter reminds the members of the federation's declaration to "stand faithfully by our friends and elect them; oppose our enemies and defeat them."

ORGANIZED labor doesn't like S. Clay Williams, chairman of the new national industrial recovery board recently appointed by President Roosevelt. At the San Francisco convention of the American Federation of Labor, a resolution was adopted demanding an investigation of Mr. Williams' attitude as vice chairman of the board of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company of Winston-Salem, N. C., the charge being that he was opposed to trade unions and to collective bargaining with them. The federation's executive council instructed President William Green to present the matter to Mr. Roosevelt on his return to Washington, and he promised to do so. Incidentally, it should be recorded that Mr. Green was re-elected president without opposition.

S. Clay Williams

It is not considered likely that the federation will get far with its fight on Mr. Williams. He was deliberately selected for membership on the board because his conservatism will be a foil to the comparative radicalism of other members, especially Sidney Hillman and Leon C. Marshall. The other two members, Arthur D. Whitehead, head of Dun and Bradstreet, and Walton Hale Hamilton, are rated as moderately conservative.

The new board is hard at work on the problems which beset the NRA. It has devised methods for quicker transaction of business and has strengthened the subordinate executive personnel, and, in the matter of enforcement, it has agreed not to interfere in labor disputes, these being relegated to Secretary Perkins and the labor relations board.

TO THE White House correspondents President Roosevelt said that a federal housing program with a great many ramifications undoubtedly would be submitted to the next congress and also would constitute an important part of the administration's future relief policy.

The President expressed approval of the latest undertaking of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, which is to develop small communities of from 100 to 500 families. The families are taken off the direct relief rolls and moved into small houses, where they are intended to become self-supporting on communal farms provided by the government.

NAZI dictatorship over religion in Germany was bitterly attacked by 16,000 Protestant pastors from their pulpits, despite the presence in every church of secret police and spies. The congregations cheered and shed tears as they were told that a crisis in the rebellion against the tyranny of Reichsbishop Mueller was nearing a crisis. Mueller and Dr. August Jaeger, commissioner of Protestant churches in Prussia, were held responsible for the "triumph of violence and hypocrisy" in a manifesto distributed to congregations.

"Through Mueller and Jaeger Satan does his work," the manifesto said. "The church regime has nullified the gospel. It has violated the constitutional church government, and is using political force to gain its end. 'It splits Bavaria's unified church into two parts, but still it talks of unity. It denies the Ten Commandments and employs lies against truth and robbery against justice. Still it talks of Bible and creed. 'Caprice and falsehood have gained the upper hand in the church.'"

IN some quarters of Washington I hear expressions to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt's latest move regarding prices indicates a conviction that restoration of the country's solvency is more important in the general recovery program than a good many of the theoretical and untried remedies brought into use in the last fifteen months. His price proposals obviously have not ended conjecture as to possible new moves. The program being in generalities did not cause fears to subside concerning future tampering with the monetary structure nor did it alleviate conditions born of the pressure on commerce and industry resulting from NRA and its hundreds of codes.

Taken as a whole, the Washington picture at present is viewed by many astute observers as an indication that Mr. Roosevelt is trying to get together with those who would release credit if given reasonable assurances as to future plans of the administration. It must be said that Mr. Roosevelt has not been coaxing business leaders into the White House. It can be said with equal force, however, that he is being kept informed fully as to what these business leaders think. That being true, it seems to be a proper prediction that the administration is searching quietly for ways of compromise and is hoping at least that there can

Washington.—President Roosevelt believes that commodity prices should go somewhat higher. No Runaway Price Boost but he has advised administration leaders to be on guard against a runaway movement. In making known his view, the President likewise for the first time tossed overboard the plans of many theorists for stabilization of prices on the basis of the 1926 price range and adopted instead something approximating the average of quotations existing in the period between 1909 and 1914.

Although Mr. Roosevelt never has publicly espoused the 1926 price level as such, his discussions have given rise to a general belief that the parity existing around that time constituted a relationship between farm products and industrial products which was satisfactory to him. Therefore, when he said the other day that he preferred the 1909-14 level, he turned his face from the position occupied by numerous groups, such as the committee for the nation and several farm organizations that have contended the 1926 relationship between farm and industrial prices should be the goal.

Most Washington observers agree that the administration is alert to the dangers of runaway prices, resulting not so much from the unbalanced condition of the budget and paper inflation as from uncontrolled and unguarded credit expansion. In other words, it is believed the President recognizes threats of a dangerous boom which, if it occurred, and was followed by the inevitable collapse, would leave our country in the throes of another depression.

In a conference with the President a few days ago, Mr. Roosevelt gave newspaper correspondents every indication of a conviction that price questions involve many factors that are at the particular moment quite impossible of ascertainment. He showed, too, in the opinion of many of the writers, that he is not following advice of the theorists without giving some practical consideration to the doctrines they advance. For example, the President's position clearly shows a desire to find ways and means of preventing wild fluctuations in commodity prices such as those that have characterized quotations in periods like 1920 to 1930. How far he will get in working out such a system is, of course, entirely problematical, but his comprehension of the problem has been accepted by the conservative element with more enthusiasm than they have given heretofore to his pronouncements.

Mr. Roosevelt believes that the nation is solvent. He contends that the column of assets has risen, through increases in general prices, to the point where it exceeds the column of liabilities or debts by a small margin. Arrival of this condition, therefore, has prompted him to give thought to the question of putting on brakes for rising prices. It is my understanding that the brakes are not to be applied yet. He intends, however, to keep them ready for use in case the runaway boom appears.

None of the administration spokesmen are willing at this time to disclose statistics which will represent the price level that is satisfactory to them. It is said, nevertheless, to be a percentage somewhat higher than now obtains.

The commodity price index of the bureau of labor statistics shows farm products now at 72.5, which research discloses is not far below the period from 1909 to 1914. The low point of this index figure for 1934 was 57.4, and the low point of the depression in March, 1933, was 42.8. Of course, index figures do not breathe life, but when two sets of them are arranged alongside each other, they become at least a basis of comparison, and after all, comparison is the best basis for judgment.

In some quarters of Washington I hear expressions to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt's latest move regarding prices indicates a conviction that restoration of the country's solvency is more important in the general recovery program than a good many of the theoretical and untried remedies brought into use in the last fifteen months. His price proposals obviously have not ended conjecture as to possible new moves. The program being in generalities did not cause fears to subside concerning future tampering with the monetary structure nor did it alleviate conditions born of the pressure on commerce and industry resulting from NRA and its hundreds of codes.

Taken as a whole, the Washington picture at present is viewed by many astute observers as an indication that Mr. Roosevelt is trying to get together with those who would release credit if given reasonable assurances as to future plans of the administration. It must be said that Mr. Roosevelt has not been coaxing business leaders into the White House. It can be said with equal force, however, that he is being kept informed fully as to what these business leaders think. That being true, it seems to be a proper prediction that the administration is searching quietly for ways of compromise and is hoping at least that there can be proposals in the next congress which will have the support of a considerable segment of business, a segment that is decidedly not pulling with the administration now because it doubts the efficacy of the brain trust proposals.

The guiding hands of NRA have run into a tough adversary right here in the National Capital in a firm by the name of W. F. Roberts company, incorporated. The Roberts company declined to sign the graphic arts code, the code that applies to printing and allied industries. Having refused to sign the code the Roberts company paid no attention to the code provisions governing wages and hours of labor, so NRA turned the case over to its lawyers for prosecution, and that was the beginning of a fight that promises to be as bitter as any yet arising from New Deal legislation.

The NRA lawyers, armed with affidavits of eight Roberts' employees to the effect that they were not receiving minimum code wages and were working more than the maximum hours, sought in an injunction in the District of Columbia courts to prevent the corporation from violating the code further. Their contention was that the code applied to the Roberts company despite its refusal to sign because it was drafted with the assent of a majority of the printing industry. But the court declined to grant the injunction, deciding that the case should be tried on its merits. The Roberts company felt it had gained something of a victory in the court's ruling, but it did not stop there. It has laid out a much broader campaign and it is that campaign which is proving so embarrassing to the NRA.

B. H. Roberts, head of the corporation, told me in the course of a discussion of the case that he was determined to awaken the country to the excessive costs of code maintenance. He objects strenuously to some of the code provisions and maintains that the bulk of his pay roll is well above the minimum prescribed by the code, but that his main complaint is against the arbitrary actions of the code authorities set up by NRA for enforcement of the code provisions.

The Roberts company further contends that the code authorities are impractical, that they lack an understanding of the businesses over which they preside and that their whole course of action tends to put legitimate industries in a strait-jacket which, according to Mr. Roberts, can have only one result, namely, loss of profits and eventual dismissal of some if not many employees.

The reports in Washington are to the effect that since the Roberts company case reached the trial court, something like 1,800 print shops throughout the country have declined to pay further assessments to the code authority for their industry. There is no means at present available for ascertaining this figure accurately, but the gossip around NRA is to the effect that not only have scores of print shops refused to pay assessments, but in a vast number of cases they have surrendered their blue eagle to NRA headquarters. This means virtually an open revolt in that part of the printing industry, and it is a circumstance that is causing considerable worry among NRA administrators.

This weekly resume of Washington affairs is not intended to be of a gossipy character, but there is a report going around in Washington, quite unconfirmed as yet, that holds much significance. For that reason I shall include it that you may know all things are not serene.

The story concerns a rift in the Department of Agriculture and its adopted child, the Agricultural Adjustment administration. In no governmental agency are there as many brain trusters and theorists as are to be found in the AAA. They have come to be known as the Tugwellians, named for Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture. Professor Tugwell, long regarded as the outstanding brain truster, has been consistent in promotion of his theories and his sub-brain trusters have followed his lead through all the storm and strife between the theoretical and the practical men within the administration.

Now, according to the report, the rift between the brain trusters and the practical men in the AAA and the department as well is approaching an open break. It has gone so far, according to well authenticated reports, that the practical groups have prepared their resignations and have left them in the hands of one individual to present when and if he believes that course becomes necessary. I am not informed whether the Tugwellian group is prepared to take the same action in event of an explosion, but past performances would indicate that they will stick on the job and fight.

It is difficult to predict at this time what the outcome may be, but one thing is certain. There are going to be changes in the AAA and in the Department of Agriculture, and when those changes come it necessarily will be prelude to revision of policies.

THIS CHANGE gives Children a Chance

Perhaps you have tried nearly every sort of way to keep a child's bowels in proper condition, and failed.

Yet, almost any child who has been convalescing in a hospital, will usually come out with bowels working like a well-regulated watch.

The average mother gives any laxative the family may be using, while doctors give children a liquid laxative of suitable ingredients, suitable strength, and in suitable amount.

Make the change now to pure, California Syrup of Figs instead of harsh medicines, you risk no more violence to your child's appetite, digestion, and general physical condition. You'll have a safer, more satisfactory result, too. Those little upsets and complaints just disappear and the child is soon normal again. Try it!

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

On the Loose

For good digestion

—there is nothing that can take the place of your own gastric, digestive secretions. Frequently, poor digestion is due to lack of tone in the stomach walls—because of low blood strength. S.S.S., the great, scientifically-tested medicine, is specially designed to fill a two-fold purpose in this respect... it aids in stimulating the flow of natural stomach secretions... and by building up deficient red corpuscles, with their hemo-globin, it restores to a more normal functioning the secretions of the stomach digestive juices... so necessary for good digestion. This double value of S.S.S. is important.

By all means try S.S.S. for better health and more happiness. Its benefits are progressive... accumulative... and enduring. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food and good digestion... sound sleep... and renewed strength. This is why many say "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again."

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

A RESOLUTION

At a meeting of the Board of Supervisors for the County of Charlevoix, held on Wednesday, October 17th, 1934, a Resolution expressing disapproval of the proposed constitutional amendment providing for a reduction of the State Gas Tax was unanimously passed. The facts briefly set forth in said resolution are as follows:—

To advocate the proposed reduction of the Gas Tax at this time is poor judgment and bad faith. Our County has a bonded indebtedness for road construction which the property tax cannot pay. The bonds were issued for the purpose of obtaining funds for the construction of what are now, trunk line highways, which otherwise would have been built by the State. Any measure, such as this amendment, to reduce the means of retiring such bonds are premature and ill-advised. The regulation of the gas tax rate is not a proper constitutional function, it is a tax which should be raised or lowered as the needs demand and should not be controlled by a rigid and strict constitutional provision, but should be controlled only by Legislative action. Each Representative from this Legislative District, officials and the public at large are requested and urged to disapprove of this amendment. Submitted by the Ways and Means Committee.

He ceased abruptly at a warning glance from his father. "That's enough now, Phil. Louise had seen the paper, Margaret, and was rather worked up—for Louise. Another teacher will take her classes and she'll catch an early train out here. I'll stay until she comes, dear. She asked if we were going to Colorado, but—"

"I feel as if I must, Jim," said Margaret weakly. "If Jack has pneumonia he—he's grown so fast that—"

"The last letter said he'd gained twelve pounds," the little boy reminded them, "and Nancy said he'd never looked so husky."

"I know, but . . ."
Her lips trembled, and James interrupted: "I understand how you feel, Margaret; but it's impossible for you to travel now. This flu's so treacherous if one gets up too soon. But I'll drop everything and go myself unless the next telegram is reassuring. I promise that."

"Is pneumonia a very bad thing to have?" questioned Phil soberly. "Pretty bad," Dad answered, thinking that should Jack not weather it his mother could scarcely reach him in any case. "Now close your eyes, Margaret, and I'll bring some coffee. You'll feel stronger when you've had something to eat."

Louise Nelson said afterwards that she spent that entire day answering telephone and door-bells. The news spread fast; and friends and neighbors responded anxiously. A number of Nancy's schoolmates called up from town, as well as some of the far-famed "boy friends." There were calls from Exeter asking if Jack was as badly off as the papers intimated; and it seemed to the distracted woman that she had not time in which to cheer the invalid.

Cousin Columbine was better than her word, the second message arriving almost an hour before promised. Louise called her brother's office and read it to him.

"It's addressed to you, Jim. She says: 'Doctor thinks things look rather better, and considering how far away you are, advises you not to start immediately. Jack doing as well as can be expected. Nancy suffering greatly but her courage is good and will increase as weakness wears away. Letter follows this, but will write and wire daily for the present. Shall stay near (Glockner hospital) so address me there.'"

"Then Dad won't go?" asked Phil, hovering near as his aunt telephoned. She shook her head.

"Are they both better?"
Aunt Louise nodded because speech came hard. The message was hopeful, yet she seemed to read something between the lines. Pneumonia, she thought, sometimes travels faster than a railroad train. Was that why the doctor advised Jack's parents not to come?

Long as he lived Matthew Adam was never to forget the terror that possessed him when, after hours of tramping snowdrifts, he stepped into that stalled school bus. And, perhaps strangely, his first glance fell, not on Nancy, but on the mound of apparently lifeless children beyond her. Then, all in a breath, they focussed on the girl herself—a girl only half clad, her hands moving mechanically in an effort to bring circulation into a boy's small feet which were, it transpired later, not frozen so badly as her own. Her head, drooping forward on her breast, lifted with difficulty as the door opened, then dropped again, but not too soon for Matthew to have seen the glassy look that clouded her blue eyes.

"Nancy!" he cried. Just that. He was on his knees—had snatched at the fur coat and wrapped it round her. It seemed to him that the girl fought back the overpowering drowsiness by a supreme effort. One eye hand groped for his cheek, as if to make sure that he was flesh and blood. She struggled to speak—struggled so valiantly that Matt's eyes misted with pity when, after a moment, the words came.

"Find . . . Jack . . . You must find Jack, Matt. . . And . . . then take . . . the children. . . I want . . . all . . . all right. . ."

After that Nancy knew nothing at all for a long time. She retained only a confused memory of rousing for a moment to find herself in a room that seemed very full of people; wondering why Matthew Adam and a strange woman were packing snow about her legs; and hearing a child cry out as if in pain.

She recalled that later (how much later it was impossible to say), she had cried herself, with such pain as she had not imagined; and then things blurred again. Even the long ride to the hospital was but a dim remembrance of being wrapped in blankets and held tenderly in strong arms. Once, they told her, she opened her eyes and asked for Jack, but drowsed again before the answer came.

seeing bright sunlight dancing across her bed. It was a white bed in a small, white room; and a white-clad woman was speaking to a shadow in the door. Nancy's eyes traveled upward and saw a cap. So the woman was a nurse. And this must be a hospital. "But why am I here?" she asked herself confusedly. "And what has happened to my legs?" Then she remembered! Those dreadful hours of cold and hunger—those helpless children—Jack facing the blizzard all alone. And suddenly Nancy Nelson was just a little girl again, a frightened little girl who yearned for the comfort that had never failed her when life seemed cruel—and life had never been so cruel before. She said, her voice breaking a little: "I want—I want my mother."

"Thank God!" said the nurse; and the tall shadow in the doorway turned into Matthew Adam—a gaunt and haggard Matthew to be sure, but comfortably familiar amid the strangeness. Two quick strides brought him to Nancy's bed, and bending down he lifted one of her hands gently.

"Thank God!" he said, just like the white nurse; and then anticipating the question she was too weak to ask: "Jack got there, Nancy. He reached Bartlett's before we did; but the wires were down so Mrs. Bartlett couldn't call for help, and her husband was hunting cattle in the drifts. But if Jack hadn't gone there's no knowing when we'd have found you, Nancy. He was all in, of course, but—but he will be all right."

This was Matt's verdict, not the doctor's; nor did he add that Jack was only a room away, fighting pneumonia. Time enough for that knowledge when she was stronger. Then the nurse warned: "That's all for now, Mr. Adam," and Nancy opened her eyes, which had grown sleepy, and asked: "The—children?"

"All safe," Matt answered; then, as a cry of pain escaped her, "Oh, Nancy, is it as bad as that?"

It was very bad indeed, but with returning strength came self-control, and though there were times in the hours to come when her face twitched with anguish, no whimper passed the girl's lips again.

Later she woke to find Cousin Columbine beside her bed.

"How do you feel, child?" The crisp old voice was shaken with emotion. Nancy scarcely recognized it.

"How's—Jack?" she asked. "I'm stronger than Jack, I . . ."
The weak words lagged, and Cousin Columbine said quickly: "Your brother's making a brave fight, child. I always said he had the courage of a pioneer. And you have, too, Nancy. I am so proud of you."

Nancy said nothing for a little while. Scenes from those tragic hours were crowding back.

"You were right—about the—the weather, Cousin Columbine," she admitted in a curious, small voice. And then, a tear slipping from beneath her lashes: "I wish . . ."

"What do you wish, dear?" asked the old lady, bending closer.

Nancy tried to smile, but found herself too spent to manage it. "I'm only a—little homesick," she acknowledged.

A nurse came in just then with a strange doctor; and Cousin Columbine went out. They looked at her legs, and brought another doctor to look at them. Nancy wondered what they were thinking, but was too tired to ask and dropped asleep before they left the room.

It was night when she opened her eyes again. A dim light burned, and a different nurse was there, and a new doctor. No, it wasn't a doctor, Nancy saw after a moment. It was just Matt Adam. She heard the woman say to tell Miss Nelson that her niece was sleeping, and that after a consultation the doctors felt that, after all, she wouldn't lose her feet.

Now how in the world, mused Nancy, only half awake, could you lose your feet even if you wanted to? That nurse was crazy. She spoke as if your feet could be mistle like a pair of gloves or a pocketbook or something! The idea made her almost laugh. Then, realizing that Matthew was about to leave, a wave of homesickness swept over her again, and she protested.

"Don't go, Matt!"
Again the unexpected voice startled her nurse; but Matthew came close, and stood there looking down at her. Then some one turned up a light.

"Better?" His voice was heavy with fatigue and long anxiety.

Nancy nodded.

"Where's—Cousin Columbine?"
"In bed. It's pretty late. She's staying down here to keep an eye on you."

"And—Jack?"
There was a noticeable pause before Matt answered steadily: "Don't worry about Jack, Nancy. That kid's the dandiest fighter you ever saw!"

The nurse turned at this, and going to a window, did something unnecessary to the curtain; while Matthew, bending down, said quietly: "Is there anything I can do before I go, Nancy?"
"You're so tired, Matt," she answered with irrelevance.

He smiled at that and didn't look so tired after all; but the girl said: "You won't drive up the pass tonight, will you? Promise you won't or—or I'll worry."

"I promise. I'll stay down here with John. Mother thought Miss Columbine might need me in the morning for—errands or something," he added hurriedly. "Now be a good girl, Nancy, and go to sleep."

"Couldn't you stay till I drop off?" she pleaded. "I'm kind of homesick."

"We can't let you be homesick," he told her gravely. "but you mustn't talk."

As the nurse (smiling in a manner that would have brought a blush to the young man's cheek if he hadn't been so utterly unself-conscious in that moment) turned down the light and left them for a little time, it seemed to Matt that all his weariness had dropped away. Nancy wanted him there! No matter what happened, he'd always have that to remember. He might be awkward and bashful where most girls were concerned, but now, when she was weak and suffering, the one girl in the world had asked him to stand by. After all, life was pretty wonderful, thought Matthew Adam, forgetting in that moment, the grim fight waging in the room beyond.

CHAPTER XII

The days that followed etched new lines in Columbine Nelson's face, for only a few hours after her second telegram to Massachusetts Jack took an unexpected turn for the worse.

"Shall I send for his people?" she questioned, when after a time that seemed endless a grave-eyed doctor emerged from the boy's room.

"I should wait," he answered. "If Jack were my own son, Miss Nelson, and I so far away, I should say the same. You see, if the end comes, it will be soon; and since his parents could not reach here in time to see him, isn't it kinder, and wiser too, not to harrow them with the knowledge of how dark the prospect looks just now? If he lives through the night the boy will probably recover. He's putting up a magnificent fight; and every nurse and doctor in the place is fighting with him—in spirit, anyway. I don't say that his condition isn't desperate; but somehow I've the conviction that he'll make the grade."

Miss Columbine did not leave the hospital that night; nor did she close her eyes till early morning when a nurse appeared to say that Jack seemed to have turned the corner and his physician felt the worst was over. Not until then did the old lady cry a little, and the doctor ordered a powder that brought sleep. It was almost noon when she heard a rap upon her door, and Matthew Adam entered the room.

"Did I wake you, Miss Columbine?"
"No; I was only snoozing. How's everything now, Matt?"

The young man sat down on the bed and grinned at her.

"Jack's sleeping—naturally. Nancy isn't suffering this morning; and it looks as if the kids were coming through without a single amputation. That Osgood boy's been telling me what happened. I tell you, Miss Columbine, I take off my hat to Jack and Nancy—and to some of those brave youngsters, too."

"I guess the papers didn't exaggerate this time," she observed.

"You're right. But just the same, I miss my guess if it's not some shock to those young relatives of yours when they read the story! How do you suppose it feels, Miss Columbine, to have the country regard you as heroic?"

"Well, it won't hurt either of 'em," responded the old lady. "They've got the Nelson common sense. It's I who's likely to be puffed up, Matthew. Think of the courage it must have taken for a boy to start-out in the teeth of such a storm, especially when the driver had disappeared. And Nancy! A girl brought up as she's been—everything soft and easy so far—to do what she did—Well, all I can say is that my pioneer mother would have been proud of her!"

Matt noted with pleasure that Miss Columbine spoke with her accustomed briskness.

"You must go home today, Matthew," she said later. "It's been a comfort knowing you were here; but your father needs you, and I'll not be babied any longer."

The young man smiled.

"I've had orders per telephone, to stay on duty a day longer. Mark's on his way in from Prairie ranch right now. Mother's coming down in the truck to take him home and, incidentally, pick out a new car! That's one good thing came out of this blizzard. Miss Columbine, we're practically forced to buy a decent automobile. The old one's done for; and even Dad can't rake up an excuse to put us off. The Adam clan is thrilled at the prospect. We're to have a family reunion at the auto agency this afternoon."

Miss Columbine laughed and said: "Your mother deserves a modern car if anybody does. Is Mark all right again?"

"He'd come whether he was or not. They've had to take turns sitting on him to prevent his getting out of bed! All that kept Mark from joining that rescue party, Miss Columbine, was the fact that Aunt Em hid his clothes and locked the closet where Uncle Tom keeps his. I must run now and get a bite before I meet the family."

After these things went more smoothly, and the messages to Edgemere contained only the best of news. Thus there came a day some two weeks later when Nancy found herself in the big black walnut bed again, with General Grant looking down disapprovingly, she thought, on her Chinese coat; and Mark Adam looking quite the opposite, as he stood in the doorway.

"Perusing your fan mail?" he questioned soberly.

Nancy laughed. Her bed was strewn with newspapers and letters, not to mention various telegrams from her admirers. She laid down a cable from Aunt Judy and the Spear twins as she said:

"Come on in and be seated. No, not on the bed, Mark! My feet don't seem to belong to me yet, and I've got the feeling that if anybody sits on 'em they'll break off! Where's Matt?"

I want him to read some of these foolish letters. Can—can you beat that?"

She tossed him a missive; but before Mark had time to look at it, Aurora Tubbs puffed up the stairs.

"What'll you have for dinner, Nancy? There's a steak, and creamed potatoes, and some hot-house tomatoes—that—come—by—express—this—mornin'—from a sincere admirer—in Fort Collins, whoever he is. Would you like apple pie, or a good baked custard? Miss Columbine says to order anything you want. My stars! Your bed's a perfect sight. I hope this praise you're gettin' won't turn your head."

Nancy smiled and replied: "I'll choose the pie, Aurora. And could we open a can of your wonderful string beans?"

"Sure we could. Why don't you ask right out to stay to dinner, Mark Adam? You might as well as sit there lookin' hungry!"

Mark shook his head, endeavoring to appear grieving.

"You wrong me, Aurora. I'm headed for Colorado Springs soon as my elder brother arrives from home in the new car. We're to swap vehicles; and I dare say Matt would appreciate that grudging invitation, though if you ask me, he's already enjoyed more than his share of our nation's heroine."

"I think he's gettin' awful sweet on her," observed the woman, so soberly that Nancy suppressed a smile.

"So'm I," said Mark, and grinned at Nancy.

Aurora moved forward, her brow furrowed with worry.

"I hope to goodness it won't make no trouble in the family, Mark Adam. 'Twould break your mother's heart if anything was to come between you boys. What are you laughin'—about now, Nancy Nelson? It's no laughin' matter for two brothers to get sweet on the same girl. There was the Elton brothers up to Cripple Creek. They both fell in love with Sarah Peters and—Yes, Miss Columbine" (as a warning sounded from below), "I know you told me not to talk Nancy to death. I'm comin' now."

"And she leaves us," Mark said tragically as Aurora fled. "In complete ignorance as to the fate of those unfortunate Eltons! I'll look in on Jack this afternoon, Nancy. Want me to take him some of this accumulation?"

"I do if you won't forget to bring them back. I'm saving every one of the absurdities to show my grand-children. Jack's seen the papers, I suppose."

Mark nodded.

"He says he feels like Lindbergh! The last of those kids goes home today, Nancy. It's wonderful how well they all came through."

"Isn't it? I was so awfully afraid for some of them. It makes me shudder just to remember how they suffered. Is that Matt honking so cheerily below the window? Hand me that compact on the bureau, Mark. I expect I look a sight."

The young man threw her a reproachful glance as he obeyed.

"I note the fact that you used no powder or lipstick on my account, Miss Aladdin. Say! Aunt Em sent in a big donation for the library. I left the books with Mary Taylor, but she suggested you might like to look 'em over here."

"I would. I can hardly wait to get back to the library. Juanita says—"

"All ready, feller," called Matthew from below.

Mark went to the stairway and looked down.

"Why don't you join us, brother? Nancy's been beautifying herself just for your benefit. She looks like the queen of Sheba or Greta Garbo, or some one."

Matthew obeyed, saying as he paused on the threshold: "I was only thinking that two callers might upset the invalid. How you feeling, Nancy?"

"Great! And don't call me an invalid. There's nothing the matter except that my feet feel sort of—well, sort of brittle!"

"Mark Adam," called Miss Columbine, "you come right down. You've been there half an hour. It's Matt's turn now."

"Coming," called Mark; and then to Nancy: "I'll drop in later and let you know if your brother's hat still fits his head, my dear. So long."

As Mark departed, Matt drew a chair nearer the bed.

"You appear to be submerged in letters, telegrams and the daily press," he told her, smiling. "How does it make you feel, Nancy?"

Her eyes lighted with something near amusement.

"It may sound ungrateful, but most of this business makes me want to laugh. It's awful nice for every one to say such things about us; but I know, and you know, too, Matt, that anybody else would have done exactly what Jack and I did. It just happened to be us—that's all."

"I'm not so sure," said Matthew gravely. "I—think you're wonderful, Nancy."

He blushed a little; and Nancy said: "I'll admit that Jack is. It took pluck to leave even the cold shelter of that bus, you know. But to make a fuss over me is—just ridiculous! I'd have been a coward to watch those kiddies freeze to death and not do everything I could. You know I would!"

There was silence a moment before Matt asked: "Do you remember the last time we sat under the old pine, Nancy? You told me then that your courage had never been tested and you wondered how you'd show up in a pinch. Well, you know now, don't you?"

"I'd forgotten that," she answered softly; then lowered her voice still more, her face flushing a little. "Matt, will you tell me something, honestly? I can't ask Cousin Columbine, she looks so worn and tired; and I've got to know. It's about my feet. These papers said I'd lose them—that my legs were frozen solid to the knees."

"Was that the truth?"

"Yes, that was true, Nancy. I'm never going to forget the way I felt when the nurse told me an amputation wasn't necessary. I wanted to cheer, or—cry or something. Miss Columbine did cry when I told her."

Nancy swallowed, and it struck the young man that she was still frightened.

"Is there something else you want to know, Nancy?"

"Only—only—well, Mark carried me upstairs when I came home, Matt. Are my feet really all right, or . . ."

So she'd been lying there acting cheerful and worrying about that! thought Matthew. Oh, she was wonderful!

"Of course they're all right!" he reassured her. "You could walk on them now, only the doctor said you weren't to go too fast. That's straight, Nancy. I wouldn't deceive you a time like this."

The girl sank back limply against her pillows.

"I suppose I'm a moron; but I've wanted to ask that question for days, and was too scared!" She smiled now, at her own foolishness, and added: "If all those complimentary newspaper reporters knew I was terrified at the thought of ending my days in a wheelchair, I guess they'd be frightfully disillusioned!"

"Disillusioned!" Matt's eyes flashed with protective indignation. "Disillusioned! Why—"

Criminology Research
Cesare Lombroso, famous criminologist of the late Nineteenth century, founded criminology as an independent subject of research. The study of crime is conditioned by the difficulty in gathering significant statistics, the changing concepts of crime and by the fact that each country decides for itself or what crime consists. Social, environmental and individual influences are very complex, and criminologists do not consider their results conclusive.

Bachelor Quail Mother and Adopt Orphaned Chickens

Male bob-whites, flitted by coy hens, will adopt and mother orphaned bob-white chicks, it has been discovered by Herbert L. Stoddard of the United States Department of Agriculture. The quail bachelors will take credit for the work of incubation, and lead broods of day-old chicks off into the coverts and raise them as their own. The significance of this discovery lies in the fact that while quail will raise only one brood in the wild, each hen may lay as many as 60 eggs in captivity. These eggs may be gathered and hatched artificially.

Until now, the introduction of the chicks to natural environment was always a risky procedure. With the bachelor quail acting in the role of foster father, it may be possible to eliminate many of the early losses, since the chicks will be under the watchful eyes of wild birds.

Suffered Very Much with Tetter Healed by Cuticura

"I suffered with tetter on my head which would itch and burn. My scalp became rough and red and I scratched for two weeks. I suffered very much. I could not sleep and could barely lay my head on a soft pillow. My hair came out. I tried several remedies but got no relief. Then I wrote for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bought more and after using three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, with the Cuticura Soap, the tetter was gone. I was healed." (Signed) Miss Ada Tatum, R. 1, Box 116, La-Rue, Texas.

Boy's Good Answer

John North Willys, at a Miami luncheon, drove home a statement with an anecdote.
 "A little boy," he said, "was being questioned on religious subjects.
 "My boy," the questioner said, "tell me where God is and I'll give you an apple."
 "I will give you a barrel of apples," said the boy, "if you'll tell me where he is not."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Analytical

She burst into the office, all flushed with great excitement.
 She (to the other office girls)—I've just seen Mr. Smith, the cashier, buy a three-pound box of chocolates.
 One of Them—Who for?
 She—For his wife!
 Another—Why, is he only just married?
 She—Don't know. It's either that or he has done something wrong.—Chelsea Record.

Cold Blooded

Ferdy—Is Miss Ethel in?
 Mald—No, sir!
 Ferdy—So sorry! I will leave these chocolates for her!
 Mald—Thank you, sir! She was just wishing she had some when you rang.

OUT OF LUCK

"Here I am thirsty as blazes, and the water in that well is positively black."

A Reason for Mention

Gumboll—I see the newspapers are speaking about me again this morning.
 Coleslaw—Is that so? In what connection?
 Gumboll—An article says there are now 130,000,000 people in the United States, and I'm one of 'em, ain't I?—Exchange.

Cutting Expenses

Geezer—I've about decided to get married.
 Gumboll—Won't it increase your expenses too much?
 Geezer—No. I figure it will double the life of my tires and cut my gasoline bill in two.—Pathfinder Magazine.

No Staff Needed

"Don't stand there loafing," said the professor, to three of his students who were standing talking in a corner.
 "We're not loafing," replied one of them. "There's only three of us, and it takes times to make a loaf."—Florida Times-Union.

General Contribution

Peewit—I understand the Richmore fortune was started by a man who simply profited by other people's mistakes.

FOR THE SLENDER OR LARGE FIGURE

PATTERN 2005

This is such a beautifully fitting slip that the sizes in it have been run up to fifty. But don't think you have to be a large woman to like it. It is lovely on a slender figure. It is simplicity itself to make and the seams follow such pretty lines they actually become a decoration. In your fall wardrobe don't forget to include some new slips. Summer always works havoc in one's lingerie and no self-respecting frock is going to look as it should worn over an old mis-shapen foundation.

Pattern 2005 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50.

Size 36 takes 2 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

NEW HIGH-HAT CLASS

Blinks—Being able to boast that their ancestors came over in the Mayflower does give some people a superior feeling, doesn't it?

Jinks—Yes, but what good does it do them when they know the descendants of nobody ancestors, who are riding around in the latest streamline models, are looking down on them and their ancient flippers?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Kind Member

Pastor—This morning I will have for my topic "The Great Flood in Genesis."

Prominent Member of Congregation (rising)—I've got an engagement to play golf so I can't stay, but I'll head the subscription list with $1,000 to relieve the suffering Genesians.—Border Cities Star.

NEWS from MICHIGAN

Eureka—Clinton County's last Civil War veteran, James F. Randolph, is dead here. He was 93 years old.

Holland—Harold Colenbrander, 28 years old, died here as the result of a scratch inflicted by a rabid dog several weeks ago.

Jackson—Stamping of the 1935 automobile license plates is nearing completion at Michigan State Prison. Warden Peter F. Gray said that when the stamping plant closes, the binder twine plant will be reopened to keep up the employment schedule.

Lansing—A delegation of six Lansing physicians attended the sessions of the American College of Surgeons at Boston. The delegation included Dr. John O. Wetzel, Francis Jones, E. L. Carr, W. H. Welch, Cyrus B. Gardner and Oliver B. McGillicuddy.

Benton Harbor—Ten-year-old Virgil Kwast received a small caliber bullet wound in his brain when his brother Eugene, 10, playfully pointed a rifle at him as he lay ill in bed in their farm home. The boys had been left alone in the house for a short time.

Sandusky—Ernest Burke, 25, was critically injured here when, attempting to pass a car on M-19, his motorcycle struck the curb, leaped into the air and overturned twice before landing. He was taken to a hospital with a brain concussion and fractured skull.

Muskegon—Daniel Greenwald, 15 years old, was killed here in the first hunting accident of the season. He started on a hunting trip with Stephen Jofick, another boy, when a gun held by his companion discharged accidentally. Greenwald received the charge in the stomach.

Flint—Expenditure of $200,000 on Genesee County highways in the next year to furnish jobs and ease the relief burden has been voted by the board of supervisors. Mark Piper, chairman of the road committee, said $150,000 would be spent for labor and $50,000 for materials.

Armada—Samuel Herman, a farmer living between Armada and Richmond, was sentenced to 20 days in the County Jail for cruelty to animals. He admitted killing a pig and wounding another belonging to a neighbor. Herman Rix. He said he objected to the pigs crawling on his side of the fence.

Lansing—The Administration has announced that checks approximating $114,654,000 had been mailed, up to Oct. 10, to 1,249,600 corn-hog contract signers. Only a little more than $18,000,000 of the estimated total of first payments remains to be paid. Michigan producers have received $495,595.

Marquette—Nels P. Flodin, 71 years old, one of the best known figures in the Lake Superior District through his 44 years' connection with the Lake Shore Engine Works, died here after a year's illness. Mr. Flodin, a charter member of the Lake Superior Mining Institute, was responsible for the development of many machines now commonly used in mining operations. He was born in Sweden.

Lansing—The State Liquor Control Commission appropriated $40,000 to speed the production of Michigan wine. The fund will be paid out through wineries, which are expected to at least match the State appropriation. The commission will be reimbursed in wine by the wineries. Action was taken to accelerate the purchase of grapes and help insure an adequate supply of Michigan wine.

Newberry—Lewis Roberts, a twenty-five-year-old United States Coast Guardsman at Deer Park north of here, was instantly killed when a buzz saw broke from its arbor and struck him in the shoulder. Mrs. Patricia Kantz, also of Deer Park, who was helping Roberts cut wood, was struck by the saw and suffered a broken right arm. She was given medical attention at Newberry. Roberts is survived by a widow and two small children.

Clare—Clare County farmers claim some record crops this year. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Garchow, of Grant, have grown record-size pumpkins in their garden. One is 16 inches high, 60 inches in circumference and weighs 63 pounds, and another, 12 inches high and 64 inches in circumference, weighs 63 pounds. A cucumber 23 inches long and weighing four pounds was grown by William L. Park, and recently Ed Rutter brought to town a puffball 16 inches in diameter and weighing 17 1/2 pounds.

Lansing—A survey of traffic on important trunkline highways, particularly those leading into adjacent states, has been ordered by the State Public Utilities Commission with a view of holding the number of licensed trucks down to the safety level. The State Highway Department will cooperate in the survey. Indications were new permits will not be granted in congested territory. Federal regulation of interstate trucking operations is expected by State authorities within the next few months.

Ann Arbor—Rumors that "boot-leg" football programs competing with those published by the board of control of physical education may be distributed at future games here have resulted in the board's copyrighting the squad roster and playing number, it was announced at the athletic office. Action is to be taken by the United States district attorney's office against persons publishing fake programs listing playing numbers and squad information. Advertisers in these programs will be joined with the publishers as defendants.

Lesson for October 28

THE CHRISTIAN'S STANDARD OF LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Ephesians 4:17-5:21.
 GOLDEN TEXT—And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit, Ephesians 5:18.
 PRIMARY TOPIC—Growing Like Jesus.
 JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Rule Ourselves.
 INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Evils to Be Avoided.
 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Evils to Be Overcome.

In order effectively to teach this lesson, the book of Ephesians as a whole must be apprehended. The first three chapters are devoted to the setting forth of the high calling of the believer in Christ. The last three chapters set forth the worthy walk of the believer, in the light of the high calling.

I. The Believer Does Not Walk as the Heathen Do (4:17-19). The believer is a partaker of the new humanity in Christ. Being such, he is no longer to follow after the "old man." It should be observed that the believer in Christ is in conflict with his broken human nature called the "old man." In order to see the walk of the believer in contrast with that of the world, we should see what the walk of the heathen involved.

1. The mind (v. 17). The unregenerate have no clear or settled principle or sound theory of life. No man of a sound mind will worship idols, or practice vices which are odious and ruinous.

2. The spiritual nature (v. 18). Paul says they were "alienated from the life of God." They were indeed ignorant of God.

3. Their moral nature (v. 19). Paul says they were "past feeling." Because of this, they could neither love God nor hate sin, therefore gave themselves over to shameless profligacy.

II. The Believer's Walk as Taught by Christ (4:20-24). Christ is the pattern of holiness and unselfishness for the believer.

a. The "old man" is to be put off (v. 22). The habits and deeds of the old nature, which are grossly corrupt, are to be put away.

b. The "new man" is to be put on (vv. 23, 24). The "new man" lives a life of righteousness and holiness—the unmistakable signs of a new nature.

III. The Vices Which the New Man Discards (4:25-5:6).

1. Falsehood (v. 25). The renewed man puts off lying. He tells the truth instead. Soundness of faith makes an honest tongue.

2. Anger (vv. 26, 27). By anger is meant not burning indignation against sin, but personal bitterness, which means giving place to the devil.

3. Theft (v. 28). The new man will not steal. He will render honest toil instead. It should be borne in mind that there are other ways of stealing than rifling a cash drawer or seizing another's pocketbook. Taking what does not belong to you, not making proper change in a business transaction, riding on a car and not paying your fare, are stealing.

4. Idle and corrupt speech (vv. 29, 30). Pure conversation is the sure sign of regeneration. Corrupt speech grieves the Holy Spirit.

5. Malice (4:31-5:2). This means badness of disposition expressing itself in bitterness, clamor, and railing. This is to be supplanted with kindness and tender-heartedness.

6. Impurity (vv. 3, 4). Uncleanness of life is peculiarly common among the heathen.

7. Covetousness or greed (v. 5). Whenever business is allowed to crowd out our spiritual interests we are brought under the control of the flesh or the "old man."

IV. The Walk of the Believer as Filled With the Spirit (5:15-21).

1. His life in relation to the world about him (vv. 15-18).
 a. Circumspectly (v. 15). This means to walk with one's eyes open. Every step is to be thoughtfully and prayerfully taken.

b. Diligent to seize every opportunity (v. 16). It means watching the time, that is, bringing it under personal control.

c. He abstains from the intoxicating cup (v. 18). The believer is a total abstainer. This obligation is incumbent upon him today as perhaps in no other day.

2. The inner life or personal state of the believer (vv. 18-21). The one who is filled with the Spirit has an exhilaration from within which expresses itself

a. In supreme joyousness.
 b. In thanking God at all times for all things (v. 20).
 c. In lowliness of mind (v. 21).

Life's Problems

The problems of life are not solved mainly by those who sit idly under the trees moaning over the ills of existence—they are solved mainly by those who eat and sleep, look up at the stars and down at the flowers, trust in God and in the goodness of their fellows, and steadily accomplish their appointed tasks.

Not That Way

We do not often draw people close to us by telling them what is wrong with them.

No One Recipe for Apple Sauce

Variety of Methods Can Be Employed in Making Delicacy.

The two most fundamental points of difference in the making of apple sauce lies in the cooking, is the opinion of a noted chef. She says: In my mother's kitchen when it was made, it was a point of pride to see that the apple slices preserved their shape during the cooking and serving. The apples, first peeled, cored, and sliced in segments were dropped into an already boiling sirup of sugar and water, one cup to a quart of fruit being sufficient. They were covered and cooked gently. The upper slices were pierced with a fork and the saucepan removed immediately they were tender, to avoid the additional cooking that would disintegrate the pieces.

Then, as well as today, another "school" of apple sauce making had its adherents. To these there was no sauce like that apple sauce which was put through a colander after cooking, and was of the consistency of a rather thin cereal, smooth as to texture, and so nearly liquid as to require separate serving dishes.

In this apple sauce the fruit is freed of its seeds but need not be peeled. A beautiful color is imparted when the skins are red, as some of the color is in the finished sauce. After cooking until tender, in sugar and water, the excess liquid is drained, and the fruit pressed through a colander. Makers of canned apple sauce seem to have favored this method, as well as many makers of fresh.

The spices and flavors to be described can be used in making either kind of apple sauce. A cautious shake of the cinnamon holder imparts a delicious flavor. Some tastes incline toward the addition of a few thin slices of lemon in the cooking. The lemon may be removed when cooked. If served it should be cut very fine. Grated pineapple in small quantity is included in the dish at times. A combination of cranberry sauce is made by adding one part cranberry sauce to two parts apple sauce. With the whole apple sauce as first described, this is the most successful.

Millions for Cosmetics

Almost $20,000,000 was spent in the manufacture of toilet preparations, soaps and washing compounds in Canada in 1932. A recently issued official report states that the total value of the former produced was $5,073,134, and of the latter $14,734,549.—Canada Week by Week.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless use of strong laxatives may do more harm than good.

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gently helps the average person's bowels while nature is restoring their regularity. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go!

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. At all druggists, ready for use, in big bottles.

EDITORIAL

The leaves clothed in coats of many colors are falling, stirred from their moorings by the gentle, warm breeze, faintly scented with smoke from spark-shooting bonfires. It is gypsy weather; the roving, happy-go-lucky spirit of the gypsy penetrates many a studious brain, filling it with longing for the wide open spaces. Therefore, that many students of late sit staring into space, or out of classroom windows can not be attributed, dear reader, to any natural delinquency. It is the call of nature; the urge to shoulder your gun and march off to the forest, there to startle it with resounding echoes, whilst game animals and birds fall. That call was answered Monday by a goodly number of boys, judging from the decided decrease in class attendance. Yet can we say that taking a day off in this manner is justified? Just one day may seem a trivial matter, but it is not trivial when it enables us to more easily say "yes" to the next temptation, and thus weaken our wills. If we wish to be considered dependable, we must use will power, not allow ourselves to be dragged about by our impulses. We must determine what things in life are most worthwhile—what things will be of the greatest value to us—and do those things. Our whims and petty desires must not be allowed to side-track us; the bigger things must come first then the smaller things. Thus we are able to strengthen our character and better meet the tests of life.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE NOTICE

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made and executed by John C. Shier and Geneva M. Shier, his wife, of East Jordan, Michigan, to the Peoples State Savings Bank, of East Jordan, Michigan, which said mortgage bears date the 10th day of November, 1927, and was recorded on the 17th day of November, 1927, in Liber sixty-seven (67) of Mortgages, on page eighty three (83), in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Charlevoix, Michigan, and that said mortgage is past due, and there is now claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage the sum of four thousand one hundred ninety nine and 86/100 ($4199.86) Dollars, at the date of this notice, including principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and attorney fee, as provided for by said mortgage; and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the moneys secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

And whereas, the undersigned, George D. Nimmo, was appointed Receiver for the Peoples State Savings Bank, a Michigan corporation, of East Jordan, Michigan, on the 28th day of March, 1934, by R. E. Reichert, Commissioner of the State Banking Department of Michigan, and has duly qualified as such Receiver, and is now the lawful and acting Receiver for the Peoples State Savings Bank, a Michigan corporation, of East Jordan, Michigan;

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and of the statute in such case made and provided, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on Saturday, the 27th day of October, 1934, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the east front door of the court house in the city of Charlevoix, Michigan, that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, said George D. Nimmo, as Receiver of the Peoples State Savings Bank, of East Jordan, Michigan, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, and all legal costs and attorney fee.

The premises described in said mortgage are as follows, to-wit:

"The south forty six (46) feet of lot nine (9) and the north thirty two (32) feet of lot number ten (10), all in block one (1) of the village of South Lake, more commonly known as the city of East Jordan, as per recorded plat of said village now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan."

Dated August 3rd, 1934.

day, and we are learning a Hallowe'en song.

We named our classes last week and they are the "Tigers", "Bluebirds", and "Cubs".

Nearly all the third graders are able to tell time. When everyone can we are going to make ourselves a wall clock.

Fourth Grade On Imaginary Trip

Thomas St. Charles has gone to the Legion Billet at Otter Lake for a few weeks. We certainly miss him.

We are reading about the early Indians, how they lived then and how they live now.

In Geography we are making an imaginary trip across the United States over the Lincoln Highway.

Three "Top Notchers" in Fifth Grade

The Honor Roll in the fifth grade include: Eva Bayliss, Jacklyn Williams, and Thelma Brown.

Sixth Graders Kept Busy With Many Activities

Those who had "A" in geography this week are: Marjorie Kiser, June Ayers, Eunice Sutton, James Bugai, Harry Watson, and Vera Staley.

This week we have found books very interesting.

For healthy living we are all making health posters.

For language we are making leaves. We have five different kinds.

Frances Wright has been out the last week, but she is back again.

We all are trying hard so that we can get on the Honor Roll.

We are doing decimal fractions and we think it is a lot of fun.

Further Plans For The Eighth Grade Party Announced

The eighth grade students will all be dressed in masquerade costumes of many bright colors when they gather at the party Friday, the nineteenth, from seven thirty to ten o'clock in the auditorium.

Dad Porter's orchestra will play while the students dance. Games like ping pong and checkers will be provided for those who do not dance.

Ninth Grade Girls Ask Why?

The encores or main dishes that the freshman girls were working on last week turned out very well.

They wondered and found out why their soufflé didn't rise when it should. They also made macaroni and cheese and cottage cheese sandwiches.

Whirring of Sewing Machines Sound From Home Ec. Room

This week the home ec. tenth grade girls are starting on their "make over" problems of either wool or silk, after the thorough instructions of last week.

Some are well on their way now.

More News of that Chicken Supper

Members of the local Future Farmers Association are completing plans for the chicken supper and dance following the Boyne City—East Jordan football game November 3. Oh what plans! Remember the good time we had last spring? This will be ever better. Tickets will be on sale the latter part of next week and can be obtained from any of the members.

Mr. Sleutle has given out word that if any of the boys taking agricultural courses have machinery that needs repair, he will help them make these repairs that can be made in the shop. We are certainly glad this addition has been made to the manual training department because it gives country students a chance to do something of great practical value. The F. F. A. has taken the responsibility of finding jobs of this kind, and we are sure there will be plenty of work necessary to get tools ready for spring work.

Glee Club Sends Out "S. O. S."

S. O. S. might mean "Singers, Oh Singers!" — but it doesn't. It means, "Glee Club Wants Altos!" There are thirty-seven members so far. Let's keep going. The glee club is honored to have Betty Vogel for pianist. Remember the club meets at 3:30 every Wednesday afternoon for forty minutes to sing.

Second Year Shorthand Students Studying for the O. G. A. Awards

The second year shorthand students are practicing the O. G. A. (Order of Gregg Artists) test, to be sent in to the company for awards.

The bookkeeping students have taken the first standard test, published by the Southwestern Publishing Company, and Bernice Shepard had the highest grade.

Latin II Studying With Future Infinitives and Participles

Latin I students are studying the declensions of pronouns. They have been translating stories about early Roman life and the habits of the people.

Latin II students are struggling with the future infinitives, and participles. Miss Stroop, wondering what was so interesting, looked over Edna Inman's shoulder. This is what she saw:—

"Lightibus outibus in the parlorum, Popibus hearibus loudi smackorum, Comibus quickibus mit a cluborum, Kickibus boyibus out ob de doorum, Boyibus kissibus girlie no morum."

Echoes

The civics class is studying about organization of Congress, the president, and his duties.

The seventh grade girls have been playing baseball. Gerieveve Ellis's team has been declared the champion, because it has won three games while the other three teams have each won one game.
