The C. of C. committee appointed to take charge of affairs is, Dr. E. J. Brenner, chairman, Ed. Ruhling, Percy Penfold, E. E. Wade and Walter Corniel. Pres. Geo. Bechtold and Vice-Pres. Clarence Healey are also doing their share to help out. Geo. Secord again has charge of the publicity end of it.

Joe Bugai heads the Sportsmen's Club committee in charge of the banquet.

It is planned to again have many outdoor notables of the state present, and that another gala day will be in store for East Jordan.

The first inquiry regarding this year's Jamboree came Tuesday from Elkhart, Ind., from a group of people who have never attended our Jamboree as yet.

The advertising stickers will be out this week.

Colter Farm Home Destroyed By Fire

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Colter in Echo township was completely destroyed by fire together with most of the household furnishings, in a bad blaze Saturday afternoon.

New Temple Show Is Dramatic Dynamite

The Temple Theatre of East Jordan is announcing the most unusual film of the year for a three day run starting Sunday. The author of the story, "The President Vanishes" refused to divulge his identity last October when the book was published so startling and sensational was the theme. Coming to the screen this story called for special casting and 21 stage and screen stars were finally selected for the characterizations. And so without revealing the theme of "The President Vanishes" you may be assured of an evening of mystery, thrills and fun that seldom has been equalled.

Under the new policy the Temple is now open seven days a week with matinees on Saturdays and Sundays. The current program includes in addition to "The President Vanishes" the following selected presentations: Wednesday, Mar. 6th, Ginger Rogers in "Romance In Manhattan", Thurs., Friday and Saturday, March 7-8-9, Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell in "Flirtation Walk."

Wild Game Protected From Hunting Dogs

Friday, March 15, is the last date on which field trials of hunting dogs may be conducted legally in Michigan this winter, announced the Field Administration Division, Department of Conservation.

To avoid any disturbance of game birds and animals during the season in which they rear their young, state law forbids the training of hunting dogs on wild game of any kind after that date.

A naval officer fell overboard. He was rescued by a deck hand. The officer asked his preserver how he could reward him.

"The best way sir," said Jack, "is to say nothing about it. If the other fellows knew I'd pulled you out, they'd chuck me in."

"A funny thing happened to my mother in Berlin."
"I thought you said you were born in London."

Boyer City Railroad File ICC Statement

A dispatch from Washington, published in the Grand Rapids Press of Tuesday, has the following relative to Boyne City's railroad:—

Purchasers of the Boyne City Gaylord Alpena railroad in Michigan informed the interstate commerce commission Monday that they planned to abandon 84 miles of the line and operate only the seven miles between Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

The road which was sold recently at a receiver's sale for $100 subject to taxes of $52,000 and a bond issue of $800,000, extends from Boyne City to Alpena.

The Boyne City Railroad Co. applied Monday to the ICC for permission to take over the road from the purchasers and to operate the seven miles between Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

The application states that the company is buying the road from the receiver sale purchasers and soon will pay the taxes and buy up the bonds, resulting in ownerships without claim of any sort against them. An application also is being filed, it was stated, for the abandoning and dismantling of the line from Boyne Falls to Alpena.

Charlevoix Wins Final 14-12

WINS IN FINAL SECONDS OF OVERTIME PERIOD

Coach Abe Cohn's revamped Crimson Wave, playing their final game of the season at Charlevoix last Friday, sprung a genuine surprise to everyone present by forcing the high flying Red & White boys into an overtime period. Charlevoix won when Schwab sank a mid-court shot with but fifteen seconds left to play in the overtime. The final score was 14 to 12.

Coach Kipke started his second string in the first quarter. The Crimson got off to a 5 to 2 lead in the early minutes and were ahead 6 to 4 as the quarter ended. The Charlevoix main squad took the floor as the second period opened and the entire quarter was a defensive battle, neither team being able to score, the half ending 6 to 4 in favor of the Jordanians.

Quinn opened the third quarter with a short shot to increase our lead 8 to 4 but the Red & White kept whittling away and the locals led 8 to 7 when the final period opened.

The crowd was on their feet practically the entire final period. Pearl and Carey each sank baskets to give them the lead, 11 to 8. A minute later Guy Russell came back with one of his one-handed pot shots to make it 11 and 10. Schwab made good on a free throw and again Charlevoix enjoyed a 2 point lead. With two minutes left to play, Gayle Saxton was fouled and he made good on his try, making the score 12-11. With fifteen seconds left, Quinn and Foster committed a double foul. Art stepped up and sank the ball to knot the count at 12 all. Foster, with a chance to cinch victory for his team, missed his shot, and the game went into the overtime period.

George Walton was forced to leave the game early in the first quarter with a shoulder injury. Orlando Blair took his place and put up a pretty exhibition of guarding, holding his man scoreless the entire time. "Bugs" played until the final two minutes of the game and showed he can be relied on for important tournament duty.

The Crimson reserves were beaten by the Charlevoix seconds 21 to 11 in the preliminary.

Saturday p. m. the Crimson Wave drew Boyne City for their first game at the district tournament at Charlevoix. They tangled at 8:30 p. m. tonight.

CARRYING ON PROPOSED ALPENA - ATWOOD HIGHWAY

An article in last week's Mancelona Herald, together with a legal notice from the State Highway Dept., indicates that the planned cross-state highway from Alpena west to Atwood — where it would connect with U. S. 31 — is being carried forward. Bids from contractors will be opened this Friday — March 1st — at Lansing for the construction of 2,348 miles of 21-foot gravel surface highway. This is north-west of Elmira in Warren and Jordan townships, Antrim county, on the new trunkline to East Jordan.

This new road will open a stretch between the Bohemian Settlement and Elmira. From the Settlement in to East Jordan is a fairly good county road. This proposed road now comes out south of the fair grounds. It is thought, however, by some, that in straightening out several sharp turns in this road the highway as finally laid out will run east of the fair grounds, coming into East Jordan to the north of these grounds.

THE Week At Lansing

(By FRANK D. BROWN, Special Correspondent)

Rumblings of another legislative investigation were heard in the House this week where Rep. Martin Baginski, Detroit democrat, sponsors a resolution calling for an inquiry into the charges that the druggists are endeavoring to get a "corner" on the liquor business in this state. Gov. Fitzgerald's proposal to reduce the number of state liquor stores causes Baginski to intimate the possibilities of collusion existing to discriminate against other classes of merchants who would like to get a share of the profits accruing from the traffic.

Experience of the "old days" has proven legalized liquor to be a very delicate problem with any state administration. After an absence of 15 years, the old bugaboo seems to have returned in the form of many of the evils of the pre-prohibition era; evils which, if not promptly curbed, may jeopardize the Michigan dispensary system. Judge McDonald, chairman of the liquor control commission, declared a few days ago that the brewing industry has fallen prey to the racketeers and that licenses have become a commodity of cash value to certain individuals. An investigation of this phase of the situation is to be launched shortly. The results may be surprising.

The senate insurgents, mentioned in this column a week ago, had their baptism of fire early this week. The first test of their strength since the committee on executive business was reorganized came when the name of Ed. A. Nowack was offered for confirmation as a members of the public trust commission. The final decision was in favor of the appointee but the "revolting" serators as a formidable gesture decreed that the appointment should be held-up for a time to allow the gathering of certain pertinent information relative to the subject.

Nowack is the publisher of a Lansing weekly newspaper and is one of the better known figures in things political around Lansing. His selection for the trust commission by the governor came about because of his activity of the past few years in expressing through his editorial columns his dissatisfaction with the manner in which defaulted bond issues have been handled by the state.

From Washington has come a batch of bills bearing the endorsement of Harold L. Ickes, federal emergency administrator, which are designed to greatly enlarge the power of municipalities to issue bonds for public works projects. They would authorize local governing agencies to approve borrowing without limit and without a vote of the people.

The bills have been sent by Gov. Fitzgerald to the legislature for introduction but at present rest in the top drawer of Speaker George Schroeder's desk. The question of constitutionality has been raised and the bills are to be overhauled before they are released. As they now are written there is dragged back before the eyes of Michigan taxpayers the ghost of Gov. Comstock's famous "insurrection bond" issue. Michigan's constitution demands that the people shall be consulted before any promiscuous borrowing of money is indulged in—these bills disregard that mandate.

The question puzzling state officials is that of whether Michigan would be deprived of full participation in the federal public works program in event the legislature fails to enact these measures or the state supreme court refuses to concur in their validity.

Speaker Schroeder has formally entered the criss-cross controversy involving the pending action on proposals to abolish the state crime commission and the legislature council which many members of the House and Senate regard as a mighty valuable adjunct to the legislature. As a retaliatory move, a concerted effort is being made, especially among the democratic members of the House, to abolish the crime commission, the retention of which is most acceptable to the governor.

Speaker Schroeder in a non-partisan statement to your correspondent declared that the crime commission with its work already done, is "a prime example of unnecessary expense and superfluity." On the other hand the speaker asserted "the legislative council and its studies put the legislature directly in the know" on all questions pertaining to our state government without extra expense. The crime commission and other commissions of its ilk are just extra tax burdens. If we are to adhere to honest economic effort we will begin to cut off these extras and start to use our regularly constituted resources, saving ourselves thousands of dollars in expense each year."

From East Jordan's Presbyterian Missionary In Brazil, S. A.

Letter from Rev. C. R. Harper of Brazil who is supported by the East Jordan Presbyterian Church.

Jan. 30, 1935.
Buruery, E. F. S., Est. de S. Paulo, Brazil.

Dear Friends of the East Jordan Presbyterian Church:—

Greetings!
Before we become involved in the whirl of another school year, which begins next Tuesday, I must have a visit with you. How pleasant it would be to drop into your homes and into your church, once again, and to have an unhurried visit.

Some little time ago we had the visit of the Publicity Secretary from the Board, Mr. S. F. Mack, who is taking pictures in many of the South and Central American countries with a view to showing the home church phases of the missionary work, the schools, the customs, the cities, the life of the people in a way that is not possible through favor as a method of education at home.

I hope East Jordan will be able to secure these films on S. America and will have the opportunity of seeing the work at the Mackenzie School and the interesting phases of S. Paulo life a little more closely.

Another thing of interest is the Board's Sunday night broadcast from Pittsburgh on the fourth Sunday of each month, at 11:15 p. m., which means 1:15 here in S. Paulo. Any messages addressed to the Publicity Department of the Board for transmission to the field will be relayed upon that occasion. We don't have a radio out here but one of the American teachers in Mackenzie College has an instrument which picks up the States well and I'm planning to listen in on his radio the night of Feb. 24, and March 24th to see if any message comes through for us from East Jordan. Any news item about ourselves or the church there or the work here will be most welcome. I'll write back immediately how it comes out and it will be a splendid means of contact.

The vacation period has been a full and busy one. First there is the Young People's Conference, held at a mountain resort called Umuarama, which is an Indian word meaning, "The Meeting Place of the Allies." Perhaps you have heard me speak of the place before. It is between here and Rio, so it is easy of access by groups from both places. It is a co-operative project in which many Mission Boards and National church bodies are interested. Our own participation in part was made possible by a gift from the Russell Sage Foundation. This is the first year in which equipment has been sufficient to entertain large groups of people.

The group was small this first year, but we were fortunate in having a good faculty and in getting members of the national churches enthused in the project, which was our main object. We want to turn it over to them and let them run it in their own way. A committee was formed at the conclusion of this first conference, composed almost entirely of Brazilians, who represent various denominations and who will plan for the next conference to be held at the end of this year.

Our South Brazil Mission Meeting was held here at Jandyra, the local name of the station on the railroad. It was a busy time around here for ten days as the meeting progressed, the various activities of the mission studied and evaluated and new plans made for the future.

Following the meeting here, the mission adjourned to meet at Umuarama, together with four other Presbyterian Missions, making five in all. Two of these are of the Northern Church and three of the Southern. Happily, there is a fine spirit of fellowship and co-operation among all of these groups, and the churches developed in Brazil are all turned over to the one body representing the national Presbyterian church in Brazil. Four years ago there was held here at our school such a Plenary of all the Presbyterian missionaries, with some sixty-odd in attendance. The results were so acceptable that another such meeting was called in Jan. 1935, which was this one just held.

Next Tuesday we begin the eighth year of the Mackenzie College. We have a new member of the faculty who comes to take over some of the work of Rev. Themudo Lessa, whose health doesn't permit so heavy a schedule. We are trying to get the national churches to take a greater financial responsibility in the school in order to secure the future better. As to students, last year there were some fifty, and we hope for a good student body again this year. At the end of the year, nine were graduated and two given certificates.

This carries kindest personal greetings from Mrs. Harper and myself to each and every one of you in the East Jordan Church. We count you as our personal friends and would consider it an immense favor if you could find time to drop us a line.

That this may be a splendid year

They Wore Phantom Crowns

The Beginning — Reception of the Emperor and Empress on Landing in Mexico

Maximilian

Carlota

The End — Last Moments of Maximilian

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

"HERR JOHANN STRAUSS of Vienna was very busy composing waltzes."

So begins chapter one of a new book, "Phantom Crown—The Story of Maximilian and Carlota of Mexico," written by Bertita Harding and published recently by the Bobbs-Merrill company.

A dreamy Strauss waltz, played in the romantic city on the Danube, is an appropriate theme song for the main character in the drama that is about to begin. Maximilian was like that—a dreamer, an idealist, a man of extraordinary purity and simplicity but lacking utterly the clear vision and the ability to deal with practical matters. If he had been otherwise, some North American history—even a part of the history of the United States—might have been different.

"Phantom Crown" is an appropriate title, too, for the story of Maximilian and Carlota, who made "the last grand, bewildered gesture of royalty on the American continent" and who attempted a "visionary conquest which ended so tragically for them both." For the theme song given to the Austrian archduke in the opening chapter of the Harding book soon changed. The notes of a Strauss waltz were drowned out by the crackling of the flames of rebellion and that sinister sound rose to a crescendo in the crashing volley of rifle shots on the Hill of Bells in Queretaro where he who would be emperor of Mexico died facing a firing squad.

Maximilian wore his "phantom crown" only three years. Carlota wore hers for more than fifty. Maximilian, facing death, declared "I die in a just cause. I forgive all, and pray that all may forgive me. May my blood flow for the good of this land. Long live Mexico!" In his last few moments on earth, he heard a faithful subject salute him with "Hail Emperor, farewell!" Carlota tried to become the "mad empress," to linger on in the twilight of insanity, to cherish a delusion that she was still a sovereign and to talk with the imaginary members of an imaginary court.

Who, then, can say which was the greater tragedy—Maximilian's or Carlota's?

Archduke Maximilian, the youngest brother of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, was born at Schonbrunn on July 6, 1832. In 1857 the tall, fair-haired, blue-eyed young archduke was married to seventeen-year-old Princess Charlotte Marie Amelie Augustine Victoire Clementine Leopoldine, daughter of King Leopold I of Belgium. When Franz Joseph made the archduke viceroy of the Austrian-ruled provinces of Venice and Lombardy in Italy, his bride changed her name to Carlotta, the Italian for Charlotte.

After two years of rule in the Italian provinces, Maximilian was glad enough to retire to the ease of private life in the splendid Chateau Miramar at Trieste. Meanwhile affairs across the Atlantic which were to affect the destiny of the Austrian archduke were rapidly taking shape. Mexico had thrown off the yoke of Spain but was troubled by the internal strife which was to characterize that turbulent land for the next century. Because of these unsettled conditions European loans became so endangered that in October, 1861, France, England and Spain signed a joint agreement to intervene in Mexico in order to protect the investments of their citizens.

Other factors, however, entered into this decision—at least, so far as France was concerned. For France was ruled by Napoleon III, "Napoleon the Little," a master of intrigue and political scheming. Besides desiring to collect the French debts in Mexico he was dreaming of a French empire in America to save Catholicism, as well as the Latin races, from being engulfed by the Anglo-Saxon culture. True, the Monroe Doctrine had been a warning to the European nations to keep "hands off" in the New World, but at this time the United States was in the throes of a civil war and therefore in no condition to back up that doctrine. Or at least, Napoleon thought that this was a good time to put its strength to the test and England and Spain too no doubt were willing enough to see it tested.

On December 14, 1861, Vera Cruz was occupied by Spanish troops; soon afterwards the French fleet arrived, with a large force of soldiers and Great Britain sent ships and landed 700 marines. When it became apparent, however, that France was intending to interfere in domestic politics in Mexico, especially in regard to the relations of church and state, beyond the scope of the agreement, Spain and Great Britain withdrew their forces in March, 1862, leaving France to go it alone. France thereupon increased the number of her troops by many thousands and set about to conquer Mexico.

The following spring her army besieged and reduced Puebla and on June 7, 1863, entered the city of Mexico. A provisional government of Mexicans was set up as the puppets of the French and this temporary organization voted in favor of a monarchical form of government. It was Napoleon's idea to offer the crown to Archduke Maximilian of Austria. But Maximilian, enjoying his books and the life of a private gentleman at Miramar, refused to accept the honor and went off on a botanical expedition to Brazil.

Returning from Brazil he was approached again. Napoleon was persistent. The giant shadow of Bismarck, which loomed with an increasing menace across the Prussian border, was causing both France and Austria some concern and the French emperor hoped that an alliance with the House of Hapsburg might lessen that menace. But Emperor Franz Joseph was suspicious of this upstart emperor in France and he strongly advised his brother against having anything to do with Napoleon's schemes.

But Carlotta was ambitious. She had tasted the delights of being a ruler, even though a minor one, during the time her husband had been viceroy of the Italian provinces. She was dazzled by the idea of being an empress. For all her youth, she was a stronger character than her husband and she exerted all of her influence over him to get him to accept Napoleon's offer. At last he yielded to her persuasion and, after renouncing his rights of succession to the Austrian throne, accepted the title of emperor of Mexico. On May 28, 1864, the new emperor and empress arrived at Vera Cruz and although their reception was not as ardent as they might have hoped for, yet they were warmly welcomed by the clergy and the military elements which hoped, through the monarchy, to regain some of the prestige and the property they had lost.

Prior to the establishment of the empire Mexico had known two factions. One was the liberals, led by Benito Juarez, an Indian patriot who had been exiled by Santa Anna, the dictator, and returning to Mexico after the fall of Santa Anna, had succeeded to the presidency upon the death of Jean Alvarez and in 1857 had promulgated the great reform measures which brought about a complete severance of church and state. When Maximilian was set upon the throne by French troops, Juarez was again forced to flee, but although he was again down he was far from out.

The other party was the conservatives, or the church party, to whom Maximilian owed his crown and it had the support of the military—the French troops maintained there by Napoleon and commanded by Marshal Bazaine, who was almost as much the ruler of Mexico as Maximilian was.

As the civil war drew to a close, it became apparent that the North was sure to win. The United States then would be able to turn its attention to enforcing the Monroe Doctrine. Napoleon saw the handwriting on the wall. Utterly forgetful of all his promises to Maximilian, he prepared to abandon him to his fate although for some time the French ruler kept up a pretense of supporting his puppet emperor across the sea. Finally in 1866 in response to urgent representations by the United States, Napoleon promised to withdraw his troops from Mexico.

In the meantime open revolt had sprung up in Mexico! In October, 1865, Maximilian had issued a proclamation threatening death to all who offered resistance to the government. It was aimed primarily at the bandits who had been ravaging the country. But the Imperialist and French officers took advantage of the proclamation to execute many Liberals who were classed as brigands after their capture and this strengthened the hand of Juarez in his revolt against the usurper. It gained rapid headway and Maximilian, realizing at last that Napoleon could not be trusted to support him, saw that the end was almost in sight.

For a long time he had been blind to the fact that he was an unwanted ruler in Mexico and that his reign was destined to failure. Even blinder was his empress Carlota, (she had changed to the Mexican spelling of her name upon becoming empress). When he proposed to abdicate his throne, the empress stormed at him. So it was decided that she should go to Europe for a personal appeal to Napoleon to abide by his promises of support and protection to the ill-fated imperial venture. Failing in her efforts to win such a promise from the wily Frenchman, Carlota went on to Rome to appeal to the pope for aid.

In the Vatican she developed her first traces of insanity and so violent did she become that it was necessary for her to spend the night there. Thus history records her the honor of being the only woman ever to remain overnight in that historic building.

Having failed utterly in her efforts to gain support in either Paris or Rome and with her health and her mind falling, Carlota was removed to her castle in her native Belgium. Meanwhile back in Mexico events were drawing to a swift close. In February, 1867, after the departure of the French troops, Maximilian withdrew from Mexico City and went to Queretaro where he assumed command of a small army. There he was besieged by the revolutionists. He made a last desperate effort to break through and escape but he was betrayed by a Colonel Lopez and taken prisoner.

A month later he was court-martialed and after a trial that was something of a farce he was sentenced to die. The end came for him on the morning of June 19, 1867. The following winter they brought his body "to Vienna and the Kapuzinergruft—another crypt of Capuchin monks. A long line of Hapsburgs slumbered here and he was laid quietly among them. . . . And while he slept eternally, she roamed through the corridors of a distant Belgian castle, as far removed from him as their separate childhoods. At times it was as if he had never been. . . . Five empresses crashed while she sat in her garden. . . . Brooding in her armchair, she watched the sunset of five dynasties: Bonaparte, Braganza, Romanov, Hapsburg, Hohenzollern. Would there be a sunrise? "Death came quietly on January 16, 1927.

Until that moment, however, hers was an epic hold on life. She knew herself to be a monument to Maximilian and while she lived she would not allow men to forget him. To all who paid her visits while she would whisper: Let them remember the fair-haired stranger who gave his life for the ambitions of that grasping, unscrupulous Napoleon! Let them know that we, acted in good faith; and may God grant that our memory be sad but never hateful. . . .

In Mexico they remember Carlota as "the ill-fortuned Mexican Empress, who was an innocent victim in the game of European politics. . . . She will remain engraved upon our history in her goodness, her nobility and, above all, as the most loving of women." The world remembers her and her emperor as "two royal waifs of chance" whose tragic misadventure calls more for pity than for blame.

Lesson for March 3 PETER UNMASKS FALSEHOOD AND HYPOCRISY

LESSON TEXT—Acts 5:1-11; 8:18-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor: for we are members one of another. Ephesians 4:25.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter's Friend Helps People.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Stands for Truth and Honesty.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Sin of Lying.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Modern Forms of Hypocrisy.

1. Ananias and Sapphira (Acts 5:1-11).

The new community formed after Pentecost is now for the first time called the Church. Since the Christians have now broken with Judaism the success of the new community depends upon its gaining recognition. The Church is now superseding the Mosaic economy. It was now to be God's dwelling place, as hitherto it had been in the Tabernacle and Temple. Their sanctity was now being transferred to the Church. This fact the Church itself must learn as well as the Jewish people who surrounded it.

1. Their sin (vv. 1, 2). It was a hypocritical imitation of the generous act of Barnabas (4:36, 37). Because of the particular distress of the early Church following its open rupture with Judaism, its members for a time had a "community of goods." This was not universal nor permanent. Ananias kept back a part of the proceeds from the sale of his land, while pretending to have brought it all. His wife was a partner in it. They wanted the honor of generosity without paying the price thereof.

2. Their judgment (vv. 3-10). Physical death was visited upon Ananias and Sapphira for their sin. They lied to the Holy Ghost in keeping back a part of the price of their land. They were not obliged to sell their land or, having sold it, to bring any of their money and place it in the common fund. People today are walking in the way of Ananias and Sapphira when they make a profession of Christianity for temporal gain and pleasure. Preaching the sermons of Moody, Spurgeon, etc., without giving credit is another form of this evil. God is passing judgment upon many for their sins of this kind (1 Cor. 11:27-30).

3. The effect (vv. 11-16).
a. Great fear came upon the Church and upon all who heard of these things (v. 11). The Church should be regarded as holy because of its being the very dwelling place of the Most High God. Irreverence is an outstanding sin of this age.

b. Multitudes of men and women were added to the Lord (vv. 14, 15). The fame of Peter was spread far and wide, so that the people were anxious to come under his shadow. The proper recognition of the holiness of the Church, the body of Christ, will bring many to Christ for salvation.

c. Hypocrites did not dare to join (v. 13). The vindication of the holiness of the Church deterred none but hypocrites from joining. No unregenerate person and nothing unbalanced has any place in the Church.

11. Simon the Sorcerer (Acts 8:18-24).

1. His wicked request (vv. 18, 19). When Simon saw that Peter's power to work wonders exceeded his own and that this power was received through the laying on of hands, he offered money for the gift. This act revealed his hypocrisy. He professed faith in Christ and was baptized, and even followed the apostles for a selfish end. Traffic in sacred things is called "Simony," from the name of this sorcerer. Making merchandise of Christianity is committing the same sin. Using the name of Christ for the purpose of gain is to be guilty of this sin.

2. Peter's severe rebuke (vv. 20-22).

a. "Thy money perish with thee." This implies that Peter's judgment was that Simon was unregenerate and that he himself was in the way of perishing.

b. "Thy heart is not right in the sight of God." One whose inner life delights in God could not seek the Spirit's power for selfish reasons.

c. "Repent of thy wickedness and pray to God for forgiveness." While Peter recognized that this man was unregenerate, he did not regard him as beyond the hope of salvation, but urged him to turn from his sin and ask for forgiveness.

d. "Thou art in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity." The one and only thing for this man to do was to repent and sue for forgiveness. Simon requested Peter's prayer to the end that he might escape divine judgment.

The Power of Jesus

Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father.—John 10:17-18.

Must Be Tested

In most men there must be a tragedy of the soul, and the "majesty of righteousness" must be burned into us.

THIS FROCK "JUST RIGHT" FOR PLAY

For a tiny girl's play or school frock nothing could be very much nicer than this adorable little bloomer frock with its quaint over-the-shoulder yoke and prettily-puffed sleeves. The frock is simple to slip into, too, buttoning up the front, with only three buttons to be fastened. And it allows plenty of room for romping—the skirt is gathered to the yoke at the back and box-pleated in front. A smart checked or plaid wool or cotton would be pretty for this frock—little girls always seem to love gay colors—and be sure to make up four or five of those crisp white collars in linen or pique. The bloomers, by the way, are included in this pattern.

Pattern 9086 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires 2 1/2 yards 38 inch fabric and 1/4 yard contrasting.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed-sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

CONCENTRATED CARE

"Did Crimmon Gulch go Democrat?"

"Of course," answered Cactus Joe. "We was havin' one quarrel after another, and we jes' decided to let political leaders take the full responsibility for carryin' on the argument."

Not Particular

"May I call on you?" Jinks asked the girl he met at the dance.

"Certainly not! I wouldn't think of it!" she snapped.

"Oh, I didn't mean tonight," he countered. "I meant one wet and miserable night, when I have nothing better to do."

No Wonder

"Is somebody sick at your house, Johnny?" asked the neighbor. "I saw the doctor going in there last night."

"Yep, pop is," replied the kid. "The stork brought mom triplets."

um acts of 1933 have been given approval and sent to the governor for his signature. The measures provide for extending the moratorium until March 1, 1937.

One of the few bills to reach the status of law is that introduced under the joint sponsorship of Reps. Watson and Lingeman which qualifies Michigan banks, building and loan associations, and other financial institutions under the Federal housing act. The new law permits thousands of home owners in this state to avail themselves of the advantages of the act. It is estimated that as much as $40,000,000 will now be accessible for home construction and improvement.

Integral parts of the administration program are now ready for submission to the legislature among which are the governor's proposals for welfare and prison reform. Doing away with the prison, welfare, and correction commission, which would take active charge of all prison and parole matters.

(DELAYED)

"Jobs, jobs, jobs"! This is the battle cry of the self-seeking legions that have descended upon Lansing since the first of the year. Their presence sends senators and representatives scurrying from one department head to the other in vain attempts to appease the appetites of their job-hungry constituents. The situation closely resembles that of two years ago when it seemed that every person who ever voted the democratic ticket (and many who didn't) was laboring under the idea that he should be handed one of the lucrative berths on the state payroll. The job complex today is rampant among thousands of Michiganders. It was this problem of apportioning jobs that split the democratic party last fall and it was this same problem which contributed in no small degree toward the political downfall of the last governor. Unless I read the signs wrong, Gov. Fitzgerald is going to find himself spending many anxious hours in ponderance on this identical subject.

A few jobs are being passed out but not nearly fast enough to satisfy the waiting line. It is expected the capitol housecleaning will be gradual and not much in evidence, at least, until after the lawmakers have completed their work and gone home. Gov. Fitzgerald is credited with being too "smart" a politician not to appreciate the dangers of embarking on any program of wholesale dismissals at a time when he is sitting in his midst a recalcitrant legislature to which he must look for the success or failure of his efforts to reorganize the state government.

It is the governor's apparent disregard of patronage matters and his procrastination in passing out jobs to the "faithful" that is at the root of an open revolt which flared fourth in the upper house this week. Lead by Senators D. Hale Brake of Stanton and Earl W. Munshaw of Grand Rapids, an insurgent bloc of 11 republican senators aided by several of their democratic colleagues, succeeded in forcing passage of an amendment to the senate rules which increases the membership of the committee on executive business from five to seven, thereby placing the chief executive in the position of having to lend an attentive ear to the patronage demands of the bolting solons.

The committee on executive business is an important one inasmuch as it possesses the power of life or death over all gubernatorial appointments which require senate confirmation. As originally constituted, the administration forces under Senator Gordon Van Eenennaam of Muskegon, the governor's floor leader, held complete control of this committee. Now, however, with Senators Munshaw and Arthur E. Wood of Detroit having been assigned to the committee by Lieut.-Gov. Read, the balance of power shifts to the insurgents.

The results of this insurrection will be interesting to watch. Its affect on legislation cannot be determined this early, but one thing is sure, the administration will have to consult hereafter with this group of 11 republicans before important issues can be decided.

As each day passes it becomes more and more certain that one of the major planks in the governor's program will fall of attainment, viz: that for abolishing the state administrative board. Sentiment against this proposal is constantly growing among republicans and democrats alike.

Senator Leon Case (D), Water-vliet, has introduced a bill which would make the lieutenant governor a member of the board. Passage of this measure is contemplated in event the act creating the board is not repealed. For some time past there has existed in many quarters a strong belief that the state's second ranking officer should be permitted to the counsel chamber as a means of his securing a strong working knowledge of state affairs; preparation against the day when he might be called upon to assume command.

The belief that the administrative board will not be abolished at the present time is strengthened when cognizance is taken of the political aspects involved. Abolition would preclude the three remaining democratic state officers from exercising a voice in state management. State Treasurer Theo. I. Fry, whom many are of the opinion will be called upon to lead the democratic state ticket in 1936, Highway Commissioner Murray Van Wagoner, and Superintendent of Public Instruction Paul F. Voelker are not expected to sit idly by and allow their prerogatives to be curtailed in such a manner. In support of their cause can be found a democratic majority in the House which zealously guards the last vestige of its party's influence in state affairs.

Although this legislature may be no better or no worse than other legislatures in the past as respects its routine handling of the matters before it, nevertheless, nearly two months have passed since the present body began its deliberations and practically nothing has been accomplished to date. Committees are still sitting on important measures, refusing for obvious reasons to release them for consideration.

In the House there appears to be a deliberate conspiracy afoot to stall the proceedings until after the special elections which will fill the vacancies now existing. Certain republicans feel hopeful that the four representative districts that are to vote next month will return republican majorities and thus shift the majority in the House. In order to regain control, the republicans will have to carry every one of the four districts. Even then, they would be given only the slight margin of one vote in the lower house.

The senate has given the quietus to the resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to permit the governor and a non-partisan commission to appoint the judges of the state. The resolution was defeated 18 to 10 and by a 21 to 4 vote the senators refused to again consider the proposal during this session.

The second bill to be passed so far was sent to the governor for signature last Thursday. This was the Lingeman-Watson bill to enable state banks to make loans under the federal housing act in the same manner as national banks are now permitted.

An administration plan for remodeling the state highway department and removing it from politics has been submitted in the form of bills. They provide for a seven-man commission, appointed by the governor on a non-partisan basis, and confer on the commission power to place employment on a civil service basis. A highway engineer would be appointed to direct the technical details of the office. In order to avoid a conflict and prevent democratic opposition, the plan would not be put in effect until the expiration of the present term of Murray D. Van Wagoner, democratic highway chief.

Under the provision of a bill now in third reading in the senate driving of an automobile while under the influence of liquor would become a felony and the third such offense would cost the driver the loss of his operator's license for all time.

Bills providing for the abolition of the legislative council and the state crime commission have been given approval in their respective houses, and, in addition, a measure which would make it illegal to use state-owned automobiles for any purpose other than state business.

In connection with this latter bill a resolution has been placed in the senate hopper demanding that all department heads furnish the senate with a detailed statement showing the number of state-owned cars and the cost of maintenance.

Certainly there is no connection between the proposed census of mental defectives in Michigan and the latest recount investigation.

Meetings have already been held at Detroit, Lansing, Battle Creek and Ishpeming. Others to come are:

Manistiquette and Dowagiac, Feb. 15; Marquette, Feb. 18; Bay City, Feb. 19; Traverse City, Feb. 20; Grand Rapids, Feb. 21; and Ann Arbor, Feb. 23.

Invitations have been sent to every county school and road commissioner, county clerk and mayor or president of the 475 cities and villages in the state urging their attendance at the particular meeting in their district.

Auto Figures Show Interesting Trends

The year 1934 saw more than a million passenger automobiles on the highways, again, according to complete tables just compiled by the Secretary of State's office on automobile registration figures. In 1933, total passenger car registration had dropped below the million mark for the first time since 1927, when there were 999,915 cars licensed. The total for 1934 was 1,027,064; for 1933, only 956,784 were licensed. The year 1929 still marks the high tide in passenger car registrations, with 1,220,348.

There were approximately 2,000 more trucks on the highways in 1934 than for the year previous; trailers jumped to the highest number in the state's history with a better than 13,000 increase over 1933's previous record of some 79,000. Few people stop to realize that as recently as 15 years ago, there were only about a quarter of a million pleasure cars in the whole state, and less than 40,000 commercial vehicles.

Motorcycle registration is apparently at about its normal level, with about 3,000 licensed. Back in 1916, there were nearly three times as many on the roads, many of them being mere power wheels attached to bicycles, however. They have dropped steadily in number with the increasing use of automobiles, but for the past ten years their number has been virtually unchanged annually.

While commercial vehicles increased only about 2,000, the increase in chauffeurs' licenses shows a gain of more than 16,000, indicating that more than mere commercial needs for this class of operator, was manifested, unless shorted industrial hours have necessitated employing more commercial operators.

One annually recurring item which never fails to attract attention in the Secretary of State's office is the number of duplicate operators' licenses issued. For the most part, they take the place of licenses lost or destroyed. In 1934, nearly 15,000 people lost or misplaced their operator licenses, and bought new ones at $1 each. In 1929, more than 27,000 licenses were lost, for which duplicates were bought.

East Jordan Indoor Base Ball Team Shut Out Charlevoix

The East Jordan Independent indoor baseball team defeated the Charlevoix nine 13 to 0. L. Sommerville, the local pitcher allowed the visitor but one hit and not one man reached second base. He struck out nineteen men, eighteen of which were in a row. So effective was his pitching that of the first eight men to face him not one was able to touch the ball. Beadain was the only Charlevoix player to get a hit off L. Sommerville. Beadain led the hitting for the visitors. Hegerberg and W. Cihak led for the locals.

Annual Report of Michigan Bell Shows Some Gains

Net gain of 21,062 telephones during 1934 required the installation of 130,350, according to the annual report of operations of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company for the past year, which was presented by G. M. Welch, president, at the annual meeting of stockholders in Detroit, Thursday (February 14). Disconnections during the year totalled 109,288. In 1933 there was a loss of 46,476 telephones, the report shows.

On December 31, 1934, the company had 502,329 telephones in service, compared with 690,764 at the peak, in May, 1930, or more than 188,000 less than the high mark. Exchange messages increased 4.7% over 1933, but were 29.3% less than in 1929. Toll messages increased 7.4% over 1933, but the number completed during 1934 was 42.8% less than in 1929.

The report shows that the company continued to furnish a high grade of telephone service which was the best in its history, and that the plant was well maintained. The number of cases of reported trouble per telephone was at the rate of only one every 26 months. On toll calls there was only one report of unsatisfactory conditions for every 2,000 messages completed.

It is stated that the company is cooperating in every way possible with the Federal Communications Commission, with the view of having that body fully informed regarding the company and its operations. It is indicated also that the reduction in rural line rates and the introduction of flat rate residence service in Detroit, as ordered by the Michigan Public Utilities Commission on the premise that such reductions would result in sufficient additional business to offset them, have failed to produce that result.

Ratio of net earnings to the cost of plant and other assets was 3.69% compared with 2.47% in 1933. Dividends of $3 per share (3%) were paid on the company's stock during the year.

Directors were re-elected as follows:

Fank W. Blair, president, Union Joint Stock Land Bank of Detroit; Emory W. Clark, Detroit; Fred J. Fisher, president, Fisher & Company, Detroit; Burch Foraker, chairman of the board, Michigan Bell Telephone Company; Bancroft Gherardi, vice president, American Telephone & Telegraph Company; Walter S. Gifford, president, American Telephone & Telegraph Company; Robert W. Irwin, president, R. W. Irwin Company, Robert W. Irwin, president, R. W. Irwin Company, Grand Rapids; T. N. Lacy, vice president and general manager, Michigan Bell Telephone Company; R. Perry Shorts, president, Second National Bank & Trust Company, Saginaw; Oscar Webber, vice president, J. L. Hudson Company, Detroit; George M. Welch, president, Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

Officers were re-elected as follows: Chairman board of directors, Burch Foraker; president, G. M. Welch; vice president and general manager, T. N. Lacy; secretary and treasurer, W. I. Mizner; general auditor, George J. Brett.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

We, the delegates to the Charlevoix County Republican Convention, in convention assembled, do hereby pledge our unqualified support to the Republican party, believing it to be established upon principles of democracy, which have made our nation outstanding in the world.

We deplore the effects of those misguided fanatics, who thru extreme socialism and even communism, are endeavoring to destroy the basic principles upon which this government is founded.

We view with alarm the attitude of the administration at Washington in its apparent disregard of the spirit of the Constitution and pray that the day may speedily arrive when only those ideals in government will prevail that stand for liberty and justice for all; and that the Constitution upon which this nation was founded creating the cradle of American liberty be restored as a Rule and Guide for our future welfare.

We pray that our distinguished Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg be successful in his efforts to take the profits out of war. We are elated to learn he is favorably considered as our candidate for President in 1936.

We believe thru the leadership of our Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald our State will continue to lead as an outstanding Republican State of the Nation.

We are greatly pleased that our newly elected Senator of the 29th District, Otto Bishop, has established himself as an outstanding leader in the senate, and is especially in high favor with the present administration at Lansing. We are confident the 29th District will profit greatly during his incumbency.

We congratulate our Representative Douglas D. Tibbits on being appointed on three very important committees, and look for continued excellent service for his Representative District.

We unanimously and heartily endorse the candidacy of Senator William J. Pearson for appointment as a member of the State Conservation Commission.

We appreciate the work of our own County Committee, and believe with the unselfish support of the Republicans of this County, that Charlevoix County will lead the State in keeping Michigan Republican.

Committee on Resolutions.

Sound Loan and Investment Policies

It is a mistake to think that banks do not want to lend money. They do. Lending money is their chief way of earning money.

Nevertheless, the loans of this bank, and all its investments, are made with the deep sense of responsibility which comes from knowing that we are loaning and investing money belonging to our depositors.

But don't forget, we are glad to lend money to you or to any other reputable prospective borrower who can give adequate assurance that the loan will be repaid.

He signed his name and sat back, brows drawn and after a time nodded vindictively.

Out at the Hoot Owl Ben Elliott went through a week of unbroken dismay. It was a situation such as he had never dreamed of facing.

Dawn had heard and seen and... believed! She had fled the hall, convincing him of her belief in Lydia's accusation. Days had passed and he had heard nothing from her.

His men knew the story, of course; all the country knew it. But none mentioned it to him, none willingly betrayed to him their knowledge of his humiliation.

He was walking, wondering grimly what Dawn was thinking then, what she was doing; he was hearing once again the biting voice of Lydia; hearing, in memory, the hush fall over that dance hall.

He was wholly alone. Far behind him loggers worked in the timber; down yonder the mill sent up its plume of smoke and he could hear the distant puffing of the exhaust in the stillness.

No wind blew; nothing stirred... that he could see. He could not observe that slight, cautious movement to his left; that figure which watched him some and edged out through young hemlocks to a point from which his view was unobscured but where he still had good cover.

The man up there stood still. Slowly he shook off his mittens and with a bare thumb released the safety on the rifle he carried, settled slowly to one knee, placing it on the tail of the other snowshoe. His breath was not just steady as he snuggled his cheek against the rifle butt.

He sighted carefully, trying to still the tremor of his arms. He let his breath slip out slowly, he squeezed. The crack of the rifle echoed and re-echoed across the chopping. Ben Elliott lay still, as he had pitched on his face. One of his hands was outstretched, the other pinned beneath him.

For many minutes the man in the timber remained kneeling. Elliott did not stir. Then, cautiously, the killer groped for the ejected shell, slipped it into his pocket, raised to his feet and, backing cautiously, struck into the deep timber.

CHAPTER X

The rifle bullet had passed so close above Ben's head that he had felt its breath even before he was aware of its whine.

A bullet... here... for him! A hunter? But what would a hunter be shooting at here? That bullet was designed for him and had missed by inches. And he was pitching forward, simulating a fall, letting himself go limp.

He saw nothing, no movement, even; heard nothing. He was a-tingle, scalp creeping with an odd sensation as he waited for another bullet from these heights to the eastward.

But no other came. Ben lay there until deep dusk had fallen. Then he rose to his hands and knees, watching, listening. After a moment he stood still. Then, resolutely, he left the road, walled through the deep snow, crossed the railroad track and toiled up the heights. He went on, through the snow to the first fringe of trees.

Then he spoke, in a light hall: "Hi!"—and immediately dropped behind a stump. After a moment he rose, went forward again and entered the shadows boldly. No one was there, for certain, but before he had gone more than a few spaces he came on that which he sought: a snowshoe track, visible in the gloom because of the softness of the snow.

He followed this out of the thick timber to a little clearing. The trail was not visible in the darkness so he struck a match and holding it cupped in one hand, bent low.

The flare showed the track of a long, narrow shoe plainly and as he moved the tiny torch along toward its tip he stopped all movement. The match burned out. He moved on to the next track and lighted another. He examined several of the imprints made by the shoe. Then he went as rapidly as possible back down the slope to the road and started on to camp.

After supper Ben called Bird-Eye Blaine to one side.

"I'd like to have you harness the supply team and spend an evening in town," he said.

"The little barn boss cocked an inquisitive eye. 'Just in town, Mister Elliott? Or fer somethin' special?' 'Something special... But no one else is to know. What I want to find out is this: Who is wearing a pair of Canadian snowshoes with the webbing in the toe of one torn so it makes a hole about this shape."

Quickly he sketched a rough outline on a leaf of his notebook. Bird-Eye scanned it and nodded.

"Take it easy. Maybe you won't find out tonight. But make a start anyhow. If you should have any luck, stop in at the siding on your way back. I'll ride that far with you."

It was after midnight when Ben Elliott roused from his sleepless bed to hear Bird-Eye speaking to his team outside. He crawled out of his blankets and opened the office door to let the other in, but before he asked any questions lighted a lamp.

"Well, how about it?"—as he replaced the chimney.

Bird-eye looked at him narrowly. "I found 'th' shoes," he said with an emphatic nod. "Nd I found out who's they be!"

"Good!" The barn boss blinked.

"I g'unno 'bout that. It ain't so good, I'd say. They're the property," he said with profound emphasis, "av wan Red Bart Delaney, a celebrated killer from somewheres in Canada!"

From the second small bedroom separated from the office by a board partition, a bed creaked sharply. Elliott did not hear it.

"So that's it!" he said softly. "Yis! That's ut! Th' presence av a rattlesnake loike Red Bart in th' community don't forecast nawthing but th' hottest kind av trouble! Ye've heard av him, ain't it?"

"Yes, I have. He was mixed up in that spruce war on the Zhing-Wauk. A hired killer."

"Killer is right! 'Nd what may he be a-doing in these parts?"

Elliott did not reply to that question. "What else did you find out?" he asked.

"Well, he brought his stinkin' presence into Tincup Wednesday night on its own two stinkin' feet! He's a favorin' Joe Plette's hotel. Te' snowshoes was in th' office 'nd it come up so's I didn't have to seem curious to fold out those they was. He's here lookin' fer cedar, he says. But it gives a body a lot av bother wonderin' what his real reason might be. Lylin' 's av natural as breathin' to th' loikes."

"I can tell you," Ben said. "He's gunning for me, Bird-Eye."

"Saints!... I thought ut, I did! Ah, me b'y—"

"Yes, he started today. I was shot at with a rifle two miles up the road just at sundown. The man who shot at me wore a snowshoe with the web broken. He wouldn't be lending his snowshoes."

Bird-Eye stood motionless and silent for a moment before he spoke.

"Thin 'th' sooner we give him both barrels av somethin', th' safer ye'll be."

can't help but think Bird-Eye's advice is good. Swear out a warrant for him the first thing. This is a time for caution. It'll do you no good to take risks."

"I'll not walk into any traps, but if Brandon thinks he can make me hunt his hole—"

"Oh, Brandon!" The cry was bitter and Martin threw his arms wide in a gesture of helplessness. "You've got to watch him as you've never watched a man in your life. Why, son, you don't know, you don't dream, of the ends he'll go to!"

"But I thought you didn't know him," Ben said, puzzled. "I thought you said you were a stranger to this country?"

"Yes. But stories travel. And isn't your experience today enough to convince anyone of the man's ruthlessness?"

"Oh, sure," Ben agreed, but still wondering at Martin's mood. It was not just easy to believe that a steady-going, mature man should be so moved by mere tales.

"You're right. He'll stop at nothing, not even murder. And I agree with you that he's got to be watched. But if I ran into my burrow or didn't try to get at the bottom of this thing, he'd gain part of what he's after, you see. No, that can't be done."

He rose and began to pace the floor. "And it's not only the Hoot Owl, now, that's at stake. He's mixed up in more important matters than just property. He caught me foul where it hurt!—"

"No, I know you won't. But I wish... Oh, how I wish you'd counsel with some one else, with Able or anyone. You're young, you're in danger... And this matter you just mentioned: Can't you think of Dawn a little? If you love her can't you see that she has a right to believe that you will protect yourself?"

The man's voice had fallen to a broken whisper. He held out both hands in appeal and tears sprang into his eyes. This man, this mature, quiet gentleman, this stranger to the country, begging him with tears in eyes and voice to consider Dawn McManus struck Ben dumbfounded.

"Oh, it's only that you've shown yourself to be so decent," Martin said after a moment, emotions under better control. "I hate to see you putting yourself in danger."

"I won't stick my head into any noose," Ben replied. "Lord, it's late."

SYNOPSIS

Ben Elliott—from "Yonder"—arrives at the lumbering town of Tincup, with Don Stuart, old, very sick man, whom he has befriended. He defeats Bull Duvall, "king of the river," and town bully, in a log-birthing contest. Nicholas Brandon, the town's leading citizen, resents Stuart's presence, trying to force him to leave town and Elliott, resenting the act, knocks him down. Elliott is arrested and finds a friend in Judge Able Armitage. The judge hires him to run the one lumber camp, the Hoot Owl, that Brandon has not been able to grab. This belongs to Dawn McManus, whose father has disappeared with a murder charge hanging over his head. Brandon sends Duvall to beat up Ben, and Ben worships him in a fist fight and throws him out of camp. Don Stuart dies, leaving a letter for Elliott "to be used when the going becomes too tough." Ben refuses to open the letter, believing he can win the fight by his own efforts. Fire breaks out in the mill. Ben, leading the victorious fight, against the flames, discovers the fire was started with gasoline. Elliott gets an offer of spot cash for logs, that will provide money to spare. Brandon compels a woman (known only as "Lydia") who is in his power, to accuse Elliott of misconduct with a girl. At a dance to which Elliott escorts Dawn McManus, Lydia makes public her charges against him. Overwhelmed, Elliott can only make a feeble denial. Dawn, apparently believing him guilty, leaves the dance without waiting for him.

Mister Elliott! He's a harrd chunk, him. It's Nick Brandon's work, who's tried everything else 'nd wo'll not refuse to try 'murder to get ye down, Benny b'y!"

"Likely you're right," Ben said and rubbed his chin with a knuckle. "But we'd have to prove that, first. There's nothing to worry about, now we know the man's here to get me. Likely he thought he got me. Still there was he? Um... Well, that's something to think over, Bird-Eye. You better hit fer camp, now, and get some sleep. I may call you in the forenoon."

Bird-Eye sniffed and twisted his head gravely and after adding imprecations on Nicholas Brandon and warning Ben to stay close to the office, departed.

He could be heard unblinking his team and climbing into the sleigh; and when the frosty runners screamed in departure sounds came from that second bedroom behind the partition, the door opened and John Martin stood looking out. His dark eyes held on Ben Elliott, anxious and troubled.

"I couldn't help hearing," he said simply. "Do you mind?"

"Of course not, John. Looks like lively times!"—with a grin.

"It's none of my affair, Elliott, but I'm an older man than you. I've seen trouble... a-plenty." His voice dropped significantly, as though old wounds were being opened. "I've heard of Delaney. Every man in the timber has heard of the Zhing-Wauk war. I man that, in reality, they spoke briefly and cautiously.

"Well?" "In his tracks... Two mile above th' mill."

"Was he alone?" "Sure... They'll find him stiff... When do we settle?"

"As soon as the bank opens tomorrow."

Inside, the man seethed with a savage exultation. He crossed the street, drunk with the feeling of relief, mounted to his office and drank to his own success... And drank again. For hours he sat at his desk, whisky bottle at his elbow and when he went down the hallway to his bedroom at the rear he carried the bottle with him.

His first move for the day, once in his office, was to draw the cork of a fresh flask and drink deeply. A growl...

"Good Morning," He Said in a Hoarse Gasp.

ing warmth ran through him. That was better. It was not comfortable to wake up, thinking of a man lying lifeless on the snow... at your orders.

Soon, now, word would be coming into town from Hoot Owl, tragic, final word. He must be in shape to meet the news dispassionately. No one would know his part in the killing; none would guess. Still, it would not be easy to have people saying that Ben Elliott is dead... Elliott is dead; Elliott is dead... The words spun about in his mind, a savage chant, and Brandon wanted to be glad but could not. Elliott was gone, though. The Hoot Owl was at his mercy, and Dawn... Dawn!

And then he turned to the opening door. His jaw sagged, a light retching sound came from his throat as breath drained out—Ben Elliott was standing there and smiling good-naturedly at him.

But dead men do not stand up... Not men left dead on the snow... Men whose life you have had taken do not smile... Men stiff on the snow cannot smile... This combination of truths coupled in Brandon's swirling mind and struck him cold. This could be no man, then; this was an apparition, this was—

And then whatever it was spoke. "Good morning, Brandon!"

Elliott spoke naturally and easily, and closed the door behind him. Dead men do not speak; ghosts do not open and close doors—they pass through them.

And Nicholas Brandon, gathering his faculties, lurched to his feet, putting and clenching the edge of the desk.

"Good morning," he said in a hoarse gasp. "Good..."

Crocodiles of State

The government of Jaipur pays out good money every day to keep crocodiles alive. It has often been said that Jaipur is the most "different" city of India. Certainly it is the only one in that country to be built on a straight-line principle and the only one to have each and every one of its buildings colored mauve or pink. The Crocodile tank is one of the sights of Rajputana, and though it is difficult to ascertain from what far distant religious or mythological rite these beasts obtained their privilege, it is a fact that they are provided with three square meals a day and are tended by a keeper. Whenever this wizardlike old man appears at the water-edge with their foods the big beasts, no matter how soundly they appear to sleep in the mud, immediately swim towards him.

Guatemala's Jungles

In Guatemala's jungles are grotesquely marked monoliths, ruins of magnificent cities and colossal temple-topped pyramids which bear witness to the existence of an Indian civilization centuries before the Christian era. In little mountain villages and in the city market places are throngs of Indians to remind one of the fact that Guatemala is still 60 per cent pure Indian.

CHINESE DINNER PARTY

An English woman living in Siam, writes about a Chinese dinner. "Before the meal, his guests' clothes were handed round on which the guests wiped their hands. No plates, knives, or forks were provided. The food was placed in a big dish in the middle of the table, and the guests helped themselves. For soup a china spoon and individual bowl were provided. Meat was taken out of the dish with chopsticks. The following was the menu: (1) Crab meat and potato fritters; (2) shark's fin soup; (3) pigeon soup; (4) duck skin (the skin alone is roasted and eaten with a red sauce between bread); (5) pigeon's eggs, stewed with mushrooms; (6) turtle soup with lotus seeds; (7) mushrooms stuffed with fish; (8) baked fish with ginger sauce; (9) rice with dried fish eggs, ginger, etc.; (10) rich custard, with fresh fruit and jelly; (11) China tea in bowls without milk or sugar. "Hot scented cloths were again handed round, and this time they were much needed."

Constipated?

The doctors say... Use liquid treatment

Here is the soundest advice anyone can give on the subject of laxatives. It is based on medical opinion. We want you to have the benefit of this information no matter what laxative you may buy:

The secret of real relief from constipation is reduced dosage. You can't regulate the bowels unless you can regulate the help you give them. That is why doctors use a liquid laxative; the dose can be measured to a drop.

Avoid laxatives that you can't cut down in dosage; especially those that seem to require larger doses than when you began their use.

Under the doctor's care, you usually get a liquid laxative. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. Smaller and smaller doses—until you don't need any.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—natural laxatives that form no habit.

Chic Worsteds for Suit and Ensemble

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN it comes to topnotch swank, audacious color schemes and versatile weaves the new worsteds which go to make up the spring suits and ensembles have arrived at a dramatic moment in their career.

It is nothing uncommon in the advance spring styles parade for an ensemble to be fashioned of a skirt of one woolen, a blouse of another with the jacket, coat or long coat still another type and color. Yet in the final analysis the entire outfit will have correlated into a perfect unit of highest artistry.

The call of the immediate mode is for the suave and slim fitted tailored suit which has a related topcoat of heavier wool to go with it. The ensemble to the left in the picture is typical of the new suit-with-topcoat movement. The skirt and jacket is of light oxford gray wool, with a long top raglan of two-tone stripe novelty woolen. Later this topcoat can be worn as a separate wrap with other dresses.

Centered in the group is a two-piece tailor with button trim from neck to hem with a brown oxford topcoat held in readiness, its color being complementary to the brown and white check of the suit. As to checks and stripes and plaids they are all the rage in every conceivable mood of color and weave.

To the right is an early spring arrival—a coat made of a "nifty" new woolen of intriguing novelty. The check is achieved via a shaggy sur-facted cord on a navy blue background. Navy, by the way, is at the top of the list of important colors for spring. Buttons above the waistline as employed in the fastening of this coat and the unusually wide belt are also featured details in the incoming fashions. The wide collar is of navy woolen which is quilted in wide welts. Volumes could be written about the new quilted, stitched and shirred effects which embellish dresses, coats, hats and everything in sight which is quiltable, stitchable or shirtable.

The new "companion woollens" brought out this season provide endless opportunity to designers to work out striking and original fashions. A laceweave tweed for the suit with a lacier lighter weight wool for the blouse done in overchecks of white, the ground color matching the color of the suit material gives some faint idea of the handsome combinations in store for fashion's followers this season.

Another model consists of a fitted suit in cinnamon brown wool with a loose topcoat in the same woolen which is striped in white. Then again a light and soft texture suiting in diagonal weave is apt to have a companion woolen in interesting plaided patterning which introduces bright colors and it is even possible to detect an interweaving of gold or silver metal threads.

Rustic weaves in coatings are high style for sportswear, such as a basket weave check in soft spongy texture, one color running one way and a contrasting shade running the other, also handknit and carpet-weave effects which are colorful and sturdy in appearance.

MUST HAVE VELVET TOUCH TO ENSEMBLE

Even if you don't want to wear a velvet frock or suit this year, there should be a touch of velvet about you if you are to be truly smart and luxurious looking.

A turban of velvet ribbon done with intricate twists and drapings is always good when worn by the picturesque or exotic type. The tall Russian hats of sleek velvet also are good, as are the pill-box hats with rhinestone ornaments and filigrated veil. These are nice to nestle in huge, upstanding fur coat collars.

Then, too, there are afternoon bags of velvet, many of them shirred and trimmed with rhinestone or mirror ornaments.

Though Clothes Are Very Chic, They Are Practical

Clothes are ever so smart this season, but at no time have the designers lost sight of the practical. Thus we have tunics that are strikingly elaborate, yet they will give new life to an old evening frock or a long, slim skirt. These tunics come in beautiful fabric, sometimes they are rhinestone studded or else they have bands of spangles. One beautiful model that we saw was of heaviest lame in silver and green. The very draped neck was caught in front with a jeweled ornament, and bracelets caught the loose sleeves into tight cuffs. This could go over an evening dress to make a lovely outfit.

Frothiness

Net dresses, sometimes complemented by capes, all are marked by extreme frothiness about the neck, shoulders and hem lines. Black, turquoise, pink, brown and peach are the favorite colors in order of their popularity.

Sport Sweaters

The smartest of sports sweaters show a decided English influence in their conformation to more or less simple and classic styles, softest yarn and unusual pastel off-tones.

TORTOISE SHELL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If you are the sort who wish to be "first in fashion" in your set, appear on the scene wearing either of the tortoise shell sports jewelry ensembles here pictured. Barbaric in design is the stunning necklace of blond tortoise shell catallo with matching bracelets which the stylish young woman above in the picture is wearing with her bright green silk dress.

Control Disease; Quarantine Urged

Every Precaution Should Be Taken to Halt Spread of Infection.

By Dr. C. D. Grinnell, Dairy Investigation, N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station, WNU Service.

Diseased animals should be quarantined to prevent the spread of infection. Quarantine not only protects the healthy animals, but it also facilitates the treatment of diseased animals.

Introducing new animals into a herd without quarantining them for a period of 30 to 40 days is not favored. If at the end of the period they are found to be free from disease, then it is considered safe to place them in the herd.

While in quarantine the animals should be watched closely for any trace of disease. The period necessary to keep the animals under close observation varies, depending upon where the new animals came from, the type of animal, and its physical condition.

Animals collected from different farms, assembled in public stock yards, and shipped long distances are dangerous sources of infection, as they are exposed to many chances for catching disease at a time when their resistance is lowered.

But animals which have been hauled only short distances are also liable to become infected, while many come from herds where disease is present, the need for precaution is necessary whenever bringing new stock into a herd.

A few infected animals can spread disease through a whole herd in a few days, and it is risky to wait a day or two before putting the new stock into quarantine, even though there is no apparent indication of disease.

Eliminate Parasites to Conserve Supply of Feed

Stock feed can be conserved this winter by eliminating parasites that sap the strength of the affected animals, states Dr. E. N. Stout, extension veterinarian at the Colorado agricultural college.

Not only will the elimination of parasites allow the live stock to winter through on less feed, but indigestion and colic may be prevented, Doctor Stout says.

Lice on cattle can be eliminated by dipping anytime on a sunny day. The best dip solution is nicotine sulphate. One dip will eliminate all live lice, but a second application may be made 15 days later to catch the lice hatched during the interval.

Horse bot parasites should be treated not sooner than one month after a freeze hard enough to eliminate the bot flies, as it requires a month's time for the larvae to migrate to the stomach. In addition to the bots, other intestinal parasites such as roundworms and tapeworms will be eliminated.

When Cows Chew Wood

When cows chew wood or bones and eat dirt it shows that the dairy ration is deficient in mineral matter, which should be corrected at once. Examine the ration carefully and add those feeds that are high in minerals. Legume hays, such as cowpea, soybean, clover, and alfalfa are rich in calcium and will supply a sufficient amount of this mineral for the average cow. Phosphorus is supplied by wheat bran, cottonseed meal, and soybean meal. These feeds contain about 30 per cent of this mineral. It might be well to add two pounds of a mineral mixture composed of equal parts of finely ground limestone and steamed bone meal to each 100 pounds of the concentrate ration.

Seize Poisoned Food

The careful inspectors of the federal food and drug administration continue to find shipments of fruit and vegetables which have on the surface an excess of poisonous spray residue beyond what is considered a safe limit. Among the shipments seized were 137 of apples, three of pears and 14 of cauliflower. Five consignments of pickles were confiscated because they were found to have been sweetened with saccharin instead of sugar and one shipment of imported sardines was destroyed because of the presence of lead in the food.

On the Farm

Portugal raised sufficient wheat the past year to feed all its people.

The 1934 apple crop in New York state was the smallest in 44 years.

Young calves often have stomachache and should be treated with castor oil, say live stock experts.

Age does not determine the vitality of farm seeds. In general, older seeds do not germinate so well as fresh seeds.

After heifers are a year old, they need little or no concentrates provided they receive plenty of high-quality roughage.

The value of Mississippi's cotton crop in 1934 was estimated by farm authorities at $74,340,000 in contrast to $57,820,000 for 1933.

Idaho produced approximately 19,610,000 bushels of potatoes the past year or about 2,000,000 bushels below the state's five-year average.

Co-Operation in Problem of Curbing Insects Advocated as Only Effective Method

The control of many insect pests is essentially a problem of the North American continent, not of Canada, or of Mexico, or of the United States alone, according to Lee A. Strong, chief of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture, National boundary lines mean nothing to these insects, Mr. Strong says. So why, he asks, should each nation undertake to deal individually with pests that attack the forests, fields, orchards and gardens of more than one of the North American countries?

Through internationally co-ordinated programs, Mr. Strong points out, definite results have already been obtained in the face of apparently insuperable difficulties. Co-operative grasshopper surveys and control operations in the northwestern states and in the southwestern provinces of Canada, for example, proved effective in suppressing recent grasshopper outbreaks on both sides of the border. Moreover, Canada and the United States have profited alike from joint action on European corn borer control and on gypsy moth eradication in adjacent areas.

Notable also, Mr. Strong continues, have been the results of entomological co-operation with countries to the south. With the aid of the Mexican authorities, the United States Department of Agriculture has succeeded in keeping the Mexican fruit fly from becoming generally established in the Rio Grande valley of Texas. By this co-operative effort, Mexican fruit growers were also helped in the control of the fruit fly in its native home below the Rio Grande.

Co-operative work on the citrus black fly in Cuba has reduced the numbers of that fly until it is no longer a serious pest in Cuban orchards and the likelihood of spread into Florida is materially lessened. The black fly was controlled within a few years by a parasite from Asia. Entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture found that this parasite checked the black fly in Malaya and, with the aid of the Cuban government, introduced it into the island's citrus groves.

International co-operation, Mr. Strong believes, is just as essential for research as for insect pest eradication and control. All control and eradication programs, he points out, must be based on the results of entomological studies. "I can conceive of no finer, more necessary type of conservation," he says, "than the control or elimination, whenever and wherever possible, of those forms of animal life which destroy the good things for society and contribute nothing good to society. To that end, I am for more and, if necessary, larger pest control and extermination programs based on more and better co-ordinated programs of research."

Old Ideas Reversed?

The common belief is that the terms "clinging vine" and "sturdy oak" are no longer applicable to the male and female species of the human race. It has occurred to us that perhaps they are still applicable but in reverse order to the old custom.

Scientific Wonder

Heat into sound is an amazing transformation accomplished by scientists. The warmth of a hand held near the device makes it emit a low growl; lighting a match a few feet away draws a snarl for an answer. The invention can be adjusted so that it is sensitive to a burning match 40 or 50 feet away.

"Bon Voyage" to Fifth Grade

The pupils of the fifth grade have a large map of the world. Following this they are making an imaginary trip around the world. As they reach each country they will paste pictures of foreign children on that part of the map showing their native country.

Studies of Egyptian Boys and Girls

A new and interesting subject has taken up the interest of the fourth graders. They are learning and studying the habits of the boys and girls of Egypt.

Mrs. Hager is reading aloud to them the book "Little House in the Big Woods". It being a story of the neighboring state Wisconsin, makes it still more interesting.

This grade gave a very nice program on Washington's birthday.

Large Map in Making

The pupils of sixth grade section II are making a large map of Europe. On it they are placing the products of certain countries. Later on they plan to place the pictures of the children of different European countries on it also.

They have accomplished the hard part of geography, learning the countries and important rivers of Europe.

Peggy Drew, Margaret Kaley, Marjorie Kiser, Marian Kavorik, Vera Staley, Glen Trojanek, and Suzanne Porter are the honor roll students this month.

The helpers for this week are: Blackboards, Louise Scott, and Neva Hitchcock; Dusting, Nancy LaLonde; Plants, James Bugai; News, Marjorie Kiser, and Vera Staley.

The sixth graders are also making covers for their geography books.

Lyle Danforth

Here's a blond-headed boy about five feet six who is known as Lyle Danforth, and his hobbies are skipping school and dancing.

Lyle was born June 30, 1918 in East Jordan. He went to the Rock Elm school for six years and then came to East Jordan for high school. His favorite sport is football, having played on the first team for three years. We also found out after the play "Who Wouldn't Be Crazy?" that he was a very good actor.

Harriet Ellen Conway

On May 19, 1918, Harriet was born in East Jordan. She started her schooling here, but after having completed the fifth grade moved to Midland. She attended the junior high school in Sparta, but moved back to East Jordan to begin her high school course which she is now completing here. She has always liked English especially well.

Harriet says she likes to talk so she took debating this year, and certainly did her part in "bringing home the bacon". During her junior year she was elected secretary-treasurer of her class. She has played the clarinet in the band for the past four years. She has also been on the news staff for two years. She was awarded a prize on a dress which was exhibited at the county fair her sophomore year. Harriet was "stuttering Margery" in the junior play and in the English play, Ada, a sophisticated woman. She plans to go to the Mars business school or take up nursing after graduation.

Roscoe Vernon Crowell

Roscoe was born July 3, 1918, on a farm about a mile from East Jordan. He came to East Jordan before he was a year old. Roscoe started in the grade building when he was four years old. He has played in the band during the past five years and the orchestra two.

Roscoe has always been more or less quiet and reserved, but that did not prevent him proving himself to be a real actor in the Commercial Club play, "The Path Across the Hill". He has shown a decided interest in debating and was prepared to be an alternative for one of the team if necessary. He has gone to all debates and proved to be a very valuable time-keeper. Roscoe hasn't any favorite subject, but he wants to prepare to become a lawyer when he has been graduated.

Who Can Sew A Straight Seam Now

The freshman home economic girls have been studying the different seams and have been practicing on them.

They also have been studying patterns and measuring each other.

Another quiz was given Friday, which was not as bad as the first one.

The sophomore girls have been working on the unit of child study. They have been studying the bad and good habits of a child, the care of the baby, how to bath a child, father's responsibility of the child, and the community's responsibility of a child.

Humidity for Humanity

The general science classes have been conducting a series of determinations of the relative humidity, that is, the amount of moisture in the air. The average humidity in the class rooms was found to be between 20% and 28%, lower than that in the Sahara Desert which has an average of 35%. The humidity in the rooms should be anywhere between 50 and 55%.

Mr. Walcutt with the help of John Kramer and Howard Malpass has developed some very interesting demonstrations which are to be presented by the science department at the general assembly on February 28. Just what these demonstrations are has been kept a deep dark secret, and everyone is eagerly anticipating this assembly conducted by the chemistry and general science classes.

The chemistry classes have just had what they hope will be their last test on salts, acids, bases, and neutralization. The general science classes have been busy studying the relation of heat to humidity.

Why Miss Stroop!

A short time ago in Latin I class Bud Porter asked Miss Stroop how to pronounce "fui".

Miss Stroop replied, "Phooey."

"What's she making fun of me for?" demanded Bud to one of the students.

Latin I students had a test Tuesday. From the reports, it must have been quite hard.

Translations of Roman customs are occupying the attention of Latin II students.

Freshman College Continues

Several more people in East Jordan have taken advantage of the college to keep from the usual drowsiness of this winter season. Or did they perchance see one of the posters labeled, "Don't be Dumb! Come to College!"

At any rate, the enrollment for the new semester now stands at forty-two. Much interest is being shown in the evening classes in modern English Literature and Political Personalities in American History. If you are one who still is "thinking about it", why not take the decisive step and ally yourself with this seat of higher learning?

Band Party Big Success

On February 16, the East Jordan High School band celebrated the tenth anniversary of the organization of the band. The evening began with a banquet prepared and served by the mothers of the band members.

Mr. Wade then acted as toastmaster. Norman Bartlett, George Secord, Howard Porter, Dave Pray, Mrs. Gabriel Thomas, along with Mr. Ter Wee gave accounts of past trips and contests. Harriet Conway gave a short account of the present band. "Snelly" gave a very interesting talk. George Nelson read a poem he wrote about playing in the band which was very good.

Then the grand march was led by Phyllis Bulow and Arthur Quinn. From nine until twelve everyone enjoyed themselves dancing.

There was quite a few from out of town present. Everyone is anxious for another ten years to roll by so here can be another celebration.

"Washington Digest" Gives Interpretation of News From Capital

There was a time when keeping up with the news from Washington, was about as interesting as reading the telephone book. Routine reports about dry-as-dust matters, long speeches about nothing at all — these were about the sum total of the news from the national capital.

That time seems to be definitely past. Today no news is of greater interest than the happening at Washington, and the importance of being well informed about events taking place there can hardly be overestimated. Everyone is interested in the new plans being formed, the new policies being adopted by the administration, and the effect these will have upon the nation, and upon industry and agriculture.

To keep abreast of these new developments is rather difficult for the average reader. The scene is constantly shifting—new figures are being brought into the spotlight—things are happening with a rapidity that is confusing if one is to depend upon routine news dispatches from the capital.

"Washington Digest," published each week in this paper, brings you the capital news as interpreted by William Bruckart, noted capital correspondent. This unbiased reporter tells more than mere news—he tells what is going on behind the scenes, condensing into small space the essential information regarding men and events that will give you a comprehensive picture of governmental affairs. He deals not only with events themselves — but with causes and results — what led to the adoption of certain policies, and what their probable effect will be upon the country.

Bruckart writes with authority. He is recognized as one of the ablest correspondents at Washington, and is particularly noted for his knowledge of government financing and treasury department activities, very important qualifications for intelligent Washington reporting today. His long experience as a correspondent for the Associated Press and United Press and his former connection with the United States Daily give him an invaluable background.

If you want to be well informed make a habit of reading the "Washington Digest" as it appears each week in this paper. It is written in a clear, crisp, concise style that makes it unusually interesting, and it is always free from partisan prejudice. It offers an easy way to keep abreast of what is going on in the nation's capital.
